Eventually the whole idea is shifted to the next phase once that was all through. They realized that never, ever would you get all of the profane, ALL of the profane to become wise and able to rule themselves. Out of the same movement came the EUGENICS SOCIETIES and the need to sterilize and kill off the inferior types. This stuff, again, was given advocacy by the writing of Darwin. That LAUNCHED the whole program, survival of the fittest and the best. That’s really what it’s about. Those who climbed to the top of the tree in the existing financial systems would BE at the top of the tree. They’d proven their worth to get up there and if they could hold on to that through generations and pass on their treasures to their offspring who would in turn rule that system, they definitely had proven their worth to be there.

It's been a steady roll since then using science as a front, and lots of theories as a front to bring down the world's population. They can't have their utopia with the so-called multi millions of profane people at the bottom who will never really know what's going on and who live their little lives thinking about themselves, their families or their entertainment and what they want to do and play at, what they want to be in life and so on. They were just simply too low down the totem pole to go on into this wonderful future. The same future that HG Wells kept describing over and over and over. That's what's behind all of this.

Now, since 2001 we've gone through the war OF terror. It is a war OF terror, not on terror. It's a war OF terror. They terrorize the entire public into compliance because the Pavlovian technique is far more effective if it can be enforced and made mandatory by masses of government agencies, when they've already got an obedient population trained to obey government and agencies. Look at the SPEED of the taking away of all rights of the public. The in-your-face, while we are monitoring all of you across the planet. Everybody is being monitored. Why would that be? Let's not even go in to their reasons for it. We know it's to bring in their own utopia. They cannot allow anything, anything to get through which they didn't see. It might upset their plans, anything at all.

The tyrant can't sleep at night unless everyone is perfectly PREDICTABLE. That's why all of your habits, your whole personality profile is copied and put together in a so-called virtual reality run by the Pentagon. That's one place. They have a clone of us inside some computer. I've read the articles from the Pentagon on this. They have your habits and who you phone on a Thursday or a Friday and what you have in common with that person, and what does that person's circle also include. They try to find mathematically different combinations of why you interact with different kinds of people. You must be perfectly predictable.

That's what the whole Cold War used. The RAND Corporation and Game Theory, they were feeding all of this kind of stuff into the old computers. You were just a number that behaved in a predictable fashion and if you stepped out of your predictable fashion they'd want to find out why. They would monitor you; you wouldn't even know it. This has been going on for a long, long, long time. They are just making it much more easy to monitor all of us. Really, that's why they gave us ALL the internet. If it was bad for them and could possibly upset their plans we would never have been given it.

We ARE predictable unfortunately. Collectively, we are predictable. We can get hooked on things and they know this. The only thing I knew about computers for years, was that there was lots of porn on it. That's what everybody knew, there was lots of pornography. It was the first thing to be launched by the media… lots of porn; a bombardment daily, weekly, monthly, yearly on the internet. That was to get the schmucks in. That's what it was for. They had it all laid out how far they would take it before they start reeling it back in and by that time you'd be addicted to it. So even though you go through changes and you'd pay more money – and eventually you will pay for every site you look into and there will be authorized sites only and the mainstream media will be the only ones giving out the main information eventually, down the road, maybe not too far off – you'll still look at it because it'll simply take over from TV… as it's already doing. You'll adapt to that and adapt to that and you'll forget how it was in the beginning when you could see alternate sites and talk to people more freely. You'll forget all about it because we adapt. We are the most adaptable species on the planet.

Years ago, as I say, when I was traveling – I did a lot of traveling across Europe – I noticed the same laws getting passed at the same time as I went from country to country. Often under different names but it was always the same laws. If you didn't know by going through other countries, you wouldn't know this was happening in the next country and the next country and the next country at the same time. So I knew there was already a global system set up, long before they declared, just declared, this new corporate entity called the EU Parliament, of legal status. Long, long before that when they were still talking about 'economic associations' and that kind of thing they were already doing it. The last people to know what's going on are the general public and really, even the rituals of going through the voting farces – because it's all rigged – is just a formalization to the public that you are now conquered, really, and it's in the open now, …and now they demand your cooperation. That's all it's for. And they do love rituals at the top.

The Americas are to go the same way. The war OF terror is the way they are really pushing it and ramming it through to protect everyone in the Americas. You cannot have all these separate governments. It's just too untidy, it's too confusing and in a sudden emergency, going through all the different laws of each country, it's too time consuming and too dangerous. That's what they are using. They've been using it since 2001. They call it this 'Fortress America' idea; that was in the media in Canada. Also, since 2005 they've had the signatories, the great signatories, coming together. The Prime Minister of Canada, the President of the US and Mexico – the three amigos – openly always signing deeper, DEEPER and 'closer ties' with each other, which is the same terminology they used when they were uniting Europe year after year, decade after decade… 'Closer ties,' until you are so tied together you can't move unless you all roll together.

Karl Marx talked about it, remember. Karl Marx talked about the 3 main trading empires beginning with a united Europe and that's what the Young Italians and Young Turks and all the other Young so and so's and Young English were about in the 1800s, a world under this system and a united Europe. They would get rid of nationalism by using anarchists, as they called them. Anarchists were just the guys that got caught. They were the guys at the bottom that were disposable for the secret societies, the fervent types. To UNITE was the key to overthrow the old existing system. Mazzini that was trained and he went all over the world really, fomenting, as an overseer, the revolutionary parties on behalf of his mentor. His mentor was the grand commander for Freemasonry for the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, Albert Pike. Mazzini said in his own writings that we must utterly corrupt in order to rule. The corruption of society was essential to rule. You must bring in chaos to rule.

It's no coincidence that chaos ruled and reigned before Mussolini came in. What they use is a technique of what you think is a left and a right wing; it's not really a right wing. You have chaos brought in by what appears to be a communist party and then you give an antithesis to it which they called the Fascist Party, even though Mussolini himself was a socialist and an editor of the Italian Socialist magazine for years prior to becoming the Great Dictator. They did the same thing in Germany. Germany was an incredible hot bed of massive communism and the Brown Shirts that Hitler was in league with had pitched running battles, mainly in Berlin and the main cities in Germany long before war broke out and before he even came into power. Pitched battles with thousands of people involved and lots of assassinations on both sides. Mussolini had so much to do with Adolf Hitler by giving him lots and lots of advice. Really, they were socialists, which was another formof the same thing.

Quigley himself kept repeating that war is meant to change the cultures on both sides until you have a unified NEW culture. Again, a new Horus comes out, you see, of the two oppositions. But it's ongoing. The last people to ever know what's happening are the general public. They WANT… it's true, it's true. They are so well brainwashed that if there is 1% of PLAUSIBILITY in a governmental explanation they'd rather jump at that and hang on than think the unthinkable which is: this just really stinks and it's wrong… and it's a bad omen for all of us. They'd rather JUMP on to the 1% plausibility and comply, even if they deep down in their hearts and their GUT reactions instinctively know that this means something is terrible, something really, really bad is going to happen for all of them. They will still clutch at the one little HOPE of the lie.

I was thinking tonight too about this big bill that has been put out by the UN and then the EU passed it to do with health foods. The world they are brining in is to be run by scientists and through registration and licensing. Everything is LICENSED. That means if there is someone who steps out from their main crowd would have their license withdrawn. That's why with the Medical Association it's so EASY, SO easy to control. You must get a license. They're going for ALL of the alternate health foods and so. Now, they know from intensive farming that yeah, they can grow big potatoes and all the rest of it, but it's LADEN WITH PESTICIDES, it doesn't have the minerals and the vitamins that you need to survive and be healthy. They know all this. So they are making sure, through taking away your ABILITY to get supplements, without going through doctors and prescriptions – that's what it's coming to, that's what it's all about – who will then be told to reel all THAT in too. They don't want a healthy population as we go through the changes. They've got to bring on chaos then offer the solution which will be depopulation, there's too many people. That's really what they are about right now.

I keep saying we are the only species on the planet that HAS to be CONVINCED to go along with our own destruction or annihilation. You try talking to any animal out there as to why you want to eat it, or get rid of it, or kill it. I don't think you'll get very far. But they talk to us and try and convince us, through scientific indoctrination and because we have this ability to almost religiously go for a religious type of idea, when they bring in the globalism. And they are teaching young children who have these visions of the world and trees everywhere and plants and birds and animals. They could bring this in absolutely. Absolutely they could bring this in, where people will VOLUNTEER, that once their useful life is up, to help save the world, they will not be a burden upon the world and they will go quietly into the extermination chamber. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the way things are always done in advance of the public ever knowing what's really going on and that the ritual of announcing it even to the public, or something being set up, or a vote, or whatever, it's a forgone conclusion. It's a RITUAL to formalize and externalize what they've been doing for years.

In Canada for instance, there are two bills. I don't know how far they've gone through so far. There is Bill C6 and Bill C51 that are in line with the Codex Alimentarius Bill that was pushed across Europe and is getting pushed in the States and pushed here. It goes in line with it, without using the terminology of Codex Alimentarius, but it's to do with a whole bunch of things that gives power to the government to do. Here is an example. I'll put up this link tonight. It's from the Natural Health Products Protection Association. It says here…

Draft Discussion Paper on Bill C-6 the Canada Consumer Product Safety Act
Prepared by Shawn Buckley, president of the Natural Health Products Protection Association
February 18, 2009 / NHPPA.org

(A: It gives you the difference between the two bills and really how they are a compliment to each other. It goes in to what it affects. It's everything really. There is a summary of the points discussed in the paper…)

TABLE OF CONTENTS:

The Property and Privacy Rights Affected by the Bill are Broad in Scope

Context for the New Law - is it necessary to take away freedoms to protect us?

-The Hazardous Products Act (A: A lot goes under this act. The government can come into your home at any time, without warrants, without going through any organization, just an agency, and check for products in the home that they claim cause fires, are unsafe, etc.)

-The Criminal Code Criminal Negligence Provisions

-Civil Penalties

The Abolition of the Law of Trespass

The Right to Seize Property Without a Court Order, Without Reporting the Seizure to a Court, and for an Indefinite Period

The Private Home Problem (A: They are getting around this whole idea of private property. The great internationalist Pierre Trudeau was the head of the Comintern for Canada, a young communist league that went to Russia. He was the head of it in 1952. He LED that party over to Moscow and became the Prime Minister of Canada. He gave us a Charter of Rights and nowhere in the charter do you have it saying anything about property or the rights of property.)

The State can Assume Control of Private Property, Including Land, Without a Court Order and Without a Safety Concern

The Move Away from the "Significant Risk" Test (A: Because they used to have to prove, before they went through all this stuff.)

The Abolition of the Independent Review Board

Are the Powers to Take Control of Businesses and to Seize Private Property for Alleged Contraventions Legal?

The Creation of Administrative Offences (A: New offenses for everything.)

We (A: The public.) are Responsible for the Costs of Seizures and Detentions Regardless of Whether the Seizures and Detentions were Justified

Additional Costs and Responsibilities for Small Businesses

It's all to do with - not just all to do with this - health foods basically. It can also go into the realm of if someone lends you some supplements that weren't authorized and they're in your property, you could lose all your property. Just like that. There is no hearing after it. It's just seizure. I'll put this link up. There's a lot of links on here and PDFs and so on and you can go through it all yourselves. Its first reading was back in January. I don't know how far they've gotten with it now. I've not doubt it will get rammed through regardless, and regardless of the complaints. And if not, they'll bring it back into a big omnibus bill and a different name to it. That's what they've always done in the past.

This hour has just flown in as always, so from – as usual, a very rainy, incredibly rainy and sprayed – Ontario, Canada and from Hamish and myself, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Draft Discussion Paper on Bill C-6 the Canada Consumer Product Safety Act" Prepared by Shawn Buckley, president of the Natural Health Products Protection Association (nhppa.org) - February 18, 2009.

- PDF Version

"Draft Discussion Paper on Bill C-51" (nhppa.org).

- PDF Version

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 13, 2009 (#428)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 13, 2009:
Glad Song Lies Cover Babylon's Rise:
"U.N. Rising on Cue to Position of The Global Authority, Fooled the World as Santa Claus, Doling Gifts to Each Minority,
Its War is Peace, Freedom Slavery, in Doublespeak of Course,
The Only Power Mandated to have Use of Ultimate Force,
Its War-Making Power Wrecks Nations, Very Few are Left,
Weapons are Starvation, Bombs and Massive Banking Theft,
Peoples' Views on it are Hazy, News Bits-Bytes, Assumptions,
New Babylon Rises to Power with Old Leprous Festering Corruptions"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 13, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 13, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 13th 2009. For the newcomers, look into .com web site. You can download hundreds of talks I've given the past where I try to fill in the big picture behind the regular media handouts they give us, to show you what's happening and how the future is always planned. The future was planned before we were born, even the stages we're going through now, towards this manifesting world government, this super Soviet system. You'll also see all the other sites I have up there for emergencies and for casual use. It's good to use one of the alternate sites when you find sticking when you go into the .com site. That means everyone is going into the .com site and the same time and it tends to sort of hold back on your downloads so you can use the alternate sites and get through easier. [Official sites listed above.] The alanwattsentientsentinel.eu has transcripts of many of the shows and you can print them up and pass them around to your friends. It's up to you the method you want to use. I like reading it myself; I think you retain it better. It's up to you, too, to keep me going and you can find out how to do it on any of these sites. [Ordering and donation option listed above.] Some people in the US don't have bank accounts; they are wary of the banks and no wonder. They use international postal money orders. Some people just send cash.

Everything WILL go electronic eventually. It's scheduled to do so and there have been articles over the years from the big players themselves, bankers, wanting that system in. The system has to be completely tied together, all information, ON everyone including their purchases, to match it with their income; that's part of it too. It's to go into a totalitarian regime. Eventually the rationing system too, that will come, where they will wonder why you've got an extra can of beans there… and that's not in any of your purchases. Who gave it to you? How did you get it? It sounds farcical but that will come. That will come… definitely.

For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, they don't have a computer and people with computers burn lots of disks and pass them around, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. But it's up to you to keep me going. The ads on this show that you hear are paid by the companies straight to RBN for the air time. It pays their staff, bills and their equipment too. Equipment always has to be upgraded, especially today; stuff is obsolete in no time at all and nothing is meant to last very long, as everyone out there knows. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can do it by donating to me as well. I really need the cash. I could be doing other things, certainly.

As I say, I came out in the first place wondering if people were even ready to hear what I had to say, if they could understand what I was going to tell them. Luckily enough, there are a lot out there who DO understand it and who have changed the whole Patriot movement into seeing the big picture. I'll be back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Once in a while I get an email, not very often, from someone who says I've really changed their way of thinking but my news is not very pleasant. Well, of course it's not very pleasant. It's not nice to find out how we've been conned, and your parents were conned and their parents before them were conned. Everyone is conned, generation by generation. Even the ones who are being brainwashed now, into the next phase of the greening and the austerity era we have to go through - meaning poverty - as the bigwigs, just like the Soviet system at the top, will live very high on the hog so to speak. High on the hog… see, we are the pigs at the bottom; I guess that's what that means.

Of course it's not pleasant. It's not pleasant to wake up into a reality either and lose your interest in things like even music, if you've been tapping your foot and humming the tunes and just being programmed by the music you listen to, which is what it's there for. It's also there just to keep people just kind of spaced out and to think that everything is kind of fun. Well, it's no fun when you end up with no cash, or you lose your job, and factories just move off shore and go off to China, as it's been happening for years, while they entertain you with silly, silly little songs.

It's easier for the young because the young are more optimistic. They haven't woken up to reality because they are youthful. They have optimism. They have the hormones pumping through them. They are occupied with other things and they don't want to hear bad news. They want to have fun… so the entertainment industry supplies all the fun that you need. It then takes over when you end up getting married or whatever, and you end up in a house and you're working. You're a working stiff and then you sit in front of the television and let THAT entertain you… and stop you from thinking about how unpleasant it is to reach that age where you're now called an adult and you've got all these bills to pay and you're always in worry of losing your job.

Every segment is catered for because nothing has not been thought of in this new world order. It's an entire system to control every facet of everyone's lives. That's what it's about. It's more depressing, obviously, because you find out that – and I've mentioned this before, years ago. I said, you find the tools that they leave out for you in a democracy. It's like if you can envisage a road, envision it, and there are all these tools dropped behind for you to use if you are in trouble. There's a pick there and a hammer and a shovel and all these different tools for the road. You believe they are always there until you need them. Then you go to pick up the pick and the ax on the road there and you start digging a hole… and you find they bounce off the road. They're made of rubber.

It's all an ILLUSION. All these agencies and all these help things are illusions. They have OTHER purposes; other purposes, of control. Every agency out there is to do with control and there is really no complaints department in this system. In fact there's been even less and less and less over the many years as government has ferreted out, or ferried out information to agencies. They bypass Congress and Parliaments and they just outsource, as they call it, to agencies. Then they go way beyond any mandate that government has ever mentioned, because it is mandated by the REAL government which you never vote for; the one that is ADMITTED to, by the way.

Once this is all over and the United Nations hoists its world domination flag and every country is now a little state within a region, like a province, they will tell you the truth then. They will love to tell you the truth. I'm sure they can't wait to tell you how generations were conned, over quite a few centuries in fact. It was never, ever intended that the people themselves would be given power. Only SELECTED groups with big chips on their shoulder, the outsiders that didn’t fit in, would be used for DEMANDING FROM GOVERNMENT the very things that government were told to expect from them… so they could then acquiesce, you see. These non-governmental organizations, as they are called, are financed and often started up by the parallel government through their foundations; the SAME banking boys, the same international corporations own the foundations that finance all the big non-governmental organizations.

Not every NGO is affiliated with the United Nations. They can not GET the affiliation. To get affiliation with the United Nations you must apply and you must PROMISE to go along with EVERY OTHER PART OF THE United Nations agenda and if you don’t, well you just can’t become a member. It means selling out completely to join, as an NGO group with the United Nations. It’s also giving more and more and more power to an UNELECTED, PRIVATE body. We can take the Economic Union of Europe that now has got nothing much to stop it from going ahead. It is declaring itself now the new Super Power. It’s going ahead with its legal entity status, way above the average citizen’s comprehension, legal entity status. It means, literally, it will have all the powers that a nation had and all the nations that are underneath it now have no powers at all. At the top is a secretive body; they admit that themselves. It says that it is private groups at the top making all the decisions in secret, in secret… from their own writings.

How on earth can someone living way over yonder, with people who come from other countries, have any idea of, say, problems in Britain? …problems the average person faces on a day to day basis? They have none at all and they don’t care. So once it’s under the complete auspices of the United Nations these 3 trading blocs they are building, -you can imagine how REMOTE they will be from little old you and your problems and your life - it may as well be on a different planet. The more centralized anything becomes, the more DISTANT it becomes from everyone outside of itself. It was never set up, in the United Nations, to be a democratic body. Yeah, it will have these so-called democratic institutes within it for the high councils to vote amongst themselves but we don’t elect these guys. So you can imagine what’s coming down the pike.

They are going to run the world in an orderly fashion. Population reduction mandated, definitely bringing along the DNA alteration for new types of humans to be born, just as many as the elite need of course, because the United Nations is a FRONT for those who already own the world. It was set up by them and financed by them to get it up off the ground. It’s the main treaty maker that every country that signed on to it goes along with. Everything that the UN puts out is signed into law in every country beneath it.

Ireland, of course, got ripped off as it voted against this actual treaty, one of two countries that didn’t go along with it I think. They had a massive propaganda campaign, time and time again, until you vote right, the right way. They will keep coming after you, time and time again, terrified you’ll be left behind, you’ll starve to death, and all the rest of it, until they get enough voters to pass it. Plus there is always vote fraud going on so it doesn’t really matter how many people vote anyway. That’s a fact. That’s a fact across the planet.

Here is an article to do with Vaclav Klaus who has spoken out about the farce of global warming and the dangers of the European Union. The media, now the media in every country is owned by about 5 people in the world, through front groups and front names and front people. It’s really 5 people who own ALL of the media of the planet. This is from Reuters. Reuters, for instance, is owned by Rothschild; they started it up. They stared up Interpol as well, like a private police company. But through drama, presentations on television series, like Megray [?] and things like that from long ago, they got the public to think it was some kind of official, authorized body. This article says…

Signing the Lisbon Treaty
Czech Media Calls President an 'Embarrassing Handicap'
By Sarah Karacs 10/05/2009 / REUTERS

(Alan: Now what’s the media got to do with politics, really? Apart from being an arm of the real government, the guys that own them.)

Media in the Czech Republic have hit out against President Vaclav Klaus, who is threatening not to sign the Lisbon Treaty and delay ratification for months. They call the Czech leader an embarrassment and discuss ways of forcing his signature. (A: The media is doing this… not the people.)

The Irish have ratified the Lisbon Treaty; the Poles are soon to follow suit. The spotlight turns on the president of the Czech Republic Vaclav Klaus and he has been slammed by the media in his own country.

Klaus is refusing to sign the Lisbon Treaty, which is meant to bring widespread reforms to the EU and streamline decision-making (A: Streamline means giving them the ultimate authority, bypassing all national authorities.), because members of his own party -- the Civic Democratic Party (ODS) -- submitted a complaint to the country's Constitutional Court calling on it to determine whether it violates the country's constitution. Klaus has stated he will not sign the treaty until the court makes its judgment in November. (A: So it's in the court's hands anyway.)

But the pressure to ratify the referendum is now on. The Czech broadsheet, Lidove Noviny, reports Klaus facing heavy criticism from his cabinet. The Czech caretaker Prime Minister Jan Fischer in particular is pushing to ratify the treaty by the end of the year. "Groundless postponement of the completion of the ratification process would have a negative impact on the position and influence of the Czech Republic in the European Union," he said. (A: Utter rubbish. It doesn't matter how fast or slow you vote to get it in. But again, he's being hammered. He's been hammered but he's holding his ground there. This guy has spoken out against major farces that are being used to control the public in the past, including the global warming even though he knows, I'm sure he knows, it's a losing battle. He's standing up for his own principles and that's really all you can do in this day and age. That's all you're left to do. I'll be back with more after this break.)

I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. It's true, it's very, very depressing news when you find out that really all these big machinations are going on above your head and bypassing you and everyone you know and yet it affects all of us. That shows you the farce of - and it was a very good farce; it worked for a long time - this idea of democracy. There never was democracy. Those who even gave it to the public knew at the time, when they first gave it to them, it was a con. It was a con to keep them quite for a while. They'd play the political game for a while, but there would be only ONE agenda and the tops of all parties would go along with the same agenda. That's why nothing changes as you change from party to party. Nothing changes at all. It all comes from the top… VIA the United Nations. They don't create the idea; they just do their part in it and pass it along to the rest of the states, as they call them.

Here's an article from the New York Times. Now, this is the handout version they give out to people because we don't think too deeply. It's a PR spiel, really.

Interpol and U.N. Back 'Global Policing Doctrine'
Interpol and the United Nations are poised to become partners in fighting crime
(A: Here's your PR, it's for fighting crime.)
By DOREEN CARVAJAL / October 11, 2009

PARIS — Interpol and the United Nations are poised to become partners in fighting crime by jointly grooming a global police force that would be deployed as peacekeepers (A: Remember, 'war is peace' and all that stuff, very Orwellian.) among rogue nations riven by war and organized crime, officials from both organizations say. (A: Now, they're organizations, right.)

On Monday, justice and foreign ministers from more than 60 countries, including the United States and China, are gathering in Singapore for a meeting hosted by the two international organizations.

It is the first step toward creating what Interpol calls a "global policing doctrine" (A: Here's their spiel for it again. They always catch you off guard and put you back into la-la land.) that would enable Interpol and the United Nations to improve the skills of police peacekeepers, largely by sharing a secure communications network and a vast electronic trove of criminal information, including DNA records, fingerprints, photographs and fugitive notices. (A: In other words, they're getting access to ALL of the computer banks that all our stuff, since 2001, is now stored in. That's what it means. Now the whole world is a target. Everybody on the planet is the target as they transform this and put in their super SS unit at the top. They always have a super police unit at the top, whether it's the KGB or Stasi or whatever. They always make a super one at the top. So this is the one for the world, you see, that's got access to ALL records of EVERYBODY across the planet.)

“We have a visionary model,” said Ronald K. Noble, secretary general of Interpol and the first American to head the international police organization, which is based in Lyon. (A: This is the same guy, by the way, I think who gave the orders for Waco to get burned. But they love fire; it’s one of their MOs in their religion.) More than 187 member nations finance the organization. (A: Remember, it’s an organization, not a country. The United Nations is not a country. It’s an organization. It’s a CORPORATION, actually.)

“The police will be trained and equipped differently with resources,” Mr. Noble said. “When they stop someone, they will be consulting global databases to determine who they are stopping.”

Modern peacekeeping has evolved dramatically since the blue-helmeted U.N. military force won a Nobel Peace Prize in 1988. Since 2005, the number of police officers within the total force of 95,400 peacekeepers has more than doubled from about 6,000 to 12,200 in 17 countries.

U.N. police are already battling kidnappings and drug crime in Haiti (A: Ha, listen to this. They’ve been doing it for years, battling, still battling little Haiti.) and illicit lumber trading in Liberia. (A: This is the excuse they give you, the farce of it all, because it’s all about this whole thing, this war of terror on the general population of the world.) The aim of the joint effort is to increase the ability to track the movement of criminals around the world by sharing resources and common standards, according to Mr. Noble. He is also pressing ahead with plans for special electronic passports for the agency’s staff of more than 600 Interpol investigators to speed border crossings. (A: So they have a Super Pass, this new KGB. Then it goes into all the countries that are putting more and more money towards it. I shouldn’t say countries, the tax payer, WE are funding all of this stuff. Your governments don’t have it; they take the money from YOU. That’s all governments do is take money from you.)

The Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs is contributing more than $2 million (A: Where’d they get that money from? From the public they tax.) to finance the development of international global policing standards, according to Andrew Hughes, an Australian who currently heads the U.N.’s force of police officers.

The ambition is to create a series of networks to counter borderless organized criminal operations, Mr. Hughes said. (A: Here’s a funny one. Again, they always pull the ‘women’ card on this.) Women, in particular, are being recruited, with a goal of reaching 20 percent of the U.N. force (A: Well, you know what they use the women for, for seduction purposes and getting info out. They pay them for that. So it’s a very old trick isn’t it?) and the development of all-female units like the group of 140 peacekeepers from Bangladesh that is about to be deployed.

“We’re working with refugees,” Mr. Hughes said. “Many of the victims of atrocities are women, and they’ve had enough of men with guns and uniforms.” (A: So we’re going to give them men with guns and uniforms with BLUE helmets and lots of money to spend and that will make it alright, okay.)

Waco Siege “Enforcer” To Rule Over Global Police Force
Man who both approved and covered-up government slaughter of 76 people, including 20 children, will lead move to establish international model of law enforcement
Paul Joseph Watson / Prison Planet.com / Monday, October 12, 2009

(A:This article is there, about the United Nations and the rapes and so on that are carried out everywhere United Nations peacekeeping forces have gone. I'll be back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just explaining what some of the HANDOUTS that they give to the media to hand out to us really mean, and I think the listeners are well aware that everyone is going into a hell of observation where they must know every single thing you do every MINUTE and every SECOND of the day. That’s really their goal. That’s their goal. It’s the only way you can be truly safe at the top. They talk about peace and security, it’s the only way THEY at the top can feel secure is when they know what everyone is up to and all about you. You must be PREDICTABLE. They have all the data to see your habits. They have so much data on you that you’d never, ever believe, a whole personality profile. Even your routines, weekly routines, who you call, who you see, where you go… all that is collected. If you deviate from your routine they will want to know why. That’s all coming down too.

Plus they are putting cameras up, as so-called experiments, in households in Britain, by law mind you. They are spending masses amounts of money on it for pilot projects. Of course, it's going to spread to the whole nation; just like Orwell said. In fact, Orwell's 1984 starts off with Winston in his room, just going around a little break, a corner in the room, trying to get away from the cameras while he writes secret stuff in his diary, otherwise he would be observed by the cameras. Why was that? He knew what was coming because he sat in on meetings. He sat in on meetings. He mixed with the crew who were designing this whole phase, way back then. That's why he knew.

It's amazing too, how they rub everything in your face now today, the guys at the top there, and they start strutting who they are, as they can SEE their goals being accomplished one by one by one, in rapid succession… rapid succession. We've heard Brzezinski a few years ago, and Kissinger a few years ago, and different ones, talk about the up-and-coming Brazil and up-and-coming India as emerging nations. Now, no one, no one emerges unless big money is pumped into it by the big boys WITH the money who always have PLANS for those countries. That's how it happens. China didn't pull itself up by the bootstraps and get lots of money through exporting rice. They got all these massive factories built. It was done through negotiations, through the United Nations, again, and the GATT Treaty that allowed all the companies and corporations to move offshore to China. Prior to that, for 30 years the universities of Canada and the States and different places were training the young engineers in engineering. They had no factories at that time so WE prepared them for the factories that were to come. Everything is planned in order in this big scheme of things. Nothing is by luck or happenstance or hope. They don't use hope in this big new world order. They plan it and they make it happen. Everything happens on cue.

So here is how they go strutting that in your face now as they're getting their way, of course. They can't help this and they've done this down through time. This is from the Telegraph.

Lord Mandelson and Nat Rothschild share Brazilian ambitions
When Lord Mandelson (A: This guy has got an incredible history. Each time he falls in the smelly stuff, which he might be fond of, he's always picked up and raised to a HIGHER level than before. You have to go into his family's history to see why. He's now in the seat as LORD Mandelson, a particular governmental seat that his father or grandfather had before him.) pays tribute to President Lula of Brazil at the Banqueting House in Whitehall on Bonfire Night, his Brazilian-born boyfriend, Reinaldo da Silva, will not be the only one hoping for friendships to sparkle. (A: That's a polite way of saying something.) The Business Secretary's holiday host Nat Rothschild has decided to expand massively his interests in Brazil. (A: Now, earlier on in the year it was Evelyn DeRothschild who was buying up all the bankrupt farmers in India to bring in the new corporate farming with the GMO veggies and seed.)
By Richard Eden / 10 Oct 2009

Lord Rothschild's heir has invested £75 million in BR Properties to take advantage of Brazil's booming economy. (A: They have a whole bunch of big front organizations also buying all the other shares.)

Nat, from whose villa in Corfu Peter Mandelson reportedly ran Britain while Gordon Brown was on holiday in August, is expected to take a seat on the board of BR Properties. His father is the chairman of the RIT Capital investment group, which is also taking a minority stake in the company. (A: They always keep everything in the family. But they always have their agendas set out WAY in advance don't they? And they buy it up cheap. So… it's in your face. Even the way it's written here, how Lord Mandelson ran Britain from Rothschild's house. He ran it from his house… why bother with Parliament when you are already ruling, truly, the country? Why bother with Parliament? It's just the farce of the so-called democratic show they have to put on for the public.)

There are a couple of links I'm going to put up too, apart from these ones, to do with spoofs; spoofs to do with everything that is connected to global warming. There's one there, it's got so much in it. Its little extracts taken from just the headlines from papers, including, you know, beetles migrating north, for a good summer, that kind of stuff, Loch Ness monster dies because of global warming. It sort of shows you, it's to give you the farce, to create how farcical everything is. It breaks that worry phase or anger phase and breaks into laughter because we have to laugh at the farces that are pulled on the WORLD by the big boys so they can have their way. Utter farces. I'll be putting them up on my web site for you to peruse. There are lots and lots of little funny parts in one of them in particular. Even cannibalism is down, apparently, due to global warming and stuff like that; everything they've used, everything under the sun to try to scare us into thinking there is global warming.

A complete list of things caused by global warming
Numberwatch.co.uk

In the UK they are going ahead with the new age of austerity, which means POVERTY, as we go through these cutbacks of carbon and stop heating so much and stop… of course the inflation as well that follows the massive bank bailouts as they keep the institutions going. You'll have to pay for it all too, so they're telling you to cut back. It says…

Tories (A: Conservative leaders.) cut to the chase as George Osborne (A: He's the head of the conservative party.) heralds age of austerity
Philip Webster, Political Editor / From The Times October 7, 2009

The Conservative leadership took a massive electoral gamble yesterday by offering years of pain to voters [Alan laughing.] (A: It's just like sado-masochism. I keep telling folk this is a sado-masochistic system.) in the hope of being rewarded for honestly in facing up to the nation's plight.

George Osborne heralded an age of austerity as he pledged to freeze the pay of millions of public sector workers, cut benefits enjoyed by the middle classes and cap civil service pensions at £50,000 a year.

Together the cutbacks would save £23 billion in government spending in a first Tory Parliament. (A: I've never seen anything cut back and used for what it's intended to. Because immediately they've got a whole list of things they want to get or do or buy or another war somewhere else, or something. They've always got so many things planned it never helps the country; they still go cap-in-hand to the big bankers and borrow more. So that's all a farce.)

The Shadow Chancellor's (A: It's amazing too, you've got SHADOW people and SHADOW cabinets. It's like a ghost or spooky thing isn't it? The Shadow Chancellor's…) brutal warning to the country to tighten its belt came after it emerged that plans to raise the retirement age to 66 were being brought forward by ten years.

They want us all to die early, you see. They know we're dying earlier now and they don't want you cashing in on your pension plan, that's why. They don't want that. Why not? Why don't they want you to cashing in? Well, they want that dough, you see. The new world order system is: YOU have a duty to serve the WORLD and once you are… by their own admission at the United Nations, they said a good world citizen is a producer AND consumer. When you retired you are consuming. You are taking up the earth resources. That's very selfish of you. They'd rather have you just die off… and eventually they will train us all to walk into the extermination cabinet, like a little cheery farewell from our relatives or whoever we know and that will be it. You just get blasted out in the stratosphere. That will be it… a little mist.

Here's another thing too. How people fall for the new age over and over and over and over… And they rake in millions, maybe even billions of dollars in books about the new age. Then of course, the great trick is to TIE the new age in with the new world order until it sways a part of those who have kept their heads - until a certain point, until they get into the new age and then they mix it with what they've learned about the new world order - until you get a smorgasbord of mixed-up schizophrenic gibber… which is called COUNTER-INTELLIGENCE because once you try and explain everything that's happening they think you are a freak, and quite rightly so. But for years they've yapped on about, oh, planet X. Planet X always appeared when the US was going to go to war with someone; it took your mind off it. Thousands of people are standing up and saying, where is planet X, you know. Then they used Mars. When Mars got closer, twice in the one year, to earth and it changed color from the usual reddish color to a sort of orange; they were looking at that as planet X, you see. These guys who designed this entire con knew this of course, but it works so well. Then there was the 2012. I think every talk radio show out there that goes into the paranormal was talking about 2012. Oh, it's written in stone, the Mayan stone, the Mayan calendar; written in stone it is. This ties in with pensions, by the way, because if this is true, you'd better worry about the pensions. This is from apnews.myway.com

2012 isn't the end of the world, Mayans insist

Oct 11 / By MARK STEVENSON / apnews.myway.com

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Apolinario Chile Pixtun is tired of being bombarded with frantic questions about the Mayan calendar supposedly "running out" on Dec. 21, 2012. After all, it's not the end of the world.

Or is it?

Definitely not, the Mayan Indian elder insists. (A: So there ya are. You'd better worry about your pensions. The world isn't going to be over by 2012 after all. So this elder says…) "I came back from England last year and, man, they had me fed up with this stuff."

It can only get worse for him. Next month Hollywood's "2012" opens in cinemas (A: This is the big disaster movie.), featuring earthquakes, meteor showers and a tsunami dumping an aircraft carrier on the White House. (A: It also is apparently some kind of system where they save the better type from the destruction that's coming, similar to Deep Impact. These are predictive programming movies. In Deep Impact, all the elite and the technicians and scientists went into an underground bunkers. All those that were left had to stay on the surface to die and they got lottos for the last few seats that were left. They gave you a lotto for the public. These are predictive programming and this one apparently has something similar in it.)

At Cornell University, Ann Martin, who runs the "Curious? Ask an Astronomer" Web site, says people are scared. (A: Scared, yeah.)

"It's too bad that we're getting e-mails from fourth-graders who are saying that they're too young to die," Martin said. "We had a mother of two young children who was afraid she wouldn't live to see them grow up."

Chile Pixtun, a Guatemalan, says the doomsday theories spring from Western, not Mayan ideas.

A significant time period for the Mayas does end on the date (A: It's only a cycle, you see.), and enthusiasts have found a series of astronomical alignments they say coincide in 2012, including one that happens roughly only once every 25,800 years. (A: That's the great zodiac, the completion of the great zodiac. That's what that is.)

But most archaeologists, astronomers and Maya say the only thing likely to hit Earth is a meteor shower of New Age philosophy, pop astronomy, Internet doomsday rumors and TV specials such as one on the History Channel which mixes "predictions" from Nostradamus and the Mayas and asks: "Is 2012 the year the cosmic clock finally winds down to zero days, zero hope?" (A: Then they even tell you a good chunk of the so-called calendar is missing, so all of the rest of this stuff is kind of guessing. It's just the great cycle, as all the astronomers know. Nothing else will happen… except, of course, they want the United Nations to get risen up to a high power, according to their plan. But that's not done by any paranormal force, you might say.)

The cameras that go up everywhere have many purposes. Partly it's to intimidate everyone who is underneath the cameras. You behave differently. In fact, you will grow up behaving differently. You won't be spontaneous when you know you're getting watched all the time. It's also creates a sense of fear on you as well, and when you are fearful you are easier to control. It also makes you far more suggestible. They've found in studies: the more fearful you are, the more SUGGESTIBLE you are to propaganda. From the Guardian.co.uk.

CCTV schemes in city and town centres have little effect on crime, says report
(A: Now, it won't make any difference because it was never put in there to stop crime.)
Criminologists' research shows surveillance cameras are 'at their most effective' in cutting vehicle crime in car parks
Alan Travis, Home affairs editor The Guardian, Monday 18 May 2009 / guardian.co.uk

The use of closed-circuit television in city and town centres and public housing estates does not have a significant effect on crime, according to Home Office-funded research (A: Which means tax payer, of course.) to be distributed to all police forces in England and Wales this summer.

The review of 44 research studies on CCTV schemes by the Campbell Collaboration found that they do have a modest impact on crime overall but are at their most effective in cutting vehicle crime in car parks, (A: Now listen to how they even rationalize it…) especially when used alongside improved lighting and the introduction of security guards. (A: So security guards and the lighting help to create less crime in car parks, NOT the cameras. Then it goes on and on and on, all the other studies and so on that really it's got nothing to do with.)

The conclusion is, obviously since it's a mandate to go ahead with even more cameras, right down to your house, then it's nothing to do with crime is it? It's called this new world order, this world that will be run by experts, EXPERTS ON EVERYTHING you could imagine. Every facet of your life, every thought you could possibly have, there will be an expert out there to advise you, actually ORDER you eventually. They already have ones out there too, to order you about.

It's not often, either, you get them being exposed at the top by media and especially mainstream type media, they will deny anything. It doesn't matter what they've done, they always deny, deny, deny. Wired Magazine has this article to do with telephone companies. We know, and I've said this for ages, that the media, especially, is an ARM OF GOVERNMENT but so now are all communication companies. They are ALL arms of government.

Telephone Company Is Arm of Government, Feds Admit in Spy Suit
By Ryan Singel October 8, 2009 / Wired.com

AT&T was the first of many telcos sued for helping the NSA spy on Americans without warrants.

The Department of Justice has finally admitted it in court papers: The nation's telecom companies are an arm of the government — at least when it comes to secret spying.

Fortunately, a judge says that relationship isn't enough to quash a rights group's open records request for communications between the nation's telecoms and the feds. (A: The government tried to get around it by saying it is one agency within government, or contracting a new private agency, so it doesn't have to go through Congress or anything. This is how they are doing it with public/private. I'll be back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. You know, this new world order is going to flatten people who are already in the bottom wage earning brackets; even the middle class has to go. They've always said this from the 1800s, they'd have to eliminate the middle classes. So you'll have, really, this bunch at the top running all the money, a massive bureaucracy of well-paid fat bureaucrats running it. They will have their armies because they always hire one half of the poor to kill the other half. So guys like Tony Blair KNOW they've got to soak up the cash now, to be amongst the ultra rich, rather than be down at the bottom with the poor. He knows the policies that he and others are bringing on for the whole planet. It really is that way. It really, really is that way. They know what they are bringing down, the standardization of equality and the redistribution of wealth, as they like to call it. It's to bring everyone down to a peasant status. So Tony is filling his pockets big time, has been since he left office, after destroying Britain. He's actually getting put forward as the first President for this new Economic Union. It will be the first President ever of this complete new entity.

Billionaire EU campaigner 'paid' Tony Blair
Jon Ungoed-Thomas and Bojan Pancevski / From The Sunday Times October 11, 2009

Tony Blair, the favourite to become Europe's first president, is believed to have accepted tens of thousands of pounds from a steel billionaire campaigning for Ukraine to join the European Union.

Victor Pinchuk, who is championing the country's bid for EU membership, has already hired Stephen Byers, the former Labour cabinet minister, to press his case. He reportedly paid Blair to give a keynote speech in Ukraine. (A: Not bad money, eh? Tens of thousands of pounds for being a… well, what can you call him, eh? What do you call a guy like that? Mind you, Tony Blair said himself, in an interview, he has no regrets about anything he has ever done. He's a psychopath.)

Ukrainian diplomats are preparing to launch a membership bid as early as next year and consider Blair a key ally.

(A: The wording is excellent here. It says…) Several European countries support closer economic ties (A: Now, all through the European Union when they were lying to the countries of Europe that this was a total integration system they were going for, they used the term 'closer economic ties'. So they are trying to get closer ties...) with Ukraine but have not directly backed a bid. Some, including Germany, are concerned that closer links with Ukraine may jeopardise relations with Russia. (A: And so on and so on and so on.)

Not bad money eh, if you can get it. Good jobs, if you can get it… if you have absolutely no scruples whatsoever. Tony Blair, believe you me, has no scruples because you have to SEE who trained Tony, this Fabian Socialist… to train him. And who his mentor at Oxford was. Read the letters that he sent to this particular guy talking about negative and positive freedom, a concept brought out by Isaiah Berlin. He came out with this concept of you either keep people fooled, give them quite a little bit of freedom but never let them know what's going on. That was called positive freedom. They really talked, in these series of lectures that this guy gave on freedom, about the people like cattle. They truly do. You're just animals. Negative freedom is where they get you on board towards a common cause, like saving the planet, for instance, is a common cause or like in the Soviet Union. Tony asked if you could blend the two together, negative and positive freedoms. Meaning, you've got to be even more in the dark than ever about anything that's going on. You'll be happy in your own little world where you can play yourself, but you'll all be on board with the whole world, and agenda to save the planet and go green. That kind of stuff, that idea, you know… the working man's utopia stuff from the Soviet era all over again. Repetition.

From Hamish any myself in Ontario, Canada - where it's rained again and it's pretty cold - it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Signing the Lisbon Treaty - Czech Media Calls President an 'Embarrassing Handicap' " by Sarah Karacs (spiegel.de) - Oct. 5, 2009.

"Interpol and U.N. Back 'Global Policing Doctrine' " by Doreen Carvajal (nytimes.com) - Oct. 11, 2009.

"Waco Siege "Enforcer" To Rule Over Global Police Force" by Paul Joseph Watson (prisonplanet.com) - Oct. 12, 2009.

"Lord Mandelson and Nat Rothschild share Brazilian ambitions" by Richard Eden (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 10, 2009.

"A complete list of things caused by global warming" (numberwatch.co.uk).

"Tories cut to the chase as George Osborne heralds age of austerity" - Oct. 7, 2009.

"2012 isn't the end of the world, Mayans insist" by Mark Stevenson - Oct. 11, 2009.

"CCTV schemes in city and town centres have little effect on crime, says report" by Alan Travis (guardian.co.uk) - May 18, 2009.

"Telephone Company Is Arm of Government, Feds Admit in Spy Suit" by Ryan Singel (wired.com) - Oct. 8, 2009.

"Billionaire EU campaigner 'paid' Tony Blair" by Jon Ungoed-Thomas and Bojan Pancevski (timesonline.co.uk) - Oct. 11, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 14, 2009 (#429)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 14, 2009:
Certain Deception by Weaponizing Perception:
"Are You Sure You Reason, Reach Your Own Conclusion,
With Psy-Ops, Technotronics, Mixing in the Confusion,
Along with Media, Releasing Each Authorized Version
To Counter Your Logic, Disable Personal Assertion,
Negating Your Memory as You Live through Events,
'Media Can't All be Wrong' as You Give Your Consent,
Then You Parrot with Friends, Authorized Story,
For Acceptance Amongst Peers, War's Hygienic, Not Gory,
With Crisis after Crisis, have You Noticed -- No Anxiety,
Bombarded by Waves of the Calming Variety,
Peoples' Rights have been Stolen Across the Whole Globe,
As They Sponge Up the Psy-Ops by Lucifer's Strobe, Addicted Public Purchase Each Plastic Weapon, Brain Cells are Dying, Herein Lies the Lesson"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 14, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 14, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 14th 2009. For the newcomers to the show, look into .com web site and bookmark all the alternate sites you’ll see on that front page when you scroll down. That is for future use when some of the major sites get hung up for some strange reason or other. That way you can download the latest shows from the alternate sites. If you ever experience downloading problems with the .com site, it’s because too many people are using it at the same time. So you can use the alternate sites and you can get through right away and download. [Official sites listed above.] Remember, I’m probably the only host here who doesn’t get paid BY the advertisers because I don’t push advertising. The ads you hear on the show pay RBN directly for the station time, for the staff and equipment and their bills; all that kind of stuff. So it’s up to you to keep me going. You can find out how on any of my web sites. You can buy the things I have for sale – books, CDs and DVDs. I don’t have much because I never have time to do any more than I’ve done already because of the shows and other things I’m doing. But you can buy those things I have for sale or you can donate to me. That keeps me just trickling over. [Ordering and donation options listed above.] For those who get the disks burned and passed to them – by people with computers and they don’t have computers themselves and they play them on their CD players at home – you can get in touch with me be writing to [address above].

I should really scatter this talk throughout the show because folk will skip over it. It's always at the start and it becomes something they just cancel out mentally. But I do need your help. I do need donations coming in. It's very expensive to do all these sites and do what I'm doing. If it wasn't for what I'm doing, I would be in a full-time job where I'd be bringing in enough money, certainly enough money to live quite comfortably. This is not a job. I'm not getting backed by foundations or any group. I'm not selling any products that the big companies sell traditionally on what they call Patriot Radio shows. So it's up to you to keep me going. I'm independent and it's more than a vocation, this is a NECESSITY to get this kind of information out to the public at this time. If I didn't think it was worth working I'd stop doing it, but so many people come back to me saying their lives have been changed, their eyes are open, and they view everything from a different perspective and THAT is what I'm trying to do. I'll be back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, this big system into which we are born never realizing, because your parents don't know, that it's all really artificial in a sense. It's guided. Cultures are CREATED; they are altered to suit the masters who already owned the previous systems and the present system. They constantly update you. They reprogram you, just like a computer with downloads, new downloads, new PC way of thinking and we just follow along never realizing we're being managed. Our minds are being managed.

I've mentioned before, one of Bush's top advisors talked about reality. He basically said that we give you your reality and when we change it you'll be asking questions about that and you will go along with that too; then we'll change it again and you'll follow us. He was talking to reporters. That's how it really is. That's how it really, really is. That's what all NEWS is out there for, in a concerted effort, to alter your perceptions of things, definitely distort your perceptions of things, always to make you think that things, no matter how crazy it seems, are quite normal. You are being programmed, very scientifically programmed into new ways of thinking and adopting attitudes and behavior and all of that kind of stuff. Behavior modification is CONSTANTLY being done on the public. We've seen great examples down through time. We see it through the culture industry, the so-called pop revolution and rock revolution, sexual revolutions. These were all REAL revolutions pushed from the top down, well funded from the top down, not from the grass roots up. They change society. It's only when you've studied enough to realize the kind of society they are brining in, do you understand what it's all about, the total destruction of all that was to bring in the new.

You tie it in with the writings of the Huxley's and others who said that they'd have to teach people to be dehumanized, take them off their pedestal of having a sacred life and rights and that kind of stuff, and bring you down to the level of the animals, and make you actually think you are just, well, I'm just another animal and I guess they've got every right at the top to manage us like animals and cull us off if necessary, if there's too many, and all that kind of stuff. This is all part of an old plan which they've written about PROFUSELY in the past and even up to date, as well, with the Optimum Population Trust and all the other big foundations that make up the parallel government.

Here is an article, for instance, on perception. Again, people don't PERCEIVE by their own critical thinking and come to conclusions BY their own critical thinking. They simply are presented with things; they are presented with CONCLUSIONS. All TV shows are like that, even dramas are like that. You are GIVEN your conclusions, even the so-called political arguments that they have with experts that leave you with the conclusions that they want you to have and that becomes yours. You adopt one or the other; you pick one.

The New Face of Psychiatry: "Perception Management"
Written by Beverly K. Eakman / Tuesday, 13 October 2009

(Alan: It starts off with a quote from 1946. I've actually seen the people on video, old newsreels that have been taken off and put on video.)

To ensure that psychiatry "permeate every educational activity of national life" and "infiltrate the professional and social activities of [all] people" was a global goal that originated with British Brigadier General Dr. John Rawlings Rees in a 1940 speech to the National Council for Mental Hygiene. (A: I've actually seen that.) He ended on an ominous note: "Though our knowledge be incomplete … I think we must imitate the Totalitarians (A: He's talking about Hitler and Stalin.) and organize some kind of fifth column activity."

Canadian colleague Dr. Brock Chisholm chimed in with sinister comments of his own at the close of the war in 1946, in a speech to the World Federation of Mental Health. (A: That's at the United Nations.) He argued for "freedom from morality" (A: Last night I think it was, I gave a little quote that was put out by Mazzini, that was taught by Albert Pike. He was sent off to set up The World Internationale which became the Communist Party for revolution. Mazzini said, we must destroy, or corrupt culture and the people in order to rule them. This is all tied together, you understand. It's the same movement. You've got to understand too, that most, pretty well all the psychiatrists, both Jewish and non-Jewish, JOINED the Nazi party, actually joined the early Nazi party because they were so intrigued with this form of controlling the minds of MILLIONS of people, millions and millions of people. Even one of the videos put out by one of the religious organizations that is very controversial, they did a very good video on psychiatry and had all of this kind of stuff in it. It actually had some of the videos of these guys talking back in those days to the World Federation of Mental Health.) He argued for "freedom from morality" and the "eventual eradication of right and wrong." Such traditional upbringing was making children ill, he insisted. (A: That's been parroted since, many times, through psychiatry, psychology, and all the other institutes that deal with the new world order.) Such traditional upbringing was making children ill, he insisted. (A: In fact, they actually said that if you had any religious beliefs, or if you believed in the family values, you were mentally ill.) "If the race is to be freed of its crippling burden of good and evil it must be psychiatrists who take the original responsibility."

Rees and Chisholm had company — in political, educational, journalistic, marketing, and military circles, most ensconced within interconnected foundations, (A: The foundations again, Rockefellers and so on.) associations, and "research centers" (A: As they call themselves.) (foreign and domestic). (A: They are really foundations too, these research centers that run government… like the RAND Corporation.) They became Rees' and Chisholm's enablers. Together, they created Rees' dream: "a controlled psychological environment."

Today, the Department of Defense has a new name for it: "perception management" (or "PM"), and the psychopharmaceutical industry has hit the jackpot. (A: Remember, again, what I read to you, the quotes I gave from Huxley who said, accepting our slavery quite happily and he said they would use the pharma companies and massive suggestion, meaning propaganda to alter your perceptions.)

Ask yourself this: How did people get the impression that parents are "nonprofessionals" (A: And that's true isn't it?) and therefore basically incompetent to rear their children without help from mental-health specialists and child experts? (A: I can remember when I was small, there was no such thing as prenatal courses and all that rubbish. The women knew how to have children; they used to see their siblings growing up too and getting married and having children. Everybody grew up with people who had children. You knew how to take care of babies, all that kind of stuff. It was common sense. It didn't take long to eradicate that at all.) Where did we get the idea that being sad about one's circumstances was a clinical condition to be "cured" with a drug? Or that feeling "overwhelmed" was an indication of longstanding anger requiring anger-management counseling? Or how about that child with the irritating habit of clicking his pen repeatedly, or kicking his foot as he sits at his desk, or passing notes to classmates when he is supposed to be listening to the teacher? How did people decide that he is, in fact, "hyperactive," and that he needs treatment to address these annoying behaviors?

Well, we learned this information from commercials, featuring a household news anchor or sports figure, telling us that, by golly, we can "beat depression — just like I did" by getting psychiatric counseling and drugs. (A: That's the kind of stuff they were giving out… and, again, all the talk shows, the famous talk show hosts.) Parenting articles, including those that came in your Sunday paper, poured forth "expert" advice via articles, advertisements, and editorials — all promoting the notion that people "have" (as in "disease") attention deficit disorder, anxiety disorders, obsessive-compulsive disorder, a reading disorder (dyslexia), and so forth, until, as best-selling author-researcher David Baldacci put it in an addendum to his recent thriller, a major untruth was instituted with such speed and ubiquity that it overpowered the rational mind. At this point, no amount of proof to the contrary, delivered after the fact, seems to make the slightest dent in public perception to the effect that none of what the public heard and read is true at all. (A: That's a fact. It's been too successful. You can't get through to most people. I'll put these links up, because it goes on in this article to deal with more information, at the end of the show. Look into any of my sites and you'll have the links to these underneath the poem. I write the poem right after I've talked because I'm never sure what I'm going to talk about. So that is to do with perception management from this one here.)

It’s interesting to read this one that follows right close to it.

Obama and the Nobel Prize:
When War becomes Peace, When the Lie becomes the Truth
(A: Now, that ties in exactly with what George Orwell put in his 1984… that peace would be actually war, war would be peace. Everything was turned around by the use of terminology… PSYCHOLINGUISTICS alters your perceptions. I’ll read this when I come back from this break.)
GlobalResearch.ca / by Michel Chossudovsky / October 15, 2009

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about perceptions and how they are presented to us with the conclusions we are supposed to have, so much so that we will deny our own common sense. It reminds me of Albert Pike, Freemasonry, who said, the people who won’t use their own brain, basically – and this is what they think of the public – are meat on the table and beasts of burden by choice and consent. Meaning, that everyone has the ability to USE it; what he didn’t mention though is, that if you distort it, then you are crippling the animal, this beast of burden, before they get a chance to be themselves. We’ve all been crippled. That’s the intention of our educational system, really; they cripple you. They don’t teach you rational reasoning or logic, all of these theories they used to teach you in school. It’s not taught anymore. It’s all social groupings and consensus building.

Michael Chossudovsky talks about Obama and the Nobel prize: When war become peace, when the lie becomes the truth. He is from GlobalResearch.ca. He’s basically using Orwellian double-speak. George Orwell taught us this technique in his 1984 because HE saw it being used in his day by the Soviet system and now we’re in a GRAND Soviet system, the WORLD Soviet system. Collectivism is what they’re calling it, and commutarianism is what President Bush Sr called it. This is the one they favored over democracy because this new world order is not democratic… at all. He says…

When war becomes peace, (A: They call them ‘peace’keepers.)

When concepts and realities are turned upside down,

When fiction becomes truth and truth becomes fiction.

When a global military agenda is heralded as a humanitarian endeavor, (A: Isn’t that how it’s presented? It’s a military conquest isn’t it? It’s a war.)

When the killing of civilians is upheld as "collateral damage", (A: Do you see… altering perceptions by terminology, psycholinguistics.)

When those who resist the US-NATO led invasion of their homeland are categorized as "insurgents" or "terrorists". (A: Not defenders, they are ‘insurgents’ or ‘terrorists’.)

When preemptive nuclear war is upheld as self defense. (A: Attack first, right.)

When advanced torture and "interrogation" techniques are routinely used to "protect peacekeeping operations",

When tactical nuclear weapons are heralded by the Pentagon as "harmless to the surrounding civilian population” (A: So nuclear weapons are harmless to the surrounding civilian population…)

When three quarters of US personal federal income tax revenues are allocated to financing what is euphemistically referred to as "national defense"

When the Commander in Chief of the largest military force on planet earth is presented as a global peace-maker, (A: The United Nations prize for peace for Obama. Do you understand what they mean by peace? War is peace and peace is war.)

When the Lie becomes the Truth.

(A: Then he goes on to talk about …)
Obama's "War Without Borders"

We are the crossroads of the most serious crisis in modern history. The US in partnership with NATO and Israel has launched a global military adventure which, in a very real sense, threatens the future of humanity.

At this critical juncture in our history, the Norwegian Nobel Committee's decision to award the Nobel Peace Prize to President and Commander in Chief (A: Of the military.) Barack Obama constitutes an unmitigated tool of propaganda and distortion, which unreservedly supports the Pentagon's "Long War": "A War without Borders" (A: You've heard these terms used by the Pentagon.) in the true sense of the word, characterised by the Worldwide deployment of US military might.

Apart from the diplomatic rhetoric, there has been no meaningful reversal of US foreign policy in relation to the George W. Bush presidency, (A: It's exactly the same. I told you, party after party, it's all the same thing… new day, new boss, same shit, right.) which might have remotely justified the granting of the Nobel Prize to Obama. (A: That's if he'd have changed it.) In fact quite the opposite. The Obama military agenda has sought to extend the war into new frontiers. With a new team of military and foreign policy advisers, (A: And they are foreign because they are foreigners.) the Obama war agenda has been far more effective in fostering military escalation than that formulated by the NeoCons. (A: Remember the NeoCons with their Project for a New American Century? It's up there on video; I've mentioned the links before where you hear the guys involved in it talking about it saying, it was REVOLUTIONARY DEMOCRACY, they would FORCE democracy on all the other countries that didn't have democracy. Remember, they have their own definition, again, of democracy. It's a front, really; it's a con… until they bring in the whole new world order. Then you'll see how much rights you have and how much say you have in anything. And you have none, right now, in fact.)

Since the very outset of the Obama presidency, this global military project has become increasingly pervasive, with the reinforcement of US military presence in all major regions of the World and the development of new advanced weapons systems on an unprecedented scale.

Granting the Nobel Peace Prize to Barack Obama provides legitimacy to the illegal practices of war, to the military occupation of foreign lands, to the relentless killings of civilians in the name of "democracy". (A: Revolutionary democracy is being pushed. Take it or leave it or we'll kill you; that's what it is.)

Both the Obama administration and NATO are directly threatening Russia, China and Iran. The US under Obama is developing "a First Strike Global Missile Shield System": (A: First strike means, we are not going to wait. That was the Israeli option. They always say, if we suspect someone is going to attack us, we'll go for them first. No proof is necessary, just a HUNCH, you know, and that's good enough. I'll be back with more after this break.)

This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about perceptions and how we are GIVEN the WAY to think about things and following them right through to the conclusions of things. We don't realize with terminology and the way things are worded that we are under mind control. If you don't question the basic wording of things which are put out as propaganda under the guise of news, then you definitely are under mind control because you'll start parroting it off. You'll argue with people thinking you know all about it and you hadn't really thought it through at all for yourself. Psycholinguistics.

This article, I'll put the link up my site at the end of the show. It goes on to say about the Obama administration and NATO, directly threatening Russia, China and Iran. I'll add to that too, he is going along with the SAME agenda. There are no parties. All the top boys are always picked. Presidents are always picked, and the advisors, especially, and all those who are appointed and unelected are PICKED by the global committee, the parallel government that Quigley called them. And there is only ONE agenda. That's why nothing changes from team to team. Remember, under the Bush administration, under their policy, they were going to start off with Afghanistan, then take Iraq, then Iran and then Syria and that will still be the objective under this one too, guarantee you. George Orwell talked about them, how they kept changing their gun sights and the public are supposed to immediately jump to the next one and just talk about the NEW place, the new place, the new place and then suddenly jump to another one and this is the new place, this is the new place… and you forget about the last ones. That's literally how fast they can do it.

That was proven by polls they did when it was shown, after the inquiry into attacking Iraq where Bush said, I never said that Hussein had anything to do with 9/11. And this same newscast actually went back and showed you him actually saying it, that he was also involved in 9/11. So of course, they are born liars and that's their job. He said in the inquiry, I never said that he had anything to do with Iraq; I just went in there because Saddam was a bad man and the world is better off without him. So you've got to remember too, they keep changing their gun sights. By that time, within a few months a poll was taken and the media had gotten the public's minds back into thinking that once again Saddam really was behind 9/11, just like the propaganda, they did a poll to see if it had worked and they said, yeah, it did work. The media itself, which is an arm of government, had literally altered the facts within a month until they thought, yeah, even though Bush himself said they had nothing to do with 9/11, they thought it was Saddam Hussein… in a month; that's all it took them.

This article goes on to say…

"Along with space-based weapons, the Airborne Laser is the next defense frontier. ... Never has Ronald Reagan's dream of layered missile defenses - Star Wars, for short - been as....close, at least technologically, to becoming realized." (A: It's old stuff, that. In fact that was done years ago. It's all up there and it works, including all the laser stuff and so on and so on.)

I'll put this link up at the end of the show, to show you and you can prove to yourself that I'm not just making this stuff up. Although really, sometimes you wonder, it's like something from a bad dream, isn't it. But that's the reality; it is a bad dream.

This article here is from the military, the US military web site. This is 1998. They also had it in Parameters.

The Mind Has No Firewall
TIMOTHY L. THOMAS / From Parameters, Spring 1998, pp. 84-92. / carlisle.army.mil

"It is completely clear that the state which is first to create such weapons (A: They are talking about psychological and psychotronic weaponry.) will achieve incomparable superiority." -- Major I. Chernishev, Russian army. (A: That was a Russian officer. Then they go on to do their own spiel about it.)

The human body, much like a computer, contains myriad data processors. They include, but are not limited to, the chemical-electrical activity of the brain, heart, and peripheral nervous system, the signals sent from the cortex region of the brain to other parts of our body, the tiny hair cells in the inner ear that process auditory signals, and the light-sensitive retina and cornea of the eye that process visual activity. We are on the threshold of an era in which these data processors of the human body may be manipulated or debilitated. Examples of unplanned attacks on the body's data-processing capability are well-documented. (A: Well, the military should know; they are behind it all.) Strobe lights have been known to cause epileptic seizures. (A: The old TVs used to do that too. They did experiments in that. He goes on to mention another experiment put out in Japan.) Not long ago in Japan, children watching television cartoons (A: I think it was one of those Pokémon things.) were subjected to pulsating lights that caused seizures in some and made others very sick. (A: That was a nationwide test they were doing in Japan. It turned out later and it was admitted to.)

Defending friendly and targeting adversary data-processing capabilities of the body appears to be an area of weakness in the US approach to information warfare theory, (A: Now listen to how it is worded here...) a theory oriented heavily toward systems data-processing and designed to attain information dominance on the battlefield. Or so it would appear from information in the open, unclassified press.(A: They are telling you that there is another side to this, outside what's published in the open to the public. They tell you it's for wars ABROAD, you know, information battleground, the war, battlefield. It's really for all of us.) This US shortcoming may be a serious one, since the capabilities to alter the data- processing systems of the bodyalready exist. (A: They're talking about your MIND here.) A recent edition of U.S. News and World Report highlighted several of these "wonder weapons" (acoustics, (A: They're using that in weapons already but they're also using it in ways you don't even know yet, full time, 24 hours a day.) microwaves, lasers) and noted that scientists are "searching the electromagnetic and sonic spectrums for wavelengths that can affect human behavior." (A: This is in 1998.) A recent Russian military article offered a slightly different slant to the problem, declaring that "humanity stands on the brink of a psychotronic war" (A: Brzezinski talked about the psychotronic war back in his book, I think it was in the 70s, Between Two Ages. One of the chapters was called 'Technotronic Warfare.' He said that it would be used CONTINENT-wide. Well guess what folks? It IS used continent wide. That's why folk can't see chemtrails and haven't seen them for 10-11 years. They haven't seen it. They've lived under it but they haven't seen it. That's why they're so placid when they've been shocked and awed since 2001. They're so placid. They just do as they are told. They take all of their stuff off at the airports until they're almost naked; now they actually ARE… scanning them with x-rays and stuff that MAKES them naked basically to whoever is watching through the screen. They are utterly humiliated without knowing it. They are being programmed, as you program prisoners, defeated prisoners… psychological defeatism.) .) A recent Russian military article offered a slightly different slant to the problem, declaring that "humanity stands on the brink of a psychotronic war" with the mind and body as the focus. That article discussed Russian and international attempts to control the psycho-physical condition of man and his decision-making processes by the use of VHF (A: very high frequency.)-generators, "noiseless cassettes," (A: as they call them.) and other technologies. (A: I like the 'other technologies', the top-secret stuff.)

An entirely new arsenal of weapons, based on devices designed to introduce subliminal messages or to alter the body's psychological and data-processing capabilities, might be used to incapacitate individuals.These weapons aim to control or alter the psyche, or to attack the various sensory and data-processing systems(A: That's how you come to your conclusions folks, and how you react to things.) of the human organism. In both cases, the goal is to confuse or destroy the signals that normally keep the body in equilibrium.(A: Meaning a balanced, sentient personality.)

This article examines energy-based weapons, psychotronic weapons, and other developments designed to alter the ability of the human body to process stimuli. One consequence of this assessment is that the way we commonly use the term "information warfare" (A: That's all under this too.) falls short when the individual soldier, not his equipment, becomes the target of attack. (A: I've read before the articles from the psychotronic warfare DEPARTMENTS and also the Cyber War Departments, they are calling it war. When they're surveying YOU, they're at WAR with YOU. They have the right to hack your computers, just fry your computers and all the rest of it… when they're at war, information warfare.)

Information Warfare Theory and the Data-Processing Element of Humans

In the United States the common conception of information warfare focuses primarily on the capabilities of hardware systems such as computers, satellites, and military equipment which process data in its various forms. According to Department of Defense Directive S-3600.1 of 9 December 1996, information warfare is defined as "an information operation conducted during time of crisis or conflictto achieve or promote specific objectives over a specific adversary or adversaries." An information operation is defined in the same directive as "actions taken to affect adversary information and information systems while defending one's own information and information systems." These "information systems" lie at the heart of the modernization effort of the US armed forces and other countries, and manifest themselves as hardware, software, communications capabilities, and highly trained individuals. Recently, the US Army conducted a mock battle that tested these systems under simulated combat conditions.

US Army Field Manual 101-5-1, Operational Terms and Graphics (released 30 September 1997), defines information warfare as "actions taken to achieve information superiority by affecting a hostile's information, (A: Affecting it, right. That could also be by defaming the person that's giving it out. That's the commonest, lowest, easiest form to do it.) information based-processes, and information systems, while defending one's own information, (A: Keeping it secret; keeping the truth from the people.) information processes, and information systems." The same manual defines information operations as a "continuous military operation within the military Information environment that enables, enhances, and protects friendly forces' ability to collect, process, and act on information to achieve an advantage across the full range of military operations. [Information operations include] interacting with the Global Information Environment . . . and exploiting or denying an adversary's information and decision capabilities." (A: It's true. If you're doing the shows that I am, you're bombarded with all kinds of mail coming in and you know the ones that come from the military. You know the ones that try to throw you off course into a thousand angles, into the supernatural and stuff. This is what they do. No kidding. No kidding. This is cyber war, psychological warfare. Then they're talking, too, about other methods of altering the way you perceive things.)

This "systems" approach to the study of information warfare emphasizes the use of data, referred to as information, to penetrate an adversary's physical defenses that protect data (information) in order to obtain operational or strategic advantage. It has tended to ignore the role of the human body as an information- or data-processor in this quest for dominance except in those cases where an individual's logic or rational thought may be upset via disinformation or deception. As a consequence little attention is directed toward protecting the mind and body with a firewall as we have done with hardware systems. (A: Remember the title of this is 'The mind has no firewall.' YOUR mind has no firewall… if you just let the stuff soak into you that comes across the internet every day you're being programmed. So he's talking about techniques that THEY use for themselves and the weaknesses which are in YOU. That is what this is all about.) Nor have any techniques for doing so been prescribed. Yet the body is capable not only of being deceived, manipulated, or misinformed but also shut down or destroyed--just as any other data-processing system. The "data" the body receives from external sources--such as electromagnetic, vortex, or acoustic energy waves--or creates through its own electrical or chemical stimuli can be manipulated or changed just as the data (information) in any hardware system can be altered. (A: They are talking about using these techniques - electromagnetic warfare, very high frequencies, extremely low frequencies and different techniques - to LITERALLY disable the person PHYSICALLY and MENTALLY.)

The only body-related information warfare element considered by the United States is psychological operations (PSYOP). In Joint Publication 3-13.1, for example, PSYOP is listed as one of the elements of command and control warfare. The publication notes that "the ultimate target of [information warfare] is the information dependent process, whether human or automated (A: …whether it's YOU, yourself, or it's via internet and so on.). . . . Command and control warfare (C2W) is an application of information warfare in military operations. . . . C2W is the integrated use of PSYOP, military deception, operations security, electronic warfare and physical destruction." (A: They actually have what they call viruses, by the way. I read this other article to do with the viruses which can come up on your computer, and they know that through the flickering rate and so on, but mainly through even the sequencing of COLORS and flashes in a certain particular method that they use… for instance, the killer virus, as they call it, I think they call it the A-bomb virus or something like that; I've mentioned it before and reading from their site, they can actually cause someone to have a heart attack. They can alter the chemistry in your brain by patterns that come through your eyeballs, go into your brain, and such a sequence can literally cause you to have a heart attack or a stroke. This was written back in 1998!)

One source defines information as a "nonaccidental signal used as an input to a computer or communications system." The human body is a complex communication system constantly receiving nonaccidental and accidental signal inputs, both external and internal. If the ultimate target of information warfare is the information-dependent process, "whether human or automated," then the definition in the joint publication implies that human data-processing of internal and external signals can clearly be considered an aspect of information warfare. Foreign researchers have noted the link between humans as data processors and the conduct of information warfare. While some study only the PSYOP link, others go beyond it. As an example of the former, one recent Russian article described offensive information warfare as designed to "use the Internet channels for the purpose of organizing PSYOP as well as for `early political warning' of threats to American interests." The author's assertion was based on the fact that "all mass media are used for PSYOP . . . (A: This is from the MILITARY'S web site, by the way. I'll be back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about perceptions and how your mind is utterly played with all the time, constantly, 24 hours a day, more so since 2001. It's worldwide. All these big boys are playing with their Pentagon type systems on your brain. This article I'm reading from is from the military to do with this technology from 1998. So when you read about using it on enemies abroad, etc, everything has changed since 2001 and you'd better believe it's used here. This guy goes on to talk about ALL media. This is a Russian specialist talking. He's an actual scientist over there specializing IN this area. He says here…

The author's assertion was based on the fact that "all mass media are used for PSYOP . . . . [and] today this must include the Internet." The author asserted that the Pentagon wanted to use the Internet to "reinforce psychological influences" during special operations conducted outside of US borders to enlist sympathizers, who would accomplish many of the tasks previously entrusted to special units of the US armed forces. (A: Now, everything has changed. This is 1998 and everything has changed since 2001. WE are all the potential enemies, the whole planet, the ordinary people.)

(A: Then they go on to talk about how they will go beyond simple PSYOPS operations and soon. And they tell you what Solntsev's qualifications are and he is right up there, obviously, in the Russian military too.)

Solntsev also examined the problem of "information noise," which creates a dense shield between a person and external reality. This noise may manifest itself in the form of signals, (A: He's talking about computers and stuff.) messages, images, or other items of information. The main target of this noise would be the consciousness of a person or a group of people.Behavior modification could be one objective of information noise; another could be to upset an individual's mental capacity to such an extent as to prevent reaction to any stimulus. (A: You wouldn't react in a normal fashion to bad news or crashing your economy… that kind of stuff, and robbing you.) Solntsev concludes that all levels of a person's psyche (subconscious, conscious, and "superconscious") are potential targets fordestabilization.

According to Solntsev, one computer virus (A: This is the one I was talking about I think.) capable of affecting a person's psyche is Russian Virus 666. (A: This is from the military, folks; I'm not making this up, the numbers and all.) It manifests itself in every 25th frame of a visual display, where it produces a combination of colors that allegedly put computer operators into a trance. (A: You wonder why you're up all night, a lot of you guys out there, surfing from one thing to the next.) The subconscious perception of the new pattern eventually results in arrhythmia of the heart. (A: An uneven beat and so on.) Other Russian computer specialists, not just Solntsev, talk openly about this "25th frame effect" and its ability to subtly manage a computer user's perceptions. The purpose of this technique is to inject a thought into the viewer's subconscious. It may remind some of the subliminal advertising controversy in the United States in the late 1950s.

US Views on "Wonder Weapons": Altering the Data-Processing Ability of the Body
(A: This is all YOU. This is all you out there.)

What technologies have been examined by the United States that possess the potential to disrupt the data-processing capabilities of the human organism? The 7 July 1997 issue of U.S. News and World Report described several of them designed, among other things, to vibrate the insides of humans, stun or nauseate them, put them to sleep, heat them up, or knock them down with a shock wave.(A: All from your computer! Well, well, well… how it's going to make us all free, right. And you wonder why no one reacts to everything that's happening. They are using this through the AIR, right now, with HAARP technologies and other things, just like Brzezinski said.)

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods… and please, your new perceptions… GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"The New Face of Psychiatry: 'Perception Management' " by Beverly K. Eakman, The New American (thenewamerican.com) - Oct. 13, 2009.

"Obama and the Nobel Prize: When War Becomes Peace, When the Lie Becomes the Truth" by Michel Chossudovsky (globalresearch.ca) - Oct. 12, 2009.

"The Mind Has No Firewall" by Timothy L. Thomas (carlisle.army.mil) - From Parameters, Spring 1998, pp. 84-92.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 15, 2009 (#430)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 15, 2009:
Bankers in Prominence for Total World Dominance:
"Banking-Government-Food-Pharma Cartel
Rapidly Taking Us Down the Road to Hell,
Slaves Robbed with Each Payslip Tax Deduction
To Keep Their Masters in Luxurious Corruption,
No Accidents, All's Going According to Schedule
By Long-Dead Planners, Minds Evil Conceptual,
Who Saw World Simply as Master and Slave,
Created Banking and Money, Taught Slaves to Save,
Slaves Given Carrot, They'd Get Rich Perhaps,
Truth is, They Lose All when the Banks Collapse,
Funding War after War, These Men with No Soul
Built Up Their Empire, Now the World is Their Goal,
This 'Normalcy' You're Born in, Nothing is Real,
Created by Fat Men who Plot, Murder, Steal"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 15, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 15, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 15th 2009. For newcomers, look into .com web site and you'll see a whole bunch of other alternate sites I have. Bookmark them for future use because sometimes the big ones are pulled and I have problems with them which sets me back weeks when that happens. So if you bookmark the other sites you can always download the latest shows, for free, from those sites. [Official sites listed above.] Remember, you bring me to you, you the listeners. I don't get backed by the advertisers. The ads you hear on this show, the advertisers pay RBN directly for the air time, their staff, bills and so on. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can find out how to do it on the web sites. You can order the books, CDs and DVDs that I have for sale or your can donate to me. [Ordering and donation options listed above.] For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, by people with computers for people who don't have computers and who play them on their CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address above].

Remember too, I do need your donations; they tick me over because winter is coming on and everything is really expensive living in the bush. Believe you me, it is expensive. You've got to stock up on things; you can't just run off to town or around to the corner shop. There is no corner shop to run around to. With the bills I have here, believe you me, it's a worrying experience as they come in. I think in Canada alone here, in Ontario, we've had maybe 3 or 4 electricity hikes in the one year. That's to teach us to use LESS electricity, to USE less electricity. Believe you me, I'm on the barest minimum usage that I can possibly afford; that's it. They are also going to put Smart Meters on, they've admitted in the newspapers. These Smart Meters are also acting as spies on your house. They started that in Canada a few years back, in different parts, as they spread across the country, again, to TRAIN us to go and read our own meters but it also automatically signals back to the owners how much you are using and even down to what appliances you are using. They can tell because of the little chips, the signatures of the appliances, what you are actually using in your house. Quite something isn't it. It's all for our own good… as they train us that we are going into an age of austerity. That's how they term it. It's something like the terms they use for inflation. We don't have inflation now, or hyper inflation, we've got quantitative easing. So we're going into austerity, which means poverty, but it sounds better doesn't it? I'll be back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, this big deceptive system that teaches us to see things in a distorted fashion until we think it's all quite real, because everyone else has seen it through the same distorted fashion and we all agree with each other thinking that reality as it's presented is all there is.

It's quite something the terms that they use in psycholinguistics, and it's through marketing too… Marketing agencies have been experts, they are real experts in the field of psychology and how to word things, and how to present things directly into your mind so you will do things or purchase things you normally wouldn't think about. That is their expertise. That's why it's all on board with governments. Governments use incredible amounts of your tax money to basically propagandize the public VIA the marketing companies. Pretty well EVERYTHING that comes to you from government, on television or even the newspapers, is Propaganda from these marketing companies. They go over all the data and they are told they must present it in a certain way to the public. This is how they want the public to perceive something. They've got to find the words and the terminology and the way of presentation so that you will swallow it, just like a bad medicine. This is very, very common. It's been going on for years and years.

People can't figure out now that we live in an age of rather open corruption, from the top of every country, which can only get worse because we are all one big conglomerate corporation now, this global society with the same big boys, same big bankers running the show. I used to wonder when I was a child why money was 'capital' and the head place of a country is a 'capital' / 'capitol'. Capital means 'the head, the cap'. Don't be fooled by one vowel being different, it's the same thing. That's why capital rules. Whoever rules the money rules everything underneath it. It's the capstone. That's what runs this whole world and those who work for the system at the top are naturally corrupt people to begin with. They go IN to politics, not because they want to help people. It's because they know that's where the honey pot is, the taxpayers' money. The biggest honey pot, really, in a country is the taxpayers' honey pot. Big corporations that want to do their road projects or building projects must go to governments to get all the grants and so on, from the taxpayer, to get it going because it would cost so much for them.

I mentioned the other day about Mr Mandelson in Britain who boasted that he ran Britain, he ran Britain from Nathan Rothschild's swimming pool, over in France I think it was, while Tony Blair, or Mr Brown I think it was, was on holiday. That's the sort of thing you would read in the times of Caligula or Nero. That's the sort of thing you would get used to reading, these incredible statements of audacity, as the boys get too cocky for themselves really, and they can't help but showing their arrogance and cockiness. In other words, what's the point of having a parliament in the first place if someone who is not elected – and he is not elected, by the way; these guys who are really important are appointed – can run a country, supposedly, from a swimming pool of one of the world's bankers, or the banking families. It's in your face… in your face. We got raped, of course. We know it's a planned crash. They could have kept the con going and the bubbles going for as long as they had detergent to blow it up with; but they decided, that was the time. I'm sure they probably decided years ago, long before 2001 came along, when this particular crash was set to happen. I'm not kidding about that. We are living through a script… through a script.

It's interesting to note, if you read through the propagandists for the big boys, sometimes called 'futurists', because the futurists and novelists are the best way to program the public for what's to come without legally giving away the game that it's a plan. That's how clever it is. HG Wells mentioned in one of his books, A Brief History of the Future, something like that it was called, but he mentioned that by the year 2013 it would be illegal for a person to give out smoke from a fire or something like that. Smoke would be a no-no. It was written in the late 1800s. You think everything is happening by the time and the decisions are made by the day? No. It's made long, long ago. He even said that the agenda was to have people living in a few major cities across Britain and then other ones across the world – a few major cities – and there would be a sort of world company that would deal with all foodstuffs and distribution of foodstuffs, one company. Well, that's what the agri-business is all about. The big boys at the top are really one big, vast corporation and they will dish out the food to what they call the regions or states through the United Nations Department of Agriculture. That will happen. Before that we've got to get really taught, and it must happen by creating rationing and different things like that, to train us for what's to come step by step. HG Wells was no Nostradamus. He simply got professors from Oxford and Cambridge to dump stuff on his desk and he was told to write stories containing this stuff around it. That's how it was done.

The Fabian Society, one branch of this Royal Institute of International Affairs, and corruption runs the whole darn thing because elitism is elitism. It will never change no matter what they call it. Those at the top, once they think they've won something, they can't help but flaunt it, openly, in your face. This is from The Times.

A year after the crunch, it's boom time again for bankers
Patrick Hosking and Christine Seib From The Times October 15, 2009

(Alan: Now, I think your great, great, great grandchildren are put down as the guarantors to pay off the money that the bankers were given as a gift to get back on their feet, not that they needed it.)

Investment bankers are about to enjoy a record bonus season as confidence surges in the financial markets.

Just 12 months after the global economy was brought close to collapse by reckless lending (A: By who? By the bankers.) — forcing banks to turn to taxpayers for help — stock markets in London and New York are enjoying one of the strongest bull runs in decades and investment banks are preparing to announce huge profits.

In Britain, job losses slowed in the three months to August. Unemployment rose by 88,000 to 2.47 million, (A: and they call this…) the lowest rise since July last year.

So this is a rah-rah thing that the economy is on its way up. This is how it's presented to you. But it's in your face, isn't it? In your face. Can you imagine running up your credit cards to the maximum and the government steps in and says don't worry, we'll pay for it. Can you imagine that? And they say you can keep the credit cards and start from scratch again. Gee whiz, thanks dad. Also, from the Times Online, the company that led the charge for bankruptcy and the promotion of bubbles, as they called them, Goldman Sachs is always, it's always been at the head of EVERY depression we've had. There will be a good reason for it, it's appointed to be up there, at the top.

Goldman Sachs reignites pay row with 46% rise
Christine Seib in New York From Times Online October 15, 2009

(A: They want a 46% rise in their pay…) Workers at Goldman Sachs have racked up an average $527,192 (£324,607) in salary and bonuses so far this year after the American investment bank made a $3.1 billion profit in the third quarter.

Average pay for staff at the group, which employs around 5,500 staff in London, is 46 per cent higher compared to last year. (A: 46% higher… everyone else is losing their homes across the planet here. People in the street, people at food banks… and here it is in your face, just like these old parties of ancient Rome isn't it?) The news is likely further to enrage taxpayers who blame excessive risk-taking by banks for the global recession. (A: What can the taxpayers do about it, eh? We're getting trained we're nothing. It's true enough, if you have no organization technically you are nothing.)

So far, over the first nine months of its financial year, Goldman Sachs has set aside $16.7 billion to compensate its 31,700-strong global workforce (A: So they are making sure THEIR boys get well, well paid.) — a 46 per cent rise in the same period in 2008.

That’s not bad too, eh? Not bad getting 46% pay raises every year… as you fleece the public, shaft everybody and you tell, you TELL the governments, you know, because obviously you are above government when you run the money system, to just dole out billions and billions. Here’s $700 billion here, $700 billion more there… when they want it. Not a bad deal. We live in an utter, utter phase and time period of utter corruption. It’s that simple.

I was reading from the Montreal Gazette where the minister (meaning the politician) who has been APPOINTED over Canada’s health, is doing a PR stuff talking about the flu jab and how great and wonderful it is and all the rest of it and how they are going ahead anyway. It’s all double-speak. They are going ahead anyway. She also advocates that it’s a good thing to get your yearly flu shot ALONG, afterwards, with the swine flu shot, even though the researchers in Canada have said, if you get your normal, yearly fly shot first you are twice as likely to get the swine flu. Do you get this? It’s incredible double-speak from all directions here, but that doesn’t flaunt her. She has no medical training. We get people in Canada and all the British Commonwealth countries including Britain who generally have no medical training at all put in at the top of these, they call them, chairs. They move them like musical chairs. They can be Minister for the Environment one day, and an expert, the Minister of Health the next day, and an expert, and the Minister for Jobs or something else the next day. They are EXPERTS. That’s how stupid and ridiculous it all is. Bureaucrats run the show, why bother with the politicians? They’re all on the take anyway. I'll be back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just talking about the amazing confusion, it’s all deliberate actually, to do with the flu. The ordinary flu or common flu, the common flu is never the same as last year’s flu because it keeps mutating. But they call it the annual flu. It’s amazing to see this HEALTH minister, this someone who’s been APPOINTED over Canada’s health, her name is Aglukkaq. She’s exhorted Canadians to get their flu shots when the H1N1 vaccine becomes available next month. Now, even she is confused, obviously, because she is using the same term ‘H1N1’ which is correct for the common one but they are using the same term for the swine flu which is supposed to be H1N1-09 to differentiate the two types. This is from the top. They don’t know, but why should they? They have no medical training. And the media isn’t helping it by the way that they just parrot this stuff either. It’s to confuse the public. She says…

Swine flu research gets $2.4M shot in the arm
By Meagan Fitzpatrick, Canwest News Service October 13, 2009

Aglukkaq also exhorted Canadians to get their flu shots when the H1N1 vaccine becomes available next month.

"At the end of the day, it is an individual choice," she said. "(But) if you don't want H1N1, get the vaccine."

Ottawa plans to run ads (A: That’s your tax money again.) in the next several weeks, encouraging Canadians to become immunized, a federal official said Wednesday. (A: See, that saves the big pharma from doing the advertising. So it’s a beautiful deal here. There must be a lot of people going to get awfully wealthy, on the quiet, on all of this stuff across the planet… across the whole planet. Honestly.)

At the same time they’re doing a propaganda campaign. I read it, in fact, from one of the newspapers a couple of weeks ago that they’re getting the propaganda campaigns ready to COUNTER the side effects and the fallout from people who have come down with diseases or illnesses after the flu shot. They are actually telling the doctors, and the media is all involved of course, telling the people - always starting off their spiels when it comes to sick people - but that it’s all safe; it’s all safe, there are some small, very, very, very odd ones here and there who get sick from it but it’s safe, safe, safe. The ideas is to tell them not to put together the TIME that you got sick, the proximity of where you got sick, meaning in a doctor’s office right after the jab to the fact that you come down with a stroke, have seizures or have a heart attack. This is literally a campaign to convince you that it’s just pure coincidence that it’s happening after these shots. This is from the top. Here is MyFoxDC.com.

Woman Disabled by Flu Shot Reaction
Tuesday, 13 Oct 2009
By CLAUDIA COFFEY/myfoxdc

(A: There is a video here you should see of a woman who can hardly speak anymore, a young woman.)

WASHINGTON, D.C. - An Ashburn, Virginia woman is in the fight of her life after suffering a very rare side effect (A: See how they word it.) to the seasonal flu shot.

(A: Now here is your PR first… before they get into the story they give you this, what they are told to do now…) The vast majority of doctors say flu shots are safe. In this case, the FDA says they found nothing wrong with this particular batch, but sometimes there are complications. (A: Like paralysis, you know, is a complication.)

That's apparently what happened to Desiree Jennings, and now her life will never be the same.

At 26 years old, Desiree Jennings was the picture of health. She's a Washington Redskins cheerleader and an avid runner. Her life changed forever on August 23 when she says she got a seasonal flu shot at a local grocery store. (A: They were doing it up in Canada too; a free flu shot with every 10 bags of groceries, even though you get it free if you went to the clinics. It's not free, you see, the taxpayers fund all of that.)

"I was training for a half marathon then," said Jennings, crying. "It just all went so fast."

Ten days after receiving the shot, she came down with the flu. After that, her health spiraled downwards. She started passing out and had to be hospitalized twice.

"We went to an urgent care place and they wouldn't even let her get out of my truck because she was seizing in the back so bad, so they called an ambulance immediately," says her husband, Brendan Jennings.

Doctors at Fairfax Inova and Johns Hopkins diagnosed her with a rare neurological disorder called dystonia. They think it was caused by a severe reaction to the flu shot. (A: What do they mean they think? They darn well know it is.)

Desiree now has difficulty speaking, walking, and even eating. During an interview with FOX 5, she had several seizures. The effects are irreversible.

"The symptoms will get worse if I use my voice or walk when the brain signals are misfiring," says Jennings.

Desiree reported her health problems to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) thinking there might have been something wrong with her vaccine. We also contacted the FDA and we were told they found no problems with the particular lot of flu vaccines that Desiree received, and the agency has not received any other reports of adverse effects from this lot. (A: That will be all lies, of course. For every person in the media that you hear about there are a least 1,000 that you won't.)

Health experts stress that overall, extreme side effects are rare. (A: That's nonsense too. And these are RAPID onset side effects; they are not even going into the long-term ones that come on, later on, two or three years down the road, even 10 years down the road.)

(A: So here's their PR… and you'll find with every story that comes forward, for the few that are allowed to come forward, they will have the same PR in it.) "The flu shot is safe for the majority of the public, and as I said before, your heart goes out to someone that experiences this sort of thing (A: Being paralyzed is 'this sort of thing'.)-- thinking that they are doing something great for their wellness (A: You can tell it's a young person who is giving the advice here.) and their general health, but it does happen in extremely rare cases," says Rachel Lynch with Fairfax Inove Health System.

For Desiree, she just happened to be one of those rare cases. (A: Tough cheese… tough cheese… perfectly healthy, would have stayed healthy, now she ain't… tough cheese, so sad. I'll be back with more after this break.)

This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix and looking through the farce of it all and the tragedy as well, as people who are really very innocent, they believe the system is all real, run off and get their shots and they are trying to persuade people, as folk come down with irreparable damage, that it's all perfectly safe. Actually, I read an article a few months back where the companies blame YOU for having bad genes. There is nothing wrong with the vaccine; you just have different genes from most people. Now, you might have been healthy for the rest of your days, lived for 100 years, and now you're sick so that's really going to help you knowing you've got bad genes, you see. You're supposed to have adaptable, pharma adaptable genes. That's what you're supposed to have, you see. Double-speak and psycholinguistics isn't it?

Here is an article from ABC News.

Drugmakers, Doctors Rake in Billions Battling (A: Oh, they're battling… like a sports game eh?) H1N1 Flu (A: That doesn't seem to be anywhere except in the media.)
Swine Flu Is Bad for Victims, But Good for Businesses That Cater to Expanding Market
By DALIA FAHMY / Oct. 14, 2009

Americans are still debating whether to roll up their sleeves for a swine flu shot, but companies have already figured it out: vaccines are good for business. (A: Well, no kidding eh?)

Drug companies have sold $1.5 billion worth of swine flu shots, in addition to the $1 billion for seasonal flu they booked earlier this year. (A: They BOOKED the seasonal flu earlier this year.) These inoculations are part of a much wider and rapidly growing $20 billion global vaccine market. (A: I like the way they call it 'market' too, you know, and the stock market. A market is where you deal with animals.)

"The vaccine market is booming," says Bruce Carlson, spokesperson at market research firm Kalorama, which publishes an annual survey of the vaccine industry. "It's an enormous growth area for pharmaceuticals at a time when other areas are not doing so well," (A: Oh, it's great; that's why they created this whole farce in the first place. We're not doing too well with all the other drugs that are killing folk off; where can we make a profit? let's invent a big scare; let's get our boys in politics to promote it.) he says, noting that the pipeline for more traditional blockbuster drugs such as Lipitor and Nexium has thinned.

As always with pandemic flus, taxpayers are footing the $1.5 billion check for the 250 million swine flu vaccines that the government has ordered (A: At least they are honest there. We are footing the bill as always.) so far and will be distributing free to doctors, pharmacies and schools. (A: Well, it's paid for by the taxpayer; it's not free.) In addition, Congress has set aside more than $10 billion this year to research flu viruses, monitor H1N1's progress and educate the public about prevention. (A: About prevention...)

Drugmakers pocket most of the revenues from flu sales, with Sanofi-Pasteur, Glaxo Smith Kline and Novartis cornering most of the market.

Isn't that what they always do? They corner the market, eliminate all competition, and corner the market… a cozy partnership like a little cabal together. They learned it all when they were doing their banking. It's the big bankers who own all these pharma companies, you know; they've been in this down through many, many, many centuries. Same things together, pharma, gold, money, trade and now they just tell politicians what to do. So it's great business. Where else could you actually come out with an idea or a product and the government will guarantee you that they will buy all that you have, and you set the price. That's not bad, eh? What a great deal. Great deal.

Here it goes too, this article here about flu jabs. In doubt, it says here… if I can pull the darn thing up because this computer is freezing up on me as always. They know that, and I think it's from The Mail… if this will just come up for me. Hold on, I'll close this off here. I get programs running in the back and I never find out what they are and so it doesn't… go well with me.

Normal flu jabs 'double the risk of catching swine bug'
By Jenny Hope / 14th October 2009 / Mail Online

Seasonal flu jabs could double the risk of developing swine flu, researchers have claimed. (A: This is to get the public punch drunk… totally and utterly confused.)

The findings from Canada led to some states in the country delaying seasonal flu jab campaigns amid fears the recipients could be more vulnerable to a second surge of the pandemic.

The UK's Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI), an independent advisory group, says the study's findings have not been substantiated in any other country. (A: But they haven't been looking for it have they? All you have to do is to go into this independent advisory group and see who funds them.)

The World Health Organisation has also dismissed them, (A: They are also getting masses of pay from the pharmas. They are totally in bed with them.) and separate research suggests seasonal flu jabs might actually protect against swine flu. (A: So there is your COUNTER propaganda. Whenever they get negative facts they just counter it with their positive propaganda.)

Last week, GPs across the UK began their seasonal flu campaign, which aims to protect more than 15million people, (A: Except for those who have bad genes who will come down and be paralyzed.) including those aged over 65 and those with long-term conditions such as heart disease.

On and on the rubbish goes. Fake figures, for ages, have been used. I've read that stuff from the Nexus Magazine from about 2004 that tell you every year they come out with the same figures. The same figures every darn year and then they give you along side the CDC's report of the ACTUAL figures. They are born liars! Born liars for business. Quite something isn't it? Then you have nurses in New York who were told, the state of New York, were told they've got to take all of these flu shots including the swine flu shot or they get fired, even though it wasn't in their contract when they started. This is done by a mandate, which is not actually a law; everybody is doing stuff now by mandates, from little boards that they have, health boards and things. Policies, you might call it. Our policy now is we'll fire you. It's kind of like if you started off at McDonalds and then you don't like the stuff there because it's GMO and all that, oh, awful stuff; and it makes you awfully fat too. Then they tell you later on that you've got to eat their food, only THEIR food, no one else's food. You've got to eat their food or they will fire you. It's the same thing.

Hospital staff, they see people coming in all the time for operations, well yeah, you could have this operation but you don't really need them, so you'll turn them down if they were offered. Well, it will be the same thing with this jab, you see, because it's all bogus nonsense EXCEPT for the fact that the only thing we know for sure are the symptoms of the diseases that you come down with, if you have bad genes… bad genes, you know, those inferior genes that are just outside the big, vast HERD, you see. So this News 10 and it says here…

Nurses to sue New York over vaccination mandate
Oct 12, 2009 / By MARK O'BRIEN / wten.com

ALBANY -- Count four Albany County nurses among those scared of H1N1.

Not the virus itself, but of the vaccine for it that New York is requiring all health care workers to receive by the end of November.

"Receiving the vaccine doesn't mean you're not going to get the flu," says Lorna Patterson, an emergency room nurse at Albany Medical Center. She is one of the four nurses who are planning to file a lawsuit this week against New York in order to stop the state from enforcing its mandatory vaccinations. In addition to H1N1--or swine flu (A: Again, they should differentiate the two.)--nurses, doctors, and others who care for the health of others in New York will have to receive a seasonal flu shot. It's the first time the state has mandated such a vaccination. (A: Well, you know there is an awful lot of shareholders and pharmas living in New York.)

"I have had more staff that have become ill after the flu vaccines this year than coworkers that have actually come down with the illness," Patterson says. She's been a nurse for 28 years, but during that time has only been vaccinated once, for influenza in the early 1990's. Instead she prefers proper hygiene, such as washing hands and covering her mouth and nose when coughing and sneezing, over a vaccine. (A: She prefers to just be preventative. To be honest with you, and I’ve wondered about this, you know, the media love to go into these hard, emotive stories of people who have really suffered with diseases and flues and stuff, except when the people who are coming down with side effects or diseases caused by the shots themselves, why haven’t we seen a whole plethora of people during this whole pandemic, terror that’s come down, thousands and thousands of folk came down with it, of terrible effects and having personal interviews of how it was for them? I haven’t seen one. I don’t know anybody that’s had the swine flu. All I’ve got is numbers tossed out by the media… and a hospital in, then they give you a country or a state, but they won’t tell you which ones so you can’t check. It’s all bogus. It’s all bogus.)

Same goes for her coworker, nurse Katheryn Dupuis. Like Patterson, she has only been vaccinated once--also for influenza--during her decade as an emergency room nurse.

"We're going to lose our jobs if we do not get this vaccine," Dupuis says. "There are hundreds of coworkers of ours that feel just as strongly against the vaccine." (A: See, they’ve had a little bit more training so they know the stuff isn’t even tested for safety and they also know, through their training, of what can go wrong.)

Indeed the state is telling health care workers that the consequences of not being vaccinated for either flu is termination of employment. Patterson and Dupuis say if they fail to get vaccinated by Oct. 27, they've been told they will face a week of suspension without pay, followed by termination if they don't get the vaccines. The state deadline for health care groups to comply with the mandate is Nov. 30, but the nurses say some hospitals have such large staffs that ensuring everyone is in compliance is forcing them to establish their own deadlines. Nevertheless, the nurses say they don't blame their employer, rather the State of New York for violating their civil rights. (A: And you’re darned right. They are darned right. If you are healthy now, why would you put yourself at risk? That’s common sense. Common sense.)

There also an article from nurses in Albany that are suing the state. I’ll put that link up as well. I’ve got a link to the California Nurses Association, they sent it to me, where they go through their policy where they prefer that governments and the experts, as they say, try and use simply persuasion but not mandating it.

California Nurses Association/NNOC Issues Policy on H1N1 Flu Vaccination: Encourage, Don’t Mandate
For Immediate Release / September 30, 2009 / Tell-a-Friend

…that persuasion should be used in a free, democratic system. Try and persuade you, then you get the right to say yes or no… if you fall for it, or don’t fall for it. It should not be mandated at all, definitely, definitely not.

People don’t even know what’s getting put into their bodies. I think there was even a Google video up there that showed you some of the stuff getting made in China and a guy covered in gooey mush and blood and stuff, carrying pails… you know, the pails … these kind of zinc pails. This is how hygienic it all is and how highly scientific it all is too, as they strip out the different kinds of tissue from animals, and humans by the way, and mush it all together and blend it all together. They get all the red stuff out of the syringe; it doesn’t look to nice when you get red stuff squirted into your body so they try to get rid of the red stuff. But basically you are given a combination of animal and human cells from aborted children mixed up with all these viruses AND you also get a massive accumulation, I’ve read it before, of the hundreds of other viruses that are all carried by both human and animals along with the one they are talking about, supposedly going to help you with.

There is a site there and I’ll try to put the link up for you. It comes from, I think it was a religious site but don’t let that put you off; everybody has been conditioned not to look at them. They are using FACTS from the pharma industry and from their own inserts in packaging from drugs and vaccines. They are not making this stuff up. They give you the direct stuff that’s in the inserts. For instance….

Below are citations directly from the Manufacturer's Package Inserts for Hepatitis-A (Merck & Glaxo Smithkline), MMR, Varicella (Chickenpox) and Shingles Vaccines.
Cogforlife.org

(HEPATITIS A VACCINE, INACTIVATED)

(A: This is from the company that makes it.)

VAQTA [Hepatitis A Vaccine, Inactivated] is an inactivated whole virus vaccine derived from hepatitis A virus (HAV) grown in cell culture in human MRC-5 diploid fibroblasts.   (A: That comes from aborted children, folks. This is from the inserts. The doctors never read these inserts. What patient asks to see the inserts before they stick something into you?) It contains inactivated virus of a strain which was originally derived by further serial passage of a proven attenuated strain. The virus is grown, harvested, purified by a combination of physical and high performance liquid chromatographic techniques developed at the Merck Research Laboratories, formalin inactivated, and then adsorbed onto aluminum hydroxide (A: You know, the stuff that goes for your brain and they find it in all Alzheimer's patients.) One milliliter of the vaccine contains approximately 50 units (U) of hepatitis A virus antigen, which is purified and formulated without a preservative. (A: Then it goes on and on. But MRC-5 diploid fibroblasts are from human cells of aborted fetuses. That's the truth of it. That's the truth of it.)

The site that I got it from also has this on it too. Actually the site is called Children of God for Life. It's well worth going into because they have so much stuff directly from the pharma industry; they add nothing to it. They tell you what's in the different shots that you are getting and from the inserts that come with the shots that no one reads. The last person to read them is the doctor and definitely the patient. It gives you all the information to do on where the fetal cells come from and how they make this stuff and all the rest of it. Disgusting world that we live in isn't it? It's utterly disgusting.

But what a business. It is great too because they can bring down the population with it as they go. There will be more autism, more paralysis that will develop later in life, and there will be more folk with high blood pressure when they hit about 30. They know what's causing it all. We are under WAR. It's warfare, total warfare on the public and the public haven not got a clue because they are so mind-bombed with contradictory, you get pros and cons, that they just collapse eventually and say, ah, they can't all be wrong; we'll just go along with them. That's how it is done. That is how it's done and they cave in and go and get it.

I mentioned the other day about the United Nations and how they always use excuses, how they have to go into countries to stop rape and killing and pillaging and all that stuff. Here is an article from the Guardian.co.uk. I said at the time, they've been responsible for more rapes and killings than anybody else. They are not this charitable group that goes around handing out chocolate bars and tents to displaced people. That's PURE PR. They are a war-making machine. They are part of the biggest Fabian section ever devised for the whole planet. You have to read how it was set up, who set it up – the same bankers by the way – and what their long-term, 100 year goal was… world government, not a democratic system. I'll read this; it's what happened in the Congo, after this break.

This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix and just looking at the farce of the world. It's interesting too, it was Lenin who said, and people don't realize this, that society can go in a thousand different directions, the type of society that you want, but he said, that it was important that those who are present and alive then, meaning the masses, don't realize that; they must think that the reality they are in, the system they are IN, can be the only one that could normally have evolved. They must not know there are MANY types of ways that society can go. Believe you me, this system we are on for this global order, this non-democratic system, this new great soviet, is going to teach us all that very, very, very quickly. They are teaching us it now, in fact.

UN-backed Congo military offensive a 'humanitarian disaster'
More than 1,000 civilians killed, 7,000 raped, and 900,000 displaced in operation to disarm Hutu rebel group, says report guardian.co.uk, Tuesday 13 October 2009

A group of 84 local and international organisations today described the human cost of the attempt to defeat the Democratic Forces for the Liberation of Rwanda (FDLR) as "unacceptable and disproportionate to the results it has achieved". (A: Because, what did they do, as I say, the United Nations backed an offensive; they gave them the vehicles and all the rest of it to destroy the supposed rebel group in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo which killed 1,000 civilians killed, non combatants. 1,000 civilians… that's nothing to Madeline Albright; she'd like to have about 1,000,000 civilians. 7,000 raped. And Madeline Albright, now, by they way, is up there on the board of NATO, that is part of the UN attack forces. And 900,000 displaced, who were forced from their homes.)

With 1,071 FDLR soldiers having given up their arms since the start of military action in January, it effectively means that one civilian has been killed, seven women and girls raped and 900 people displaced for every rebel disarmed, (A: Jeeze!) according to the Congo Advocacy Coalition (CAC).

At least 6,000 houses have been burned down by rebels, some as recently as September.

Although many of the killings were carried out by Rwandan Hutu militiamen in retaliation for the offensive, (A: So this wouldn't have happened if it wasn't for the offensive.) Congolese government soldiers have also targeted civilians, the report said.

Marcel Stoessel, head of Oxfam in Congo, said military action needed to be immediately suspended. "This appalling violence is no accident. It is the result of the UN-backed Congolese military operation against the FDLR militia," he said. "It is a strategy that is being supported in capitals and in the highest echelons of the UN."

Quite something. They do this wherever they go. But yet the PR… you know, the opposed PR with the model soldiers… they bring models in and dress them up with the blue helmets giving out chocolate bars to little children with smiling faces and healthy teeth. Ah, that wins over reality. It wins over reality.

If you look at the NATO emblem that you think is a form of a cross, it's a stylized swastika. Look at it carefully you'll see what I mean. They are awfully good at disguising stuff from the public and most of the public can never really see what they are looking at anyway. It's easy to fool them. But we live in a world where it's all propaganda. It's all illusions. Clever people, full-time professional boards, panels, psychiatrists, psychologists, marketing strategists, lawyers… are all working together to brainwash you. Brainwash you… and believe you me, once they get away with making it mandatory that we all get inoculations, it will be mandatory then to get the CHIP. After all, they've now got control of your body. I'll put the clip up from YouTube on the ads they got out now for the chip. Back with more tomorrow.

From Hamish any myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"A year after the crunch, it's boom time again for bankers" The Times - Oct. 15, 2009.

"Goldman Sachs reignites pay row with 46% rise" (timesonline.co.uk) - Oct. 15, 2009.

"Swine flu research gets $2.4M shot in the arm" by Meagan Fitzpatrick - Oct. 13, 2009.

"Woman Disabled by Flu Shot Reaction" by Claudia Coffey (myfoxdc.com) - Oct. 15, 2009.

"Drugmakers, Doctors Rake in Billions Battling H1N1 Flu" by Dalia Fahmy (abcnews.go.com) - Oct. 14, 2009.

"Normal flu jabs 'double the risk of catching swine bug' " by Jenny Hope (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 14, 2009.

"Nurses to sue New York over vaccination mandate" by Mark O'Brien (wten.com).

"California Nurses Association/NNOC Issues Policy on H1N1 Flu Vaccination" (calnurses.org) - Sept. 30, 2009.

"Manufacturer's Package Inserts for Hepatitis-A (Merck & Glaxo Smithkline), MMR, Varicella (Chickenpox) and Shingles Vaccines" (cogforlife.org).

"UN-backed Congo military offensive a 'humanitarian disaster' " by Xan Rice (guardian.co.uk) - Oct. 13, 2009.

"RFID MICROCHIP TV ADVERT" ["Because" Video on why You Should Get Implanted Chip] (youtube.com).

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 16, 2009 (#431)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 16, 2009:
The Symbol -- For the Few, Correct Point of View:
"The World's Always been Run by Secret Societies,
Capstone Boss at Top, Beneath, Lesser Varieties,
The Wasteland around Base, the Cattle are Lowing, Term for the People, Profane, Never Knowing,
The Lion King is Respected, His Prey Fearful,
The Shepherd King Loved, Herd Baa-ing, Tearful,
As They Look to the Master, Respected and Able,
Who'll Dine Well Forever with Their Meat on His Table,
How are Minds Follied with Distorted Perception,
Study Wise Men of Old, Philosophical Deception"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 16, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 16, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 16th 2009. As always, I suggest the newcomers look into .com web site where you will find hundreds of hours of talks I've given in the past where I try to cover the big picture of this supposed reality and poke through all the little holes that we're supposed to neglect or not see or simply ignore and show you that the world is run by, really, organized crime. It's always been that way, under the cover of nature and the laws of nature. Thousands of years ago, people who had risen to the top with their cunning formed societies and it's been that way all down through the ages up to the present time. You might even say that governments themselves are really a secret society since their job is never to tell the public the truth, just to goad them along like a herd and lead them and shepherd them into a pen at the end of the day.

On .com you'll see all these audios for download and you can also see the alternate sites I have there in case the big sites get pulled, which occasionally they do. [Official sites are listed above.] You can also help keep me going by looking at the web sites. There are ways to buy my books, CDs and DVDs for sale or you can donate to me. [Ordering and donation option listed above.] You've got to help me keep going because it's expensive to do what I'm doing. I'm not backed by anyone. I'm not flogging a bunch of merchandise either. The ads on this show are simply and purely to pay for RBN's air time, their staff, equipment and their bills. That is paid directly to RBN, not to me. Also, there are people who get disks burned and passed to them to play on their home CD players because they don't use computers, you can get write to me at [address above].

Getting back to what I said at the beginning, that's exactly what we're living through. There is only one big, organized criminal bunch on the planet. They've held power down through ages… ages, because we live in a commercialized system, an economic system, as Karl Marx said it. He said that all wars have been economic wars. We think of wars as simply men fighting men on a battlefield somewhere; we don't realize there are many ways of creating warfare and fighting warfare. Often the enemy doesn't even know they are the target of warfare. We've got a lot of that today; that's primarily how we're managed today. Warfare was announced on the public, by the elite, a long time ago. And they mean it. I'll be back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, trying to show people, really, that it doesn't have to be a tremendous shock at waking up to reality. You can go through it gradually. I think as folk get older - hopefully, it should be this way - they start to at least suspect that something is awfully wrong and they get rather disgruntled and jaded when it comes to politics and the same old cons, one after the other.

It's so odd that, with all the think tanks and planning committees across the planet, thousands and thousands of them all interconnected, that every major disaster, everything that happens, always benefits the elite's agenda. By the law of averages, accidents should at least benefit the public half the time but it never does, never, ever does. It always benefits an agenda that's always been discussed beforehand and often published as well. The financial crash fits right in with the new global economy and the rising up of the International Monetary Fund, which they said would need to happen years before it did happen. This kind of stuff, you see.

Getting back to what I said, in ancient times to the present time we live in an economic system where the shysters get to the top. It's quite simple. There are people… I'm sure everyone knows someone who can walk in your house and have a 10-minute conversation and afterwards evaluate, tell you what everything in your house is worth. You didn't even see them noticing things. It's nature with them; it's nature. That's how they are. These are types that get on. They notice everything instantaneously, like a walking computer or with a camera in their head. They get up to the top in commerce. They generally have a loss of affect, meaning emotional bonding with people. They don't really relate to people emotionally but they certainly are egosyntonic and egocentric. They have a world running around themselves. They are in the middle. They are psychopathic. It's always been this way. Always.

Therefore, in ancient times they formed secret societies amongst themselves because often the public would turn on them for being ripped off, robbed, and conned. Secret societies used to be secret because they didn't want the public to know who they were. They would meet secretly as well. Today the societies are really more open. There are different LEVELS of them, of course. The bottom ones everyone knows about are the open-type societies, are a front cover, a portico as Albert Pike called them. Those at the bottom don't know much more than the general public in fact, but it's always been that way. The idea of an elite living off of the herd is nothing new. People think, for instance, – and they go into mysticism to try to find the answers – they think that if they just find the Keys of Enoch they will understand everything, past, present and future, instantaneously. Some magic box is opened and voila, there you are. That's not the case at all.

What it is, really, is that you have to use your own… and Albert Pike said this. He said that, we believe in the laws of nature and nature itself. If you are really seeing and hearing and reading what he's saying, just read between the lines, you gradually get the impression of elitism and that's exactly what it is. He's talking to his own kind, for those who have eyes to see and ears to hear. He does go on eventually to say that those who will not use their own brain, their mind, their own perceptions, and come to their own conclusions, he says, they are nothing more than meat on the table and beasts of burden by choice and consent. That's the trick of it. That's the trick of managing the world.

We are taught from a very early age to disregard our own instincts. We are taught to disregard our own suspicions about things. We are given politically correct, authorized versions of histories and even what's happening today via the media. You'll have people too who wait for the media, like Brzezinski said, and that's why he could say with confidence that the public will shortly be unable to reason for themselves, they will expect the media to do their REASONING for them. That gets back to Albert Pike: if you can't think for yourself and you won't think for yourself, you are meat on the table and beasts of burden by choice and consent. You don't have to go into the occult; all you will find is coding… and yeah, there are thousands of codes out there. All you will find - and remember there are two before you even start - what you can discover, means that MAN can discover, means that MAN put it together not some supernatural power. Don't forget that part as well. All you will find is elitism. That gradually gets the candidates in who join these things, into higher groups IF you are worthy - that's what the true meaning of what worthiness means – and you are then in amongst a bunch who talk about the profane down at the bottom, BEING beasts of burden by choice and consent. Therefore, that's nature.

They will use all the allegories of different wild beasts and animals and how they live, even wolves and how there is a head of the pack and all the rest of it. Would the pack vote that leader in if they could speak and have a sort of democratic vote? They generally would say no. But do they NEED that leader of the pack? And they say yeah, well, they are the leaders of the pack by their own decision, by their own grasping of power and therefore you can't tell the public how you are really run. You give then what they think is democracy and in reality you are run by a super elite with lots of wannabes always joining and working their way up the ropes of politics trying to get up there to join the bunch at the top, the masters who are all corrupt. However, from their point of view they are not corrupt; they are simply following the laws of nature. That's all it is. And yes, they use all these different symbols because symbols strung together form sentences, and paragraphs, and whole stories. Symbols are also symbols of power. That's what flags are about, and logos you'll see on big corporations. How you string them together, you can find the lower stuff; that's easy to do. You use your own brain; it's not difficult, not with the internet today.

Again, all that is showing you is what MAN put together to stop you from realizing that yeah, there is this super elite group at the top, this intelligentsia, who have incredible financial and commercial wealth. And they lend to whole governments across the planet, which means they are above governments… ABOVE governments. The media's job is to ease the herd into each stage of change by giving you the dialectic approach, the pros and cons and this guy says oh, we shouldn't and this guy says we should until you're punch drunk and then you cave in and go along with the experts anyway. These are ANCIENT techniques that are still in use today. They work well, why change them?

So many people out there truly, and I can remember when I was really small, when the propaganda campaign via entertainment began to glorify doctors for the first time. People don't realize that, really, until the advent of penicillin doctors were like witch doctors; they were called at the last minute, just before the coroner, and it was basically like the same thing because there wasn't much they could do for you, apart from setting bones and things like that. That's really what they could do. When it came to medicine they didn't have… they were still using the same stuff with a little bit of alchemy involved. They'd mix little potions together, make them fizz and change color in front of you. You would be very amazed and they'd hand you a bill. After all that fizzing and amazement, you'd kind of hand over the cash; you were kind of impressed. That's really as far as they'd got.

Antibiotics came along and SUDDENLY they had something that worked. They suddenly had something that worked; they didn't invent it but the STATUS of them was skyrocketed, elevated by the massive advent of MEDIA DRAMA. Doctor Kildare and Marcus Welby MD and on and on they went, and movies about them and all the rest of it. That's gone on ever since. Remember Jacques Ellul said, whenever you have a system of an agency being glorified, especially when they start off as SERVICES, like police services, or health services and so on, they will become authorities. Karl Marx said the same thing and so did Lenin: they will eventually become AUTHORITIES. It's done by propaganda and that's what Ellul said, you are listening to PROPAGANDA, but it works. It works. People: yes doctor, okay, I'll bend over and in goes something you haven't a clue of, all based on trust and faith. All based on trust and faith. And you think they don't go to incredible lengths in a multi billion and trillion dollar industry to fool the public? Ho-oh, then go back to naivety… because that's where you belong.

The world is utterly, UTTERLY corrupt from the bottom point of view. From the top, as I say, they view it differently as their right to do as they wish with the herd, including profit off them. That's what farmers have the herd FOR. Look at all the allegories you are given through all the big books and text books and all the other books as well, churned out by Freemasonry, not the little guys at the bottom. You are supposed to use your own meatloaf, your head. If you can't do it, you're a goner.

Today, as I was out cutting the wood there, I was thinking about the spraying in the skies. I mean, it rained here all June and July, every single day, and most of August and September as well. Today it should have been one of the nicest days of the whole year. This is the second year in a row, by the way, of the same weather. And there they are, just slobbering across the sky leaving trail after trail that's one massive misty mush and the end of it all. Everybody I meet is wheezing. And you wonder why asthma is up. Suddenly, we've got a perplexing epidemic of asthma across the world and allergies and no one knows what causing it. Do you think your governments are the top boys? No way. Remember, it's a degreed system and there is a global government above them and above the United Nations. The UN's job is just to find ways to implement the policies from the big boys. I'll be back with more after this break.

This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Just before the break I mentioned about the incredible aerial spraying that's been going on since 1998 full time, basically, in Canada at least. I literally could fill up hard drives, one after another, with all the photographs from across the planet, where other countries are getting it too, really badly. You talk about it to people who, again, they can't use their own perception. They never look at the sky. If they do, they will literally dismiss what they see because these are the people who really believe if there is anything that concerns them that the media would tell them and if the media doesn't say anything about it then it's irrelevant and they dismiss it from their minds all together.

However, when the same media tells them that they are going to bioengineer, shortly, in the future… They are talking about bioengineering the whole atmosphere to save the planet from global warming, cooling, or things in between, and you bring up the topic and they'll say, Oh, yeah, they are going to do that. The same people who denied it all together, oh, yeah they are going to do that because it was in the news, but they are not doing it yet. So they wait again for the media to tell them… and that won't happen, of course. Those people you have to write off. They are GONE. They can't use their own eyes or their own minds. They have to look for the experts to confirm something for them or tell them something. As soon as they do, they will believe it, even if the stuff is bogus they will believe it, like a swine flu pandemic across the planet. They will believe whatever the media tells them.

Unfortunately, the majority of the public are there. That's what's called 'the dead.' In every religion, ancient religion, they talked about 'the dead'. There are many allegories of it given in story form of 'the dead'. 'The dead' weren't people who were in the grave. 'The dead' were people who walked around and did what you thought were normal, everyday things but really they were oblivious of a reality around them, or who was running them, or who benefited from them, from ruling over them, and they were oblivious to the techniques used to control them. They are the dead. They have always been the dead, down through the ages because the techniques are ancient, absolutely ancient.

The dead, unfortunately, will go into, never at the vanguard of a novel religion; they will tag in towards the latter end when it becomes an authorized religion. Then they tag in and it becomes customary. They are really cultural religionists. Whatever the culture is and the present religion, they adopt it for that time… because they don't want to be left out of the group, you see. That's why, also, they create religions today. They create them, like Gorbachev talking about creating this new religion, this earth-based religion where people will worship a form of earth worship. A FORM of earth worship which ties in sustainability, depopulation and all the rest of it. This is a guy who admits he is an atheist, in the same book. He says, we are creating a new religion for the people. And it works. They can be honest as can be about certain things, occasionally, and people will never retain that. They want to think something else about these people. It's the strangest phenomena; it really is.

Whenever Little Red Riding Hood pulls the hood back from the face and it's a wolf, you should remember that is a wolf, even when it puts the hood back on top of its head. And you can see why Pike said what he said. Those who will not use their own minds, intellect, perceptions, brain if you like, are meat in the table and beasts of burden by choice and consent. That's a truism. It's a truism.

Here is an article to show you how corrupt just one part of it is, but it's incredibly rich so it won't matter me saying what I'm saying. I'm tiddlywinks compared to guys they've gone after in the past. Here is a site that talks about it. It's called Child Health Safety. I've read an article before in the newspapers at the time, maybe earlier this year, but here it's on this site here and a lot of interrelated topics to do with this particular drug company.

Drug Giant Merck – "Destroy" Critical Doctors (Alan: doctors who were critical of their studies.)"Where They Live" (A: This came out in the court cases, by the way.)
Posted on October 12, 2009 by childhealthsafety

Court evidence now available on-line at the University of California library shows drug giant Merck systematically targetted “hit-lists” of doctors to discredit, neutralise or destroy critics of the safety and effectiveness of Merck’s drugs. (A: This is out in the open in the courts. It won’t make any difference with the present propaganda campaign because propaganda wins over most peoples’ intellect or reasoning.)

You can read the documents yourself at the links below [see heading at end "Merck Documents Revealed in Court Evidence"]. (A: They have all the links here; incredible amount of links, all with no guessing involved here, no conspiracy. Here is the stuff out in the open, major newspapers, major stories, CBS, all the major mainstream and so on.)

One memo stated: (A: This came out in court because they had audio tapes of these guys talking.)

We may need to seek them out and destroy them where they live….” (A: That’s the doctors they are talking about.)

Dr Andrew Wakefield said when interviewed by CBS:-

This is not conspiracy. This is corporate policy. – [CBS News – Research Links Kids Vaccines & Brain Damage - October 9, 2009 childhealthsafety]. (A: I’ll be back with more after this break.)

I’m Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from childhealthsafety.wordpress.com web site. Lots of great links on here, publicized stuff from major mainstream cases that have been in the media, the mainstream media. There are no conspiracies or guessing involved here but it won’t, unfortunately, do too much good at the moment because people succumb to propaganda. It overcomes facts, propaganda, and creates obedience too. Don’t forget the obedience theory that people have been taught to go along with so many things from the top. We bow to Mammon and we bow to what we are taught are superior people, experts, special types that came out of different wombs than you did. That unfortunately works. But this site says…

This is not conspiracy. This is corporate policy. – [CBS News – Research Links Kids Vaccines & Brain Damage - October 9, 2009 childhealthsafety].

Wakefield is the British medical doctor who put child health safety over autism (A: Meaning the affects of the injections, inoculations.)and the MMR vaccine before his career (A: So he stood up for the children and safety before going ahead and having all these things happen to the children.) and has been hounded by big money ever since: Sunday Times’ Claims “Discredited” – Wakefield’s Autism Research Verified.

Governments expect parents to trust the health and safety of their children to drug companies like Merck, a manufacturer of the MMR and other vaccines. (A: Lots of published data that they are trying to suppress is on this web site.)

Other recent examples of blatant ‘fixing’ of the published scientific evidence base includes that by Merck and by drug maker Wyeth.

Merck paid medical journal publisher company Elsevier [whose CEO Sir Crispin Davis sits on GlaxoSmithKline's board] to publish a fake medical journal with articles favourable to Merck’s drugs: [Merck published fake journal - Bob Grant - The Scientist - 30th April 2009]. (A: Canada also did a documentary; it was CBC, a couple of years ago on that very thing. They showed you these ghostwriters, never showed you their faces. They were doctors and laboratory technicians, etc, who churned out these favorable reports and dismissed all the negative stuff. That’s how it is always done. So Merck publishes a fake journal and that was covered by The Scientist Magazine.)

Drug maker Wyeth flooded medical journals with some 40 ghostwritten articles penned by prominent physicians who sold their name for cash, in an all-out effort to offset the scientific evidence linking its female hormone replacement drug, Prempro, to breast cancer: [Judge orders Wyeth papers unsealed – Associated Press – July 25, 2009].

Covert lobbying and manipulation is endemic:-

‘The use of PR (A: Public Relations.) to counter negative publicity’

‘221. ………. Considerable resources are invested into building long-term, sustainable relationships with stakeholders and ‘key opinion leaders’ and journalists. These relationships are used to promote the use of certain brands and counterconcerns relating to safety. Efforts to undermine critical voices in particular were identified, under terms of “issues management”. (A: This is from the court case, by the way.) In later evidence, in response to the ISM’s memorandum, Pfizer stated that PR is entirely legitimate and can “help to educate and inform”. According to the PMCPA, PR activities may include “placing articles in the lay press, (A: You know, the press for the profane, the ‘lay’ press.) TV documentaries (A: Yeah, the TV documentaries you see too.), soap operas etc”.’ (A: I told you, all this entertainment stuff is nothing but propaganda. And this is from the court case.) [p60 'The Influence of the Pharmaceutical industry' 2004 - English Parliamentary Health Select Committee report [emphasis added]] (A: The links are all there. Here are these big companies putting it all in, paying people to write it into soaps and the names of their brands and what they are on and what pills are good and so on and so on. It’s in the movies too.)

Merck Documents Revealed in Court Evidence

Email from Green to Gertz re: William Harvey research conference

To: Gertz, Barry J.
From: Greene, Douglas Alan Cc Bcc:
Date: 2001-10-15 11:12:34
Subject: RE: William Harvey Research Conference

“we may need to seek them out(A: The doctors, the ones that weren’t going along with this agenda; they weren’t taking the bribes.) and destroy them where they live….” (A: How’s that for the honest business man that we’re all trained to believe in? And we are trained to believe in them.)

Email re: list of physicians to neutralize (A: By different methods and techniques. This is standard practice, by the way.)

To: Johnson, Sherrin E
From: Baumgartner, Susan Cc ZZYarbrough, Caroline (A: I guess that was the agent for the big pharma.)
Date: 1999-07-23 18:44:43
Subject: Physicians to Neutralize

Attached is the complete list of 36 physicians to neutralize with background information and recommended tactics. You will notice that some have already …

Then it goes on to say what they’ve actually done. Now, this will also include blackmail and everything else. There is report after report of more and more doctors to neutralize and discredit, generally to the same woman, this Susan Baumgartner. Quite amazing. Quite amazing a page, this. It also has all the other links to these reports on the so-called safety studies on vaccinations from MMR to right up to the present flu vaccinations, stuff they don’t want you to know about but it is available. It is available. As I say, it won’t make any difference, UNFORTUNATELY, and good luck to people with these sites. We need this but this kind of stuff takes, it would take generations to work through.

It’s like George Orwell, when Winston the character in 1984, when he meets O’Brien who was torturing him, this guy who was bringing him into what Winston thought was a secret society but actually he was setting him up. O’Brien says to him, what makes you think you can change anything? He says, oh the people, the proles, they will overcome you eventually. O’Brien says, no that won’t happen; however, maybe in a thousand years… he thought and he drifts into another topic. That’s what you’re up against, INCREDIBLE WEALTH of the ages and those intergenerational families who know how to USE it. And they do use it. Ancient techniques.

If you want to control people, you have to understand power, the power of the mind… and how it works. We have been studied. We are the most studied species on the planet. Nothing else, nothing else has been studied as much as we have. It's only NOW, in the last 100 years or so, they've been getting into the insects and the turtles and all the other stuff they show you on television as they bring you down to the level of the animal, because they are very smart people at the top. If they can dehumanize you and you believe it, you'll say, well, I guess they have to do this with us and I guess they have to do that with us, we're just us.

Organized crime runs the world… and they don't call it crime. People keep demanding from government answers and solutions to fix problems. They never figure out that the history of the world is that government IS THE PROBLEM. This article is from 2008.

US Lawmakers Invested in Iraq, Afghanistan Wars
Published on Tuesday, April 8, 2008 by Inter Press Service / by Abid Aslam

WASHINGTON - U.S. lawmakers have a financial interest in military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, a review of their accounts has revealed.

Members of Congress invested nearly 196 million dollars of their own money in companies that receive hundreds of millions of dollars a day from Pentagon contracts to provide goods and services to U.S. armed forces, say nonpartisan watchdog groups.

David Petraeus, the top U.S. general in Iraq, is to brief the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees on Tuesday and Wednesday. The latest findings are unlikely to have a significant impact on this week's proceedings (A: That's true; it won't make any difference because they're not out to expose themselves.) but could stoke anti-incumbent sentiment in this year of presidential and legislative elections.

Lawmakers charged with overseeing Pentagon contractors hold stock in those very firms, as do vocal critics of the war in Iraq, says the Centre for Responsive Politics (CRP).

Senator John Kerry, the Democrat from Massachusetts who staked his 2004 presidential bid in part on his opposition to the war, tops the list of investors. His holdings in firms with Pentagon contracts of at least five million dollars stood at between 28.9 million dollars and 38.2 million dollars as of Dec. 31, 2006. Kerry sits on the Senate foreign relations panel.

Members of Congress are required to report their personal finances every year but only need to state their assets in broad ranges. (A: Isn't that amazing? But for YOU, you had better be exact or, you know, you get the big slamming log on the door as they batter your door in with a battering ram. Corruption runs… so naturally they make it different for themselves don't they? Don't they?)

Other top investors include Representative Rodney Frelinghuysen, a New Jersey Republican with holdings of 12.1 million - 49.1 million dollars (A: That's what he has to declare. Well, it's between 12.1 and 49.1 million.); Rep. Robin Hayes, a North Carolina Republican (9.2 million - 37.1 million dollars); Republican Rep. James Sensenbrenner Jr. of Wisconsin (5.2 million - 7.6 million dollars); and Rep. Jane Harman, a California Democrat (2.7 million - 6.3 million dollars). (A: Not bad, war. It's a good business.)

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, the Democrat and former governor of West Virginia who chairs the Senate Select Intelligence Committee (A: He runs it all.), invested some 2.0 million dollars in Pentagon contractors, CRP says. (A: Believe you me, I've got other stuff from here from the Rockefeller family and it's astonishing trying to find out how many investments they have in these kind of deals and they go through different departments of their family. There are different names for different part of their family and they've got all these front companies and it takes forever to get through all the front companies to see who actually is behind it all. It eventually is the Rockefellers.)

Other panel chiefs who invested in defence firms include Sen. Joseph Lieberman, the Connecticut Independent who presides over the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee (A: Well, he's obviously a peace man isn't he? He's a peace man as he rakes all this cash in.), and Rep. Howard Berman, the California Democrat who heads the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

In all, 151 current members of Congress -- more than one-fourth of the total (A: That's the ones they know about, right.)-- have invested between 78.7 million dollars and 195.5 million dollars in companies that received defence contracts of at least 5.0 million dollars, according to CRP.

These companies received more than 275.6 billion dollars from the government in 2006, (A: See how it works? It's your tax money folks. They invest their own stuff in private shares in these companies, then they pass bills, and then they use your tax money to fund the corporations that they got money sunk in.) or 755 million dollars per day, (A: That's not bad, $755 million per day.) says budget watchdog group OMB Watch.

The investments yielded lawmakers 15.8 million - 62 million dollars in dividend income, capital gains, royalties, and interest from 2004 through 2006, says CRP. (A: Argh… well, what's new eh?)

You know, during the Viet Nam War, I remember reading in the British papers how the officer class of the US army going through their training were advised to put shares in the war industry and they had all the different companies including corporations and they got special deals in buying shares and stuff like that. So I guess once you get over there they say, well, how much napalm is here. And they say, oh, 500 gallons or tons or whatever. Oh, use it this morning and then order another batch… because it's good for business, right, they've all got shares in it. [Alan laughing.] I mean literally, that's what was going on. That's the real world. That's the real world.

Isn't it astonishing though, when they have these little closed hearings and then someone comes forward to the public with his suit and tie on and that waxed polished face, you know, of purity and everything but the halo, and they tell us a lot of gibberish which we are all so willing to swallow up rather than believe the harsh truth, that they are all corrupt. But that's what they do every time. Propaganda and image making and presentation overcome reality. It's simple, rather, rather simple, quite simple.

Totalitarianism is the system we are going into now, OPEN totalitarianism. Before we had this idea of democracy that kept us from rebelling every 4 or 5 years, they gave us elections instead. In democracy we don't vote new guys in because we like them. We vote the new guys in because we come to hate the last group so much… and so we don't rebel. We live in hope. That is what democracy is all about, giving you hope that somehow some human being, who's gone through the same schools as the last bunch, will somehow be different. But all he has to do is to say what you want to hear during elections and then does what he wants when he gets in. That's all democracy is about. I hope people out there have learned that in their lives. I hope you've learned that and seen it. You've got a memory there haven't you?

They favored this form of collectivism to be post-democratic, a collective society where they can get ahead with their business much quicker and we'd all simply obey them and not grumble and moan and object and form committees and organizations to demand justice and stuff like that. It's a nuisance. It takes time away from their adding up their figures and profits for themselves. So collectivism is a system where the people obey, because they will TRAIN you to obey using Pavlovian and improved Pavlovian techniques, and technology. So they will just state to you what they want and you will jump to it. That's collectivism. Collectivism is to destroy the last vestiges of individuality and definitely the family unit. If you haven't noticed the war on the family, even with all the drama and movies you're soaking up, then you haven't noticed much at all. Nothing is in a movie or a drama by accident.

They train us into this new system. I'm going to read an article that is like something you would expect out of Fascist Italy when Mussolini was in. Of course, as we know, Mussolini has now been declared to be set up by MI-5 in Britain.

Benito Mussolini Recruited by MI5: the name's Mussolini. Benito Mussolini Documents reveal Italian dictator got start in politics in 1917 with help of £100 weekly wage from MI5
Tom Kington in Rome guardian.co.uk, Tuesday 13 October 2009

That's been made public by the new books from declassified information. I'm waiting for the next one to tell us that Hitler was also one of their boys, but we might have to wait another few years for that one; it depends if the public are ready or not, or if anybody remembers who he was. This article shows you how they are going to just use this new fascist technique of indoctrination, just mass indoctrination on the children to give them a completely new version of how the past was, a different past, a very… well, almost a Disney past I suppose. It's about the European Union, now that they've basically steamrolled over everyone, they are doing all the way for indoctrinating all of the children into a new society, with new realities, not the old-fashioned stuff of their fuddy-duddy parents. I'll be back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just showing that corruption is normal; it's always been this way but it's just that you've been taught to perceive it differently. You've been taught that there are holy people up there with suits and ties with lots of letters behind their name and doesn't matter if they're real or not; that's irrelevant. You've been trained that somehow they have halos and they walk on water and they'd never tell a lie, something like George Washington. Unfortunately it works with most people. We can't believe that they'd go to these lengths to con everybody, but that's what psychopaths do; it's a gift they have and they use it all the time. They can't help but use it.

This article is from the Telegraph.

(A: MEPs, Members of the European Parliament. Remember, that's the parliament that we're based on in America too; we have to go into the same amalgamation of the Americas AND we're going to amalgamate WITH the EU after that. It's actually in process now before they even confirm the last part to the general public.)
MEPs call for compulsory 'EU lessons' in schools
MEPs are calling for school pupils to be forced to take European Union lessons to counter "lies" about Brussels. (A: That's where it's based, that parliament.)
By Leigh Phillips in Brussels / 15 Oct 2009 / Telegraph.co.uk

Leaders of the centre-right EPP grouping in the European Parliament say there should be compulsory classes for 14-year-olds in all member states.

The calls are being led by Mario David, a Portuguese MEP who was chief of staff to European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso when he was the country's prime minister.

He claimed the controversy surrounding the Lisbon Treaty demonstrated their was widespread ignorance of the EU's work. (A: This is the same EU that published itself that the executive branch at the top make all the decisions, all the laws, and they have working committees which are done in secret and the committees themselves are kept secret from everyone else. So he says, widespread ignorance of the EU's work… I wonder why we're in ignorance.)

"All the debates about the constitution and then the Lisbon Treaty showed a great deal of lying, cheating and mistrust about the EU," he said. (A: This is, again, the organization that was set up, and all European countries after World War II, they made a delegation for each country, kept it secret, and they said in the stuff they released in the late 90s, that THE PUBLIC WERE NOT TO KNOW the reality of the free trade agreements would lead to complete unification of Europe. They said, the public were not to know until it was done. So here he was…. "All the debates about the constitution and then the Lisbon Treaty showed a great deal of lying, cheating and mistrust about the EU," he said. He's rather peeved.)

"In Ireland people were told there was going to be abortion across the EU, that young men would be conscripted into a European Army. This was a bunch of lies. (A: I've read the report here about the European Army, from the mainstream press.)

"Knowing and understanding, from a young age, the principles, the procedures and the successful history of the European Union, (A: Which was all done, by the way, in secrecy.) the generations of tomorrow will be immune to any distortion of the perception of the role of the EU and will much better embrace the advantages of this unique project of voluntary sharing of sovereignty." (A: [Alan laughing.] It's something, as I say, you would expect to come out of the mouth of a dictator, as he changes one regime to the next regime and then abolishes the past.)

Oh, it's astonishing isn't it? I'll put these links up on my web site right after the show and go into .com and you can see.

Plus support me. Use PayPal to donate, etc to keep me going. Also, on TV Ontario, next Friday at 10:30pm watch Tagged, they are starting the debates about should human beings get the microchip. Back with more next Monday.

From Hamish any myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Drug Giant Merck - 'Destroy' Critical Doctors 'Where They Live' " (childhealthsafety.wordpress.com) - Oct. 12, 2009.

"US Lawmakers Invested in Iraq, Afghanistan Wars" by Abid Aslam (commondreams.org) - April 8, 2008.

"MEPs call for compulsory 'EU lessons' in schools" by Leigh Phillips (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 15, 2009.

"Recruited by MI5: Benito Mussolini - Documents reveal Italian dictator got start in politics in 1917 with help of £100 weekly wage from MI5" by Tom Kington (guardian.co.uk) - Oct. 13, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 19, 2009 (#432)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 19, 2009:
We Will Remember, Copenhagen Treaty, December:
"Collectivist World Government Polishing the Boot,
 With which They'll have Us All Underfoot,
 We'll Slave for the Planet, Die at Retirement,
 Live with Austerity to Save the Environment,
 The Copenhagen Treaty will Strip Every Right
 From the Brainwashed Masses, Passive, No Fight,
 Who'll Go Down the Plughole with Swirling Entrainment,
 Oblivious to Events, Except for Sports, Entertainment,
 There'll be Fixed Population from Those Who Survive,
 Unconscious Robots Serving the Elite Who Thrive,
 We've Still the Planned Riots and Terror to Live Through,
 In this War on the Peoples, Run by the Few"
 &copy; Alan Watt Oct. 19, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 19, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 19th 2009. I always suggest at the beginning of the show that newcomers to the show should go into .com and on that site you'll find hundreds of talks I've given in the past and you can download them to you're heart's content. I try to give you a bigger picture of the world events, the past, present and where it's to go in the future and to show you through evidence from the big boys themselves, from their own writings, that those who are in control of the present always control the future. They plan the future. They make it happen with everything that happens within it, cultural changes, everything is planned on queue and they have 5, 10, 15, 50, 100 year plans and on it goes even further. That's the same way as the United Nations. You'll see that on different projects that they have up on their own sites. You'll see different things planned and they are timed, 5, 10, 15, 50, 100 year, 200 year plans. That's what they have up. That was the communist technique as well and it's no coincidence because there's only one system running this world.

You can get a whole bunch of talks on that page .com to choose from. Look down the front page and you'll see the alternate sites I have because sometimes the big sites don't automatically change the disk space. They are supposed to, they are getting paid to but sometimes, for some reason, just with me, it doesn't work. It takes them about 2 weeks to find out why supposedly. My alternate sites are: [listed above]. You are the listeners, you bring me to you. I don't get sponsored and paid by anybody. I'm not backed by any organization or company that sells anything. The ads on the show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN. I have nothing to do with it. That pays for the air time, their staff, their bills, their equipment and upgrades, all the stuff that we have to do at home, big bills. So I need you to keep me going and you can do so by ordering the books, CDs and DVDs that I have for sale or you can donate to me [ordering and donation options listed above]. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. Then we'll go into the barrage of news that's come out as we chronicle it for future use, for those we hope to come after us. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There's a link to a video getting passed around about Lord Monckton. Monckton is a British 'peer' as they call them, a hereditary peer, a Lord who is giving speeches in the US. He was speaking to a Christian audience in the States and he came out with the agenda for this whole deal on climate change and the Copenhagen agreement that they're passing in December. It literally is a binding treaty on all countries that is going to bring us all down to about third world status. It also gives, as I've said before, the whole point of it is to bring in this new world system where we'll be governed from birth to death. We won't make any decisions ourselves. It's as bad as that. It literally is that. How much you can eat, how much fuel you can use to heat yourself, all that kind of stuff is going to be part of this. It's literally the totalitarian system. It all hinges on this thing passing, which to me is a done deal because we are not run by individual countries at all. They've put their boys at the top of ALL the countries in the West over the last 50 years or so and they're all in place now. That's why they're steamrolling ahead.

I've said before when you make a plan, you don't just say I'm going to plant some potatoes. First you've got to look at the field or the area, clear it and do an awful lot of work and preparation for it, then you plant once everything is completed and not before. Well these guys have done their work. They work Fabian style, intergenerationally, and now it's time to bring in the world system but it literally all hinges on this main treaty being signed. The FEAR propaganda - and it's just propaganda - has been stepped up. I've read articles before, every time they go for one of these treaties to do with the climate change and deeper integration of a world system, to govern it all, they always print in advance that they've told their members to create fear and panic amongst the people and that's exactly what they do. They're unabashed liars but that's their job. It's to terrify the people into sitting back and allowing them to go ahead to save us all. It's always to save us as we end up under their boots. The big boot. You know, the big jackboot.

This is done over and over again and here it comes… exactly what they've all been told, as always. It's amazing when you can read the stuff TELLING them to do this and then you see it in the paper. You wonder who is running the show, really. It's not the politicians obviously; they are little gophers that do what they are told… well chosen mind you, and completely dependable by their master's point of view. This article is on Brown, the British one. They are doing the same in the States and everywhere else and in Canada. This is from the BBC version; it's all over the newspapers. This is the BBC version.

PM warns of climate 'catastrophe'
BBC News / Monday, 19 October 2009

(Alan: There's your over-stating utter nonsense; panic the people.)

The UK faces a "catastrophe" of floods, droughts and killer heatwaves if world leaders fail to agree a deal on climate change, the prime minister will warn. (A: At least in Britain the guys who write the script for the Prime Minister give them out to the BBC first. Technically I would do away with the Prime Minister and just put the unelected scriptwriter as the boss because that's really who does it; he knows what to do. He's got a higher authority guiding him.)

Gordon Brown is to address the Major Economies Forum in London, which brings together 17 of the world's biggest greenhouse gas-emitting countries, (A: I hate even reading their terms because it's all BS, which is bothersome stuff. Each time we repeat it, it becomes more concrete. It's an abstract idea; someone's IDEA dreamed up at the Club of Rome and printed as such in their own book, The First Global Revolution. They admit they came up with this scam to unite the world.) there was "no plan B" if an agreement is not reached at December's UN summit in Copenhagen.

Negotiators have 50 days to save the world from global warming. (A: Ha. 50… can you imagine any politician saving anything? …except his behind… and a few million from the coffers of the public… for himself. Can you imagine him actually saving anything for the world, these sharks?)

'Rising wave'

The Copenhagen summit in December is intended to produce a new global climate change deal to replace the aging Kyoto Treaty. But BBC executive political editor James Landale said, “Not everything was going to plan.”

At the meeting in London, the Prime Minister will warn that preparatory talks within the United Nations had reached an impass. “Negotiators,” he will say, (A: Why bother having Brown reading it at all? I guess they have to do something to pretend that he works.) “are not reaching an agreement quickly enough.

"In Britain we face the prospect of more frequent droughts and a rising wave of floods," Mr. Brown is expected to tell delegates. (A: This is comical.)

"The extraordinary summer heatwave of 2003 in Europe resulted in over 35,000 extra deaths. (A: Utter rubbish. It’s just like the flu deaths; they come out with the same stuff all the time.)

"On current trends, such an event could become quite routine in Britain in just a few decades' time. (A: Even though we’re in the cooling phase, right.) And within the lifetime of our children and grandchildren the intense temperatures of 2003 could become the average temperature experienced throughout much of Europe."

(A: You know, when my parents were young, they used to go around the streets like most of the youngsters did, with bare feet in the summer. It got so hot that the tar (tarmac) would melt on the roads and stick to their feet. We go up and down like a yo-yo. We always do, up and down, back and forth, back and forth, like a yo-yo. That’s how nature is.)

He will tell the meeting that by 2080 (A: by 2080… oh.) an extra 1.8 billion people - a quarter of the world's current population - could lack sufficient water. (A: Well, we will because there is going to be one water company for the planet under the auspices of the United Nations. That IS the agenda and they will be restricting it to control you.)

Mr Brown will say: "If we do not reach a deal at this time, let us be in no doubt: once the damage from unchecked emissions growth is done, no retrospective global agreement, in some future period, can undo that choice.

"So we should never allow ourselves to lose sight of the (A: Fabian…I added that…) catastrophe we face if present warming trends continue." (A: He is a member of the Fabian Society. You’ve got to look into to it and their big plans.)

Agreement at Copenhagen "is possible", he will conclude. (A: He even goes right to the end of it… before he reads it to the public.)

Commitment is unlikely.

"But we must frankly face the plain fact that our negotiators are not getting to agreement quickly enough. So I believe that leaders must engage directly to break the impasse." (A: In other words they want to terrify the public and we’ll sit back and once they say, yes you’re now under totalitarian control, we’ve saved you, and we’ll breathe a sigh of relief. That’s the simple technique of this kind of propaganda, very simple.)

I’ve read the articles FROM the UN and FROM the group that deals with this climate change nonsense and they admit that they tell them all to put out these terrifying, vastly overstated catastrophe scenarios to scare the public. Can you believe they do this though? They do it with everything. Terrorism is another one too. So many things… get the public terrified so they can step in with their totalitarian measures for their old, old plan of a particular controlled new Soviet type world government. I’ll put this link up and the link to the video by Lord Monckton on my site at the end of the show.

Now I couldn’t see the video. I’m on XplorNet, the one that’s constantly advertising all over the mainstream newspapers that if you've got slow dial-up, use XplorNet high-speed. I use it and I can only get a 4 minute clip. There's a 4 minute clip and then there's the whole 90 minute speech he gives. It's very good; listen to it. In the 4 minute clip I got, I only got the audio by the way, somehow. XplorNet cut me off from any video and I got 6 words before they'd freeze me for another minute or 2. I managed to piece the bits together in my head as to what was getting said. He tells you how bad it is, this whole agenda, and he calls it the world communistic agenda too because it is. It's not run by people at the bottom, laborers or masses. It's run by very, very rich, rich people, as we all know. He just says it like it is. That's Lord Monckton that gives this speech.

Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty
by Libertys Army on October 16, 2009

What's interesting too is how everything in the mainstream media is so part of government; it's an arm of government. After all, we've been trained to believe the media and get our reality from whatever they say. You could never let… and it was never from the beginning; I don't think there ever was a FREE press. At least when I was small, even adults were very suspicious of big newspapers and magnates because they KNEW they were all owned by barons, media barons, stinking rich guys that were ruthless. They knew darn well that it was big organizations behind these barons to make them, to protect them, to get them up there. They'd have dozens and sometimes hundreds of newspapers and periodicals under their belt, to make sure that they standardize the same kind of news and you'd think that was reality. Unfortunately today, like Brzezinski said, the people have been trained – he was all for it mind you – to BELIEVE the news and to believe that somehow it's part of their own reasoning; it's an appendage to your brain to do your reasoning for you. People really believe that. They will believe nothing, even what they see themselves, unless it's on the news. I always say to people, go and watch the movie Wag the Dog. Excellent portrayal in a comical fashion of how it's really done.

There's a site, zombietime.com. It's quite good. It has a lot of quotes from John Holdren's book, Ecoscience, to do with sterilizing the public, forced abortions, etc.

John Holdren, Obama's Science Czar, says:
Forced abortions and mass sterilization needed to save the planet
Book he authored in 1977 advocates for extreme totalitarian measures to control the population.

I'll put this link up for you to go through; it will save you a lot of time. It's authentic; there's no guessing involved. These are the guys that have been put into power for this particular time. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, showing you that nothing really just happens by chance. Nothing really has, even before 9/11 2001. We've been GUIDED up to this point over a long, long period of Fabian planning, massive planning, to bring in a world system, a collectivist world system as they say in all their own writings, the same as the Club of Rome says. They chose the collectivist system over any other system; which means communistic system, massive bureaucracies, government agencies running the people and micromanaging the people's lives. That's what we're seeing coming in. That's what the whole new world order is all about really.

We're presented with things on television and to the average person everything is separate. The financial crash is separate. It's nothing to do with anything else even though all the big boys themselves have said in the newspapers that this could actually help us bring in the IMF to its proper status as the big distributor of currency and handler of currency across the whole planet. Everything is done for a purpose, at the right time. They could pull the plug at any time they want on ANYTHING, anything at all. It was set up that way. They never change the system so they can always do it again over and over and over. I've said that since I've been on the air. They never, ever change that system because they want to use it over and over and over again. It's great to plunder the public every few years and rob them. You allow them to accumulate and then you rob them. That's what you do. This has been going on forever really.

Even the presentation by Michael Moore, he's on every - and I only get about 3 TV stations with my rabbit ears up here in Ontario – and there is this massive exposé on him. The man who speaks for the masses, for the proletariat and there he is, sort of waddling around, following his script obviously, he ties in the environment and work… all on board with this whole agenda. We need a new system all together, he says, we need a new system. Most folk think again, he's just an individual activist; but who runs him? Who runs this man? It was said recently who his agent was in Hollywood, who does all this stuff for him. His agent is Ari Emanuel.

Ari Emanuel
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Ariel "Ari" Zev Emanuel (born March 29, 1961 in Chicago, Illinois) is a prominent American talent agent, (A: That's a very polite way of saying something else.) founder of the Endeavor Agency in Beverly Hills, California, as well as Co-CEO of William Morris Endeavor Entertainment, which has an annual turnover of between $275 and $300 million. He represents Martin Scorsese, Jennifer Garner, Jessica Alba, Larry David, Michael Moore, Jude Law, Matt Damon, Sacha Baron Cohen, Conan O'Brien and Mark Wahlberg, among others.

Background
Raised in suburban Wilmette, Illinois, outside Chicago, Emanuel is the brother of White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel, (A: Oh, oh, oh, what a coincidence. I'm shocked. So he's the brother of the White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel.), NIH bioethicist Ezekiel J. Emanuel, and adopted sister Shoshana Emanuel. His father, the Jerusalem-born Dr. Benjamin M. Emanuel is a pediatrician, who was active in the Irgun (Hebrew: ?????), an organization of Israeli freedom fighters. His mother, Marsha Emanuel (née Smulevitz), was a civil rights activist, and the one-time owner of a Chicago-area rock and roll club. As a child, Ari was diagnosed as both hyperactive and dyslexic, and his mother spent hours helping him to learn to read. She also took him to anti-war protests. He is a graduate of New Trier West High School and of Macalester College in St Paul, Minnesota where he was roommates with director Peter Berg. He is married to Sarah Addington and they have three sons.

Professional career
After graduation from Macalester College in 1983, Emanuel played professional racquetball, and lived for a time in Paris and New York City. Emanuel then worked at the Hollywood agencies Creative Artists Agency, Inter Talent, and International Creative Management (ICM). (A: And what he did with a few guys there, they robbed the place in the middle of the night and they were arrested for it. And with these fellow robbers, this organized criminal bunch, he went on to co-found…) By 1995, Emanuel had established himself as a senior agent at ICM but was abruptly fired that year when he and three other agents were caught sneaking files out of the company's offices in the middle of the night. He went on to co-found Endeavor Talent Agency with "his fellow late night vigilantes".

Public advocacy
Emanuel gained widespread media attention in July 2006 when he called on Hollywood to blacklist Mel Gibson because of Gibson's anti-Semitic remarks during his DUI arrest. Emanuel wrote, "People in the entertainment community, whether Jew or Gentile, need to demonstrate that they understand how much is at stake in this by professionally shunning Mel Gibson and refusing to work with him, even if it means a sacrifice to their bottom line".(A: I'm sure he'd sacrifice his cash right.)

In 2007, Emanuel publicly backed Chris Albrecht after Albrecht was fired from HBO for a domestic violence arrest, preceded by rumors of three earlier incidents of violence against women. Emanuel wrote, "If Hollywood is going to give Mel Gibson a second chance, and sports fans are going to cheer on stars like Jason Kidd, Latrell Sprewell, and Stephen Jackson who have made similar mistakes, why not Chris Albrecht?" Emanuel later helped Albrecht land his next job at IMG. (A: So he wants everybody to forgive Albrecht… maybe they've got something in common.)

Ari Emanuel has hosted fundraisers for the Democratic Party.

Controversy (A: Then another massive court case.)
An April 2002 lawsuit by agent Sandra Epstein against Endeavor Agency brought accusations by Epstein and other Endeavor employees against Emanuel. In the court filings, Emanuel is alleged to have allowed a friend to operate a pornographic website out of Endeavor's offices. According to Epstein, Emanuel made racist and anti-gay remarks and prevented her from sending a script about Navy SEALs to actor Wesley Snipes, saying, (A: This great humanitarian that stands up for everyone's rights except certain people…) "That is the dumbest thing I've ever heard. Everyone knows that blacks don't swim". (A: This is the brother of the same Emanuel that's in the White House today. Hmm…

Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just finishing up there with Michael Moore's agent, another hypocrite. This is Ari Emanuel who has a brother in the White House at this time, with all the other guys in the White House who are all… people think they're just left-wing. It's further beyond left-wing; it's much, much more to it. They all know each other. They all have an agenda. This is the guy who manages Michael Moore that people think just comes out on his own to be the voice of the proletariat. That's the standard spiel that they give, but it's always a different agenda and it just falls on board with the present world agenda. Everybody is connected.

It's interesting too and everybody has heard I'm sure. I've actually got 2 links in 2 different German newspapers on this article. I'll put them both up.

Second Class Medicine
Germans Unhappy with Alternative Swine Flu Vaccine for Politicians
10/19/2009 / Spiegel Online International

(A: Now as I'm reading this, keep in mind every government in the West will be the same as this one. I guarantee you.)

Germany is in an uproar over the planned swine flu vaccination.

Damage control is the name of the game in Berlin on Monday as politicians rush to deny that they are receiving a better, safer swine flu vaccine than ordinary Germans. The first of 50 million doses arrived in Germany on Monday.

One might think that the arrival in Germany of the first of 50 million doses of swine flu vaccine on Monday might be cause for celebration. (A: I don't know for whom, the companies that make it I suppose.) But with news breaking over the weekend that top government officials in Berlin will be injected with an alternative vaccine -- one widely seen as safer -- a debate about an alleged two-class medical system has erupted. (A: Like this is new anywhere…)

SPIEGEL over the weekend reported that Chancellor Angela Merkel, a number of her ministers and other government officials would receive a vaccine manufactured by the pharmaceutical company Baxter -- the same vaccine that the German military opted for, as was reported last week. (A: What they're looking for is something that doesn't have all the adjuvants that are pretty deadly. They have discussed this. They know darn well what we've discussed about adjuvants and so on. So you're going to get this old-fashioned type vaccine where they kind of kill a virus, the complete virus, and they don't put all these adjuvants in it, this weaponized stuff that weaponizes your immune system into overdrive. Because in case anything happens, just in case anything goes wrong with the rest of the population and they start keeling over, the government and the military have to be in charge. That's the basic bottom line so I won't read all the rest of it for you.)

It's in that newspaper and it's in another one too. As I say, every government I guarantee you is doing the same thing. They are not going to risk putting themselves under at the top. The masters who rule them don't want them keeling over either. This is how it really is. For all we know, they might just get some – and they might not even know it – sterile water or saline… and they'll think they've got a shot… because there is no swine flu. If there is a swine flu it will be coming out with the live viruses that they are spraying into people's nostrils. It's amazing too. In flu, once you've passed the prodromal phase and you're literally sneezing out the viruses everywhere, you're over the thing in about 3 or 4 days, 5 days max. They tell you – and I've read it before – that if you get this flu mist, the nasal spray, you'll be spraying the virus and shedding it for 21 days. Why not just wait and see if you get the flu, you'll infect less people by coughing and sneezing and you'll be over it in 3 or 4 days. They want you to sneeze for 21 days. I wish people could think.

This other article on the swine flu that supports this is called The Local, Germany's news in English. I'll put that one up there too.
Government to get special swine flu vaccine
18 Oct 09 / Online: http://www.thelocal.de/national/20091018-22649.html

There's also a petition going around. People can sign it and put their names on it, especially with a science degree, that has a lot of information, if you click their links, to the nonsense on global climate change and global warming. There are professors and PhDs and all the rest of it to do with science DENYING everyone's in consensus as the UN keeps saying, oh, we're all in consensus; this is definitely happening. No. No one is in consensus except the ones they choose to be on their boards and on their panels. These scientists that started this site don't like that at all so they're all putting their names down and they're giving out the data, the alternative data that negates all the projections and global warming that is getting spewed out at the top. So I'll put this up for anyone who wants to sign it and let's have some good luck with that. If nothing else we can show them up to the fact that there are multi-thousands of people well qualified who know it's all a fraud.

31,478 American scientists have signed this petition, including 9,029 with PhDs

So much is happening. If you study the Communist/Fabianist system, the Fabian Society didn't want sudden revolution BUT the founders of the Fabian Society, according to even Trotsky's writings, had access to the Kremlin's desk. In other words, they were there all the time getting inside reports from Communism. They watched the Communists very closely. The Fabian technique was to do it intergenerationally using Bernays techniques of altering the culture, altering the culture without them even knowing it, that they were being managed. Their culture was being altered and managed, including all the opinions that you would eventually all share together.

I can remember when I was small; I used to like visiting people in the hills, like shepherds and things like that. They were people who didn't have TV, they'd be pretty solitary people, they THOUGHT an awful lot, and they read a lot. They had books and classics and things. I used to call them characters because they'd often, if a topic was brought up, they'd hit you from left field with something or a direction about a topic that you had never thought of before. You had VARIETY. You had a variety and you could see things from many, many different angles. Today, everyone has the same common understandings on every topic and they all say the same things. The standardization of opinion it's called. We've all been trained scientifically and we all think we're sane because we all have the same opinions on everything. Quite something.

That was the Fabian technique and they've done it very, very successfully to bring in a collective society under a world government, run by experts and population control. All of that would be done, even in their earlier writings. They've been very successful. All the top characters now belong to the Royal Institute of International Affairs connected to the Fabian Society, all these special branches of the Royal Institute of International Affairs. That's what they are; they are specialized branches. They also mention in their early writings that they could use big corporations to bring in a sort of collectivist/communist system. Again, most folk think that communism is oh, there's the rabble in the streets with their flags, that's communism. No. Communism was created and run and funded by the richest people on the planet. It's a totalitarian system. That's what was done. Marx himself said that they had a dictatorship over the public because the public were too dumb and stupid and ignorant to run themselves; that's what the Fabians believe.

We're watching it all happen. This article here is from The World Newser it's called and it's to do with insurance companies. Now, this came out last week, October 15th.

Insurance Companies: Get Sterilized and Then We'll Cover You
October 15, 2009 / The World Newser / World News' Daily Blog

(A: Remember, getting back to what I just said, the big corporations. Also remember what Professor Carroll Quigley said, who belonged to this group, he was the historian for them, for the Council on Foreign Relations/Royal Institute of International Affairs; it's the same thing. He said, it will be a new feudal system where experts, and it will be primarily the CEOs of big corporations ruling the world; they'll act like feudal overlords.)

When Peggy Robertson went shopping for a more affordable health insurance plan for her self-employed husband and two young boys, she ran into an unexpected problem: the birth of her son Luke in 2006 by caesarean section. The healthy young mother was shocked when the Golden Rule Insurance company denied her coverage due to the C-Section birth of her son. "I called Golden Rule and they said that if I would get sterilized, they would then be able to offer insurance to me."

When Amanda Buchanan's husband got a job teaching in a rural school at a salary of $33,000 a year, the family was faced with a tough decision when it came to health care. To cover the entire family under her husband's group insurance policy would cost $760 a month which would take a big bite out of their yearly income. So Amanda went shopping for an individual insurance policy to cover just her and her son. She found one for $280 a month but it came with one very big deductible: a maternity deduction of $5,000. When Amanda purchased the policy she was not planning to have another child. But several months later, "my husband and I found ourselves discussing the possibility of a second child. Instead of an intimate conversation between the two of us about goals and family, I felt like there were actually three of us at the table -- myself, my husband and our insurance policy... I was very angry that an insurance company could set up a policy in a way that would either discourage women from getting pregnant or if they did become pregnant, force them to pay for basically the entire cost of a typical pregnancy... (A: Yep, you're going to get punished if you have children, folks. Of course the average person will read this like trivia and they don't connect anything with anything. Everything to them out there is unrelated, everything is unrelated.)

Even Obama's health care package has so much in it to do, and you will, they are going to increase… You are going to pay for insurance in the States for Obama's plan but it's not his plan. Let's be honest, he's a front man for the big plan that they're bringing in. If you smoke or drink or anything like that, they want to know all these things and you'll pay extra insurance. You'll be punished and penalized for all the politically incorrect things, all the individualistic things that you do, you will get punished for it. We're all little children under this system you understand, but just like the dogs that Pavlov had, you can be TRAINED, man is capable of being trained into anything the maker and the master wants him to be. That's their standard motto basically. So this is The Times Online.

Homebuyers face questions on alcohol and smoking under new mortgage rules
Elizabeth Judge / From Times Online October 19, 2009

(A: This is the British version here. So if you want a house now, you've got to open up your whole life to them.)

Homebuyers could be forced to provide detailed information about the amount of money they spend on alcohol each month to qualify for a new mortgage under a new clampdown on reckless lending. (A: See how they get away with it, they rob the public and then they blame the public. Again, it's an agenda isn't it.)

In a sweeping review of the mortgage market published today, the Financial Services Authority (FSA) said lenders needed to be far more rigorous about their financial checks of potential borrowers.

It said lenders should delve deeper into homebuyers' personal spending including the amount they spend on alcohol and tobacco.

Spending on shoes, clothes and childcare could also be assessed under a new, industry-wide "affordability test".(A: Your whole life is going to be out in the open, as you beg for money to put a shell over your head. That's all your house is. You know what a house is? A house is a box with a lot of empty air in it. That's what a house is. And you'll never own it even if you pay off that mortgage and live to pay it off. That's why it's called a mortgage; they lend it until you die… mort, death. These crooks will gouge you and gouge you all through that mortgage and you'll be worried sick to get this little shell that holds all the air and then the government taxes you on all the air inside; it depends on how much air it can hold. That's how it's done. Everything is a rip-off and we are taught to think it's all normal. You can teach the public to think ANYTHING IS NORMAL.)

Under all the different wildlife protection acts and the Earth Charter, every animal out there has the right to live, even bacteria according to them, even killer bacteria, BUT man has no rights at all. I mean, I'd rather be a turtle or a tortoise; you can carry your own house with you like a caravan. No one tells him, you've got to pay money for that shell on your back there, except us. We're the only idiots that think this is normal. And if you can't pay the taxes on it, they steal it; your government steals it. They kick you out and steal it. It's just a mafia isn't it? It's the mafia. You pay your protection money so you can live in your shell or they lean on you and throw you off into the street and take your house. That's called extortion, extortion racket. Don't be fooled by TERMS… It's taxation, it's property tax. No. Stealing and leaning on people who are trying to live and have the right to live is extortion. We have the great Council on Foreign Relations/Royal Institute of International Affairs to thank for bringing out those polices. They were the guys who introduced the bills; it's in their own writings …and personal income tax by the way… a long time ago.

This guy in Britain - what an unfortunate name - Ed Balls is his name. This guy is head of all the educational systems in Britain and he really is a complete totalitarian. It says here…

Fears for 'exhausted' children as Ed Balls steps up the push to start schooling at FOUR (A: 4 years of age.)
By Sarah Harris / 20th October 2009 / The Mail Online

(A: Remember I read before about the writings of Lord Bertrand Russell who started the schemes in experimental schools who said, if we get the children young enough, in Kindergarten, any input from the parents on morality, behavior, ideas, will be overruled by the scientific indoctrination they get. Well this is all part of that. It's time to bring it in and get the children in younger and younger so that they'll be starting off in Kindergarten and then straight into school. There will be no childhood at all, completely indoctrinated. This is what this is all about.)

Parents will be encouraged(A: I love how they phrase it.) to send their children to school at the age of four under a major shake-up of primary education.

Schools Secretary Ed Balls wants youngsters to start classes in the September after their fourth birthday, instead of waiting until the compulsory schooling age of five.

The move comes despite a major inquiry into primary education in England last week concluded that youngsters should not start formal learning until they were six. (A: So this inquiry said they shouldn't really start until they were 6 and he's going for 4, because that's the Fabian agenda.)

This compulsory schooling age will remain, but Mr Balls wants to change the mandatory School Admissions Code, which will effectively lower the starting age to four as parents are pressured to enroll their children earlier. (A: You've got to get them young, you see. The new society, you always go for the youth. You've got to get the young ones who haven't come to any opinions themselves yet and give them the correct opinions before they form their own. That's the way you can be sure of a controlled society. They're like clones of each other when they come out of that. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There was a movie put out a few years ago, I can't remember the darn name of it. ['Final Cut'] It was with Robin Williams and it was something about a cutter or a like a film type cutter… but it was to do with an age where people have got chips in their brains that record their whole life's memories. When you die, he'd get this chip and he'd have to splice all the good little bits, as the childhood through to the adult saw things; little clips here and there for the funeral parlor to be shown then for the grieving people. I thought, this is great predictive programming in that but it's also a great aid because they won't be happy until you do have a chip in you that does record everything in your life. That way you see, you could never have a thought to yourself. They could always check out if you're telling the truth or whatever. No privacy, you see.

In a totalitarian world that's successful, in the ultimate totalitarian world there can be NO privacyeven in your own mind. They must know EVERYTHING and what you are thinking. That movie was predictive programming. Folk don't remember the movie and they will see these articles that I'm going to read you, and this will make you think that this article seems well, I guess it's, you know, kind of sensible, maybe inevitable. YOU ARE BEING PROGRAMMED all along with everything. Hollywood is your main programmer with predictive programming. The idea is familiar, you don't think through it, you don't remember where but it seems familiar and therefore it's obviously alright, it's inevitable. You'll think… Oh, I guess it's inevitable. So this article is from the New Scientist.

New camera promises to capture your whole life
16 October 2009 by Kurt Kleiner / The New Scientist

(A: This is how they're going to train the public. They have to put some other gadgets in it for the young to really go for them.)

A camera you can wear as a pendant to record every moment of your life will soon be launched by a UK-based firm.
(A: Oh, what a coincidence.)

Originally invented to help jog the memories of people (A: Oh, they always start with this stuff.) with Alzheimer's disease, it might one day be used by consumers to create "lifelogs" that archive their entire lives. (A: I wonder who would LIKE that? I wonder who would benefit with that? Could it be the totalitarian government? Oh, goodness sakes no…)

Worn on a cord around the neck, the camera takes pictures automatically as often as once every 30 seconds. It also uses an accelerometer and light sensors to snap an image when a person enters a new environment, and an infrared sensor to take one when it detects the body heat of a person in front of the wearer. It can fit 30,000 images onto its 1-gigabyte memory. (A: That's how they start off the idea.)

The ViconRevue was originally developed as the SenseCam by Microsoft Research Cambridge, UK, for researchers studying Alzheimer's and other dementias. (A: I guess living as an ordinary person is a dementia now.) Studies showed that reviewing the events of the day using SenseCam photos could help some people improve long-term recall. (A: That might save them, when they are torturing you, you know. Did you do that? You say, NO. He says, well that's not what you say here. We've got this camera here. This camera recorded it. Here's the truth here. Or it's in your brain chip. See, we just have to pull that out and there it is. That's how it's all going to be.)

Now Vicon, based in Oxford, UK, which specialises in motion-capture technology for the movie industry, has licensed the technology for the camera from Microsoft and intends to put it into large-scale production. (A: They'll put all the gadgets in it for the youngsters so they'll all go for it I'm sure. Then once you get used to that for a few years, in comes the chip. It will seem quite natural won't it? ...to the non-thinkers that is. Mind you, anyone who goes for this stuff is a non-thinker in the first place, can't save them.)

Well that's it for tonight. It's been a rushed hour as always. From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"PM warns of climate 'catastrophe' " (news.bbc.co.uk) - Oct. 19, 2009.

"Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty" [4-minute Video with Link to Full Version] - October 16, 2009

"Quotes from John Holdren's Contribution to the book Ecoscience" (zombietime.com).

"Ari Emanuel" [Agent to Michael Moore and Brother to White House Chief of Staff] (wikipedia.org).

"Second-Class Medicine: Germans Unhappy with Alternative Swine Flu Vaccine for Politicians" (spiegel.de) - Oct. 19, 2009.

"Government to get special swine flu vaccine" (thelocal.de) - Oct. 18, 2009.

Global Warming Rebuttal Petition Project (petitionproject.org).

"Insurance Companies: Get Sterilized and Then We'll Cover You" (abcnews.com) - Oct. 15, 2009.

"Homebuyers face questions on alcohol and smoking under new mortgage rules", The Times - Oct. 19, 2009.

"Fears for 'exhausted' children as Ed Balls steps up the push to start schooling at FOUR" by Sarah Harris (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 19, 2009.

"New camera promises to capture your whole life" by Kurt Kleiner (newscientist.com) - Oct. 16, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 20, 2009 (#433)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 20, 2009:
Climate Treaty Tyranny, Nonscience (Nonsense) Stupidity:
"The Agenda Rolls Forth with Droll Banality, Psycholinguistics, Repetition Changes Reality,
We're in it Together Fighting Common War,
Only Planners and Bright Sparks Know What it's For,
Like All Wars Our Freedoms Just have to Go,
'Cos Front-Men Called Leaders Say it's So,
Like Shamans in Ritual, Face Grimaced in Pain,
They'll Ward off the Sun, Diminish the Rain,
Then Perfect the World with GMO Grass,
While We'll be in Rags if We Allow This Farce"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 20, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 20, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 20th 2009. For newcomers, I suggest you look into .com web site and you’ll find hundreds of talks I’ve given in the past, all there for audio download for free and you can peruse them to your heart’s content. You can also bookmark the alternate sites I have up there. It’s good to use them once in a while anyway if you find that the downloads from the .com site are hanging up on you because there are so many folk that go into the .com site at the same time right after the show. [Sites listed above.] I always start off the show rather than hit you halfway through or ¾ through and vary it, and tell you that you are the listeners who bring me to you. No one backs me up here. I’m not fronting for an organization that sells anything. I’m not backed by an NGO or foundation. I’m out here simply telling what I know because it’s essential that at least some people have the extended knowledge of what’s been going on for an awful long time in history and where it’s culminating to and where it’s all supposed to be going to in the very near future. We are going through the critical phase right now. Everything has been turned upside down, even the perceptions of the types of societies they live in. It’s been turned upside down in a few years and they don’t even know that it’s happened. So you have to support me by buying the things I have for sale on the web site or donating to me. [Ordering and donation options listed above.] I need money to keep going here; it’s expensive. The stuff that I use, the equipment I use, it’s never worked properly since I got it but things burn out so fast I’m sure you are all aware yourselves. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them to play on CD players, write to me at [address above].

This is not a job. It's not a career… believe you me. It's a full-time unwanted vocation. I didn't even know if people would want to hear what I had to say when I first came on. I kept quiet for years and years and years because people were living in different conditioned perceptions of the times in which they lived, even the time I was living through. It was very hard to communicate to most people whose indoctrination was perfect and most people truly have had the same perfect indoctrination. Only a FEW escape. The ones who escape generally hit the bottle or drugs because they can't fathom why they can't fit in to this fake system. The ones who come out of that unscathed can go on to other things and become leaders, hopefully, because we need leaders from each generation to go with the knowledge of what's going on. I'll be back with the topics of tonight's show after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. As I said at the beginning there, peoples' whole culture and their system has been turned 180° within their own lifetime and most of them don't even know it's happened because they adapt. We are the most adaptable species on the planet. Those who rule us and rule the world really, and are shortly to declare it openly once they finish their series of ongoing wars until the culmination of it all, they have been studying humanity for an awful, awful long time.

The art of governing is not new at all. Even Kings and Queen and advisors had incredible indoctrination in how to manage whole populations of people by different means, right down to the primitive one of fear, fear of death and hanging and even hung, drawn and quartered, stuff like that, stuff to terrify the public. Then we went through the so-called democratic phase that introduced new techniques of making people obey the system. I've talked before about the book, Obedience to Authority; it's well worth reading. It's a very, very interesting book on how the public react. A law itself really depends on the fact that most people, MOST people will always obey any law that's thrown down to them. They will obey… some grudgingly but they will all go along with it. It's only a minority really who know the cons - there's always a con involved in some draconian law - and only a few really see it for what it is. The way they get to them is by coercion. Law is based on coercion. They THREATEN you and most folk will take the threat and obey; that's enough for them. It's always followed by FORCE. That's traditional all down through rulership to the present time.

The Soviet technique was run on the same principles but also it used Pavlovian techniques in the schools to recreate man, being a simple animal. You could bring them up especially at a very young age, grab them young, and then you can indoctrinate them into the new system and give them a completely formulated reality where every question that a thinking ADULT will go through, every part of the process, was answered in a one-sided fashion in the indoctrination process to the children. So they would never have to question anything and they believed that as the gospel truth. It was interesting too, if you ever watched any of the old Soviet era movies that were made. They were all propaganda but then so were all the movies back home as well propagandistic. In the West they were used to undermine the culture through entertainment. In the Soviet Union they were very direct. They showed you silly, silly movies for the public, like one where one woman and one man in a factory end up keeping the factory going because they were supplying munitions for a war or something and all the rest of the staff were down with I don't know what it was, maybe bad food. They had strings attached to all the different levers on the machines and the two of them were doing this heroic thing of keeping the factory going. Ridiculous, childish stuff but that's what they pumped into them. Then towards the end of the Soviet term – the open Soviet term before they expanded worldwide into the global system that we're in NOW; it's the new Soviet we're under now – they started to use more BBC type dramas to alter opinions and behavior in people. Really, today we've got a combination of the two. We get simplicity and we also get the dramas that will have a human angle to get you IN to the story while they download you with opinion-changing ideas through emotion. These are all scientific techniques that are used very, very well.

To give you an example of how the childish ones are coming out. Going straight for the children and using the Soviet type of argument, this article here was from the Times, October 9th, 2009.

Ministers target climate change doubters in prime-time TV advert

When they say Ministers… interesting term they use in Britain, Minister, for a politician. Advertisements are not meant to ever give you truth. I think we've all found that out. Buy this and it will make you eternally happy and you'll have orgasms when you brush your teeth with this toothbrush or this toothpaste. You see all these smiling faces jumping for joy and all silliness like that. They sell you NONSENSE and HAPPINESS; so the idea is coupled with spending and buying this thing is going to bring you happiness. That was the Bernays technique. This one here shows you the government, the government itself, the government is supposed to be democratic, that YOU think, which is nonsense, it never was, but you think it is there to give you open sided arguments. In other words, show you ALL the data. No. They don't bother anymore. They just give you incredible straightforward propaganda. This is the agenda, this is what we want you to believe, we're going to use these childish stories to make you believe it. And eventually it will be a SIN not to believe it. I mean that too; it will be a sin. Remember the head of the European Parliament a couple of years ago said that anyone who criticized the Economic Union, the new Parliament and the Parliamentary system, was a heretic. These are the terms, the word he used; heretics. Out there I'm sure people say oh, that will never happen; they'll never say it's a sin. No. It's the same thing. It's the same darn thing, you know, if it walks like a duck and quacks like a duck… it's the same stuff, same system.

Ministers target climate change doubters in prime-time TV advert
(Alan: And they use their tax money to brainwash them.)
Ben Webster, Environment Editor / From The Times October 9, 2009

Climate change sceptics are to be targeted in a hard-hitting government advertising campaign that will be the first to state unequivocally that Man is causing global warming and endangering life on Earth. (A: There's your one-sided argument.)

The £6 million (A: That's to kick it off, right, and that's to pay for the initial project. They are paying God knows how many thousands to millions each time they show the ad across the country. £6 million of tax payers' money.) campaign, which begins tonight in the prime ITV1 slot during Coronation Street, (A: During Coronation Street where all the stupid ones watch. They've been brainwashed with that show since its inception. They have psychiatrists and marriage guidance counselors on there, ethnic counselors for integration, psychologists on the STAFF, full-time staff, to run the show. The people are always given preludes of what's to come next in Britain and then you see it argued out on screen and then when it happens in real life they take the opinion that was left to them. It's astonishing predictive programming.) is a direct response to government research showing that more than half the population think that climate change will have no effect on them.

Ministers sanctioned the campaign because of concern that scepticism about climate change was making it harder(A: Here's the key.) to introduce carbon-reducing policies such as higher energy bills. (A: So they're going to shame you, SHAME you into believing it so that you'll accept that you have to pay higher energy bills for less energy. Meaning massive profits for the companies which are always behind the greening scams that you hear of. There are massive profits.)

The advertisement attempts to make adults feel guilty (A: Now, is that what governments are there to do? Isn't that the sort of stuff that parents and children, you know, have this sort of thing about themselves, this little technique of guilt? Isn't that what that's about? Johnny, don't you feel guilty about doing that to little Buddy next to you there? This is how we are treated; we are children and that's exactly how they treated them in the Soviet Union. If you read the literature put out by the big boys like Gorbachev when he was at the head there, they are like story books for children, talking down by a paternalistic figure to a very little child.) about their legacy to their children. It features a father telling his daughter a bedtime story of "a very very strange" world with "horrible consequences" for today's children.

The storybook shows a British town deep under water, with people and animals drowning.

Carbon dioxide is depicted as rising in clouds of black soot from cars and homes, including from a woman's hairdryer. (A: I wonder what color her hair is.) The soot gathers into a jagged-toothed monster menacing the town.

The daughter asks her father if the story has a happy ending and a voiceover cuts in, saying: "It's up to us how the story ends" and directs viewers to the Government's Act (A: This law, act.) on CO2 website. (A: … Act on CO2 website.)

The Department of Energy and Climate Change (A: We used to have a department of weather forecasting but now it's Department of Energy and Climate Change.) publishes research today showing that 52 per cent of people think climate change will not significantly affect them. Only 33 per cent think that it will and 15 per cent do not know.

Fourteen per cent of people think that climate change will have no effect on Britain, even in their grandchildren's lifetime. Twenty-six per cent said they could think of no action they could take that would help to reduce climate change. (A: Remember, polls are put out to INFLUENCE opinion.)

When asked how they would react if they knew climate change were going to have a serious effect on their children's lives, 74 per cent said that they would be willing to change their lifestyle. (A: Remember, these study groups that they have for these polls and all that and for advertising, was dreamed up by Bernays. They are still using it yet.) Fifteen per cent said that they would not make any changes. (A: Your wallet's going to empty out and you're going to make changes all right. Your wallet is going to be emptied out for you.)

The Met Office has predicted that the 2003 heat wave, (A: We used to get heat waves every 4 or 5 years in Britain but now it's a catastrophe.) which resulted in 2,000 premature deaths in Britain, (A: Which is just a figure they plucked out of the air.) could happen every other year from the 2040s. (A: Onwards I guess… 2040. Boy these guys are really getting good at predicting the weather. Before, they could never tell you if it was going to rain or be sunny; they were always wrong. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from the Times Online about the propaganda, tax-funded propaganda aimed at people so that they will give up all their rights. And I mean ALL their rights and be directed and governed right down to a micro-management level by government agencies. That's what all this is about, the build up, the lead up to the Copenhagen agreement where all the leaders of governments are going to sign you into perpetual bondage, even worse than we are already, and to do away with any Constitution of any country. It's going to supersede everything believe you me, EVERYTHING, right down to micro-managing you in your home. You'll pay and you'll pay and you'll pay for this bogus nonsense. At the end of the article it says here…

But Philip Stott, Emeritus Professor of Biogeography at the University of London and a critic of the Government's plan to cut CO2, said the advert was an attempt to manipulate people with alarmist language and apocalyptic imagery. "It is straight out of Orwell's 1984: an attempt to control with images of a perpetual war (A: And that's what it is; we've got to get perpetual wars in our heads.) against something, in this case climate change."

Now they've got a perpetual war against terrorism. That's going to go on forever until they appoint a king of the world and even then it will continue. There's always terrorists within; they've have expanded terrorism to include all sorts of things. In this case too, in having a contrary thought about climate change. That will be a terrorist act - I'm not kidding you - if you voice your opinion. That's what I mean. We really are going in to this. We really, really are. So that was the preparatory build up to it in the last story. The Mail Online has the same thing here.

A bedtime story about drowning kittens and puppies...
(A: This is what's in the ads they're putting out in Britain… tax funded.)
Labour's £6m campaign to highlight the dangers of climate change
By Kirsty Walker / 20th October 2009

It begins with the heartwarming family scene of a father reading a story to his daughter. (A: They'll probably have the Children's Aid watching him to make sure he's not molesting his daughter too.)

But the bedtime tale turns out to be a terrifying account of drowning puppies, rabbits dying of thirst and the end of the world as we know it.

This is the Government's controversial television commercial about the dangers of global warming, which has led to more than 200 complaints being lodged with the Advertising Standards Authority. (A: Like they have ANY standards in advertising. Have you seen the ones recently they have out there?)

'Does it have a happy ending?': The ad begins with a family scene of a father reading a story to his daughter. (A: So they show you that. They even have a picture. There's a daddy there looking over the daughter and he's reading the book to her. I don't know… he's got that arm around part of her body; it could be very suspicious. I'm sure the proper agencies are watching him.)

The ad, being broadcast at prime-time as part of a £6million campaign, (A: It's going to cost more than that each time they air it; that's just to set it up.) shows a father telling his daughter a story about climate change destroying the world.

Cartoon images appear on screen: A puppy drowns in floods, a kitten floats by on an upturned table and a rabbit weeps as drought sweeps the earth. (A: I've had nothing but rain for 2 years solid. They should all come over here. I'll sell the land to them cheap.)

The father tells his daughter that scientists say the 'strange weather' (A: Strange weather… oooh.) is being caused 'by too much CO2, which went up into the sky when the grown ups used too much energy'. (A: Oh, nasty grown ups. That ties right in with what they're already teaching them from Kindergarten onwards. I've mentioned that link before and I had it up on my site, where you hear Al Gore talking to children 12 and under and saying you know things your parents don't know, because they've all had their indoctrination on global warming. In other words, the parents know nothing, ha, ha, and believing the parents and adults were having such a good time. So there you go; it's the grown ups who used too much energy. Do you know how much energy the military uses? …in every country? Incredible. But then what does fact got to do with anything here.)

He tells her that if 'grown-ups' turned off things such as lightbulbs 'maybe they could save the land for the little children'. The child looks up at her father and asks: 'Is there a happy ending?'

A female voice-over then says: 'It's up to us how it ends. See what you can do.' The Department of Energy and Climate Change (A: You've got a Department of Climate Change, can you believe this rubbish? A government department of climate change… to direct this Soviet policy here, this GLOBAL SOVIET policy.) launched the commercial as part of its Act on CO2 campaign. But critics say the 70-second ad is misleading because it presents as fact disputed scientific evidence that humans have caused climate change. (A: I think I have a link to this too. I'll put it up at the end of the show on my web site and you can see the ad for yourselves.)

A Downing Street petition that calls on the Government to 'stop wasting taxpayers' money (A: Good luck.) on climate change propaganda designed to frighten our children' has attracted more than 100 signatures.

Tory MP Philip Davies called the film 'ludicrously appalling'. (A: Well it's true. You see, Britain should really get the Hollywood crowd in because they do things better. Same with Canadian ads. Canadian ads are awful. You can't tell the ads apart from the propaganda dramas they give us with all the PC stuff in it. It's pathetic. You should get the experts in from Hollywood; they've done a great job at destroying the Western culture for years.)   He said: 'This advert shows how threadbare the Government's argument is when it has to resort to scaring children about climate change. (A: No. They know what they're doing because they want to raise a generation who are totally indoctrinated. That's what they're doing. That's what they're after. They KNOW what they are doing.)

'If the Government really wanted to stop puppies drowning it would stop building thousands of new houses on flood plains.' (A: And that's what you see all the time. I've said it for years; it's the same in the US. It's not climate change. They're actually getting permits to build on flood plains, near rivers that flood every 2, 3, 4 or 5th year. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, going through the nonsense about the build up to the terrifying technique of the public to scare them into accepting something they don't even understand. Even to do with all these international treaties they are signing, especially this upcoming one in December, the Copenhagen Treaty, where every leader in the Western world and other parts of the world too will be signing away complete authority, COMPLETE AUTHORITY and SOVEREIGNTY in all affairs – financial, social policies, everything – over to this body, which is going to override every other treaty that's ever been made basically, to run the world in a totalitarian fashion.

In the Soviet system you're always fighting an enemy. You've got to have an enemy to fight. Remember, The First Global Revolution is the book put out by the founders of the Club of Rome, the big think tank that came up with ideas to control the planet and the world and everybody in it. That was their job. They said in their own book, The First Global Revolution, that they looked for ways to unite humanity with a common cause, a common purpose, and they even said that climate changes and scarcities and famines and calamities of that ilk, but they definitely stressed the weather changes, climate changes, they said, that would fit the bill. So famine, climate change, global warming, all that kind of stuff, would fit the bill. That would do to get us all in… we're all on board with a common purpose. The whole word is working towards a common purpose because we give up all our rights to try to save ourselves like a wartime scenario. They said there had to be a wartime scenario. That's what we're going through.

This article that I'm reading from the Mail Online goes on to say this…

The Prime Minister told representatives from 17 leading countries: 'Once the damage from unchecked emissions growth is done, no retrospective global agreement in some future period can undo that choice.

'By then it will be irretrievably too late. So we should never allow ourselves to lose sight of the catastrophe we face if present warming trends continue.' (A: We're cooling! They haven't caught up to the cooling. See, it doesn't matter what the facts are, it's an agenda.)

A spokesman for the Advertising Standards Authority confirmed it had received more than 200 complaints - a 'high' volume - about the climate-change commercial. (A: No kidding.)

She said: 'The majority of people are complaining about the implication that the science around global warming and what causes it has been universally agreed. (A: And it has not been. It's amazing that the IPCC at the United Nations recruited people only who were on board with the idea. They probably had no idea at all until they were approached, if you agree with this, we'll pay you for holding this idea and sticking to it. That's literally how it happened to set up that board, that panel. Any scientists who disagree – and there are thousands and thousand of them that said it's bogus science – are not getting accepted on to the panel.)

'Our investigators are currently looking into it. If we find there is a strong body of evidence, then we will launch a formal investigation.' (A: Which is giving you the brush off.)

Energy and climate change minister (A: I wonder if she wears a rubber Mackintosh and umbrella and boots?) Joan Ruddock said: 'The Department of Energy and Climate Change stands by the messages in the television ad, and the creative approach. (A: See how they've combined the two; it's the Department of Energy AND Climate Change because they're going to cause scarcities in everything. They have to do that in these war situations. As I say, it's based on the Soviet model only much bigger; it's the world system. That goes to food, everything, will be scarcities. That's PART of controlling the great unwashed masses.) It is consistent with Government-policy on the issue, which is informed by the latest science and assessments of peer-reviewed, scientific literature made by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, and other international bodies.' (A: The United Nations bunch who get PAID to say this stuff; that's their paycheck. If they're off the board, they're not going to get the paycheck.)

The minister denied the commercial was being targeted at children. (A: No. Because she's under the weather eh?)

She said: 'The ad is directed at adults, but we know that the proposition to "protect the next generation" is a motivating one. (A: Aren't they born liars? Born liars. Why would you expect any truth EVER to come out of a face of a born liar? I've always been amazed by people who go and vote.)

So that's the stuff about that. It's going to build up into a crescendo up until this treaty is signed, just to get us all ready for how horrible it's going to be once they tell us what they've signed on to. It literally is going to bring in world rationing, personal rationing and everything, right through your whole life. I'm not kidding you. It truly is. And it's ongoing. They can keep adding and adding and adding to it once this treaty is signed, all the things that you can and cannot do and fines and penalties and probably even rehabilitation techniques when you switch on too many lights, stuff like that.

It will also bring in to it – I'm not kidding, this as well – the mandatory vaccinations and everything because that's also a world problem, we're all going to die of the flu. Mandatory inoculation will all come into part of that. They never ask how much energy it takes to make that sludgy stuff that's called vaccine. That's okay, all the energy that is wasted on that, as long as there is a massive profit for the pharma companies. Hypocrites and liars from the beginning, these characters, aren't they? Aren't they? Always the same. Always recognize them. It's going to change everyone's life. The children are getting BRAINWASHED at school because they must create one generation who truly, truly believe the propaganda, one-sided propaganda.

So many articles out there to justify what we already know because we're in an age now where right is wrong and war is peace and up is down and freedom is slavery. You see. What do you expect from a think tank that works for the government when the government is going ahead with things? This is the UK news; it's the Guardian again. Now this affects the whole world. Whatever happens in Britain is immediately followed by the US, Canada and every other country. That's why we're all on board in the same technique since 2001. It was PLANNED before 2001, the whole totalitarian agenda. Remember, the Club of Rome came up with the idea on global warming and famines and the like, as they said, would fit the bill. Those are the words that they used, in the 1970s.

UK security and terrorism
Spying morally right, says thinktank
Vikram Dodd guardian.co.uk, Friday 16 October 2009

(A: A think tank says SPYING IS MORALLY RIGHT. I wonder if it was beheadings; they would probably say the same thing right. Mind you, they could probably convince the public that beheadings are, you know, okay.)

(A: Sorry, that just skipped out on me there. I'm trying to get back to it. This computer never works properly; it hasn't since I got it. It just jumps from here to there. They spying part is off my screen right now and something else is trying to come up. Here it is, back again. Oh, my goodness. That's because I looked into a government web site today and it froze the whole computer. You know that happens to you. You go into their web sites; they want to know who's going in. What they are doing, I'm sure they go through your whole hard drive AS they are freezing it. Then all this weird stuff happens afterwards. Anyway…)

The government should be spying on Muslims even if they are not suspected of committing crimes, in order to hunt down terrorists before they strike, (A: So before they are even terrorists or even thinking of being a terrorist, the government should be spying on Muslims. You're all saying, I'm not a Muslim, I'm okay. Remember the old thing that says, they came for the socialists, I wasn't one and they left me alone; they came for blah, blah, blah. Then they came for me and there was no one left to stand up for me. This is the same technique. If they choose the Muslims Monday, they can choose you the next.   So, they should be spying on Muslims even if they are not committing crimes…) the head of an anti-extremist thinktank has said.

Ed Husain, of the Quilliam Foundation, said it was the morally right thing to do, and that waiting until people had fallen prey to extremism and were drawn into terrorism was too late.

The foundation received £700,000 from the government for its counterterrorism work as part of a strategy called Prevent. That included £400,000 from the Office for Security and Counterterrorism, which finances projects trying to counter extremism on UK campuses and monitoring websites that appear to endorse Islamist violence. (A: All the ones that put in Islamic violence were set up by the British Secret Service. Folk forget I read that article years ago. After 9/11 nothing much was happening; there were no al-Qaida cells blah, blah, blah across the world as they were saying. So one of the guys at the top of MI-5 says that they had sting operations set up – and I quoted from the paper – to bring in young people who start to believe this stuff and then draw them closer and closer. Sting operations. Then other members of MI-5 and 6 says this is a negative thing to do because right now they don't have web sites set up, this is going to CREATE the terrorism. Sting operations when there is no terrorism there, is going to create the terrorism. The whole idea was to bring young people in, brainwash them and get them to do something silly and then catch them at it. You've go to understand how intelligence works, the whole intelligence service.)

Husain said of Prevent: "It is gathering intelligence on people not committing terrorist offences. If it is to prevent people getting killed and committing terrorism, it is good and it is right." (A: I wonder where he came from. Obviously from a country that didn’t know what democracy was and freedom and privacy.)

Prevent was created to increase the security services' knowledge of extremism in Britain, he said. "If those thoughts and beliefs are linked to killing people in a democracy, the state is the only actor in a democracy that can prevent violence.

"It would be morally wrong of a taxpayer-funded programme (A: This is how it’s worded here; I don’t know if he’s speaking English or not.) designed to prevent terrorism if it was not designed to gather intelligence in order to stop that terrorism from happening.

"The alternative is to let the buggers (A: This is the word that’s used, buggers, and it’s in the Oxford dictionary so I’m not swearing.) do what they wish, until they appear on the violence radar, which is too late. If you are in the business of counterterrorism, you must want your intelligence services to know what is going on."

The balance between liberty and security (A: Here we go again.) is an issue Britain has grappled with since London was bombed by al-Qaida-inspired(A: Inspired… it doesn’t mean they were, right.) terrorists on 7 July 2005, resulting in the deaths of 52 people and 750 injuries.

Husain said gathering intelligence outweighed civil liberty concerns(A: That’s your future.) that prying into the political and religious beliefs of people was a dangerous move towards a police state: "That's the name of the game. It's not about doing the right thing by Islamists or by liberal do-gooders, it's about creating a society where liberal do-gooders survive freely." (A: Well, yeah, right. Aaarrgh.)

The government has made repeated attempts to get people who are not police or intelligence officers to inform on those they feel are suspicious.

Did you ever read what happened in Salem with the witch hunts and how jealous neighbors who wanted land and so on would accuse their neighbors of the crimes that were the crimes of the day, in league with the Devil, to get their land? And how many folk were killed because of this? It’s the same technique, same technique. Get everybody to turn on everybody else. Get everybody spying for the government. People will be getting lifted left, right and center, as we speak right now in places like Britain, on someone’s assumption, some neighbor’s assumption. And YOU are hauled in and interrogated and maybe even worse… with no rights whatsoever. Is that the kind of society you’re going to ALLOW to continue? Because it’s here now. It’s up to you isn’t it? It’s up to you.

You know, the whole idea - which has never been a reality - but the idea of democracy as it was presented to the public, came out of revolutions. Revolutions… It was an idea that was novel at the time against Kings and Queens, supposedly starting in Britain but really it was a different bunch behind it. The people always fight the battles for this different bunch. The idea was that the government was there to SERVE the people. That had never been said before or even thought of before. To say that you’d have been hung, drawn and quartered by the King. So they had these bloody revolutions. The idea being for the first time you have governments who would SERVE THE WISHES OF THE PEOPLE. You no sooner get it than you’ve got the totalitarian bunch who will USE that system and so cleverly alter it, SO CLEVERLY ALTER IT Fabian style, incrementally - sometimes in a hurry, sometimes slow - alter it so much that you STILL think you are living in it. And you are living in a fairy land, a dream. When the government literally gets you right back to square one and it’s not just one King now you have to pay for, it’s thousands and thousands and thousands of these people and all the bureaucrats and everybody involved in this big terrorism industry and their families and their high, high, stinking high salaries. And they’ve turned you right around again, into the old Kingship idea without the King. They call it your government… and then take away all your rights just as they did when you were under the King and how you all have to buckle under and fight and work towards a common cause, for the good of all, as they rob you blind and put you back into the poorhouse. And people still will think they are in a democracy of some kind. Still think that… and say it. They don’t know.

They don’t know that all throughout the Cold War and long before the Cold War, every nation in the world was TOTALLY INFILTRATED with a movement that had a front to it and a nice sounding thing, starting with socialism. It sounded wonderful if you were one of the ordinary people thinking you were going to get something and be taken care of somehow by a governmental system. But its GOAL was where we are at NOW, where the EXPERTS, the elite, those who have the right to rule will rule YOU minutely… minutely, right down to everything that you do or think. They will monitor you and watch you. That was always the goal of it. They turned, in Bernays style, the whole of society upside down. Upside completely down… and people lived through it and didn't even notice that there was intelligence behind the massive changes that they took for granted as cultural norms. They hadn't a clue. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Sometimes you have to tie things together for people who really were getting the scattergun approach to information as they overload everyone with so many different things to grab their attention, most of it trivia. I have to sift through wades of stuff, see what's relevant and what isn't, but you can connect the dots.

ICANN is the big agency, this so-called charitable agency that was given authority over the world's internet service provider NAMES and the number that you registered under. They are due to transfer management of this supposedly. Now, it was set up by DARPA with the NSA, although they tried to claim that it was just a charitable foundations created to do with it. There's so many folk that want to deal with this kind of massive work, out of the goodness of their hearts. Anyway, it's being transferred to a world body shortly and this ties in with that. You have to be able to tie the stories in as they appear, appearing separate from one another. This is to get you ready with lots of stuff across the world, like this article here from The Register.

Security boss calls for end to net anonymity
Kaspersky's online police state
By Dan Goodin in San Francisco / 16th October 2009

(A: It starts off with a Russian one and you think that's Russia. No. This is going to be the world.)

The CEO of Russia's No. 1 anti-virus package has said that the internet's biggest security vulnerability is anonymity, calling for mandatory internet passports that would work much like driver licenses do in the offline world. (A: Licenses to operate the internet… which can be pulled. That's the whole thing; with a license you can get pulled and you can't be on it.)

The comments by Eugene Kaspersky, (A: Casper…) who is also the founder of Kaspersky Lab, came during an interview this week with Vivian Yeo of ZDNet Asia. In it, he proposed the formation of an internet police body that would require users everywhere to be uniquely identified.

"Everyone should and must have an identification, or internet passport," he was quoted as saying. "The internet was designed not for public use, but for American scientists and the US military. (A: And that is true. It was designed for them and used by them.) Then it was introduced to the public and it was wrong...to introduce it in the same way." (A: So the military can have anonymity but not for us.)

Kaspersky, whose comments are raising the eyebrows of some civil liberties advocates, (A: It won't be much raised by these civil liberty advocates.) went on to say such a system shouldn't be voluntary. (A: Should NOT be voluntary.)

(A: Listen to what he says…) "I'd like to change the design of the internet by introducing regulation - internet passports, internet police and international agreement - about following internet standards," he continued. "And if some countries don't agree with or don't pay attention to the agreement, just cut them off." (A: But he goes on to say amazing things… after he goes on about who it could be.)

He rejected the notion that internet protocol numbers were sufficient for tracking a user, arguing they are too easy to come by.

"You're not sure who exactly has the connection," he explained. "Even if the IP address is traced to an internet cafe, they will not know who the customer or person is behind the attacks. Think about cars - you have plates on cars, but you also have driver licenses." (A: he goes on to say that they must bring in a CASHLESS SOCIETY as well, so's everything can be tracked that YOU DO and much, much more than just that.)

"You could make the same argument about the offline world," said Matt Zimmerman, a senior staff attorney at the Electronic Frontier Foundation. "You know, every purchase you make should be tracked, we should ban the use of cash, we should put cameras up everywhere because in that massive data collection something might be collected to help someone. But we think privacy is an important enough countervailing value that we should prevent that."

And now you're seeing what I've been saying for years, this is WHY they GAVE you the internet. Not so's you can play yourselves or find oohs and aahs on the internet. So's they can watch everything that YOU do… little ole you. Yep.

Well, that's it for tonight folks, so from a very rainy – it's perpetually rainy now - in Ontario, Canada where I live, from Hamish and myself it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Ministers target climate change doubters in prime-time TV advert" - Oct. 9, 2009.

"A bedtime story about drowning kittens and puppies... Labour's £6m campaign to highlight the dangers of climate change" by Kirsty Walker (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 20, 2009.

"Spying morally right, says thinktank" (guardian.co.uk) - Oct. 16, 2009.

"Security boss calls for end to net anonymity - Kaspersky's online police state" by Dan Goodin (theregister.co.uk) - Oct. 16, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 21, 2009 (#434)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 21, 2009:
Breaking Through -- A Clue -- Elite's Plan for You:
"The Best-Laid Plans of Men are Laid
To Prevent the Masses Making the Grade,
Bottom Reality, Never Seeing the Light,
Amongst Themselves They Swear and Fight,
Oblivious to Forces Directing Their Actions,
Supplied with Leaders to Guide Their Factions,
Bombarded with Trivia, Never Knowing
Of the Powers Directing Where They're Going,
Few Leave Their Group, Afraid to Try it,
Uncharted Course, Leaving Group to Riot,
Upon Chaos the Rulers are Hell-bent
On Crushing the Masses Whose Use is Spent"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 21, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 21, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 21st 2009. Newcomers come in all the time to the show so they should look into .com. On that site they can choose from the hundreds of talks I’ve given in the past, for audio download. You can also bookmark the other sites I have up there because once in a while the big ones are pulled or they get stuck when then don’t increase the disk space, although they are supposed to do it automatically. But for some reason with me, they have a problem that’s got Yahoo baffled apparently. So I get set back for weeks sometimes trying to reload and upload all the stuff I missed on the sites. Anyway, bookmark these other sites and you can always get me somewhere out there. The official sites are: [listed above.] I always say at the start of the show – which I’m sure everybody by now skips over – that it’s up to you to keep me going by purchasing the few things, the very few things that I have for sale - I don’t have time to put out more stuff - or you can donate to me. How you do it is on the web sites. [Ordering and donations options listed above.] You can send cash. A lot of people just send cash; they get fed up with the incredible charges that the big guys with the triple chins charge these days. It’s up to yourselves how you do it. If you email me, you can always do it through Paypal instead.

For those who get the disks burned and passed to them and lots of people get disks burned and passed to them at meetings, they don’t use computers; they’re wise, they know it’s a passing fad really in a sense. It’s all becoming policed so quickly now, as it was intended to do. They play these disks, these talks, on their CD players at home, so you can get in touch with me at [address above]. And that's that out of the way. I don't plug myself; there's no point in tooting your own horn. I'm not after a career. I'm not after getting rich either. Remember, the advertisers that you hear on the show are paid straight by the companies to RBN to pay for this air time and their staff and their bills. I've got nothing to do with that. So it's up to you to keep me going. There is no foundation, NGO, or whatever that backs me up. I don't promote different products either. That gives me a freer hand.

It's amazing in this life we think there are no consequences to things. We were taught to believe that, more so than ever in fact right through the 20th century to the present time. There are no consequences for anything we do in life and THAT is the road to slavery. That's what the new world order is all about. It's taking away your responsibility for yourself, no matter WHAT you do, or what condition you end up in. They'll say, we'll take care of it for you but here's the price… and government agencies will rule your life. That's what the whole new world order has used for over 100 years to the present time. Reality and perception, we'll go into some of this when I come back from this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix is the big system in the world, the reality that was presented to you at birth and reinforced by scientific indoctrination from then on. It starts with your parents because they didn't know any better either. It works perfectly on every generation. They think everything is normal because it's that way, this is what is, this is it. This is what is, therefore it's normal. It has to be normal because it exists, you see.

That's what Lenin talked about. That there are hundreds of ways that society could go. You can create hundreds of different styles of society, but the trick is to make the people that you rule over think that this is the ONLY one that could have possibly evolved. Why? Because it's here and it's natural. THAT'S the simple trick to it. And yet, nothing in it, NOTHING IN IT is by happenstance. It didn't just evolve by any stretch of the imagination. In fact, if you go down through history… You've got to study history to see how governance, as they call it today, worked and to realize that an incredible intellect of the masses, as it's now called; ruling over the masses and knowledge of HOW to rule over the masses has always been understood… long before Bernays came up with the idea. He was the nephew of Freud and created the consumer society. He also helped to create wars and things too which he was very proud of doing, by the use of very good propaganda, by understanding how WE react to things as individuals, part of the mass. We always like to be the same as everyone else. That's what fashion depends upon, everybody being the same as everybody else. And it's true, true enough. People who are not dressed the same way, especially at school, are going to get picked on if they are not up with the latest trend. Can't afford it, eh? parents can't afford it eh? and then it starts from there.

That's the nature of humanity when they are not individualistic. The problem down through the centuries is that it's been a struggle for INDIVIDUALS to come out of the mass. What's amazing is when they do, they often become leaders and they change society. That was understood in ancient times as well. That's where religious leaders came from as well. Whatever road they present to you becomes the normal eventually, until anyone outside THAT new normal, for the masses, they get stoned to death. All the advertisers and those who deal with the mind of society, they don't bother about individualism at all, they just take us all as one big herd because the people MOVE without realizing what's directing them and these big boys know it.

It isn't until you study the histories of even Britain. It's fantastic to see how kings dealt with little uprisings or even requests from peasants - with a possibility of a future uprising if the king didn't consider something - and how they dealt with them. How the king would deal with them is fascinating. It was always utterly ruthless at the end. Slaughter and terrorize the public. Terror works well. That's why when they change the systems in revolutions, like the Soviet or the Bolshevik Revolution, they used a reign of terror. They got that from the French because it was the same societies down through the last few centuries that were running the same show. You have to terrorize the public. Lenin actually has it in his writings if you read through them, there's stacks of stuff there. He said that he sent out men to all the different villages and peasant villages and say just grab bunches of the peasants and hang them, leave them up hanging on trees and posts until they rot and the terror will strike at the hearts of the people and they will simply obey the authority. That's what they did.

Where did he get that from? Well, Henry the 8th did the same thing at one point. The people petitioned to keep their religion when he was changing it to suit himself; he did the exact same thing. After he placated the people and says okay, I'll consider it and most of the armies went home that he might have had to fight. He sent his army after the remainder, slaughtered them and then sent out people across every village and hamlet and told them to do the same thing: hang them, draw them and quarter them, cut them up, hang them on posts, put the heads on posts, arms, legs, the whole bit, everywhere… to terrorize the public. Ancient techniques.

Today it's more subtle of course. The just tell you, they show you big, incredibly well done TV things with planes hitting buildings and that's all it takes. They don't need to send the guys around to cut a few of you up and hang you on posts. Suddenly, the media goes into operation and says, are you willing to give up your freedoms for your rights? Across the Western world, that happened at the same time. Every media was asking the same question… and you all think that's just coincidence. Everything to most people is coincidence. In fact, they are bombarded with so much information and trivia every day, they can't think where it comes from, why it's out there NOW and why so many stories could tie together, are blitzed out at the same time. I'll give you a little example before I continue.

In the last week I've been getting a lot of links sent to me with the crime in Britain. One is a horrible one of a bunch of women almost killing a guy; a gang of females trying to kill a guy. He wasn't fighting back. Once he was down, they were putting the heel in his face and the whole thing and booting him.

Shocking CCTV images of girl gang kicking a male victim in drunken attack which left him with footprint on his face
By Chris Brooke / 20th October 2009

Then another one to do with a racial attack at a gang in a school in Britain but it's an Asian gang on a white guy, which is generally never reported. So they're doing it now to get the EMOTIONS going. This young guy ended up with a hammer, a claw hammer, in his brain. HIGHLY EMOTIVE topics.

Parents seek £1m for hammer attack on white son at 'race bullies' school
By Daniel Bates / 21st October 2009

It coincides with the launching of a nationwide British police web site to show you the crime in your area. That's why it's in the paper. That's why these other stories are in the paper but most people don't relate it to this. It gives you an intensified fear of going out the door. That's what it does until you are totally dependent upon your police and giving you daily information on these web sites on your particular area; what's happening, what to beware of, and all the rest of it. The police are also, apart from the crimes that they usually list, they've also gone into the field of really, inappropriate behavior, things like that. Now, what's appropriate behavior?

They are talking about political correctness. This is big brother; big, big brother. There is nothing that happens in the media and presented to you without a purpose. Never forget that. NEVER FORGET IT, even when they give you a bit of truth, that's them throwing out a bit of bait to you. The media has always been in the business of controlling your minds. It again, reinforces its reality that you've already been conditioned to have. If you are born in a town or a village or a city, you will identify with what you think is that city as PART of you only because the growing up phase takes part within those confines. So it's a tribal thing. We are understood MINUTELY by those who rule us. Completely. We've been managed for centuries. Centuries and centuries and more so with the advent of radio and television; it was much, much easier.

The BBC came out in fact, as a PROPAGANDA ARM OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, unabashedly. That was its job from the beginning. It's OWNED by the government. It's an arm. Everybody I think up until the present time who works there, at least it was up until the 80s HAD to come from Eton. They didn't employ ANYBODY outside that club. Obviously big money and power was behind information TO give you your realities. We even become proud of the areas we grow up in. We become proud, whether it's working class or an elite crowd or middle class, we become proud; we feel we belong. But that's nothing. I don't even care what level you are at; that's not the guys who rule. You are not part of them.

The people who rule us are so far out of anybody we'll meet or even hear of in the media. They have a different, COMPLETELY DIFFERENT reality than we could even dream of… even in science fiction. But we are all taught to emulate. These big guys are put out there because we're a herd; we're a herd. We follow leaders, it doesn't matter what group you've identified with whether it's Christian or atheist or communist or whatever it happens to be, you are being used. You're being used by people above all the people you'll meet or read of, who really control the function of you. You will never know what their long-term goal is. In fact the communist party said that it wasn't for the workers beneath, including the middle management, to know the real agenda. That's the same for all of society. We are managed.

I've gone through reports before where the US government put out its reports from the think tanks on its projection for the next 50-odd years. It coincides exactly with the one put out by the think tank for Britain, the British Military Ministry of Defence and NATO, all NATO countries. The same report of what's to happen in the next 50 years. Now they don't put out these reports as a guess, a guessing framework. They put it out as fact. They KNOW where, they've been TOLD where they're going. They even had this before the last managed, on queue crash came that cash would get tight and there could be bank failures and all that. That's all included before it all happened. The guys in those think tanks belong to the agencies that help to inform government about potential crisis, survival of the ship of state, both at home and abroad, because foreign interests are vital to the survival of a power elite within every country. We'll go into some of this when I come back from this break.

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about reality again. Reality and what is reality… It's a fascinating subject really because you can go on forever going through the different layers of it and levels of it and all the rest of it.

I started off the show by saying that technically we are responsible individually for the directions we take. However, we are born into systems and different classes and all the rest of it, where you are limited and given a set amount of degrees from left to right you can go into in employment and all the rest of it, where you try and find your niche and again, identify with your group that you choose. It's all group things. It's all to do with groups. I never join groups. I can't stand groups because once you're in to something, someone else is in charge of a direction that you will never, ever know about and that's the top guy. I don't even believe, to be honest with you, that the ones who are PICKED to be front men even know the whole story. They are told all they need to know. The politicians, the Presidents, Prime Ministers, they're just good little psychopaths who play their role. They've done all the PC things necessary to get to that level. They've been pre-selected and washed off and approved… and that's who we're presented with. But they don't know; they're not the ones who manage the big, big picture.

There are people in this world who are so incredibly powerful and rich they can sink a country over night and crash the entire economy, who boast about it and who do it… and who get write-ups in the newspaper of how clever they were and how they did it. There's no law in the world to put them in prison for it, by the way. Because why? It's their system. They're going to make it so that no one will ever… the law system belongs to them. But our own individual choice is to go along with the herd and suffer as we do, because it's not meant at this particular time - it hasn't been since about the 50s onwards - it's not meant that we have sort of healthy lifestyles. If you have any urge – a need or urge that you are born with and you will go through quite a few of them as you grow up – they play on that. Whether it's eating, sex or anything else, you can become addicted to any one of them. When the advertisers in the system, the culture around you goes into overdrive… look how many fast food ads are on TV, always have been. Then they turn around and point at the victims and say look at this, obesity is just getting out of sight. So the victim once again takes the blame. Even though all of this stuff, this advertising is promoted from the top down. Nothing is from the grass roots up; it's all from the top down as Plato said. Otherwise, something true coming out at the bottom, if you don't crush it and eliminate them all together - which is generally what they do with vicious force - then it might upset the whole structure of the elite's control; it can't have ripple effects going through.

Therefore, when these big think tanks come out with their projections for the future, it's not because some guy is sitting there looking at a crystal ball or daydreaming about what he knows. It's because it's a CONTINUATION of the information passed down from think tanks to think tanks down through the generations. They understand where they're going. The future has already been spelled out, where they will break the world down, even into sort of City-States you might say. That came out from the United Nations YEARS ago. They said they were going to create greater City-States. So they had a Greater Toronto suddenly, everyone had been amalgamated into a Greater Toronto. It happened all across North America at the same time. The few places where they gave the votes to the public, it just went over their heads anyway. That happened in Toronto by the way. 70-odd percent didn't want to amalgamate all their little townships into the Greater Toronto and then the politicians said, we didn't need to give you that vote in the first place, so we're going to overrule it and go ahead regardless. That's democracy. See, there is no such thing as democracy; it's a farce. There are only agendas.

There is only ONE agenda. Eventually, if you go through these military think tank previews of the future, and I have the links on my site in the archives section, you can look them up for yourselves… 90 pages from the British one and a whole bunch from the US one. Canada has just come out with its, a similar one. They're projecting more future wars and less stationed at home. By the way, they're not just having a war over there against… the rubbish they've told you about. They planned these wars way back. In fact you can find the agenda written down in the 1970s in The Project for a New American Century, as it later became known. It wasn't started off by the so-called Republicans. It was started off by a Democrat; not that it means anything because they just change sides all the time. They had listed the countries they'd have to go into and take over, in the 70s. So they needed everything to happen on 2001, you know, the Century of Change, and that was the kickoff year for the Century of Change; not 2000 but 2001 according to all the other specialists up there, you know, the time lords. That's what they said; it's 2001 and bingo, they had their big, big gift given to them supposedly.

It had the effect it was supposed to have. Everybody sat back in shock and awe and all the planned changes were just rammed right through. Omnibus bills, one after the other, that every country had sitting waiting to go into action to CHANGE society, as we go through these massive changes that are scheduled including, eventually, the set up of the world government, the open pronouncement of it. That won't last forever either, maybe 100 years and then it will break down and they won't need that anymore. A small population living in high-tech City-States with very small populations; only one or two in the United States apparently. That's what these permanent bases overseas are all about. Obama is just scheduling another 4 or 5 overseas. These are PERMANENT, for the next 100-150 year bases, folks, City-States. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just saying that life isn't what is seems to be AT ALL. Everything is projected to us. Everything is on queue at the right time. We don't even realize that much of the stuff that's thrown out there by the media connects together for another purpose that you are completely unaware of.

That's the kind of stuff that Bernays goes through. It's very seldom that you get one of their own coming out and boasting about some of their techniques. Not all of them mind you, but some of their techniques and how they control whole populations and motivate their unconscious desires, as they say, without them even knowing that it's happening. They think every choice is their own. But the time for the consumer society is over. This was scheduled this way before they gave us the consumer society. The world was the goal and they needed strong countries that paid lots of taxes with people who were willing to go off and fight for a system they believed in, make them believe in the system. They'll never know you are going to pull the plug 100 years down the road… once they've done their job. Right now we are to go through the transition phase as they bring down society now that they've GOT their global structure. They're finishing off the last few countries to standardize them into the one system. Then they'll give you the king of the world, who no doubt will be another front man.

In the meantime we have to go through the period of chaos and learn austerity, meaning POVERTY, and cut back on things and you get punished by the authorities if you don't cut back. They do have smart meters now; they can read the appliances that you're using in your house. THAT eventually will mean you'll get fines if you go over certain limits on your kilowatts, percentage hours per week or month or however they do it. That's already being used under the guise of teaching us. See, we are trained like animals. They TEACH us not to waste electricity; that's the excuse they're giving us as they install them. They've been doing it through Ontario for the last few years in fact and other places throughout Canada and elsewhere in Britain. The reality is to eventually PUNISH you. They'll even have little things up on your local net. Local nets are very important; they're taking over from newspapers. If your name pops up on it, you'll be so embarrassed and ashamed because everybody in your little area will know it was YOU that went over the kilowatt-hour and you got punished for it. So shame… all these techniques are used to control the public as they bring us down.

Our lives are short. These guys plan in centuries. OUR lives are short and we'll go through them and we'll die off, most folk are sterile now anyway. The ones that get born, the ones who should be born generally don't get born these days, and that's the new normal. Everything becomes normal if it's taught the right way to the general public, especially when you say you have no personal responsibility in it; don't worry, the State will take care of anything that happens. It happens… like you have no choice in the matter; it just happens, these things happen. The more we become like children and say, that's true, nothing is my fault, the more the State will take over and deal with the fallout FOR YOU… but at a hell of a price. It means OBEDIENCE in every aspect of your life.

As we go down, eventually the population will be VASTLY reduced because they plan, they plan, and they can and they will reduce the water supplies to all the major cities because only a handful, maybe even 2, really as one company, will run the water supply. All these other ones are fronts just like the agri business. It's really one company. The agri business owns all the food supply. We've been told that we're all going to be vegetarians. That's been in so many different… Newt Gingrich handed out the book, The Third Wave, to every Congressman. It said in the book there that the society they are bringing in WILL BE VEGETARIAN and IT MUST BE SO and it didn't say why. It's interesting to see how many vegetarians that are in this particular society that are chosen to spearhead this new world order and how far back it goes too, starting with Benjamin Franklin who was the first one to publicly admit it. A religion is used as the battering ram, the spearhead that drives us into the next part of the system. A religion… and people are completely unaware of it. They plan the future. So we've all to die off gradually and be sterile and so on. We'll go through this period of upheaval, chaos and society becoming very aggressive. That will happen; it's already happening. They can make is so very quickly too if they want us to do so… by reducing the food, by creating more unemployment.

Meanwhile, they're still using the bulk of the populations of the West to finance what they call the equality of the third world, which is nonsense because it never gets to where it's supposed to go in the first place, never has, but the truth doesn't matter in propaganda. The real reasons are never given to the public. So the taxpayers that are left, who could never pay us out of the hole that we're in, could never even if we had 100 generations to go yet, we could never pay it off, never, ever… which is understood at the top. Money is a TOOL to those at the top. It's only important those at the bottom believe in it and use it. That's it. As they die off and pay for all these wars to come, into the year 2030-2050, the elite are already, by the way, moving into their Super Cities, where they're building these permanent bases and cities across the waters in the Middle East. They already have the cities planned for Iran and different places and permanent bases that are there. Permanent means 100 years, 150 years. They will be super-rich City-States across the world. No countries as such, that's the plan. That's the plan. That's in all the reports and all their projections for the future.

Everything that happens in the meantime that the media hits you with is just managing you along a certain path. Never with the true information or what's behind it; they get you to go along with the next phase and the next phase and the next phase. We live in hope. We live in hope; that's why we keep hoping for something better to happen and it never does. It never does. It's not planned to happen but they will give you hope, always give you hope. Otherwise they'd have riots and chaos. That's why they've been getting ready for the chaos and riots for the last 20-odd years. Using the war on drugs to start off SWAT teams initially and then get every cop into SWAT teams until you've got armies of SWAT teams that can work together. Then you have intergovernmental agencies all working in SWAT teams, even going over with the military to practice kicking down doors and dragging people out their homes. That's the normal now. They knew long ago where they were going to take us today. As I say, if you go into the Project for a New American Century, follow its history. See if you can find out who came up with the idea. When they talked about future wars and where they would be, back in the 70s. They're right on queue with everything.

Here's from an article I've read before. You've got to read this again and again and again. The problem today is we pick up the trivia, because every day we get bucket loads of trivia thrown at us and you've got to concentrate on what's important. Never lose sight of what's important. It's about this. It's about information and how they are managed, everyone is managed and what the future is going to be. It's from a report. It's about the third time I've read parts of it. Constant Conflict by Ralph Peters from Parameters Magazine, summer 1997, pages 4-14. This is a military magazine, written by obviously an intelligence officer that's been GIVEN education in these techniques by predecessors. He doesn't know it all but he certainly puts out some of the stuff that he does know… to show he's a good boy and he's a good parrot.

Constant Conflict
RALPH PETERS / From Parameters, Summer 1997, pp. 4-14.

We have entered an age of constant conflict. (Alan: Constant Conflict… that's what we've been going through since the start of Gulf War I.) Information is at once our core commodity and the most destabilizing factor of our time. (A: Core commodity, that's at the heart of it all, information. AND the most destabilizing factor or our time…) Until now, history has been a quest to acquire information; today, the challenge lies in managing information. Those of us who can sort, digest, synthesize, and apply relevant knowledge soar--professionally, financially, politically, militarily, and socially. We, the winners, are a minority.

For the world masses, (A: Now this is an American military guy talking and he's including everybody I'm talking to in it. We are just the masses.) devastated by information they cannot manage or effectively interpret, life is "nasty, brutish . . . and short-circuited." The general pace of change is overwhelming, (A: That's intentional; that's why they're speeding it up right now.) and information is both the motor and signifier of change. (A: It's the MOTOR of change… information.) Those humans, in every country and region, who cannot understand the new world, or who cannot profit from its uncertainties, or who cannot reconcile themselves to its dynamics, will become the violent enemies of their inadequate governments, of their more fortunate neighbors, and ultimately of the United States. (A: Now, he's talking about an elite of the United States, not everybody. You are still part of the masses.) We are entering a new American century, in which we will become still wealthier, (A: They're talking about the ones who already own it all.) culturally more lethal, and increasingly powerful. We will excite hatreds without precedent. (A: What was it that Bush used and his scriptwriters gave him to speak and repeat? They hate us. Oh, they hate us. Everybody was stumped, why? They hate us. See, they are all geared in a different reality at the top then we are.)

We live in an age of multiple truths. (A: We are at the bottom level here, with the guys that read regular media; we are at the bottom level.) He who warns of the "clash of civilizations" is incontestably right; simultaneously, we shall see higher levels of constructive trafficking between civilizations than ever before. The future is bright--and it is also very dark. More men and women will enjoy health and prosperity than ever before, (A: That's the ones that make it before the crash.) yet more will live in poverty or tumult, if only because of the ferocity of demographics. There will be more democracy (A: And here is how they define it.)--that deft liberal form of imperialism--(A: They're not schmucks at the top.) and greater popular refusal of democracy. One of the defining bifurcations of the future will be the conflict between information masters and information victims.(A: This is from the military. This is what they really get taught at the top. These are not the guys who go off and fight by the way. They are too valuable to send them off to fight.)

In the past, information empowerment was largely a matter of insider and outsider, as elementary as the division of society into the literate and illiterate. While superior information--often embodied in military technology--killed throughout history, its effects tended to be politically decisive but not personally intrusive (once the raping and pillaging were done). Technology was more apt to batter down the city gates than to change the nature of the city. (A: Remember what Bernays said? You've got to change the behavior of society and prepare them for the products you are going to offer them. You change THEM first. Here he's saying the same thing.) The rise of the modern West broke the pattern. (A: To change the people.) Whether speaking of the dispossessions and dislocations caused in Europe through the introduction of machine-driven production or elsewhere by the great age of European imperialism, an explosion of disorienting information intruded ever further into Braudel's "structures of everyday life." Historically, ignorance was bliss. Today, ignorance is no longer possible, only error.

The contemporary expansion of available information is immeasurable, uncontainable, and destructive to individuals and entire cultures unable to master it. The radical fundamentalists--the bomber in Jerusalem or Oklahoma City, the moral terrorist on the right or the dictatorial multiculturalist on the left--are all brothers and sisters, all threatened by change, terrified of the future, and alienated by information they cannot reconcile with their lives or ambitions. (A: Boy, they've got it down pat. They know the society that's been brought in because they created it.) They ache to return to a golden age that never existed, or to create a paradise of their own restrictive design. (A: That's true isn't it? People always look back on the past and we can get America back and all this kind of stuff and John Boy, 'good night, John Boy'…) They no longer understand the world, and their fear is volatile.

Information destroys traditional jobs and traditional cultures; it seduces, betrays, yet remains invulnerable. How can you counterattack the information others have turned upon you? There is no effective option other than competitive performance. For those individuals and cultures that cannot join or compete with our information empire, there is only inevitable failure (of note, the internet is to the techno-capable disaffected what the United Nations is to marginal states: it offers the illusion of empowerment and community). (A: Who gave you the internet? It kept people from rebelling a lot more. They used to be on the streets and marching at one time. Not now, they all sit there and type and pass stuff around.) The attempt of the Iranian mullahs to secede from modernity has failed, although a turbaned corpse still stumbles about the neighborhood. Information, from the internet to rock videos, will not be contained, and fundamentalism cannot control its children. Our victims volunteer. (A: Yeah, they do. They're looking for answers and the meaning of life and these guys supply it to you. 'Yo.')

(A: They're further talking about here the Darwinist concept which the elite have always believed in long before Darwin. Darwin just put it out there to get rid of religion which was an awful obstacle to them. Survival of the fittest… the most aggressive, the most cunning and the most ruthless is what it's all about. That's what the new world order is about. Believe you me, you can do what you think are all of the right things, but you can't get in to their ranks. It won't happen. It will not happen. If we scroll down on this article, they're talking about American culture and how it's promoted. Now, American culture is not American culture. America has been turned 180° since about 1950 onwards, actually before that but really on a roll by the guys who master and create and direct culture. He says…)

It is fashionable among world intellectual elites to decry "American culture," with our domestic critics among the loudest in complaint. But traditional intellectual elites are of shrinking relevance, replaced by cognitive-practical elites (A: Understand what that is, cognitive-practical elites? They give you packaged images.)--figures such as Bill Gates, Steven Spielberg, Madonna, or our most successful politicians--human beings who can recognize or create popular appetites, recreating themselves as necessary. Contemporary American culture is the most powerful in history, and the most destructive of competitor cultures. (A: So the whole thing about the system, remember it all must be one, is one culture. The reason it's destructive is because as it destroys that at home to bring in the new, it must destroy all that abroad as well… to bring in the king of the world. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from Parameters Magazine from years ago, from the military, by a psy-ops agent obviously. Typical of those who get in on the lowest level of the next reality and become egotistical and rather disdaining of the people beneath them. That comes out even in his writings and yet he's really on the bottom of the totem pole, just a step above the ordinary people. But this is natural with society too. He goes on to say here that….

American culture is the most powerful in history, and the most destructive of competitor cultures. (A: Remember, if you followed Marxist theory and all the rest of it, about revolution and changing the world, this is all part of this. It's the SAME movement by the way. Even when you think you are in a commercialized society, it's the same movement. It depends where you are being TAKEN and who's taking the power from you. You generate power through taxes and work and labor and what they're using it for. Right now the whole of the US, and it has been for years, is to standardize the world and not for themselves because they plan to take them DOWN. They're already doing that, pulling the rug from under the citizenry of the US as they finish off the game. I've said that for years.) While some other cultures, such as those of East Asia, appear strong enough to survive the onslaught by adaptive behaviors, (A: Darwin again, adaptive or die…) most are not. The genius, the secret weapon, of American culture is the essence that the elites despise: ours is the first genuine people's culture. (A: That's his spin; that's what he's been told. No it's not; everything in it was given to the people.) It stresses comfort and convenience--ease--and it generates pleasure for the masses. (A: That's true here. This part is true. The masses will hang on to the familiar and their boozing at the weekends and partying, or whatever little pleasure they're into, to the bitter end, hoping it will never stop.) We are Karl Marx's dream, and his nightmare. (A: They probably don't even know it.)

Secular and religious revolutionaries in our century have made the identical mistake, imagining that the workers of the world or the faithful just can't wait to go home at night to study Marx or the Koran. Well, Joe Sixpack, Ivan Tipichni, and Ali Quat would rather "Baywatch." America has figured it out, and we are brilliant at operationalizing our knowledge, and our cultural power will hinder even those cultures we do not undermine. (A: See, the whole point is to undermine them.) There is no "peer competitor" in the cultural (or military) department. Our cultural empire has the addicted--men and women everywhere--clamoring for more. And they pay for the privilege of their disillusionment. (A: See, they can't help but MOCK the people as they think they're in on the know, these guys, and they're at the bottom level.)

American culture is criticized for its impermanence, its "disposable" products. But therein lies its strength. All previous cultures sought ideal achievement which, once reached, might endure in static perfection. American culture is not about the end, but the means, the dynamic process that creates, destroys, and creates anew. (A: That's their standard, occultic description.) If our works are transient, then so are life's greatest gifts--passion, beauty, the quality of light on a winter afternoon, even life itself. American culture is alive.

(A: They go on to say how basically they will bring down all the cultures by films, movies and music.) The films most despised by the intellectual elite--those that feature extreme violence and to-the-victors-the-spoils sex--are our most popular cultural weapon. (A: And America thinks it's still a nation where its culture developed by itself. Thanks, Bernays et al – and all those that worked long before Bernays to do it, of the same club.)

From a very pouring rain, HAARPed, heavily sprayed sky in Ontario, Canada, from Hamish and myself it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Constant Conflict" by Ralph Peters, 'Parameters' Summer 1997, pp. 4-14 (carlisle.army.mil).

"Parents seek £1m for hammer attack on white son at 'race bullies' school" by Daniel Bates (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 21, 2009.

"Shocking CCTV images of girl gang kicking a male victim in drunken attack which left him with footprint on his face" by Chris Brooke (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 20, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 22, 2009 (#435)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 22, 2009:
Culture Weaponized -- They've Made a Zoo out of You:
"Never Underestimate, Sharp Minds Rule
Above Front-Men Jokers who Play the Fool,
With Role of Anguish over Decision Making,
Their Eyes Shed Tears, while Hands are Taking,
Protecting Master Banksters, Knowing Their Goal,
Regardless How Much, or Many Times They Stole
The Wealth of Yet Another Naive Generation,
While the Brandy Club Dine at Exotic Location,
Look at Society, Broken, De-Culturalized,
Silent A-Bomb is C.W., Culture Weaponized"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 22, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 22, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 22nd 2009. Newcomers should look into .com web site and you can see hundreds of audios for download - audios I’ve done over the years - and you can download them for free. You can also bookmark all the other sites I have up there. If you find the next day when you try to download them off the .com site, sometimes there are so many folk going in a one time it will be slow in there. So bookmark the other ones and alternate using them sometimes, even for tonight’s’ show, and you’ll get through right away hopefully. These are my other sites [listed above]. cuttingthrough.jenkness.com has been very dependable. Sometimes it has held all the sites together when the main ones were pulled. alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site and it has all the same audios as the rest but it has the addition of transcripts of these talks and they are written in the various language of Europe. Remember too, I’m always looking out for new translators so get in touch with me. I don’t bite your head off if you try to reword it to suit the culture and the people and the understanding of your actual language. Tremendous problems sometimes exist getting from Basic English, which is a very basic language, and into a superior language in fact. I don’t bite people’s heads off as long as they get the message across so that their own people can understand what I’m saying.

Remember too, no one backs me here. The advertisements on the show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN, Republic Broadcasting Network there. They are the radio station that broadcasts this show. That pays for their air time, the staff, equipment, upgrades and their bills and all the rest of it; stuff that we all face even in our own little homes but much, much bigger of course, to broadcast. So I need your help to keep going and you can do it by donating to me. You'll see how to do it on the web site. [Payment and donation options listed above.] PayPal, Checks and cash are good from the US and International Postal money orders are good from the US to Canada. They used to do the international money orders across the world but they stopped it since 2001, but the US ones still are good for Canada. Outside the Americas you can use Money Gram or Western Union or cash. Some people have sent an occasional bank order draft and they seem to accept that as well. But that's what I need is your help to keep going. It costs ME a lot of money. Believe you me, this is full-time here, full-time. Anyone who is working on computers knows how much even THAT takes just keeping them upgraded and getting things to work and restarting them over and over again from scratch. If you're using them all the time, it's ALL of your time pretty well. This is the biggest con out there, the computer. It really, really is. But it's short-lived for me. Once I'm finished, I won't be using it anymore; that's all. It's not there for our benefit. For those who get the disks burned by people with computers - of the talks I give - and passed to them at meetings to play on your CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. I'll be back with tonight's talk after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Yesterday, I talked about psychological warfare and how the systems of controlling MASS man and they always look at MASS man, everyone else comes under categories underneath that main heading.

I read from the Parameters Magazine, which is the US Army War College Quarterly, from the summer of 1997. This character who wrote this particular exposé on the future of really, he's talking about the New American Century, as it's called; a term that was applied openly to the public when Bush was in. The group he belonged to, or all the advisors around him, all the top appointees, all belonged to that club. It was established before HE came along of course. It actually goes all the way back into the 70s – people don't know that – where the Royal Institute of International Affairs and the Council on Foreign Relations, an American branch of the same organization and the intelligence services which are all combined by the way; all of them are combined. The British/American OSS during World War II – it was created then – was an amalgamation of the 2 services of the US and the British Secret Service but it was already run from the headquarters of the Royal Institute of International Affairs. That's where they set up their headquarters. They were the global spies and the spy system for the planet at that time.

The Royal Institute of International Affairs and so on, if you read back in their writings over the years, you see what's coming; they publish what's coming, always. It's a very expensive magazine actually; its way too high-priced. That again is to discourage folk from buying it. Some of the best books out there, even some of the best books by Bertrand Russell. He had two faces; one for the public to get followers to push their things they believed in, while they never knew they were getting used for other reasons. He had another face for his own class, a very elite class. Some of his best books are about £500-£1,000. That's when they were not in demand or even heard about too much by the public… to exclude people. It's the same thing with the nightclubs, places in London where it's £500 to get in or more. That's to exclude the common riff-raff, as they call it.

Well it's the same technique that's used with managing the whole planet. There are many structures or layers of information on how WE all operate. They don't have to look upon us individually. They've got it all worked out. Studies for hundreds and hundreds of years have been done and collected and dissected and then experiments applied on whole populations over and over again. They teach a lower level of this to the Army War College and the intelligence services. The thing is, they don't know that they don't know ALL of the story. So they are very arrogant, as every group tends to be, that thinks they are professional and they know it all.

What he is giving you in that Parameters Magazine that I read from, is a sort of lower version of it, of the really high stuff, the really high stuff. Most of it is used to control ALL of us at home as well. They will throw in words - because this is going to get published and the public would read it - they will put in words which are patriotic to make you think that we are included. But if you read it carefully, you'll see you are NOT included. When he says the US and 'we', he is not talking about the people. He's talking about the establishment that already rules the United States. We've always had establishments tied together that rule every country. They don't go into politics; they don't have to. They put the guys forward. In Canada, there's a company called Power Corp. They have nothing to do with energy supply. They train leaders. I can't remember how many Prime Ministers - the one family who owned this company - were put forward who became Prime Ministers of Canada. They run Canada basically… to make sure it doesn't get into the wrong hands, which is anybody that's not in their little club. That's the reality of life.

As we go through the shock and awe since 2001 - a series really of shock and awes - they've used it over and over before in different so-called recessions, as they love to call depressions. You're always downtrodden. They're working on the next phase. In fact, when we catch up to what's happening, they're already working on maybe the 5th phase, 80-100 years down the road. I'm not kidding. This is the LOW level of it, the guys here at the war college. Remember this is 1997. I'm going to read another part of it because it's very important to what they're doing in the Middle East. They actually mention in this article the countries they'd go after. They mention 'Islamic countries' and how they'd crumble under the onslaught of not only their physical war but also of their cultural war, their TOTAL CULTURAL WAR.

Here's what he says. Remember too, I had the link up last night. I'll put the link up again tonight for you to go through. It's well worth reading through. Now, he's talking from his own perspective, not from the American people's. 'Ours', remember what he means by 'ours'.

Constant Conflict
RALPH PETERS / From Parameters, Summer 1997, pp. 4-14.

Ours is also the first culture that aims to include rather than exclude. The films most despised by the intellectual elite (Alan: Meaning the ones that he works for.)--those that feature extreme violence and to-the-victors-the-spoils sex--are our most popular cultural weapon, bought or bootlegged nearly everywhere. American action films, often in dreadful copies, are available from the Upper Amazon to Mandalay. They are even more popular than our music, because they are easier to understand. The action films of a Stallone or Schwarzenegger or Chuck Norris rely on visual narratives that do not require dialog for a basic understanding. (A: Have you ever watched those things? I mean you could put grunts in there and you would still know what's going on.) They deal at the level of universal myth, (A: Universal myth, that's very important to understand. If you understand that, you'll know what's driving you and you might catch on to the forces that understand that make you get driven.) of pre-text, celebrating the most fundamental impulses (A: Basic impulses.) (although we have yet to produce a film as violent and cruel as the Iliad). (A: That's his little snobbish bit saying you probably haven't read the Iliad because you're not intellectual.) They feature a hero, a villain, a woman to be defended or won--and violence and sex. Complain until doomsday; it sells. The enduring popularity abroad of the shopworn Rambo series tells us far more about humanity than does a library full of scholarly analysis. (A: That's all they have to see. They do surveys all the time. What's most popular? That's for the masses; the masses don't read scholarly analysis. In fact, now they can hardly throw a sentence together. As I said earlier in the show, English is a BASIC language. It certainly is today. It didn't used to be. But like Orwell's 1984, every year the dictionary gets thinner and thinner. When you can not convey a thought in pure detail, then it's in bits and pieces; it makes no sense. It's incongruous, it's doesn't fit together properly. There are parts of the jigsaw puzzle missing and people just turn off. People have no ability of concentration today for very long periods. The young admit it.)

When we speak of a global information revolution, the effect of video images is more immediate and intense than that of computers. Image trumps text in the mass psyche, and computers remain a textual outgrowth, demanding high-order skills: computers demarcate the domain of the privileged. We use technology to expand our wealth, power, and opportunities. The rest get high on pop culture. (A: So he's talking about the elite. 'WE use technology to expand OUR wealth, power, and opportunities. The rest get high on pop culture.' You see, one of the little secrets they are taught when they get into psy-ops, and they feel very special; that's how easy it is to trick guys too: You know it; you're up at the top now, you know it all. They know as much as they're meant to know. So WE use technology, his own class. He knows at that level at least, he's not serving the people; he's serving a system and a class, a very small class.) If religion is the opium of the people, video is their crack cocaine.(A: It's so interesting too because at one of the much-music awards recently, some actor - who I think is doing his part as a stunt to introduce a video game – they don't just give their little devil sign anymore, he actually stopped and had all the audience join in a prayer to Satan.

Prayer to Satan during MTV telecast - sign of the times?
James L. Lambert - Guest Columnist - 10/16/2009

No kidding, eh? That in itself if an image, you see... boom, it's stuck in your mind. Also remember, as he says, the effect of ‘VIDEO IMAGES is more immediate and intense then that of computers.’ The image especially if it’s repetition, remember 9/11? For weeks and weeks and weeks every station was bang, bang, bang. It’s like those cars, when they were doing all the experiments to see if it worked on the public. They would have race cars that were smashing themselves. They kept showing you the same smashes over and over and in slow motion and all the rest of it, until you say, well, that’s enough isn’t it? No. It wasn’t enough. They were doing surveys to see how it affected you. That’s how they used that technique on 9/11 to make sure that EVERYONE GOT THE MESSAGE, implanted, embedded in your mind. Because they had it all planned obviously, this whole war on terror, as a front of course for the whole agenda. So, ‘the rest get high on pop culture.’ That’s for the masses. ‘If religion is the opium of the people, video is their crack cocaine’…) When we and they collide, they shock us with violence, but, statistically, we win. (A: Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I’m Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix is the baser type reality that we’ve all been indoctrinated in to. We are born into it and they go into overdrive once we hit school, now it’s kindergarten, to indoctrinate you into a fake belief system and make you the society. So you grow up into a society that they have already planned that you grow up in that serves them. That’s always been the way; it serves those at the top. In the mean time, they want us to go through this big world shakeup, that’s planned. It’s a planned shakeup.

This is 1997 and it’s a military magazine. What he is saying here isn’t unique to me at all because I’ve read much more of their stuff even long before that. They knew exactly what they were going to do with the world even during World War II. They published so much about World War II. IN World War II, during it, they actually published what would happen to Germany towards the end, before they’d actually had D-Day. How they would split Berlin up and keep them apart for a whole generation, a WHOLE generation to eliminate any possibility of them uniting into the same kind of Germany, nationalistic. How they would indoctrinate a whole generation and everyone brought up within about 50-60 years or whatever, they would indoctrinate them into a different reality, a different past even. Everything is done in advance. They even published a post World War II map of the world with a new little country in it called Israel. They didn’t get their so-called recognition until 1948 by the UN.

Everything is planned in advance; nothing is left to chance. NOTHING is ever left to chance to those who rule the world and own the world and the resources and wealth. They even own the lesser elites, the names that we’re used to seeing in newspapers and high society magazines; that type of stuff. This article goes on to say…

As more and more human beings are overwhelmed by information, (A: Remember, information is a technique of warfare. You get overwhelmed by it all, it’s not by chance.) or dispossessed by the effects of information-based technologies, there will be more violence. Information victims will often see no other resort. As work becomes more cerebral, those who fail to find a place will respond by rejecting reason. (A: So, only those who’ve got it, you know, the higher IQs in the Darwinian sense will make it; the rest are just well, you’re junk genes, according to these guys.) We will see countries and continents divide between rich and poor in a reversal of 20th-century economic trends. (A: They were writing about that at the United Nations, because they are part of this whole big deal, back in the 60s, the division of rich and poor.) Developing countries will not be able to depend on physical production industries, because there will always be another country willing to work cheaper. (A: You better remember, that’s what they mean at home as well. They’re actually telling us to compete with China, ho-oh, for the wages. …compete with China.) (A: Now here’s a good statement, long before Bush was given it by his scriptwriter who no doubt worked for the same psy-ops team.) The have-nots will hate and strive to attack the haves. And we in the United States will continue to be perceived as the ultimate haves. States will struggle for advantage or revenge as their societies boil. Beyond traditional crime, terrorism will be the most common form of violence, but transnational criminality, civil strife, secessions, border conflicts, and conventional wars will continue to plague the world, albeit with the "lesser" conflicts statistically dominant. In defense of its interests, its citizens, its allies, or its clients, (A: clients…) the United States will be required to intervene in some of these contests. We will win militarily whenever we have the guts for it.

There will be no peace.(A: This is called Constant Conflict. Constant Conflict… look at Orwell’s 1984. Try and get the black and white version done in Britain with Richard Burton. It’s pretty well done. They’ve got a lot crammed into a movie. It’s hard to get a whole book crammed into a movie but they got the very important parts in there. There will be no peace, constant war. That’s how you hold onto power, by keeping everybody running, running, running.) At any given moment for the rest of our lifetimes, there will be multiple conflicts in mutating forms around the globe. Violent conflict will dominate the headlines, but cultural and economic struggles will be steadier and ultimately more decisive. The de facto role of the US armed forces will be to keep the world safe for our economy (A: He's does not mean you, remember that.) and open to our cultural assault. (A: Remember, early yesterday I mentioned that they talked about using American culture, the debased form they've given all of us across the world, and making the whole world the same. It says…) To those ends, we will do a fair amount of killing. (A: Cultural ASSAULT, very important to remember that. I could go on and on and on with this article but I will put the link up for you on my site at the end of the show for you to go through yourself. He tells you how they would debauch the whole planet and all the Islamic countries and anyone else that stands in their way, by the onslaught of CULTURE; the degrading culture that can only destroy the bonding that kept the culture and people together. It's a survival mechanism. Destroy the culture, you own them, you rule them. Mazzini said it: we destroy the cultures in order to rule the people. Do you think this is a new technique? These guys knew it long before Bernays. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just reading little bits of an article, one particular article. There are many out there from the same kind of sources. It's from a Major Ralph Peters who at that time was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for intelligence. I've got an article after that, which will follow up on that. You'll see how it follows right into the present conflict, how it's being used, and how they've conned the public again. Part of their job, by the way, that Mr. Ralph Peters' job is and was then, was to set up a system that appears to be a separate system of propaganda for pro-war, to mobilize the public back home. So they use all these techniques on the public, their own public first of all. If you can't control your own public's minds you can't go off and control the minds of other peoples across the planet.

Getting back to the article, just to read a little bit of the last piece of it, he says…

The next century will indeed be American, (A: Remember, it's the New American Century.) but it will also be troubled. We will find ourselves in constant conflict, much of it violent. The United States Army is going to add a lot of battle streamers to its flag. (A: That's your propaganda stuff, John Wayne movies.) We will wage information warfare, but we will fight with infantry. And we will always surprise those critics, domestic and foreign, who predict our decline.

This guy Major Ralph Peters has quite the résumé here and a good repertoire definitely.

Major (P) Ralph Peters is assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence, where he is responsible for future warfare.(A: They've got to understand the public especially because they always say for warfare, the first casualty is truth. You must propagandize your public for war. That's been going on forever, how to build up the propaganda and lies and sell it to the public to get them to kind of back you.) Prior to becoming a Foreign Area Officer for Eurasia, he served exclusively at the tactical level. He is a graduate of the US Army Command and General Staff College and holds a master's degree in international relations. Over the past several years, his professional and personal research travels have taken Major Peters to Russia, Ukraine, Georgia, Ossetia, Abkhazia, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Croatia, Serbia, Bulgaria, Romania, Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, Pakistan, Turkey…. (A: In other words, he's been a bit of a spy all over the place.)

So by bringing in the debased, the WEAPONIZED CULTURE, that hits at your basic, basic instincts and drive you, the Rambo movies, the sex, the violence, you always get the female at the end and the good-looking one, and all that kind of stuff. That's what they feed us, the weaponization of culture, the music, television, where pre-pubertal children are being driven into sex. They're actually copying sexual acts before they even know what it is or feel any urges in themselves. That's the weaponization of culture. That's how you degrade it at the bottom.

A degraded society is so easy to control because they haven't got a clue what's happening. They can't be cohesive together to stand up to anything because they've been debased. Your culture is your first line of protection. It's a survival mechanism, a collective survival mechanism. Why do you think they kept talking about how the world would get more and more violent and crime would skyrocket and we're just adding armies of police across the Western world? Why do you think they were doing that? Because they PLANNED everything. They weaponized the culture a long time ago and as always, once the farmer breaks the leg of the cow, down it goes on its side, then he kicks it because it can't get up. That's what you see in the paper, oh, my God; look at these brutal people; look how debased they are, getting drunk and blah, blah, blah; look at all the violence in the streets. That's the affect that was planned when you weaponized culture. That's it.

This article goes into Islam, how they'd destroy Islam basically by introducing the same weaponized culture. You know the fallout; everyone knows the fallout from it and in comes the whole UN system. You'll get easy abortion. Give them all the propaganda: don't worry,with antibiotics, for all the diseases you'll get through sexually transmitted diseases. They give them the music, the drugs, the BOOZE, the booze as well. Look at the mess that some Western countries are in because of the booze promotion. You can't turn on a TV without ads for booze… and they're all owned by Lords, all these big companies. Just like the media barons, they all go over and get knighted by the Queen. What's new in that? Britain was the first country that we know of, along with the US and the guys of the Skull and Bones, they're all descended from the guys that helped the British and prospered off of flooding China with opium as a method of warfare to destroy the culture.

This article falls right in with what I am saying. This is from Der Spiegel.

'Good Morning Baghdad'
(A: A play on 'Good Morning Viet Nam.')
Nightclubs, Corruption and Iraq's New Normalcy
SPIEGEL ONLINE / 10/21/2009 / By Bernhard Zand

Life is returning to the streets of Iraq as improved security has meant theater openings, packed restaurants and an emerging middle class. But violence is still an element of daily life and corruption threatens to become debilitating. (A: Then he goes on about the description of a guy who owns a night club, how he's dressed and how these three girls are hanging around him, kind of like you see in the West; we've had that for years.)

Mohammed al-Rahhal wears sideburns, a white suit and a red shirt open to his chest. On stage at a Baghdad nightclub, he sings, dances and taps his boots to the beat of the music. A band is playing behind him, and four young women are swooning at his side -- three thin ones wearing pumps and full-length dresses, and a heavy, slightly clumsier one.

The audience at Khayyam (A: One of the many clubs that the US has put through there, name after Omar Khayyam, obviously.) -- named after a Persian poet -- is drinking ice-cold beer, nibbling on Lebanese hors d'oeuvres, and swinging exuberantly to the music. A bouncer is collecting small arms at the entrance. Then a businessman stands up, walks up to the stage, pulls a stack of banknotes out of his pocket and whispers something into the singer's ear. (A: It's like a replica of what we have and what we've had for years in the West as we went down the tubes. Then they've got all this stuff to aim at the youth.)

"Long live the youth of Adhamiyah!", Rahhal bellows into the microphone. Adhamiyah is one of the Sunni districts of Baghdad that, until two years ago, was firmly in the stranglehold of (A: the fake…) al-Qaida.

"Long live the youth of Madinat al-Sadr!" It's a reference to the eastern Shiite slum that has been the scene of devastating suicide attacks. Cheers erupt. The businessman tosses piles of 1,000-dinar and one-dollar bills into the air. The money is whirled about by the ceiling fans, and it slowly falls to the floor, like confetti.

"This is Iraq!" a Turkmen from Kirkuk yells over the din. "This country will never become a theocracy!" The euphoria escalates into joyful pandemonium. Young men -- Kurds and Arabs, Sunnis, Christians and Shiites -- jump up and dance in front of the stage. (A: Then it goes on and on and on about the night clubs and what they are doing.)

People have no idea of how that last article ties in to everything that is happening today, the weaponization of culture, the destruction of the family unit; that's MANDATORY under the United Nations, MANDATORY.

They're building Super Cities all across the Middle East. I think Obama put another – I lose track of cash once I pass about 6 or 10 or 12 zeroes – into building permanent bases. These are permanent bases because that's the New American Century. It was decided back in the 70s, where rather than go off and fight the wars to take the oils and so on and the resources and keep their power, they might as well make permanent bases across all of their targeted areas. They are building massive, massive, ultra-modern cities to hold the elite who will then move it. They're actually moving into these cities in some places already. They will last for maybe 100-150 years as we go down the tubes paying for all of this by the way. That's what is happening now. That's the intention of it all. That's the method of it.

There is a site out there that records the wealthiest and the oldest families in Europe and America and their real estate. The reason it is up now is because these old families that are intergenerational, very elite, wealthy families with their big, old estates, are selling them. Guess where they're all moving? The old family homes are moving of to the Middle East and into the Super Cities built FOR these special people in China… as the rest of us go down the morass, as we go into the debased hell that they have planned. They will work out incrementally and give us the next bit and the next bit and the next bit until we're all dying off gradually or speedily, depending on how they want it, up to the year 2050. They plan in LONG TERMS. Many guys in the intelligence agencies - and it's always been this way - will work their whole life on certain projects knowing that they started it but they know - just like the old building masons that built cathedrals – their generation won't see the guys who take over and that will finish it. It might take 2 or 3 generations. It's always been that way. Nothing BIG happens by chance. Nothing BIG happens by chance.

Everyone knows in the intelligence communities that no one can pull off a terrorist attack in this day and age without it being known about because you wouldn't believe… you think we are all being surveilled to the maximum; it's always been like that in every possible group that you could possibly spring up in anywhere in the world. Nothing is by chance. If it's allowed to go ahead, it was planned and often we know that the CIA and the FBI have supplied materials to make bombs to get things to happen. That came out with a court case with the FIRST World Trade Center bombing. That came out in the court case. They created a group, through propaganda, of Arabian guys, one of them caught on that his handler was maybe setting him up. They all thought they were going to put a fake bomb in the World Trade Center. That came out in the court trials; look up the records of the main newspapers at the time, when the trials were going on. This guy got clever enough so he had a little tape recorder and he got his handler, luckily enough at that very time, where the handler was sent in. He said, well, we're not putting in a real bomb are we? This guy says, oh yes you are, and he supplied the stuff for it. Just as well he had the tape recorder and it was played in court. THINK. THINK out there. Nothing can happen on such a scale without intelligence services knowing about it. You have to look in to see of the peoples who are warned not to go to work in certain areas on certain days. That was in the papers too. Nothing isn't known on that kind of scale.

Getting back to this article here from Der Spiegel, it just goes on about how they're putting it in there, but they're putting it in across the whole of Iraq. Actually, they've got to do the same with Iran because Iran was on the list of the countries to be attacked back in the 90s. They had to get Afghanistan, big plans for pipelines and all that; very strategic place. They had to get Iraq next. Then they had to, and I mean completely, finish Iraq; they'd already been fighting it, and we forget this, for about 10 years or so. Then they had to go for Iran next; demonize Iran. Then Syria as well. It's all part of it.

Remember the last article I read from the War College, the title was 'Constant Conflict,' perpetual war… using all techniques. They would use hard force which is military straightforward soldiers bombing and all the rest of it. Then they use soft force which is non-governmental organizations. They used them in Europe; during elections too. They provide them with uniforms, different colors, like the orange guys; that was called Soft Force. They also use the cultural force. Do you know all the military over there and the intelligence guys have qualified, some of them are Professors in anthropology and cultures and ethnology? To look at all the weak points they haven't covered yet to see where they have to PUSH it more to destroy the existing cultures and what they call 'Americanize' it.

What they're putting in isn't an American culture. American Culture is destroyed as far as I'm concerned. There are only people who have residues of it within themselves. But that which is pushed upon the people was invented for them. Back in the 60s, there was a meeting with the Royal Institute of International Affairs with its American branch, the Council on Foreign Relations, and it was in the newspapers at the time, as to WHO, which country, would create the culture for the world, using the British version of Hollywood or the American version. Of course, they decided on the American and in with it would be promoted the music industry as well. You think everything just appears, your fashion appears and your mid-drift bulge appears to let the draft in? …all the girls out there with their fashions? Nothing, nothing is. You have a herd instinct. You see what's IN, what is shown by the ones you're supposed to look up to or you idolize and fantasize about; oh, they're up there on stage, they're so… that's what I want to dress like. Is that who you are? IS that who you are? Hmm?

Weaponization of culture has been done. It's a perfect art. They've had it ongoing for an awful long time. It makes those at home who have already been debased, it completely segregates and divides, which is an essential part of warfare and its methodology to destroy intergenerational CONVERSATIONS; passing on of knowledge; even seeing eye-to-eye on certain points. It completely destroyed it. They said that they'd have to segregate the generations. That's been successful. It was a long time ago. That was one of the cries of, I think it was Ruben, the communist guy in the US during the 1970s, don't trust anybody over 30. That's what they were chanting, chanting, chanting in music and in their rallies to the youngsters and of course they got even younger and younger. That's why too, by the way, they don't like teachers anymore who are over that age. They want them young so the children will identify with them and the new paradigms that they're indoctrinated with. Everything is run, EVERYTHING IS RUN from a central command using incredibly accurate psychology, behavioral sciences. Quite a world we live in and folk take it all for granted.

As this guy is promoting this wonderful world that they are bringing in for themselves…. Obviously they are not part of it. They understand all that stuff they debase you with. It doesn't apply to them. They don't watch much-music and copy the fashions and belong to the herd, as they say. They are just as equally watching YOU as they are an Afghanistani over yonder. Perhaps more so… perhaps more so until definitely they all pull out and don't need you any more. We are paying our last cents in taxes, through labor. That's all that money is. Tax is only labor taken from you. If they said to you, you got to work 40% of this year for us, for nothing, you'd object. But they just do it by taking away your labor through tax. You don't think about it. It's a psychological trick. Everything is a trick. Back with more of the art on conology after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I let that little wail in the guitar carry on a bit longer there because that's how you are; you feel like wailing once in a while and that's what I'm doing tonight. I'm showing you SOME of the very basic stuff of how the world is always conned. Conology, the art of conology, it's always been around. Generally it was the secret societies that just held it all to themselves as they prospered. It's a science. It's TAUGHT to those who get into certain military positions and they are not taught it ALL because there are ones way above them with much, much better data, more precise data and more extensive data. Archives, you might call them, of the ages.

It's YOU they are spying on. YOU… they've got to know what you are doing. That's why they gave you the internet. They gave you it, gave you a few years to get hooked on it. Lots of porn out there… That's all anybody knew, there was lots of porn on the internet and that got most of them in. The next thing you know, they bring in their little rules and all that. Then they tell you, oh, we're monitoring this and monitoring that and BINGO, 9/11 comes along in 2001, right on queue to kick off the American century and here we go. We're all being watched and monitored. Here is Britain that's always the flagship for the rest to follow.

State spying to cost £200 million each year to track your every online move.
(A: How in your face can it be?)
By James Slack / 21st October 2009 / The Mail Online

Big Brother: Social networking visits will be logged under the massive expansion of state spying.

An astonishing £380 a minute will be spent on surveillance in a massive expansion of the Big Brother state.

The £200 million-a-year sum (A: We're supposed to bankrupt here. It shows you money is a complete farce.) will give officials access to details of every internet click made by every citizen - on top of the email and telephone records already available.

(A: Yesterday I mentioned, or the day before, about a guy who's putting it forward, a guy who owns a so-called spyware company. He's got programs out there for sale. He's going into the ICANN of course, with the rest of them, to DEMAND that we go cashless as well. This is why they GAVE you the internet. They get you hooked on the darn thing and the whole idea is to make it indispensable so they will know EVERY darn thing you are doing in this time of austerity that we're going in to now, where they will know every can of baked beans you buy and if it's in your house.

If you've got 2 cans of the baked beans and they know you didn't buy the other, they will want to know where it came from. I'm not kidding. You are going to see rationing. I read that years ago on the air. You are going to see rationing. That's the plan.)

It is a 1,700 per cent increase on the cost of the current surveillance regime. (A: Then they go into the usual oh, dear, dear, tut, tut stuff that the opposition or whoever gives.)

Last night LibDem home affairs spokesman Chris Huhne described the sum as 'eye-watering'. (A: No kidding. Eye-watering. Oh, oh…)

So it just goes on and on and on and on and on and on. It's going to plan… going to plan because you see, they know what they have to do to all of us as they bring us through into the NEW world order. This new world order, you know, where the survival of the fittest have it all and they gradually kill off all the ones that paid for them. WE are the staging rockets to push them on into the Brave New World future that they talk about. And guess what? The staging rocket's fuel is almost spent.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Constant Conflict" by Ralph Peters, 'Parameters' Summer 1997, pp. 4-14 (carlisle.army.mil).

"Prayer to Satan during MTV telecast - sign of the times?" by James L. Lambert (onenewsnow.com) - Oct. 16, 2009.

" 'Good Morning Baghdad' - Nightclubs, Corruption and Iraq's New Normalcy" by Bernhard Zand (spiegel.de) - Oct. 21, 2009.

"Big Brother Britain: £380 a MINUTE spent on tracking your every click online" by James Slack (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 21, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 23, 2009 (#436)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 23, 2009:
Dictatorship of Science Tolerates No Defiance:

"The Charade of Sovereignty by Those Who Lead,
Into Brave New World, On Route We Bleed,
All Rights and Freedoms and All Wealth Goes
To 'Money Heaven,' to He Who Knows,
Present Generation to be Pushed to the Max,
Punished by Energy, Food and Carbon Tax,
Make No Mistake, They Will Not Swerve,
These Tyrants We'll be Made to Serve,
'Change is Good -- Yes We Can,'
The Chant in Accordance with Ancient Plan,
Their March, Methodical, Never Hurried,
To Mass Graves, They Want Us Buried"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 23, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 23, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 23rd 2009. As always, I suggest newcomers look into .com and on the web site you'll see hundreds of audios for download free of charge, where I try and cover a lot of the big picture and fill in the gaps of ancient, middle and recent history to show you that the world is always planned ahead by those who currently rule. They don't give up power. They never have to deemed to give up power even before we were given the idea of democracy. I try to show you how through alliances and systems and organizations and fraternities they simply bypassed democracy to make sure there was no real democracy. It was a red herring for the public to believe in, just like money is. I show you that they always plan the future, from their own writings. Rather than go into conspiracy blogs and so on, I prefer to take the writings and the memoirs of guys who've been involved in it and been quite open about the whole direction of the world, where it's to go, how they're going to do it, the kind of time frames it would take to get different parts through. That's what I put together for you.

On .com you can download these audios to your heart's content. Also when you are on the web site, bookmark all the other sites I have up there for future use because sometimes the big ones freeze on me. They don't automatically upgrade their hard disk space as they say at Yahoo, although they are supposed to on unlimited space. That's the plan I'm on. For some reason I'm the only guy on the planet that gets this problem it seems. So if you bookmark those other sites you'll be able to get the latest shows from the alternate sites. [Sites listed above.]

As always, I tell you – this is no habitual spiel just for the fun of it – I need your support to keep going. I'm not backed by anybody. The ads on the show are paid by the advertisers' companies straight to RBN, the radio station that this is broadcasting on right now. That pays for the air time, their equipment, technicians and all the other stuff. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can do so by buying the things I have for sale on my web site, books, CDs, DVDs or you can donate to me. You'll see how to do it on the web site. Also, those who get the disks passed to them to play on CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above].

Yes, that's the whole thing with the system we live in. We live in a fake reality. We're treated like children. We're given trivia. We're given little crises to deal with as well, and worries galore, especially since 9/11. This is the age of 'shock and awe' as they shock and awe the public into the new world order that they say themselves is 'a new world order'. They mean it. It's completely to be new, a new way of living for everyone and a new system of lifestyles which will change rapidly from now to the year 2050 with rapid depopulation of the planet over that period. This is no fantastic theory. This is coming from their own records, the ones from the military projections for the next 50 years for the US, Britain and NATO countries. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, once again talking about reality versus the fiction that's promulgated by the mainstream media and it goes down through schooling called history, this story, his story… that's what it stands for. It's the official stories we're told, that we must learn and believe in. It's almost sacrilege today not to believe in the authorized versions of history. It's always been this way.

Kings used to have authorized historians who would praise the King regardless of his personality or his temperament or how bloodthirsty he was and give you a nice version of say 'a merry old England' type of deal. Nothing is further from the truth. These guys were keeping their heads, literally, and being well paid for it by writing these glowing reports of flattery. Really, that's gone on ever since, even though we THINK we have a more critical assessment of politicians and leaders of government down through the ages since democracy was given to the public as a front.

Really, the parallel government, comprised of the elite who decided they were not going to share power with anyone, write the histories. They actually employ them at the Royal Institute of International Affairs. They actually employ the official historians. In fact Winston Churchill, he was out of the loop at one point as to just how big the organization was. He blew his top in parliament and he said it's disgraceful to know that one group of people with such power can write all the history texts for the British schools… all the people who were members of an institution that were responsible for the CREATION of the history as well as writing their version of the events.

Professor Carroll Quigley said that. He said these guys have been responsible for every major war from the late 1800s onward with the goal of conquering the planet and bringing in a nice brave new world scenario where of course, they would rule it. They wouldn't have all the excess peasantry to deal with. They wouldn't need, eventually, the form of democracy that fronted for them for so long. They wouldn't need SPORTS and ENTERTAINMENT and a consumer society. We wouldn't need the pleasures at the bottom to keep going because we wouldn't be here, literally.

They were the ones who set up the League of Nations which became the United Nations, private organizations by the way, that now seem official in our minds. Anything can be made OFFICIAL in our minds by constant repetition and misleading documentaries. Centralization was at the core of everything. Going back to Karl Marx, he talked about the need to CENTRALIZE power to have total authority, not just within a country or a nation but eventually, he said, that these countries that had centralized power could them combine in LEAGUES. When that was done then they'd have a super parliament above them which would treat the lesser ones like a provincial parliament or government. That's happened already. That's what happened in Europe. America is well in the process and in fact by 2010 the last signing of the last part of the total amalgamation, under the NAFTA, is done. Then everything is integrated. It might take a little while to implement it VISIBLY to the public but most of it's already been implemented.

The article 'Fortress America' that came out about 2 years ago, pretty well went through the whole agenda. That was in the newspapers in Canada. Total integration of the economies, taxation, they already said bureaucrats in the US and Canada from the federal governments could INTERCHANGE jobs then. They were already doing that. You could apply for a job in Canada to the States and vice-versa. All taxation revenues, import duties were shared between the countries. All data to do with security was shared, so CSIS, CIA, FBI all joined together. Done deal.

Karl Marx talked about this system of centralization, the need to do it. We see how the European Union was brought in, in stealth and lies, always deceiving the public saying ‘it’s just an economic deal; it will make trade easier’. Every year politicians went off, leaders of the European countries, to meet at yearly meetings and they’d come back and all the press would tell the people was they were signing ‘closer ties’. That was the term they used, ‘closer ties’. That means BINDING, binding, completely BOUND TOGETHER. Eventually the last tie tied up and lo and behold, you’ve got a parliament there; a super parliament that runs in secrecy at the top where the top executives makes all the rules and laws. The politicians are just a front; they have no voting power over any law whatsoever. It’s not democratic. It was never intended to be democratic because they don’t believe the public can behave themselves responsibly, make responsible decisions. That’s why the world has seen this nanny state, this Fabian, nanny state across the world to take over. It’s really rearing its ugly head all around like a massive hydra. No sooner does the Irish vote go through and they’re rampaging ahead now. It’s a done deal for the European Union as far as they are concerned. It’s now a Super Parliament, a Super Empire in fact. It’s the new Soviet; the new, upgraded Soviet that it was intended to be. Remember, they favor collectivism. The Club of Rome, one of the PREMIER think tanks, said that years ago and that’s what we’ve got here.

They plan to bring us down scientifically as the population dies off, this present population, with increasing cancers and diseases and all the rest of the stuff which was introduced by many methods including the needle. They do what they mean to do. To them it’s very PRACTICAL at the top. They don’t sit there with moral qualms and have some sort of emotional response of their pet getting put down. They don’t even have that with the public. For them, it’s a very pragmatic thing to do, just start culling the population silently and manage the reports in the papers. ‘Oh, cancer is skyrocketing but we don’t know why; maybe it’s greenhouse gasses.’ They always use everything that they do to their own advantage.

This article is from the Guardian.co.uk. It’s about the Copenhagen Summit. The Copenhagen Summit - people don’t realize - is the CAP of it all. It literally puts ALL of the signing countries under the auspices, completely under the auspices of the United Nations. When they sign it in December it goes into effect in 2012. 2012 was the year that was deemed that the UN would rear up to its full strength as the FRONT – and that’s all it is, it’s a front – for world government. This says here…

Europe offers to cut emissions 95% by 2050 (Alan: 95%!)
if deal reached at Copenhagen
(A: Isn’t it amazing, that’s what all these military think tank reports go up to is 2050 where they say there’ll be a DRASTIC reduction of the population.)
EU sends 'clear message' to the world with ambitious target
Ian Traynor in Brussels, guardian.co.uk, Wednesday 21 October 2009

Europe attempted to reassert its international leadership in the fight against global warming (A: They’re still saying global warming. But I said that a few years ago. I said, even through we’re cooling, these guys will stick to their mandate. I don’t care if you’re up to your neck in snow, they’ll still tell you you’re warming. That’s how they are.) today, offering to slash its greenhouse gas emissions by up to 95% by 2050 and by 30% by 2020 if a climate change pact is sealed in Copenhagen in six weeks' time. (A: Do you realize that 95% means that you will not be alive because you couldn’t heat yourself. You couldn’t heat yourself for one thing. You will have no transportation whatsoever, but that is the idea under… and you must go into the OTHER part of the United Nations for Agenda 21, the Agenda for the 21st century. It says right in there that everyone will be in these old compact cities and there will be no PRIVATE transportation. We’re just living through a script written a long time ago.)

"This should be seen as a clear message to the world," said Andreas Carlgren, the Swedish environment minister who chaired the Luxembourg meeting. "We expect to reach an agreement in Copenhagen," he added, after environment ministers from 27 countries finalised a common EU negotiating position.

They’re on a roll to get this done and that gives FULL authority, which means all energy and all business in every county by the way. Businesses that exist won't be able to survive either with all the penalties for carbon and energy consumption. How can you run a business or a manufacturing company without production, without energy? But that's the idea. How do you create a world of peasantry? You must make it happen. Take away that which takes them OUT of peasantry, reverse the procedure and they're back in peasantry. Simple. Most folk will never believe it as they go down the whirlpool. They won't believe its happening. That's total denial.

It's quite astonishing too. The US thinks it was out of the loop with Kyoto, that they didn't sign it. That was just a PR stunt. Oh, we didn't sign the Kyoto Treaty so we we're not in on it and we'll be okay, blah, blah, blah. Actually it was singed by President Bush Sr back in 1992. I'll put the link up for you to look at, from the government, where he signs it in to law. The average American didn't even know it, didn't know it. It says…

Statement on Signing the Framework Convention on Climate Change
bushlibrary.tamu.edu / 1992-06-12
(A: Same year as they had the Maurice Strong led convention on Climate Change and so on. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. As I say, the average person lives in a fake reality. It's done by the media and the trivia that's dumped on them and all the distractions that they're given and so on. They're never really conscious of the times that they are moving through, that they are living through. The big boys count on that. They know all this stuff to because WE are the most studied species on the planet. As I say, most Americans think that they didn't sign on to the Kyoto Treaty. Believe it or not, the US led it and funded it all, absolutely funded it all. The US is awfully good for using the taxpayers, the citizens to fund this global agenda. Once it's all done, they'll collapse the system back home and they'll say thank you very much Americans.

Bush Sr. signed this agreement on the 12th of June 1992. The year of the Rio Earth Summit that was a United Nations organization along with Maurice Strong and Rockefeller; they drafted up that whole thing. It says here…

Statement on Signing the Framework Convention on Climate Change
bushlibrary.tamu.edu / 1992-06-12

(A: This is Bush Sr.) I have today signed the Framework Convention on Climate Change on behalf of the United States of America. (A: That was awful kind of him, without asking the people eh?) This landmark agreement is a major step forward by the internationalcommunity in taking action to address global climate change. It requires countries to formulate, implement, and publish national programs for mitigating climate change by limiting net emissions of greenhouse gases.

The Framework Convention is comprehensive, covering all sources and sinks of greenhouse gases. It provides the flexibility for national programs to be reviewed and updated as new scientific information becomes available. These are important and desirable features. (A: Then it goes on and on to talk about the steps that they'd already taken. It even had the projections for emissions down to 200 million tons below projected levels in the year 2000. That was their target then, but it's ongoing.)

This is not a recent thing. They never tell you what the real things are that they are signing at the top. It's never really mentioned much in newspapers. If it's in a newspaper at all it's a little paragraph with a boob babe next to it and a little scandal to take your mind off things. That's the standard way they do it. They got that from the British papers that are way ahead on that kind of stuff, making everything surrealistic. Nothing is really new; it's all surrealism.

People have no idea of what it all truly means. You can't just cut all emissions. It also means all energy production, even for making say a shirt or something, or a pair of socks. That's to be dumped on you. The cost of the energy that they estimate it took to create that pair of socks, that's going to go down to you at the bottom level and for every other item that you buy, even your food. Definitely your food. They are going to make you - through massive propaganda campaigns - feel GUILTY about it all. That's the intention of it. This is how the sadist always uses their victim; make you feel guilty. They are MASTERS at it, MASTERS. Unfortunately, it will work amongst the public because the public are trained - and it's true - like the masses. Bernays was quite right; it's so easy to train them especially the leaders of groups. If groups already exist, you go for the leaders and the followers follow the leader. Before you know it, they're all working along the same agenda. Only the guys at the very, very top, that run it all, know where they are taking them but it's never what the followers think, never, ever.

This article was from the guardian.co.uk. As I say, the one about Europe that cuts emissions by 95%. Now, do you realize that's pretty well like saying 95% of us won't be here; at least the population size won't be here by 2050, obviously, obviously? There definitely will be a massive clampdown in the next few years to get cars off the road all together. You'd better believe it. Until only the very wealthy can afford the fees, the high fees and excess fees and penalty fees to drive. There's no doubt about that at all. In Agenda 21, they say, essential vehicles only; that's military, police, ambulance, bureaucrats and so on that will have private vehicles. Everybody else must take public transportation. To do that, they will only be available within the already overcrowded cities. All those overcrowded cities have to do it last until we're all pretty well dead and out of the way. Remember, these articles I put up on my web site at the end of each show and you can look them up for yourself.

No conspiracy here, they publish this stuff. But then you are supposed to think. YOU ARE SUPPOSED TO THINK. Remember what Brzezinski said, 'the public have been trained and shortly they'll be UNABLE to reason for themselves because they will expect the media,' especially television, 'to do their reasoning for them'. It's so strange that you can make all these BIG announcements and people somehow still think, 'well that can't affect me'. Well who do you think it does affect or is supposed to effect? Yes, it does affect you. It does affect you. Punishment taxes on everything that consumes energy. Of course it's a big rip-off con game. It's nothing to do with global warming or climate change or any other terms that they wish to use on you. It's nothing to do with that at all. It's a WAY to bring the world into its eugenically, perfected state of an elite and the death, the gradual death of the working class, all the laborers, even the middle class and then the creation of a SMALL population of better servants to serve the elite. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've talked before about the Club of Rome. It's a PREMIER think tank. All these think tanks work together in one big organization. They are all specialized in certain areas. The Club of Rome was set up to find a way to unite everyone, to fight against a common enemy to bring the world into one system. They worked at it for a long time. They said that in their own writings in the book, The First Global Revolution. They said that they'd have to find some sort of war scenario because only under war conditions do people give up all their rights and work and suffer towards a common goal for survival. This is what they said. The founders wrote the book, The First Global Revolution, printed in the 90s but they say it was around 1972 that they came up with this idea. It says,

"In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine, and the like would fit the bill."

That's in their book, The Club of Rome, The First Global Revolution. That was their job; find a way to con, lie to the public so they would give up all their rights and find a new enemy. So man would be the enemy of the planet. MAN was the problem. As far as famine and water shortages, they'd create that. Private companies since the 80s have been formed to buy up the water rights across different countries and then they restrict it. That's called water shortages. Famine, it's so easy now when 5 agri-businesses - which are really one because they have the same controlling shareholders in every one of them – are running the world's food supply. That's an easy one to pull off too.

We've seen them spray the skies like crazy since '98 in Canada, but they were doing in the 80s in Britain. We've seen the effects of weather modification. I've given the articles out on weather modification. I've given you the links to the video on HAARP. The HAARP itself is used in conjunction with the metallic spraying they've been doing for years. We truly are out of the loop of reality at this level on the bottom. Completely out of the big, big picture as the Wizard of Oz does his magic tricks even above our heads into all the air we breathe. We're given nonsense at the bottom to concentrate on.

As they're doing it of course, along came 9/11 right on queue to give them the warfare scenario, a war on terror, which is a war OF terror because everyone is terrorized by the way that the governments have gone in unison, all together. That's telling you of all the incredible connections between all governments of supposedly independent, sovereign states. They all had the same terrorist bills already to go into action, all rehearsed, long before, all together. There are those people out there who will NEVER believe it. They will never believe this version I'm giving them here. No matter about the evidence that I can given them and many others have given them too, these people will be in denial until they're in rags, as they're PAYING for rags in fact and the energy that was used to create those rags; paying also for their disposal by the way.

You know in some countries, including Britain now, they used to dress up the corpses for the funerals before cremation. It's great how business is involved in all of this. ONE company got the contract to supply all the shrouds. You've got to get burned now in these 'environmentally friendly' shrouds. They all get in on it don't they? Big bucks, big bucks. You're the only guy that can supply these shrouds… through a bit of lobbying through your friends up there in parliament. Not bad at all isn't it? DISGUSTING, DISGUSTING world we live in and we watch it happen.

We get ripped off by banksters and we see who the government SERVE when they protect the bankers and REWARD them in fact, to make sure that they lose nothing. Not only does all the money disappear into the bankers' hands, they are rewarded for it happening. They don't serve the public. When will people ever, ever get to understand that? When will they ever understand? Probably never. They'll keep voting for this party or that party and get led up the garden path like the Pied Piper to the bitter end. That's a sad truth.

I've read so many articles about the criminalization of everyone. See, we're all potential criminals under this terrorism thing because none of us apparently know when we will become a terrorist. We might actually harbor, subconscious terrorist dreams. You just don't know. We will all be psychologically evaluated to make sure that we're a citizen that can walk the streets, albeit under observation 24 hours a day and probably microchipped as well to make sure. All our telephone calls, faxes, emails and all the rest of it monitored and kept in storage to make sure that we keep our same habits and don't stray from our habitual ways.

Once again, as long as the public can switch on their TV sets when they go home from a rotten day's work and get hypnotized in front of their favorite television shows and drink their booze or party at the weekends and have a bit of sex and all the rest of it, then everything is fine… party, party, party. That little circle, that is your life. That little circle – that's what it is – as long as that doesn't change too drastically, too quickly, you don't care what's happening around you that will eventually COME TO YOU. It will come to everyone. The Washington Times…

Criminalizing everyone
Needed: A 'clean line' to determine lawfulness
By Brian W. Walsh / Washington Times / October 5, 2009

"You don't need to know. You can't know." That's what Kathy Norris, a 60-year-old grandmother of eight, was told when she tried to ask court officials why, the day before, federal agents had subjected her home to a furious search.

The agents who spent half a day ransacking Mrs. Norris' longtime home in Spring, Texas, answered no questions while they emptied file cabinets, pulled books off shelves, rifled through drawers and closets, and threw the contents on the floor.

The six agents, wearing SWAT gear and carrying weapons, were with - get this- the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. (A: See, all these services are now bully-boy authorities.)

Kathy and George Norris lived under the specter of a covert government investigation for almost six months before the government unsealed a secret indictment and revealed why the Fish and Wildlife Service had treated their family home as if it were a training base for suspected terrorists. Orchids.

That's right. Orchids.

By March 2004, federal prosecutors were well on their way to turning 66-year-old retiree George Norris into an inmate in a federal penitentiary - based on his home-based business of cultivating, importing and selling orchids.

Mrs. Norris testified before the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime this summer. The hearing's topic: the rapid and dangerous expansion of federal criminal law, an expansion that is often unprincipled and highly partisan.

(A: The point of the whole story is…) Mr. Norris ended up spending almost two years in prison because he didn't have the proper paperwork for some of the many orchids he imported. The orchids were all legal - but Mr. Norris and the overseas shippers who had packaged the flowers had failed to properly navigate the many, often irrational, paperwork requirements the U.S. imposed when it implemented an arcane international treaty's new restrictions on trade in flowers and other flora.

You have no idea. People out there have no idea of the THOUSANDS OF NEW LAWS that are put on the books every WEEK. We're all breaking the law somewhere without even knowing it. That's what they did in the Soviet Union. They'd let you go unless they really wanted to pull you in. They'd just watch you for a day, see what laws you broke, you didn't even know there were certain laws for walking on sidewalks and boomff, pull you in. Why are the fish and wildlife guys, why do they have SWAT teams? …with the power to smash doors in and drag people off into the night?

Everybody wants a black uniform. All these young guys who are purposely given the most base culture that any previous culture has ever been given, through the culture creation industry and FED a diet of video games, violent video games, where the object is to be part of a team, the WINNING team, and kill all the other guys who came in your path. Here's there chance now. Here's there chance to get their black gear on, get the machine gun and go stormtrooping and they love it. They love it. They're on the winning team.

It's because the elite wanted to bring this present stage into play. They decided long ago they would need a generation who were like that, who would have no real morals as such. Having no real morals doesn't stop you wanting to bond and belong. They knew that because of gang experience. Gang members, if you join a gang, they become your father; often you haven't had a father, don't know who he was. The gang is your source of protection. Then your soul belongs to the gang. They're your buddies; you'll fight and die for them. That's why they raised a people in degrading circumstances, often from single mums and all the rest of it. Split homes because they said they had to destroy the family unit, gave them a debased culture, the most debased ever. The state, as Bertrand Russell said, is to give them their morals or LACK OF. But the bonding is still there. Once they get into the uniform, they are now a BROTHER, a brother of a SPECIAL elite group. They decided to do that over 20 years ago; raise a generation for THIS PRESENT TIME. That's why it was done. You think it's all happenstance? There is NOTHING in the culture industry that's happenstance, nothing. Nothing comes from the grass roots on anything.

One day we'll all be up on something, some ridiculous law that we hadn't even heard of. Eventually if you wear your leather shoes you'll be in jail. Why do you think they brought in these awful sneakers? …that rot people's feet? It really is, you're wrapping your feet in woven nylon, PLASTIC byproducts of the petrochemical business. Years ago in the 60s at the United Nations, they said that eventually they would eliminate LEATHER because their plan was to eliminate cattle and all meat as well from the diet. That's why. Do you think it's a fashion that just appeared and made nifty through movies and characters and artists on the stage and in the movies? …that you emulate? No. All planned for you.

You don't even know why things happen. You don't know why you dress the way you do. People out there are a dream, a marketers dream, a Bernays dream where you buy stuff for snob appeal. He said 'creating snob appeal' and you become a walking billboard. People don't greet you, they READ you as they read your back, your front and all the rest of it to make sure you've got the PROPER attire for that class. Change society, that's what Bernays says, you change society, then introduce the product. So you PREPARE society and you CHANGE society FOR the product. Done.

It's quite interesting that this new European Union is REALLY going ahead now; they really brainwash the children. I read an article earlier this week where they're going to give mandatory education lessons to give THEIR version of how the European Union came about because there were too many bad rumors out there, they said. So they're going to be taught in school the politically correct version of it. They're no sooner centralized and they're already running ahead with all their laws and rules and regulations. It says in this article from the Times Online.

World Agenda: no role for democracy in search for Europe president
David Charter, Europe Correspondent / From Times Online October 21, 2009

The Reform Act of 1832 swept away dozens of Britain's "rotten boroughs", where comfortable sinecures were left in the hands of a tiny number of voters. The 2009 Lisbon treaty will give an electorate of 27 the power to choose the president of Europe. (A: This is the European empire… 27 people getting to vote in it, none of the public.)

In one of the European Union's greatest missed opportunities — in a long list — the European elite shunned calls to add the spice of democracy to their bureaucracy by making their first president directly elected by its 500 million citizens. (A: No, they're going to do it within themselves, the secret bunch at the top. Then it goes on to mention that there has been a link to Tony Blair.)

This is the job created under the EU's Lisbon treaty that has been linked to Tony Blair, who has declined to confirm his candidacy. (A: Because they're not allowed to mention it to people so he just plays around when he's asked, is it you that's getting it?)

Nothing is democratic in this system. The Club of Rome said the same thing. They looked at all the possible systems of the world and they had concluded that the collectivist, meaning socialist, communist system, was the best way to rule the people. That's what we got. Here we are folks. Here we are.

Talking about the culture industry, you know, I used to watch when I was young the different, crazy things that came out from the States. It was bad in Britain but I was too young to understand what was going on except these guys were getting presented as pop stars and they'd be interviewed as they literally fell off chairs, stoned. Then the broadcasters would just have this tee-hee thing which meant, isn't this kind of naughty folks; isn't it naughty? That's what really was coming down from the TOP down to the public, 'oh this is a naughty thing to do'. Every youngster caught on to it and then all the older ones were stoned out of their skulls before I knew it. That's how things really are. But when I saw some of the American stuff, especially the old Saturday Night Live, I thought, this is so zany and bizarre, these guys are just flying on something. That's exactly what they were. They were flying on cocaine. Some of them talked about it years later; they went backstage every time and just snort, snort, snort. Then they come out jumping up and down on the stage and screaming and doing all this silly stuff that the idiots as an audience thought were funny.

This article is from the Times Online.

Senior broadcasters on cocaine 'praised for creative genius'
Adam Sherwin / From The Times October 21, 2009

Broadcasting executives addicted to cocaine are routinely praised by bosses for their "creative genius", a former BBC producer told MPs. (A: Members of Parliament.)

Sarah Graham, who worked on children's programmes for the corporation and took cocaine for nine years, said use of the drug remained widespread among senior media executives and taking it helped to boost their careers.

Appearing before a Home Affairs Select Committee inquiry into the cocaine trade, Ms Graham, 40, said that she had been offered the drug on her first day at the corporation by a Radio 5 Live presenter. "The producer and presenter took me to a Soho media watering-hole after the show. I had a few glasses of champagne," she said. "They asked if I wanted to go to the toilet and do some cocaine. I'm ashamed to say I didn't know much beyond the hype and glamour about the drug and I said yes."

Ms Graham, now an addiction counsellor, said that many television executives continued to use the drug beyond their 20s. But as it warped their character, and their behaviour became more erratic, they were often praised for their off-the-wall brilliance. (A: You act crazy and folk think you're a genius. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've got a caller from South Korea, Suzanne. Are you there Suzanne?

Suzanne: Hi. Thanks for taking my call. I just finished reading your Cutting Through series and it's excellent. The reason I'm calling, I also just finished reading a book, The Dark Side of Christian History by Helen Ellerbe. Are you familiar with it?

Alan: I don't think I've seen that one, no.

Suzanne: I got is as gift from my brother and it was very eye opening. It's about the crusades, the inquisition, the witch hunts and it's amazing how history repeats itself. Much of it here we are seeing today was experienced by those people back then, which of course the inquisition spanned 600 years or whatever. The priest class of that time is now the scientist and big pharma and the bureaucrats of today.

Alan: That's right.

Suzanne: If you don't believe in global warming, you don't believe in their vaccines, you don't believe their story of 9/11, you don't believe in their AIDS scam… instead of them labeling you a witch or a heretic, they label you a terrorist or mentally ill. It's quite amazing.

Alan: Or a denier. You're a climate denier. You're quite right. I've said that for years; the new priesthoods are the white-clad scientific priests. They are just front men of course for the big corporations that fund them, all the big pharma companies and all the rest of it. You're quite right. It's the same system. It's more perfected. Look at the incredible financing… we've got a bigger team of military to interrogate the whole planet here than the Catholic Church ever did with its inquisition. It's a terrifying thing to look at but you're quite right. Not only that, they are going after the young too to make sure that they don't have any, what they'll call, politically incorrect ideas. Everyone has to come out with the same stuff; just like George Orwell put in 1984, as he's being tortured, so that you'll say 2 and 2 does not make 4, it will be whatever they tell you it is.

Suzanne: Yep. 2 plus 2 equals 5.

Alan: That's it.

Suzanne: There is this one quote by Thomas Jefferson. It's in the book. It says, "In 1785 Thomas Jefferson wrote,

"Millions of innocent men, women and children, since the introduction of Christianity have been burned, tortured, fined, imprisoned yet we have not advanced one inch towards uniformity. What has been the affect of such coercion? To make one half of the world fools and the other half hypocrites."

So true.

Alan: Yes. Oh it is. There's no doubt about it. It's amazing too that when they have a world under their belt, they've got to find problems within ALL of society. The Soviet did the same when they closed their borders of the greater Soviet Empire. You've got to find enemies within. Everyone is a potential enemy. That's the exact system they came up with at the Club of Rome for this new global world order. To maintain power at the top, they've got to create or find enemies. It's a war OF terror on the public we're witnessing right now.

Suzanne: Yeah. Very scary. It's coming to Korea too.

Alan: Yes it is. It's coming from all over the place. I was watching the problems over there they've had with their unions trying to get work, etc. One guy set himself on fire in the video I watched there. It's a WORLD WIDE thing because the same big corporate holders, these internationalists, have factories across the whole planet and big businesses. They simply move once a cheaper place comes along; they just move lock, stock and barrel and YOU collapse behind them. That's what's done there.

Suzanne: Thank you so much for taking my call Alan.

Alan: Thanks for calling and you take care.

That’s the brave new world that’s coming in and people WON’T believe it even as it’s happening to them and believe you me folks, it is happening to you. They just haven’t knocked on your door yet or taken it off by the hinges.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada where HAARP and the weather modification is taking effect, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Europe offers to cut emissions 95% by 2050 if deal reached at Copenhagen" by Ian Traynor (guardian.co.uk) - Oct. 21, 2009.

"Statement on Signing the Framework Convention on Climate Change - 1992-06-12" [Bush Senior signed US into Climate-Sustainable-Development Treaty] (bushlibrary.tamu.edu).

"Criminalizing everyone" by Brian W. Walsh (washingtontimes.com) - Oct. 5, 2009.

"World Agenda: no role for democracy in search for Europe president" by David Charter, The Times - Oct. 21, 2009.

"Senior broadcasters on cocaine 'praised for creative genius' " by Adam Sherwin, The Times - Oct. 21, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 26, 2009 (#437)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 26, 2009:
Conspiracy Theory, Really? The Common Query:
"Everyone Looks for a Conspiracy Theory,
Ignoring Daily Announcements which Should Make Them Leery,
Citizens Under Scrutiny by Those Who 'Serve' Them,
Black-Clad Battalions Should at Least Unnerve Them,
But Their World is Chaos-Fear-Trivia, Bimbos, Boobs,
Solemnity, Hysteria, Beamed from Plasma-Ray Tubes,
As Long as Routines Go On Unimpeded,
They Play in the Now, Don't See What is Needed,
They'll Wish They Participated, Wish They Knew,
Wish Others Would Help When They Come for You"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 26, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 26, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 26th 2009. For the newcomers, look into .com web site. You'll find in there hundreds of talks I've given in the past in audio format for download and you can peruse these at your leisure. Also bookmark the other sites I have up there. You should use these other sites occasionally too, especially if you find sticking when you are downloading the audio. That means that too many people are going into the main site, the .com site, at the same time. You can also choose from [sites listed above].

I always start off by saying – even though times are coming down and things are hard for everyone – this show is brought to you by you, yourselves. No one is backing me here. There is no organization. There are no companies using me to front for them. There's no NGO behind me. There's no foundation behind me. It's up to you. The advertising you here on the show pays straight to RBN. I don't even handle it. I don't even see it. It goes from the companies that advertise straight to RBN. It pays for this air time. It pays the technicians, staff and bills at RBN. You can keep me going by going into the site, seeing what I have for sale. There's not enough there. I never have time to do anything else to be honest with you. I definitely could make a lot of money if I just churned out the books. However, with the way it is here, I spend so much time trying to find out what's really relevant to tell people, I don't have time for that.

So it's up to you to keep me going. You can donate as well to me. How to do it is on the web site. [Options listed above.] It's up to you. You can also do your homework and find out which is the cheapest anyway because some companies charge more than others, quite a bit more. So it's up to you if you want to do it. It's important to keep me going because believe you me, it's always the same people, the same FEW people who donate on any regular basis at all. Everyone else expects everyone else to do the donating for them. That's how it works in today's society where everyone has been taught that everything is somehow free. Nothing is free. All the stuff out there that you think is free is for data collection so that they can have profiles on YOU… with your Facebook and all the rest of it.

Your mainstream media, that you think is free, is there to give you utter propaganda and bring you through into a new system and keep you quite at the same time by all the trivia they feed you and the misleading information and the outright lies as well. So look into the site, see how to donate to me and keep it going. Those who just get disks burned and passed to them because they prefer to listen on their CD players – I don't blame them – I'll give you the address when I come back… where you can get in touch with me if you want to help out yourselves. Back in a moment after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. Folk who get the disks burned and passed to them from people who have computers to play in their CD players, you can always write to me at [address above]. I really do need you contributions to keep me out of the hole and the hole is getting pretty deep.

Over the weekend I was thinking about something that I've said so often that it's become almost monotonous for me to even repeat it. The fact is you don't HAVE to look into the way-out conspiracies and conspiracy sites to try and find out what's going on. You're living through what's going on. You're living through it, the signs and the symptoms of what's going on AFFECT you. The laws that are put out there to take control of your lives basically are affecting you. You are living THROUGH what's happening. You're seeing your own government participate in the furtherance of tyranny… and it's OPEN. It's in your FACE. The only thing you don't have really is the ultimate group that finances all the politicians and puts them in power coming out and saying, 'Yes we do it' or 'Yes I did it.' Most people truly want someone to come out and say – it's got to be on television too, it wouldn't work any other way. It's got to be a well-known face coming out on television saying, 'Yes we did it' before they are happy. Before that happens, no matter if they have 100% evidence that their lives are being changed DRASTICALLY, they won't really do anything about it. They are still waiting for somebody to confess. That's why conspiracy sites are put up. Remember too, conspiracy theories and so on and theorists were put out by counterintelligence to pooh-pooh anybody who's trying to dig into what's happening and who's behind it. Unfortunately a lot of conspiracy theorists grab that title and run with it; they're very proud of it.

You're living through the greatest changes that have ever happened in hundreds of years… HUNDREDS of years. One of the Rockefellers talked about that 30 years ago, that the system coming in would be the greatest upheaval the world had ever seen since the beginning of the industrial revolution. They said the same thing with the internet, that would add to that. Well, they knew then that they were going to use the internet NOT to help you, mainly to confuse you, but primarily to get you hooked on it so they could watch and monitor everything that you're doing. They knew the society they wanted to bring in.

A long time ago, a long, long time ago, when certain societies officially came out into the open, again, under fronts, they had certain fronts set up that were licensed to operate, to exist and always misleading the public and always coming out with a champion for the public, such as the Fabian Society that I've talked about before. That's ONE organization connected to a myriad of other branches that make the big tree of life of the controlling system on the planet. The Fabian Society HAD to get, just like the communist system, it had to get the workers behind them. Many people today still think the Fabian Society is an organization out there to get workers and laborers rights. They still do think that. Look who set it up. At least look who was set up to be seen by the public. Their list is on their own web site, of famous people. What they don't like telling you, except if you go into other books, is who funded them. They were funded, again, by this parallel government of foundations and people like the Astor family amongst many others.

Getting the people behind them is important, so they always come out and say I and WE speak for YOU. We care about you. They say everything that's self-evident to everyone.   We love that because we're so used to lies and evasion from politicians that we jump into these things and before you know it, they've got a massive following. They'll keep that up for a little while and you'll be even more stuck to them thinking 'They really are speaking for us; I BELONG to them; they are ours.' All the while, they are actually putting a part of a plan in, just one part of a plan. Each foundation has its fronts. Each one has its AREA in the great big plan, the Great Work. Part of it tied in directly with a world society, a world government. That's why THEY were given the job and set up to get the workers on board for world government.

They had international socialism, which is a nice term for international communism. The leaders of today's Fabian Society still belong to the Internationalists Socialists Party AS they are members of the Fabian Society LIKE Tony Blair, the ex-Prime Minister of Britain and Mr. Brown, the present Prime Minister of Britain. They discussed in the 1800s the problems that they would face because they had to bring in a multicultural society to destroy the existing nations. That was imperative.

Their big boss, the Royal Institute of International Affairs that was set up really as the final stage of the creation of 2 other previous organizations: The Rhodes Foundation – that should be Rhodes and Rothschild Foundation because Rothschild funded it; that's in their own records, co-founder – and they merged it with the Lord Milner Society, another branch they'd set up to deal with another part. The Milner Group also was made up of all the big banking families and international banking families based in London primarily, although they had other ones abroad. Then they set up for NON British Commonwealth countries what they call the Council on Foreign Relations, which was the same as the Royal Institute of International Affairs. They meet together annually and sometimes more than once a year to bring in this wonderful multicultural society. They also KNEW that problems towards the end, depending on how fast they had to bring in the immigrants, they'd have terrible outcomes of massive influxes of vastly different peoples, different cultures. They'd have to HAMMER society through laws and the threats to make everyone just accept everyone else and accept the way it was going to be.

If you go back into the writings and try and get the books out of there, for those who don't have them, put out by the Rockefeller Foundation on behalf – he did the funding for all the books for the Royal Institute of International Affairs – try to get a hold of their annual meetings because they publish them every year. You'll find every major politician, from every country that you've ever heard of, attends. Generally those in charge of their Treasury Departments attend this non governmental organization; this non governmental organization that has the biggest think tanks on the planet working on crucial elements of the upcoming society which they are guiding into being. You'll find they have members always within the current party in power and they have members within the current bureaucracies in federal and state organizations. They also have many EX politicians and high-level bureaucrats and Prime Ministers and Presidents working in what Professor Carroll Quigley – who was the historian for this group – called it 'The Parallel Government.' Quigley was all for this big agenda.

You go into again, this one part of it, the Fabian Society to get the working class on board. You find that the founders have a stained glass window set up in the house, the big building that was initially their place and you can find that on the internet. You find likenesses of the founders at the founding meeting HAMMERING the world, the whole world, on an anvil, like blacksmiths would hammer metal into shape. That's what it symbolizes, hammering the world into shape. They said that the nation-state would have to GO from the very beginning, internationalism ONLY.

They planned 3 main trading blocs… 3 main trading blocs, the same ones that Karl Marx wrote about in the 1800s as well. See, these guys all knew each other very, very well. They set up organizations to bring in a United Americas. That was the job of the Council on Foreign Relations and another specialized branch called the Trilateral Commission. For the Pacific areas including Australia and New Zealand, China, Japan and others, they set up the Institute for Pacific studies they called it, a front group for the same organization. I'll go through some of that and the fallout of it all as we get hammered into shape after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just as always giving a little background to something before I just read it off. If you don't understand the background, the whys of things, you won't really understand what's happening today. I was going through some of the Fabian Society, The Royal Institute of International Affairs that are really powerful organizations that set up specialized branches to make the preparatory stages for 3 world conglomerates you might say, of BLOCS of countries. They spent 100 years at that. 100 YEARS to set it up. Literally, they were into geo-politics with their members IN power in every generation, getting the wars going, getting things going so that they could eventually amalgamate everything together at the end.

They discussed how they'd bring in excessive multiculturalism. When immigrants come into a country they generally drift in, in bits and pieces and they amalgamate into the culture of the country. That was also the big lie they put out about the European Union. These guys were behind that; they drafted it up in fact, the same organization. They said that you'll keep your culture and your way of life and your sovereignty too. And they lied and lied and lied for about 30-40 years about that. Now we see this monster up at the top and its run in secrecy at the top and really it would be as well as getting run from Mars it's so remote from all the countries that it lords over, this tower of Babel.

Here's one of the articles that's come out, probably on queue, at the right time. They do love to admit sometimes how they've done things and it's almost like a slap in the face of the public like 'didn't you notice?' I've mentioned before that they guys that they pick to go into the top as Prime Ministers or Presidents are CHOSEN years and years and years before the public ever hear of them. They are vetted and trained for the little role that they will have. They are guaranteed in fact, I'm sure, probably 15-20 years before we ever hear their names that they will be made President or Prime Minister and here's what you are going to do when you get in. That far back because we are living a script, a well written, rehearsed script where they've gone over every possible backlash and how to deal with it. That's how things are done in the military. If we did do this, the enemy will do that; how will we overcome that? This is all done on the drawing board over and over again so that they can always counter opposition.

This is from The Mail Online. Britain is the flagship for us all to follow. Whatever happens there, believe you me, IS happening elsewhere at the same time. Other countries like Canada are much more quiet about it. It's almost more arrogant I should say because we are really a colony of London, a colony. The colonial leaders really lorded over the public with a form of disdain, a snobbish disdain. They hated telling the public anything at all. Well, they still DO in the Commonwealth countries. It says here…

(Alan: Tony Blair, who's left as everyone knows and the other Fabian Brown is now in. Tony is in the running to be the first President of this monstrosity, this EU super Parliament, this totalitarian system. Straw is his right hand man.)

'Dishonest' Blair and Straw accused over secret plan for multicultural UK (A: Now why didn't they say this when he was the Prime Minister of Britain?)
By Simon Walters, The Mail Online / 25th October 2009

Jack Straw and Tony Blair 'dishonestly' concealed a plan to allow in more immigrants and make Britain more multi-cultural because they feared a public backlash if it was made public, it has been claimed. (A: So they made it secret.)

The allegation was made after a former Labour adviser said the Government (A: That's the left wing supposedly.) opened up UK borders partly to humiliate Right-wing opponents of immigration. (A: If you're right wing under the definition in Britain, it means you're a nationalist. It means you believe in sovereign nationalism. That's what it now means.)

Andrew Neather, who worked for Mr Straw when he was Home Secretary, and as a speech writer for Mr Blair (A: He's really more important than Blair in some ways because the guy who writes for Mr. Blair, I would say he's definitely more important.), claimed a secret Government report in 2000 called for mass immigration to change Britain's cultural make-up forever.

Mr Neather said there was a 'driving political purpose' behind Labour's decision to allow in hundreds of thousands of migrants to plug gaps in the labour market.

He said the stance was foreshadowed by a report by Mr Blair's Performance and Innovation Unit (PIU) think-tank (A: That's a private organization.), which said the nation would benefit from more migrants. (A: So here again, you have this strange association of private think-tanks, like the US is run by the RAND Corporation, telling Prime Ministers and so on what to do and think and how to go about it. It sounds so innocent too, Performance and Innovation Unit. Who would think its job was to eradicate all sovereignty and any trace of a British history, for instance? …and every trace of any other alternate or previous British way of living? That's what it is of course. And you're looking for conspiracies… and people come out and admit they did things. They are doing it all the time. Back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from an article from the Mail Online to do with a deliberate policy, which is basically telling you it was designed to eradicate British tradition and British history in a sense. If you want to conquer the world, you must do this in every country.

You must eradicate the things that would bind people together and fight totalitarian systems. When no one has anything in common with anyone else and the culture is already ¾ destroyed – it's been done through TV and movies and God knows what else for years and years and years until you're not sure what you are at all, that's the whole point of it; the BBC is very good at that – there is no one to stand up together and fight. If they do stand up about anything and demand their rights or to keep tradition… you can't even put a Christmas decoration up or anything to do with religion and Christianity in lots of the big cities across the UK anymore; it's forbidden, forbidden by law. But it's okay to have everyone else's cultures up there and everyone else's religions up there just to get the tension rising a bit more. That's what they do at the top… and then they deal with the fallout.

They already have gangs, Asian gangs and different gangs all fighting each other for turf in certain big cities. There are lots of articles out now and I won't even bother reading them because this is all intentional. Of course it would happen. It's been encouraged as the last of the old British system goes down the tubes to bring in the new. It won't be some nice happy multi-cultural society - I keep telling people that - that will somehow emerge out of it. We are being GUIDED THROUGH IT. We are guided through IN to it, through it and we'll get guided out of it at the end. They are going to give you a NEW subservient culture, not some natural amalgamation but a designed subservient, obedient culture. This is all about obedience ultimately… guided that way. And the public are looking for conspiracy theories.

We see the people who sign the laws. We see them going into their meetings. We see what organizations they belong to and what they advocate. All of this is so far outside the political field even though they are mainly politicians. They are all run by external think-tanks, PRIVATE organizations that are funded by foundations that are owned by international bankers, that the public have no ability to reach the politicians, not that they would be listened to anyway. There is no one in politics today that hasn't been vetted years before you ever hear of them on any party whatsoever. The party is the greatest con game ever devised. It's the world because it's happening all across Britain and Europe and everywhere else.

As the world goes through all this strife, as cultures clash and there will be ones who ply for dominance over the old, and you'll have the gangs fighting each other which is wonderful for the police state because they point around and say 'Well, it's not this group fighting that group. No, it's British people fighting British people so ALL British are suspect and you've all got to be treated like children.' That's how it's handled, as simply as that. As it happens across the world, remember, remember… the world being HAMMERED on an anvil by those who decided they should rule it. And remember too, remember the old dictum that Mazzini, another world socialist said, 'We have to destroy their cultures in order to rule them.' He said that in the 1800s. It's amazing but people never really get it. They are always looking for some incredible alien to come in and admit that 'Yes, we did it; we from Zeta Reticuli where we crawled out of a swamp all scaly' or whatever.

We see the people. We see the liars every day. We have access to the organizations to which they belong. You can see what they are sworn TO, what they have SWORN to. But you are looking for hidden conspiracies and you still want to believe politicians and you will the next time they put some puppet in front of you. Amazing. Their disbelief, DISBELIEF that this is actually happening, helps this to steamroll ahead. They can't BELIEVE it. It's that easy.

In Europe, the New York Times… The New York Times watches Europe because it knows darn well that the US, Canada and all of Latin America eventually will be amalgamated. Remember, the last signing for at least Canada, the US, Mexico and I think Chile as well takes place by the leaders – I hate to say that terrible word – of the countries in 2010 and everything is technically integrated LEGALLY. Then you'll see the machinery unroll month by month, year by year until we are the same as Europe.

Ever-Present Surveillance Rankles the British Public
(A: Well no kidding.)
By SARAH LYALL / New York Times / Published: October 24, 2009

POOLE, England — It has become commonplace to call Britain a “surveillance society,” a place where security cameras lurk at every corner, giant databases keep track of intimate personal details and the government has extraordinary powers to intrude into citizens’ lives. (A: This is a blueprint really; it’s a reflection of where we are here.)

A report in 2007 by the lobbying group Privacy International placed Britain in the bottom five countries for its record on privacy and surveillance, on a par with Singapore. (A: Then it gives you an article telling you how bad it actually is… right down to your local level. Remember they lie about this at every level too. ‘Oh it’s only for the federal government to do.’ Then eventually every one has got access to all the data, even your local council, who sends spies out, full time, to follow you around and watch you. That’s what this article is about. I’ll let people read that for themselves.)

This here falls in with the very first story I was talking about. The 3 trading blocs that Marx and all the other boys envisaged they would have at the end. I talked about the Institute for Pacific Studies, as they called it. Then the other one, the Institute for Pacific Relations, as it was called, which is just the CFR for the far East because that’s who ran it, all the members of the Council on Foreign Relations/The Royal Institute of International Affairs. They set up the process to amalgamate this by putting their guys all over the Far East and intergenerationally they’re bringing them together NOW as I said they would years ago. I said it on this program before many times. I’ve said too, they’d lump Australia and New Zealand in with China and Japan and others.

Asian leaders eye EU-style bloc
Saturday, 24 October 2009 / BBC News

Asian leaders meeting in Thailand are discussing plans to "lead the world" by forming an EU-style community by 2015. (A: Actually, most of the little signatory agreements have already been done over the years. This is just to get you used to it, to the public; a primer.)

Japan's Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama argued nations should take advantage of the region's more rapid recovery from the recession than the West.

"It would be meaningful for us to have the aspiration that East Asia is going to lead the world," he said.

Leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) are meeting other regional heads at Cha-Am beach resort.

Increased integration

The community would involve the 10-members of Asean with regional partners (A: That was set up, by the way, by the CFR of the Far East.) China, Japan, South Korea, India, Australia and New Zealand, Japanese officials have said.

Officials said the East Asian nations would carry out a feasibility study for a huge free trade zone. (A: That’s already been done years ago. This is just a primer as I say, or to get you used to the idea that it’s coming quickly now.)

But there was debate at the summit over whether the community would also include (A: Listen to this.) the United States.

Increased integration has been a recurring theme of the meetings in Thailand, as the region seeks to capitalise on its recovery from financial turmoil. (A: That’s just a little bit of filler they put in there to throw you off.)

On Friday, the leaders officially launched a new human rights watchdog.

Correspondents say the new commission is in part a response to criticism that the region is soft on human rights abuses by member nations such as Burma. (A: They used the same sort of stuff on different places in Europe.)

Anti-government protesters (A: If you are against any policy of government now, you are ‘anti-government’. That was used in the Soviet system… so welcome to the world Soviet.) forced the cancellation of the previous attempt to hold the summit in April.

Around 18,000 troops and dozens of armoured vehicles have been deployed to ensure this summit passes off smoothly - with another 18,000 on standby or on duty in Bangkok.

That’s democracy in action again. Everything is going to plan. People ask me all the time are they way behind? I say no, they are right on queue. They run it like a business plan. This will happen in the year 1914, we’ll finish around 1918. We’ll have a few things happen in between it and then we’ll have something about 1939 to 1945. Then we’ll have something in Korea to start off that one. Then maybe Viet Nam, that will amalgamate all those little tribes together to fight the Americans, then they will fit into the world order as one country. And that’s what happened. That’s how the world is run. That’s how geo-politics works, a big plan. How can you be in geo-politics if you have no final outcome of your plan? Of course they have it.

So they are using the same stuff to bring in this already set up – it’s already set up; the machinery is all set up – for this bloc in the Far East. Then you’ll have the European bloc and a bloc for the Americas just like they said at the beginning, under a world government. All these blocs really will be like provinces with a provincial leader. Everything is going absolutely to plan. And they tell you about it. They DO publish stuff right in front of your face. If you notice, there’s never any feedback from the public. The public are not involved in this plan. We are just the cattle that are moved from one field to another. That’s the reality of the bogus democracy you’ve all had rammed down your throats all your lives.

We’ve all been looted again by the bankers. Remember too, this organization has all the big bankers on its board. They set up the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Their own SONS came out of university and were the first agents to bring in the world society. Some of them actually started wars and Professor Carroll Quigley, who was their historian, gives their names and how they did it. No conspiracy book. Quigley wasn’t some nutty professor. He was right up there in the US State Department. He was up there in the Pentagon giving lectures on geo-politics and cultures and what works in history and what doesn’t work if they wanted to pull it off again.

As I say, we’ve been looted by the bankers again and it tells you who the little boys in power really serve as they take YOUR money and loot YOU and pay back the bankers who have already looted the cash and stashed it somewhere. They call it ‘money heaven’ but none of us have got the key, just them. They get rewarded for looting us because that’s how you do it in this upcoming society. They give you 50 years, sometimes 100 at the most, but generally 50 years of accumulation of real goods or wealth and then they steal it from you. The government then covers their ass and makes you pay up to fill the big holes in the tax base that’s been looted for a few generations. Standard, standard procedure.

This article is from The Mail Online. It tells you how they are going after everyone else at the top. The ones at the top go after everyone else to steal and rob from you in this age of totalitarianism.

Secret court seizes £3.2bn from elderly... and even forces furious families to pay to access own bank account
3,000 complaints in first 18 months of new system
By Jason Lewis, Mail On Sunday Whitehall Editor / 25th October 2009

A secret court is seizing the assets of thousands of elderly and mentally impaired people and turning control of their lives over to the State - against the wishes of their relatives.

The draconian measures are being imposed by the little-known Court of Protection, set up two years ago to act in the interests of people suffering from Alzheimer's or other mental incapacity. (A: OR just being old, the elderly.)

The court hears about 23,000 cases a year - always in private - involving people deemed unable to make their own decisions. Using far-reaching powers, the court has so far taken control of more than £3.2billion of assets. (A: That’s not a bad take isn’t it?)

The cases involve civil servants from the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG), which last year took £23million in fees directly from the bank accounts of those struck down by mental illness, involved in accidents or suffering from dementia.

By the way, Canada has got this too. If you end up in an old folks home, as they call them. I call them exit centers, not sunny fields or green fields or whatever they like to call them. Even for a week or two, if you are recuperating from an operation or whatever, if you end up in them and you have no living will, they grab your property and your bank account FOR GOOD, even though you might be getting out in a month. They prefer that you just simply die there, which most folk do. That's how bad it is. They just steal from you. Theft is okay as long as the big guys with the black uniforms who want to kill people are on their side and they are. They are on their side. They are all over the place, on their side. Amazing eh?

The people down below are busy running and scurrying and working and the rest of the time they are zonked out in front of the TV sets or boozing it up trying to forget how miserable their lives are. Quite something. Rather than go up to the bankers, that's what they go after… folk with a few bucks in the bank, maybe an old rickety house and that's not all. Now they are going after your safety deposit boxes all over the place. Back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning under this new world system, this new totalitarian system where internal armies have been formed out of police who all want to wear jackboots and smash through windows like ninjas. They've grown up with games and now they've got the authority of the State to do what they want and they're doing it. It's going to get worse and worse and worse.

People thought that they were safe by having their valuables put into safety deposit boxes. After all, is there anything stable about the paper currency? Well, we've all been taught NO, of course not. Traditionally people have often done that. If they've got gold, silver, jewelry or whatever that is worth something and holds some kind of value, SOME kind of value, regardless if it goes up or down, you don't lose it all hopefully. They put it in safety deposit boxes. Well, they are going after that now too, under the guise that most folk, you see, that's really what this spiel is from the news and their PR firm. Remember, all of these organizations including police societies and special teams all go through public relations which are PROPAGANDA relations, to justify what they do. So this article…

The raid that rocked the Met: (A: Metropolitan London.)
Why gun and drugs op on 6,717 safety deposit boxes could cost taxpayer a fortune (A: It's amazing everything costs the tax payers a fortune because there are so many law suits coming out of it now.)
More than 500 officers(A: This is an army.) smashed their way into thousands of safety-deposit boxes (A: And this is what the spiel was…) to retrieve guns, drugs and millions of pounds of criminal assets. At least, that's what was supposed to happen.
Adrian Levy and Cathy Scott-Clark investigate.
By ADRIAN LEVY and CATHY SCOTT-CLARK / 24th October 2009

(A: This is the lead up.) The Finchley Road is one of the busiest thoroughfares heading out of London. It leads traffic north past Lord's Cricket Ground and the multimillion-pound houses of some of the country's richest hedge-fund managers all the way to the M1. At three in the afternoon it's always pretty slow going, but on this particular summer Monday the traffic was almost at a standstill.

This was partly because the normal three lanes going north had been cut down to one. But it was also because of drivers slowing down to a crawl so they could gawp at the massive police operation unfolding on a busy corner of the road.

Police vehicles - both cars and menacing armoured trucks (A: This is how they do raids today on safety deposit boxes. Did you see these going into any of the banks to find out what THEY were up to? No. You never will either.) - jammed up two lanes. (A: Two lanes of armored trucks and police vehicles and 500 cops.) Dozens of armed officers in bulletproof vests were standing ready, waiting to be called inside an anonymous-looking building. From the sheer manpower and weapons on display it looked like the capital was under another terrorist attack.

But while this was the Metropolitan Police's most ambitious operation in its 180-year history, it had nothing to do with national security.

It was to do with partly PR, public relations. They want you to say that ‘Everyone who’s got one of these boxes is a crook; they must be a crook or otherwise they’d be in a bank, obviously, in cash.’ They go to the bank and it doesn’t exist in fact, it’s just numbers, but that doesn’t matter. Reality doesn’t matter in this world anymore. It says here that they found a gun in ONE of them, in all these hundreds and hundreds of boxes but only 10% maybe, 10% of all those they wrecked and ruined and confiscated MAYBE from criminal proceeds. The rest of the people, 90% of them have to put down £50,000 to sue them to get anything back. They are stealing EVERYTHING, but it’s lawful. They ARE the law. They make the laws.

From Hamish and myself in a very, very continuously wet Ontario, Canada now that they’ve altered the jet stream and spray the bejesus out of the sky, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

" 'Dishonest' Blair and Straw accused over secret plan for multicultural UK" by Simon Walters (mailonsunday.co.uk) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"Britons Weary of Surveillance in Minor Cases" by Sarah Lyall (nytimes.com) - Oct. 24, 2009.

"Asian leaders eye EU-style bloc" (news.bbc.co.uk) - Oct. 24, 2009.

"Secret court seizes £3.2bn from elderly... and even forces furious families to pay to access own bank account" by Jason Lewis (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"The raid that rocked the Met: Why gun and drugs op on 6,717 safety deposit boxes could cost taxpayer a fortune" by Adrian Levy and Cathy Scott-Clark (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 24, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 27, 2009 (#438)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 27, 2009:
Wanted -- Professional Psychopaths a Shoe-in, Sell Your Soul to the U.N.:
"How You Arrive at 'Your' Decision?
Obedience to Authority and 'Fact' Repetition,
An Organized Front of 'Those in the Know'
Decide the Direction Your Conclusions will Go,
Professionals Seeking Status/Wealth, Ego Desire,
Are Chosen by Controllers, Careful of Hire,
Campaigns Designed to 'Create Public Awareness'
Means Horrors to Scare, then Offers to Save Us,
You Must Give Up All Freedoms, Be Guided, Mind You,
By Government Keepers Over Planned Global Zoo"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 27, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 27, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 27, 2009. For newcomers, you should look into .com. That’s the main web site. Bookmark the other sites I have there listed on the front page when you scroll down and you can use those for future use when the big ones go down which they do once in a while. That way you can always get the latest audio shows. [Sites listed above.] I’m always on the lookout for more translators so don’t be shy, don’t be afraid. You can always try your hand and see how you do. Get in touch with me and we’ll see how you get on.

Remember, this is the only show out there I think that doesn’t promote some goods or sell some products. I don’t terrify you and say here’s the solution. It’s up to you the listeners to keep me going. There’s no NGO group backing me. There’s no foundation backing me. The ads on the show are paid by the advertisers straight to the station Republic Broadcasting Network for their air time and staff, equipment and bills for broadcasting this all across the place. So you can keep me going by buying that which I have for sale on my web site. There’s not much there because I don’t have time to do anything else. Even today I’m stacking wood before the snow really hits and it hits in a big way. It’s been raining for months here. It rained all summer pretty well. So it’s a really muddy, messy, cold job. This is the coldest summer for years.

Basically, you can keep me going by buying that which I have for sale or you can donate to me. [Options listed above.] Some people just send cash. It cuts out the guy with the triple chins, who gives himself a pay raise every month or so, at your expense. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them and lots of you do out there; you don't like computers and I don't blame you. We know what it's all for, for monitoring us, etc and for the brave new world they're a bringing in with the total surveillance network. Total means total by the way. You can always write to me at [address above].

Really, we're well underway. We've been underway to this whole new, brave new world scenario our whole lives and most folk were oblivious to it, completely oblivious to it. They thought the system they were born into was quite natural because everyone else thought so too. As you all nodded your heads towards each other thinking how normal you were, the big boys at the top who gave you the whole culture and plied your minds with predictive programming, laughed up their sleeves. They knew exactly the kind of system they were bringing in. It used to be more incremental in changes but now, since 2001 - which is the century of change to kick it off - this is the century they planned and talked about in academia for 50-odd, 60 years and it's now underway. So it's one crisis after another. Crisis creation, shock-and-awe. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, the big system which everyone thinks is normal - even when it seems a bit scary at times - and who believe that they are all in the hands of the best people that money can buy, the big experts at the top. In a sense they are quite right. They are the best mouthpieces that money can buy and they are all bought by the same people. It's just that the public don't know that.

Bernays went through this whole technique. Remember, Bernays really got his information from previous generations of particular characters who had been studying populations for centuries and how to motivate them, how to change society, how to sell your wares regardless of what you were selling. Bernays even went so far as to sell wars literally, sell wars. He sold one to the US and got the whole US involved in it. He was very proud for doing it too. Just so they could get rid of a democratically elected President of a South American country, who actually wanted to share the wealth from the one industry they had which was fruit.

The big company that ran it all hired Bernays and he said they were all communists. He even put a front news group out there. Path News was a well-known one in the movie theaters before television came along. He came out with his own one. Of course, no one knew it was his. It was dedicated to showing all of the terrible communist invasions south of the border. He and the President of the US went along with it because they really wanted something to happen. Presidents love little wars to look good and brave. Sure enough, they went in there, got rid of the democratically elected leader, staffed the place and actually filled it full of books, even Marxist books all on the tables and everything else. Utter nonsense. The company paid Bernays very handsomely for that. All the folk that were killed, were just collateral damage eh? That's never changed. Everything pretty well in life is managed. All the upcoming things will be managed too because they are all planned in advance.

If you want to know all the little gaps in history and the whys behind wars, you MUST go into Professor Carroll Quigley's books, The Anglo-American Establishment and Tragedy and Hope. He goes into the set up of the Cecil Rhodes Foundation, to the Milner Group, to the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR. He was the official historian. He was up there teaching Pentagon boys and the State Department of the US. He was a real bigwig. He picked Rhodes Scholars for the US, like Bill Clinton, and he fills in the reasons - from their own records of the Council on Foreign Relations - to fill in these gaps in history to show how through CONFLICT, managed conflicts, they would get the outcomes they desired and eventually bring in a world government.

The power of the mind has always been understood, especially the collective. What they HATE is the individual because you are unpredictable. You don't fall under their spell and you might be able to influence people. That's why they said at the United Nations, the greatest enemies to their version… remember, they meant a certain thing by world 'peace,' same as the communists do. They said they'd have to eliminate individuality. That's why you've had 'group think' in the schools and 'consensus building' and everyone must come to the same conclusions OR you're SHUNNED by the class. That kind of stuff. Then the 'teamwork' in businesses, they use corporations to also influence their employees, for the greater society. Team work, you're all part of a team. The team has no use with individuals. You're all part of the TEAM, teamwork.

Now, the whole planet is on board under the expert guidance as Bernays predicted because he had a big plan for about 50-60 years in making this system with the big think tank boys across the world. He had a terrible, terrible opinion of the general public. The more that they obeyed all of the con games that he put out there - under advertising, propaganda and so on, via governments and private businesses - the more he despised the public… for literally copying and doing exactly what he wanted them to do. Opinions, propagandized to them, became the public's opinions, the sort of political correctness of their time. It's a PERFECT art today… especially because we've got all this massive media, instant communication. We all get the same stories AT the same time.

Through conflict and shock-and-awe they would bring across this whole new world system of what Charles Galton Darwin said in his book, The Next Million Years. A man who was praised by all the established newspapers, the Barons of Media of course - if you ever see the book with the original copy of the paper bounder going around the hard copy - they thought it was wonderful. This guy with his ideas for massive depopulation and getting rid of the excess surplus and lower types of population, he said himself that they could literally find ways to kill off the general public but it was much better if they brought in a new type of slavery. He said, 'Slavery has always existed in some form or another' down through the centuries. Now, he got that from his ancestors because they were all involved in it; they lived high on the hog, which is us, of course, we are the swine. So he lived high on the hog - like all elitists - who deemed that was his proper place because he obviously thought he had a high IQ and they all believed in Darwinism. He said that 'we're simply creating a new perfected form of slavery...' a PERFECTED FORM OF SLAVERY.

That's why through the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR and all the other groups, the United Nations – that is a big front group for the whole planet – they are promoting SERVITUDE, world servitude. You'll SERVE the world under this guise of equality. But remember what George Orwell said, "Some are more equal than others in such utopias." These big ones at the top live HIGH on the hog. They don't go under the rules you do. They live off the public purse. The live off the public purse and they are also given incredible cash, grants or gifts from the big banking families that own the pharma's.

Banking families, the international boys, also own the pharmaceutical businesses. They have the majority shares. They set them up. Look at them all and check through the lists of owners and you'll always find them there. It's always the controlling groups' who never get sold; they never sell these shares. That's who owns them, pharma. They've been at this for 2000 years or 3000 years, pharma and money… pharma and money.

Going into this con game… everyone gets a hold of the same stories at the same time and it rattles across the planet. Certain things ARE interesting, some are important and you have to also look for the things that slip through, that you miss; they are not so dramatic, in a sense. Everyone should remember that a few years ago there were so many biologists that worked in warfare labs for big pharma because they also do warfare contracts. Big pharma that makes the vaccines are at the pinnacle obviously, of tampering with viruses and bacterium. That's all they do. Obviously, they are part of the big military-industrial complex as well. A whole bunch of them were dying off after the first Kelly exposure.

Kelly was killed in Britain; murdered, assassinated. He was about to testify to the highest court in the land about the fact that Blair lied his teeth off about all the weapons of mass destruction. He also was going in to tell them about the biological program. That they had ETHNIC SPECIFIC warfare viruses and so on between the joint program that he'd worked on with Britain and Israel together. After that there was a whole bunch, a whole slew were falling off of bridges. These biologists all over the place… just a sudden rash of suicide. I guess it was the weather or something.

Here's another article that ties in with this. Right now the big push is to use the same tactic that Bush used. It's the same bunch that is ruling the US government today. It doesn't matter if they change faces, even colors, it makes no difference whatsoever. They are trying to claim that there are weapons of mass destruction in Iran. That was the same guise they used in Iraq. I think the whole world was so sick of hearing the same UN boys go in and finding nothing; it was reported in the papers time after time. Then the Bush regime says, 'Well, we have these fuzzy photographs here that disprove that.' The fuzzy photographs - after the war - turned out to be weather balloon carriers that Britain had sold them and they knew this all along. So lies are important to get wars going.

Here's the thing too. They've got to get all the nuclear scientists, the inspectors, on board obviously. A guy who says, 'I can't go along with this; it's a lie' is going to be in trouble at the very, very least. I mean a whole war, an invasion hangs on this. This is from The Telegraph.

British nuclear expert falls 120ft to his death in Vienna
A British nuclear expert has fallen to his death from the 17th floor of the United Nations offices in Vienna.
21 Oct 2009 / The Telegraph

The 47-year-old man, who has not been named, died after falling more than 120ft to the bottom of a stairwell.

He worked for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization (CTBTO), an international agency charged with uncovering illicit nuclear tests.

A UN (Alan: The UN is like a cancer. It's got little blocs all over the planet.) spokesman in the Austrian capital said there were no "suspicious circumstances" surrounding the man's death (A: It was just a heavy dinner.), while a police spokesman said that no other person was believed to have been involved.

No suicide note has been found.

The incident happened on Tuesday as the United States, France, Russia and Iran held talks close by aimed at cooling tensions over Tehran's nuclear programme. (A: They want a peaceful nuclear program like every other country in the West - the authorized countries - have got for power.) The CTBTO has denied any link between the incident and the talks.

Investigators refused to reveal any further background information on the official but confirmed an autopsy will be held. (A: That's some power they have when they won't even name the guy, eh? Like they own him.)

Four months ago (A: Here you are. They've been at this for a long time.) another UN worker also believed to be British fell a similar distance at the same building, according to other staff working there.

Wow, eh? It's just full of coincidences… this old world of ours isn't it? Just full of coincidences. Strange, unexplained mysteries. Just strange. Once they get rid of these guys, they'll have all the ones who will go along with it and say 'yes, we suspect there are.' And BINGO, they'll go through Iran and then they have to go through Syria. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Bernays, and we're going back a long, long ways here, he wasn't the first one to be involved. In fact, even his family lineage – Freud was his uncle, remember.

He talked about how you take over society. If you read his books carefully, he's telling you how to take over society and how you don't even have to form groups initially. You look through the phone pages or the association membership lists, etc of all associations that are published and you go for the leaders. You get ones that have certain things in common. You get them all to agree with a NEW direction, still keeping their old premises together but finding something in common. If you can't do that, you get TO the leader. You find a leader. If the one who's already in charge of it isn't up to par – he doesn't just swallow your sales pitch as to what to preach to his followers – then you get the rest to get rid of him and get your own guy in. After that of course, they started FORMING societies themselves. That was the job of the foundations, which is just a front for the banking families and international corporate owners, like Rockefeller and so on. That's how they do it.

Therefore, you have blitzes happening across the world in this global system by various, what appear to be unrelated agencies or non-profit or charitable organizations ALL PUSHING at the same time for a big change. That's how it's done. It's been like that for your whole life and you didn't even know it, even a lot of the followers don't know it… of most of those organizations. It's not even necessary that the leaders of those organizations know the whole picture. They must be true believers and their ego helps them to do that. Bernays even goes through the ego technique of making them BELIEVE that they are true leaders and praise them and all that stuff and reward them of course - under the table - for pushing certain agendas.

Right now, as they come into the new system of global control, this socialist/Fabian system where those who have the right kind of genes, the right kind of intellect have the right to dominate the rest of you and tell you all how to live… including how many of you must die. Even what to eat and that's the big one that's coming up now as they go into the next phase. From every country across the planet they are getting the same handouts from their own particular unrelated organization out of the blue and it's published right into the media because that's what the media are told to do. 'Take if from this guy; don't change it; take the handout, print it up…' and that gets the trial balloon up there. That sinks the first premise into your mind. It gets just sort of vaguely in there so you're not totally unfamiliar with the idea. Then INCREASE IT STEADILY - on a roll - until it seems quite normal when they make it mandatory… regardless of what it is. That's how the world is run.

That's why they set up the United Nations with all they myriad of non-governmental organizations beneath it and who are all funded by the big foundations, the bankers' fronts. They'll have multi-trillions of dollars in charitable money to just give away to whom they select, tax-free too. Why is that? Because they own the governments. They ARE the parallel government that Quigley was talking about.

Here's an article from The Australian.

Health new word for total control
HOUSE RULES: Christian Kerr | October 28, 2009 / Article from: The Australian

SOME cruel souls have suggested that Nicola Roxon's National Preventative Health Taskforce (A: That's the big one… Preventative Health Taskforce…) has a massive social engineering agenda: no booze, no smokes, no hamburgers (A: They are cutting meat out by the way, suddenly all over the place, in every country. They don't tell you it's happening across the world at the same time.), all that sort of thing. Heaven forbid.

The National Preventative Health Taskforce has nothing of the sort in mind. It wants to control everything.

"Promoting health equity through healthy weight and reducing smoking and excessive alcohol use also means tackling some of the fundamental political, economic and cultural issues (A: You understand, they've covered the whole base.) that affect people's living conditions," the taskforce's report says.

"This means dealing with matters of governance (A: There's that word again… from the UN. You're not under democratic government; you're under his new elitist governance. Rule by experts, that's what they tell you. Although they are just paid yobbos with big mouths that love the limelight. That's what they really are.); national economic priorities; trade arrangements; market deregulation and foreign direct investment; fiscal policy; and the degree to which policies, systems and processes are inclusive ..."

I told you years ago that the United Nations Department of Agriculture is to rule the whole planet. Mind you, it has PRIVATE deals, private/public partnerships with guess who? Monsanto, Archer Daniel Midland and all the other boys… to make sure that you're going to have your green veggies and nothing else. It will be THEIR green veggies 90% soaked in their particular deadly pesticides and they are all genetically modified to make sure they alter the consistency of your stomach lining until you have cancers down the road - of the bowel, intestines and often they travel up into your lungs as well. That's where all that stuff winds up by the way. Just follow the veins and the arteries, etc. So basically this Health Preventative Taskforce is going to go into every aspect of your life. I said that years ago. They will; they'll come in your house and weigh you and if they see you're a pound over… I've even read articles from Britain where a woman had letters from the authorities because her child, supposedly for his age, was 1 pound over. He was overweight… ah… even though he was tall enough and didn't look it… he felt fine; to everybody else he was just okay. Back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from The Australian. Remember, Australia is still part of the British Commonwealth which means they are a dominion. We're still just little dominions of London. In fact, England really is a dominion of London. Whatever London says goes across the whole Commonwealth. Every country in the Commonwealth with its Canadian Institute of International Affairs and Australian Institute of International Affairs all belong to the Royal Institute of International Affairs. They all have their own departments. They have the same policies taking place at the same time in every country. Canada is no different whatsoever. They are all funded from the same places and they all network together because they are run by the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

This National Preventative Health Taskforce says here…

The taskforce members dreamed up a vast bureaucracy to tackle all this (A: I guess they just got the cash out of thin air right.), to "be a facilitator/co-ordinator and, as required, implementer and commissioner of interventions through and with partners" (A: That's with all the other networking groups and the foundations.) and "administer national programs (A: They are going to administer national programs.), facilitate national partnerships, and advise on national infrastructure for surveillance, monitoring, research and evaluation".(A: Oh boy, big brother… I wonder if they'll give them boots to go with this too. They've got to give them their own little uniforms or badges or something. You can just see them.)

They cheerfully christened this body the National Prevention Agency. (A: It's going to prevent everything except free thought and free will and free action… on anything.)

The name was too much for Roxon, but the rest of their agenda seems OK.

Legislation to establish the National Preventative Health Agency is before parliament. (A: right.)

And on Monday the Health Minister, according to her own press release, "met with key representatives in the sport, food, alcohol, business and public health sectors to discuss the recommendations of three major health reform reports: the National Preventative Health Strategy, the Health and Hospitals Reform Commission's Report, and the draft National Primary Health Care Strategy."

The release was titled (A: This is what you're going to see getting more and more across the board of the world here.) "Working together essential for a healthier nation".

It means totalitarianism from the day you are born and weighed and weighed forever and ever and ever and poked and prodded until the day you die. It's also to do with economics and everything else in your life. Governance is a collectivist society. That's what they said at the Club of Rome. They said, 'governance' will come in, governance. Not government, governance… a rule by experts. They favored, they said, 'the collectivist system,' meaning the SOVIET system. Soviet means 'rule by councils.' It will appear all these NGOs and professional bodies are speaking on behalf of the public. That's what we have already. These are the only people the governments listen to. They have massive full-time lobbying groups opposite every Congress or every Parliament building on the planet. They are all paid by… mind you, they also get tax-funded cash slid their way too, grants. A grant is a GIFT, remember. That's the brave new world.

Remember too, it fits in with the health and all this mandatory inoculation and all the other stuff that we have to go along with. 'GlaxoSmithKline wins case to stop wholesalers reselling cheap drugs'… They're the kingpin now, right. GlaxoSmithKline, the guys who are reaping in billions with this farce that we're going through, of a major pandemic and their best customer… governments are their best customers now. What deal when you can get governments as your best customer.

The bankers own these companies. They own all the controlling shares. They are part of the military-industrial complex, by the way. That's what they are PART OF. Same as making the F18s or whatever they are making these days, it's all part of the military-industrial complex OWNED by the same people at the top. They've got a big, big part to play in the world, big part. But their best customer is government and government legislates it into law and oooh, they're guaranteed all their sales, eh? So they can come up with a new idea, a new crisis every week if they want to. Their best customer, the government, will use your tax money to pay them. It seems to be the only business still working in the world right now. The rest are falling apart through taxation. These guys get cash grants, massive grants. You know, to coincide with the little grants they give to universities where they come up with all these things, vaccines and stuff as well. They use all these inventions and ideas. Then they go back into their big labs, main secret laboratories under high security, where they make all the KILLER stuff for the military. What a deal.

GlaxoSmithKline wins case to stop wholesalers reselling cheap drugs
GlaxoSmithKline may be able to charge more for some drugs in certain European countries after a key ruling by the European Courts.
By Graham Ruddick / 6 Oct 2009 / The Telegraph

In 2001, Glaxo's attempts to combat wholesalers buying drugs in low-priced Spain (A: Their drugs, right.) and reselling them in more expensive countries, such as the UK, were rejected by the European Commission. (A: So you see Spain, because the government was already paid off to buy the stuff, were giving them out cheap to the people. A lot of people were also buying at wholesale and then reselling it to other European countries. Now, they make a massive profit off that, so there are no problems there. But you see, they want the stinking, awful big profits they can get from the UK and other countries in Europe. So they ruled against, because it was legal enough to buy it wholesale and resell it. I guess they paid off the judges because they've got in another appeal on it of course.)

The company wanted to raise prices for certain drugs in Spain to prevent a practice which is estimated to cost drug groups (A: Them) billions of pounds. (A: Especially these days when they are guarantee those sales in those countries.)

However, the European Court of Justice yesterday told EC regulators to reconsider its ruling by upholding a 2006 verdict that the Commission had failed to consider Glaxo's evidence properly. (A: Meaning, they got paid off in the meantime. That's how it really, really works.)

A Glaxo spokesman said: "Although we do not currently charge a different price for products, which are not paid for by the Spanish Government, we are pleased with the outcome of the judgment of the European Court of Justice in the Spanish pricing case."

The ruling came as Glaxo confirmed it had received orders for 149m more doses of its swine flu vaccine. This brings the total to 440m doses, which is potentially worth more than €2bn (£1.9bn), with further talks continuing. (A: Ho-oh. He who hath the gold maketh the rules, Armand Hammer… that's what he said.)

Then of course, in The Telegraph they've also got another article.

£1.5bn swine flu vaccine boost for GSK and Astra
The swine flu pandemic (A: At least the scare of it.) will result in a £1.5bn boost for the UK's two drug giants, according to analysts' estimates.
By Jonathan Russell / 25 Oct 2009

So business is booming. No wonder. Create the fear. Here's a possible, maybe antidote because they can't guarantee anything - it might kill you too, mind you – but governments are guaranteed to buy it. That's beautiful eh? All these small business guys that dream up little inventions and have to pound the streets and sell them all buy themselves, as they get taxed into the ground. Money rules okay, as they say.

Here is from Sweden. It's got quite interesting article.

FIFTH "SWINE FLU" VACCINE DEATH IN SWEDEN - VACCINATIONS STILL GO AHEAD AS PLANNED!
Mise à jour le Mardi, 27 Octobre 2009 / theflucase.com

Media in Sweden is having a tough time maintaining the propaganda as more and more people question the reasons for the mass vaccination. Now, authorities say that if not "80% of the population takes the shot, we risk 100 deaths from the swine flu". Most Swedes know that a normal flu season see several thousand dead from complications (A: Meaning worldwide.) from the seasonal flu so the proportions of the propaganda coming from media and the government has caused a growing revolt against the massive attempts to scare people to take the poisonous injection.

We have earlier reported on the first death, the second death (also here), the third death and the fourth death in Sweden from the poisonous Pandemrix vaccine shot. (A: Their business is really booming… Pandemrix.)

Today, Svenska Dagbladet reports that over 350 cases of side effects from the Pandemrix "swine flu" shot, has been recorded so far. It has also become clear that this shot contains the most deadly mix of substances of all the known vaccines manufactured against the so called "swine flu" H1N1 influenza. The official number of deaths from the "swine flu" vaccine is now five. And that is only those who have strong immediate reactions(A: That's the ones who get it within a few hours.), the long term effects are usually never even investigated. If you would die from the shot two weeks after you took it, your death would not be considered to have anything to do with the vaccination. (A: I think it even goes to 2 days, after 2 days.) Severe health problems years after will of course be very hard to link to the poisonous injection. Even if these five official cases died within days, the official story is of course as expected: "none of these deaths has been confirmed to be linked to the vaccine". (A: So there you go. It's all coin-cidence.   Coin-cidence.)

In Aftonbladet, Jan Liliemark from The Swedish Institute for Infectious Disease Control (SMI) says: "- Nothing points to a connection. (A: Oh, it's just nothing to do with it.) There will be more deaths. We are looking for a pattern, if the cases have something in common. (A: Well, they all have the shot right. Where is Sherlock Holmes when you need him? We are dealing with Moriarty here. Amazing. Just darned amazing.)

There's some amazing stuff. As I say, when everything is coordinated and little bits come out across the planet from apparently different sources pushing the same thing, that's coordination. That's called networking coordination. It's also a propaganda blitzes. You don't realize that. You think it's only happening in your country. Most folk don't even see the organizations who are putting this in the media. It's getting reported VERBATIM right from the organization. It's a handout. It's a handout.

This is all part of this health thing under the guise of health and climate change. This is from The Times Online. This guy who is now Climate Chief… a Climate Chief. He was something else 2 years ago and it even says in Wikipedia, he had no interest whosoever in the climate or anything else but SUDDENLY he's changed his mind, now that he's been given this new post as chief of, you know, obviously the climate. He's a sudden believer.

Climate chief Lord Stern: give up meat to save the planet
Methane is 23 times more powerful than carbon dioxide as a global warming gas
Robin Pagnamenta, Energy Editor / From The Times October 27, 2009

(A: Give up meat. There is a whole blitz across the planet right now from different articles, even a book put out by fronts for the UN. They get massive grants to do it. They tell you to get rid of your domestic animals. They give you these farcical statements… how may acres it takes to grow that corn – GMO though it may be – and to grow that stuff for Fido's eating and how much flatulence it causes and all that garbage. It's all at the same time. So here's the Climate Chief Lord Stern. The guy who is a sudden believer when he was given his position, it comes with the job… you see the light instantly, poom.)

People will need to turn vegetarian if the world is to conquer climate change, according to a leading authority on global warming. (A: He's now a leading authority suddenly. Remember what Bernays says? Bernays says you must get someone with a name because people will bow down to authority. So LORD Stern of Brentford said…)

In an interview with The Times, Lord Stern of Brentford said: "Meat is a wasteful use of water and creates a lot of greenhouse gases. (A: I wish he'd come here. He'd be flooded out because it was nothing but rain all darn summer.) It puts enormous pressure on the world's resources. A vegetarian diet is better."   (A: This is a guy who eats meat, by the way. But he wants YOU to eat all vegetarian stuff, GM. And by the way, he will NOT eat GM stuff. He'll get the stuff all the Lords have with their peasant tenant farmers. They all have them, the aristocracy. They all have their tenant farmers. So does Prince Charles. They all have them. They have dozens and dozens of them each… with their own herds and everything, and their own crops. To continue with this hypocrite's speech here…)

Direct emissions of methane from cows and pigs is a significant source of greenhouse gases. Methane is 23 times more powerful than carbon dioxide as a global warming gas. (A: Well, 80% of the so-called greenhouse gases are actually water vapor. But we shouldn't mention that should we? Shouldn't mention that. There's an agenda here and that doesn't fit into it.)

Lord Stern, the author of the influential 2006 Stern Review on the cost of tackling global warming, said that a successful deal at the Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen in December would lead to soaring costs for meat(A: They are going to outlaw meat. I said this years ago. All these guys at the top are pushing vegetarian diets. Newt Gingrich pushed that to every Congressman in the US when he was handing out free books of Alvin Toffler's The Third Wave. He said, we are going to create a vegetarian society, a world of vegetarianism and IT MUST BE SO. That's the agenda. It's chiseled in stone. So here they go with this stuff now.)and other foods that generate large quantities of greenhouse gases.

He predicted that people's attitudes would evolve (A: We are going to EVOLVE our attitudes… you know, by brainwashing.) until meat eating became unacceptable. "I think it's important that people think about what they are doing and that includes what they are eating," he said. "I am 61 now and attitudes towards drinking and driving have changed radically since I was a student. People change their notion of what is responsible. They will increasingly ask about the carbon content of their food." (A: Well I tell you, I will not be around these characters. It's bad enough with vegetarians; they sit and talk about fatty acids and all this stuff during the meal and nuts are better. My God, it's so interesting and happy a meal you'll have with them. They're obsessed. They are hypochondriacs.)

Lord Stern, a former chief economist of the World Bank(A: You see, that's what he was really doing for years and years and years… the big planning boys.) and now I. G. Patel Professor of Economics at the London School of Economics(A: That's after he went to Oxford.), warned that British taxpayers would need to contribute about £3 billion a year by 2015 to help poor countries to cope with the inevitable impact of climate change. (A: The man is SO concerned. Ho-oh. The guy from the World Bank. You know, the BIG boss, the big front group for the international bankers.)

He also issued a clear message to President Obama that he must attend the meeting in Copenhagen in person in order for an effective deal to be reached. US leadership, he said, was "desperately needed" to secure a deal. (A: Obama will do exactly as he's told, like they all do.)

Believe you me, this Copenhagen agreement is the cap. That's it. World government totally from top to bottom… every part of your life, under the whole system of world government; that's what it's about. It comes into effect, like I said, in 2012. That's when the UN was to get risen to its proper status. 2010 is for the unification of the US, Canada, Mexico and maybe Chile and a few other ones. All completely done by the books; the last signatory takes place in 2010, total integration. In 2012, the United Nations is the de facto ruler of the planet. Brilliant isn't it. No crystal ball here; I just read their books and their memoirs and stuff like that. The boring stuff, no sex... except the kinky stuff in their backrooms where they drink brandy. Back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Just before I take a caller - if I can squeeze him in - there's an article you should read too. It's from The Telegraph.

The real climate change catastrophe
In a startling new book, Christopher Booker reveals how a handful of scientists, who have pushed flawed theories on global warming for decades,
now threaten to take us back to the Dark Ages
By Christopher Booker / 25 Oct 2009 / The Telegraph

It goes right through the whole farce, the history of this small clique of scientists who were recruited to start off the global warming scam. It's a very, very good article with various facts. He even mentions the fact that when it was debated in the House of Commons in Parliament just the other day - and pushing the global warming thing and how the whole country and the world will have to change to cope with it and all society - it was snowing outside Parliament. He says it's the first time in 74 years. Regardless, as I said years ago, I don't care if you're up to your neck in snow, they'll keep pushing their agenda because they never change it. It took too many years to plan it all. After they've achieved their goal, it doesn't matter anyway if it sleets, snows or they give us drought; they don't care. IT'S TO CHANGE SOCIETY so's you are ruled the way they think it should be ruled… you know, PERFECTLY… that is, their way.

There's Antonio from Maryland. We'll try and squeeze him in. Are you there Antonio?

Antonio: First I wanted to mention something about… you were talking about the bankers. There seems to be a group of people out there that's trying to push for auditing the Fed. I don't think they realize that would just speed up the changeover to a one-world currency.

Alan: Yes. You're right on. They often USE other groups to push and promote the very system they want to bring in.

Antonio: If I can, I wanted to read a forward from – you always say you find a little good piece of something in a book here and there – this is a forward by Aldous Huxley for a book a gentleman wrote. I wanted to read that real quick if I could. The book is by Dr. Ashley Montagu. It says,

The book possesses two great merits rarely found in alternate discussions of human problems where most writers oversimplify. He insists on the principle of multiple, interlocking causation and where most assume that facts will speak for themselves. He makes it clear that facts are mere ventriloquists, dummy-made to justify any cause of action that appeals to the socially conditioned passions of the individuals concerned. These two truths are sufficiently obvious but they are seldom recognized and for the good reason that they are very depressing to recognize. The first is to recognize the fact that there are no panaceas. Therefore, most of the golden promises made by political reformers and revolutionaries are illusory. Two, to recognize the truth and the facts do no speak for themselves but only as man's socially conditioned passions dictate is to recognize that our current educational processes can do very little to ameliorate the state of the world.

I'll leave it at that. The book from Man's Most Dangerous Myth and is by Dr. Montagu.

Alan: It's an old thing. Even Bernays says the same thing himself. He hired the first well-known names – they actually weren't well known at the time – but they were authoritative figures on vaccines to get the first vaccine campaigns going in the US. He tells you how he did it; again, terrifying the public. The authority figures, oh, from the University of so-and-so. They even created front groups like the Association of Vaccine experts with a whole bunch of medical titles to impress the public. Nothing has changed. Nothing has changed, they use their emotions. Afterwards, even when they're caught, it doesn't matter; they've achieved their goal and they'll say that the facts are irrelevant anyway.

Antonio: You have a good night Alan.

Alan: You too.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"A British nuclear expert has fallen to his death from the 17th floor of the United Nations offices in Vienna" (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 21, 2009.

"Health new word for total control" by Christian Kerr (theaustralian.news.com.au) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"GlaxoSmithKline wins case to stop wholesalers reselling cheap drugs" by Graham Ruddick (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 6, 2009.

"£1.5bn swine flu vaccine boost for GSK and Astra, UK's two drug giants" by Jonathan Russell (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"FIFTH "SWINE FLU" VACCINE DEATH IN SWEDEN - VACCINATIONS STILL GO AHEAD AS PLANNED!" (theflucase.com) - Oct. 27, 2009.

"Climate chief Lord Stern: give up meat to save the planet" - Oct. 27, 2009.

"The real climate change catastrophe" by Christopher Booker (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 25, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 28, 2009 (#439)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 28, 2009:
Proletariat, Tax Fodder for New World Order:
"Global Warming Propaganda Designed to Lift
World's Proletariat into Paradigm Shift,
Cull 'Excess' Populations, Starve the Rest,
According to Plan by Those Who Know Best,
On Route They'll be Taxed into Extinction
By Proffered Front-Men with Names of Distinction,
Using Scary Scenarios, Public Harassment,
Straight-Faced Politicians, Absent Embarrassment,
Then New Slaves Created, DNA Artificial,
Look Kind of Human, at Least Superficial,
Superior Workers, Memory Entrainment,
Cheap to Keep, Don't Need Entertainment,
Buzzily Busy, Efficient, Alive,
No Individuals, Part of the Hive"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 28, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 28, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 28th 2009. Okay, I've got the light dimming here to save electricity for global warming. I can hardly see what I'm looking at here. Anyway, I should tell the people right off the bat, newcomers, to look into .com web site. You'll find there hundreds of talks I've given in the past where I try and show you a different reality, a higher reality that we're all left out of the loop basically, at the bottom, and to show you how it operates and how the world is guided in every step towards 'the great society' as some of them phrase it - or they couch it, I should say, in that term. Many terms to do with a global order, a planned society, really an elitist plan where they rule the world and they eventually, through generations, will take us out of the picture, generation by generation, and then bring in new types of humans to basically serve them better. They won't need as much food. They won't need entertainment and sports and they won't have to buy things to keep themselves happy after slaving for a month or a week or whenever they get a paycheck.

That's the brave new world that we're coming in to, a designed society. We're never given the reality that we're living through from the media. It doesn't happen. Sometimes they give you little bits near the end of a certain part of a plan, but it's already too late to do anything about it. It doesn't work the way you THINK it works. It doesn't even depend upon groups getting together from countries and signing things into law. If you notice, things are actually working along that agenda. Even the climate change idea and it has been for years and years and years affecting all our lives and brainwashing the children… before any deal is signed into law. That's how it's always been done, always been done… with everything. The machinery is set up, it's implemented and it works.

Therefore, go into .com. I give you a lot of information how this works. Bookmark all the other sites I have up there. You'll see a whole bunch of sites [listed above]. Bookmark them for future use because sometimes the big ones play games on me and they get pulled for 2 weeks sometimes at a time. This way you'll always have somewhere to get the latest downloads from. Remember the last one that I always give at the end of them all, alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site with all the same audios as the rest but it has the addition of transcripts which you can download for print up of quite a lot of the talks, not all of them but quite a lot of them, and they're written in the various languages of Europe.

YOU bring me to you, YOU the listeners. I'm not backed by anybody. I'm not owned by anybody either. The ads you hear on the show pay the station directly to pay for this air time. It pays for their staff and their equipment, their bills and everything else… everything that's always going up. That's the only thing you can count on in this world, is that everything keeps increasing in its cost and it's going to really increase for all energy very, very shortly… more so than they've already been doing it. For those who get disks burned and passed around, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above].

I'm going to show you a technique tonight, a technique of how we're controlled. I hadn't really thought it out beforehand but it's something that's been evident to me most of my life - by observing - and to show you WHY you listen to some people and not to others. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I talk about reality at times and ask you what is reality? Is your reality what comes out of the television box? Is your reality various sites you go into as you try to find out who's behind the big conspiracy? Or is your reality one that you've really observed for yourself and come to conclusions for yourself? Even when we come to conclusions for ourselves, are we really doing that? You see, there are masters of humanity who've run the world for an awful, awful long time. Who understand how we think, how we behave and what we believe and they can give us new beliefs at any time. They understand the techniques of infiltration through systems and countries and how to work their way up. Not difficult to do because they are always backed by incredible money. Money talks alright. Those with power and hold over money and the countries' money and debt can put people into any department they wish by suggestion. See, they meet at big clubs and things and that's how things happen and it's by suggestion.

Therefore, you get sudden experts appearing across the world at the same time on about whatever the topic is that they want to push for the next part of the great work, big plan, to control the world. They build them up into a star scenario, before often people even know their names. The name appears suddenly one day in the newspaper and the guy is described as a genius and it's all over the place. Next thing you know, he's on talk shows and yada, yada, ya. That's how they built Charles Darwin up. Darwin was really an unknown character except amongst his own group. His own group of course, all belonged to the Royal Society. The Royal Society claims to be the first Freemasonic scientific organization that existed in Britain. It was given a Royal Charter to exist. Even today, they are fully behind all the global warming scenarios. They are all on board with it to add weight.

People are impressed by people with lots of letters behind their names. That's who impresses us. We don't believe our neighbors; we don't believe ourselves most of the time. We want to believe in someone in authority… and when they same something, we often will just take it for granted because they are so far above our knowledge – out of our ken, as they say – that we will start parroting what they say. After all, once they've made them famous and they are a genius obviously, then who are you to question them? The beauty of academia is that basically it was designed for this purpose of controlling the world. Not just to give people certain abilities to get through life in a particular profession. Academia is a political tool.

I've had professors tell me, face to face, that academia and the chat that goes on amongst the milieu of their peer group… is bull shit. They know that. It's all an act of who impresses who. What is a professor even? What is a professor except someone who is a good parrot? All they do is quote previous professors and people who come up with different sciences and quote and quote and quote and quote. That's what they do. They have a memory for quoting. Do they have any ideas of their own? They can't because they are stuck in the little tunnel of quotes, which decides what their conclusions will be on any new topic. That's how things really work. And it works the same way all throughout society in a sense.

We are products of our indoctrinations. That's why you have mass education. That's why you have UNICEF. That's why you have a national educational authority that's combined with an international educational authority. It's to make sure we all get the same start in life in so-called public schools. Public schools, meaning it is paid for by the tax payer. As opposed to Britain, a public school there is a private school. We all get the same indoctrination. So every level, whether it's public or private, gets a different kind of indoctrination.

I can remember Margaret Thatcher taking a lot of heat at one time for subsidizing the private schools with tax payers' money… very exclusive schools. She said we have to because that's where all the leaders of society come from. She dismissed everybody else beneath that. She was quite right. That's where they are. That's where they do come from. That's where she said they make their friends and acquaintances and some of them will be in politics, some will become lobbyists, some will become CEOs of corporations and they all KNOW each other, each generation know each other… the old boys club. That's not unique to Britain at all.

Let's not fall into the trap of parties. Parties are a trick. Left wing, right wing and so on… it's a trick. It's well known and always was for thousands of years that you create a similar outcome with a clash of supposed opposing opinions. The more they fight each other and - they found this even with wars, long term wars; both sides use it, the same tactics – their ideals change as they fight each other and before you know it, they're identical to each other. Once one or the other wins, they have a little empire built with two cultures now with the same ideas.

That's what the Cold War was for. There was more communist indoctrination put through in the Western countries through the schooling systems AND the media all through that to change EVERYONE, so that at the conclusion of it, they could join the soviet system with the Western system of Capitalism. Lenin said the dictatorship of the proletariat will only last about 70 years or so. After that, he says, what will emerge will be a new system – he's talking about a global system – he says, not quite Capitalist, not quite Communist.

What have we had now for about 20 years, maybe 15 years? Prince Charles is the first one that publicly mentioned it - again, get someone well known to mention it – public/private partnerships… where the public pay for everything. They pay for the costs of setting up great enterprises to benefit the public, like motorways, that kind of stuff, like power supplies. But we pay for the maintenance, the building and the private company is given it for peanuts and the tax payer still pays for its maintenance and the private company reaps all the benefits. Pure profit. That's what they meant.

Remember the Reece Commission said the same thing in the 1950s when Senator Norman Dodd went into talk to the big foundations – the parallel government. That's how it's really run, the ones who FUND all the active movements and all the protest movements and the ones that demand from government certain changes. He was told by some of the leaders… the first one that told him was the leader, the CEO, of the Ford Foundation. He went to Ford, Carnegie, Rockefeller and a whole bunch of them. He was told by that CEO that their job was to so influence the minds of Americans – they meant through propaganda and education – that eventually and so change the culture of society - the whole outlook and premise of being basically - that they could seamlessly merge the Soviet system with the West. That was also helped by the Cold War. And how we must understand our enemies… understand. Before you know it, you're talking the same spiel as your enemy and you don't even realize it. You'll change terms and terminology and phrases and words but it's all the same. You ARE, you have become your enemy… and it will seem quite normal to you… and you won't even know it's happened. Time. Time is on my side… the song of Mick Jagger.

It's intergenerational and that's how it works. Like Bernays said, when they promote something from the top and he was a TOP propagandist in IDEAS for manipulation, MASS manipulation of the minds of the peoples. He GAVE the American people their consumer society, on behalf of his masters. They had to build up a tax base, a financial and military tax base, to go out and conquer the world. And you must have a happy population back home while you're doing that who've got enough money left to play with, enjoy themselves and think they're buying things for themselves, like houses… knowing they could take it all away from you… like a couple of years ago. That kind of stuff. We're all played like suckers… because we're proles, you see, at the bottom.

Like George Orwell said in 1984, when he's talking to his own peer group, well the proles will do something about this; they won't stand for this. His peer equivalent says, the proles don't count. The proles are US folks. That's the proles. We are the proles. We sit and we chatter among ourselves. We have gossip. 90% of gossip is what the media has given us, Michael Jackson or some boob babe with her new boobs. That's what we're given and that's what folk chat about. That's also why Brzezinski and others have said that shortly the public will be UNABLE TO REASON FOR THEMSELVES. They expect the media – like an appendage of their brain – they'll expect the media to do their reasoning FOR them and their thinking for them. That has happened. It happened a long time ago for most folk, who are completely out of the loop.

They really believe that if there's anything that's going to effect them drastically, the media, being their appendage to their brain, is going to tell them. The media does tell them certain things. The media does tell them what to think about any particular topic. Most of what the media gives you is nothing but propaganda, on behalf of big movements that are designed to change society - ARE changing society - and guide you into a particular NEW reality, which you won't even notice that you have gone through. You won't remember that 20, 30 years ago, you had completely different view points on everything.

They've said at the top - those who understand the mind of human beings - the last ones to understand the changes are the very generation going through it. Plato said that over 2300 years ago... because we adapt, you see. We adapt. ALL morality can be turned upside-down, presented as though it's quite natural and the people who are involved, all changing WITH it at the bottom, MUST THINK IT'S THEIR OWN IDEA. And they do that with everything. From the clothes they buy, to the jargon they speak, to the new phrases and how liberal their thoughts have become. They think it's all their own choices. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about reality and how we think we come to our conclusions on opinions. People will really fight to the death over those given conclusion that they think are their own. It's happened all down through history, all down through history.

It's amazing just oratory alone and how in ancient times and up until fairly recently, politicians and leaders DEPENDED upon professional orators. They didn't have just script writers. They also had people to speak for them… with the best vocabulary and the best way to put it across and wonderful phrases the people would remember. They'd be very impressed. Then a Caesar would stand up after that and get all the applause. That's how they used to do it, how to sway the people's minds through EMOTIVE speeches, speeches that contained pictures in your minds. A technique they use in school to brainwash children, especially to do with the environment and such. It scares them. You can scare them through oratory.

I can remember even when I was at school, we'd get the occasional little movie brought around with a projector and you'd sit and watch this thing. They'd have speakers up there and I noticed most of them were done by people who spoke for the BBC, people who worked for the BBC. They always used a background music when they were saying something about little animals being killed or whatever, or jellyfish getting washed up on a beach somewhere. It was all to terrify you. You could tell by the types of music that was there. Sinister music too sometimes; it's quite often used, in fact. These are techniques that are used. Why would you need music to get across a statement or a point of fact? You don't.

You do it for emotional response. When they can couple an emotive response, like something that's very sinister music (do-do-do-do, do-do-do-do) then the words impact in your mind and stay there. They become fixed without you really consciously thinking through the truth or even asking, are these real facts. You don't have time to. It's imprinted in your mind. Very old techniques but they're used to the maximum today with television and subliminals and flashes on television and much, much more than that of course.

How the world really works is that you live through what they call at the top, paradigms. Paradigms are realities.

You'll hear the big movers and shakers and the front men often use the word paradigm, or a paradigm shift. A whole reality shift is what they're talking about. The old paradigms, according to them, were Kings, Queens and religions that kept the order of the public and that's all the public would know is whatever the King decreed was to be known and what their religion taught them. Religion was always used for order… to support the particular system of government. Those at the top, who really are intergenerational in their BELIEF and their cause and their purpose, probably the ONLY organized group on the planet, you might say, with the power to do what they do, have been at this an awful long time of destroying all that was old or existed, to bring in the new.

That's why history books will often go through this format where they'll tell you, this is how it was, Kings, Queens and feudal systems and religion to augment the power control and peasants just working to keep the elite few in luxury… and that was true, true enough. Then they'll go on to the reformations and enlightenment and how knowledge itself started getting spread and suddenly everybody wanted to get more knowledge and start questioning things for the first time. That was rot.

At that time, when all that came out, very few people could read and write. Only the intelligentsia, the wealthy people could read and write and spread knowledge and understand the written word and all the rest of it. If you really follow it, there was a movement during the enlightenment that was really a form of neo-Platonism. In fact, it really was. Where those who lead the revolt AND the secret societies - that HAD to be secret because they'd have their heads chopped off otherwise – those who lead the secret societies thought that they would have the RIGHT to take over rulership from Kings and Queens and the advisors that they had at the court, as they say. That's really what it was.

It wasn't to free the peoples. That was a side effect and only a temporary one at that because you could always enslave them again without them knowing it. You give them money and they get paychecks and they become wage slaves and they pay all the money back through taxes to keep a massive, incredibly massive bureaucracy – it used to be national bureaucracies – to give thousands of high-level bureaucrats lifelong jobs, big paychecks, big pension plans and lots of freebies as well tucked in there. Now you're going international. We ARE international. Here's the trick. We ARE international.

How they do it is very simple. They come up with the ideas at big conferences, as deciding a new paradigm for the future. They already have the power, because they own academia and the media, to implement it. In effect, it's a program. They go into the schools and start teaching it to make sure a generation grows up, so that they're almost adult by the time it's introduced or at least signed in its final form and made… legally public, you might say, like official. But in reality, they've been doing it for years and years and years preparing everybody for the change.

The signatories that sign these things just go through formalities. It's a done deal. It's the same with climate change agenda. Remember, the Club of Rome was set up by those who already ruled the world, to find a way to bring the whole world together with a new paradigm, belief system, a new way of operating and living COMPLETELY different from before. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. It's amazing that you can fly through stuff in an hour and you can't really… you have to really condense things to get the meaning out of what you're trying to say. I could really go on and on and on about this forever, but this is an example I'm giving you. The whole climate change issue is an example. Before that, the European Union, I was giving that out long, long before I came on radio over here. People didn't want to hear. I told them the European Economic forums and the councils were to do with total integration and they wouldn't believe me. It doesn't matter how much evidence you gave them. The reason is they expect someone from the top to come out. They want a sort of confession from someone at the top, "Yes, we did it." That's how we are as human beings.

Now of course, it's the whole climate deal. I've gone through this for years, this stuff that coming out NOW. It's only because famous people… as Bernays says, promote something using someone who's famous, someone of NOTE to get a new idea across to the people. That's how they really ARE. So he used them for propaganda purposes. We still expect them to come out and tell us the other side of the story and when one does, people go crazy. "Oh… Oh." Well, everybody else has been saying the same thing for years. You see, if you have to wait for a famous person to come out and tell you something, that it's all a scam, the global warming thing… and that this whole deal that is going to be signed in a few weeks means world government. If you NEED that, that means you're not thinking at all for yourself. You should have been thinking about this long, long ago. The signs are all there. Listen to the babble coming out of your children's mouths. Look at the articles in the news, all the propaganda spiels of how we've got to cut back on everything and cut back on society and bring the population figures down, and don't eat meat and yada, yada, ya. Yet you need someone to actually confirm it for you because you don't trust yourselves. Why? Because you were trained NOT to listen to yourself or think for yourself. It's that simple.

Even when people DO come out, it doesn't really matter to most folk because they still BELIEVE that there are somehow special people who have come out of special wombs, up there with suits and ties that are taking care of them. That's called SOCIALISM. That's contented slavery. Contented for the present – I should say – but that's contented slavery and there's a lot of slaves who love socialism… as long as they can play and got some money left to play with their favorite things and do their favorite things… they LOVE socialism. The want to BELIEVE that big daddy is always there like Santa Claus, is going to take care of any emergency that comes along in their lives. That's the fallacy of perpetual infantilism that's fostered upon the public.

All those agencies that you think were put out there to help with welfare and all these other things, were to become AUTHORITIES and they all ARE authorities now and they are TELLING us what to do. That was their original purpose. What does the wolf do? Dresses up in a sheepskin and comes amongst you until you believe in him. Then he shows his face at the end and it's still okay.

There's a website out there - it's very good – to do with the scams of global warming. It doesn't matter really that we say this anymore because it's a done deal. If you notice, everything is GEARED towards this whole move on saving energy, cutbacks and everything, excessive taxes to pay for all these greening projects and they haven't signed the final deal yet… because it's a done deal. That's how they've done it with EVERYTHING up until now. The machinery is put in place. They've spent 20, 30 years at it. It's been taught in schools and universities and all the P.C. people in universities KNOW to parrot the right line, the correct lines, and so do the media. Then so the formality of the signing of it is… I don't even care to hear about it when it happens. It doesn't make any difference. It's already here. You see.

It says on this web site,

IPCC Lead Author: 'We will continue to create and tell new stories about climate change and mobilize them in support of our projects.'
Richard Lindzen / algorelied.com
(Alan: Remember, the public think these are all experts. Most of them have nothing to do with science, by the way. There's even a garbage collector from India on the panel. The IPCC lead author gives these quotes out of his own book.)

We will continue to create and tell new stories about climate change and mobilize them in support of our projects.

(A: This is a book they put out by one of the guys PAID, there are lots of them paid full-time to propagandize themselves and the agenda in their books. WAY more than those who could ever fight against them because we don't have access to that kind of money or press.)

Dr. Richard Lindzen notes some inconvenient quotes from Michael Hulme's book, Why We Disagree About Climate Change: (A: Michael Hulme is a PAID front man for this whole thing. He's one of the TOP guys at the IPCC. Here are some of the things he's got in his book.)

"The idea of climate change should be seen as an intellectual resource around which our collective and personal identities and projects can form and take shape. We need to ask not what we can do for climate change, but to ask what climate change can do for us. (A: The whole thing is a scam to bring in a new paradigm.)

……

Because the idea of climate change is so plastic, it can be deployed across many of our human projects and can serve many of our psychological, ethical, and spiritual needs. (A: What religion is this guy here? Hmm? Because it's so PLASTIC. It's so plastic; it's so diffused that the ordinary folk can't even debate it because it can be deployed for everything. That's why it's going to be global warming… freezing, freezing was the big thing they hit upon first. Guys like this churned out books on the coming ice ages, LOTS of them… interchangeable names but churning them out. Then they changed to global warming when the ice wasn't cooperating with them.)

…….

We will continue to create and tell new stories about climate change and mobilize them in support of our projects. (A: They're talking about your WHOLE way of life into a new form of sophisticated slavery, folks.)

…….

These myths transcend the scientific categories of 'true' and 'false'". (A: They are creating MYTHS because they understand and they've been taught this, that myths are powerful motivational forces for creating human society obedient and so on, with ALL that they know coming from the propagandists.)
These myths transcend the scientific categories (A: And they are not scientific at all.) of 'true' and 'false'". (A: The myths are more important than any fact, you see.)

And the alarmists tell us they have no political agenda, and that their only desire is to turn down the earth's thermostat a bit? Please.

There a lot of links on this site. Remember, go to my site after the show. I'll put these links up for you to check for yourself. It's also connected with the one everyone's talking about… because you need a famous person to say the same things that many people have been saying for 20, 30 years… and that's the way you are. I've had people ask me, why don't you make more of a big deal about the British Lord that's come out? Well I don't need a British lord to come out and tell me what I already know and what I've observed by whole life for myself. It's like they're telling us now, they're thinking about geo-engineering the planet by spraying particles in the sky. I've been telling them that they've already been doing it for years, just like they've already put in the whole greening agenda before they sign the final treaty. That's how they always do this. The same technique always. But I'll put this link up too. It goes through the errors in Al Gore's movie.

35 Inconvenient Truths ; The errors in Al Gore's movie
scienceandpublicpolicy.org

There's a .PDF you can download. It goes through them point by point by point. It's by Christopher Monckton of Brenchley; that's the lord that everybody is talking about right now.

Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty
by Libertys Army on October 16, 2009 ·

He puts it very well, very eloquently but it's a shame that people need that because they can't think or observe for themselves. He's saying that which you should know for yourselves already, but you thought life was all Michael Jackson and playing and finding aliens and stuff behind it all. It's more exciting that way isn't it? Then to find that people intergenerationally are taught sciences that you've never heard of… on how to govern and change and create new societies. The real purpose of the Earth Summit that Maurice Strong, an amazing character, one of the HIGHEST technocrats on the planet, he headed it on behalf of the Rockefellers, his mentor of course.

Here's an article.

The real climate change catastrophe
In a startling new book, Christopher Booker reveals how a handful of scientists, who have pushed flawed theories on global warming for decades, now threaten to take us back to the Dark Ages
By Christopher Booker / 25 Oct 2009

Next Thursday marks the first anniversary of one of the most remarkable events ever to take place in the House of Commons. For six hours MPs debated what was far and away the most expensive piece of legislation ever put before Parliament.

The Climate Change Bill laid down that, by 2050 (A: That's the whole world, by the way, when they sign it in Copenhagen.), the British people must cut their emissions of carbon dioxide by well over 80 per cent. (A: Now since we're all carbon-producing units, guess what that means folks? Hmm? THINK! THINK! Do you want some famous person to tell you? Do you need that?) Short of some unimaginable technological revolution, such a target could not possibly be achieved without shutting down almost the whole of our industrialised economy, changing our way of life out of recognition. (A: That's the exact point of it, to change your way of life out of all recognition. An ordered, controlled society.)

Even the Government had to concede that the expense of doing this – which it now admits will cost us £18 billion a year for the next 40 years (A: Guess who's going to pay all that? You'll have nothing left in your paychecks because you will be serving the world state. Wage slaves. Give it all back to them and you're a slave.) – would be twice the value of its supposed benefits. (A: It's all nonsense because it's got another purpose, of course.) Yet, astonishingly, although dozens of MPs queued up to speak in favour of the Bill, only two dared to question the need for it. It passed by 463 votes to just three. (A: Everybody up there is bought and paid for in EVERY country. They are vetted for their positions. It's been like that for a long, long, long time.)

One who voted against it was Peter Lilley who, just before the vote was taken, drew the Speaker's attention to the fact that, outside the Palace of Westminster, snow was falling, the first October snow recorded in London for 74 years. (A: And here they are on about global warming.) As I observed at the time: "Who says that God hasn't got a sense of humour?"

He's goes through in this article what I and many others have been saying for years and years and years. If you're looking for reality, you'd better start thinking. It means LITERALLY DISCARDING everything that's been drummed into you… and RE-QUESTION the whys and the wherefores for everything that YOU BELIEVE IN. Most can not do that. They never will. They're too far gone. There is such a thing as PERFECT indoctrination… or mind control that's PERFECT. The last person to know it's happened is the subject themselves.

Here's an article that fits in too, again with all the contrary evidence.

UK Met Office backpedals on Arctic Ice – "…unlikely that the Arctic will experience ice-free summers by 2020."
28 / 10 / 2009 / wattsupwiththat.com

That's what they were predicting when they were drumming up all the support for it and so on and getting all the cash laid out to these IPCC groups and all the rest and all the greenies. 'Oh, we're all going to die; we're all going to die.' Now they're back-pedaling. See, they don't NEED it anymore. It's like… here's an example. George Bush Jr. during the inquiry over the war in Iraq, he said on television and people can check it out for themselves. DON'T write to me for everything I say and say can you find it for me? Do it yourself. I don't even have high-speed internet. I get Xplornet constantly cutting me back, the great satellite company owned by Hughes Corporation, the military-industrial complex. That's not by accident they keep doing this.

You see, what they do with Bush, Bush said in that inquiry, he says, 'oh, I never said that Saddam had anything to do with the twin towers attack.' Then it flashed back after the interview, the television station with quote after quote after quote of him saying, 'Saddam is behind this too,' as they changed their sights from Afghanistan to Iraq. Then he says, 'well, I just thought the world was better off without Saddam; he was a bad fellow.' Like a whim? I don't think so.

Once the excuse is used and accepted by the public, at least there's no great objection to it, they don't care… once they've achieved their goal. They don't care how many exposures come out over Iraq and the reasons for it, the fallacy of Al-Qaeda that wasn't really in existence at that time except as a spy network for the CIA, SET UP by the CIA and Special Forces to fight the Russians. They don't care that it was a supposed whim on Bush's part, which it wasn't at all; it was the New American Century policy with their list of countries to invade and finish off to standardize the world. They don't care when the truth has made it out. Once they've achieved their goals they can laugh in your face and give you the finger. They often do. Sometimes there are 2 fingers as they 'horn' you, as they say. This happens over and over again.

It doesn't matter when James Goldsmith comes out and tries to get Britain back out - again a famous person for people to follow - get them back out of the European Union. He says you're going to lose all sovereignty, way of life, everything and be DICTATED to by a new soviet. It doesn't matter when they do this. It's too late. The machinery is already done. It's done. Done deal. NOTHING will stop these guys… nothing. They're not going to backtrack because of public opinion. They know where the public's opinions are. They're still trying to find out the real secrets behind Michael Jackson and American Idol and all the rest of the stuff that they are in to.

You're going to find that the group behind this and that has pushed LIBERALISM are THE MOST INTOLERANT OF ALL when they are in power because they ban ALL free speech on ANY topic except politically correct topics that they have GIVEN you. It's beautiful. It's double-think isn't it? It's called liberal. They champion every group's rights so they've got all this massive army all going in the same direction and haven't really a clue they are actually going in a DIFFERENT direction, with a DIFFERENT ending, where they too will all be slaves. That's the beauty of USING nations. USING them… using and creating causes and always being champions of 'the people' until they are in power and boy does the velvet glove come off the iron fist. They pass laws so's you can't speak about anything any more. Obama just passed the hate laws… in a country that was the first in the world to say, free speech is enshrined in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Is it? Not any more. Ho, oh.

Back to wattsupwiththat.

UK Met Office backpedals on Arctic Ice – "…unlikely that the Arctic will experience ice-free summers by 2020."
28 / 10 / 2009 / wattsupwiththat.com

But they do say that "first ice-free summer expected to occur between 2060 and 2080?. By then there will be nobody that remembers this forecast. (A: See how they do it. 'Oh, it's way off in the future.')

Yet on the same day, bumbling Arctic explorer Pen Hadow says in a UK Telegraph interview: (A: Pen Hadow is a paid IPCC propagandist.)

"To all intents and purposes the Arctic will be ice free in a decade. (A: And yet, here's the official report above his head contradicting him. "…unlikely that the Arctic will experience ice-free summers by 2020." [Alan laughing.] A good lie can't be stopped that fast can it? Back with more after this break.)

This is Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix. Just to show you how the cons work and everything is a con when it comes to politics and guiding the public opinion and creating new paradigms for ways of living and all the lies under the sun that you can possibly dream up are used. Very important that everyone is on board.

That's why they have foundations, big foundations with multi, multi billions of dollars that finance all this kind of stuff. They're tax-free by the way. Rockefeller said himself, 'I've never paid taxes; you all know that,' he says. His foundations FUND all the NGOs and fund politicians into office and all the rest of it, ALL their boys. They guide the agendas. The parallel government of foundations guides the agenda. They implement everything in place BEFORE any final agreements are ever signed. The signing is for the public and to make it more official to the public. Like it's 'oh, well. There's nothing we can do now.' Well guess what you can do with the BS. You can tear it all up and toss it in the bin, that's what you can do with it. Or recycle it… if you're a greenie. That's what you can do with all that stuff because WE CAN'T GO ALONG WITH THIS. IT'S UTTER SLAVERY.

As I say, they're talking about the signing coming up in a few weeks in December and yet here's the main European newspaper, the official propaganda arm for the Union. It says

New EU-US energy council to be set up early November
VALENTINA POP / 23.10.2009 / euobserver.com

EUOBSERVER / BRUSSELS – The EU and the US will set up a joint energy council at ministerial and commissioner level to streamline policy initiatives relating to green technologies, research and energy security on both sides of the Atlantic, a US official told this website.

"Energy is an important foreign policy priority for the US and a very important component of our bilateral relationship with the EU.

Blah, blah, blah… they give you the propaganda spiel but they do go on to say the real reason behind it – apart from creating a new system across the board of the world, right. This is before they're signing the main one, that you think is the main one for the world, they've already got this set up. And by the way, they have all the people picked and they're already working in commissions and councils. They've always done it this way. They want to share the taxations of the European people AND the US and North America… to get more bang for the buck, you might say. Of course, no CO2 comes off that bang, just poverty… utter poverty. But this is their excuse for doing it. It's already going ahead. Everything is going ahead.

They've been brainwashing the children for how many years now? …into the eco-fascist green agenda? It's amazing. You got parents out there too that listen to their children coming home and literally bitching AT their parents. They're taught to bitch at them, NAG them. They used the children to nag their parents about smoking. They were getting taught that in school. Now they nag them about don't fill up the recycling bin too much, make sure the top is on it. Blah, blah, blah. They're scared. People are scared of their children. Who gave them permission to go ahead? Well, everybody who kept silent and just accepted the nagging gave permission. SILENCE IS CONSENT. Silence is consent.

How you deploy your free time and to where you aim it is your choice. Utter trivia and nonsense and feel-good stuff and fantasy… OR you take part in what's happening in YOUR life TO you… and others to come and those around you. If you're so egocentric, you think you'll somehow come through it unscathed… well, guess what? You're already going through it and your purse is getting lighter. The big bankers have robbed you of trillions and will continue to do so as they pay, use all that cash, to pay for their big, world plan.

From Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada – I've rammed through a lot in an hour, not long enough though – it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"IPCC Lead Author: 'We will continue to create and tell new stories about climate change and mobilize them in support of our projects.' " by Dr. Richard Lindzen (algorelied.com).

"35 Inconvenient Truths - The errors in Al Gore's movie" (scienceandpublicpolicy.org).

"Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty" [4-minute Video with Link to Full Version] - October 16, 2009

"The real climate change catastrophe" by Christopher Booker (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"UK Met Office backpedals on Arctic Ice - "...unlikely that the Arctic will experience ice-free summers by 2020." (wattsupwiththat.com) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"New EU-US energy council to be set up early November" by Valentina Pop (euobserver.com) - Oct. 23, 2009.

"No men OR women needed: Scientists create sperm and eggs from stem cells" by Fiona Macrae (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 29, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 29, 2009 (#440)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 29, 2009:
IF YOU BRAIN'S EQUIPPED, CHANGE THE SCRIPT:
"Government Hands Move Slowly, Except at Meals,
Yet When New System Accelerates, You Know it Feels
As Though We're Living a Pre-Written Script
Of Organized Agenda where Each Part does Fit
In Synchronized Harmony of Pre-Organized Planning,
The Evidence of Such is Overwhelmingly Damning,
Of Course to Those of Study, it's Nothing New,
But Unfortunately the Enlightened are the Few
Who Try to Warn and Bite Frustration
Due to Conditioned Cerebral Constipation
Of the Brainwashed Stunting of the Masses
Fed by Authorized Media, which Correctly Passes
Authorized Info from Those Who Rule,
Which Ensures Each Recipient is a Fool,
And Fools We Are if We Do Not Test
The Information, That's Our Quest"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 29, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - October 29, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through the Matrix on October the 29th 2009.

I always start off the show, I should really spread it throughout the show, because people just skip over it of course because it's routine, but I start off by telling newcomers to look into website and scroll down and you'll see all the sites I have up there for future use. Bookmark them, because once in a while the main site, the com site, will stick there're so many folk going into it at the same time and if you could take the other sites I have out there and sort of spread them around, you'll find that you can get straight through usually. If the big sites get pulled as they occasionally do, again you can get alternate sites to get the latest downloads of the talks I give and as I say, there's www.cuttingthrough.jenkness.com, a very good, quick site, very fast. There's www..net , .us , .ca , there's www.alanwatt.ca, there's .

The last one is the European site. It has all the audios too and you can grab it from that site if the big ones go down, but it has the addition of transcripts of a lot of the talks I've given which you can download for print up and they're in the various languages of Europe and you can choose which one you want.

And remember, as I say, this is probably the only show out there where there's no backing by, by anyone basically, except you the listeners and you can keep me going by looking into the website, you can see how you can buy the books and so on I have for sale, there's the discs and so on or you can donate to me and remember, personal cheques are good from the US to Canada and you can also use International Postal Money Orders from the US if you don't want to use a bank account. It's just like a bank draft really but it's from the Post Office but it's got to be the International one. Some people just use Paypal or send cash. Outside the Americas you can also do the same. You can use Western Union. It's a bit more expensive than some of them. There's Moneygram and lots of stores now use it, the Moneygram, some Post Offices do also use it over here in Canada, and you can use Paypal or you can just send cash again and that cuts out the middlemen with the little podgy fingers and their triple chins that always rip us off every few years. So it's up to you how you want to, to get in touch with me. And also for those who just get the discs passed around to them at meetings, and don't use computers, because they know what computers are all about really, and where it's all going with them, you can get in touch with me [listed above] and that will get to me as well but it's up to you. Plus remember too, if you want to order anything with Paypal, send me a separate email and I can do that too.

You know, last night and before last night's show I talked about reality. Reality is something we take for granted. Our reality is really how you bounce what you think is reality off those around you and they bounce it back to you, the answers, and if you pretty well agree on most things with them of how the world is as you see it, then you think you're sane and that's really just mass conditioning. Everyone's had the same indoctrination from birth into a fake reality. A reality where you think you're democratic. Where you think things just happen and crises happen out of the blue, major crises and governments suddenly go into action. Now governments couldn't do anything suddenly if they tried, even with all their multitudes of bureaucracies and levels. It takes years to get the big square wheels of government to move in any direction and we'll talk about that when we come back from this break in a few minutes.

Hi folks, I am Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through the Matrix trying to bring some reality back into personal lives because it's a hard process for people to really 'bite the bullet' and realise that most of the things that they thought and believed and thought they understood and even some of the things you love in fact, are all given to you by those who know how to rule whole nations, and a whole world in fact, because they've studied humanity for thousands of years. We're the most studied species on the planet, not the little insects they're hunting down in Brazil or the Amazon or anywhere else. We are the most understood of all creatures. That's why they're onto all the other ones now, all the other creatures. They know everything they need to know about us. They know how we act as a mass, how we think as a mass group and they also know the categories of the individual sections you might say there are and categories within that too, subcategories and all that and they know how to motivate people into action. They know for instance that in every generation there's always the ones with the chips on their shoulders, the misfits, who also want to protest something and they give them the things to protest once they think they're going to fight something and fight the bad guys and they swallow the propaganda that fits them and leaders are sent out to them basically to round them up, give them their primary indoctrination, get them into a cheering group and they stage demonstrations across the planet and this is always presented on the politically correct news. They're always guaranteed attention where other grass roots ones get no attention at all in fact. So these miniscule groups get attention to get ideas into the general public, to be on board with certain issues that the government wants passed.

These groups actually demand that the government passes these things. That's how the real world works. The parallel government funds, through their foundations, hundreds and hundreds and hundreds and hundreds, actually 'a thousand points of light' are what they call themselves now. Bush senior called them that too, and they appear to speak on the behalf of the people. They are the new Soviet. The Soviet was rule by councils, NGOs and they demand from the government to do the very thing that the governments want to do anyway, because the general public sits silent, so they must get groups who demand it and they come say "oh the people have spoken" and they pass laws.

Well, the whole agenda, as you know, is towards a new society. A new society across the board, a whole new way of living and this is just one phase of it as we get taken down, food restrictions, Agenda 21, get them off the rural areas, get them out of cars and they'll eventually ban cars altogether except for essential vehicles only. That's in Agenda 21 and no private property so we'll all be under the thumb as they take us down over 50 or 60 years into what they call a manageable level of humanity for the new society.

Then of course, they'll clone you. They'll clone you as a reward for being 'goody two shoes' and politically correct and (if) you're very good and if they need you that is. That'll be the only way you be able to have a child of some kind or another even although it's artificially created from stem cells, your stem cells. That's what they'll tell you and you'll be sterile otherwise, you see? You'll be sterile personally. We are becoming sterile in the West by design.

There's so much information I don't even go through that I get from very good sources about all this and I can't even cover it. There's so much.

Anyway, getting back to the main topic, how the NGOs are up there demanding we all go along with and force through this Copenhagen meeting at the United Nations where it gives the United Nations total power over all economies, over all energy supplies, over everything in your life in fact really. That will be implemented, once signed, in 2012. That was always the year, and I've said this for years, the UN would be brought up to its proper place as a world government basically. It's a front of course but so are these NGOs. It's the same boys that run and set up the UN that funds them. This article here gives you an idea how this works; a simple idea because it's all over the place. This is from The New American and it's the 27th Oct. 2009.

It says,

"All across the world, collections of global-warming protesters financed by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund gathered on Oct. 24th to call for forceful 'climate change' action at the United Nations summit in Copenhagen, Denmark, this December.
Most of the gatherings were miniscule, even in big cities, but the effort did receive widespread publicity.

(Alan: And that's a fact. Even in little Sudbury near me, they had that on their local news as well, their global television station. See they're guaranteed press reports because the media is part of the parallel government, an essential arm of government. It says)

"According to organisers cited by Agence France-Presse, over 5000 demonstrations wereheld in more than 180 countries."

(A: That'll be a gross exaggeration, mind you, but they use this all the time even with their figures on, you know, carbon, and CO2)

"The protestors milled around the motif of '350' – the supposed level of carbon dioxide in parts per million that some scientists claim is anacceptable ceiling. They carried signs and unfurled banners,

(A: The ones that work for the I.P.C.C.)

(A: And it's true. They're probably mass-produced in the same factory. See, these aren't piddling little 'grass roots' organisations. They're funded by the Rockefeller boys. They have full teams of PR publicity experts and advertising agents who come up with all these ideas for them and get everything ready including the clothes they wear, their t-shirts, the banners and they put them across the world you see? And it says) even forming themselves into giant numbers to illustrate theirpoint.

(A: And that's all they are for the big boys, a bunch of little numbers).

We had no idea we would get the overwhelming support, enthusiasm and engagement from all over the world that we're seeing," explained Bill McKibben,

(A: Now who’s Bill McKibben? Bill McKibben, at the moment right, is a climate change activist who founded the Rockefeller funded organisation 350.org. He’s founded other organisations for and on behalf of the Rockefeller funded organisation. These are the guys who are trouble shooters in a sense and they’re sent in to stir up the youth who are into all this already and to become their leaders and show them how it’s done. He’s an organiser. It says)

“It shows just how scared of global warming much of the planet really is, and at how fed up at the inaction of our leaders.”

(A: And that’s nonsense too, we’re not scared enough yet.)

Ironically, recent surveys indicate the most Americans don’t believe that global warming is a serious problem or even caused by human activity at all. And several other ironies in this saga become immediately apparent as well. The continual charge of so-called “deniers” are financed by oil companies should finally be put to rest, considering that a significant share of the Rockefeller family fortune came and continues to come from oil. Several oil companies have financed past McKibben efforts as well.”

You see, these followers know nothing about who’s sponsoring them, they know nothing. They’re ignorant. All they know is the beef they’ve been given, so they can get their, you know, they can get all their chips off their shoulders in some direction or other. These groups are used all the time. It’s an old, old technique and they’re funded by the big boys themselves, the corporations and the oil boys who supposedly ‘fight’ pollution and people don’t see the irony in that. It’s because the big boys, who are also ‘philanthropists’, you see?

In other words, they’re the parallel government through funding through their foundations, are guiding the world into the plan where they will have total control over all the world’s resources and there will be no competition and that will be the public/private deal. It already is by the way, in other areas that they’ll have with the United Nations.
So the Rockefeller boys and all the big boys in the oil industry will have these public/private deals where they can go into their national parks, they already got that, and no human being otherwise is allowed in and they can go for mineral rights, oil rights, everything else.
That’s what all the schmucks, like you, who get all these t-shirts and wave your little mass-produced banners that are given to you, are helping along. So, that’s what’s really happening and it’s just a farce. But to the public, you know, Joe and Jane public, who sit and watch this on their television sets, on the news and swallow it all and think ‘my god, it must be true, thepeople are getting really concerned. Look at these demonstrations’!
No, they’re choreographed like ballet plays. No kidding. That’s how professionally they’re done. It’s like the same nonsense when they train young girls at school generally from other countries like India and all that other stuff and they give them speeches. They memorise the speeches and then they bring them to the United Nations to give a speech to kick off some meeting on climate change and all the rest of it and how bad humans are and how they’ve been, especially adults. It’s disgusting. There’s no level they won’t stoop to. No level at all especially by using children to get what they want. And believe you me this hell on earth they’re bringing in is going to be the worst hell we’ve ever seen. The control freaks will be in charge of every part of your life right down to what you think. They’ll know what you think. They’ll correct your bad thinking, wrongthink. Believe you me, they will. They’re already doing it with certain types of classes; sensitivity training and all that kind of stuff.

There’re always followers and followers are the ones who are used to get big movements to get laws passed that affect all of our lives and they’re all funded. The leaders get pension plans and everything and whole office staff and their computers and they live at the highest of standards of living. But all the silly followers with their tin cans? No, they’re just the stupid followers, always will be.

To show you what’s happening as we go into this whole New World Order, it’s to be an order, remember, that Lenin described. He said part of the phase towards the end of the 20th century and into the 21st he said, there will be so many government agencies that they will be stepping on each other’s toes all the time, conflicts with agencies, because these agencies all start up as services. That would be promoted. Then they’d become agencies, then they’d become authorities, over every aspect of life and I’m going read about what’s happening in Britain, Canada and elsewhere, as we speak, and show you how it’s going.
Back after this break.

This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through the Matrix bringing some reality back that's been absent for an awful long time and even when we think we're getting into reality we're often waylaid by other groups and so on because, believe you me, those who manage the world have all sides covered.

I used to describe (it being) like coming out of a tunnel and you see a field in front of you and there's a forest at the other side and that's where you want to get is into that forest. But on the way there, you've got all these different signs 'this is the way,that's the way'. This is a minefield to see which way to go. 'We've got the truth, we are the truth'. That's what's set up because those at the top are no dummies. They've run the world for an awful, awful long time. It's a history that's kept separate from the general public. You're not taught this in school, how to govern people and how to control the minds of people, how to even give them culture, how to alter it down through the ages, how to get them to rebel when you want them to rebel and fight for another cause. It all sounds so appealing to everybody and they've even supplied people who'll point out the obvious to them for revolutions. Then they fund them of course and then they win their battles and you don't realise it wasn't the system that you'd planned in the first place. It ends up completely different. It's like how the Soviets used, or the Bolsheviks used the Soviet system. The Bolsheviks were a different party than the Socialists who were already in after the first revolution in Russia. It was a planned takeover, well financed actually from New York and London from the banks and given the biggest backing, well organised before they hit, and suddenly all the people who had fought for all these other groups to bring in Socialism, were out of the picture and executed, in fact. A totalitarian regime was then in place.
Planned all in advance but they always need the masses to do the final push. It's never necessary that the masses understand the real reasons for the overthrow, so you often end up with a worse system than the one you just left behind.

What you find if you study history, what they give to you for history, at least what's available to us, are some of the techniques they use. If you look at the Cultural Revolution that they had in China, it was a system that came in, not suddenly, because they were already trying to indoctrinate the youth. You always indoctrinate the youth who will grow up into the new system. You bypass the elderly, pretty well, and you control the older ones through fear of physical harm or imprisonment or whatever, but the youth you literally mollycoddle until the youth think the teachers in the schools are basically better than their parents. That's the system they've had across the Western world for a long time now because we're bringing in Collectivism, a nice word, also like Socialism and it's really an ultra advanced, Soviet type system where funded, guided and even created NGOs will become the spokespeople for all the people. They'll demand from government, as they're doing, that which is exactly what the government wants to hear, so they'll pass the laws sitting waiting for them that are ready for them to sign and they'll say 'the people have spoken, the people have demanded', and that's how it works. But in the Cultural Revolution, this Cultural Revolution of China, it's been copied here for a long time and of course no reporter is going to use that term here.

It's so wonderful how they can bring us to the same system but they don't use the term and if they don't use the term then people won't know. Just the word itself makes all the difference, rather than say you're under communism or socialism, same thing. In fact, that's what Lenin said and Stalin said it repeatedly, that 'Communism is only Socialism in a hurry'. Communism comes in through revolution. If you don't tell them that, they'll never connect it, never connect it, when the state runs everything. The STATE runs everything, but this is a super improved type.
This is really what their final outcome was supposed to be according to Lenin. Not quite Communist, not quite Capitalist, it's called Public/Private. The corporations are the new feudal overlords according to Professor Carroll Quigley and that's what's working you see? And we will all be incredible slaves to save the planet, we will serve the planet. Who first said we'd serve the planet? The Royal Institute for International Affairs, set up by the Rhodes Foundation, the Lord Alfred Milner Group who were the founders, they were the banker boys. They formed The Royal Institute of International Affairs / Council on Foreign Relations. Every major reporter, every media boss, of all kinds of media and most politicians at the top; all politicians at the very top, are members of it and the public don't even know. If anything happens, presidents slip up, or prime ministers slip up, whatever, they're not called up in front of parliament, or congress, they're called in front of The Council on Foreign Relations to explain themselves. That's what happened to Bill Clinton remember. And the public don't even ask why or who. Who is this Council on Foreign Relations? Who are they? They ask nothing and the media explains nothing.

So, using the cultural revolution of the Soviet type and the Communist China type they're using here, where they try to create a distancing in the minds of the youth and the minds of adults. They had to separate the generations so that the youth would not be contaminated by the old ways of the adults. The adults thought that making a bit of money and eating well and stuff like that, the old memories they had weren't too bad at all, they were quite nice things, having entertainment that wasn't always political was kind of nice, but you see that was corrupting the youth so they had to separate them and here it's happening across the Western world and it's been for years but they don't say Communist or Cultural Revolution do they? And you'll never really connect it unless people like me say, this is what it is.

Back with more after this break.

Hi folks, I'm Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through the Matrix.
Just explaining how every big, major move forward into this big regime, this world regime, planned a long time ago, even all the stages of it and how it would be implemented. All the machinery was set up a long time ago too to bring on stages you haven't seen yet. You always find that they create machinery; they employ the people. They have organisations that are working on buildings, working on these projects and once they pass laws you find out they've already been doing it for a long, long time. That's always been the way in every direction. But they had to separate the children from the parents and they've done this for an awful long time, an awful long time using the same system and techniques they used during the cultural revolution for China, where eventually the youth grew up into teenagers and dragged their parents through the streets by the scruff of the neck and killed a lot of them because they were contaminated with old ideas of individuality and things like that when they're supposed to be a collective working together for the greater good. It's always for the greater good, isn't it? It's funny how the big bankers always sit up fat and happy for the greater good regardless of all the bad they cause every so many years when they plunder you. But propaganda works over memory and logic and that's the beauty of Bernays and public relations or propaganda techniques.

Here's an example of how they're doing it too, one example of many examples. I've given lots in the past of how they separate the generations. It wasn't invented, this idea, in China or Russia. You'll find it in the writings, even in the Fabian Society, going back into the late 1800's funded by the biggest millionaires on the planet.

This is from www.guardian.co.uk Henry Porter's Blog. It says:

"Paranoia In The Playground:

(A: Now they talk about a British mayor of a city.)

Listen to Mayor Dorothy Thornhill.

(A: Now remember that mayors belong to the National Mayor's Association, it's like the Police Chief's Association, same as in the US and Canada and they're international organisations now. So it's a movement you see. It isn't just a job for your local area. These belong to international movements.)

Her council has just banned parents from watching their own children at two council play areas in Watford. Quoted in the Watford Observer this evidently simple-minded woman says, "Sadly, in today's climate, you can't have adults walking around unchecked in a children's playground."
Instead of parents being able to watch and play with their own and other people's children at the Harwoods and Harebreaks recreation grounds, vetted council staff known as "play rangers" will be in charge.

(A: Now, I don't know if you realise that anyone who's got anything to do with a child now, and this is to go global, starting in Britain. Anyone who's got anything to do with looking after children at all has to go through tough, top MI5 type security checkouts. See they want to move it out to the parents themselves. Everyone has to be analysed under the microscope, every single person. Because, you see, you might contaminate that child with some strange comment you make about history or something you've experienced in life that you're not supposed to pass onto the youth with the version, the new version they're getting now you see. It says)

The mayor says that this enforces government policy.
Actually that's not true because no government policy has yet determined that parents maynot supervise their own children

(A: That's what he thinks.)

in a playground. It seems possible that the mayor and her appalling council may be in breach of article 8 of the Human Rights Act

(A: Well that's out the window now.)

– the right to family life.

(A: That's out the window because as I say, another one's already been passed, and people, it's so broad you see, that anyone who looks after a child, and people think 'that's babysitters and stuff' you hire. No, it's also the adults. So it says here)

A mother of three named Rebekah Makinson was quoted by reporter Neil Skinner as saying: "Banning parents from an open accessplayground, I feel, is a breach of our personal freedom."

(A: Well, I tell you, if you haven't noticed yet, you have no personal freedom, you haven't had it for a long time. Look at all the laws that have been passed, especially since 2001. It says here)

She is right. This is a fundamental breach of rights, but almost as serious is the offence to common sense. The council pretends that it is forced into this position to protect childrenunder the new vetting and barring scheme but as parents point out, the number of children using the play areas and the range of ages means that some parents want to keep an eye on their own children. Makinson said: "We have used Harwoods since I was a child and my mother stayed with me. It hasalways had a fantastic community atmosphere.

(A: That's what it's called. The Vetting and Barring Scheme.)

You see, they want to destroy the old ways and bring in the new community. It's called 'Commutarianism'. George Bush senior was the first to openly use that term after the United Nations promoted it, 'Commutarianism'. One day actually, they'll have all these little local events and if you don't turn up at the fair or the green day or whatever it happens to be, they'll come to your house to ask why you didn't attend. I'm not kidding, this is all coming up. You've to be part of the community whether you like it or not. And they'll say "Are you antisocial? Is that what it is?" That creates social approval and social disapproval. If you don't turn up you'll be disapproved of by all the fools that do turn up, all the PC people. These are all psychological techniques that are well in place.
This is what they're doing for parents, one of the many things they do for parents and now everyone has to get vetted by the government. Everybody's got to get vetted by the government, you see?

Interestingly enough in www.examiner.com, a routine, obviously a routine bill, was signed. I say routine because nothing is really debated. Everything is PC, everything is preplanned and when the other countries have done the same things you know darn well that it's a 'must be'. I call it 'must be' you see?

The 'Hate Crimes' bill was passed by Obama, he signed it. It says:

"Today, President Barack Obama is expected to sign the Matthew Shepard Hate Crimes bill into law

(A: That was on Oct. 28th. This is yesterday. It says here during a ceremony, a signing ceremony. They have ceremonies to sign things now)

Shepard's murder became a cause célèbre when his killers were accused of attacking and killing Shepard for being a homosexual.

(A: Now they always pick something like that to push something through that's much, much broader in scope and eventually it's applied to everything that's politically incorrect including, by the way, if you criticise government because in the Soviet Union, that's what happened. You know, that was the first law that Lenin signed was a 'hate' law, to stop people asking why only certain people seemed to be in charge of all groups? Then eventually, if you criticised any policy of Communism at all, that was called 'anti government'. 'Anti government', and where do you hear 'anti government' today? It's every other day in the papers, new laws, watching and looking, monitoring people who are 'anti government'.
Logically it would mean that any opposition party in power, if it was not in power in the top, opposition parties right, are technically 'anti government' because that's all they do is criticise the other side, isn't it? So if you ever get caught in that, use it as an excuse because that's going to be a big one, 'anti government'. Any policy you criticise "Oh that's anti government. You say "I'm only criticising the one policy here", "it doesn't matter, that's 'anti government'".
Remember what they said from the secretive committee that runs the EU parliament that we're all copying by the way. It's not democratic at all. They said that anyone who criticised the EU is a heretic. It's a religious term, isn't it? You know what they do with heretics. It says)

However, those who support this new federal law ignore the overwhelming evidence that Shepard's killers were unaware of his sexual orientation when they attacked him."

Well, it doesn't matter; they always use a poster boy you see? They've got to make the propaganda to make the public think 'this' is what it's all about, nothing to do with homosexuality, nothing at all. You wait and see as this is expanded across the board. There're actually cases in Canada, you see we've had it here for a while here in Canada and they, boy do they come down on you where there's even guys who mugged somebody, to rob them, and the judge said "what were you thinking? What was going through your thoughts when you robbed this particular person?" To see if there was any hate involved, not just a robbery. No kidding, this is how stupid it gets and how silly it gets. What were you thinking? Thought crime you know.
This is the new world order that Lenin talked about where they're all stepping on each other's toes, all these agencies. There's so many agencies you can't, I don't think my hard drive could keep count of all the agencies watching us all and are out there for government, there's so many. Never mind the United Nations ones. You know how many thousands of agencies they have?
Now we're going through all the nonsense too as they bring down the immune system of the public and believe you me I really did not want to come to the conclusion years ago that they were killing us off with vaccines until really, I went into the medicine of it all and realised I couldn't deny it.
Looking at the pre 1950's levels of certain diseases and the post 1950 levels of diseases and sterility and then to the 70's when you look at the incredible, skyrocketing, escalation of something that was incredibly rare such as autism and like any detective story you say "oh what's changed? Is it just the food diet? What is it?" Well, they certainly used a lot more processed food but it was inoculations that were getting pumped into them and you tie that together with depopulation and the need to reduce the population, spoken about at the League of Nations which was founded right after World War 1 that became the United Nations; it was one of the prime mandates of the department of population control. It must reduce the populations by all means possible.
Obviously they couldn't tell the public how they were doing it because they wouldn't get any volunteers I'd imagine. But they certainly have been doing it. And everyone would love to think it's just the big greedy pharma. No, pharma, the pharma industries belong to the same international bankers who lend the money to every country. It's only about twelve, thirteen banking families that do this. They also have the major controlling interests that started up all the major big pharma companies. They own that too and there's always a political motive for it just like Rockefeller, one of the biggest oil men on the planet funding something that you would think would go against his own industry. Well, he's already, he's planned the future. He plans the future, what society will be.

This article here is from the Philadelphia Bulletin Archives and it's from Oct 25th 2009. I've read it before from a different newspaper source but I'll reinforce it again, and we do need reinforcement. That's a technique they use on us, repetition. Repetition is sometimes what we need to get the truth out too, and it says:

"Gardasil Researcher Drops A Bombshell"

(A: And it's from Susan Brinkman for The Bulletin)

Dr. Diane Harper, lead researcher in the development of two human papilloma virus vaccines, Gardasil and Cervarix, said the controversial drugs will do little to reduce cervical cancer rates and, even though they're being recommended for girls as young as nine, therehave been no efficacy trials in children under the age of 15.

(A: And governments are mandating them down to the age of about 12, (with) no trials on children under the age of 15.)

Dr. Harper, director of the Gynecological Cancer Prevention Research Group at the University of Missouri, made these remarks during an address at the 4th International Public Conference on Vaccination which took place in Reston, Virginia on Oct. 2-4. Although her talk was intended to promote the vaccine, participants said they came away convinced the vaccine should not be received.
"I came away from the talk with the perception that the risk of adverse side effects is so much greater than the risk of cervical cancer, I couldn't help but question why we need the vaccineat all," said Joan Robinson, Assistant Editor at the Population Research Institute.

(A: A very important institute by the way)

Dr. Harper began her remarks by explaining that 70 percent of all HPV infections resolve themselves without treatment within a year.

(A: 70% of all human papilloma virus infections resolve themselves without treatment within a year)

Within two years, the number climbs to 90 percent. Of the remaining 10 percent of HPV infections, only half will develop into cervical cancer, which leaves little need for the vaccine.
She went on to surprise the audience by stating that the incidence of cervical cancer in the U.S. is already so low that "even if we get the vaccine and continue PAP screening, we will not lower the rate of cervical cancer in the US."
There will be no decrease in cervical cancer until at least 70 percent of the population is vaccinated, and even then, the decrease will be minimal.
Apparently, conventional treatment and preventative measures are already cutting the cervical cancer rate by four percent a year. At this rate, in 60 years, there will be a 91.4 percent decline just with current treatment. Even if 70 percent of women get the shot and required boosters over the same time period, which is highly unlikely, Harper says Gardasilcould still not claim to do as much as traditional care is already doing."

Well you better ask what it is really for. What is it really, really for? We know that girls are already dropping dead with it and the same Dr. Harper who also worked on the experimentation with these drugs admitted in a previous article, which I read, that it'll do no good at all and that the danger of taking it is worse than that which it would prevent.

Anyway, it won't stop them because propaganda, for most people, propaganda, Bernays was right, will overcome reason, logic and people will not seek knowledge. They're content with propaganda. That's why the world is so easily controlled by the big boys who can beat you and starve you and what you do, as one of the big boys said themselves and what do we do, do we turn round and fight? No, they turn round and eat their dead. And when you do fight it's just because you're getting starved or you're kicked out your homes en masse and there's nothing left to hold on to and then you're just a rabble. That's what they say at the top, 'then you're just rabble, an organised rabble.'
Boy, do they understand us!

Now this whole 'green tax' nonsense now, I mentioned an article last night, where the US is already in agreement with the EU to sign a tax bill so that US citizens, Canadian citizens and European citizens, this massive new Soviet, that's what this new Europe is, will all share the same tax base to save energy and be more efficient and finding green solutions to the planet and all that stuff you know. And this is from the Telegraph, this is what's coming and this is what's already coming in Britain.

"Green tax proposals 'would increase household energy bills by £800 a year' "(A: That's over $1600)

A proposed green tax to cut carbon emissions would lead to an £800 increase in the average annual household energy bill.

(A: And that’s per year by the way, and this is 27th Oct 2009)

Plans put forward by the Green Fiscal Commission, a Government-supported think tank,

(A: You see we’re run by all these independent, private think tanks which by the way are also owned and run by the foundations.)

would see the tax on gas and electricity rise every year.”

(A: Every year, up to 2020. Yep, better keep your old clothes, folks and lots of patches because you’ll be needing them because that’s all you’ll be wearing.
Back with more after this break)

Hi folks, I’m Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through the Matrix, just showing you what’s lined up and not just lined up. As I say, whenever they announce something they’ve already set up the institutions. The bureaucracies, they’re already working, they have everything in place and it’s a formality when they actually sign something, we’re already into it.

It’s like they’ve been spraying you for years using HAARP and weather modification of all kinds and then they tell you 10, 11 years later ‘Oh we’re thinking of geo-engineering the planet by spraying the atmosphere’. This is how they do it with everything because governments believe you me, don’t work quickly on anything. They can’t with the square wheels they have. It takes years in preparations to set up any part of any part of an agenda and I’m talking here about the taxation and how this greening is going to cost everybody massive amounts of money, that’s going to be the same and go up every year for the next 20, 30 years because you see, they’re signing this bill in Copenhagen shortly and Britain and the US and all these countries have said that they’ll cut back by 80-odd percent on emissions.
Do you understand you are an emitter? That means 80% of you have to be off the planet. That’s what it really means and Maurice Strong, the big man at the UN, is pulled across the world as the biggest technocrat that you know of, he’s got incredible powers and he has never been elected to any office by the public; the man who set up the ’92 meeting for the Earth Summit that bound us all under these amazing charters and the agenda. Maurice Strong when they pulled him into Canada, he was pulled in, off the UN and World Bank, and brought into Canada to privatise the electrical systems that the public had paid to have built and operated and that was back in the ‘80s and he said then that the world we’re bringing in here will be one (where) we’re not going to fix any nuclear reactors, we’re not going to build any new ones, we’re not going to maintain the old ones, you had to get used to using less and less energy. Only essential businesses and so on will have power supplies eventually given to them. Peasantry he’s talking about bringing the rest of the public to.

Back to this article, we’re just going through an agenda. We’re going through script here, that’s all we’re going through; it says that:

“This tax forms part of a £150 billion package of proposed measures, including a tripling of fuel duty over the next decade and a tax of up to £3,300 on new cars.”

(A: it’s amazing how they’ll spend spend spend while we’re all supposedly broke)

That’s over $6000. This is to dissuade you from buying news cars because under Agenda 21, for the 21st century, the United Nations, you will have no private cars just essential vehicles only. See it ties right in. And the rest of it is just the PR against it and so on and how poor we’ll all be and ya de ya de ya which we’re already supposed to figure out for ourselves.

I might just squeeze a caller in so is Dan from California there? Are you there Dan?

Dan “Hi Yes Alan I’m here, can you hear me?”

Alan “Yes”
Dan “Ok, yeah, I wanted to thank you for your broadcast. I downloaded everything that you have from the iTunes as podcasts and I carry those around with me on my iPod and listen to you on the public transportation to and from work and so I wanted to thank you for that and I want, I had, a quick comment and a question or two if we have time. I wanted to say first today I was walking outside, every day from work I’d go and take about a two mile walk to clear my head and I listen to your broadcast while I’m doing that and kind of as a break. I saw some people protesting the new tax increase in California and there was a huge crowd of people going down the street and they were being escorted by the San Diego Police Department. And so I kind of (thought) it seemed kind of nice that the police were allowing that and helping there.”
Alan “You’re right. Certain things are allowed other things are hammered by the cops so it’s politically correct to do this kind of stuff you see. But that’s the way it’s set up. It’s the same in the newspapers. All the right ones get all the exposure they want in the media and yet there’re protests against all the tax increases all the time that don’t get mentioned.

That’s the end of the show, there’s the music. So from Hamish and myself, from Ontario,
Canada it’s goodnight and may your god or your gods go with you.”

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Rockefellers Fund Global-warming Protests as Earth Cools" by Alex Newman (thenewamerican.com) - Oct. 27, 2009.

"Paranoia in the playground" by Henry Porter (guardian.co.uk) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"Hate crimes bill signed by Obama" by Jim Kouri (examiner.com) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"Gardasil Researcher Drops A Bombshell - Harper: Controversial Drug Will Do Little To Reduce Cervical Cancer Rates" by Susan Brinkmann (thebulletin.us) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"Green tax proposals 'would increase household energy bills by £800 a year' " by Murray Wardrop and Myra Butterworth (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 27, 2009.

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Oct. 30, 2009 (#441)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Oct. 30, 2009:
The Plan -- Eliminate the Old Type to Bring in New Man:
"Crisis Propaganda Used to Scare
Populations into Serfs, by Those Who Dare
Plan the Future to Ensure and Bring
Continued Dominance and Survival of Their Own Offspring,
Through Science They'll Create the Perfect Breed
Of Engineered Slaves Serving their Every Need,
While in the Process the Old Man Must Die,
New Slave is Efficient, No Dreams, Can't Cry,
Old Man Conned into Poverty, Starvin',
Logical, Pragmatic to Followers of Darwin"
&copy; Alan Watt Oct. 30, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Oct. 30, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on October 30th 2009. Newcomers look into .com web site. You'll find hundreds of hours of talks I've given in the past where I try to fill in the little gaps they leave out of the history books that they give to the school children. I show you how the world is planned. The future is always planned by those who have been in control of the past. George Orwell summed it up very well in his book 1984. That's how it's always been. So I try to, from their own official memoirs - bureaucrats especially, high bureaucrats are very fond of putting out their memoirs. I show you that things that are talked about and discussed at the big meetings, maybe 50 to 100 years ago, and how they outlined their agenda for the world, are all coming to pass. Even the stuff that they've released 20 years ago for the next 50 years or 100 years are all set up and in motion; the machinery is there. So I give you the clues to it and it's up to you to do the rest of the research yourself. You can't do it for everyone else. It's not necessary to go that far to try and get enough information to at least inform others around you. You always start with things they do understand, what they can comprehend, what's happening in their lives, what's changing their lives, and start from there. You can't overwhelm them with history and data. Once you've conditioned them into the REALITY of what's happening now, then you can start on them, if they have the ability to comprehend that.

You'll see all the other sites I've got on the .com web site, bookmark them for future use. That way, you can always download if I get pulled off the big sites again. That happens once in a while. Therefore, you can always download the latest shows from the alternate sites. You might find it easier because when everyone goes into the .com site at the same time, it tends to kind of be a bit slow. So you can choose from these other sites there. There's a whole bunch to choose from [listed above]. The last one I generally mention is alanwattsentientsentinel.eu, the European site. It has all the same audios as the rest and it has the addition of transcripts for download and print up of quite a few of the talks I've given, written in the various languages of Europe.

You bring me to you, you the listeners. I'm not backed by anybody. I'm not making a career out of this, believe you me. It's a necessity to come out now and share the knowledge that I've gleaned over my lifetime… before it's lost basically. You have to PASS knowledge on to each generation so at least some people will have a start in life. Most people don't get a start until they wake up much later on. Even then there are very few and then too, they fall into so many traps. There are those who control the traps out there and have you spinning off in different directions to keep you from getting the truth.

So you can keep me going buy buying the books and so on that I have for sale on the web sites, the disks and so on. There are also disks with 50 shows on them at a time, well worth it. You can also donate to me as well. The donate button is on each and every site through PayPal. [Payment options listed at top and bottom of transcript.] Some people just send cash. It's up to you to keep me going. The expenses are heavy here, heavy. I think the electricity went up about 3 times already this year and I've just got an announcement, it's going up again as they put in the Smart meters. Behind all the propaganda, it's not just to teach you to use less electricity and the cost increase of course that goes along with it, it's so they can monitor every part of the equipment in your house and how much you're using it. That's the real reason for it all. They've been doing this in other countries before Canada. See, we're global, folks… and they just haven't announced the new masters yet. They'll come out eventually… once no one cares. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Cutting through this fake reality that's been indoctrinated into us all and cutting through the upgrades or the downloads, you might call them, that we get everyday from the main stream, authorized media… that are simply prostitutes for those who rule. It's always been that way with media. It's just that the generation now have been trained to think that somehow it's an appendage to your brain; it's there to reason for you. That's what Brzezinski said in his own book, Between Two Ages. They KNOW this. They know this.

They've had such an awful name in past generations. People used to know that the media's job was propaganda on behalf of those who rule, the big politicos and magnates of power. They knew that but with about 30 years of giving us this amazing indoctrination, until you really truly think that it's there as some sort of official educational thing, that is so altruistically beautiful, that it's part of you. It's nothing of the kind. It's owned by private organizations.

In the British Commonwealth countries, we have our BBC versions. Canada's got the CBC. It's a spin off of the BBC, the official one. It's funded by the tax payer. It's to give us propaganda on behalf of the agendas, you see. NOT to enlighten you into knowing all the truth. We're never told all the truth on any particular topic. We're told spins on something to give us an opinion. We're all downloaded with the same opinions at the same time. Standardization of opinion, you see. It's a pity people forget that when they read media that there's agendas at work. Always. There have always been agendas at work. You have to go into the history of the newspapers to find out how they were run in the past. They are run exactly the same way today. They've got better PR that's all.

With everything else too, say the vaccinations for the so-called, so-called Swine flu. These scary scenarios we're getting… exactly what the World Health Organization said; they'd give us SCARY scenarios. You know… catastrophic doomsday scenariosto terrify us into compliance with whatever it is. We still think it's for the flu, but there'd be other reasons for this jab. Just like there have always been other reasons for the PREVIOUS jabs we all got. From the beginning, part of the problem with the World Health Organization was to reduce the population and they've been very successful at that - starting with the Western countries - until they admit, every year - and they give you the statistics every year - of the sperm count just plummeting in the Western male and infertility just skyrocketing. They never mention the word crisis beside it, which means it's obviously planned. Otherwise, it would BE a crisis. But it's not. It's the agenda. Therefore, there are other reasons for injections, inoculations… always.

We can't forget that Baxter Laboratories, on behalf of the World Health Organization, supposedly screwed up. Now, you don't get these top clearance laboratories full with I think 2, 3, 4, and 5 clearances that triple and quadruple check every single part or stage of working with viruses and all, they just happened to mix 2 viruses together. The common, so-called common flu being annual, what they suspect will be the annual flues this season and the bird flu and sent them off to be distributed across Europe. If that happened, it would have supposedly caused a pandemic.

Then we had the Canadian independent inquiry before they started the shots because they'd found… and I know where they found it from. It was from years ago from the World Health Organization. That if they gave the common flu first, they could also set up the patient to receive a more dangerous, viral flu type… by the introduction of the first flu shots that they got. So there's a hesitation initially here about giving out the flu [shot]. Then of course, they went back to their propaganda and pretended that they'd never mentioned it so they can get the thing going and people are coming down sick.

It's amazing though, I've read articles here about people just come down with it. The 'unfortunates,' as they say at the top. They know at the top roughly how much of the population will come down with 'dystonic' problems, as they call it. What they're telling you really, and covering up, is the fact you come down with an instant case of terminal phase multiple sclerosis. That's what you come down with. That's what you're coming down with folks… paralysis. You can hardly speak and you can't walk. That's what they give you… an INSTANT, ADVANCED case, a weaponized multiple sclerosis. Yes, the symptoms are 'dystonic.' That's a description, not an actual diagnosis.

Here's an article from Ireland that is from the Irish Independent.

Top insurer tells 1,000 GPs not to give swine flu vaccine
Wednesday October 14 2009 / Irish Independent / - Eilish O'Regan, Health Correspondent

An insurance company has warned 1,000 GPs not to administer the swine flu vaccine.

The HSE (Alan: This is their national health service, the socialized system that they have all over the place that the US is bringing into force.) plans to enlist family doctors to give the swine flu vaccine to patients with pre-existing medical conditions.

But an insurance company which covers around 1,000 of the 2,200 to 2,500 GPs in the country advised them not to sign up for the work because of legal indemnity issues.

The HSE has given GPs until today to sign up to give the vaccine to 400,000 of their patients with certain medical conditions from next week.

A later article from another paper said they're trying to pass it on to nurses to give it so they'll get the heat and not the GPs. And they want to give this stuff to people with pre-existing medical conditions. I'll tell you why. Under the eugenics scheme, they want to wipe out those who have any possibility of passing on certain, what they call weaknesses – medical weaknesses – on to their offspring. If you wipe them out and get rid of them, that's the end of their gene line isn't it. That's the reason for it folks. There's many reasons for the shot, many, many reasons and you'll never understand them until you make that final leap and cross the big river, at a single jump, and suspend your incredulity and toss it out the window and come into reality that they're actually not just starting, they've been doing this for a long time, a long time. People haven't a clue. People just haven't a clue what really is going on, ever… ever in their lives.

There is so much information out there about what's really happening and it's not getting out to the public at all. Here's The Telegraph. It's run all over the country. You have to go into Sweden to find out how many Americans have died with the jab already because they're not reporting it in the US. You're just statistics and numbers, 'unfortunates' as they say. You're the unfortunates. High bureaucrats don't have us… you're not Joan Smith or whoever. You're a number and that's how you go down. You're not real to them at the top. They always come out with 'it's for the greater good' and all that kind of stuff, all that rubbish. Even those guys are not at that level of understanding of what's really going on. There are BIG plans for this massive nonsense that you'll never figure out. We'll start dying off quicker regardless, over the next few years because that's how they introduced the massive cancers that have skyrocketed for the last 30, 40 years. They've got to reduce the population. Al Gore and all the boys say so. They're all telling you, 'we've got to bring the population down.' Yep, we're not dying fast enough. So what do they do? They're very practical at the top, they make it happen. And you don't tell the children you're killing them. We are the children… regardless of your age.

Boy rushed to hospital after swine flu jab
By Lisa Smyth / Tuesday, 27 October 2009 / Belfast Telegraph

The safety of Northern Ireland's swine flu vaccination programme was called into question today by the parent of a young special needs pupil who ended up in hospital just hours after getting the jab. (A: Remember, if it happens a day or two days after, you're not included under the causes of the jab causing your death.)

Anne Marie Fletcher said she feared her 15-year-old son Rhys was going to die as she rushed him to hospital less than 24 hours after receiving the swine flu vaccine. (A: It doesn't say here in this report by the way… keep this in mind... they've been encouraging everyone to get the so-called common flu vaccine, annual shot BEFORE the Swine flu that sets you up for the Swine flu. Remember that? It's what Canada said. They're not telling you if this little boy got that beforehand either, before the Swine flu vaccine.)

The teenager fell seriously ill after receiving the injection, along with thousands of other pupils across Northern Ireland last Friday. He was later diagnosed with swine flu. (A: He got Swine flu from the jab.)

"My husband drove us to Antrim (Area Hospital) and I sat in the back with Rhys," she told the Belfast Telegraph.

"By this stage he was going into spasms. He couldn't bend his fingers. I was absolutely terrified.

"He was rambling and becoming incoherent. I honestly thought he was going to die in the back of the car.

"He kept saying he wanted to sleep but I wouldn't dare let him close his eyes because I was frightened that if I did he would never wake up."

The Public Health Agency, the organisation tasked with managing Northern Ireland's response to the swine flu pandemic, has stated clearly that anyone suffering from flu-like symptoms should remain at home and contact their GP by telephone. (A: So if this guy had stayed at home… he would have been dead. Why would they tell them to keep them at home? Hmm?)

The experience of the Fletcher family from Carrickfergus calls into question whether Government protocols regarding the handling of swine flu are being followed. It is the latest episode to shake public confidence after the family of a Londonderry teenager who died with the virus was not informed she had it until after her funeral.

Some 2,500 children in over 20 special schools for severe learning disability across Northern Ireland were offered the vaccine last week after four pupils died with the virus this month. (A: Who's dying off? Well, you know those gene pools they don't want. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There are quite a few sites up right now discussing this particular World Health Organization memo from 1972. I'll put one up tonight and you can check it out for yourself and follow and actually go into the medical site they send you to, to download the PDF of an investigation into the ability of using vaccines which would bring down… it would kill people by the exact same methods that Canada was worried about recently. Getting the previous shots, the so-called common flu or annual flu shots, that they keep changing and you might end up being more prone and actually come down with the killer flu, with the second shot, the Swine flu shot. In 1972 they knew this stuff.

This is from a site that's called fightbackh1n1.com. I'll put that up tonight. It says…

WHO memos 1972 explains how to turn vaccines into a means of killing fightbackh1n1.com

Two key memorandums from WHO, discovered by Patrick Jordan, prove WHO has intentionally created the three-shot killer vaccine that people in the USA and other countries could soon be forced to take. (A: They've actually found that they could bring it down to 2. They can actually mix the Avian flu with the first one, in the common one, the so-called common flu virus. It names the memoranda's here.)

1972 WHO Bulletin 47, No 2 Memordanda #1 and #2 Virus-associated immunopathology:

Animal models and implications for human disease * technically outline the ability to create biological weapons in the form of vaccines that:

1) First totally disable the Immune System.

2) Load every cell of the Victim's body up with Infection.

3) Switch the Immune System on causing the host to kill themselves(A: In what you've heard recently - this is from 1972 by the way - but you've heard it only recently. The Canadians obviously came across the same thing as they were backtracking previous records.) in a Cytokine Storm.(A: That's where all your white blood fighters come into play, storm into the lungs to fight this virus. Then you literally drown in them. You drown in them, there's so many that come in.)

One, Two, Three, Dead.

These WHO Memorandas describe the three-stage impact of the three "shots" many people will be forced to take this fall to allegedly treat a virus that WHO also helped create and release.

This is a crucial piece of evidence of WHO's long-term genocidal intentions(A: You'd better believe, you'd better believe… most folk would never believe it. They're too brainwashed that 'people would never do that.' That's how they get away with it in the real world.) that could stand in any court of law because these memorandums give the best and fullest explanation WHO's and affiliated labs (such as the CDC) current activities, such as their patenting of the most lethal bird flu viruses (A: And they did. They patented them.), their sending that virus to Baxter's subsidiary in Austria, which weaponised it and sent out 72 kilos to 16 labs in four countries almost triggering a global pandemic. (A: That's true. I read it in mainstream papers maybe a month or two months ago.)

For every crime, there needs to be motive, an indication that it was deliberate, planned. The WHO memorandums provide the evidence of just that deliberate, long-term planning to kill people by weakening their immune system by use of the first vaccine, injecting a live virus into their body by a second (A: But they can actually couple the two together in the first one.), and creating a cytokine storm using squalene in a third. (A: That's true. Squalene will actually weaponize. It's not just your own body going into a natural state of protecting you. It weaponizes your natural immune response and you can't turn it off. You'll drown in your lung tissue basically.)

So it's official. You can actually read it yourself. They've known this all along. They know EXACTLY what they're doing.

Download the WHO Memoranda on:
http://www.pubmedcentral.nih.gov/tocrender.fcgi?iid=169484

Scroll down until you find:

Memoranda
Virus-associated immunopathology : animal models and implications for human disease: (A: That is what it's under.)
1. Effects of viruses on the immune system, immune-complex diseases, and antibody-mediated immunologic injury

2. Cell-mediated immunity, autoimmune diseases, genetics, and implications for clinical research

Bull World Health Organ. 1972; 47(2): 265?274
PMCID: PMC2480896

http://www.pubmedcentral.nih.gov/picrender.fcgi?artid=2480896&blobtype=pdf
Bull World Health Organ. 1972; 47(2): 257?264.
PMCID: PMC2480894

Since 1972 they've know this. All the links are on here and you can look them up for yourself and come to your own conclusions. It's up to you. OR you can listen to the propaganda and go along with it. You'll be amongst the majority then. That's how most things work. Propaganda wins over fact or reason… as it's been proven in many, many, many previous generations.

This next article is about Sweden.

Swedish media reporting fake swine flu cases to scare population
Mise à jour le Vendredi, 30 Octobre 2009 / Johan Niklasson

Today Aftonbladet claims 80,000 people in Sweden are infected with the "swine flu" H1N1 virus. Last week the official "confirmed" number of new cases were below 350. (A: You see, we're getting it in every country. These massively inflated cases… if they even exist at all.) With dramatic graphs (A: That's what they use. Dramatic graphs…) and bold faced fonts, Aftonbladet is apparently trying to scare as many as possible into believing the H1N1 virus to be a severe risk to their health. (A: I'll be back with more after this break and read the rest of this article.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article about how governments across the world, this is particularly Sweden, are massively inflating the figures to terrify the public so they'll rush in and get their shots and all the rest of it.

Today Aftonbladet claims 80,000 people in Sweden are infected with the "swine flu" H1N1 virus. Last week the official "confirmed" number of new cases were below 350. With dramatic graphs and bold faced fonts, Aftonbladet is apparently trying to scare as many as possible into believing the H1N1 virus to be a severe risk to their health. The same paper claims that the Pandemrix vaccine, which today was forbidden in Switzerland for use on pregnant women and adults below 18 and above 60 - that very same vaccine to be the only rescue. (A: For the Swedish population. So it's banned in Switzerland but they're going to use it in Sweden. Amazing eh?) "Hundreds of thousands might be sick by Christmas", warns the news paper.

In the same article it is claimed that so far 2.126 Swedes have been confirmed to have had the H1N1 virus. Johan Carlson, the chief at The Swedish Institute for Infectious Disease Control (SMI) claims that between 50.000 and 80.000 in reality are infected. (A: They keep giving you these massive, inflated figures and they can't prove it because of all their graphs. They love crayons, you know, crayons and the little jerky movements and that's what they call a graph. As long as it goes up, they're happy.)

The daily propaganda is unprecedented and when readers are given an opportunity to comment on the propaganda articles, many see their comments disappear within seconds. (A: And that's how it's done.)

The new strategy is to erase comments to the propaganda articles without sending the normal notification. In this way, those who comment in an article and have their comment removed will not know it is taken from the site.

Sweden and its very much controlled media is now showing its true face, implementing tactics worthy of the former Soviet Union and Communist East Germany. The Swedish Socialist system has been praised by many world leaders and is called "The Swedish Model". (A: That's true. The avant-garde, you know.) It is based on payment slavery and full control of all vital functions in society by a political control group. There is no real freedom in Sweden and the people have been so intensely indoctrinated from early years to the extent they think they want this system. (A: It's true. They like authorities. You can train people to be happy slaves and give them little freebies and things and there will be a nanny state until that phase is over. It's only to get them under the spell, then they hit you with the big stick and tell you what to do and you obey because you're used to obeying. See. Trained, you've been trained to do it. It's startling; really it's true.)

There's a web site there, I've read it before and it's called the Green Agenda. Excellent site and it has so many quotes on it that are on other sites as well but they really put it down concisely to do with terrifying the public and bringing down the population and global warming and all that rubbish. They give you references and quotes to do with this particular thing. I've read this one before from the Club of Rome. Remember, they were the premier environmental think tank and the consultants to the United Nations. The founders wrote a book called The First Global Revolution and said it was back in the 70s – they wrote this in their book – they were looking for a way to unite humanity under a new paradigm basically, a new cause to bring us all together but it had to be under a warfare scenario. So they looked around at all the different possibilities. Under a warfare scenario, or a big threat and big danger, we all allow the governments to dominate us. We work hard for government and we do with less food, less this and less that, the rationing and all that stuff, and even ID cards. So they said this,

Quotes from "The Green Agenda" (green-agenda.com)

"The common enemy of humanity is man. In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill. All these dangers are caused by human intervention, and it is only through changed attitudes and behavior that they can be overcome. The real enemy then, is humanity itself."
- Club of Rome, premier environmental think-tank, consultants to the United Nations
(A: That's the premier environmental think-tank set up to find an agenda, find possible scientific, sci-fi solutions to it and they are the consultants to the United Nations.)
~~~~~~
(A: They have all these professors on the board of this international policy study group on climate change, the IPCC. Here's what one of them said, Professor Stephen Schneider.)

"We need to get some broad based support, to capture the public's imagination... So we have to offer up scary scenarios, make simplified (A: See, we're all very simple at the bottom.), dramatic statements and make little mention of any doubts... Each of us has to decide what the right balance is between being effective and being honest."
- Prof. Stephen Schneider, Stanford Professor of Climatology, lead author of many IPCC reports (A: for the United Nations.)
~~~~~~
"We've got to ride this global warming issue. Even if the theory of global warming is wrong, we will be doing the right thing in terms of economic and environmental policy."
- Timothy Wirth, President of the UN Foundation
~~~~~~
"No matter if the science of global warming is all phony... climate change provides the greatest opportunity to bring about justice and equality in the world."
- Christine Stewart, former Canadian Minister of the Environment
(A: These guys all get their salaries off this con game.)
"The data doesn't matter. We're not basing our recommendations on the data. We're basing them on the climate models."
(A: You know, the specially made computer ones that give them the answers that they want.)
- Prof. Chris Folland, Hadley Centre for Climate Prediction and Research
~~~~~~
"The models are convenient fictions that provide something very useful." [Alan laughing.]
- Dr David Frame, climate modeler, Oxford University
~~~~~~
(A: Al Gore, the guy who was given the job of being the front man for all of this by his big pals at the top. He's quite the allegory isn't he?)
"I believe it is appropriate to have an 'over-representation' of the facts (A: Meaning a massive exaggeration.) on how dangerous it is, as a predicate for opening up the audience."
(A: So terrify them all with this coming catastrophe by over-representation because it's not a catastrophe at all. It's to bring us all under a new system of slavery, folks.)
~~~~~~

- Al Gore, Climate Change activist
~~~~~~

"It doesn't matter what is true, it only matters what people believe is true."
- Paul Watson, co-founder of Greenpeace
~~~~~~

"Unless we announce disasters no one will listen."
- Sir John Houghton, first chairman of IPCC
~~~~~~

"The only way to get our society to truly change is to frighten people with the possibility of a catastrophe."
- emeritus professor Daniel Botkin
~~~~~~

(A: What a con it is. The whole world is just a big stage of comedians.)
"The climate crisis is not a political issue, it is a moral and spiritual challenge to all of humanity. (A: So it’s a spiritual challenge, you see.) It is also our greatest opportunity to lift Global Consciousness to a higher level."
-Al Gore, Nobel Peace Prize acceptance speech
(A: Guess who’s guiding the whole way… this new religion of greening and so on, of depopulation and starvation for all… except them of course. They made a good job in Russia, the Soviet system, didn’t they?)
~~~~~~

"We are on the verge of a global transformation. All we need is the right major crisis..."
- David Rockefeller, Club of Rome executive member
(A: Boy, he’s in all these top, top organizations isn’t he? He funds all these organizations across the planet. His big PR crew - I think he hires ALL of Madison Avenue - come out with the T-shirts and distribute them all to school children all across the world, the same banners across the world so they’ll all be on TV across the world at the same time demanding government do exactly what Mr. Rockefeller wants. [Alan laughing.]
~~~~~~

"Humanity is sitting on a time bomb. If the vast majority of the world's scientists are right, we have just ten years to avert a major catastrophe that could send our entire planet's climate system into a tail-spin of epic destruction involving extreme weather, floods, droughts, epidemics and killer heat waves beyond anything we have ever experienced - a catastrophe of our own making."
-Al Gore, An Inconvenient Truth
(A: Boy, oh boy.)
~~~~~~

"We are getting close to catastrophic tipping points, despite the fact that most people barely notice the warming yet." [Alan laughing.] (A: That’s because we’re all cutting back on our heat because you’re punishing us all for using energy.)
- Dr James Hansen, NASA researcher
~~~~~~

"By the end of this century climate change will reduce the human population to a few breeding pairs surviving near the Arctic."
- Sir James Lovelock, Revenge of Gaia
(A: The Gaiaist, you see, mother earth.)
~~~~~~

"Climate Change will result in a catastrophic global sea level rise of seven meters. That's bye-bye most of Bangladesh, Netherlands, Florida and would make London the new Atlantis."
- Greenpeace International
(A: What did they say, scary scenarios eh?)
~~~~~~

"This planet is on course for a catastrophe. The existence of Life itself is at stake."
- Dr Tim Flannery, Principal Research Scientist
(A: What’s going to get us first, the bird flu or the heat waves or whatever, eh?)
~~~~~~

"Coal makes us sick. Oil makes us sick. It's global warming. It's ruining our country. It's ruining our world."
- Harry Reid, U.S. Senate majority leader
~~~~~~

"Climate Change is the greatest threat that human civilization has ever faced."
- Angela Merkel, German Chancellor
(A: Boy, they have all their clowns in the right places at the right time don’t they? They always do though don’t they?)
~~~~~~
(A: Barack Obama, the guy who’s never even run a french-fry outlet or a fast food chain. Nothing, you know. Suddenly he’s an expert.)
"Climate change is real. Not only is it real, it's here, and its effects are giving rise to a frighteningly new global phenomenon: the man-made natural disaster."
- Barack Obama, US President
~~~~~~
(A: Arnold Schwarzenegger… oh God, look at all the movies he’s been in, disaster movies where he slaughters everybody.)
"We simply must do everything we can in our power to slow down global warming before it is too late."
- Arnold Schwarzenegger, Governor of California
(A: They’re all on board aren’t they?)
~~~~~~
(A: Of course, Prince Charley boy who’s been in trouble recently for basically selling off a whole township of villagers [laughing] so something can get built in that place instead… after all his spiel about saving the environment. That’s another story.)
"Climate change should be seen as the greatest challenge to ever face mankind."
- Prince Charles
~~~~~~
(A: Gordon Brown, the Fabian.)
"Climate change makes us all global citizens, we are truly all in this together."
- Gordon Brown, British Prime Minister
(A: The exact conclusion that The Club of Rome came up with when they came up with their whole scenario and I’ll read it from the beginning, that first one again. It’s so important.)
~~~~~~
"The common enemy of humanity is man. In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill. All these dangers are caused by human intervention, and it is only through changed attitudes and behavior that they can be overcome. The real enemy then, is humanity itself."
- Club of Rome, premier environmental think-tank, consultants to the United Nations
~~~~~~

They’ve got all the propagandists in place called, so-called, world leaders. And you think you voted them in? You THINK you voted them in. We’ve got to be ALL on board. They even have institutions you know, foundations that’s main job is to fund thousands of professional people to go around to other foundations, NGOs and all these politicians to build CONSENSUS; ‘Are we all on board on this now?’ ‘Well, not quite sure…’ as they slip cash under the table and they get surer and surer the heavier their hand becomes. THAT’S how it works. And their careers are guaranteed to go up the ladder, you see. We’ve never been run by the truth. Under this global system, they’ve got a lot of big plans for all of us. Not very nice.

They’ve got to get good excuses for bringing you into poverty, into a world of servitude. They’re bringing down the food supply. They will bring it down, bit by bit. They’re banning meat all together. They said it’s going to be a vegetarian world. They’re paying farmers to grow bio-fuels. Bio-fuels… even though they’ve said in their own Agenda 21 that onlyauthorized vehicles in the future, authorized, essential vehicles will be on the road. WE won’t be driving. It’s all a big plan to stop and halt and bring down the food production and leave the big 5 agri-business boys in control of all food supplies in the world. Then they will ration it out to you. Yep. That way you can fight global warming and fight the ice age. You can fight who ever they bring along, and all the flues, you’ll be fighting it all, and you’re ‘all in it together.’ You’ll get your rations every week but you MUST serve the world state. Each region, as they marked off the world in, is to be dispensed its food in a quota system. They’ll bring down the quota every year and say, ‘oh, we just can’t feed the world.’ ‘So it’s up to you, that region there, to bring down your population. How you do it is your problem, but we can’t help, sorry.’ I’m not kidding, I’ve read their books; I know where it’s all going. I know where it's all going.

This is an article from The Telegraph. Now, I've talked about this too but it's still going on. I've talked about the sterility amongst males, massively. I've gone through the bisphenol A and all the other things that they put in your food, even baby food… melamine they put in baby food which REALLY brings down the sperm count. They put all the different stuff in the cosmetics for women. They know darned well what they're doing. Literally, if she's pregnant with a boy in the womb, between 8 and 12 weeks, he pretty well will turn into a rather puny male and be sterile. They have known this for oh… 60-odd years, they've been doing it. They found it out in the late 1890s in experiments. They made sure it was going to go into the food including putting it IN the baby food for bulk. You're eating plastic. And you think they're out to help you. So, The Telegraph…

Why boys are turning into girls
Gender-bending chemicals are largely exempt from new EU regulations, warns Geoffrey Lean.
23 Oct 2009 / The Telegraph

Girls will be girls and boys will be girls: everyday 'gender-bending' chemicals are feminising increasing numbers of babies. Here's something rather rotten from the State of Denmark. Its government yesterday unveiled official research showing that two-year-old children are at risk from a bewildering array of gender-bending chemicals in such everyday items as waterproof clothes, rubber boots, bed linen, food, nappies (A: That's diapers.), sunscreen lotion and moisturising cream. (A: It's in shampoos and everything. That's why it's in there, in fact.)

The 326-page report, published by the environment protection agency, is the latest piece in an increasingly alarming jigsaw. (A: I've been talking about this for years and so have other people. It's only because of that, that this kind of article is even appearing in the paper, by the way. It's given with almost a humorous content.) A picture is emerging of ubiquitous chemical contamination driving down sperm counts and feminising male children all over the developed world. And anti-pollution measures and regulations are falling far short of getting to grips with it. (A: Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Just before I take a caller that's long distance, I'll just mention that The Mail Online has announced that there's a snooper census, a big census for the UK and across other parts of Europe too. They've going to ask the name, sex and birth date of every person who's ever slept overnight in your house. There's freedom for you, eh. Can't you get where we're going?

The snooper's census: 2011 survey will ask for the name, sex and birth date of all our 'overnight visitors'
By James Chapman / 26th October 2009

The demand for the number of bedrooms in each home, coupled with a requirement to give the name, sex, date of birth and address of any overnight visitors, amounted to 'bedroom snooping', they said.

Now we'll go to the phone. There's Ari in Tel Aviv. Are you there Ari?

Ari: Hi. I just had a quick question. What are your thoughts on how Australia will go into the planned agenda?

Alan: Australia is to go right into this Far-Eastern bloc of countries. That was planned; even Karl Marx talked about it. The Royal Institute of International Affairs sent out and started a section for them, like the Council on Foreign Relations but a section called the Institute for Pacific Relations. They were working with China and all the Far-Eastern countries for the last 80 years on this very project of bringing in this bloc that they just now have announced… It's well underway. They have the machinery set up. Now it's just a matter of formalities going through and propagandizing the public into the necessity for security sake. 'No country can go it alone,' for pandemics and all this kind of stuff, or even for security. So they're getting lumped in with that, but China will be the boss over them and Japan. Their biggest problem, of course, is getting Australia, the citizenry, gradually worked up to the acceptance of this, and Japan as well, of course.

Ari: Where do you think we'll be the last place or maybe the safest place to be once things really get underway? I seems like it's a really scary situation right now with what seems to be about to happen in the United States. So, I'm just wondering if there were any other places that you thought might be a better place to kind of shelter it out.

Alan: You'd have to go to almost a third world country that doesn't have the machinery of military, police, officialdom, bureaucracy or money to implement the totally controlled society that all the other countries, the so-called first world countries, have. And countries that are not too interested with oil or anything like that, at the moment. That's what you'd have to look at. There are only a few places left to be honest with you and then you'd maybe have to rough it. You can't just run off to get a doctor or a hospital any time of the night or day. If you're willing to do that, you could probably live the rest of your life before they eventually catch up and doing the same there. Those will be the last countries where the money gets pumped in and the rapid deployment forces move in to bring in the same system.

Ari: Okay. This is kind of an unrelated topic. I saw a video of you on YouTube talking to a gentleman by the name of Cold Creek and I'm not sure if you're familiar with the video but he was a caller into your show and he was talking about the Masonic influence on culture creations and hip hop in particular. He mentioned KRS1, there was some discussion about that and I saw some imagery, some videos about him as well. But I also know that he works, or he's… I don't know how closely related he is but I know he's involved with Alex Jones who is supposedly fighting an information war against this planned agenda. Do you have any other thoughts about that?

Alan: No. He just called in a couple of times. I never looked up his information. I've spoken to lots more, rappers and different people in the industry. I know exactly how they're being managed. They're quite right with Masonic influence behind it all. Most of them are encouraged to join the O.T.O. Most musicians are and they have been since the 60s. Thanks for calling. I might look into that myself later.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada where it's pouring rain with the heavy, heavy spraying and then down comes the rain as always, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Top insurer tells 1,000 GPs not to give swine flu vaccine" by Eilish O'Regan (independent.ie) - Oct. 14, 2009.

"Boy rushed to hospital after swine flu jab" by Lisa Smyth (belfasttelegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 27, 2009.

"WHO (World Health Organization) memos 1972 explains how to turn vaccines into a means of killing".

"Swedish media reporting fake swine flu cases to scare population" (theflucase.com) - Oct. 30, 2009.

Quotes from "The Green Agenda" (green-agenda.com).

"Why boys are turning into girls - Gender-bending chemicals are largely exempt from new EU regulations, warns Geoffrey Lean." (telegraph.co.uk) - Oct. 23, 2009.

"The snooper's census: 2011 survey will ask for the name, sex and birth date of all our 'overnight visitors' " by James Chapman (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 26, 2009.

"Not by Fire but by Ice: THE NEXT ICE AGE - NOW!" [Some Humorous Items] (iceagenow.com).

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 2, 2009 (#442)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 2, 2009:
The Future Ain't What it Used to Be:
"Populations Trained to be on Same Track
 By Propagandists Unleashing Attack on Attack
 Of Scary Scenarios until Public Learn
 Avoiding Catastrophe means Giving All They Earn
 To World Guardians, The Special Breed,
 Who'll Decide for You Just What You Need,
 Fear-Mongering Masters, P.R. Fiction, Causality, Programming Experts Give Each New Reality"
 &copy; Alan Watt Nov. 2, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 2, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November the 2nd 2009. As always, I suggest newcomers look into .com web site where you can find hundreds of hours of talks I've given in the past where I try and fill up a lot of the blank holes… or the black holes really… we have in history; the type that's presented to us in school and even beyond, on the History channels and all the rest of it. To try to show you how things really work and to show you that the world is always GUIDED from generation to generation by those in power, with incredible wealth, very old families who don't want to give up power, naturally and so therefore, they make sure that the next generation will be their children's generation. You'll be in charge of it then. It's been like that for an awful, awful long time. Money rules. It doesn't matter what money is… money rules. Those with it rule the world. We simply are given a fictitious reality that's always being updated for us to live in to serve them better at the top. So go into .com web site. When you're there, scroll down and you'll see all the other sites I have up… in case some of the big sites have problems again, which they will have; I know that. You can bookmark them. [Sites listed above.] alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site. It has all the same audios but it has the addition of transcripts of a lot of these talks which you can download for print up and you have choices of different languages of the world in there.

Remember, you are the listeners who bring me to you. I'm not backed by a foundation. I'm not backed by staff or anything else or any advertisers. Advertisers that you hear on the show pay directly to the RBN station to pay for their air time, their staff, their equipment and their bills… which are always going up, as everybody at home also knows. It's going to go up an awful lot more too. So it's up to you to keep me going. You can do so by buying the things I have for sale on the web site or donating to me. How to do it is also on the web sites. [Options listed at top and bottom of transcript.] Some people just send cash and that bypasses the guy with the podgy fingers and the triple chins that no matter how he sinks the world, always seems to benefit by the governments that he put in place. That's the reality of the world that we live in. So it's up to you how you do it. You can also order by PayPal as well if you email me separately and let me know the order is coming in.

We really live in an agenda. I try to get that across every time I'm on, as frequently as I can. We're living through nothing but an agenda as we go through our lives. So did our parents live through an agenda. Until you study history, and I mean REAL history, not just the stuff that's churned out. I can't believe the surveys that they're doing proving that it works, that the people get their history from Hollywood and the History Channel, but that's true. That's where they get it from. From dramas… re-creations… and that's not history at all. That's just more padding over the fiction that we're given, starting at school. Power and money rules the world… in a commercialized system, a system that counts on money and those obviously who are in charge of that money are in charge of the world. It's been like that for a long time. Actually the world is their goal. We're finalizing the final act and we're living right through it. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix is the reality that's given to you. Over the weekend I watched the Clinton Chronicles, which is interesting of course, about the type of psychopaths they put in front of you and how they give you an image for Presidency and how that sticks… because the media makes it stick. They give you little tit tats to gobble up… and trivia. And people fall for it. You understand, when you understand what Clinton was doing… and his psychopathic nature and his drug habits - as opposed to the image that they projected to the world – and the money laundering and all that stuff to do with Arkansas when he was the governor and went on afterwards too. It tells you one thing that stands out… that he was not running the country. HE was not running it. A coke-head does not run the country. They PUT IN these psychopaths. They can depend on them, absolutely, 100%, to do what they're told and to fulfill the role that they've been put into. No different from Obama. The guys they put into politics at the top are meant to take the heat. The guy at the top is not the boss. It's always the guy behind them that really is the boss.

It reminds me of when you look at the history of Africa and the different invasions they had from all the different colonial regimes that were taking over… Britain, France and other countries into Africa. Germany tried but they were kicked out by a combination of them all. You find that one thing that surprised them after a while. You see, the technique was always to get to talk to the leaders of the tribes. A whole bunch of people would come up to meet these troops. One of them would come forward as a leader and start talking and communicating. In reality, it took them a few years to catch on that these people were not stupid at all. The leader was standing back amongst the crowd and a front man, a front man, had been earmarked for destruction by the British or the French or whoever it was. They were not stupid.

It's the same technique that's used for the public. They give you these characters for the Punch and Judy Show of politics. Yes, they're sworn to do what they're told. They'll get a lot of freebies. Whatever mess they get into in their personal lives, as they go through it, like Clinton, there are always TEAMS of people going in to mop up and clean up and threaten people or beat them up or even kill them… to cover up. That's the real world we live in. It's very important that the IMAGE of the press that they put over is the one that TAKES with the public. That's the whole point of it, in fact.

Professor Carroll Quigley said the same thing, it doesn't matter. They always have their own people at the top… of ALL parties. You find that you have presidents that are always members of the right clubs… the Council on Foreign Relations. You got to go in to the fact that the main advisors behind them, the GLOBAL advisors because it's a GLOBAL agenda. That's why every part of the world, for my whole life, that signed on to the United Nations works in concert with the same laws going every area at the same time. It doesn't matter when they went in to the EU, as they called it then, or outside the EU or just part of the British Commonwealth, or supposedly separate sovereign states, they were ALL going along with the same agenda at the same time.

Therefore, they put in one President in the US after another and you always vote the last one out you're so fed up with them. That's what happens. Left wing, right wing, left wing, right wing… you know, you get so fed up with them. It depends how long they want to keep them in, a second term or whatever, by the amount of good PR that's sold it to the public. It's all PR. It's a public relations image. You'll never know what these real people are until they're out… when someone comes forward and writes the book on it with all the inside info. It doesn't matter then, you see. It doesn't matter.

They can put in people who are even communists. They put a LEADER of the communist party for Canada in as Prime Minster here. That was Pierre Trudeau… little rich boy. People can't quite put that together, that little rich boys are into communism because it's really socialism. Where the elite, the intellectual intelligentsia and who have made lots of money and proven their worth…have the right to rule the lessers. That's what it's about.

Francis Bacon gave a bunch of writings to the King. In it, he talked about how to handle the common people. He said, the public must never know the truth, the REAL reasons and machinations of government policies… on ANYTHING. ON anything. Anything at all. Why do you think that everything from police departments, to medicine, to everything goes through public relations spokespeople? That's called PROPAGANDA. That's the proper name for public relations. It was called propaganda. It got a bad rap after World War I when it was found out that Bernays and other people had worked to drum up all the reasons to go to war with Germany. They were all lies. They used old bayonet stuff too. 'Oh, they're over there bayoneting the children' and stuff like that. All that worked so well. Massive propaganda campaign. Then afterwards, out came the truth. Some of them couldn't keep their mouth shut, they were so cocky and big headed, that worked on the particular team to bring in America. They actually said they advertised the war to the Americans, they advertised it. It's never stopped. In fact, it's better now than ever, the techniques.

Every day I get the latest stuff send to me, what's upsetting people from the major media. See, the major media, if there's something that that upsets you, it's MEANT to upset you. Part of it is always to raise consciousness by getting you arguing with your neighbors or your family about certain topics. Anther part of course, is naturally publicity for the newspaper. It brings a LOT of people in to see. They see the ads and all the rest of it too, at the same time. As long as you swallow the main thing and you fall into the emotion arguments, you've lost. That was the intention of it. That was the intention, just like a Trojan that comes through your internet and crashes your computer. It embeds itself.

We've always been given our realities, including all the revolutions that we had, that people thought came from themselves. That's astonishing, isn't it? People think that THEY created the sexual revolution themselves and they created the fashions that went with it, the music that went with it, the movies that went with it and the whole culture industry behind it just had followed you along, eh? Revolution after revolution. All planned. All written about long before they did it. You can even see where they tried it out in experiments in other areas in previous years BEFORE HAND. We're given our reality constantly. It's constantly updated… and never told the truth. That's the fact.

The media is the 'middle man'. Their job is to take the reality the rulers want the media to project down to the public and to get you into debates about the fake reality that they're projecting down to you - the arguments and all the rest of it - without ever going into the real reasons behind anything. Even to do with depopulation and all the rest of it. There's a lot of articles coming out across the world right now on how Malthusian policies were correct and we should make him a champion and all that stuff. That's called a media blitz. That's the intention… to get you all upset and take you arguing as 'maybe they're right, maybe…', 'I don't think so,' 'they could be', and blah, blah, blah.

They're training you for the next step - that we're ALL going to be faced with – as they bring the populations down drastically. That's what all this nonsense about carbon in the atmosphere is about, and sustainability, and food restrictions coming, and all that stuff. This is to get you used to dying off basically. Not all at once, hopefully. It's too messy. These guys with the white shirts don't get out and bury you with a spade. No, they want YOU to bury each other. That's what they've done in previous times. They don't like getting messy. In fact, they don't like work at all, but they're very good at planning realities for the general public. They create crisis in every area. Suddenly everything - in every field - every area is a crisis.

They've given us since 2001 one crisis after another. Sudden terrorism attack and then the world agenda is on board immediately and pulls out the same anti-terrorism bill. The machinery is all set up to lace with each other. Government moves on square wheels, around corners. It takes YEARS of preparation to get your own government going on something… never mind EVERY government across the planet, all on board at the same time with this exact same agenda.

Then we had all the different threats. The bird flu was going to kill us. That sort of died away. It was for the birds. Then we went into different things. It was the economy. Of course, folk have forgotten already that - through the GATT Treaty - the economy moved offshore to China BY government planning. They signed it in international agreements long before to deindustrialize the West. They knew the fallout. They knew. They knew that countries - standard economics - that produce the goods, the actual goods from scratch, and pay the bigger taxes… get the biggest armies and basically rule. When you take away that from a country that is a ruler, it goes down the tubes. All you're doing is passing goods around that you import. That's called a Service Economy. Service economy means that you're a dog in a swimming pool and all you can do – you can't get out – is paddle until you sink.

Nothing is a shock. They don't make mistakes at the top. You don't hire hundreds of think-tanks - RAND Corporations and all the rest of them - and pay these incredible sums of money – your money, of course – to make mistakes. Their job is to project the future according to the plan that's already laid down and what will the consequences be. Do you think that for a minute that the elite of the USA, those who have had power and money and wealth for centuries, could give all your manufacturing and industry abroad, your weapon making capabilities, to an enemy… unless you were already global and international? Think about it. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. Just showing people that the guys they put in front as leaders of politics are really… any image at all can be given to them. You'll never know what they're like. There are whole teams of CIA that clear up behind them in the messes they make in their personal lives. You'll never know until it's all over. As long as they fulfill their time and they can stand up and read their speeches, they're well looked after. They're actors! Psychopathic actors, mind you, but they're actors nonetheless.

A few years ago, it came out that… An article, it was in Le Monde. I've read it a few times because it is so important the people remember this. I'll put it up again on the web site at the end of the show. It said,

'We're an empire and when we act, we create our own reality'
Scheherazade in the White House
How George Bush's wartime administration used a magician, Hollywood designers and Karl Rove telling 1,001 stories to sell the invasion of Iraq.
by Christian Salmon

(Alan: Listen to what they say now. Listen very carefully to this. I told you about what the media is, the middle man, that peddles the info, the reality, to the public.)

A few days before the 2004 presidential election, Ron Suskind, a columnist who had been investigating the White House and its communications for years, wrote in The New York Times about a conversation he had with a presidential adviser in 2002. (A: The advisors remember, are public relations, propaganda, EXPERTS.) "The aide said that guys like me (A: The reporter.) were 'in what we call (A: The reporters call…) the reality-based community', which he defined as (A: He's talking about the reporters, right…) people 'who believe that solutions emerge from your judicious study of discernible reality'. (A: What you're given becomes your discernable reality.) I nodded and murmured something about enlightenment principles and empiricism. He cut me off. 'That's not the way the world really works anymore,' he continued. (A: It hadn't been for an awful long time.) 'We're an empire now, and when we act, we create our own reality. And while you're (A: The media.) studying that reality (A: and then the public) – judiciously, as you will – we'll act again, creating other new realities, which you can study too, and that's how things will sort out. We're history's actors.. and you, all of you, will be left to just study what we do' ". (A: Isn't that the truth. Isn't that the truth.)

They give us a reality. Everything is a fake fiction. It's a propagandized image. No different than making a star out of nobody and rocking them to the top; whether it be a novelist or some unknown teacher or professor or whatever, or a movie star or a musician or a singer. It's all to do with the creating of the persona that's projected to the public on how fantastic and unique and wonderful this person is. That's how it's done. The media get all this stuff from the PR, propaganda specialists. The professional image makers who run on statistics and polls and they have survey groups and all the rest of it to test all these things out… time and time again, to see how it will go over with the public. The media peddles that to us. Then we argue about the stuff we're given. And we think everything is real. We're not supposed to know - like Bacon said to the King - what government's really up to. If we really knew what they were up to, like Bush Sr. said, the public would hunt us down the street and lynch us. It's always been that way. Always.

It's like Bill Clinton being put into that position. They knew his whole history at the top. The CIA and the parallel government runs the US. It runs every other county too that belong to the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR. They run them all. It was decided long, long ago that democracy was not for the people… long, long ago. And the people couldn't handle it, therefore, they'd always have to have these enlightened people, people of good breeding, intelligence and family histories to guide the world, you see. Those with the power and money and who have a lust for more, those kind of people, the right kind of people you see, according to Darwinist theories.

Right now they're training us step by step into different realities and we adapt so quickly to them, SO quickly to them that they DO become real for most people. Look at all the shops. Look at all propaganda in every ad that you see whether it's television or magazines…. Greening, greening… everyone's going green. It's all from the top down through marketing. They're bringing in a world to reduce the population, which they say - and they're quite right I think – that by 2050, after all the riots and so on and food shortages, blah, blah, blah that they will create - and they have the power to do that so easily now - that we'll simply drop off and not breed. Plus we're getting sterilized too, mind you, and filled up with various cancer viruses from vaccines. It first came out after the polio vaccine and the Salk investigations. However, to the common people, that's now how it works… No, the TV is real and this Prime Minster or that President are going to save the world from itself. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. This is Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix. It's more important to try and get people to see behind things, than fall for the front things they're supposed to fall for. From now on - and actually it's always been this way and they're going to increase it - you're going to get crisis after crisis and lots of things to upset you peddled by the media, as a reality to you. Partly to get you arguing about things, coming to the foreordained conclusions that maybe they're right on whatever it is… and it's called predictive programming. You're being TRAINED for what's to come so there will be no tremendous shock. It slips in incrementally and you've got rationing and all the rest of it that you're supposed to do… as you pay carbon taxes for all the units of energy it took to produce that caramel milk chocolate bar, or whatever. That's what it's about. You're being trained. You see, there are just TOO many of YOU and you've been living too well, TOO well for TOO long, according to those at the top who can't even tie their shoe laces together and have people to dress them in the mornings. That's the real world that we live in. Trained like animals. We've always been spoken to like animals, spoken DOWN to.

More so in socialist countries and that's what the whole thing is. Remember what they said at the Club of Rome, that's re-emerged again right on queue with its new agenda for bringing down the populations and all the rest of it, and solving the world's problems on behalf of the masters they serve. We're being trained into cutting back on everything as we go down the hill. Remember the whole purpose of it was… the Club of Rome said they favored the collectivist system. Meaning the communist style of ruling the people… where they simply dictate down to you, as a child, basically, father to child, a very simple child at that. But we can't be embarrassed enough, can we… at the bottom, or humiliated enough? We just bend over and drop our pants or whatever you do at the airport. Now you can walk through and they can see you naked. There's no end of the humiliation we will accept apparently. They know this at the top too. They take surveys all the time on every, EVERY thing.

As long as we can basically keep enough of the pennies or the tokens or whatever we're going to use in the near future to get to the bar at the weekend or to watch the sports or playing your favorite porn channel or whatever you do – they give you to do – to obsess you, then you'll keep going until you can't do that anymore. Then, you're a rioter. You'll start rioting.   A rioter knows nothing except he can't play anymore.

There's a site called Politick. I'll put that up. It says, "Commentary of the crisis of the day."

CO2 in the Atmosphere is Decreasing - How Will the Global Warming Crowd Explain THAT?
Politick / yelnick.typepad.com

Al Gore (A: Amazing character. Again, he was in the White House covering Clinton too. Al Gore made a statement, there's no further place of ethics than the White House, he says. What a gory man he is.) starts his odyssey on global warming with the Keeling Curve - the chart (A: They use charts and graphs, just like Malthus did, for the population.) of steadily increasing CO2 levels measured off the top of Mauna Loa. Very compelling and the cornerstone of the case for anthropogenic (man-made) global warming (AGW). Early this year, however, the annual rate of increase was the lowest measured, and on a monthly basis seemed to be coming to a dead stop - which means after seasonal adjustments would show a down trend. Now it appears there is a down trend in the CO2 levels. See chart. If this continues it spells the coup de grace for the goofy AGW case. (A: But it won't, of course, because reality doesn't matter in agendas.)

The core of the AGW case is industrial CO2 spews out and stays in the atmosphere, accumulating faster than natural processes can handle, and causing ever-increasing warming. Over the past few decades we have been emitting 4 ppm of CO2 per year, and the atmospheric levels have been increasing by 2 ppm. We continue to spew, but if CO2 levels drop, it means something else is going on. (A: Then they go on to explain in detail what is going on. It also has the fact, and people admitting it at the top, that the computer models are always way ahead of the actual amount of CO2 in the atmosphere. They also tell you that most of the so-called greenhouse gases are water vapor, as they all know at the top as well. See, they play so much on our ignorance and by repetitions, don't they. After all, it's an agenda. This is an agenda… to bring us all down to third world status, except for themselves.)

Have you looked at the SuperCities they're building across the world? SuperCities. That's what the UN talked about years ago, the creation of SuperCities. These are the most advanced cities on virgin ground. Not knocking old cities down. This is brand new, across the world, in beautiful areas, with the most high-tech everything to house the elites over the next hundred-odd years or so. Some of the places have 99-year leases, in fact. That's standard in British, this strange British system that's not really British at all, but they were the first ones to get 99-year leases. It was very important, that number, in their little occultic system.

As they're bringing down the world, the elite are already moving into SuperCities. They even built some in China for them. The oldest families in Europe have been giving up the old ancestral homes, which they never did before. These people are not hurt by economies, by the way. They've been moving. It's just a matter of taking us all down. Remember, we are batteries like they said in the Matrix movies. We're batteries and that fits in, of course, with what Karl Marx said. That everything is labor. Everything comes from labor. Everything that's made comes from labor. Everything you eat comes from labor. We're batteries for the system. We pay it through taxes. They'll use the system of money and taxation as they bring us down.

It's incredible the amount of taxes now that they're discussing at this meeting for Copenhagen and we're all going to pay. Countries are going to go into billions per year. BILLIONS and BILLIONS and BILLIONS. Supposedly under the theory to help the poorer countries to handle their polluting gases. This is the farce of it all. Utter farce. All those monies that went before to all the third world countries ended up in different pockets, as it always did. It was never intended to get to their sources because they never wanted those countries. Remember Kissinger? He says, we don't want those countries becoming emergent nations. So you keep them in poverty. That's what you do. You don't bring them up. So I'll put this site up anyway and you can go through it for yourself and measure the other, the OTHER facts and see what you think about it.

Here's something I've talked about too. Here is the secret plan for a European income tax. Now that they're rushing ahead and mind you, it was all laid out years ago, including how they'll tax the people. All they do is just brush off the dust and present it at the right time, off the old scrolls. It says here,

Secret plan for Euro income tax
Plans for the EU budget reform could cost every British family at least £155 a year.
SECRET plans to seize more than £4billion a year from Britain and make its citizens pay taxes direct to Europe emerged last night.
Wednesday October 28,2009 / By Gabriel Milland

The leaked proposals, seen by the Daily Express, state that Britain should lose the billions of pounds in rebate that was agreed by Margaret Thatcher 25 years ago. (A: For joining the Union, right.)

They would also mean Brussels being given the power to dip straight into taxpayers' pockets.

The proposals prompted fury last night.

Shadow Europe Minister Mark Francois vowed they would be resisted by a Tory government. (A: Which is nonsense.)

He said: "The idea of an EU tax is a non-starter. (A: Well, they're going ahead regardless. This is what the Copenhagen treaty is all about too, by the way, how to bring the WHOLE world into a global, massive, incredibly devastating taxation system.)

They would have to raise about £6.4billion a year – the net cost of belonging to the EU (A: That's what it costs to BELONG to the EU. This Super Power, this new soviet Kremlin, you might call it. The Soviet Kremlin Brussels, that works in secret at the top. That's the cost of your membership.) and equivalent to about £260 for every household in the UK. (A: Well, on top of that, as I say, they're having a meeting right now to do with the individual taxes they're going to pay through to the UN of course, and then the IMF and then to Rothschild's bank in Switzerland who handles the global carbon tax agenda. Multi billions and trillions of dollars… as we go down the tube. And they tell us to tighten our belts because we've made a mess of things and we've never had it so good. All those old phrases that they said years and years ago when they used to come out and just tell you what they thought of you. Now they're doing it in a different way, but it works just the same. Just the same.)

I've got to laugh. You know, I can remember when Thatcher was in. There's no left wing and right wing in this. They just bring in this bunch to do this part of the agenda and then bring out the opposite party to bring out the next part of the agenda. That's how it works. Punch and Judy, back and forth, ping pong, ping pong. And people fall for it.

This is from The Mail Online to do with

Random attack by thugs every 30 seconds as 'stranger assaults' soar in binge Britain (A: Meaning boozing Britain.)
By James Slack / 2nd November 2009

(A: Maggie Thatcher, when she was in, did away with some of the opening hours of the pubs so they were open longer during the day and she said at the time, it was far better to have the unemployed teenagers – that's when they were heavily deindustrializing Britain and sending the factories offshore. She said, it was far better to have them in the pubs drinking away their unemployment insurance than marching in the streets and demanding action. Nothing is by accident. Nothing is by accident at all. They use this trick too, of drugging the population. That's what the soviets did. You could always get cheap vodka in the Soviet Union. No matter what was happening in the food areas, you could always get cheap vodka. So here, this article, they want to you to forget all about the previous governments that have been in. Once again, they take it back to the present one, this present Labour, Fabian Society.)

Someone is attacked by a complete stranger every 30 seconds in Binge Britain, figures revealed last night.

When Labour came to power, only a third of violent crimes were carried out by an attacker the victim did not know.

That has now jumped to half as random violence - fuelled by alcohol and round the clock opening - has become commonplace. (A: The pubs never shut now.)

There were 1,057,000 violent attacks by strangers last year - the equivalent of 2,895 a day or 120 every hour. (A: Then they go into the usual party stuff that you're supposed to believe in.)

Opposition MPs said it was the latest proof the Government's relaxation of licensing laws had failed.

Some 21 per cent of the assaults took place in pubs and a further 34 per cent in the street as town centres became increasingly scarred by alcohol-fuelled violence.

Many of the attacks were carried out by violent women 'ladettes'.

Last month, the Daily Mail revealed that the Government's own figures show the number of women being convicted for murders, vicious assaults and other attacks has rocketed by 81 per cent since 1998.

They are now being convicted at a rate of more than 200 every week.

You'd have to have been in Britain to watch how they altered society and how they did all their attacks on the female psyche a long time ago and just kept stepping it up, notch by notch. You would have to live there to see how the best mind, technical operators, worked through their plays - the BBC, their shows, their dramas as they call them - would work into reality through the people who watch the stuff. The best predictive programming of any other country in the world… mainly because it had a closed society in a sense, and no competition basically, for an awful, awful long time. Experts... just drumming the stuff out, all politically correct stuff; the next upgrade to the next political correctness. They cause the problems and then turn around and point to the people themselves.

The culture BECOMES what it's designed to become. They don't make mistakes at the top. IF they needed the United States of America or Britain to be a beacon to the world, as they say, as they conned them in previous wars, they would give you a completely different culture and manners. They'd make the people feel good about themselves and be polite to each other. The basic necessities. However, they've given you the most degraded culture, steadily plummeting, again, incrementally, now speeding up until it's not safe to walk the streets. They open up the pubs and keep them open all the time not just in a world but in a CULTURE that's utterly depressed. Then they stand back and say, 'My, look at the lower classes; they just can't be trusted.' Cops of course, love this. So do lawyers because it's the biggest business on the planet next to banking; That's the law business. Crime does pay for those who rule it. I'll put this article up for you to read as well but you've got to understand what you read. Don't fall into the emotive parts of it or you'll miss what's happening.

The whole world is to go into this whole technique of cutting back, cutting back. You're going to pay 3, 4, 5, 6 times, 10 times as much for your electricity. 10 times as much… as they cut back. That means 10 times the profit for the companies. They love this stuff. Here is how they manipulate the market. It's from The Times.

Wholesale price of electricity surges amid fear of supply shortfall
Robin Pagnamenta, Energy and Environment Editor / From The Times October 2, 2008

(A: So the big boys who own the whole supply now, a privatized company, put out the word there's to be a supply shortfall. Well that means it's great for investors. That means the price is going to go up. This is how they create it. This is like an ad, this. Almost like an ad. A P.R. ad. Well done too.)

Wholesale electricity prices surged higher yesterday amid mounting fears that the UK could face a supply shortfall next month. (A: Now who would lead that out?)

The forward price of electricity for November hit highs of £133 per megawatt hour, up more than £10 since Friday, when the same contract was trading at about £122.75.

The price of power has risen sharply since National Grid published figures last week predicting an unusually thin margin between electricity supply and demand. (A: So they put out a scare thing and the investors jump; 'I want to buy those, I want, I want some shares, I want some shares.' That's how they create it. Rubbish. It's called greed and manipulation of people in their mind through fear. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Governments across the world have been paying their farmers not to grow crops and to rear animals for years. I'm going to finish tonight on a little satire which actually happened. A guy sent this off to Mr. Miliband, a Member of Parliament, Secretary of State for Britain, Department of Food, Environment and Rural Affairs, DEFRA, about this very thing. It says,

My friend who is in farming at the moment recently received a check for £3,000 from the Rural Payments Agency for NOT rearing pigs. I would now like to join the not rearing pigs business.

In your opinion, what is the best kind of farm not to rear pigs on? And which is the best breed of pigs not to rear? I want to be sure I approach this endeavor in keeping with all government policies as dictated by the EU under the common agricultural policy. I would prefer not to rear bacon pigs but if this is not the type you want not rearing, I will just as gladly not rear porkers. Are there any advantages in not rearing rare breeds such as saddlebacks or Gloucester old spots? Or are there too many people already no rearing these? As I see it, the hardest part of this program will be keeping an accurate record of how many pigs I haven't reared. Are there any government or local authority courses on this?

My friend is very satisfied with this business. He's been rearing pigs for 40 years or so and the best he's ever made in them was £1,422 in 1968, that is until this year when he received a check for not rearing any. If I get £3,000 for not rearing 50 pigs, will I get £6,000 for not rearing 100? I plan to operate on a small scale at first, holding myself down to about 4,000 pigs not raised, which will mean about £240,000 for the first year. As I become more expert in not rearing pigs, I plan to be more ambitious, perhaps increasing to say 40,000 pigs not reared in my second year, for which I should expect about £2.4 million from your department. Incidentally, I wonder if I would be eligible to receive tradable carbon credits for all those pigs not producing harmful and polluting methane gases.

Another point, these pigs that I plan not to rear, will not eat 2,000 tons of cereals. I understand you also pay farmers for not growing crops. Will I qualify for payments for not growing cereals to not feed the pigs I don't rear? I'm also considering the not milking cows business, so please send any information you have on that too. Please could you also include the current DEFRA advice on set aside fields? Can this be done on an e-commerce basis with virtual fields, of which I seem to have several thousand hectares. In view of above, you will realize that I will be totally unemployed and will therefore qualify for unemployment benefits. I shall of course be voting for your party at the next general election.

Yours faithfully,

That's good satire. Good satire on the farce because governments, as they go into a supposed coming food shortage, have been putting farmers out of business and paying the rest NOT to grow stuff… for years and years and years, but the media somehow neglects to see that side of things. Don't they? …when they try and scare the bejesus out of you. The food crisis will come because it's planned that way. They'll first start with the different countries. Africa is their favorite one they pick on. It's all to get you conditioned to what's coming down eventually to YOU.

Governments, when they said their agencies are now authorities, like the medical authorities, WILL be coming into your homes to weigh you. Not just check your fridge like they do in Britain already, but to weigh you as well and punish you by fines… as you're already paying fines for everything else too… in this crazy, manufactured, fake reality they've given to us. And they'll give us many more to come.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

" 'We're an empire and when we act, we create our own reality' - Scheherazade in the White House" by Christian Salmon (mondediplo.com) - Jan. 2008.

"CO2 in the Atmosphere is Decreasing - How Will the Global Warming Crowd Explain THAT?".

"Secret Plan for Euro Income Tax" by Gabriel Milland (dailyexpress.co.uk) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"Random attack by thugs every 30 seconds as 'stranger assaults' soar in binge Britain" by James Slack (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 2, 2009.

"Wholesale price of electricity surges amid fear of supply shortfall" by Robin Pagnamenta, The Times - Oct. 2, 2008.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 3, 2009 (#443)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 3, 2009:
No Surprise, Facts Don't Fit Climate Change Lies:
"The Gore-y Details of Climate Change Lies,
 Monckton Demolishes, No Surprise,
 Gore will Continue with Catastrophe Tome,
 Dreamed Up by Myth-Makers, Club of Rome,
 Elastic Theories, Not Science, We Know,
 Will Say We're Warming while Buried 'neath Snow,
 We'll Sacrifice All So Elitists Can Live,
 By Force of Authority, You'll Learn to Give,
 And as You're Starving, Keep This Thought Strong, You've Sacrificed All So Your 'Betters' Go On"
 &copy; Alan Watt Nov. 3, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 3, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 3rd 2009. As always, I advise newcomers to look into .com web site and you'll find hundreds of talks for download in audio form. Talks I've given over the past where I try to fill in the big black holes they give you for history to show you the world is planned. It's always planned and run to paradigms, as they say, either religious or political – for a certain phase – or a mixture of the two and sometimes back in to the same thing again… a sort of religious idea which is the greening agenda to rule the world and rule all of us for the next 100 years or so. So I give you the evidence from the writers themselves, the participants who love to spill their beans in their biographies. The boys who sit at boring meetings who get big, fat paychecks to lie through their teeth to the public. They do love to put a lot in their biographies and it's worthwhile reading them. You get a lot of grey hairs in the meantime and you'll sleep a lot too because it's the best sleeping thing there is. You don't need drugs for that. If you can keep awake, once in a while you come across the occasional paragraph, a gem in the whole book, that really lets the cat out of the bag. That's what you get. Knowledge is always scattered. So I try to find all the scattered bits and put it together for you.

You can also see on that site all the alternate web sites I have [listed above]. You should use these sites on alternate nights if you want to, to get the downloads because they tend to go right through. Everyone goes into the .com site at the same time and that overloads them. You'll find it sticks sometimes so try these alternate sites. Plus, when the big sites go down again, you'll always have a source to get the latest talks from if you bookmark them. The alanwattsentientsentinel.eu site is the European site. It has all the audios plus it has transcripts for download and they are in the various languages of Europe.

YOU are the listeners and YOU bring me to you. Only a few contribute to keep me going at all. The same people all the time and it has been for years. That's the nature of the world we live in today. Everyone wants stuff for free. They don't realize the freer it gets, the more you're getting conned generally, because that's how they're doing it. That's why they GAVE us the internet… with all these free things to get into on the internet… to GATHER ALL YOUR PERSONAL DATA. It saves them the job of having to spy on you. People jump into it but they don't realize that no one's backing me. There's no NGO here. There's no foundation. Mind you, I've had offers from foundations. I've turned them down because then I'm compromised. I've been asked to speak at world citizenship meetings, for instance. That blew me away after I had been ranting on about Rockefeller for ages. I turned that down too. Believe you me, with that would come the backing… and I wouldn't have to sit here for 5-10 minutes a night asking for a few pennies from the people out there. Most people do succumb, believe you me. Most folk DO succumb. These big boys are STUNNED when you say no. So it's up to you to keep me going.

Look for the few things I have for sale. I don't have time to churn things out. You can also donate to me as well, how to do it is on the web site. Those who get disks burned and passed to them to play on their CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above]. I'll be back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix as we go down the road – down the hill actually – into the REAL, visible new world order. The new world order that's been in the planning for an awful long time, the one that Professor Carroll Quigley talked about.

Remember, Professor Carroll Quigley was THE historian for the archives – they have their own archives of real history, these guys… the ones who make history that is – and for the CFR, Council on Foreign Relations. He was all FOR their agenda. He also was a man who also believed that it was okay to tell a few fibs once in a while to get what you want, to get the great sheep moving in your direction. That's a technique that's been used up to the present time with the descendants who all belong to the same club, of course. As he said himself, they're often mistaken for communists. Well, they're not really mistaken for them, the ARE communists. They're communists for one group. They can be socialists for another group. They have many different names for the same agenda run by an elite organization of people and world bankers and the offspring of world bankers who are putting in… they put together the next phase of the world that we have to live through… if we call it living.

Really, they're going to reduce our standard of living to one of third world poverty and through the signing of this upcoming treaty; they're putting all the power into the United Nations. The United Nations will be in charge of ALL energy and taxation to do with energy and consumption and food consumption and everything you can think of across the whole planet. This treaty means, once it's signed, you can NEVER get out of it. IT'S FOREVER. It's the coup de grace. It's the final stroke… on any idea of individual freedom, liberty or so on because yes, you will see government inspectors coming around your houses, frequently… to see how much you're eating.

It will be worse than Britain is today where they come around and inspect your garbage bins and fine you if a lid isn't on properly. They'll test your houses to see if it's eco-efficient and believe you me, MOST people don't have eco-efficient houses except those who go along with the agenda, those who work for government, very high paid teachers or teachers' board members and those kinds of people, people who get free grants for everything - like complete grants, not 5% or 10% to eco-proof your home - and all those to do with academia. However, the rest will definitely be getting fined. No, they don't help you. They FINE you. This is their technique. They fine you, punish you, thousands of dollars per day for every leaky draft you have or any hole that a mouse has chewed through. You get fined for that… until you can't live anymore. That's part of the agenda. You ain't seen nothing yet, nothing at all.

The biggest scams in history have been pulled by the liars of history and it's those guys who have unfortunately have led the revolutions for an awful long time, including the communist ones and all the ones within the US that you didn't even notice were actual revolutions. Because they're multi-millionaires, it throws people off. They think that communists are some peasant with dungarees and a pitchfork. No. That's not what it is. Communism is the MOST ELITIST organization that believes truly in Darwinism and that people can not rule themselves, they must have a dictatorship. They're too stupid to rule themselves and the elite intelligentsia and scientists have the right to rule you. That's what it's all about. And bringing down the population as well. I think these guys all got kind of thrown off when they were children on the straight path. They got to play with doll houses and things where they rearranged everything in the rooms and then got globes of the world and started changing all that after they started with the villages and towns and then cities. There's an intelligence behind this. We must never forget there is INCREDIBLE INTELLECT behind this, an intellect that has no problem deceiving. In fact, you have to admire the intellect because it's incredibly good at deceiving.

Christopher Monckton… and I'll put his link up again for his video on my web site at the end of the show. He put it all on the line in a talk he gave to the US. He blew apart all the fake theories. He told you why they're fake. He presented the actual scientific evidence as opposed to the fictitious stuff. It's a political agenda remember, this whole global warming rubbish, to rule the world and control the world. He blows it apart.

Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty
by Libertys Army on October 16, 2009

On October 14, Lord Christopher Monckton, a noted climate change skeptic, gave a presentation at Bethel University in St. Paul, MN. In this 4-minute excerpt from his speech, he issues a dire warning to all Americans regarding the United Nations Climate Change Treaty, scheduled to be signed in Copenhagen in December 2009.

Lord Monckton served as a policy adviser to Margaret Thatcher. He has repeatedly challenged Al Gore to a debate to which Gore has refused. Monckton sued to stop Gore's film "An Inconvenient Truth" from being shown in British schools due to its inaccuracies. The judge found in-favor of Monckton, ordering nine serious errors in the film to be corrected. Lord Monckton travels internationally in an attempt to educating the public about the myth of global warming.

Nothing is going to change it because for generations they've had all the right people in, in every country, at the same time, all put in by the same people. All financed into power by the same peoples that run what we perceive as the communist, elitist agenda. It suits the bankers awfully well, the international bankers. After all, they love, they LOVE collectivism. It's easier to deal with a government that can mandate that the people work for nothing, or give up all they have TO the government that goes back to the bankers, then having to go around to every door in the land trying to recoup your loans or whatever else you want from them. Very old agenda.

It's a religion too. A real, REAL religion at the top. In fact, it was RULED a religion by a judge just today in Britain where an enviro-freak, a real freak - a guy that you'd love to ask to close the windows in a high rise on a windy day - he lost his job. This is from The Mail Online.

Judge rules that green views are the 'same as religious beliefs' as sacked environmentalist wins legal battle
By Colin Fernandez / 3rd November 2009

Then it goes through this little prune with his bicycle there, his eco-bicycle. His job - if you go down the article you find out what his job was, the place he got laid-off from - was in charge of environmentalism for the company basically. So he kept bitching at them about their waste here and waste there, because he said it's a belief that he has. It's like having someone trying to convert you to Jesus nonstop and calling it 'the holy, the holy bible' nonstop at you. That's what these guys are like. So they fired him… naturally. He's got compensation, the whole bit because he's ON with the agenda. So there you are. It's a BELIEF. Now why is a religious belief running the world here? It's not based on scientific fact. In fact, it's just the opposite, we're cooling. We're cooling. The seas aren't warming, they're cooling too.

Everyone at the top, including that judge there, will know… and he'll love the green man as well because all Masons do. Masonry is just a tool of the guys who rule the world, just a tool. They don't rule the world themselves but they are the workers you might say, the workman. Very old agenda, very, very old. This stuff goes on and on and on.

Here's an article. Just a few years ago, people would say 'the new world order' and people would say back, 'oh you're a freak; you're one of these conspiracy nuts.' We see it all over the newspapers. Gordon Brown used it at his speech at the G20. Here's The Washington Times.

Obama's new world order
October 25, 2009 / Jeffrey T. Kuhner

President Obama is on a path toward establishing a one-world government. This is the warning of Christopher Monckton, a former major policy adviser to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

In December, world leaders will descend upon Copenhagen to sign a United Nations climate change treaty that will succeed the 1997 Kyoto Protocol, which is aimed at reducing greenhouse gases and set to expire in 2012. An agreement has been drafted. (Alan: Now, this is not just a simple agreement. This is a treaty, a binding treaty. In fact, that's what they're after. They said they are after BINDING treaties here.)

The goal of the Copenhagen treaty is to erect an international cap-and-trade regime(A: Regime, they like that word regime... non-elected.) to curb carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions, said to be responsible for man-made global warming (A: nonsense). Recently, British Prime Minister Gordon Brown warned of a "climate catastrophe" - a rising wave of floods, droughts and shrinking food crops - unless the treaty is signed. Mr. Brown even said global warming would inflict more damage than both world wars and the Great Depression combined; the world has only several weeks to save itself from impending doom. (A: Ha. Oh... I guess they're going to put him in with the prophets of the Old Testament.)

"If we do not reach a deal at this time, let us be in no doubt: once the damage from unchecked emissions growth is done, no retrospective global agreement, in some future period, can undo that choice," he said. Mr. Brown has thus outdone former Vice President Al Gore (A: And all his BS.) in fear-mongering and inciting public hysteria.

Global-warming alarmists are using the myth of climate change to impose an embryonic socialist world government. (A: No kidding. Is this some sort of conspiracy… well it's some sort of myth, a MYTH of climate change.) Following the collapse of communism, the West's progressive elites desperately searched for a viable ideological alternative. They found it in environmentalism. (A: No. I've quoted from the Club of Rome before. They're the big think-tank for the global elitists and the UN. They came up with the idea in the 1970s that's what they would use BEFORE any fall of communism.)

Although the Green movement wraps itself in the flag of empirical science, it represents the very opposite: a dogma that provides meaning and purpose to its rabid followers. The ideology justifies massive tax increases and government control of the economy; it seeks to cripple free enterprise and curtail market-driven growth. Many of today's Greens are yesterday's Reds. (A: You'd better believe it. They're still reds. They have different colors you see. They have different colors for the different phases. Pythagorean isn't it?)

Global warming is the greatest fraud of our time. The overwhelming scientific evidence shows that, rather than getting hotter, the Earth's temperatures are cooling. Increasing numbers of leading scientists are challenging the flawed computer models used by eco-alarmists.

Mr. Gore and his supporters cannot answer several simple questions. If the Earth's temperatures are no longer rising, then how can CO2 emissions be responsible for global warming? How could previous dramatic increases in global temperatures - such as the end of the Ice Age - have taken place without concentrations of CO2? The answer is obvious: Carbon emissions are not connected to fluctuations in global temperatures. (A: Back after these messages.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just going over the nonsense to do with this big, artificial system that's coming in to take care of our lives as seen fit by the elite who rule us and who will definitely be ruling us even more so in the very, very near future… ruling us into the ground in fact, a form of leveling. Also taxing you as you die off, taxing the last penny out of you to supposedly transfer the wealth across the world where they'll take care of projects, supposedly, but in actuality it will go into their big, wonderful new cities they're building quietly across the planet for themselves. Very high-tech ones. They are already moving into them. But that doesn't matter. Reality doesn't matter in the propaganda we're given. It's not based on reality. We're ruled by fiction.

Al Gore and his pals – I'll say his pals – certainly have been ruling the world for a long time with fiction. It's interesting to see who his family lineage happens to be and who his offspring are married to. You find the Schiffs there, all the usual ones, Kuhn, Loeb and Company boys and the world bankers, as always… as always. He was groomed basically by Armand Hammer who came over from Russia, became a back-street abortionist and was caught a few times killing people. Then he started peddling quack medicine and he was caught for that and locked up for a little while for that too. Then he went over to the Soviet Union, made a deal with them, had an apartment next to Lenin and suddenly got very, very wealthy and famous by doing deals between the American goods to Russia and vice versa. It's quite something how these characters operate. And here they are, still operating yet, right at the very top and teaching utter LIES to school children NOW, before anything is signed.

There's no consensus on this by the way. All this consensus of the science is nonsense, utter rubbish. Christopher Monckton demolishes that in his video. It won't stop. The facts won't stop this. It's been in the works for too long, everybody's on board, every Prime Minister across the planet is on board with this all ready… to sign away their country. They'll be well, well rewarded believe you me, well rewarded.

This article is from The Telegraph.

Al Gore could become world's first carbon billionaire
Al Gore, the former US vice president, could become the world's first carbon billionaire after investing heavily in green energy companies.
3 Nov 2009

(A: It's amazing how, as they're fleecing the public and getting laws passed globally, they're the guys that always seem to profit from it, aren't they? What luck these guys have. They never, ever dreamed they'd get stinking rich, even more stinking rich than they already are. So it says…)

Last year Mr Gore's venture capital firm loaned a small California firm $75m to develop energy-saving technology.

The company, Silver Spring Networks, produces hardware and software to make the electricity grid more efficient. (A: By using electricity, I suppose.)

The deal appeared to pay off in a big way last week, when the Energy Department announced $3.4 billion in smart grid grants (A: Isn't that wonderful?), the New York Times reports. Of the total, more than $560 million went to utilities with which Silver Spring has contracts. (A: That's Mr. Gore's company.)

The move means that venture capital company Kleiner Perkins and its partners, including Mr Gore, could recoup their investment many times over in coming years. (A: Oh, they're so fortunate aren't they? Mind you, they just want to help the world and rule you properly to make sure that you eat your GMO veggies because that's all you're going to get and a very limited supply of them too, I may add.)

Few people have been as vocal about the urgency of global warming and the need to reinvent the way the world produces and consumes energy as Mr Gore. (A: Mr. Gore has reinvented a lot of stuff. He REALLY gets facts and twists them out into the universe and spirals.) And few have put as much money behind their advocacy and are as well positioned to profit from this green transformation, if and when it comes. (A: Well, it's coming alright. It's already getting taught in schools.)

Critics, mostly on the political right and among global warming sceptics, say Mr. Gore is poised to become the world's first "carbon billionaire," profiteering from government policies he supports that would direct billions of dollars to the business ventures he has invested in. (A: They live off us, these guys. They live off our tax money. Grants, remember, are gifts. They're GIFTS. There's no paying back interest on that for them. It must be wonderful to get Santa Claus in as your government leader.)

Representative Marsha Blackburn, Republican of Tennessee, has claimed that Mr Gore stood to benefit personally from the energy and climate policies he was urging Congress to adopt.

Mr Gore had said that he is simply putting his money where his mouth is. (A: He's got a very wide mouth, have you noticed that?)

"Do you think there is something wrong with being active in business in this country?" Mr. Gore said. "I am proud of it. I am proud of it." (A: It's amazing how these communists will USE capitalism when it suits them. But then, what else can they think up because they're all liars. They're all utter, utter liars.)

Remember, they call it 'The Noble Lie'. When they come up with great ideas like how do we rule the world for another 100 years, bring the populations down and stop them consuming and make them go under quietly. Well, we'll invent a religion and we'll get all this scientific data and we'll fudge it all – all of it's fudged by the way, all of it's fudged. Again, Christopher Monckton in his video goes through these sciences of it and shows you where they fudge it. He actually called it into court in Britain because they were going to start teaching Mr. Gore's book in school for school children. They had to point out all the complete, utter fallacies and errors and outright lies that were in the book. The judge ruled that was right. They'd have to do that before the children could read it, rather than brainwash them with nonsense. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. As I said, the noble lie, they call it at the top… You can't tell the little children - that's us of course - the truth about anything. So to get them to go along in a certain direction, especially when it's not going to really be to their benefit, you've got to lie to them. They can't see the long-term intelligence behind this kind of planning. They can't see it. You know, how you're going to be drastically poor, in poverty. The population of the world will be reduced and the right people will go on into the future. Those are the ones with the right kind of breeding and will go off into the future and have plenty to eat and a wonderful playground of a human-stripped earth basically. That's the idea of it, but we must go along with them.

Remember, the Club of Rome, they have a new web site up now. They have really emerged, you might say, from all their backroom dealings and schemes and they've come out again to push this whole Al Gore agenda. Mind you, they ARE… they do have the ear of every political leader across the planet. Everyone who's a leader right now across the planet is put in by the big, big club at the top. That's why they know they can pull it off. Every politician, every wannabe will brown-nose to infinity to get in on this and be a nice yes-man - or woman, it doesn't matter - because they know which way the wind is blowing. This is the agenda. They're all on board.

Remember, the Club of Rome said that they were given the task of finding a way to bring together a global society. That also meant creating a global culture, by the way. Not something that would emerge by itself over a long period of time. They'd give you the culture. It's actually here. The start of it is already in process. We've been living through it. They had to find HOW they could unite the planet, FORCE the planet to unite, terrify the public into doing it and the only way that happens in through warfare where we allow ourselves to be ID'd and rationed and confined to certain areas without passes, that kind of stuff, checkpoints. So they GAVE us that with 2001 kicking it off for the 'century of change' and escalating from then. We had a bird flu that vanished. Then we also had the West Nile Virus that was going to kill us. That vanished. One crisis after another. Now we've got this supposed pig flu on the go that's just more hype than anything else to be honest with you. A bank collapse and another one to come apparently. Trillions to pay off… as we put most of our economy across the world. The sharing of wealth, one of the planks of the Communist Manifesto. Well, that was The Club of Rome's idea, to come up with an idea, a war scenario.

"The common enemy of humanity is man. In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill. All these dangers are caused by human intervention, and it is only through changed attitudes and behavior that they can be overcome. The real enemy then, is humanity itself."
- Club of Rome, premier environmental think-tank, consultants to the United Nations

They patted themselves on the back and sipped their brandy and put it into action from the 70s onwards. That's from The Club of Rome from The First Global Revolution, the book written by the two founders. They actually say they are the premiere environmental think-tank and consultants to the United Nations. I'll put their latest site up there for you to check all the greenie, goody stuff and all the lies that they tell you for yourselves.

Now there's a caller there. I'll take her before I go onto the next topic. There's Deborah from Houston. Are you there Deborah?

Deborah: I would like to ask a question of you. You've mentioned the last couple of days, you've talked about the elite cities that are being built. I've searched for information regarding those and I was wondering if you could give me some more information about that.

Alan: You can actually scan for documentaries they did in fact on SuperCities. The CBC did one. The BBC did one too. The ones they were talking about were primarily in China.   These are very advanced, the most advanced cities in China. They have been made primarily for Western multi-billionaires to move into. There is one on the go as well in Dubai. I have people working there right now in fact, who keep me in touch. They brought in 600,000 workers from all over the world who work there full-time, 16 hours a day, by the way, throwing up this incredible, advanced city. They all have pyramids. There's another one in Kazakhstan and I think it's called Astana - if you look that up on the internet - put on virgin ground, not built over a city. It's on virgin ground. It's full of pyramids, again. It's to be a multi-billionaire's paradise city, very high tech. There are quite a few web sites up there with Astana on it and you have all that kind of stuff up there on the sites. Look for futuristic cities in your search and you'll come up with a whole stack of them. They're all built in the most beautiful locations. The one in Astana is surrounded by mountains and has lakes round about it and underground high-tech subways and so on. That's going to be their playground for the future. There's quite a few going up across the world right now. Believe you me, like Dubai, there's just as much getting built underground as overground.

Deborah: The one in Dubai, is that the one that is being built on land that they're drudging from the floor of the ocean?

Alan: Not really. They put an awful lot of nonsense out about that place. What they decided years ago… this is before the same guys who came out with the Project for a New American Century said, in fact it was put forth by a Gene Kirkpatrick a long, long time ago. Because they would be conquering the world, literally running the world and grabbing the resources including all the oil fields… that they should rather than build temporary bases and cost a fortune, put even bigger money out and put permanent bases there that would be there for maybe 100 years. Along with these permanent bases were to come SuperCities that these wealthy people - as the world goes down because this is all the agenda up until the year 2050 and beyond… riots, food shortages and so on as we go down the hill - the elite move into these SuperCities guarded by the high-tech military around them and that was put out there in the time of Reagan. That's their idea. Every base… and Obama just sanctioned another 4 or 5 permanent bases, multi-billion billion dollar deals and these are permanent high-tech bases but they are always putting up these massive cities next to them NOT for the local peasantry but for the elite of the Western world to move into.

Deborah: And it's being paid for by the US military, correct?

Alan: That's right. In other words, the US taxpayer is paying for it all. Then you find a lot of it too gets put through the United Nations through different ways, through taxation and grants to them and they're also involved in building these things. Because they are not going to bring in this world, this lovely old world… This whole stuff is to take the world down - this greening agenda - and to bring us into misery, poverty, death and destruction, maybe die off through starvation and different means as they are living, all the proper people will live on with their descendants in the very high-tech cities. Tie that in with the Department of Defence's project for the next 100 years – I have it all up on my archives section – that's FROM the military for NATO.   They advise NATO and the Department of Defence one is coupled with the American one that came out at the same time for the US Army and they both had the same projections that eventually they will have a world government for a short time to take us down and as we're going down, they will be living in a few high-tech cities across the world. That's what they are building right now. This all ties together.

Deborah: Thank you so very much for your work. I really appreciate it and all of the dogs here say hello to Hamish.

Alan: Yes. Hamish would appreciate that. Thanks for calling.

It's astonishing. Again, we're never told the story. You have to read in to find the story and put things together. They've given us the agenda. It's so interesting too. I find that HG Wells, all that time ago, when he wrote Shape of Things to Come - the old black and white movie version too and then a later souped-up version but the old one is good too – they show you the police of the air that will gas all the people that are left and all the rest of it, bring them under world government run by a scientific dictatorship which he calls the Freemasonry of the Air, by the way. When they actually take over one place by gassing people who were fighting, he says, there's no competition allowed in our world. No competition. There's no free enterprise, no anything. It's all run by the scientific elite. He also said that there would be a third world war, in one of his books. A third world war and it would start, he said, in the place where this aerial Freemasonic brotherhood of the air would have their main base and it was to be in Iraq, based in Iraq in Basra. That would be their MAIN base for all the scientists. At the very end, guess where all the military, wealth and elite would be living? The Middle-East. Isn't that amazing? What a great imagination this propagandist for these boys happened to have. All he was, was a little hack writer that was given all the stories and the topics to write around, to include in his stories. The Fabian founder, Mr. Wells. That's how far ahead they plan it.

The world is a big business plan. We are the sheep, basically, and it's our job to support those who plan the future to make sure that THEY survive. Pure Darwinism. And their children survive. All our tax money is going into research and development and all the rest of it to enslave us, control us and we use our ingenuity and our brains and our youth at university to do experiments for them and find better ways to control us, to alter the genes to create clones and all the rest of it. Now that they have all that stuff and technology, they can create a successful, passive, cloned working class. The HIVE mentality. They won't need entertainment. They won't need to go shopping because they are bored stiff and buy themselves something new. They'll be just happy to work and very efficient… as we all, you know, the OLD man dies off.

It's part of the Darwinian belief that the old must die off when the new emerge. These guys DO believe they are more evolved than we are. This is a religion. It's so similar to Hinduism it's incredible but then again, it's so incredibly OLD, a very old religion. How many names down through the ages, even with the school of Alexandria with Neo-Platonism, the Platonic ideas of the expert rulership of a guardian class of the world and how the profane, all those people in the dark down below would be the machine, the driving machine that they would USE to create their world utopia for themselves. Over and over and over, all through a variety of secret societies all controlled by the same capstone.

It's astonishing the information on Freemasonry you do get to do with their revolutions. I've told you about Albert Pike who goes right into it and Mazzini was pushing what became – he handed it over to Lenin – the communist revolution, the world revolutionist socialist party. Why on earth is a chartable organization, as their front obviously, pushing bloody revolutions? Because ultimately, as they go up through the degrees, they find what it's all about. Elitism. The right of those who can 'see' to rule those who do not. Very, very simple. Most of them at the bottom just take their little perks and fill their pockets and help each other and they are oblivious to anything above. They don't really care to know anything above.

So many of the religions within the US were created by those who came in under a guise; they hid behind various Christian societies. They'd been all over Europe for a long, long time under different names - Albigensi and so on – with their Gnostic beliefs. Gnostic, really, was coupled totally with the Neo-Platonic idea as well. Very old societies teaching the same things over and over, that man is God. The wise man. Not ANY man but themselves, you understand. Those who have seen the light. They're Gods. That's the world that we live in.

The world we live in was created for us. The whole recent culture we've had - by that I mean 100 years – was created by Bernays and a lot like him who understood a science that wasn't even taught at the time in any university, of how to not only GIVE and ALTER cultures but how to manipulate the cultures as they're altering them to alter BEHAVIOR in everybody within the culture. They give you your beliefs and they take them away and replace them with new ones. Now it's the green agenda.

They understand that we're motivated by so many different unconscious needs or desires or drives and they know how to press the buttons. Bernays didn't get it from Uncle Freud. What Freud gave out was baby talk. These guys had the REAL stuff. Baby talk was for the general public. We've had centuries and centuries and centuries of observations within different cultures and peoples because they moved all the time. They were in the business of selling and loaning and lending, and usury and debt and credit. They knew how to sell stuff. You alter the culture in order to sell the product. Can you believe that? It seems hard to do. Read Bernays' books. He loves to boast about it. You should read them when you're wide awake; you'll see an awful lot more between the lines that he hints at too. Fascinating stuff.

There was nothing taught at universities in HIS day. This is a guy who was advising a President of the United States on how to advertise World War I when he was only in his early 20s. This is a guy who went around with Wilson and his clique of Mandell House and all the rest of them - who really was the boss behind Wilson – and the Royal Institute of International Affairs', Lord Grey, because that's who told Mandell House his orders that he told to Wilson. Bernays went around to help set up the League of Nations to convince the world we'd have to give up our sovereignty and go under a world government as early as that, the end of World War I. I don't think he was even 27 by then. This guy had been taught from birth for his role, taught into arcane sciences. Sciences, as I say, that hadn't even gone into any university course at that time. And he was absolutely confident with every step that he took. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. As I said before, these people think they're Gods. No kidding. They really are into the temple stuff and all their symbology, it's all around you. They symbols are everywhere. They're all through the pop music and rock music and all whatever you want to call it… whatever kind of music. It's all through everything in fact, the symbology… roughly called Freemasonry.

The same symbols as the big court they put out in Israel, the pyramid there, the library as well, with I think Rothschild. Rothschild, by the way, is called the messiah over there. His whole lineage are called messiahs. Then there's a Rockefeller museum there as well, donated by Rockefeller. You have to see that too because you see the same symbols in these SuperCities they are building all over the world, then the Astana one. It's interesting too… Astana. They claim they're not religious and that's a scrambled Satan, Satana… isn't it. It's so damned obvious. They have a religion all right… and Albert Pike said what it was. So did Blavatsky and a few other ones.

They do think they are Gods. Even that psycho Bill Clinton, I presume, with the incredible ego he's got – the good psychopath that he is – thinks he's one. Remember too, the ancient Roman emperors used to have statues erected in their honor so that as they worked the people thought that the chief was God, you see. They were actually worshipped as Gods. They could worship their likeness in their absence. Constantine was one of them. The guy who in the 4th century A.D. gave official, sanctioned Christianity to be ONE of the religions, one of the religions of the time… being a good politician that he was. He had insurance policies in every religion there was in fact, the Cult of Mithra and all the rest of them.

Here's an article that ties in with that. It's so amazing to me. BBC News.

Kosovo unveils Clinton's statue
Former US President Bill Clinton has attended the unveiling of a statue of himself in Kosovo's capital Pristina.
Sunday, 1 November 2009

(A: He went over to the opening to honor himself.)

The 3.5m (11 ft) bronze statue was inaugurated at Bill Clinton Boulevard - to loud cheers of thousands of ethnic Albanians. (A: I love how they keep saying ethnic Albanians.)

Many of them regard Mr Clinton as a hero for launching Nato's air bombing campaign to drive Yugoslavia's troops out of the Serbian province in 1999. (A: Well, he didn't do that, you know that. Bill was too busy snorting, a lot of snorting. A guy like that was not running the country. No way. No way José, was he running the country. The US has never been run by the guy you see… for probably over 100 years. Never.)

Kosovo unilaterally declared independence from Belgrade last year.

The move was supported by the US and many Western powers, but a number of countries - including China and Russia - still regard Kosovo as part of Serbia.

'Big statue' (A: No kidding.)

Mr Clinton waved to the crowds as the red cover (A: Of course it's a RED cover.) was pulled off from the statue on Sunday.

My god, eh… Gods worshiping Gods. You can go there and worship his likeness, folks, and see the puppets they put as front men. Always look at the guys behind them, he's more important, the number 2.

Well, from Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty" [4-minute Video with Link to Full Version] - October 16, 2009.

"Judge rules that green views are the 'same as religious beliefs' as sacked environmentalist wins legal battle" by Colin Fernandez (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 3, 2009.

"Obama's new world order - Redistributionist revolution vs. sovereignty" by Jeffrey T. Kuhner (washingtontimes.com) - Oct. 25, 2009.

"Al Gore could become world's first carbon billionaire" (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 3, 2009.

Club of Rome (clubofrome.org).

"Kosovo unveils Clinton's statue" (news.bbc.co.uk) - Nov. 1, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS   "Cutting Through"   Volumes 1, 2, 3   &   "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000)   &   Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs   "Reality Check Part 1"   &   "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 4, 2009 (#444)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 4, 2009:
With Copenhagen Treaty it's Over -- Lucky to Eat Clover:
"Copenhagen Treaty Coming, All Hot Air and Boor, Redistributing Wealth from 'Rich' to the Poor,
World Socialists All, Plank of Communist Manifesto,
When it's Signed, We're in the Poorhouse, Hey Presto!
Well-laid Plans of Those Who Meet, in Secrecy Plan Deceit,
For Communism was a Lie from the Start
Funded by Rich Men, Black Their Heart,
Who Follow a Religion Unknown to Most,
They are the Gods, Their Body the Host,
Using Front Groups, Dialectics Down through the Ages,
Fomenting War, Revolution Led by Oratorical Sages,
They will Foment the Riots, Guide the Insurrect
En Route to Perfecting That Left Imperfect"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 4, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 4, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 4th 2009. Newcomers should look into .com web site. You’ll find hundreds of hours of talks I’ve given in the past for download, in audio form. You’ll also see on the front page if you scroll down, all the other sites I have up there. Once in a while the big ones go down. If you bookmark these, you can always find the latest shows and download them [listed above]. alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site and it has all the audios but it has the addition of a lot of transcripts of the talks I’ve given. You can download them and they are in the various languages of Europe.

Remember, YOU are the listeners who bring me to you. I’m not backed by any foundation, any NGO group. I’m not a member of any political party. I’m not pushing myself for a career here. I’m not pushing products by sponsors. The ads on this show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN for air time and for the staff, the equipment and their bills and all the stuff that we pay ourselves at home too. It’s much more expensive when you’re broadcasting on radio of course. It’s up to you to keep me going. You can do so if you go into the web sites, see what I have for sale there. You’ll also find you can donate to me as well. You can order my books and disks through PayPal as well as donate [options listed above]. Some people just send cash to cut out the guy with the little podgy fingers and the triple chins.

It's up to you to keep me going. I really need help. Money just trickles in here. It trickles in from the SAME people and sometimes they can't manage themselves either. So it's up to you to keep me going or I won't be on the air one day. It's a simple as that. I'm going backwards not forwards. Believe you me, it's more than a 7 day a week, full-time occupation just doing this stuff and everything else I have to do at home. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, you can get in touch with me at [address above] and that will get to me. Remember too, I'll stress it again. If you want to donate or buy books or CDs – some of the CDs I have, have 50 shows on them. It's a good deal. You can use PayPal… just email me separately from your payments.

I'm not kidding. I am going backwards… really backwards this time of year. I know it's tough out there for people as well. I don't ask for the usual kinds of… I don't actually put anything up on my web site that you have to PAY to get into. It's one of the few places that you don't have to go into my archives and pay for them; it's free. But eventually, I'm going to just go off or do something drastically different. Or bring on the advertisers who will sit and scare the hell out of you for half an hour and then flog their products, the savior at the end. That's how it's done. And I'd get $5,000 a cut for that. How is that? It's up to you. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I mentioned once again The Club of Rome the other night, the PREMIER think-tank – they call themselves – for the United Nations. The guys who boasted in their book, The First Global Revolution, that they were given the task to unite the world into the new system. They had to have a common enemy to make it so because we all come together and sacrifice during a war type scenario. So they said basically that man would be the enemy and that global warming, the threats of famine and "the like," water shortages and "the like" would "fit the bill." That became the mantra from then on.

We also know that Maurice Strong and his Earth Charter in 1992, as he fronted for the big corporations, the United Nations and the foundations - Mr. Rockefeller is his best pal of course, his mentor, also behind him - came out with the Earth Charter and got all the countries to sign on to that. Step by step incrementalism as they pulled out their master plan. They were going to use environmentalism and global catastrophes as the reason to bind us all together under a new collective system.

[Alan reading from: Quotes from "The Green Agenda" (green-agenda.com)]

(A: They wrote anther book after that called Mankind at the Turning Point, from the Club of Rome. This is what they said…)

"In nature, organic growth proceeds all according to a master plan, a blueprint. Such a master plan is missing from the process of growth and development of the world system. Now is the time to drop a master plan for sustainable growth and world development based on global allocation of all resources (based on global allocation of all resources) and a new global economic system." - Club of Rome, Mankind at the Turning Point

(A: That's for the hard of thinking… I'm repeating that part again. "A new global economic system." What do you think that means? It's not just a new currency. It's a new WAY OF LIVING… totally. Will you work for yourself or will you work for the world state? It goes on to say…)

"Ten or twenty years from today, it will probably be too late."

(A: Because we'd catch on to them, that's why. That's from Mankind at the Turning Point, Club of Rome.)

~~~~~~

(A: They trot out the ex-KGB and ex-President of the Soviet Union, when it was still the Soviet Union. The man that was brought out to merge the Soviet with the West, as we found out from The Reece Commission that was going to happen… done in the 1950s. Mikhail Gorbachev, founder of Green Cross International. He said…)

"We need a new paradigm for development in which the environment will be a priority. World civilization as we know it will soon end. We have very little time and we must act. If we can address the environmental problem, it will have to be done in a new system (a new system) a new paradigm. We have to change our mindset, the way humankind views the world."
~~~~~~

- Mikhail Gorbachev, founder of Green Cross International

(A: In other words, they're going to change OUR mindset, you see.)
~~~~~~
(A: Then, from the United Nations Commission on Global Governance Report. Global Governance Report, the UN… this unelected body, this PRIVATE Corporation set up by those who own the foundations like Rockefeller. In fact, Rockefeller donated the land they build it on. It used to be the biggest kosher slaughterhouse in New York. Well sacrificed for its purpose.)

"The concept of national sovereignty has been immutable, indeed a sacred principle of international relations. It is a principle which will yield only slowly and reluctantly to the new imperatives of global, environmental cooperation."
- UN Commission on Global Governance report

(A: See, it's your sovereignty that is to go. I hope you realize that it's nothing about CO2. This is all the big nonsense, the gas that was put out by The Club of Rome when they were given the task to find something they could PUSH on the public to BELIEVE as to the reasons why we all had to give up sovereignty and come together. Then THEY would allocate resources TO you. That means dishing out the food to each bloc or region, as they call it, to bring down your population. So that's what they said.)

"The concept of national sovereignty has been immutable, indeed a sacred principle of international relations. It is a principle which will yield only slowly and reluctantly to the new imperatives of global, environmental cooperation."
- UN Commission on Global Governance report
~~~~~~
(A: The First Global Revolution, the first book I mentioned from The Club of Rome, written by the founders, the ones who dreamed up the idea. They said in the same book that they looked at all kinds of government and governance and they decided that COLLECTIVISM – out of all the types that they had at that time, the Soviet system, democracy and all the rest of it - COLLECTIVISM, which is the Soviet system, was BEST SUITED for their needs, for the world. Here's what they say too…)

"Democracy is not a panacea. It can not organize everything and it is unaware of its own limits. These facts must be fairly faces squarely, sacrilegious as this may sound, democracy is no longer well suited for the tasks ahead. The complexity and the technical nature of many of today's problems do not always allow elected representatives to make competent decisions at the right time."
- Club of Rome, The First Global Revolution

(A: Remember what the Huxley's and all these guys said? They're bringing in a world of a scientific elite to RULE the peoples in a collectivist fashion. Democracy is just a panacea. We believe in it. It truly is… it's actually a placebo, you might say. It looks like the real thing but it isn't. We never had REAL democracy and these boys have decided long ago that we should not have it and we should never have it. We're not CAPABLE of having it in fact, they believe. Only the better kind can judge and steer the ship of earth… not the masses, unwashed, silly masses.)

(A: It's all elitism at the top. I hope you realize that. I hope you really realize what it's ALL about. The depopulation agenda is such a MASSIVE PRIORITY with them because, as Charles Galton Darwin said in his book The Next Million Years, we got to get rid of all these people at the bottom or they'll outbreed the better types, like himself.)
~~~~~~
(A: Mikhail Gorbachev again, at The State of the World Forum…)

"Emerging environmentalization of our civilization and the need for vigorous action in the interest of the entire global community will inevitably have multiple political consequences. Perhaps the most important of them will be a gradual change in the status of the United Nations. Inevitably, it must assume some aspects of a world government."
- Mikhail Gorbachev, State of the World Forum

(A: Well, that's what it was set up for. There was a book put out by a Toronto bureaucrat called… his last name was Scott-Reed. I think it was something about a diary of a Canadian diplomat at the United Nations. He drafted up, along with Alger Hiss and Lester B. Pearson, the constitution and the charter for the United Nations. They were ALL communists by the way.)
~~~~~~

~~~~~~

- Mikhail Gorbachev, co-author of The Earth Charter

(A: Remember, this is a Soviet leader of the country… co-author of The Earth Charter for all of us, with an acceptance of all the so-called democratic counties. You think you've been democratic? NO. They never, ever intended for you to have democracy. It was a Punch and Judy show as they spent the last 100 years working towards this very end. It says…)

"I envisage the principles of the Earth Charter to be a new form of the ten commandments.
They lay the foundation for a sustainable global earth community."
-Mikhail Gorbachev, co-author of The Earth Charter

(A: That means drastic reduction on all the working classes. They don't need the working classes now. They don't need them. They've got them all in China. That's the working class now.)

~~~~~~

"In my view, after fifty years of service in the United Nations system, I perceive the utmost urgency and absolute necessity for proper Earth government. (A: That means global government.) There is no shadow of a doubt that the present political and economic systems are no longer appropriate and will lead to the end of life evolution on this planet. (A: That means the over-bred at the bottom, according to them, will outbreed them at the top.) We must therefore absolutely and urgently look for new ways."
- Dr Robert Muller, UN Assistant Secretary General (A: What a character he is… an old Nazi.)

~~~~~~

"Nations are in effect ceding portions of their sovereignty to the international community and beginning to create a new system of international environmental governance as a means of solving otherwise unmanageable crises." (A: And they're not talking about the environment.)
- Lester Brown, WorldWatch Institute

~~~~~~

"Regionalism must precede globalism. (A: See, we're all cut up into regions now.) We foresee a seamless system of governance from local communities, individual states, regional unions and up through to the United Nations itself." (A: That's to be the big boss.)
- UN Commission on Global Governance

~~~~~~

"A keen and anxious awareness is evolving to suggest that fundamental changes will have to take place in the world order and its power structures, in the distribution of wealth (A: That's one of the planks of the Communist Manifesto, collectivism, that's how they call it there.) and income. (A: So you've got to distribute your wealth and your income… BY FORCE by the way, by LAW… to supposedly third world countries. No choice in the matter, it will be by LAW. That's what all this carbon tax, apparently, supposedly is to go to. Any kind of gas tax would do wouldn't it?) Perhaps only a new and enlightened humanism (A: Humanism…) can permit mankind to negotiate this transition."
- Club of Rome, Mankind at the Turning Point

~~~~~~

"The alternative to the existing world order can only emerge as a result of a new human dimension of progress. We envision a revolution of the mind, a new way of thinking."
- Mikhail Gorbachev, State of the World Forum

I'll be back with more of these quotes after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix and reading some quotes from the big boys, they guys that came up with the CONS that are meant to enslave us and change us all into a preplanned system, written long ago, and they decided to use the environment to bring it along. That's why they INVENTED the whole idea of global warming… and they did invent it, by the way.

(A: Here's what Al Gore said… listen to the words…)

"We require a central organizing principle - one agreed to voluntarily. Minor shifts in policy, moderate improvement in laws and regulations, rhetoric offered in lieu of genuine change (A: In other words, they always give you promises things will get better.)- these are all forms of appeasement, designed to satisfy the public's desire to believe that sacrifice, struggle and a wrenching transformation of society will not be necessary."
-Al Gore, Earth in the Balance

(A: Most of society hasn't a clue what's going on. They get the PR stuff from the major media and they don't realize that they are being APPEASED… 'don't worry too much; it's not going to be that bad.' So he says here,

"We require a central organizing principle - one agreed to voluntarily. Minor shifts in policy, moderate improvement in laws and regulations, rhetoric offered in lieu of genuine change - these are all forms of appeasement, designed to satisfy the public's desire to believe that sacrifice, struggle and a wrenching transformation of society will not be necessary."

(A: That means you're GOING to have a wrenching transformation of society. That's going to be a big shock, isn't it? It's going to be done once they sign the last deal, which is already signed, by the way, just put their little thumbprints on it. It was done at the meeting at Barcelona, all drafted up there, and all the prostitutes will go over there and sign it into law at Copenhagen.)

"Adopting a central organizing principle... means embarking on an all-out effort to use every policy and program, every law and institution... to halt the destruction of the environment."
-Al Gore, Earth in the Balance

(A: They dreamed up the whole idea… The Club of Rome… and the environment. That's going to be the mantra.)
~~~~~~
"Effective execution of Agenda 21 will require a profound reorientation of all human society (A: That means all of YOU. I know it's hard for people out there to believe it. It means you, yes, you.), unlike anything the world has ever experienced, a major shift in the priorities of both governments and individuals and an unprecedented redeployment of human and financial resources. This shift will demand that a concern for the environmental consequences of every human action be integrated into individual and collective decision-making at every level."
- UN Agenda 21 (A: From the United Nations.)

(A: Every level. You're going to be taxed into the ground. Then they'll bring out the new system where you won't get taxed, you'll get credits from the government, just enough to live on, no private property, school-to-work, all that stuff, scientists deciding what you do, agencies running your lives for you. That's the fact. That's the wrenching experience they're talking about here, the UPHEAVAL they're talking about… RADICAL.)
~~~~~~
"The current course of development is thus clearly unsustainable. (A: That means too may people for their liking.) Current problems cannot be solved by piecemeal measures. More of the same is not enough. Radical change (A: Radical means radical, if you understand what radical means.) from the current trajectory is not an option, but an absolute necessity. Fundamental economic, social and cultural changes that address the root causes of poverty and environmental degradation are required and they are required now."
–from the Earth Charter website

(A: The system that is coming in is an updated collectivist, socialist system.)
~~~~~~
"The goal now is a socialist, redistributionist society, which is nature's proper steward and society's only hope."
- David Brower, founder of Friends of the Earth

(A: Where they redistribute the wealth of you – you're all very rich out there apparently - but they're going to make sure that you'll be down to the same level as all those poor folk that will never get the money that's sent over to them. A plank of The Communist Manifesto and that's what it is folks. The goal is now a socialist, redistributionist society. Just as communist as Mr. Al Gore is… the multi-millionaire shortly to be multi-billionaire Al Gore. And you thought that communists were a poor working class people. They never, ever were, at the top, never, ever. They were the richest bar stewards on the earth.)
~~~~~~

~~~~~~

"If we don't overthrow capitalism, we don't have a chance of saving the world ecologically. I think it is possible to have an ecologically sound society under socialism. I don't think it is possible under capitalism"
- Judi Bari, principal organiser of Earth First!

(A: One of the big UN organizations.)

~~~~~~

"Isn't the only hope for the planet that the industrialized civilizations collapse?
Isn't it our responsibility to bring that about?"
- Maurice Strong, founder of the UN Environment Programme

(A: He was also head of the World Bank at one point.)

~~~~~~

"A massive campaign must be launched to de-develop the United States. De-development means bringing our economic system into line with the realities of ecology and the world resource situation."
- Paul Ehrlich, Professor of Population Studies

(A: The guy who wrote a book along with the US science czar to depopulate the world. Back with more after these messages.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading quotes from some of the bigger players that ARE running your life. They are more important, in fact, than the politicians – the little clowns – they give us for Presidents and Prime Ministers. They just do what they are told.

~~~~~~

(A: I told you the parallel government is made up of all these organizations and their NGOs and the foundations that fund them… all connected to the United Nations.)

"The only hope for the world is to make sure there is not another United States. We can't let other countries have the same number of cars, the amount of industrialization, we have in the US. We have to stop these Third World countries right where they are."
-Michael Oppenheimer, Environmental Defense Fund

(A: That's the real reason they're still poor in the third world countries. They don't intend to take all the money off you and give it to them, under the guise of helping them clean up their own air. It's not going to get to them. That's the agenda. It's to kill a lot of them off… and us too by the way.)

~~~~~~

(A: This is one of the guys who helped… he was a founder of the Club of Rome.)

"Global Sustainability (A: He's talking about people when he says this.) requires the deliberate quest of poverty (A: That means introduction and creation of poverty.), reduced resource consumption (A: That's to bring down your food levels and so on.) and set levels of mortality control." (A: Not just birth control… MORTALITY control. In other words, a stepping up of those who get euthanized at the other end. Do you understand that? You understand what I'm saying here?)
- Professor Maurice King

(A: By God, when this treaty is signed and the UN comes to its full power – it's designed to come up to total power and all of these laws and the Copenhagen Treaty go into effect in 2012 - you're going to get hammered for every penny you have and more. The deliberate quest of poverty… you'll be poor alright. This is the agenda.)

~~~~~~

"We must make this an insecure and inhospitable place for capitalists and their projects. We must reclaim the roads and plowed land, halt dam construction, tear down existing dams, free shackled rivers and return to wilderness millions of acres of presently settled land."
- David Foreman, co-founder of Earth First!

(A: He's talking about the US primarily and Europe.)

~~~~~~

"Complex technology of any sort is an assault on human dignity. It would be little short of disastrous for us to discover a source of clean, cheap, abundant energy, because of what we might do with it."
- Amory Lovins, Rocky Mountain Institute

(A: You're never going to get cheap, abundant free energy, folks. It was never in the cards.)

~~~~~~

"The prospect of cheap fusion energy is the worst thing that could happen to the planet."
- Jeremy Rifkin, Greenhouse Crisis Foundation

(A: He gets funded by all the big boys and Rockefeller too.)

~~~~~~

"Giving society cheap, abundant energy would be the equivalent of giving an idiot child a machine gun."
- Prof Paul Ehrlich, Stanford University (A: Co-writer of Eco-Science along with the science czar who is currently in the US Congress right beside Obama.)

(A: See, that's what we are. We are all idiot children to these elitists who want to kill us off. Ehrlich wants to sterilize most of you. In fact, they've been doing it because after all, we are just the idiot children aren't we. You can't tell idiot children what you're actually doing to them because even idiot children can get angry.)

~~~~~~

"The big threat to the planet is people: there are too many, doing too well economically and burning too much oil."
– Sir James Lovelock, BBC Interview

~~~~~~

(A: These guys get incredible salaries from the big foundations, the parallel government that really runs the world.)

"My three main goals would be to reduce human population to about 100 million worldwide, destroy the industrial infrastructure and see wilderness, with its full complement of species, returning throughout the world."
-Dave Foreman, co-founder of Earth First!

(A: That's so he and all the elite can have their offspring, you know… their perfect offspring and they'll just have a big, nice world to themselves. Mind you, they can't tie their own shoe laces – these guys - but they'll have cloned super-breeds to do that for them. They probably won't even need sleep.)

~~~~~~

(A: Maurice Strong. This guy has done more in his lifetime to bring up the United Nations. He's all over the world. He comes from a family of revolutionaries. His Aunt or his cousin is over buried next to Mao Tse-Tung, close friend and advisor of him in fact… it says on the tombstone. It never stops. He was picked up by Rockefeller and groomed. He never even finished high school, he didn't have to, and thrown into the big oil companies to make a few million dollars and then put into the United Nations. He helped set up the whole GATT Treaty for trading with China and giving them all our factories and having it transported over there and set up.)

"Current lifestyles and consumption patterns of the affluent middle class - involving high meat intake, use of fossil fuels, appliances, air-conditioning, and suburban housing - are not sustainable."
-Maurice Strong, Rio Earth Summit

(A: And so says that God. You see, he believes he's a God, that one.)

~~~~~~

"Mankind is the most dangerous, destructive, selfish and unethical animal on the earth."
- Michael Fox, vice-president of The Humane Society

(A: Well, he should know… with a name like that.)

~~~~~~

"Human beings, as a species, have no more value than slugs."

- John Davis, editor of Earth First! Journal

(A: … "Human beings, as a species, have no more value than slugs." You understand what we're dealing with here. This is going to be life or death shortly. They're not kidding at the top.)
~~~~~~

"Humans on the Earth behave in some ways like a pathogenic micro-organism, or like the cells of a tumor."
- Sir James Lovelock, Healing Gaia

(A: What was it David Suzuki said, the other great environmentalist for Canada and the United Nations? …who likes furry animals? The geneticist actually. I think he referred to people as being maggots… maggots. Even within the maggot community, he says, some rise to the top, the superior type, and the rest stay at the bottom. I guess he's one of the maggots at the top.)
~~~~~~

"The Earth has cancer and the cancer is Man."
- Club of Rome, Mankind at the Turning Point
~~~~~~

(A: Again, the wonderful Paul Ehrlich, who wanted to sterilize everybody mandatorily, through government laws and great pal of the science czar of Mr. Obama who wrote the book EcoScience – it's all in it.

"A cancer is an uncontrolled multiplication of cells; the population explosion is an uncontrolled multiplication of people. We must shift our efforts from the treatment of the symptoms to the cutting out of the cancer. The operation will demand many apparently brutal and heartless decisions."
- Prof Paul Ehrlich, The Population Bomb

(A: But these psychopaths at the top will have no problems with that. They've got it all drafted up and ready to go down.)
~~~~~~

(A: Prince Phillip, that red-nosed boozer that hasn't worked a day in his life…)

"I don't claim to have any special interest in natural history, but as a boy I was made aware of the annual fluctuations in the number of game animals and the need to adjust the cull to the size of the surplus population."
- Prince Philip, preface of Down to Earth

(A: I don't think people really understand what we're dealing with. I wonder if they do.)
~~~~~~

"A reasonable estimate for an industrialized world society at the present North American material standard of living would be 1 billion. (A: He's talking about for the whole world living at that standard.) At the more frugal European standard of living, 2 to 3 billion would be possible." (A: He's talking about for the whole world.)
- United Nations, Global Biodiversity Assessment
~~~~~~

"A total population of 250-300 million people, a 95% decline from present levels, would be ideal."
- Ted Turner, founder of CNN and major UN donor

(A: All your big corporations are owned by these boys, folks… that you get your media from and your newspapers.)
~~~~~~

"... the resultant ideal sustainable population is hence more than 500 million (A: That's world wide.) but less than one billion."
- Club of Rome, Goals for Mankind
~~~~~~

(A: The wonderful Jacques Cousteau… "We are here on the Calypso to dive in the nice water…" Everybody loved Jacques Cousteau.)

"One America burdens the earth much more than twenty Bangladeshes. This is a terrible thing to say. In order to stabilize world population, we must eliminate 350,000 people per day. It is a horrible thing to say, but it's just as bad not to say it."

- Jacques Cousteau, UNESCO Courier (A: UNESCO for the United Nations.)
~~~~~~
"I suspect that eradicating small pox was wrong. It played an important part in balancing ecosystems."
- John Davis, editor of Earth First! Journal

(A: Ha, ha… oh.)
~~~~~~
"The extinction of the human species may not only be inevitable but a good thing."
- Christopher Manes, Earth First!

(A: These are the guys that go and talk at these world meetings.)
~~~~~~
“The extinction of Homo Sapiens would mean survival for millions, if not billions, of Earth-dwelling species. Phasing out the human race will solve every problem on Earth - social and environmental.”
- Ingrid Newkirk, former President of PETA
~~~~~~
"Childbearing should be a punishable crime against society, unless the parents hold a government license. All potential parents should be required to use contraceptive chemicals, the government issuing antidotes to citizens chosen for childbearing."
- David Brower, first Executive Director of the Sierra Club (A: Big player… the Sierra club, big foundation, grant maker, a lot of front groups.)

(A: In other words, they want to sterilize you with chemicals. That’s what Mr. Ehrlich said in his book… they could use chemicals to sterilize the public; and for those who are WORTHY to bear a child, they could give the antidote.)
~~~~~~
"The fate of mankind, as well as of religion, depends upon the emergence of a new faith in the future. Armed with such a faith, we might find it possible to resanctify the earth."
- Al Gore, Earth in the Balance

(A: What a religion this is.)
~~~~~~
(A: The Club of Rome again, the Humanist. Humanists are a religion themselves.)

"The greatest hope for the Earth lies in religionists and scientists uniting to awaken the world to its near fatal predicament and then leading mankind out of the bewildering maze of international crises into the future Utopia of humanist hope."
- Club of Rome, Goals for Mankind

(A: Where the better ones, the scientific elite will run your life for you from birth to grave.)
~~~~~~
"What an incredible planet in the universe this will be when we will be one human family living in justice, peace, love and harmony with our divine Earth (A: Divine earth again. Here are these religious topics.), with each other and with the heavens."
- Robert Muller, UN Assistant Secretary General
~~~~~~
"The earth is literally our mother, not only because we depend on her for nurture and shelter but even more because the human species has been shaped by her in the womb of evolution.... Our salvation depends upon our ability to create a religion of nature."
- Rene Dubos, board member, Planetary Citizens

(A: That ties in with Gorbachev who said that even though he was an atheist, he said that WE are creating a new world religion and it will be based on a form of earth worship. Of course, the sciences will be the high priests wearing the white coats for this religion.)

~~~~~~

And I could go on and on an on. This is from a site called The Green Agenda and I'll put the link up at the end of the show and you can see it for yourself. It goes on and on and on. It's very interesting indeed.

I've got an article from Barcelona, Spain. It's to do with the little arguments they had at the Barcelona meeting where they drafted all this stuff up that they're just going to go over and sign in Copenhagen.

UN climate chief: Deal must be legally enforceable
By ARTHUR MAX (AP) (google.com) - Nov. 2, 2009

BARCELONA, Spain — Developing countries don't trust wealthy nations' promises that they will help them meet the challenges of climate change (A: You know, the weather changes.), the U.N.'s top climate official said Monday, adding that means any new global warming deal must have legal force.
The legal status of an agreement and whether nations will be sanctioned for failing to meet their commitments (A: That means fining the countries, you understand, if you don't keep up with your payments, or you can't make them.) are contentious issues in talks on controlling the world's emissions of carbon and other heat-raising greenhouse gases. (A: Ho, oh… utter nonsense.)

"We live in a world of broken promises," said Yvo de Boer, the U.N. climate chief (A: He's actually the Pope of the powers of the air. He's in charge of the world's atmosphere. He's got a big, big stick and he just waves it just like King Lear and everything will be okay once we all pay this money.), told The Associated Press. Developing countries are concerned "they will commit to targets and not deliver."

Really, at this meeting they already developed all the stuff that's to be talked about and signed about and drafted. It's already drafted up for the FORMALITY at Copenhagen. Everything is a show for the public, folks. It really, really is a show. It truly is a show and the public don't know it at all.

Also, if you want to know what the future is in health care for the US, you can look into The Center for Continuing Professional Education at Harvard. I'll put this link up too.

Forces of Change: New Strategies for the Evolving Health Care Marketplace
April 20–23, 2010 • Boston, MA

Very, very interesting what they have there. They've got certain workshops. One is called

Capstone Activation Workshop (A: CAPSTONE, pyramid one.)
Socratic Dialogues (A: Socrates dialogue.)
Cast Studies (A: Interesting)
Leadership forum (A: And all the rest of them and...)
Luncheon Roundtable Dialogues (A: …afterwards.)

Very, expensive to attend, mind you.

Program Fees
$1,995.00: if payment received by January 22, 2010
$2,295.00: if payment received after January 22, 2010

It's not for the riff-raff. They don't want us all attending and find out what they're prattling on about as they bring us down into utter poverty, by decreasing health care as they tell you they're going to make it better, because that's the agenda, isn't it? Back with more after this break.

Hi. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There's time for a call. There's Paul from Australia on the line. Are you there Paul?
~~~~~~

Paul: Hello. It's crazy. I can't help but think Alan that our politicians are going to do a cut and run. You know, they'll say okay we're basically just going to put you all into a camp and that way they are going to be dictating to everybody.

Alan: There's no doubt about it. They've been setting up really, long before 9/11 happened in 2001. They were setting up internal police/army forces, giving them special training for 20-odd years in preparation for what's coming down the pike. It's all coming around now, what they're all here really for. People have NO idea of the utter poverty that they are going to get rapidly pushed into. They're talking about having to give billions and trillions per annum to supposedly third world countries. You know it's not going to go there because they want them to die off.

Paul: Exactly.

Alan: We're going to be taxed into the grave… just for food. Food will be so expensive you can't buy it eventually. I'm not kidding about that. That's how bad they want to make it.

Paul: Wasn't it Barack Obama, he made tobacco 3 times or 4 times the actual price?

Alan: That's correct. He did. He jacked it up. It used to be quite cheap and he put it up about fourfold.

Paul: Just real quick Alan. About these Swine flu vaccinations… what do you think that's mostly about? Do you think that ultimately, at the end of the day, that they want to change human DNA?

Alan: They're already doing it. They've been doing it for years in fact. What they did from the initial polio vaccines on, was to induce viruses which DO bring on cancers down the road. When you follow the cancer graphs they just shoot up massively right up to the present time until literally, everyone's dying of cancers. That was part … Even Dr. Salk, on an interview – and I have it here - ADMITTED there was more that just that one; there were HUNDREDS of live viruses - they didn't have names for – but they did know that the simian 40 virus caused cancers. That was its only function. They've also been tampering into the GMO food and EVERYONE now has problems digesting food. It's also causing incredible obesity because we can't handle these oils and fats that are in these modified plants at all. Our body can't tolerate them so it stores them up and once you pass 30 pounds, you can't get it off.

Paul: Yeah. Very true. Very true. What is in these vaccines today? Does anybody actually know? I've heard they actually have like DNA of all kinds of things like money brains even and stuff like that.

Alan: Yes they do. They also have a lot of fetal tissue in them. We're like cannibals now. We don't realize that and it tells you in every vial that is in it. I read a report a couple of weeks ago from the pharma themselves and named off the term that they used for that and it's in the vials. So there's fetal tissue in there as well. There are hundreds of other viruses. They actually say that they haven't named them yet.

Paul: I just wonder if many Jewish people are going to be taking the vaccines because you know how they don't believe in… how they don't want to… you know the drainage of blood out of the animal before eating it. Not to have any DNA to put into your own basically.

Alan: That is true. The religious ones technically can't take it. They can't take anything with the swine DNA in it. That's forbidden… so it's going to be interesting to see. That's why Israel forbid it, I think, over there. Most won't, I suppose.

Paul: Thank you very much.

Alan: Thanks for calling.

It's amazing though what's going on and they never tell us the truth, but I've been reading stuff here that should put the wind up of everyone. These guys are mass murderers and they know it. They feel it's their responsibility to cull us all off. Our time is over. We are the old man. We haven’t evolved enough.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Quotes from "The Green Agenda" (green-agenda.com).

"UN climate chief: Deal must be legally enforceable" [UN Pope of Powers of the Air Scolds World Leaders] by Arthur Max (at thejakartapost.com) - Nov. 2, 2009.

"United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change" [Barcelona Climate Talks already Agreed to Protocols of Copenhagen, the Latter just a Formality] (unfccc.int).

"Forces of Change: New Strategies for the Evolving Health Care Marketplace - April 20-23, 2010, Boston, MA" Center for Continuing Professional Education (harvard.edu).

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 5, 2009 (#445)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 5, 2009:
Masters of Matter Under Philanthropies Gather:
"Philanthropists Running the World it Seems,
Guiding Governments, Education Along Certain Schemes,
Well Planned by Robber Barons, Long, Long Ago,
Advancing Well-Paid 'Experts' Who Put on a Show,
These Cunning Crooks with Psychopathic Vitality,
Follow Crafty Plan which Alters Perceived Reality,
Pretending to be Born to Help World Heal,
In Reality, Got Rich from Ability to Steal,
Allowing No Competition, Rigid as Deuteronomy,
The World is Their Asset, Masters of Monopoly"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 5, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 5, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 5th 2009. Newcomers should look into .com web site. Scroll down; you'll see the official sites I have. These ARE my sites and anything out there with my name on it, is not mine if it's not on that front page of my site of .com. Also I should mention too, that anything that's being sold under my name from any other place except on these sites is bogus. So you have to be very discerning in this day and age, especially when you have a lot of enemies out there. You can see all the other sites I have [listed above]. Alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site. It has the same audios for download, for free, as all the other sites but it has the addition of transcripts of some of the talks that I've given, written in the various languages of Europe.

I always mention that it's up to the listener to keep me going. I'm sure I should stagger this throughout the show because people skip over the first 5 minutes, they know what's coming. They don't like to hear this part, most people. There's thousands and thousands out there that use this stuff but they never donate anything my way at all. That's the modern society we live in. It's up to you keep me going by donating to me or buying that which I have for sale on MY web site. No one is backing me. The ads on this show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN for the air time and for the equipment, their staff and bills and all the rest of it. Therefore, there's nobody funding me. I don't make money off advertising. That's how hosts generally do make their cash; it's from the advertisers. Each time they bring them on or they mention the names, they get paid for it. That's how it works. But then you're sort of compromised if you go that way because there are certain things… maybe along the line, you'll be asked about a certain thing or even a product and you can't answer honestly about it… if you're compromised. You'll be biting the hand that feeds you.

So it's up to you to keep me going. It's always the same people too that just make me crawl along here… thank goodness for them. It's up to you to keep me going by donating to me and you'll see how to do it on my web sites. [Options listed at top and bottom of transcript.] You'll also see a lot of people getting disks burned and passed to them. They don't use computers. They play it on their CD players. Once in a blue moon, one manages to get in touch with me when they find out where I am. They also like to order the books or donate. So you can do that by writing to me at [address listed above]. Remember, as I say, outside of MY web sites, I have NO OTHER SITES AT ALL. I don't have any chat rooms or anything like that. So, beware out there. There are a lot of malicious people out there in this day and age… and crazy ones too.

We're going into this… we're not. We're well into this new world order actually, this PHASE of it. We're actually coming out of the OLD phase of the last new world order and going in to the NEXT new world order. It's a time predicted back in the 1800s when they tossed about the idea of democracy and what it would mean for the people. They knew back then that democracy really could only be won by those with the largest organizations. If you weren't in the big organizations, you'd have no voice. Back with more on this topic after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about democracy. You have to go back into the 1800s really to find out how the media was managing the minds of the people at that time. The media at that time of course made its money primarily through advertising. They gave a lot of free ads under the guise of write-ups, like NEWS, to the big, big clients that they had. Towards the end of the 1800s, they talked about democracy, democracy, democracy and how it would affect the power structures.

At that time, the US was run by what they call the Robber Barons. These were the big barons of industry and money, commerce and banking. Once in a while, these guys would get together at that time, towards the latter part of the 1800s, and they'd collapse the economy. Sometimes just to get rid of competitors. Then they would buy up the stocks for peanuts. They'd become worthless and they'd buy them up. Well, along with that comes now a vacant factory or a factory fully stocked to produce or whatever. They kept building up their wealth. They got such a bad name that they had to remake themselves.

They brought in PR specialists basically to give them a good image to the public. Suddenly, these crooks, crooks that would get the militia turned out on miners for instance, like Rockefeller did. Overnight, he was transformed into a great philanthropist. Then they all became philanthropists. They banded with the other philanthropists that already ruled London and a good part of the world through the empire and they all became philanthropists, all these big money barons. It's worked so well because this is the parallel government that the Royal Institute of International Affairs is comprised of, the big banking boys really. Very old, old families.

They came about because of the merger of two groups and that was a Rothschild/Cecil Rhodes organization that became the Rhodes Foundation, for world government, that sent out people to literally to get patents and take up the resources of the world, especially in diamonds, gold, and all sorts of minerals and goodies. They teamed up with the Alfred Milner Group - Lord Alfred Milner, a guy who was born in Germany in fact, who headed this British system - with the Roundtable society which belonged to the Milner Group. They merged and created the Royal Institute of International Affairs that IS under a Royal charter to exist. Therefore, it's responsible TO the Royalty which is not responsible to the people or government. In fact, even today a lot of bills go through that are orders in council basically. They go right to the Queen and she'll sign them into law. Similar as to what the President of what the US can do or the Prime Minister in Canada.

They made themselves over, a total makeover, these barons of industry. They never stopped. They decided they wanted to transform the world into what THEY wanted. Being economists and all, they decided on an ideal population for one thing. Already having conned a lot of the public by, again, they owned the media. So they could put great reports out about their charitable organizations. They could start STEERING the public along certain ways of thinking and so on. They were responsible for giving us the TYPE of educational system that would create a particular culture. If you go into the history of the media, into the 1800s, you'll find all of this stuff accounted for, what they were doing.

They've never stopped. They really run the world, this parallel government with their MASSIVE foundations… because the guys who own the foundations ARE the internationalists; they ARE the big banking boys. They fund HUNDREDS of FRONT organizations and other foundations specializing in different areas of social control really. Yet they have such a wonderful time. Just like them, today they get great write-ups in the general, authorized media… which are really just big ads. They call them puffs. They used to call them puffs when they gave them free ads, a whole page; a beautiful write-up about how wonderful they were. It was actually called a puff. And they still do it.

The problem is that it's conned a lot of the people of the world who can't tell fact from fiction. They can't tell what really the agenda is. They can't tell that these wolves in sheep's clothing have big plans for them. They bypass all parliaments except when they put their own men in on the boards of Parliament. They're unelected by the people. They shape all policies. They have massive lobby groups. This is what they mean. When they talk about democracy, THIS is what they mean by democracy. Those with the biggest bucks and the biggest organizations and organizational ability and who can lobby government full-time… and even put their own boys in government when they want to. That's what they mean by democracy.

When these characters that RUN on economics look at populations, they want to REALLY bring them down mucho quicko. They go into action and get laws passed. These are internationalists too. They have their branches across the whole planet. I always get a picture of a tugboat… a tugboat that pulls the ships with all these different chains behind it with all the other countries in tow… all going in the same direction. That's how they organize things. It's the ONLY organized organization on the planet, beyond even governments. Many of their top members are members of intelligence services. Many of them HAVE been members of intelligence services. You can't have a nation today and have a secure intelligence service because they are all infiltrated by each other. So they're one big intelligence service at the top.

The Old-Thinker News is a good web site. They have written an article about the foundations and their impact and where they're taking us.

Elites Launch "Global Impact Investing Network"
Rockefeller Foundation to head the group, J.P. Morgan, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Al Gore, Deutsche Bank, others band together
Old-Thinker News | November 2, 2009 / By Daniel Taylor

Tax exempt foundations, banks and philanthropic organizations have been hard at work in the United States for decades (Alan: It's actually over 100 years.) molding the country to their liking. (A: True.) The schooling system, media, medical institutions, and foreign policy of the United States have all been influenced by them. Today, these foundations are partnering with global banking powerhouses (A: They ARE the powerhouses, banking.) in order to create the "Global Impact Investing Network" (GIIN) (A: GIIN, gin… what they are drunk on… your money.) which aims to spearhead a new form of investment.

The GIIN, headed by Antony Bugg-Levine, the current director of the Rockefeller Foundation, will "help solve social and environmental problems" by encouraging investment that will bring both profit and produce real world change. (A: Now, these are the philanthropists remember; these big investors who own banks. You've always known they've really been into helping you, right? You all know that… right?) According to the GIIN website, "The Global Impact Investing Network was conceived in October 2007, when the Rockefeller Foundation gathered a small group of investors to discuss the needs of the emergent impact investing industry." The website states,

"In June 2008, a broader group of 40 investors from around the world met to discuss what it would take for the impact investing industry to be able to solve more social and environmental challenges with greater efficiency. (A: I know what they mean by that. I hope you all do too. They already have stated time and time again, there are too many people.) They organized behind a number of initiatives, including the creation of a global network of leading impact investors, the development of a standardized framework for assessing social and environmental impact, and a development of a working group of investors focused on sustainable agriculture in sub-Saharan Africa." (A: They use the IMF. No. These are all part of the big same clique.)

In other words, the establishment is seeking to direct the wealth of the world's most powerful foundations and individuals towards the realization of their agenda. This has already been happening for decades in a shrewd and veiled manner, but this new initiative is an open gathering of these globalist interests. The GIIN will undoubtedly be used as a public relations stunt for banks and moneyed elites to brush up their stained image through "socially conscious" investments. If it succeeds, GIIN will attempt to mold industry and business by "screening" out investments for Co2 emitters and others deemed to be unworthy. (A: Remember too, these are the guys who are in charge of the carbon emissions and the carbon taxes and the carbon credits and all that stuff. Remember that. Don't forget that for a second. So they're eliminating all, all competition that's not theirs. Everything that's not theirs is getting eliminated.)

A few of the banks and organizations involved with GIIN include: Acumen Fund, The Annie E. Casey Foundation, The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Calvert Foundation, Capricorn Investment Group, Citigroup, Deutsche Bank, Equilibrium Capital, Generation Investment Management, Gray Ghost Ventures, IGNIA, J.P. Morgan, Lundin for Africa, Lunt Family Office (Armonia), Omidyar Network, Prudential, The Rockefeller Foundation, Root Capital, Shorebank/NCIF, Trans-Century, Triodos Investment Management, and Wolfensohn & Company.

Some of the same individuals and organizations involved with the Global Impact Investing Network recently met in New York in May of 2009 at the home of Sir Paul Nurse, president of Rockefeller University. According to the London Times (original link no longer active), the meeting was so secret that, "...some of the billionaires' aides were told they were at 'security briefings'". (A: Now, it first broke out in the Irish newspaper and I read that on the air. It told you who attended as well and their whole agenda was overpopulation and they've got to do something about it.) David Rockefeller Jr, Bill Gates, Warren Buffett, George Soros, Michael Bloomberg, Ted Turner and Oprah Winfrey were all in attendance. The Times reports, "Over dinner they discussed how they might settle on an "umbrella cause" that could harness their interests." The article continues, "Taking their cue from Gates they agreed that overpopulation was a priority." (A: The people who give you your thoughts, like Oprah, what do you think she's there for? Who do you think PUT her there? Back after this break.)

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from Old-Thinker News, a very good article on the big boys, the ones who run the parallel government and shape the opinions of the public and even get millions of youngsters all working towards an agenda they THINK they understand but haven't a clue about. They certainly don't know the real purpose of it or where it's really to take them. That's always the way with followers isn't it? You must create a kind of religious feeling and get them all to work for you.

The Times interviewed a guest at the meeting, who said that the group wanted to meet in secret because they didn't want their statements ending up in the media, "painting them as an alternative world government."

Indeed, this group has and is currently acting as an "alternative world government." While these foundations aren't busy partnering with global banking institutions (A: Which they are part of.), the Secretary General of the United Nations is praising their influence in supporting the activities of the UN. In an interview with the Seattle Times, UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon was asked, "Some say the emergence of super rich philanthropies like the Gates Foundation has undermined the effectiveness of the U.N. and its member organizations, like the WHO." Moon responded,

"On the contrary that is what we really want -- contributions from the business community as well as philanthropies. We need to have political support, but it doesn't give us all that we need. NGOs and philanthropies and many foundations such as Bill Gates Foundation -- they're taking a very important role. (A: I'd say!) The United Nations stands in the center of mobilizing and raising awareness of climate change..." (A: So here you have overpopulation, climate change, and at the bottom you've got all these banking boys. You know, the guys who LOVE to invest in things because they love humanity… dealing with the carbon credits and all the rest of it.)

For some of the groups involved in "raising awareness of climate change", altruistic motives seem to fade into the background when we find that significant financial gain will be reaped from carbon trading schemes and other new financial programs. In 2004 Al Gore (A: Mr. Allegory himself.) teamed up with David Blood, former head of Goldman Sachs asset management, to form Generation Investment Management, appropriately deemed "Blood and Gore". (A: You couldn't make this stuff up, eh? You couldn't make this stuff up… in a sci-fi…) The firm, which Gore chairs, is involved with various "green" investments (A: Green… maybe it's moldy.), including carbon credits. Gore's promotion of a carbon tax system carries obvious conflicts of interest. Additionally, GIM is one of the top 10 shareholders of the Chicago Climate Exchange. Gore's Generation Investment Management - which is a founding member of GIIN - is listed in the GIIN report, Investing for Social & Environmental Impact, as a prime example of impact investing.

It's quite a good article here but there's so much on these characters. They've run the world for such a long, long time with a technique that most folk were oblivious of… through charitable… or fronts, you see. Always under the guise of 'we're here to help you'. Kind of like Freemasonry that once in a blue moon stages some charitable event. Same idea. It's all connected in actuality, but the public haven't a clue. The public haven't a clue.

Really, it bypasses all democracy at the same time. All these NGOs come out and march when they're told to march and wave their banners - all factory made and all identical across the planet - and demand from the governments the very thing that the governments are waiting to hear them demand. Then they say 'the people have spoken… and we have to answer them' and they then sign something into law. This is how it's been done for an awful long time, bypassing the people all together. That's how it's done.

People say 'well there is no conspiracy.' Well, yeah, yeah. Technically there isn't a conspiracy. HG Wells said it was the OPEN CONSPIRACY [book of the same title]. They published stuff in very old books that no one reads. They TELL you what their goals are. They told us in the 1800s what their goals are going to be and objectives are going to be… in no uncertain terms. They also told us in their own writings back in that time what they really thought of the general public, but the public are oblivious. They are too busy watching American Idol or whatever else is the latest fear thing that's getting put in front of them. Quite something.

This falls right in with

Gore's spiritual argument on climate
Posted on 02 November 2009 by Editor / Suzanne Goldenberg / WorldBBNews.com

Nobel winner adapts fact-based message to reach those who believe they have a moral duty to protect the planet in Our Choice: A Plan to Solve the Climate Crisis

Al's Gore's much-anticipated sequel to An Inconvenient Truth is published today, with an admission that facts alone will not persuade Americans to act on global warming (A: [Alan laughing] I got snow today. They had it in New Zealand too, I hear, in some places.) and that appealing to their spiritual side is the way forward. (A: See, it is a religion. I've read the article yesterday about the judge and how he said that this idea, this whole thing on ecology is a faith-based thing; it's a religion. That ties in with Gorbachev's saying we're creating a new earth based religion. It had to be earth based, based in nature and so on.)

In his latest book, Our Choice: A Plan to Solve the Climate Crisis, the man who won a Nobel prize in 2007 for his touring slideshow on disappearing polar ice and other consequences of climate change, concludes: "Simply laying out the facts won't work." (A: By the way, that's all been exposed as utter rubbish. Disappearing… it's actually getting thicker. But facts don't matter when you're preaching a religion.)

Instead, Gore tells Newsweek magazine in a pre-publication interview, that he has been adapting his fact-based message – now put out by hundreds of volunteers (A: The NGOs)– to appeal to those who believe there is a moral or religious duty to protect the planet.

"I've done a Christian [-based] training program; I have a Muslim training program and a Jewish training program coming up, also a Hindu program coming up. I trained 200 Christian ministers and lay leaders here in Nashville in a version of the slide show that is filled with scriptural references. (A: See, they'll USE everything. That's what's beautiful about holy books. These characters are the past masters – and I mean that, past masters – of using religions for their own agenda. They've been doing it for centuries and centuries and they're at it still. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I hope people realize that the big organization that really runs and owns the planet owns all the politicians across the planet at the same time. They have for a long, long time. That's why EVERY country is on board with… make us all poor as they fight climate change which doesn't really exist at all. Even Al Gore had to come out, apparently in his new book, and say that CO2 wasn't the main problem. This is the same guy, Gore remember, that said we have to OVERSTATE OUR FACTS. Well, we're supposed to believe him NOW… that he's telling the truth now? They guy who constantly lies? [Alan laughing.] … because it's a battle for the mind isn't it. That's what everything is about… a battle for the mind… ongoing.

They certainly have enough press because they own it.... all these boys connected with it OWN the press.

George Soros: China a 'positive force'
CNNMoney.com / June 7, 2009: 12:45 PM ET

(A: George Soros… what a history this guy's got.)

SHANGHAI (Reuters) -- Financier George Soros said on Sunday that China's global influence is set to grow faster than most people expect, with its isolation from the global financial system and a heavy state role in banking aiding a relatively swift economic recovery. (A: Then he prattles on about the glories of China. This is a guy who thinks that China is the model state for the world. We've all to copy them… and their one-child policy. The one-child policy, by the way, is not written in stone. If you can afford a second child, meaning that you're one of the better types, you've proven eugenically you're better because you're richer, then you can have a second or third child or more. You get a little fee you have to pay. It's a fine, a fee you have to pay to allow yourself, because you've been naughty… as you wink to each other from the government to them. That's how it's done. It's all Darwinism… for survival of the fittest, you see.)

Apart from that, these boys really, all these big boys OWN the economy of China. They OWN the economy of China. It was just the same as the Soviet Union. Technically, it was supposed to have its own bank really, that coined everything and there could be no competition, but that's not true. They allowed private banks. The only thing that was stipulated in fact, was that they could not make profit off people's labor. Now, you can image a bunch of lawyers – and that's what runs this world in a sense – getting something like that and going to work on it. They'd redefine everything, wouldn't they? And they did of course.

Then when the Soviet Union decided to move into its partnership and MERGE with the West – and that's what it was all about when the Berlin Wall just suddenly fell down – there was article appearing in the mainstream media. One was a Mr. Solomon, who was a cousin, I think, of Rothschild, who ran the biggest bank all through the Soviet era. He was making off with millions and billions of money - of US dollars too, in the Soviet Union - and going over to London at the time, surrounded by a private army.

China is the same. China did not pull itself up from nothing by its boot straps. Didn't do it. It takes money and power in this world to bring them up. They were GIVEN technology by the GATT Treaty. They were given the opportunity to have ALL the industries of the West transported to them, set up and production starting there. They were given all the loans to get everything happening through the GATT Treaty. They borrowed that money. They signed deals you'll never even hear of… with the big boys. That's why the big boys have no fear of them at all… they OWN China. They own it lock, stock and barrel.

You would never have an elite of the West giving away its ability to rapidly change over manufacturing into war machinery to protect you. They would never give away that right unless they were absolutely, 100% convinced that China would never be a threat to them. How would you do that? You OWN China; you own it lock, stock and barrel. You have people up at the top of China making sure that they've got a finger in every pie; they've got their ear in every conversation that goes on… because they micromanage everything. They always have. They micro manage the West too. So you can read that article.

It's interesting too, from

U.S. Needs Hit Squads, 'Manhunting Agency': Spec Ops Report

By Noah Shachtman / November 3, 2009 / wired.com

CIA director Leon Panetta got into hot water with Congress, after he revealed an agency program to hunt down and kill terrorists. A recent report from the U.S. military's Joint Special Operations University argues that the CIA didn't go far enough (.pdf). Instead, it suggests the American government should set up something like a "National Manhunting Agency" to go after jihadists, drug dealers, pirates and other enemies of the state. (A: Now, I don't know if you've looked at Britain recently. Everything follows Britain because they always start it there first and we all copy it secondly. Now you have local councils getting into data. They can confiscate your house and everything. They can bypass the police, under terrorism laws. So never take something at face value as the reason they want to GIVE you something. Every law that gets put on the books is meant to EXPAND into what it was REALLY set out to do… NOT the plausible one that you will accept.)

America's military, intelligence and law-enforcement agencies already devote thousands of people and billions of dollars to tracking down top terrorists and insurgents. But even the most successful of these efforts — like going after Iraqi militant leader Abu Musab al-Zarqawi — have been "ad hoc" efforts, with units cobbled together from different corners of the government. Report author and retired Lt. Col. George Crawford instead would like to see a permanent group with clear authority, training, doctrine and technology to go after these dangerous individuals. These "manhunting teams would be standing formations, trained to pursue their designated quarry relentlessly for as long as required to accomplish the mission," he writes.

Then it just goes on and on with these kind of incredible draconian things that are being put out today for the government to do. Remember, every law that gets put on the books HAS AN ULTERIOR PURPOSE... every one of them. There would be mayhem if they just went out and did it. There would be some sort of backlash at least from the sheep out there. Even the sheep get a little ticked off once in a while. So you've got to give them something that is plausible. We FLOAT through our lives in a hypnotic state, bombarded with data, most of it trivia and useless. This is just another bit of information that passes through their heads. 'Oh, it's to go after terrorists and stuff like that. That's what it's really for isn't it?'

Here's an article to show you where it goes.

Councils get 'Al Capone' power to seize assets over minor offences
Transport for London could go after assets of fare dodgers or ticket forgers
Sean O'Neill, Crime Editor / From The Times October 28, 2009

Draconian police powers designed to deprive crime barons of luxury lifestyles are being extended to councils, quangos and agencies to use against the public, The Times has learnt.

The right to search homes, seize cash, freeze bank accounts and confiscate property will be given to town hall officials (A: That's your local councilors.) and civilian investigators employed by organisations as diverse as Royal Mail (A: the MAIL!), the Rural Payments Agency and Transport for London.

The measure, being pushed through by Alan Johnson, the Home Secretary, comes into force next week and will deploy some of the most powerful tools available to detectives against fare dodgers (A: Dodging your fare… they're going to confiscate your home and property… on a bus.), families in arrears with council tax (A: They are on the list as well.) and other minor offenders. (A: They don't even need the police now. They're all BECOMING their own police forces. That's really what I see.)

The radical extension of the Proceeds of Crime Act, through a Statutory Instrument which is not debated by parliament (A: They don't even go through Parliament for these things now.), has been condemned by the chairman of the Police Federation. Paul McKeever said that he was shocked to learn that the decision to hand over "intrusive powers" to people who were not police was made without consultation or debate.

"The Proceeds of Crime Act is a very powerful tool in the hands of police (A: Would you think that someone who is broke and couldn't afford their taxes for their property would go under Proceeds of Crime? Well, that is what they're going for. See, it's nothing of what they tell you on the bill.) and police-related agencies and it shouldn't be treated lightly," Mr McKeever said. "There is a behind the scenes creep of powers occurring here and I think the public will be very surprised. (A: I wish they would. I'd LOVE to see the public surprised.) They would want such very intrusive powers to be kept in the hands of warranted officers and other law enforcement bodies which are vetted to a very high standard rather than given to local councils."

His concerns are shared by leading legal figures, who believe that there is a risk of local authorities abusing the powers to search people's homes, seize their money, freeze their accounts and confiscate their property. They also see parallels with the spread of counter-terrorist surveillance powers to monitor refuse (A: That's garbage.) collections and school catchment areas. (A: I'm not kidding. It's getting utterly… this is the dictatorial age that Lenin said we would go into, after the dictatorship of the so-called proletariat. There would be so many agencies all standing on each other's toes, each other's territories, all going for the booty out there, the loot.)

Wide ranging confiscation powers were given to police and law enforcement bodies in 2003 to seize the cash and property from drug dealers, people-traffickers and money launderers. They were viewed as "Al Capone powers" — a means of getting at the Mr Bigs of organised crime by seizing wealth accrued from criminality.

What are they going after… people that can't afford tax? People who have put too much stuff in their garbage bin? You're now a felon. And they are training children to report on all this stuff. And people think somehow we can go back? HOW are we going to go back to any other lifestyle? HOW? Tell me. Since this is backed by those at the top of government… Then it tells you who those guys at the top of government really work for. It certainly has never been the people… NEVER, EVER been the people. Never will be for the people either. The Tower of Babel is SO crooked and corrupt and always was. It's held together by crazy glue and Band-Aids that you can't fix it. It's rotten from its very foundation. Always was. It's only getting so high now in its corruption that it's teetering a bit. You can't fix something as badly busted as that. It can't be done. It can't be done. YOU HAVE TO DEMOLISH IT… before it falls on all of us.

There's another article too.

Irish Independent promotes eugenics and depopulation again
Irish Independent / By Kevin Myers / 30.10.2009

It all fits in with the articles that are coming in about the advocations of culling the populations in Africa. That's coming out openly now through 'they'll have to be taught a lesson.' I'll put up the wiseupjournal.com article on that. Again, these are all happening. These are HANDOUTS to the press… emotional things to get us used to predictive programming that people will argue in their homes about it, like I mentioned the other night. They'll get emotional and someone will say, 'well, maybe they're right; I've watched all these David Suzuki programs and you know…' They don't realize they're getting their opinions through lying. They never go into the whole story of why there's famine here or famine there. NEVER. NEVER. They never tell you that most of the famines they've had in Africa were always due to wars funded by the West. Divide and conquer, divide and conquer.

They said it when Kissinger put through that bill on the greatest enemy to the state was overpopulation and they targeted a whole list of countries. They said they could never let them emerge into economically viable countries like the United States. So they'd always have to divide and conquer, but they're pushing overpopulation as the problem.

Here's an article on euthanasia. It comes out at the same time. Everything comes out at the same time. That means there is an intelligence behind a lot of the releases of a kind, that are related.

Doctors admit to practising 'slow euthanasia' on terminally-ill patients
By Daniel Martin / October 2009

One in five doctors admit to keeping the terminally-ill heavily sedated until they die, in what critics have dubbed 'slow euthanasia'.

A poll of nearly 3,000 doctors found that 18.7 per cent had administered drugs to keep patients suffering from painful conditions such as cancer unconscious for hours at a time.

Subjected to 'continuous deep sedation', many slip into a drug-induced coma before dying - perhaps days earlier than they would have done. It is often given without the patient or the family being fully appraised of the consequences.

Now, the way this is presented is making you think, ‘well it’s a good thing really, isn’t it; they don’t wake up.’ They’re not telling you they can keep you going for an awful lot more time than a few days… with a lucid mind and without pain with other medications… if they want to. This is meant to get you to side with them. You can never read an article at face value. You got to ask WHY is here? What are similar articles appearing across the world at the same time, in major media? Why is it all there at the same time? There’s always a reason for it. It’s to really end up through people at home having arguments and the predominant THEORY being chosen as your opinion. That works so well.

Again, it’s a technique that even Bernays talks about. Remember, Bernays was the one who GAVE the consumer society to America. The guy who helped to degenerate the society of America too, with full intention – it wasn’t just for money or for advertisers either. He worked WITH governments AND the culture industry. He went through these techniques of how you CHANGE society to sell your product OR IDEA; in other words, opinion. An opinion is a product when it’s peddled by the mainstream media… and people don’t realize that. We are GIVEN our opinions.

I’ve quoted the ones from Aldous Huxley, Lord Bertrand Russell, and other big player players who said that. “We shall GIVE the people their opinions.” Brzezinski, in Between Two Ages, says “shortly the public will be UNABLE to reason for themselves; they’ll expect the media to do their reasoning for them.” He meant giving you your opinion. Huxley went on to say too in his book – many of his books in fact – that the people have no idea that how or why they are arriving at their opinions, or who’s giving it them. I’ll be back with more of this after these messages.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix. I’ve got a caller there. We’ve got Megan from Pennsylvania. Are you there Megan?

Megan: I just wonder what’s the deal with spies? You hear of Israel and Chinese and other countries stealing information from the United States and I just wondered if we are all global, is this a joke?

Alan: It is a joke.

Megan: I’ll take your answer off the air. Thank you.

Alan: An awful long time ago… It was the same with Masonic groups as different groups infiltrated other Masonic groups to make sure there’s one standard Masonic group. It’s the same thing with spying agencies. Spies, when they set up, their first job was to infiltrate the opposition spies and become one of them. This has always been the way of it. Therefore, when you look at how they set up the OSS for World War II, they combined the British secret service basically, that was really the Royal Institute of International Affairs. It was their headquarters they used in fact, because they were the HUB of all intelligence gathering for the whole of the British Empire. Still are actually, I think.

They formed the OSS and they brought all the other guys in from Europe who primarily had been communist in those countries… from the OSS. That became split up again after World War II supposedly, but they were tied at the hip under agreement to share intelligence. The ones who were basically Trotskyites, brought in from Europe as spies, went back off into the European countries. Some went into Israel; some went to different places, back to the Soviet Union even. They were all sharing intelligence. You can not have a secret society today at that HIGH level and remain secret; it’s impossible. It’s absolutely impossible. They’ve signed agreements and agreements and agreements all throughout the Cold War which really bound them closer and closer and closer together.

We have been global for a long time. In fact, you have to go into the treaty that they signed in San Francisco after World War II. If you really, really read it all, if you can get it available, get it all actually, if you can get a hold of it all, you’ll see that every leader signed away his country’s sovereignty. EVERY LEADER that signed that agreement signed away sovereignty. The only thing is, the public weren't to know really, for an awful long time.

Initially, they tested it out with the public. A lot of the signatories wrote books on how wonderful it would be. They were even writing it DURING World War II BEFORE they signed the deal and saying they were going to bring in world government. In fact, the Royal Institute had said they were going to bring in world government back in the 1930s. I have their books here. So you can't have world government with countries going off on their own. Everybody that signed that MUST share ALL high intelligence… or you're called a rogue nation.

A rogue nation is someone that signed their agreement and then changed their mind. If you change your mind, they go after you with a vengeance and destroy you. So you can not have independent countries when your whole purpose is to bring in a world government. That was always the intention of the setting up of the United Nations and its precursor The League of Nations… a world government run on economics, population reduction… from The League of Nations back at the end of World War I and followed then to the UN after World War II and they're on a roll since. So the public are not ready, we're not ready, you see, to start getting culled off and being sterilized, as they want to eventually mandate. They said it would take maybe 50 years before they could come to full power and the public - through massive conditioning, education… brainwashing - would be ready for it. And here we are. But no, there are no individual spy systems today. You can't keep secrets. It can't be done. That's why you KNOW when they are going to blow up buildings way in advance. You can't not keep secrets. Everybody is infiltrated.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Elites Launch 'Global Impact Investing Network' " by Daniel Taylor (oldthinkernews.com) - Nov. 2, 2009.

"Gore's spiritual argument on climate" (at guardian.co.uk) - Nov. 2, 2009.

"George Soros: China a 'positive force' " (cnn.com) - June 7, 2009.

"U.S. Needs Hit Squads, 'Manhunting Agency': Spec Ops Report" by Noah Shachtman (wired.com) - Nov. 3, 2009.

"Councils get 'Al Capone' power to seize assets over minor offences" by Sean O'Neill (timesonline.co.uk) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"Irish Independent promotes eugenics and depopulation again" (wiseupjournal.com) - Oct. 30, 2009.

"Doctors admit to practising 'slow euthanasia' on terminally-ill patients" by Daniel Martin (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 29, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 6, 2009 (#446)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 6, 2009:
Rich Elites' Bright Prism -- Utopia for Themselves, for the Rest, Communism:
"This Century of Change Contains Communist Commonalities,
Micro-Managed by Social Scientists, Guiding New Realities,
If You Study Players, e.g. Kissinger, You'll Find Some Honesty,
He said 'Military are Dumb, Stupid Animals, Used for Foreign Policy,'
U.S. Soldiers are so Famous for being Sent 'Over There'
While the Home was being Blitzed, by Wolves within Their Lair,
And Adults Grew Up as Children, a Few Bucks and Entertainment,
Family Life became Dysfunctional by Socialist Estrangement,
Cultural/Sexual Revolution, Well-Promoted from On High,
Booze-Party-Drugs, Degradation, under Psychedelic Sky,
Now that Phase is Over, the War has Taken Toll, Ultimate Centralization of Government, U.N. is on a Roll"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 6, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 6, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 6th 2009. For newcomers, I always suggest you look into .com web site. Scroll down and you'll see all the other sites I have out there. Bookmark them for future use in case the big ones go down again, which they will, and that way you can always get the latest audios for download. There is a bunch to choose from [listed above]. alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site where you can also download along with the audios, transcripts of a lot of the talks I've given in the past and they are written in the various languages of Europe.

I should also mention too, one of my books now is also in Spanish and Portuguese and that is Waiting for the Miracle. ["Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)]. Anyone who wants to get a copy, you're welcome to get in touch with me. Remember, you bring me to you. You are the listeners. No one backs me here. I'm sure everyone knows this… money goes like water now; the expenses are so darned high. It's called 'quantitative easing' which means inflation. In Canada, even the foodstuff has gone up about 30% because of government interference with the farming over the many years PLUS the so-called quantitative easing, inflation, and also because they are paying farmers NOT to grow food. They are growing bio-fuels. So this is really the outcome of it. We're all going to suffer. We are suffering. At the same time, Canada being part of the British Empire – yes, there still is a British Empire – you pay extra for all energy. It's going up and up and up for everything, all the time.

So I appreciate your help for those FEW who donate to me and for those who buy the books and the disks and so on that I have for sale. THAT keeps me going, very important. One day, if I can't even… if I have to go back in and… I don't have the savings to go into to be honest with you, but if I have to go in and try to borrow money to keep going, I'll just go off the air and go and earn money somewhere else. Quite easy. Or take small groups again, who are willing to pay thousands… and just for a weekend, to teach. The reason I've been doing this is because it's IMPERATIVE that the knowledge that I have and other people have who've studied this their whole lives gets out to the public. There are people, individuals, scattered across the planet, who know there is something awfully wrong, they just don't know what it is. They blame themselves for not fitting in. It's because they are THINKERS and they see and observe and they use their own perceptions and come to their own conclusions. That will not fit in with the brainwashed mob. It doesn't happen that way. So they blame themselves. So I try to get through to those people to show you, NO, YOU'RE NOT CRAZY. It's the world that really has been pulled over your eyes… just like wool pulled over your eyes. We've all been hoodwinked and brought up in a scientific indoctrinational system.

So keep supporting me. I need it definitely right now. If I had to bring advertisers on, you would just have another one-hour ad as I bring on a guest who will scare the bejesus out of you and then offer the solution - or whatever they are selling - at the end. That's a bit deceptive, but it would certainly pay me. So it's up to you to keep me going the way it is. [Donation and purchasing options listed at top and bottom of transcript.] It's up to you. Back in a moment, after these messages.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix is the big system, the reality, the Plato's Cave in which you've been born. Everyone IN that cave, that's your neighbors, your friends and so on who've had the same PERFECT indoctrination will never figure out the big picture. Everything has to relate to what you've been TAUGHT to see and believe in that cave; and that's what Plato went on about. An old, old technique… because realities are GIVEN to the populace to suit those who rule. The realities of those who rule, compared to what they give YOU to believe in, are worlds… in fact, universes apart. Universes! Of course, there are multi-layers in between to manage the people at the bottom. Then you have the media in the middle. They pass on the propaganda to the public; tell you what to talk about. It even tells you, what they think about you. Everything to them at the top is a joke. Everything is a joke.

You have to look into what a Yahoo MEANS, for instance. Look at what yahoo means… in Gulliver's Travels. Technically, they are telling us we are yahoos. Then, Google, something a baby splutters out… gooo, gooooogle… you see. That's what they give you. Then they give you something to Twitter with. Birds twitter, chatter and twitter. It means nothing; it's just noise. It keeps you busy. It keeps you obsessed into different kinds of chat. Plus, you're giving all of your info out all the time on your state of mind… and THAT'S ALL BEING OBSERVED. That's what the internet is for. A net is something you catch fish in. It's also called 'the web.' You get stuck on a web… and there's always a spider watching. It puts you in a cocoon and you can't move. It's hypnotizing and you're stuck on the web.

It's quite the world we truly live in. It reminds me too of what Kissinger and Brzezinski and others have written about and spoken about in their interviews. They are geo-politicians. They are into LONG TERM and LONG RANGE strategies of how to take a whole bunch of countries down, one at a time. Almost like dominoes. You start here, weaken that one, get that one fighting that one, then you support one of them or the other, then you weaken the mightier one. Then the one you've helped to weaken them and you've got armed becomes a problem, then you've got to take them down with another one. That's standard procedure. Britain was famous for it. It was called 'balance of power.' Always finance the smaller guy and overthrow the bigger guy and the bigger guy is no threat to you, you see, he's no threat at all. He is conquered. Old, old strategies.

Brzezinski and Kissinger, these strange guys. And they ARE strange guys, there's no doubt about it. When I was small watching Kissinger on television, he struck me almost as some sort of ominous type, a very dark person, very, very dark… to see where his mind was at. He was dealing with things like killing masses of people as a matter of course in his career. That's what they do… in order to achieve long-range objectives to which the public are never allowed into. At the top, above even Kissinger, the realities are universes apart, universes apart. Kissinger said that the American military, the military, the soldiers and all of the military – and these are his words – he says 'they are DUMB, STUPID ANIMALS to be USED for foreign policy.' I've said that over the years, that same quote and it's always struck me as very apt.

It's very apt because you take the average person coming out… it's generally the working class that fill up militaries. As I say, the Tammany Riots in New York in the 1800s, Tammany said, 'you can always hire half the poor to kill the other half.' In times of financial depression, they pour in. Other ones want to get a name for themselves. They think they want to be part of the team and BE somebody. That's what the ads for the military are always on about… in every country. You can BE someone. BE all you can BE… buzz, buzz, buzz. For the first time in their lives, once they put a uniform on, they are suddenly somebody. They are respectable and get people noticing them in civilian life with a uniform on, that would never look at them otherwise and they are treated differently. They are given the most basic, lowest form of propaganda as to what they are actually involved in. They have no idea. To most of them, it never even occurs to them that this is only PART of a long-term strategy. In other words, they are LIED to. Completely lied to… as to what they are sent wherever for.

In reality, police keepers or peace keepers - who are dressed like the military with rifles and grenades and machine guns – ARE SOLDIERS. I don't care what they call them, peacekeepers, policing, whatever, they are still soldiers. Soldiers are sent off to war. That's their purpose. They always start off in every country - and the US was one of the last really, to do this because the Founding Fathers KNEW by the history of Europe – THAT THE MILITARY IS ALWAYS TURNED ON ITS OWN POPULATION. They debated the problem of having a standing army. They KNEW that the war wasn't over with the Revolutionary War. They knew it would never be over; it would be ONGOING. That's one thing that you find about the agenda behind all of this, it never gives up. So they debated the standing army and they got around it eventually, afterwards by bringing in 'well, we won't really have soldiers, we'll have Marines.' So you equate them with ships. That was still the formation of an army basically, a full-time army.

Armies are never told what they are really fighting about. They are given the basic propaganda. I've seen some of the stuff that the Pentagon, which admits to putting them out to all kinds of newspapers through different names, as little write-ups but they are actually disguised ads for the military. Where they talk to Miss so-and-so who's Corporal-whatever in the military who wants to get over there and fight for her country and all that kind of propaganda nonsense. They have no idea what they are over there for, really. They are kept in the dark. Most of them unfortunately today, don't care. Because with young people, especially with the young guys, they're not too bright. You're not too bright. You don't know much. When you're about 18 or 19, you don't know much at all. You've had no world wisdom. You haven't been knocked on your ass enough times to get respect… wisdom, in fact. In fact, you rebel against it. We've all gone through it. But that's the ideal age to recruit. You're young. You're egotistical. You want to wear the gear that you've seen through all the movies that you've been brought up with. You want to go and kill the bad guys… and whoever your government targets, is suddenly the bad guy. But YOU'LL NEVER REALLY KNOW THE LONG-TERM AGENDA OF THOSE WHO PLAN THESE WARS. They never tell you the truth, never, ever.

To me, an invasion is an invasion. I don't care WHAT it's called. When an army leaves the shores to go somewhere else, you have an INVASION going on. That's what they do. Don't go into psycho-politics or the psycho-linguistics, the use of psycho-linguistics… 'We are going to police this country.' Nonsense. You don't send a military off to police. They go there to make war. That's what they are for. It's so interesting, I've always said that as the US finishes off and pays for and polices the last… or I really should say, invades the last of the countries that they are meant to invade - I said that years ago - they'll be pulling the rugs from underneath the U.S., back home, at the same time. That's how they work, these big boys who run the world. THE U.S. HAS TO BE FLATTENED INTO THE VERY SYSTEM THAT IT'S HELPED FORCE ON OTHER NATIONS.

Because the peasant of America, to those at the top… who are internationalists by the way, completely internationalists, have been all their lives and their parents before them. They have no allegiance to a country. They have no allegiance to the American peasant or the British peasant or the Canadian peasant or the Chinese peasant. We are all peasantry. Anyone who's profane and in the dark - IN THE DARK, who laps up the reality at the bottom level, from TV and the newspapers, the profane, as they call them, is in the dark - is just a peasant to them. Complete peasant.

The attack, especially in the Western world, Western culture, was mandated as far back as the League of Nations; they'd have to DESTROY THAT CULTURE for this internationalist world they were going to bring in. They didn't want a culture and a people who were TOO strong, who COULD stick together and go off and fight for righteous things if required, at least defend their own countries. That had to be done away with too by DEculturalization. We've had a massive process of deculturalization going on as a new type of culture emerged. I've quoted before Mazzini and different people in the communist sectors who said that in order to rule the people, we must destroy their cultures. Well guess what? We've all lived through the destruction of it. Your parents did too. They didn't know it.

There's hardly anything left of the family unit. In fact, most of the planks of the Communist Manifesto have been attained. The rest of it you're going to see shortly. In fact, you're hearing about it, they just simply use different wording. It's the same thing. If it walks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck. That's the collectivist system that the Club of Rome and the Royal Institute of International Affairs said they'd bring in. It's a nice name for a sort of communistic bureaucracy with NGOs being the new soviet or being given to their foundation leaders. Back after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just discussing how everyone is conned in this world. To understand that, you must understand the different levels and layers of reality that different factions or CLASSES of society have been given. This again, was well understood in the 1800s by the Marxists because they looked at all of society and they initially wanted to bring societies down and make things as bad as possible to get people to rebel. They even told their members NOT to help those who were begging on the street. Make it as BAD as possible, as worse as possible, as miserable as possible in order to get people to rebel and revolt. But then, they had a different tactic eventually decided on for the West… because they realized that there was still enough work to go around especially after World War I came along, then World War II and they changed their tactics on HOW to get the people changing.

They used some of their famous leaders' writings, when they studied society and how reality was formed by those who rule. The idea being, they'd get their people to overthrow the system or infiltrate gradually, like the Fabian technique, which has been very successful. All the guys pretty well across the Commonwealth of Britain now – that's Australia, New Zealand, Canada and elsewhere – are all Fabianists. They belong to the Fabian Society. They basically knew that once they were in power, they would give the public a NEW reality based on the same technique that the old rulers had used to keep people in their reality. In other words, they'd become dominant at the top. They'd get us used to having a SCIENTIFIC elite dictating to the public and guiding their lives and managing all of their lives. And after a generation, it would all become quite normal and the past would be erased and forgotten.

They had to destroy the family unit. Since the 60s onwards ESPECIALLY, a full-out attack was made to destroy the family unit. It's been incredibly successful. You'll hardly see a functioning family, functional family today. You'll hardly see one. There's very few around now… because everyone is bombarded with messages, mainly through the fiction that they watch every day and the novels they read. I've talked about America's Cultural Cold War. How the CIA RAN the culture industry along with Bernays and all these boys. Well they never gave it up. You still promote the next part and the next part and the next part of the culture. The fashions, as Plato said, the fashion works together with the stage play which is now the movie, the drama and through emotional stories, they IMPRINT IDEAS AND WAYS OF BEHAVING INTO YOUR MIND. Including music… music was very, very powerful, even in Plato's day, especially on the minds of the youth. That's what he talked about.

Getting back to the present time, we are at the end of really a long-term war and most folk are oblivious to it, what's actually been even happening. They still think of communism or collectivism as a bunch of guys with pitchforks - that's their big fable that they give you - or lady liberty in the French paintings storming the Bastille with all these little peasants around her. Yet they never go into the fact that every single rebellion and revolution took an incredible amount of PLANNING, COORDINATION and HIGH, HIGH FINANCING, run by the intelligentsia, not by the guys down there doing the fighting. And nothing has ever changed. Not only was there a cultural war going on and believe you me, the CIA was NOT there to protect the US. It was there to ALTER the US on behalf of the elite that they see as their masters, not the American people, to fit into this global system.

Yes, we're under attack, not just through culture, not just through all the so-called Lefties being heavily funded, through the nongovernmental organizations, by the big foundations, the parallel government, the so called philanthropists, but they were also attacking you through food and denaturalizing THAT until there's hardly anything left in it that's of any substance to you, altering it so much that so many people now have diabetes… With all the oils that they are using now too, they can’t really work them out of their body. They end up in fat which cannot be reabsorbed by the body and broken down. We see the effects of it everywhere, everywhere. AS, at the same time, they bring you down financially with their ‘quantitative easing…’ or inflation. As you pay for the wars that are going on right now and supply the men, troops and everything else with your tax money and plus you’re going to now, in December, pay BILLIONS AND BILLIONS, maybe TRILLIONS of dollars through carbon taxes to supposedly – it will never get there – third world countries. It has to pass through the hands of Gore first and the banking boys and the Rothschild group of banking boys who are taking charge of these carbon credits with their bank in Switzerland… before it gets anywhere. Some might get trickled down to somebody somewhere, but it won’t be to any guy in a village in Africa.

It’s a new way to rule the world. When they are in charge of everything that you NEED to LIVE, food, energy, everything, you’re in big trouble. They call that INTERdependence. It means you are totally dependent on your masters for those things to live, the essentials. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix. It’s astonishing how quickly even recent history can be ERADICATED. More so now that everything is going up on the internet and e-books and all the rest of it. I quoted the Club of Rome quite a few times with their First Global Revolution and apparently there’s a book up there and the valid pages are missing, there’s about 30 pages missing. They didn’t even bother to sort of fill them in to make it look continuous. They just aren’t there. That’s how easy it is to alter reality for those who can’t read books anymore, paper books.

Getting back to the cultural wars that have been going on until we’re base level, base level in fact. Of course, it was designed to come to here and that’s why for 20-odd years, 25 years, they’ve been building up internal armies to deal with the problems. The elite don’t plan to have us all around for too much longer… not too much longer. We still have to go through the transition phase where we’re to get CRAMMED into the already overloaded cities as we go down the hill and die off, up to the year of about 2050.

That’s supposed to be helped along by Agenda 21 from the United Nations, this unelected body, this PRIVATE Corporation that people accept as being somehow normal in their lives, like gravity. They have no idea that it’s a private corporation that’s always shouting about democracy while no one has ever had the vote to put anybody in there, and we’ll never see it either. THEY ARE DICTATORIAL. They have an agenda. They appear to be communistic; but then again, Carroll Quigley said, the Royal Institute of International Affairs/Council on Foreign Relations are often mistaken for communists because they have the same agenda. THEY WANT THE WORLD TO BE RUN ALONG COLLECTIVIST, SOCIALIST, SOVIET TYPE LINES. They thought that was very efficient.

Meanwhile, it’s mainly the US that pays for it all. Massive debt. They’ll never pay the debts off, never mind the last crash. It cannot be done. It’s not intended to be done. It’s only intended to keep using this money system until it’s over and then you get credits… issued by government to you. That’s what Bertrand Russell said. You cannot save up your credits, so you’ll all be equally poor. It will start at the same rate every week. You can’t save them up. You will have no private property. That’s another thing that they ALL agree with, all of these boys. And no private transportation because in totalitarian regimes, they don’t like you to travel. In fact, you’ll eventually have ID cards – very shortly – that will actually RESTRICT YOU INTO YOUR LOCAL AREA… maybe to your work and back, in that area. The collectivist system.

Meanwhile, we keep supplying the troops. Every year there’s another bunch turned 17 or 18 and they are into the military as naïve as the last bunch… learning to say all the right things. ‘I want to go and fight for my country and bring good to the world’ and all that nonsense. All that nonsense. They are disposable. Remember what I said? Kissinger said this. He says ‘the military are dumb, stupid animals to be used for foreign policy.’ From his position, he means it. I see his logic because they aren’t told any truth at all on anything. To Kissinger, they wouldn’t understand the truth; it’s TOO complex for them to understand long-term geo-politics and big business and oil and economics and all of that stuff. So they’re told the usual stuff, they’re fighting for their country. And that’s good enough for them at that age.

Meanwhile, on USA Today, here’s what they’ve done. In this war on America and the Western world, knowingly with their GM food and all the rest of it…

Pentagon: A third of U.S. youth too fat, sickly to serve
Nov 04, 2009 / USAToday.com / (Posted by Doug Stanglin)

More than a third of American youth of military age are unfit for service, mainly because they are too fat or sickly, the Army Times reports, quoting the latest Pentagon figures.

Most of the rest are too dumb or have used too many drugs to qualify, the study shows.

The report says 35% of the 31 million Americans aged 17 to 24 are unqualified because of physical and medical issues. (Alan: What's happened since the 1950s? Speeding up from the 1970s and 80s? Massive inoculations. Auto-immune problems. The food supply has been utterly changed and managed… processed foods, de-mineralization of all the soil where they keep growing the same stuff over and over again and just shove chemicals on top, massive pesticides. GMO food with again, even more massive pesticides, all these different oils and sugars, which they cannot handle. The body is not meant for it. It's not meant for it. You body is meat to break down ANIMAL fat… not margarine. They know this too.)

"The major component of this is obesity," Curt Gilroy, the Pentagon's director of accessions, tells the Times. "We have an obesity crisis in the country. There's no question about it."

He also said young people, by and large, can't do push-ups.

"And they can't do pull-ups," Gilroy says. " And they can't run."

The Times says the Pentagon gets its data from the Centers for Disease Control (A: Ha… they CONTROL diseases, you see.), which has found that the percentage of youth 18 to 34 who are considered obese has jumped from 6% in 1987 to 23% now. (A: That's when they REALLY altered the food big time. From 6% in '87 to 23% now. Don't think they are getting greedier. Don't think that for a minute. It's the stuff in all the food has been altered. YOU USE FOOD AS A WEAPON TO TAKE PEOPLE DOWN. I hope you understand that. They've had bio-chemists working on these things to destroy other countries. Do you think they wouldn't use it on your own? Obesity was one of them, the failure to absorb and work with these oils and sugars, loaded with pesticides. GMO. Do you think they got hundreds of different animal, insect and vegetable genes, put them together to make a bigger potato? Put together by guys in the BIO-WARFARE INDUSTRY? To make a better potato because they want to please you? I don't think so.)

Here's the Pentagon's breakdown of the ineligible population, according to the Times:

- Medical/physical problems, 35%.
- Illegal drug use, 18%.
- Mental Category V (the lowest 10% of the population), 9%. (A: Everybody's IQ is dropping. You think this is a normal phenomenon?)
- Too many dependents under age 18, 6%.
- Criminal record, 5%.

(A: Medical and physical problems is 35%, the highest percent.)

The Times reports that Education Secretary Arne Duncan and a group of retired military officers will issue a report on Thursday warning that the situation is so dire it amounts to a threat to national security.

That study will show that when all factors are considered, 75% of military-age youth are not eligible to serve. (A: That means 75% have been attacked and put out of action. That's another way. You must always look at other ways of looking at the same thing.)

We've been taught from school onwards to have LINEAR thinking. A wild animal does not have linear thinking. The so-called primitive peoples do not have linear thinking. They look at things from many angles, not just this goes to here, which leads to here, which leads to here. That's called programming. YOU'VE GOT PROGRAMMED THINKING. You have been made into the so-called Masonic ashlar, you've been squared. You should be round and roll like a stone; a rolling stone is natural, it gathers no moss. Everyone's been brought up in a scientifically constructed reality of perfect indoctrination. Well understood in certain quarters. WELL UNDERSTOOD. There's nothing in the planet that's been so studied as WE have.

I also read about ANOTHER part of the warfare program, many times actually, pretty recently as well, from the United Nations and how they are really ramping ahead to get the children into becoming obsessed in PRE-PUBERTAL SEX. That's the idea. That's the REAL intention of getting them obsessed, getting this in their heads at such a young age. They call it sex education. It's not really sex education. IT'S THE INSTALLATION AND THE IMPRINTING IN THEIR MINDS AND THE FORMATION OF OBSESSIVE BEHAVIOR WHICH WILL CONTINUE THROUGHOUT THEIR LIVES TO DO WITH SEX. These are techniques which CAN be instilled very easily and in the sciences, they understand this. They want them ALL, of course, like Bertrand Russell wanted them too. He tried it in his experimental schools that were authorized by the British Crown to promote pre-pubertal sex. They encouraged it amongst the students to see what would happen, WITH THE HOPE that it would stop bonding with a particular mate down the road. The more partners they would have, the less chance they could have a relationship with one… and the less chance there would be to have children.

If you think that UNICEF and the United Nations is not… They are right at the TOP of this whole program. This is from The Telegraph.

Parents lose right over sex education
Sex education will be compulsory in all schools, it was announced today, as thousands of parents lose the right to opt their children out of the lessons.
By Graeme Paton, Education Editor / 5 Nov 2009

Pupils in England (A: This is all over the world. It came from the United Nations. So if it hasn't hit your country yet, it's going to shortly or it's already being introduced and you don't know it yet.) will be given classes in sex and relationships from the age of five under Government plans to cut teenage pregnancies. (A: It's amazing. They push you with a sex culture. You can't look anywhere… What do they have out for the children? You're little teenyboppers dancing to Much-Music that's nothing BUT sex, nothing BUT sex. You'll see the little toddlers GYRATE trying to copy the dancers. Doesn't anybody think about that? You think that's all just entertainment? Really? No, it's not. It's an agenda. If, as Mazzini says, we want to rule the people, we must destroy their culture! It's that simple. It's that simple. It's nothing to do with just cutting teenage pregnancies. The reason they get pregnant is because they are obsessed with sex before they even have puberty coming in. Once it comes in, there's bang, gone, that's it.)

Children will learn about parts of the body, the facts of life and puberty in primary school. (A: Starting at 5, they're actually going to bring it into Kindergarten.) At secondary school, they will be taught about pregnancy, contraception, HIV and homosexual relationships, it was disclosed. (A: In other words, they are getting ALL the different alternatives. In fact, some are getting pulled in already. I've gotten this from a few that have emailed me. Their teachers or their counselors at school will ask them if they've ever tried homosexual relationships. If they say no, they say well, 'maybe you're inhibited; did you ever wonder if you are inhibited? How would you know unless you've tried it?' This has been taught FOR YEARS in school. The parents generally are totally ignorant of what's going on. This is directed from a very top organization WELL financed through the foundations and through your tax money called the United Nations. It's meant to bring in a totally different world than anything that you can remember or even perceive of coming. Very different world.)

All mothers and fathers will be able to keep children out on moral and religious grounds but will lose the right of withdraw when they turn 15. The ruling will affect 600,000 pupils a year.

The controversial move is designed to ensure pupils get at least 12 months of sex education before finishing compulsory schooling.

But parents' groups said the decision risked "infringing parents' rights" and claimed the Government was attempting to legislate in family life. (A: Well, of course they are. What do you think this is? But they already HAVE because technically, Children's Aid has more rights over the children than YOU do. I often wonder if people really are conscious at all, at times. I really do. Gradualism, planned gradualism, Fabian style bringing down of the culture… all aimed at destroying the family unit, which the United Nations has stated; Albert Pike stated it as well. The Communist movement stated it as well, the destroying of the family unit, destruction. Bertrand Russell, LORD Bertrand Russell, said the same thing, they'd have to destroy the family unit. They used to think they'd have to take them away from their parents at birth but Russell found out with experimentation that through SCIENTIFIC INDOCTRINATION, if they can get them at the age of 2 in Kindergarten MEANS that whatever input of moral culture the parents try to pass on to the children will be NULL and VOID. It would be just ignored by the child; they wouldn't even hear it. They'd get ALL the new culture from their teachers.)

Faith schools will also be forced to teach all aspects of the new-style curriculum, including same-sex relationships, contraception and abortion, although ministers insisted they could stage lessons within the "tenets of their faith". (A: How can you compromise on that? You either have your faith and your tenants or you don't.

Oh God, here's this character again. He's well named for it, he's… It's such a joke.)

Ed Balls, the Schools Secretary (A: for the whole UK.), said: "You can teach the promotion of marriage, you can teach that you shouldn't have sex outside of marriage, what you can't do is deny young people information about contraception outside of marriage. (A: Believe you me, that's the part that's all getting pushed.)

"The same arises in homosexuality. Some faiths have a view about what in religious terms is right and wrong – what they can't do though is not teach the importance of tolerance." (A: Tolerance…tolerance… being compromised… meaning rolling over. Back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix and I'm reading some articles. I'll put these links up on my site at the end of the show. This next one is from The Mail Online. I won't read it but I'll just mention that it tells you about how the parents will be FINED if they take their child out of the sex lessons. So, there's government that is there to SERVE YOU… blackmailing you by threats… because they don't want your morality, if you have any, taught to the child.

Parents to be fined if they take their children out of sex lessons
By Laura Clark / 6th November 2009

Remember, I need you donations - I'll plug this right now – to keep me going. It's the same handful of people that's kept me going all this time. I need your donations. IT'S UP TO YOU IF YOU WANT TO KEEP THIS GOING AND HAVE AN ALTERNATIVE LOOK AT LIFE AND THE FUTURE AND WHAT'S PLANNED AND THE INFORMATION OF THOSE BEHIND IT. It's up to you to keep me going.

I'll go to the phones and there's Andrea from New York. Are you there Andrea?

Andrea: I've persistently been reading something about Jean-Paul Sartre and he had a falling out with Albert Trumeau because of he was a communist sympathizer. That he denied the purgings of Stalin and that he was involved in this tribunal, war crimes tribunal with Bertrand Russell about Viet Nam and the US. I was just wondering what you think of him?

Alan: Of which one?

Andrea: Sartre.

Alan: They play games, these guys at the top. They even stage oppositions to each other along the way. So you've got to really look behind it and what their final philosophies actually were. To me, communism is communism. The only difference that some of them had was either the Trotskyite system or the Stalinist system. That really was where the difference came with some of them. Most communists today are Trotskyite. The UK and MI-6 and the CIA employed lots of the Trotskyite ones. They were for perpetual revolution, incessant revolution to take the whole world over, whereas Stalin kind of dug his heels in once he'd got the basic Soviet Union together and he was going to take it much slower. I've seen arguments before between the different leaders of different, slightly different doctrines, literally stage shows for the public. They've done this along the road. So you can't really… you'll never really get the whole story on anything except what you glean for yourself.

Andrea: What about existentialism? I don't know very much about existentialism really. Somebody was talking about it recently to me and just meaninglessness and atheism. I thought of Sartre and that and his sympathies with communism… and the new world order. It's really a new secular order, right?

Alan: Technically in a sense, it is for those near the upper management level, but not the bosses. They are Humanists and Existentialists. Now, when you go into the Humanist websites - and you should look into them – they give you the tenants of their beliefs so they do have beliefs like a religion. They are also falling right in with the Communist Manifesto, communist agenda where the intelligentsia have the right to manage all the lesser peoples beneath them. THAT'S WHAT THEY ALL AGREE ON. All of them agree with that. But they do have a religion at the top, above even the Humanists and maybe sometime I'll come out into that and explain it. That's a deep, deep subject. Thanks for calling, Andrea.

Andrea: Thank you.

As I say, it's up to you to keep me going. You can donate through PayPal or check, it's up to you. Look into the web site .com. From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Pentagon: A third of U.S. youth too fat, sickly to serve" (usatoday.com) - Nov. 4, 2009.

"Parents lose right over sex education" by Graeme Paton (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 5, 2009.

"Parents to be fined if they take their children out of sex lessons" by Laura Clark (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 6, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 9, 2009 (#447)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 9, 2009:
'World Government' the U.N. sigh -- 'In the Bag,' Big Bankers Cry:
"You'll Wonder Where Democracy Went
When They Bring in Global Government,
Actually a New World Soviet Led by NGOs,
Speaking 'for the People' as to Where it All Goes,
With 'Partnerships in Business' They Comprise New System,
Criticism will be Heresy and Heretic will be Victim,
CEOs of the Economy will Rule the World with Ease,
Ensuring NGOs, U.N. and Politics have Palms Slick with Grease,
Education and the Media will be Rewarded, Fast-Track,
For Brainwashing the Youth and for Muddying Each Fact,
The Sheeple Down Below, will Wallow in the Slag, Forgetting Symbols of the Past, Tearfully Waving Global Flag"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 9, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 9, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 9th 2009. I generally start the show off by advising newcomers to look into .com web site. While on that front page, bookmark all the other sites I have up and listed there for future use because sometimes the big sites run out of bandwidth or whatever – even though it's on automatic – and you can't find me. If you have them bookmarked, you can always get the latest downloads. This is very important, there are a lot of bogus sites out there with MY name on them and if you fall for them, you'll end up donating and buying t-shirts and all kinds of other things that I've got NOTHING to do with. So the only authorized sites there are [listed above]. alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site and has all the same audios as the rest but it has the addition of transcripts of a lot of the talks that I've given in the past for download and print up, written in the various languages of Europe.

Remember that you are the people who bring me to you. No one backs me here. This is a 7 day a week scenario. There are no breaks here. There's always a crisis, one after another, and it's dealt with right here. There's no staff that I can call on to deal with things. Therefore it's up to you to keep me going. I don't sell products and all kinds of things that are going to save your life and so on. I don't bring on advertisers to terrify you with scary scenarios and offer you the solution… which they'll sell to you. To an extent that compromises what I'm actually trying to do.

What I'm trying to do is just give you information of how the world really is. How it really is. I can't really tell you what to do about it because to be honest with you, it's such an old system – this con game called politics and the reality that is given to the public – it's been very well put together. It's intergenerational. Those who set up this form of democracy, as they like to call it, never intended that the public HAVE democracy. They always knew where they were heading with the world government scenario, the kind of world they'd have and they favored the Sovietized, collectivist system in fact, to control the masses while there's a small fascist elite above them living very, very well and owning all the resources of the world, the resources which we are all dependent on.

Through science, they believed they would conquer… and they've done a darn good job of it, especially psychology and now they want to use narcosis on different people, big pharma. Exactly what Huxley said would happen in the 30s. He knew it because he was in on the big think tanks that help plan the future. Those in power leave nothing to chance, NOTHING to chance. They have think tanks going over EVERY part of the future, according to their plans, and possible reactions… what could go wrong, how would they deal with it, how would they stop it before it started, and all that kind of stuff. That's why they employ these big think tanks. They don't make mistakes. Those who are in power want to maintain power for their own families and their own family genealogies to come. That's how it's always been really. With advanced science, they are so far ahead of the game now that it's almost in the bag and they know it too. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. It's up to you to keep me going. You can buy that which I have for sale on MY web sites, or donate to me. You can do it through [options listed at top and bottom of transcript]. You have to keep me going. Really, there are no breaks here. There are no breaks at all. Weekends don't matter; it's just another day to me. There is always stuff going on to deal with. You've got to make sure that the sites you go in to are listed on .com on the front page. These are the ONLY legitimate sites I have. Just today someone put up a fake Twitter site with my name on it. This sort of stuff happens all the time. I know who does it. I know who does it and so do the cops. So you've got to make sure you're in a legitimate site. There are a lot of dirty tricks that go on here ALL the time, all the time.

I remember Bill Cooper when he said that some people, his most ardent haters, he was always getting emails from them or doing dirty tricks and all the rest of it. He's quite right. The ones that hate you the most can't miss a show. They're really sick and they are obsessed, obsessed with you. It's a stalker mentality in fact. Rather than just listen to somebody else, they just hate you; they've got a fixation. Then, outside of that, you also have provocateurs that use others to do the dirty work so that they'll get the legal consequences that come back on them. That's the sort of warfare that goes on all the time… all the time.

So don't buy anything unless it's on .com web site. I don't sell t-shirts. There is a company down in the states that's been selling t-shirts, have been for a couple of years now, saying they donate to me and they don't. So you're paying for that and nothing arrives here. Again, the cops are looking at them too, for fraud and misrepresentation. These are the things that go on and it's up to you to keep ME going. Believe you me, I think there's more money going elsewhere than arrives at this place here.

The new world order is on a roll. I've given lots of talks over the years about the agenda, NOT through guess work, not through crystal balls, but right from their own works, from their own agendas, their treaties, the memoirs of high-level bureaucrats and technocrats, as the call them. Technocrats are never elected. They are given more power than politicians. Politicians are just fronts. That's why it shocks people who really believe in democracy when all the politicians seem to vote against the interests of the country regardless of the parties. Politics is a front. It's there to take the tomatoes that you throw at them, and rotten cabbages. That's what politicians are for. They are bought and paid for… and NOT by the public.

Recently, we had Lord Monckton give a talk in the States but he also gave a talk in Australia on a radio show. I'll put the links up at the end of the show so you can listen to it yourself where he lays it out on the line.

There's another article in the Wall Street Journal.

Has Anyone Read the Copenhagen Agreement?
U.N. plans for a new 'government' are scary.
By JANET ALBRECHTSEN / OCTOBER 28, 2009 / onlinewsj.com

We can only hope that world leaders will do nothing more than enjoy a pleasant bicycle ride around the charming streets of Copenhagen come December. For if they actually manage to wring out an agreement based on the current draft text of the Copenhagen climate-change treaty, the world is in for some nasty surprises. Draft text, you say? If you haven't heard about it, that's because none of our otherwise talkative political leaders have bothered to tell us what the drafters have already cobbled together for leaders to consider. And neither have the media. (Alan: That tells us all we need to know.)

Enter Lord Christopher Monckton. The former adviser to Margaret Thatcher gave an address at Bethel University in St. Paul, Minnesota, earlier this month that made quite a splash. For the first time, the public heard about the 181 pages, dated Sept. 15, that comprise the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change—a rough draft of what could be signed come December. (A: Then it goes on to talk about what it contains. You can’t find it. It’s under the NOTES from the General Secretary. That’s how they hid it, under ‘notes.’ The UN has a page there on Treaties. It’s up to you to have a look at it and search.)

So far there have been more than a million hits on the YouTube post of his address. It deserves millions more because Lord Monckton warns that the aim of the Copenhagen draft treaty is to set up a transnational "government" on a scale the world has never before seen.

The "scheme for the new institutional arrangement under the Convention" that starts on page 18 contains the provision for a "government." (A: He’s talking about WORLD government.) The aim is to give a new as yet unnamed U.N. body the power to directly intervene in the financial, economic, tax and environmental affairs of all the nations that sign the Copenhagen treaty. (A: That is true. I’ve said it for years. When it comes to interdependence, which means that you will be totally dependent on the big boys for everything that you need to live… for heating, for food, and for where you live and all the rest of it. INTERdependence means TOTAL dependence on THE SYSTEM. But more so than that, they’ve got the carbon taxes – individual ones – and all of that tacked on. I told you that would happen a year or two ago.)

The reason for the power grab is clear enough: Clause after complicated clause of the draft treaty requires developed countries to pay an "adaptation debt" to developing countries to supposedly support climate change mitigation. Clause 33 on page 39 says that "by 2020 the scale of financial flows to support adaptation in developing countries must be [at least $67 billion] or [in the range of $70 billion to $140 billion per year]."

And how will developed countries be slugged to provide for this financial flow to the developing world? The draft text sets out various alternatives, including option seven on page 135, which provides for "a [global] levy of 2 per cent on international financial market [monetary] transactions to Annex I Parties." Annex 1 countries are industrialized countries, which include among others the U.S., Australia, Britain and Canada.

To be sure, countries that sign international treaties always cede powers to a U.N. body responsible for implementing treaty obligations. But the difference is that this treaty appears to have been subject to unusual attempts to conceal its convoluted contents. And apart from the difficulty of trying to decipher the U.N. verbiage, there are plenty of draft clauses described as "alternatives" and "options" that should raise the ire of free and democratic countries concerned about preserving their sovereignty.

Lord Monckton himself only became aware of the extraordinary powers to be vested in this new world government when a friend found an obscure U.N. Web site and searched through several layers of hyperlinks before discovering a document that isn't even called the draft "treaty." Instead, it's labelled a "Note by the Secretariat." (A: It even goes on to describe where you’ll find it. A ‘note’ by the Secretariat, a note… 180 page note… that’s where they HID the damn thing.)

Interviewed by broadcaster Alan Jones on Sydney radio Monday, Lord Monckton said "this is the first time I've ever seen any transnational treaty referring to a new body to be set up under that treaty as a 'government.' (A: Government, global government.) But it's the powers that are going to be given to this entirely unelected government that are so frightening." He added: "The sheer ambition of this new world government is enormous right from the start—that's even before it starts accreting powers to itself in the way that these entities inevitably always do."

So, it’s a done deal as we all know because there is no such thing as democracy. It’s all coming together at the right time… at the right time.

On the CNBC network you’ll find

Dollar Will be "Utterly Destroyed": Strategist
Friday, 6 Nov 2009 / CNBC.com

The dollar will get "utterly destroyed" and become "virtually worthless", said Damon Vickers (A: I wonder if that’s Lord Vickers son?), chief investment officer of Nine Points Capital Partners. (A: That’s one of the top, expensive ones. You can’t even get into their site unless you can verify that you’re income is between $200,000 to $500,000 per year.)

"We don't have resources. Neither does a lot of Asia to be quite frank," Vickers said on CNBC's Asia Squawk Box. "Countries that have resources -- the Brazils, the Canadas, Australia -- their currencies are doing well." (A: Well, he hasn’t lived here. Everything is getting hyper inflated. They call it ‘quantitative easing.’)

Vickers noted that their stock markets have done the best year-to-date.

"They have stuff. They've got resources. They export real things. The United States exports 'promises' and 'pretty paper'," he added.

Due to the huge wage disparities between the United States and emerging markets like China, Vickers said that may resolve itself in some type of a global currency crisis.

"If the global currency crisis unfolds, then inevitably you get an alignment of a global world government. A new global currency and a new world order, so we may be moving towards that," he said.

Vickers added that this is the time where investors should be making money when the trend is developing.

"Oil looks higher, gold looks higher, currencies look weaker."

That’s one of these snobby, snooty investment companies, but you don’t really need them to tell you, do you? Really, I’ve been talking about this for years. It’s just now time to tell the public from the AUTHORIZED tellers, mainstream media. No one really cares though, out there. Most of the public, as you know, don’t really care. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. The matrix is the reality that’s been given to you at birth basically. It’s not just for you; it was also for your parents and grandparents and great-great grandparents as well. Every generation is given a version of it to suit those who rule… something that social scientists have been in to and studying for an awful long time.

It’s true. Every system that exists is always there to serve a particular, powerful elite who benefit at the top, in the system that they create. After a little while - a very short time - the people think it’s their system. It doesn’t matter what kind of a system it is, they think it’s theirs and it’s all quite normal. They’ll even go off and fight for it, when told. That’s just they way it really, really is. They know that people will adapt into the new system because it’s going to be presented in such a way that your life isn’t going to change that much. They are born liars at the top… and we want to believe them. [Alan laughing.] That’s how easily it works.

I’ve gone through how predictive programming works all the time, through all the movies you’ve watched and how they give you a human story to GRAB you - that’s the hook. Really, it’s the messages that are contained within. Look all the disaster movies that were put out in the 70s and 80s, even before that, as early as the 60s. I think one was called No Blade of Grass. Then it was followed up by Soylent Green. Then later on you had different disaster movies and then you have the aftermath type of little bands of people killing each other for survival, Mel Gibson’s Road Warrior. Then you had The Postman, Waterworld… all these scenarios were to get you thinking about climate change and catastrophe wrapped up in a human story. You always identify with the hero… that’s how it sucks you in. Very old technique, but it works very well because after you’ve forgotten all about them, the messages have been IMPLANTED in your mind to get you ready. So you talk about ‘Oh, my God, there are going to be catastrophes coming if we don’t change everything.’ Somehow it will seem sensible to you, even though it’s really ridiculous.

Before, I mentioned one called Final Cut and Robin Williams was the main character in it. It was about a time not far from now where at funerals and so on, there’s a character who acts like an editor and he takes a little chip implant from your brain and it’s recorded everything that you saw, everything you spoke about, everything that you did. It’s recorded like a camera and like an audio in that little chip. They put little bits together and play it back for the people who are grieving at the funeral. He has access to ALL this data and obviously the government has it too. They use it.

You can see with the use of technology and believe you me, technology is addictive. They know that with all of the youth. They knew that back in the 90s, that this technology would totally addict the young. They don’t know any better. Did you? Did YOU know just how important privacy was when you were so young? Did you ever think that ‘they were watching me?’ Of course they don’t believe they are being watched. They haven’t done anything. They haven’t lived long enough to have done anything to be worth watching… that’s what they think. So they miss the point. It’s not about what you do; it’s your whole personality that has to be monitored. For a totalitarian world state everyone must be totally predictable.

Here’s an email I got that ties in with this science and what’s behind it and how they use all these free things out there – Facebook and all the rest of it – to do something that DARPA wanted done years ago.

(Email from a Listener)
Subject: Lifelog, the Darpa military surveillance project, now being promoted through 'the market'

Hello Alan,

I've just been listening to your October 19 talk. By the end of the show, you read from a New Scientist article about a "new camera" that's supposed to log people's lives. And which people even get to wear around their necks, like with every other type of dog collar there is.

When I heard that, it sounded familiar to me, particularly the 'lifelog' expression. (A: That’s what they call it, Lifelog.)

See, Lifelog is the name of a DARPA project which was (is) included in the Total Information Awareness apparatus. Here is a quote from a DefenseTech article on this DARPA program:

"The embryonic LifeLog program would take every e-mail you’ve sent or received, every picture you’ve taken, every web page you’ve surfed, every phone call you’ve had, every TV show you’ve watched, every magazine you’ve read, and dump it into a giant database.

All of this — and more — would be combined with a GPS transmitter, to keep tabs on where you’re going; audio-visual sensors, to capture all that you see or say; and biomedical monitors, to keep track of your health." (A: I’ve got the link from DARPA when they first came out with that very term, Lifelog.)

http://defensetech.org/2003/05/20/darpa-wants-your-life-indexable-and-searchable/

In the meanwhile, the program was supposedly terminated. In fact it was, of course, partitioned and distributed among private contractors. (A: That’s how they are doing it all. These big, private contractors, by the way, are just extensions of the NSA. Real companies but NSA and the CIA set them up. Most of the big boys are run by the CIA, in technology.)

And now here is one of its components. For fun, games and, of course, to help the disabled and the elderly. (A: That's how they always put things.)

Isn't it funny (or scary, I should say) that these guys can pull this trick time and time again? (A: It's for the elderly and disabled and they want to help people.)

That is, to create a military weaponized tool (in this case, for surveillance), and then sell it to the public on a piece-by-piece basis, via "the market", to supposedly help and entertain all of us. (A: And that's how they do it.)

You can find the other components of the original LifeLog project spread around everywhere, in all sorts of systems: internet and other communications' surveillance, "smart meters", cell phone tracing, and now, even, personal health monitoring systems.

I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an email that was sent by a listener who's got a lot of good information in there to do with 'Lifelog.' Lifelog, something that DARPA dreamed up. They thought, how can we get the public to take it? After all, we know what DARPA's all about. So they simply farmed it out to their FRONT groups. There are a lot of PRIVATE organizations out there, big ones too, real big companies and it's all to get this stuff out into the public. When you think you are buying it from a private company, your awareness kind of drops a little bit – your sensory awareness – and you're not so careful as you should be. It's always sold to you as a wonderful thing… a wonderful thing. It's all do with monitoring YOUR life from birth to death really. That's what it's about. So's you'll give all your info up for free and they'll know everything about you. That's how it works.

That's why they first came out with the term 'personal' computer. Rather than say 'computer' or 'network watched by government agencies computer', no, they've got 'personal' computer. Your PERSONAL computer. Well, you buy your 'personal' computer so it must be okay. 'I bought it; it's mine.' Where, in reality, it's the same as the television. I said they should really give them out free because they NEED these for propaganda. With the computer, they need it to bring in their wonderful new world order where everyone is monitored… and all the other gadgets that link into it. They should give it to us all for free. But it works; make us buy it and then, 'oh, that's mine; that's obviously mine, I've got privacy.' So I'll put this up on my site too, this letter with the links in it - minus the sender's name - and you can look it up for yourself. This shows you how they actually do these dirty little tricks on the public and put them through private, apparently private companies. They're all funded by the big boys and the governments themselves.

We're racing into this whole new world order now. It's in the open. Most of the public don't mind. They don't mind. They won't know HOW they've come to the conclusion that eventually will rest somewhere in their grey matter. It's taken years of little bits of downloads – bits and bytes over the years – of indoctrination and drama, movies, fiction, news bits and bytes, and even novels. They actually hire in countries, the countries that have cultural teams, countries that have departments of culture, like Canada. They HIRE writers to write about the greening stuff, all the children's books… are put out by these people with grants from the government. It's been that way for an awful long time.

Here's an article about Charles Darwin. I've talked about how all the big totalitarianists since Darwin's day have used his supposed theories – and they weren't his – to do the nasty things that they did, including the boys who run the world today… bringing the population down and getting all the wrong types off the world.

Charles Darwin and the children of the evolution
From The Sunday Times November 8, 2009 / Monday November 2, 2009

The naturalist outraged the church, prompting a bitter debate that still sets creationists against evolutionists. Now a sinister link has emerged between his work and the recent spate of high-school killings by crazed, nihilistic teenagers. (A: It's interesting, this.)

You wouldn't know from the celebrations of Charles Darwin's life this year (A: It's been all over television, this sort of dramatic, fictional form.) that the amiable Victorian gent portrayed in those TV drama-docs pottering around the garden of his home in Kent has been fingered as a racist, an apologist for genocide, and the inspiration of a string of psychopathic killers. (A: I should put in, The Optimum Population Trust and all the other big ones, like Sir Crispin Tickell, Prince Charles's buddy, who's got a department on the British government now saying we've got to bring down the population drastically, especially all the wrong kinds, meaning the working classes.)

The Darwin double anniversary (2009 marks both the bicentenary of his birth and 150 years since the first publication of On the Origin of Species) has featured much vanilla hoopla: the Royal Mail issued commemorative stamps; Damien Hirst designed the dust jacket…(A: Bla-bla-bla, about all the different things they did.)

With hardly a mention that his name has been associated with some of the most infamous crimes of modern history, it is as if there has been an unspoken agreement to accentuate the positive. (A: Well, there IS an agreements and it's spoken about by some places called clubs. 'I'm off to my club,' …in London, you see, club.) Certainly, the milquetoast Darwin played by Paul Bettany in the recent film Creation provided little hint that there might be a dark side to the great man's bequest to posterity. The film focuses on Darwin's inner conflicts in the years leading up to the publication of On the Origin of Species. The scientist is reluctant to make his ideas public, not because he has foreseen dire social consequences, but chiefly because he fears that the theory of evolution will upset his wife and the Church of England. (A: Which is all bogus because that was the intention of it.)

In America, where Darwin's writings on morality and race have come under particularly intense critical scrutiny because of the enduring creationist debate, he has been accused of fostering moral nihilism and scientific racism, and even of promoting an ethic that found its ultimate expression in the Holocaust. Most startling of all, a connection has now been drawn between Darwin's theories and a rash of school shootings. In April, 1,000 people gathered at sunset in Littleton, Colorado, to commemorate the victims of the Columbine high school massacre, 10 years on. Darrell Scott, whose daughter Rachel was the first of the 13 children to be murdered, and whose son Craig narrowly escaped being shot, cannot understand why so little attention has been paid to the motivation of the killers, Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold, and their interest in Charles Darwin's ideas. (A: You can also tie that in with the murders of I think it was Harvard back in the 20s or 30s by a couple of the richest students on the planet, to do with Kuhn, Loeb and Company. I think it was Leopold Loeb; they've actually put movies out about them. They believed in Charles Darwin. They even believed that, from their professor who also taught Darwinism, that the ultra rich, the elite ruling class, had the right to commit murder, but not the people below them. They had a PRIVILEGE to commit murder. By the way, they did it.) "Harris wore a 'Natural Selection' T-shirt (A: The killer, right.) on the day of the killings. They made remarks on video about helping out the process of natural selection by eliminating the weak. (A: This is these killers.) They also professed that they had evolved to a higher level than their classmates. I was amazed at the frequent references to evolution, and that the press completely ignored that aspect of the tapes."

Much of the evidence remains sealed under a court order issued to minimise the risk of copycat killings, but from those documents that are in the public domain, it is clear that Eric Harris fantasised about putting everyone into a violent computer game that only the fittest could survive. (A: Don't you think that's what it's all about in the first place, computer games? You didn't know that did you?) And, like Darwin himself, he noted how vaccination might be interfering with nature's weeding process. (A: You know, weeding out the weak.) In his rantings Harris said he wished there were no vaccines, or even warning labels on dangerous goods, "and let natural selection take its course. All the fat, ugly, retarded, crippled dumbass, stupid fheads in the world would die? Maybe then the human race can actually be proud of itself".

As the attorney for the families of six of the students killed at Columbine, the Denver lawyer Barry Arrington has come across more in a similar vein. "I read through every single page of Eric Harris's journals; I listened to all of the audio tapes and watched the videotapes. It became evident to me that Harris consciously saw his actions as logically arising from what he had learnt about evolution. Darwinism served as his personal intellectual rationale for what he did. There cannot be the slightest doubt that Harris was a worshipper of Darwin and saw himself as acting on Darwinian principles." (A: I should say too that anyone who is really into Darwin, truly believes in it, is capable of all this stuff too. These are the guys at the bottom. Can you imagine the Crispin Tickell boys at the top of the Optimum Population Trust and all the other big trusts up there working for the foundations and telling government they've got to bring down the population? They have the POWER to do it on a larger scale. You'd better really take this stuff seriously because they are doing it. By they way, they've been using injections not to save you, but to bring you down. They've even discussed that. I've given you the quotes from Lord Bertrand Russell and others. He said, "We shall use the needle." …they'll put stuff in the food, stuff in the water.)

In 2007, detectives following up a tip-off about a planned school shooting in Pennsylvania discovered that their suspect often logged on to a social networking site called Natural Selection's Army and a number of related chatrooms that were later tagged by the media as the "cyber school for killers". These sites were quickly shut down by their service providers, but today "Natural Selection" is the name of a popular computer game in which competing teams attempt to annihilate one another — a sign that Darwin's term is still associated by many teenagers with sudden and extreme violence.

"Natural Selection" T-shirts have proved a popular line through web-based outlets, and it seems that the Columbine killers have spawned a gruesome personality cult — there is even a computer game in which players adopt the roles of Harris and Klebold, which features original CCTV footage of the killings.

Among those reported to have frequented the original Natural Selection's Army website was an 18-year-old Finnish student, Pekka-Eric Auvinen. On November 7, 2007, in Tuusula, Finland, Auvinen forced his head teacher to kneel down in front of him before he shot her with his pistol. He slaughtered a further seven victims before turning the gun on himself. Some of the Jokela high school students afterwards described the way Auvinen prowled through the building pointing his gun at people's heads. Sometimes he would squeeze the trigger and kill them; sometimes, after looking long and hard through the sights, he would suddenly turn away and let his terrified target go free. One witness said he seemed to be choosing his victims at random, but in fact he was making a very deliberate selection. He was trying to weed out the "unfit".

Before he embarked on his shooting spree, Auvinen posted a lengthy apologia on the internet. Styling himself a "social Darwinist" (A: Just like Crispin Tickell, SIR Crispin Tickell, and all these top boys that have the power. And I should say Mr. Rockefeller who goes on about it too and Sir Charles Galton Darwin who wrote The Next Million Years, the descendant of Charles Darwin who said the very same thing, they've got to kill off the unfit or they'll outbreed the fit, like himself. Read the book yourself.), he said that natural selection appeared not to be working any more — had maybe even gone into reverse. He had noticed that "stupid, weak-minded people reproduce faster than intelligent, strong-minded ones". The gene pool was sure to deteriorate if society continued to guarantee the survival of the second-rate. (A: So he'd actually READ Charles Galton Darwin's The Next Million Years because that's what he was on about.) He had pondered what to do about this problem. He understood that life was just a meaningless coincidence, the outcome of a long series of random mutations, so there might not be much point in doing anything at all. But eventually he had decided he would do his bit by becoming a natural selector, aping the pitiless indifference of nature.

Auvinen left a special plea for his motivation to be taken seriously and for the world not merely to write him off as a psychopath, or to blame cult movies, computer games, television or heavy metal music, before concluding: "No mercy for the scum of the Earth! Humanity is overrated. It's time to put natural selection and survival of the fittest back on track." (A: If he'd just written to the United Nations, he would have found out they have been covertly doing it for years. Look at the cancer rates and all the rest of it. He didn't know.)

Of course, it is not unusual for homicidal maniacs to cite great writers when seeking to justify their crimes. The Chicago spree-killers Leopold and Loeb (A: Kuhn Loeb family. Kuhn Loeb is the big boys with Schiff. I think Mr. Gore's daughter married one of the Schiffs, in fact, that were set over here by Rothschild to set up a bank, a central bank and all the rest of it. So their children here, Leopold and Loeb.) (the models for Hitchcock's 1948 film, Rope) claimed Friedrich Nietzsche as their muse, as did the Moors murderer Ian Brady. Other deranged misfits have nominated Albert Camus, Jean Genet and André Gide. But it may take a keener intellect than was possessed by Harris, Klebold or Auvinen to negotiate such a reading list. The basics of evolution are much more accessible and are taught in every high school, so it should not be surprising that Darwin seems to be emerging as the inspiration for the more dim-witted schoolboy sociopath. (A: I'll add, for all those who belong to the big foundations, the very rich, schoolboy sociopaths at the top… who have the POWER to implement on a much larger scale.)

I’ve got a link here too to the National Expositor. Very good. It’s about the same topics as well. I’ve gone through the Rockefeller funded genetics program. These great philanthropists… the philanthropists that Weishaupt talked about. He said, we shall create all these foundations which will really run the countries. That’s what they do. It’s called the parallel government. Mr. Rockefeller still travels the world at 94 parroting the same old stuff about killing off most of the unfit and all that stuff, the people that shouldn’t be out there. They’ve been sterilizing people across the planet through different foundations, including the Gates Foundation. I read the article about a month ago where the United Nations has sterilized I don’t know how many women it was in Chili - it was multi-thousands of them - without their permission and they’d outright lied to them too.

Native Americans Secretly Sterilized Under Bush Sr. Program
Michael Sullivan DeFine on 23 June, 2008 / nationalexpositor.com

(A: Well, it’s continued. So it’s not a party thing. There are no parties in reality.)

In 1970, George Bush Sr. started and ran a program that sterilized Native American women without their knowledge and against their will.

A History of Governmentally Coerced Sterilization:

The Plight of the Native American Woman

I.Introduction

The purpose of this article is to trace the historical influence of governmentally funded sterilization from the beginning of the eugenics movement in the 19th century (A: That was all coupled with Darwinism, of course.) to see how this effects Native American women today. This topic will investigate the social prejudices and rationalizations for sterilization of the "less-talented" members of society advocated by the most influential social and biological scientists in American history.

These "science"-based eugenic influences break through the lines of science into the world of politics, promulgating anti-humanistic views of poor women of color in the form of legislation fraught with bigotry and baseless generalizations. This political view flows through the judicial system, as courts apply eugenic philosophies in determining who should be sterilized and for what reasons. (A: Then it goes through the story of how they’ve been doing it to American Indians ALL ALONG. But it’s not just the women, the guys too. That’s why they put them in these awful, awful reservations in the worst places. They were sure to bring down their numbers with disease and all that. There’s still at it. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix, just connecting a few dots tonight to show you how the world really is. After this you can go back to sleep or surf the net and be happy, doing the happy stuff that people do. But some won’t. Some will understand what’s happening here.

Director of Planned Parenthood at 40 Days for Life Birthplace Resigns after Watching Abortion Ultrasound
Planned Parenthood seeks restraining order
Lifesitenews.com / By Kathleen Gilbert / Monday November 2, 2009

BRYAN, Texas, November 2, 2009 (LifeSiteNews.com) - The director of the Texas Planned Parenthood abortion mill where the 40 Days for Life campaign began has resigned, saying she experienced a conversion after watching an ultrasound video of a child being killed by abortion.

"I just thought I can't do this anymore, and it was just like a flash that hit me and I thought that's it," said Abby Johnson in an interview with local news network KBTX 3.

Johnson had been affiliated with Bryan's Planned Parenthood facility for eight years, and worked as its director for two.

She said she began to feel uncomfortable with Planned Parenthood's business philosophy after the organization, suffering from the economic downturn, told her to try to bring more abortions in the door. (A: Planned Parenthood eh?) "The money wasn't in family planning, the money wasn't in prevention, the money was in abortion and so I had a problem with that," said Johnson.

But the turning point for Johnson was reportedly when she witnessed an actual ultrasound image of an abortion being performed on an unborn child. (A: And that was the end for her.)

Go into the beginnings of this. Margaret Sanger, you have to look into her history, again, a eugenicist, a Darwinist, and all the rest of it. She believed in the survival of the fittest. She was an admirer of the communist system. She was a great admirer or Adolf Hitler too. She truly was an utter racist of the top, the first quality, you might say, of racism. She wrote her own books. She wrote that children were weeds. She said, ‘You have to weed them out,’ you know, killing… weed them out. That’s the great champion of the feminists, Margaret Sanger. At least there are some people who actually go along with it, see the light, and get rather disgusted eventually.

You see, what’s interesting too is most of these things are worked by bureaucracies above. They say that’s how the communist system could pick up their targets. Bureaucrats would just pick numbers and have them eradicated… like eradicating them from their White Paper. AT the bottom, real people really kill people. The same with Adolf Hitler. When you’re just a number and bureaucrats deal with it, it’s completely impersonal; it’s just numbers and figures; you’re not names… and they are eliminated. It isn’t until you are up close and doing something like that, that YOU personally have a choice to make. That’s what makes it so efficient today, bureaucracies. Bureaucracies.

It’s just going on and on and on. I’m sorry about the callers. There’s a caller that’s been waiting for ages. I can’t really take him; but if he calls in tomorrow, I’ll try and grab him.

This last article is from the Washington Times.

Aborted fetus cells used in beauty creams
November 3, 2009
Valerie Richardson / WashingtonTimes.com

(A: See, there is BUSINESS in everything. These evil characters at the top, business, economy… eh? Business. Profit.)

A San Francisco cosmetics company has ignited an outcry among pro-lifers for including an unexpected ingredient in its anti-aging creams: skin-cell proteins from an aborted fetus.

Children of God for Life, a watchdog group that monitors the use of fetal material in medical products, called last week for a boycott of all treatments manufactured by Neocutis Inc., which acknowledges that the key ingredient in its product line was developed from an aborted boy.

These are sacrifices for your beauty. You always get something back for your sacrifice. That’s what sacrifices are for.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Is the Copenhagen treaty about creating a world government?" [Lord Monckton Interview in Australia].

"Has Anyone Read the Copenhagen Agreement? - U.N. plans for a new 'government' are scary" by Janet Albrechtsen (online.wsj.com) - Oct. 28, 2009.

"Dollar Will be "Utterly Destroyed": Strategist" (cnbc.com) - Nov. 6, 2009.

"Lifelog, the Darpa military surveillance project, now being promoted through 'the market' " (Email from a Listener).

"DARPA WANTS YOUR LIFE INDEXABLE AND SEARCHABLE" (defensetech.org) - May 20, 2003.

"Charles Darwin and the children of the evolution" [Charles Darwin--Inspiration to Murderers and Elitism] by Dennis Sewell, The Times - Nov. 8, 2009.
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

"Native Americans Secretly Sterilized Under Bush Sr. Program" by Michael Sullivan DeFine, National Expositor - June 23, 2008.

"Director of Planned Parenthood at 40 Days for Life Birthplace Resigns after Watching Abortion Ultrasound" by Kathleen Gilbert (lifesitenews.com) - Nov. 2, 2009.

"Aborted fetus cells used in beauty creams" by Valerie Richardson (washingtontimes.com) - Nov. 3, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 10, 2009 (#448)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 10, 2009:
Carbon Taxes all Farts -- Protest Before it Starts:
"New Socialist Order, Moving into Next Praxis,
Unveiling Their Scheme, Personal Carbon Taxes,
We're Training for Poverty, Under the Guise,
Using Psycho-Linguistics to Cover the Lies,
As the New Feudal Order Comes into View,
CEOs the New Overlords, Vast Wealth for the Few,
A Plethora of Agencies, Private, Selected
To Micro-Govern the People, None Elected,
Freedom to Choose Obsolete, Each Life Directed
By Agencies, Cradle to Grave, Objectors Suspected
Of Carrying 'Individualist' Gene, Allergic to Blind Obedience,
Scoff at Warming/Carbon Scams, Indeed They Give No Credence"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 10, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 10, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 10th 2009. For the newcomers, I suggest you look into .com web site and you'll find hundreds of hours of audio you can download. I've put them up over quite a few years. I try to show you the shortcuts to understanding the big picture because really, we float through our lives. We're not given the truth as it happens. We're given news blurbs daily for sure, but we're never really told why it all is out there, why it ties together or how it ties together, or even the big agencies behind them all. I try to show you that the future is always planned, always planned. The whole idea of a new world order is the combination of a hundred-odd years of planned enterprise to bring it all into being, working through education, working through all commerce and working through big bureaus that bring it together through international rules and regulations. So we've never really had freedom for well over a century. We thought we had it but mind you, they always bring the flags out of the countries, when they want you to go off and fight for their new world order. That's what wars are all about really; it's STANDARDIZATION of the planet under the one system. Once you've finished off the last war, they pull away your flag and give you a new world flag. That's what's happening now.

So look into .com web site. Look at all the sites I have listed on the front page there, if you scroll down [listed above]. These are the ONLY AUTHORIZED sites that I'm on. Anything else is bogus. alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site. It has the same audios but it has the addition of transcripts of a lot of the talks I've given in the various languages of Europe. As I say, anything else out there is bogus. Every so often I get a flurry of bogus sites going up pretending they are me. So be very, very careful of what you look into. Whatever you do, don't donate unless it's one of these official sites.

Remember too, you bring me to you… you the listeners. No one backs me up here. I'm not a part of an NGO. I'm not part of a big business enterprise. There's no foundation backing me. It's up to you, the listeners, to keep me going by buying that which I have for sale on the web site or donating to me. Remember too, you can also donate through [options listed at top and bottom of transcript]. For those who just get the disks burned and passed to them to play in their CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. That's out of the way.

It's a sad thing with you have to ask people to back you up. But then again, it's understandable because we live in an era where the youngsters all think everything is free. What they don't realize is that everything that's free out there is simply for data collection and to get them ON it. They are compliant with it. They have no idea of personal privacy or even the value of personal privacy. They have no knowledge of totalitarian states of the past. The first thing a totalitarian state does is register everyone, make sure they know ALL about you and they keep all the data and they update it all the time, on their subjects. That's really what the internet is for. This great tool is for their benefit, not for ours. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. When the big attack on the towers happened on September the 11th 2001, I was on the radio I think that night or the night after and I said, you know this is the start for a push for a war scenario on the whole world. That's what it was for. It was a signal. It was a big signal… that obviously had been planned in advance. I said nothing is going to be the same; I was echoing the words of one of the big players on TV at the time who said, 'nothing is going to be the same after this.' He meant NOTHING is going to be the same, nothing. Everything was going to change.

For a war scenario, I said at the time, you got to bring in refugees, get them moving from place to place. How do you do that? You can do it through pandemics or a whole bunch of different reasons. You've got have rationing brought in. I went through all the things that happen during warfare. I knew darned well they were going to go along with The Club of Rome's idea… mandate, I should say. They came up with the idea of a war type scenario where everyone pulls together for a common cause. We give up rights and liberties and freedoms to help the common cause for the good of all type of an idea. That's why slogans in war are famous for saying, 'We're all in it together.' Stuff like that. I knew it was all coming along. Sure enough.

This whole idea… it's all how you perceive things. That's how things are presented to you. If you want to steal something from someone, even the basic right to feed themselves, you can do it overtly by sending in the King's men who just steal the food OR you can condition the children to grow up with a different way of looking at everything, everything at all. So much so, that if it came to being stuck in the wilderness somewhere and someone killed a deer, none of them would eat it because they'd been brought up vegetarian and it was taboo to eat meat OR you could teach them that here you are in the middle of the forest and it's covered in snow and you're frozen, what do you do to heat yourself? The last thing they will think of is stripping off birch bark and getting a fire going because it puts carbon off. I'm not kidding about that.

You can literally alter a person's survival capabilities by distorting the outcomes of the logic of their instincts. That's how you can rob a whole planet. That's how you can condition the planet into having no rights, no freedoms, and to having them turn into slaves… without using the term slave. There are many, many ways to do it and it's done all the time. We are the most studies species on the planet. Long before they were cutting up bugs and cutting up frogs and all the rest of it and studying them in the wilderness, WE – human beings - have been studied for thousands and thousands and who knows how many thousands… or even millions of years.

Knowledge is never lost. Never lost. The art of governing people was understood in ancient times PERFECTLY WELL. You always have to give them a religion for the era. You must enforce that religion of the era. Anyone who doesn't go along with it is severely punished or even killed until you have the perfect generation who bow to whatever it is that you stick in front of them and give up everything that they have, including their first born if need be… and they'll do it willingly. You can alter people's perceptions if you understand the sciences, very ancient sciences.

So we're all being turned into a global society where we're all in it together, as always, and it's up to US ALL to suffer equally, except for those at the top who plan it all and manage it all… as it's always been. When you hear things floated a few years back like carbon taxes… what a great con, carbon taxes. Really, under the guise of we all have to suffer to save everyone, we all have to suffer to save everyone, we have to start paying for stuff that is in the air, naturally, by the way. Carbon dioxide is a very low percentage of the so-called greenhouse gases. Nothing would live on the planet - the plants and so on - without carbon dioxide, but that's never pushed. It's always a threat, a big unseen threat. The same thing as staving off Armageddon… by your prayers… hoping to stave it off; or in ancient times, you would sacrifice so many children so your enemies wouldn't come any closer. That's how it's done. It's science, science of the mind.

When you hear again, the carbon taxes… again, they introduce it as though it's only… They always do this with any kind of tax. 'The rich are going to pay; you'll be okay.' So, international corporations are going to have to pay for their share of carbon production during the processing and all that. Meanwhile, you find out a couple of years later, that all the big international corporations were given millions if not billions of FREE credit taxes and they've already started their own trading business between each other, the so-called 'offset' idea. So they're making a profit off it. The whole intention - as always with these things - is to hit everyone else at the bottom and you can't, you CAN'T get free goodies and free tickets, free anything to do with carbon. You're going to end up paying for it all of course. That's what you always do at the bottom… always.

Elitism is elitism. I don't care what name they give it. Communism, Fascism, Capitalism, it's all the same thing really, isn't it? Under Capitalism, those at the top never pay their taxes. They've had many documentaries, even the BBC did them on the Queen, after a big tax hike and Elton John spoke out at the time and says, no, they always put loopholes in for their very wealthy - like himself obviously - and they come out unscathed. Sometimes they come out with more, even though they paid nothing in. That's not a bad deal is it? So that's the reality of taxes. It's never for the people at the bottom. Any more than government agencies deal with the poor or so on. By the time anything trickles down to the poor, from the multi-billions of dollars that are supposedly spent and passed through layers of bureaucrats' pockets on the way down, there's hardly anything ever, ever left.

Everything is a con game… but this fantastic world order with its carbon taxes always was intended to hit you at the bottom to control you and to get you into a war mode. I said even at the time, they would use the word 'ration' and sure enough, we're getting it all.

Carbon ration account for all proposed by Environment Agency
(Alan: Even having an Environment Agency… it's right out of some ancient religion. Like the sun priests that would pray for the sun to come up and you give them all that you had. If you didn't pay them, they wouldn't pray for the sun and you'd live in perpetual darkness. So here you have an Environment Agency. The environment has always been here, before any agency was created, and it will be here long after they've gone. Even in the newspapers, they have Environmental Editors. Everybody's got a greenie editor. You think this isn't a mandate? Since when in the past did they have a Christian editor or whatever? Well, a long, long time ago they would. See, this is the new religion. And like all religions, it's meant to totally dominate and control you… on behalf of those at the top.)
If people used up their yearly ration early, they would have to buy extra from those who had not used their full allowance
(A: Here's the real intention of it.)
Ben Webster, Environment Editor / From The Times November 9, 2009

Everyone should be given an annual carbon ration (A: A ration, right.) and face financial penalties if they exceed it, under a proposal by the Environment Agency. (A: Did anybody VOTE in an environment agency? Of course we didn't… but we're POST democratic you understand.)

Lord Smith of Finsbury (A: Another Lord here.), the agency's chairman, will say(A: Will say today… see they give out their speech from the scriptwriter before they actually go out and legally, they speak itlegally to the press on TV, that's a legalism. So they hand out what he's going to say from the scriptwriter beforehand.) today that rationing is the fairest and most effective way of meeting Britain's legally binding(A: They always put that in…) targets (A: With whom? With the United Nations, you see, the big front organization for totalitarianism the world over. Legally binding targets… were any of you asked to vote on anything like this? No. Of course not… we are post-democratic.) for cutting greenhouse gas emissions.

People would be given a “carbon account” and a unique number that they would have to submit when making purchases of carbon-intensive items such as petrol, electricity or airline tickets. (A: That’s going to happen in the States too at the same time, by the way, and everywhere else across the planet, because we are global.) As with a bank account, people would receive statements showing the carbon weight of each purchase and how much of their ration remained.

If they used up their ration within a year, they would have to buy extra credits from those who had not used their full allowance.

Lord Smith, (A: Before he was made the Environment specialist, he was the CULTURAL specialist…) who was Culture Secretary in Tony Blair’s Government (A: They shuffle them around. They’re just front men.), believes that the system would encourage people to think about the carbon cost of their purchases as well as reward those who lived frugally (A: That means poverty.) and did little travelling (A: You know, the bottom classes.), who could make a significant profit from selling their unused credits. (A: Yeah, right!)

Speaking at the agency’s annual conference in London, Lord Smith will say that carbon rationing would help people to “judge how they want to develop their own quality of life in a sustainable way”. (A: Here they are getting sterilized and all the rest of it and have to pay for the air they breathe out with the carbon dioxide. And he’s talking about ‘in a sustainable way,’ to benefit whom?)

He believes that rationing would be fairer than taxing carbon because extra taxes could make certain activities, such as flying, too expensive for people on low incomes. (A: It already is. [Alan laughing] It already is. And the guys at the top just put it down on their expenses don’t they… for their taxes, write-offs, taxes.) If everyone had an equal free carbon allowance, the basic cost of flying would remain cheap but those who flew a lot would quickly use up their ration and have to purchase extra carbon credits for each additional flight. (Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from the Times to do with the carbon taxes we’ve all to pay PERSONALLY, personally. It goes along with the Smart Meters too they are putting in across the world. Ontario has been doing it for the last few years and even my area is going to get it, apparently, next year. These so called Smart Meters can turn items OFF in your house if they think you are overusing something. Mind you, they’ll give you a budget plan so that you’ll KNOW you’re overdoing it a little bit here or there and you have to cut out that extra cup of tea or whatever else it’s going to be, or your cooler goes off or your lights just go off. And they are going to bring in after that, the next stage, which is where you’ll pay in ADVANCE for your expected energy supply, what you expect to use. Then they’ll just cut it off for you when you go up to it or just over it. Isn’t that nice of them?

It’s amazing, especially in Canada because Pierre Trudeau, the big communist guy that got in without a single media in Canada mentioning the fact that he LEAD the Communist International group from Canada to Moscow in 1952. Nobody even mentioned that when he ran to be the Prime Minister. Again, he’s another multi-millionaire communist, to dispel the myth that it’s a ‘working man’s’ thing. He was on TV all through the 60s and 70s, definitely the 70s and 80s, on ads. He would appear on the ads personally because they wanted to use the nationalized system to bring it in and build these big atomic power stations. He had ads saying ‘leave your lights on all night long because it’s so cheap, cheap, cheap.’ That’s what they do. They nationalize things to get the money from the tax payer - and then tell you it’s yours, make you feel better - Then they go and sell it off to their pals for a few pennies. That’s the standard technique they’ve done for about a century in Britain with different things. So here we are going according to plan and now we have to PAY for everything and be cut off if you go over a certain budget.

Remember too, this big deal that the world is signing – the whole world is signing on; Obama is signing on it in December – is going to hit the US like a ton of bricks… that they’re not looking for.

Under the Climate Change Act, (A: Why not just call it weather changes, where you get your umbrella one day and your T-shirt the next. It’s called Climate Change Act…) Britain is obliged to cut its emissions by 80 per cent on 1990 levels by 2050. This means annual CO2 emissions per person will have to fall from about 9 tonnes to only 2 tonnes. (A: I tell you, we're going to be some skinny, skinny people… if anybody survives this even. I doubt they will even survive it.)

Rationing would make it much easier to meet the target because the total amount of permitted emissions under the Act would simply be divided by the size of population. (A: So it's going to be an incentive for population reduction. See how it beautifully ties together. Then they'll use SOCIAL APPROVAL and SOCIAL DISAPPROVAL where if someone's got a bigger family, they're using more than you, so you're ALL suffering collectively and you'll go and nag them all, put them to shame for having more than one child. This is the same techniques they used in China.)

The Department for Environment (A: Department of the Environment… Gods of the air, eh? Isn't that beautiful?), Food and Rural Affairs published a feasibility study last year which found that rationing was technically feasible and could be effective in cutting emissions. (A: You don't want to go into a room with these guys on these big study groups and their big commissions; they get so much food in them, umpteen different courses. You wouldn't want to be in the same room when they've finished eating for the emissions that they put off.)

Defra said at the time: "The study indicates that personal carbon trading has potential to engage individuals in taking action to combat climate change." However, it said that the idea was "ahead of its time" and would be very expensive to implement. (A: It's coming.)

The statement concluded: "The Government remains interested in the concept of personal carbon trading and, although it will not be continuing its research programme at this stage, it will monitor the wealth of research focusing on this area and may introduce personal carbon trading if the value of carbon savings and cost implications change."

The House of Commons (A: That's like the Congress) Environmental Audit Committee (A: An Environmental Audit Committee…) called on the Government last year to resume research on a rationing scheme and to be "courageous" in seeking to overcome likely public hostility to the idea. (A: It's a pity the public wouldn't become a little hostile, to be honest with you, and get courageous and tell them where to stuff it.)

It said in a report: "Opposition to personal carbon trading could be reduced if the public could be convinced (A: That means trained.) of three things. First, that it is absolutely essential to reduce emissions; second, that this can only be achieved if individuals take personal responsibility for reducing their own emissions (A: That sounds rather vulgar, eh?); and third, that personal carbon trading is a fairer and more effective way of reducing personal emissions than alternatives such as higher taxes." (A: It IS a darn tax! …under a guise, a beautiful guise they are going to CON people with.) The committee concluded: "Widespread public acceptance, while desirable, should not be a pre-condition for a personal carbon trading scheme (A: In other words, it doesn't matter if we want it or not… public acceptance.); the need to reduce emissions is simply too urgent." (A: They should take some bicarbonate of soda all at once, these boys.)

David Miliband, the Foreign Secretary (A: What an interesting history. This guy, his people ran out of Germany when Adolf Hitler came in. He and I think he's got another Miliband in the British government; they've made a CAREER since then in the British government. Just found out that his other cousins and aunts worked for the Soviet Union as scientists. Good communists. Back with more after this break.), called for a "thought experiment" on carbon rationing when he was Environment Secretary in 2006.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've mentioned before how China had its cultural revolution. You've got to understand the Marxist policies and the ongoing dialectic, as they call it, where they start off with a thesis, then they put in opposition to the thesis, its antithesis, and out comes the NEW synthesis. The synthesis becomes the new thesis and they go on. In other words, this is their idea of creating progress, directed progress. Directed… is the important word there.

This had been used across the world and people don't even know it, that there IS a cultural revolution going on. In China, they actually had the young people drag even their parents on the streets for holding on to 'old-fashioned' values. They were 'contaminated' with old worldly ideas and memories. You got to understand they are using the same techniques now to do with people who aren't going along with the greening and all the rest of it. People who have a little memory of a bit of personal freedom and rights and stupidness and silliness and all the rest of it… of government… they are targeting them. Actually, the cops in the UK and Europe, are targeting the citizens, the over 40s. This is The Mail Online.

How police are making criminals of the over-40s:
Target culture fuels rise in first-time convictions for middle aged
By James Slack / 27th October 2009 / The Mail Online

Record numbers of middle-aged people are being 'criminalised' by target-chasing police.

The number of over-40s receiving a first conviction or caution has increased by half since 2001.

It is now running at a startling 65 a day, according to new Government figures.

After decades of abiding by the law, people are being punished for crimes such as motoring offences or refusing to pay wheelie-bin (A: Their garbage.) fines.

Liberal Democrat spokesman Chris Huhne said they were being pursued so police could meet the targets imposed by Labour. (A: The government has told the cops to target an age group, the over-40s. Cultural war, you see, the Cultural Revolution.)

These give the same weight to catching a speeding motorist as to snaring a rapist or paedophile. (A: So if you didn't bring out your wheelie-bin or put it in the proper place or it was half an inch open at the top, you're fined. You're fined as much as if you were a rapist. That's how they treat you.)

Mr Huhne said last night: 'Labour (A: The government.) have criminalised a generation and treated tens of thousands of law-abiding middle-aged and elderly citizens like villains.'

Parliamentary answers show the number of first-time entrants to the criminal justice system who are over 50 increased by 46.3 per cent between 2000/01 and 2007/08, from 16,400 to 24,000.

In the 40-49 age group, the leap was 57.4 per cent, with 32,900 previously law-abiding people being criminalised.

The increases in the middle-aged groups far outstripped the general picture. In the population as a whole, there was a rise of just 18.6 per cent. (A: But it's 57.4% with the over 40s to 50s.)

The figures reflect the fact that many of Labour's new spot fines (A: You just pay on the spot.) for 'crimes' such as overfilling a wheelie bin are aimed at householders.

These are more likely than the general population to be middle-aged. (A: Because they resent the BS, that's why. They resent the BS.)

A first-time entrant is someone receiving their first court conviction or caution, as recorded on the police national computer.

Motoring offences, including things like not wearing a seatbelt (A: Remember, you used to have choices at one time.), make up half the cases dealt with by the courts.

Drivers who challenge a speed camera ticket must go to court and will account for many of the punishments.

Refusing to accept a wheelie-bin fine can also lead to court.

Mr Huhne, who obtained the figures, said: 'The soaring number of people being criminalised is a direct result of Labour’s target-driven, box-ticking approach to policing.

‘This Government has created a new crime for every day in office. (A: It’s true. I don’t know if people realize they’ve put more laws through than any previous government combined in the whole of the British history.)

‘When motoring offences and rubbish-bin misdemeanours are worth the same as convictions for murder or rape, it is easy to see how we have slipped into mass criminalisation.’

Criminologist Dr David Green, of the Civitas think-tank, said the law-abiding middle-classes were being ‘deliberately targeted’ by police who had to achieve a large number of ‘sanction detections’ - solved crimes.

A recent report warned that the middle classes have lost confidence in the police. (A: It’s about time. If they haven’t noticed it, it ain’t the police anymore. It’s not policemen anymore.)

It said they have been alienated by a service which routinely targets ordinary people rather than serious criminals, simply to fill Government crime quotas.

Author Harriet Sergeant said incidents which would once have been ignored are now treated as crimes.

She said: ‘Complaints against the police have risen, with much of the increase coming from law-abiding, middleclass, middle-aged and retired people who no longer feel the police are on their side.’ (A: Ho-oh, they’d better believe they are not on their side, not these young guys. These aren’t the old type policemen. This is the new world order’s policemen.)

I even watched… because I can’t watch any videos because Xplornet keeps punishing me for using Xplornet, plus it’s because of who I am too. Even on tonight’s show, when I try to record the show live, they cut me off about 4 or 5 times… a night. Xplornet, the high-speed internet. The one they say is so great; the one that cost 5 times a much as the same service in the US… for half the service. It punishes me for trying to watch a video. It’s just amazing what really, really goes on in real life. As I say, I saw a video that was sent to me, someone burned it, on what they call Cops. That’s their police show. They copied the American version basically. It’s all to do with motorized offenses. You saw this old guy, this old guy tottering along in his little car and the cops stop him. Then they… they basically crush your car. They bring in a crusher and they crush your car on the spot if your insurance has just run out, or your road taxes just run out. They used to give you about 2 weeks when it ran out to pay. They don’t any more. They just crush it… right in front of you. That’s it. That’s the home of democracy; Britain, the home of democracy. God help us all in that case, when they keep using democracy, as they tell us we are post-democratic. Quite something eh?

It’s also true that science fiction movies are predictive programming, even the comedy ones, especially the comedy ones. They show you a lot in them, of things that are going to come. Back I think in maybe the 80s, Stallone did a movie, The Demolition Man. It shows you a future era of where lots of things happen. Each time you say something that is incorrect, politically incorrect, or even swear, an instant fine would come out of a machine and everybody laughed.

Grandfather arrested at dawn, DNA-tested and held in a police cell for SIX hours for swearing once at council official
By Daily Mail Reporter / 10th November 2009

(A: I’m surprised he only swore once at a council official. Have you ever spoken to a council official? It’s like talking to a lobster… with those beady eyes that just stare at you.)

A grandfather was arrested at dawn and held in a police cell for six hours for using a single swear-word in front of a council official.

Thomas Catcheside, 67, had his fingerprints and DNA taken, before being issued with an £80 fixed-penalty notice.

His arrest followed a dispute with a council official about 'dangerously slippery' communal stairs in his block of flats in Cambridge.

Mr Catcheside, who is chairman of his residents' group, has been campaigning for three years for safety improvements. (A: That's why he's a target as well you see.)

But when an official visiting the site prevented him from listening to a phone call to his supervisor on October 30, he finally lost his temper and said: 'Don't you tell me what I can and can't do in my own *ing place.'

The official complained of feeling 'threatened' (A: Oh dear, dear… maybe they blushed too? I don't know if you've ever watch the BBC and the filth that's put out over the last 30 years with all these words in it. Even that cop show that someone burned and set to me - because Xplornet is so darned awful - showed you these cops swearing at the people they were stopping. They can swear at YOU but you can't swear at them. That's the NEW world order. If they feel threatened, that's you, you've had it. 'Oh, I feel threatened.' Maybe they also felt insulted. That's a terrible crime these days. 'You insulted me; that insulted me.') and six days later Mr Catcheside was arrested at 5.35am on suspicion of 'causing harassment, alarm or distress in a public place'.

That's the sort of thing they are doing there. What's the outshoot of all of this stuff? What's the outcome of it? The Daily Express.

4,000 PEOPLE A WEEK TRYING TO LEAVE UK

Immigration is rife, but thousands are quitting Britain

Sunday August 5, 2007 / By Michael Knapp, Home Affairs Editor / dailyexpress.co.uk

(A: Remember I read Jacques Attali's book called Millennium? The one he wrote before 9/11 happened where he said basically that the next third world country will be the US. He KNEW it back then. The big, big player in the formation of the European Union, worked for the United Nations and all that. He said that the next boat people will be people leaving the US looking for work abroad. But it's actually happening elsewhere BEFORE it hits the US.)

BRITAIN is facing a mass exodus of people looking to escape the crime and grime of modern living. (A: It's also to escape this multi-culturalism because they don't know what culture is anymore; they're so confused by propaganda from the government.)

The country's biggest foreign visa consultancy firm has revealed that applications have soared in the last seven months by 80 per cent to almost 4,000 a week. Ten years ago the figure was just 300 a week.

Most people are relocating within the Commonwealth – in Australia, Canada and South Africa. They are almost all young professionals and skilled workers aged 20-40.

And many cite their reason for wanting to quit as immigration to these shores – and the burden it is placing on their communities and local authorities. (A: So they are blaming immigration.) The dearth of good schools, spiralling house prices, rising crime and tax increases are also driving people away.

Obtaining a visa to live abroad can cost as little as £1,500 for the right candidates. Plumbers, electricians, construction workers and doctors are famously in demand. The only obstruction to emigration from the UK is a criminal record, poor health, advancing age and being a "third country national". (A: Then it goes through different episodes of different people and so on.)

"Ironically, one of the main reasons for leaving is the overstretch of services (A: You can't get services in Britain because they all cater to the immigrants coming IN to Britain.) due to increasing immigration into the UK. People are looking for the better standard of living offered by other countries, as even the most idyllic villages in Britain are under pressure from rising populations. (A: And it's due to immigration.)

What's even more ironic… A few weeks ago I mentioned – maybe a couple of weeks ago I mentioned – how Tony Blair and his right hand man had planned to change the face of Britain FOREVER by massively upping the quotas of immigrants into Britain… to destroy the culture, any vestige of culture. That's imperative to bring in this new world order. I've told people before, YOU CAN'T PLEASE THEM at the top. Britain has been trying to cut back their population. The average family in Britain doesn't have more than about 1 child per family. They've done all the 'right' things and then Maggie Thatcher said when she opened the floodgates to immigration, mainly from India at that time. She says, 'We need immigration; there's not enough getting born here to pay off the national debts.' That was the reason that was given. So you do all the right things to please them. You can not please them at the top and I hope all of you politically correct people out there are listening to me now. You can't please them at the top. They are going to come after you eventually with something else, you see.

SECRET PLOT TO LET 50 MILLION AFRICAN WORKERS INTO EU
Saturday October 11, 2008 / By Nick Fagge in Mali / The Daily Express

MORE than 50 million African workers are to be invited to Europe in a far-reaching secretive migration deal, the Daily Express can reveal today.

A controversial taxpayer-funded (A: We always pay for our own demise.) "job centre" opened in Mali this week is just the first step towards promoting "free movement of people in Africa and the EU". (A: The European Union.)

Brussels economists claim Britain and other EU states will "need" 56 million immigrant workers between them by 2050 to make up for the "demographic decline" due to falling birth rates and rising death rates across Europe. (A: See it's not enough people getting born, because they've been good little two-shoes and obeying their governments.)

The report, by the EU statistical agency Eurostat, warns that vast numbers of migrants could be needed to meet the shortfall in two years if Europe is to have a hope of funding the pension and health needs of its growing elderly population. (A: So they are using the SAME excuse as Thatcher gave. What they are not mentioning here is the incredible debt that was also paid to pay off the bankers.)

It states: "Countries with low fertility rates could require a significant number of immigrants over the coming decades if they want to maintain the existing number of people of working age.

"Having sufficient people of working age is vital for the economy and for tax revenue."

The report, by French MEP Francoise Castex, calls for immigrants to be given legal rights and access to social welfare provision such as benefits. (A: That's why people are moving out of the UK, they can't get access to these things because there is a priority list. Amazing eh?)

Now I'll go to Aiden Hunter in British Columbia. Are you there Aiden?

Aiden: My Dad says hi. I'm son of Alex Hunter and I'm 12 years old. I would like to talk to you about Byron Pryor. He's been put a mental hospital, Waterford Institution. Because when he was young his sister was raped by a judge, Alex Hickman. She was impregnated and he's in the mental hospital because of that and they are saying it didn't happen. He was supposed to get out last Monday, last month, and he didn't. He wasn't getting out because he didn't say that didn't happen. Like they are just twisting what they said to his wife Audrey around and to him.

Alan: I know there was a big deal out in British Columbia. A few years ago there was a report in the papers there where there was a pedophile ring consisting of judges and they were getting the children delivered to them by the guy who was put in charge of the social services for children's commission. That's who was supplying them with children. Hold on, I'll be back after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking to Aiden from British Columbia. Are you there Aiden?

Aiden: Okay, just to get to the point. Chief Justice Alex Hickman won't supply DNA to see if Byron's niece is his child. Instead of letting Byron out, they are holding Byron indefinitely until he says it didn't happen. So that's like all kids are like unsafe now because… right?

Alan:There are different laws for different peoples in different categories. When it comes to judges, they are sort of above it all; they are kind of God-like. That's why they wear those black capes and wear wigs. So that's the way it is. That's real life and when it comes to keeping them safe… You see, they can not be tried by common people. They must be tried by THEIR peer group. So that will never end up in a court of law with a judge as the defendant; it won't happen. That's the reality of life.

Aiden: I've been watching my Dad suffer for 11 ¼ years now. He made the Canadian Collation of the Walking Wounded. He had a radio show; it was called Canadian Collation of the Walking Wounded Uncensored Radio. It started on November 11th. Then the next day he was supposed to go on the air, he didn't get any calls from his partner in Victoria here. They left 5 messages on our voice message machine and the phone didn't ring at all. That's how he got off the show, he couldn't do it anymore. We really love your show. Your show is really good.

Alan: I tell you, we should really be glad and grateful to the US. The USA doesn't know it. They don't know it. This is getting broadcast out of the USA because you can not do this kind of stuff in Canada or any of the British Commonwealth countries because we're under tyranny. We've always been under tyranny. There is no such thing as free speech. You have authorized speech under the guise of free speech on regular media but you don't really have any free speech in Canada whatsoever. So you're quite right. But the US, they're going to start to lose it and they'd better start really, really fighting for it because when they lose the right to free speech, even if it's opinions you don't like, you've got to accept it all because it's the only way you can get YOUR voice out there too. When it's taken away from you, you're under tyranny. Thanks for calling, Aiden.

Lorilee, maybe I can get you tomorrow. I hear the music coming in now. I hope the US really, truly hang on to their guns, so to speak, because they are the last country to go down and they are already going down through the cultural attacks all around them and within them and through laws and regulations. Once it's gone, the whole world is under the big new world totalitarian boot.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Carbon ration account for all proposed by Environment Agency" by Ben Webster (timesonline.co.uk) - Nov. 9, 2009.

"Environment boss wants to put carbon tax on driving, heating and holidays" by Daniel Martin (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 9, 2009.

"How police are making criminals of the over-40s: Target culture fuels rise in first-time convictions for middle aged" by James Slack (dailymail.co.uk) - Oct. 27, 2009.

"Grandfather arrested at dawn, DNA-tested and held in a police cell for SIX hours for swearing once at council official" (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 10, 2009.

"4,000 PEOPLE A WEEK TRYING TO LEAVE UK" by Michael Knapp (dailyexpress.co.uk) - Aug. 5, 2007.

"SECRET PLOT TO LET 50MILLION AFRICAN WORKERS INTO EU" by Nick Fagge (express.co.uk) - October 11, 2008.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 11, 2009 (#449)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 11, 2009:
WTO -- Masters Warfare Economic, Eating the World, They're Gastronomic:
"Pascal Lamy, Director General of W.T.O.,
 In Sackcloth and Ashes, Pours Out Woe,
 This Social Elitist Admits to his Sufferance
 And Struggles to Bring Us Global Governance,
 Hard to Imagine this Man a Wreck,
 For His Annual Salary is One Big Fat Cheque,
 The W.T.O. is another Quiet Unelected Order,
 Which through the U.N. use Cannon Fodder
 Of National Armies, The World to Standardize,
 Nations get the Body Bags, U.N. gets the Prize,
 Their Masters, The Rich Men, Soft Hands, No Toil,
 Say They're Philanthropists, yet also in Oil,
 They're also in Banking, Lending Nations in Debt,
 Think You're in Hell? Ain't seen Nothin' Yet"
 &copy; Alan Watt Nov. 11, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 11, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 11, 2009. As always, I suggest to the newcomers to look into .com; that's my web site. Scroll down, see all the other sites I have up there and bookmark them for future use because once in a while the big boys freeze up on me and I have to go around in loops to try and find the problem. They just can't understand why I can't upload anymore to the unlimited disk space that I have. Therefore, if you bookmark these other sites you'll be able to get the latest downloads for free. [Sites listed above.] These are all of the official sites. Anything outside of these ones are bogus. There are bogus ones out there too; every so often they go up. So make sure you are into one of the OFFICIAL sites.

You can download hundreds of talks I've given in the past where I show you the reasons for the big movements in history... Not by guessing at it or going into conspiracies but reading the books of the big boys themselves, the guys that plan the future and their descendants that are now planning the next thousand years or so. Literally, that's what they do. Professor Carroll Quigley was very, very good at that. He was the historian for the Council on Foreign Relations, one of the biggest groups in world planning. He really filled in a lot of the blank spots in history for me, amongst other authors. So you'll learn a lot. It's up to you to check it all out for yourself. Never take anybody's word for anything. You got to check out what's there.

Now, you bring me to you, you the listeners. I'm not backed by anybody else. I'm not selling various items or artifacts or health products or whatever. The ads on the show are paid by the advertiser straight to RBN for the air time and for the staff and equipment and their bills. It's very expensive. So it's up to YOU to help keep me going by going into the sites, seeing how you can buy the books and disks I have for sale and you can also donate as well. [Options listed above.] Cash does come through and that cuts out the guy with the podgy fingers who gets fatter with every depression he causes. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them to play on their CD players – those who don't use computers and there are a lot out there - you can get in touch with me at [address listed above]. Back in a moment.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I've talked quite a lot in the past about reality and how we're born into what we take for granted as the only system that could possibly be, simply because it exists and simply because your parents accept that it exists. They don't tell you, 'by the way, son or daughter, all of this structure is pretty well fake' and go into the details… because they don't know. They have adapted very well to Plato's cave, the one that's been authorized and designed by those who have the power structures, who OWN the power structures. They ARE the power.

Lenin and other people before him talked about this. How in different nations you're born into a culture, you take the norms of that culture - no matter how bizarre they appear to other cultures - and it's all quite natural to you. Therefore, they understood perfectly well a long time ago - a long, long time ago - that you could alter culture and make pretty well anything normal as long as they ALL ADAPT to it at the same timE. That is what happens to us. We are born into the updated Plato's cave for a particular generation, scientifically designed - as Lord Bertrand Russell said himself - and then we are scientifically indoctrinated at school in a specific way, which we're not even aware of at the time. There are many different psychological techniques used on you at school. Then you grow up to be supposedly a good – or hopefully – a good, productive, tax-paying citizen. That's what they WANT from you.

Meanwhile, after school, you're into work and you want to relax at the end of work so you get entertained. That's where entertainment takes over from your education. It still is a form of education or indoctrination. It give you predictive programming through comedy sketches and through dramas, soap operas. In fact, I've mentioned here articles where special psychologists were brought in to work on soap operas for certain countries to alter the attitudes of the women who would watch, to upgrade them to an extent. That is official. So there's nothing you can really watch out there. Even all your sci-fi's – especially science fiction – they are all predictive programming of WHAT'S to come basically. I've lost count of the disaster movies that have been churned out for years and years and years all talking about the end of things if we don't change our ways and the global warming or flooding or freezing… it keeps changing and alternating. This is predictive programming.

In predictive programming, when it gets into your mind about something, with fiction, you don't realize that the idea is now planted in your head. Therefore, when they start to mention it in reality and saying this is coming and that's coming, it seems PLAUSIBLE to you. It's far easier to put an idea across to someone, who will REMEMBER the idea, if it's attached to high excitement and drama and emotion. It becomes imprinted in your mind. In fact, really, fiction is FAR superior to non-fiction and straight, dry newscasts or dictatorial stuff from the heads of governments. It's far more effective to alter behavior using very simple techniques. In fact, as long as there is emotion tied in with it and some fear if you don't go this way - especially nowadays with television, they can show you fictional accounts of what could happen - and that's all you need. Very simple techniques.

We're under what they call Global Governance. We have been our whole lives. So were our parents; they didn't know it either. They always need you to be national to go off and fight the latest wars when required. Even before the UN was mentioned pretty well daily on the media - when they had the conflict in Bosnia - suddenly all you heard was the United Nations, the United Nations, the United Nations. I knew they were bringing them up to their proper place in the consciousness, the psyche of the public. I told people at the time, you're going to start hearing this daily now on newscasts from now until you die because that was the agenda, to bring it up to public consciousness, as they call it, until you accepted it as being some kind of official body… even though you don't elect it.

You've got to look into the fact, as well, that it's a NON-democratic institution. Look at the titles they give people. They are military titles… Director General, Supreme Commander, etc, etc. These are military titles which no one out there questions. In the military, you don't have a democratic institution. It's not democratic. Neither is the United Nations. Neither is the world order that's been built up around us… quietly, steadily, Fabian style, step by step by step… this massive network across the planet. Unlike the socialism that people have been taught, with all the nonsense about the peasant uprisings and so on, this socialism was designed by very, very rich people. They became the richest people on the planet by design and again, by intrigue to BE the masters of the world, this world system.

Economics is one of the PRIME goals in warfare. You've got to use economic warfare. It's far more effective than any other kind of warfare, once you have the whole world system borrowing from the same organization, FROM the United Nations group, under that umbrella. You got to understand too, the Socialist International and how it was based on a military agenda with military tactics and superior commanders and all the rest of it. That's why they have these military titles.

One of their specialized groups is called the World Trading Organization. Most people don't hear much about it… and that's by design too. When it was signed quite a few years back, they brought it out with the GATT Treaty, the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. It was much more to do with than just trade and tariffs. The World Trade Organization put out thousands of pages and in ALL the countries signed it - on queue, as they sign everything, if you notice. It enabled all the big corporations, international corporations with their headquarters in Europe and the Americas to MOVE lock, stock and barrel over to China. They also set up the deal that the tax payers of all those nations would pay the losses of those corporations as they were moving over and setting up in China for up to 10 years and that could be extended if required.

The World Trade Organization talks about free trade, this great tenant of the United Nations, but it's not free trade at all. In fact, it's limited trade. If there are two guys selling the same product, they will pick the person who's a MEMBER of their big club. They will get the contract and YOU won't. It's to LIMIT trade to stop competition. It also is a group that deals with how much labor is to be transported from country to country… free flow of goods AND labor, authorized labor.

One of the characters, the guy who is the Director General as they call him - Director General, big chutzpa - Pascal Lamy, which is the same as Lemy, I guess. I've seen both versions used. DG, Director General Pascal Lamy of the World Trade Organization and this is from their own organization, it's the site I'm getting this info from. He talks about world government… recently. I'll put these links up on my site at the end of the show.

WTO NEWS: SPEECHES — DG PASCAL LAMY
9 November 2009 / Director General Pascal Lamy (wto.org).

Lamy sees need for "right global governance" to meet global challenges

Director-General Pascal Lamy, in a speech at the Bocconi University in Milan on 9 November 2009, said: "The reality is that the end of the cold war (Alan: He lies right off the bat because they all knew when it was planned.) caught everyone by surprise. It was the end of a bi-polar world. A new world order was being born. And yet there was not enough thinking and discussion about its governance structures (A: This is the term they use now, governance, not government, governance.). There was never a Bretton Woods Conference or a San Francisco Conference (A: As they had during and after World War II.) post 1989. (A: Now listen to what he says…) As a result global governance structures did not adjust. (A: He's also admitting that the Bretton Woods Conference and the San Francisco Conference - the United Nations conference in fact, in '46 I think the conference was in San Francisco - was part of the setting up of the global governance structure. He's claiming that after the wall went down, this governance structure failed to act properly when the Berlin Wall came down.) And here lies the root of many of today's problems. Global challenges need global solutions and these can only come with the right global governance, which today, twenty years later (A: After the wall came down.), remains too weak.

And yet there is a place on earth where new forms of global governance have been tried following World War II: in Europe. (A: Now, it is true that in 1948 they set up the structure to UNITE Europe and LIE to the public all along the way, as Prime Ministers of every country signed agreements annually to further BIND them or tie them together, they kept saying, ‘closer ties.’ Then at the very end of it, they announced to the public, by the way, you are now under a European government. So that was PART of the setting up of the GLOBAL government. Back after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from an article by Director General Pascal Lamy of the World Trade Organization. This unelected body that decides who trades with whom and who doesn’t. They will eventually be responsible for deciding who can go and live in another country and who can’t, by the way. Just as it has control of the free flow of goods and authorized labor… under the United Nations.

And yet there is a place on earth where new forms of global governance have been tried following World War II: in Europe. (A: He’s talking about the European Union. So that’s what it was all about. It was a PART of global governance that wanted 3 trading blocs. A United Europe, exactly as Karl Marx said. Remember too, he started up the First International. The second one is still on the go today with the Prime Ministers of Britain being part of it. So you’re under socialism. The Americas were to follow with a United Americas; they were to unite together. Then you were to get a United Pacific Rim region. Of course, the Council on Foreign Relations had a special department dealing with that for the last 80 years… 80 YEARS, according to Professor Carroll Quigley. And then you will all be under a world government at the end of it all. So all this unification is all PART of a very old plan by the socialists who BELIEVED that technocrats, the specialists, should rule the world and the people would just do as they are told basically, an authoritarian type society. That’s really what it’s all about. It says here…) More than half a century ago Jean Monet said: “the sovereign nations of the past can no longer provide a framework for the resolution of our present problems: And the European Community itself is no more than a step towards the organizational forms of tomorrow’s world”. (A: That was the 3 part trading blocs.) This was as valid then as it is now.

What do I mean by global governance? For me global governance describes the system we set up to assist human society to achieve its common purpose (A: That’s right out of the First International’s manifesto: to assist human society to achieve its common purpose… So they have what they decided is a common purpose. Right out of the same manifesto is this…) in a sustainable manner (A: Because they were into ‘sustainability’ then, in the 1800s.), that is, with equity and justice. (A: They decide what equity and justice IS, by the way.) Growing interdependence requires that our laws, our social norms and values (A: Social norms and values… that is your WHOLE culture, family units, everything.), our mechanisms for framing human behaviour be examined, debated, understood and operated together as coherently as possible. (A: That means altered totally.) This is what would provide the basis for effective sustainable development in its economic, social and environmental dimensions.

Whether public or private (A: That was always the debate, between the two systems of socialism. Some wanted total state ownership of all means of production while the other group thought it’s possible to intertwine the two. The Fabians eventually opted for the latter after a long, long time. But it’s really the multi-billionaires that they set up in office who fund them; the parallel government made up by the big international bankers who have the foundations - the private, philanthropic foundations like the Rockefellers - who really run it.), governance needs to provide leadership, the incarnation of vision, of political energy, of drive.

It also needs to provide legitimacy, which is essential to ensure ownership over decisions which lead to change. (A: Change is good right? Change is good.) Ownership to prevent the in-built bias towards resistance to modify the status quo. (A: To MODIFY THE STATUS QUO and to prevent the in-built bias towards resistance... they are always looking out for reactions and they have massive think tanks to find ways to neutralize it.)

A legitimate governance system (A: He’s talking about global governance here.) must also ensure efficiency. It must bring about results for the benefit of the people. (A: Which people is that?)

Finally, a governance system must be coherent. Compromises would need to be found over objectives which often may contradict one another. (A: Believe you me, socialism is full of contradictions.) It cannot be about the right hand not knowing what the left hand is doing. Or, even worse, it cannot be about knowingly moving them in different directions. (A: That’s all they do.)

Specific challenges of global governance

As with any system of power within the nation-state, what is needed is “good” global governance. A system which offers a good balance between leadership, efficiency and legitimacy, and which ensures coherence.

What then are the specific challenges of global governance?

The first challenge stems from the difficulty to identify leadership. Who is the leader? Should it be a super power? A gathering of national leaders? Selected by whom? Or should it be an international organization?

As to classical legitimacy, this entails citizens choosing their representatives collectively, by voting for them. But it also relies on the political capacity of the system to bring forward public discourse and proposals that produce coherent majorities and provide citizens with the feeling they are participating in a debate. (A: I like that part. All you have to do is FEEL that you are because you really ain’t. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix. It’s quite amazing too, because even when you’ve got these links, you show people this stuff and they still won’t believe you. They’ll say, ‘I can see what they are saying, but they don’t really mean it.’ That’s generally what you hear, that ‘they don’t really mean it; it can’t be that important or it would be on mainstream new every day.’ That’s how they have been trained to think. They’ll believe anything that IS on mainstream but they won’t believe anything that they see with their own eyes even or that they can check for themselves. If it’s not on mainstream, they will dismiss it. It’s like Wag the Dog, it shows you the technique in that movie. If it’s on TV, it must be true. That’s how simple everything thing is. So Brzezinski was right when he says the people will be unable to reason for themselves; they’ll expect their reasoning to be done by their mainstream media. That’s happened. That’s actually happened.

Lamy goes on to complain about the fact that they will really have to convince the public that they are somehow part of something because global governance means you are remote from the people and they ARE. There are people in England dependent on this place in Brussels for all the decision-making so far removed from them. Think what it will be when there is complete global government under the United Nations… and you have a complaint to make, through multiple layers of bureaucracy until it reaches some person that you’ll never even know their name at the top somewhere, some Lieutenant Governor or something or Grand General Chutzpa… and it gets lost on the way doesn’t it. It will go in the waste basket.

It’s interesting too, I’ve often said politics is just the sham as all this progresses, this whole global government idea, and everybody who’s chosen for politics has been vetted by the masters before we even hear their names and before they are put forward. That’s why when big bills come through with thousands of pages, they just sign it automatically. NO ONE - even they couldn’t if they had months to read it – you still couldn’t get through it. So they are given about a week to read something - or a couple of days - and they don’t even bother looking at it. They just pass it automatically. In every country it’s the same now. So they are all bought and paid for. They have to be or you wouldn’t get into politics. I’ve often said, left and right wing, which bunch of millionaires do you want to vote for? They’ve got so much in common with you don’t they?

Here’s from a magazine called Politico.

Report: 237 millionaires in Congress
By: Erika Lovley / Politico.com / November 6, 2009

Talk about bad timing.

As Washington reels from the news of 10.2 percent unemployment, the Center for Responsive Politics is out with a new report describing the wealth of members of Congress.

Among the highlights: Two-hundred-and-thirty-seven members of Congress are millionaires. (A: By the time they leave they will be billionaires, by the way, with all the deals they make with lobbyists.) That’s 44 percent of the body – compared to about 1 percent of Americans overall. (A: Remember too, they only have to put down a FRACTION of their income. They are given an exception that the rest of the citizenry are not given. I read that article a few weeks back.)

CRP says California Republican Rep. Darrell Issa is the richest lawmaker on Capitol Hill, with a net worth estimated at about $251 million. Next in line: Rep. Jane Harman (D-Calif.), worth about $244.7 million; Sen. Herb Kohl (D-Wis.), worth about $214.5 million; Sen. Mark Warner (D-Va.), worth about $209.7 million; and Sen. John Kerry (D-Mass.), worth about $208.8 million. (A: He's worth a lot more than that NOW according to who he's married to I think.)

All told, at least seven lawmakers have net worths greater than $100 million, according to the Center's 2008 figures.

"Many Americans probably have a sense that members of Congress aren't hurting, even if their government salary alone is in the six figures, much more than most Americans make," said CRP spokesman Dave Levinthal. "What we see through these figures is that many of them have riches well beyond that salary, supplemented with securities, stock holdings, property and other investments."   (A: A few weeks ago I read about all the investing they're into, such as the military stuff and all the rest of it that's very profitable these days. That's why they love to keep the wars going. It's awfully good for their own pockets.)

The CRP numbers are somewhat rough estimates – lawmakers are required to report their financial information in broad ranges of figures, so it's impossible to pin down their dollars with precision. The CRP uses the mid-point in the ranges to build its estimates.

Senators' estimated median reportable worth sunk to about $1.79 million from $2.27 million in 2007. The House's median income was significantly lower and also sank, bottoming out at $622,254 from $724,258 in 2007.

But CRP's analysis suggests that some lawmakers did well for themselves between 2007 and 2008, even as many Americans lost jobs and saw their savings and their home values plummet. (A: A lot of them lost their homes all together.)

Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) gained about $9.2 million. Sen. James Inhofe (R-Okla.) gained about $3 million, Sen. Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii) had an estimated $2.6 million gain, and Richard Shelby (R-Ala.) gained about $2.8 million.

Some lawmakers have profited from investments in companies that have received federal bailouts (A: Of course they have because they are all in on the game.); dozens of lawmakers are invested in Wells Fargo, Citigroup, Goldman Sachs (A: Of course they are.) and Bank of America.

Among executive branch officials, CRP says the richest is Securities and Exchange Commission Chairwoman Mary L. Schapiro, with a net worth estimated at $26 million.

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton is next, worth an estimated $21 million. (A: It's a lot more than that actually.) President Barack Obama is the sixth-wealthiest, worth about an estimated $4 million. (A: Charitable works are very good for you aren't they?) Vice President Joe Biden has often tagged himself as an original blue collar man. The CRP backs him up, putting his net worth at just $27,000. (A: The rest will be in some other country and I know which one it will be.)

He's hardly the worst off.   (A: Then he goes on to list them. They have to see more lobbyists, these ones. No doubt they'll be very, very busy seeing lobbyists as they can also come out with lots of millions of dollars and that's just the way it is, isn't it? …in every country. That's the way it is. It's utterly corrupt. [Alan laughing.] But there you go.)

You know, I understand how young guys are and how they go into the military. Most guys go into the military not because of any ideal to serve their country. They have to say that. They have to say that when they are getting interviewed, to the public later on, to serve their country and that. They go in because they are getting nowhere in life. They are a nobody. They are at that awkward age where they don't really know who they are yet. All they do know is that being a nobody, they can suddenly BE a somebody and people will give you respect with the uniform because the elite have made it so in the culture. They DO get respect. But then, you get the people who can really use them for geo-politics. The young guys really don't care where they go and fight or who they fight. They really, really don't care. In peacetime, armies are professional mercenaries. That's actually what they are. I've even watched the CBC documentaries on… we've got a lot of them in Canada and they are public relations and propaganda. At least some of them are honest enough.

They are career soldiers and they go wherever they are sent. There are no political or moral decisions involved in it, on how they think about it. They go and kill who they are told to go and kill. But young guys go in thinking they are immortal and they'll never get killed. They want to be part of a team. They want to BELONG. Remember, they are coming out of the classroom basically, where you want to belong with your peer group. Going into another peer group, you want to belong so badly and they go along with everything they are told to do. They go where they are told to go. And they haven't matured at all and here they are, they're not playing cowboys and Indians in the forest any more. They are actually playing the same kind of things with real guns.

So I understand the mentality and how they can go through that and what happens. They don't need much propaganda to get them going. Very basic, basic propaganda is good enough for them. In fact, it's amazing, you know, they have Veterans' Day going on right now and Memorial Day across the British Commonwealth countries at the same time. When you hear these old fellas speaking, they'll talk and they'll give you the original propaganda that they were given AT THAT TIME. That's what comes. They've never gone beyond it. They've never looked in to the causes, the financial backing of the wars or anything else. They just come out with the original propaganda. It's IMPRINTED in their memory. That's all they can come out with. Remember what Kissinger said. Kissinger talked about the military, what they really are, knowing all the things that I've just said. Kissinger said that the soldiers and the military are just dumb, stupid animals to be used for foreign policy. That's what they are really fighting out there. It's for foreign policy. But these guys are unaware of the long-term goals, completely unaware of it and what it's all about.

I see that Exxon Mobil just got given the big honey pot over in Iraq. They were awarded the big, new, shiny, taxpayer-funded – from America of course – refineries over there. That's what they are over there for and much more to come in the future, that will still be going on into other territories after they are out of the military.

ExxonMobil-led consortium nets 'supergiant' Iraq oil field
Group wins bid to develop west Qurna as baghdad signs up slew of big contracts
Friday, November 06, 2009 / Ahmed Rasheed and Muhanad Mohammed / Reuters

Long-term, geo-political strategies. That's why Kissinger called them dumb, stupid animals… because they are quite happy doing what they are doing and being proud of wearing that uniform and belonging to a peer group and feeling strong and immortal… and running around with a gun in their hands… and then getting praise when they go back home. Unless they're sick and then they're dismissed and they're a leper to society. Especially the military, they want nothing to do with them. And so many of them DO come back sick because of the inoculations they have been given… OR the depleted uranium. But I understand why they join. I do understand why they join.

You never fight for what you think you are fighting for. If you are moralistic and you want to believe in something, you're never fighting for what you think you are fighting for. Professor Carroll Quigley went into that in Tragedy and Hope AND The Anglo-American Establishment - very important, these two books - where he fills in what you were fighting for, even in the last major wars, the world wars as they call them. He goes into the fact that the group, the Royal Institute of International Affairs and the Council on Foreign Relations were setting up the wars. They wanted the world to come to its knees for global government. That's what it was about. Look into The Crimes and Punishment of IG Farben. See who funded the set up of Adolf Hitler. The same guys who set up the funding of the Bolshevik Revolution, by the way. Professor Anthony Sutton wrote books about them. Look them up, they are fantastic books, well documented, no guesswork there. All documented stuff.

So here's one of the poor guys in World War II who went off to fight totalitarianism. You know, the socialist countries which at that time they called Fascist.

War hero, 94, vows to hand back medals to Brown after being denied winter fuel allowance (A: Prime Minister Brown in Britain.)

By Daily Mail Reporter / Thursday, Nov 12 2009

(A: I hope you understand, all this stuff to do with fuel and energy and carbon taxes, they are already doing all this stuff in Britain. If you are dependent on the government, believe you me, you are under their thumb, even for your fuel.)

A 94-year-old war hero today pledged to hand back his medals after the Government refused to give him his winter fuel allowance. (A: Now listen to this.)

Bob McGowan was told he could not claim the £300 subsidy because he moved into his flat just one day too late to qualify. (A: There's bureaucracy; there's socialism for you. By the book.)

Despite his age and the six years he spent fighting for his country across Europe, Asia and Africa, the Pension Service said it could not show flexibility. (A: See, they really don't LIKE the military. They make it quite plain they don't like the military. They'll use them all the time, to the maximum, but they really don't like them.)

Mr McGowan, of Portsmouth, has been waging a battle of principle with Whitehall ever since he was turned down for the fuel support in 2007. (A: There are a lot of people younger than him getting it.)

He wants an apology from Gordon Brown (A: Well, good luck with the Fabian. See, you were fighting the wrong guys, old fella. Don't you understand you were fighting the wrong guys? Because the real commies and so on, the communists you see, were back home in Britain in the Fabian Society… with their partners, the big bankers that formed the Milner Group that created the Royal Institute of International Affairs or CFR.) and says if it is not forthcoming he will post his five medals to 10 Downing Street.

Mr McGowan, who won the Burma Star (A: Burma was a hellish place to be in, but he was there.), the Africa Star, the War Medal 1939 to 1945, the 1939-1945 Star and the Defence Medal following 2,133 days on active duty overseas, said: 'I think it's disgusting.

He was overseas 6 years all together. That's what they do with you. They don't give a damn about you… at all. It's the same with the sick ones too that are coming back from the Gulf areas, they're just dismissed, and they're lepers, suddenly become lepers to the military. They just wish you'd disappear or die off. Same thing. When you see what's happening too, what's the point? See, whatever you fight for, what you think you are fighting for, is always a lie. It's for the big boys' agenda.

Here's an article from The Evening Standard.

Citizen snoopers recruited to spy on Londoners
Katharine Barney, City Hall Reporter / 09.11.09 / thisislondon.co.uk

(A: This is what you expect in totalitarian countries. This is what these guys went off supposedly, thinking, they were going to fight against. It's all here. It's all back home. That's where it was really working quietly all that time.)

A London council is recruiting 2,000 residents to report on their neighbours and join a growing network of "citizen snoopers" in the capital. (A: London.)

"Neighbourhood Champions" (A: That's kind of like Obama's bunch.) will be expected to pass on evidence of graffiti, fly-tipping (A: dumping garbage), litter and excessive noise.

They could eventually be trained to report child abuse, domestic violence, racial harassment and other "hate crimes". (A: God. George Orwell had this all in 1984, in the book… be scared of children. You're going to be scared of children… when they point their fingers at you.)

The plan is expected to be approved this week in Harrow. The council says the scheme, which has the backing of the Met commander for the borough, will increase pride in the community. (A: Pride in the community...)

But critics today raised fears over civil liberties, warning that it is the latest example of a surveillance society. (A: Are you kidding? It's the latest… you've had it folks. You've had it. You're in the middle of it. Stalin would be proud. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix. We've got a caller there from Florida. It's Brandon. Are you there Brandon?

Brandon: Hi. I was going through some of your blurbs and I guess I got kind of confused at some of the connections that you make with words, the English language. You were mentioning about… the example I'm going to give is about 'justice'. How it was like they put you on 'ice', 'just ice.'

Alan: Yes. That's what they say, when you hold someone, you put them on ice.

Brandon: You said justice was like jousting.

Alan: It's from jousting. That's right. It's a jousting tournament with the two champions. See, the peasantry could not defend themselves. You were not allowed to get on a horse and fight a Knight. Only Knights could fight Knights. So you had to find a champion, and actual Sir or a Lord to speak on the peasantry's behalf and he'd do that by having a joust with the opponent. That's why you've got lawyers and that's why you're told to shut up and let the lawyer speak for you. You're a peasant; you're not allowed to speak there.

Brandon: These aren't like your own opinions or anything. You obviously got this from…

Alan: You can find it in dictionaries. It's good too if you go through… See, they've change the meaning of words generation by generation. When you get the really old dictionaries, they're absolutely fascinating. When you get the old, complete collection of dictionaries, even in the 1800s, there were VOLUMES of them, like a set of encyclopedias just on words. Like George Orwell said, over they years – in 1984 – it comes down to a thin, thin book… so it's linguistic minimalism until we can't even EXPRESS ourselves anymore.

Brandon: It's all based on occultic or Masonic language?

Alan: There's Masonic wording. There's Cabalistic wording all through it. There's anagrams galore. They love that kind of stuff… and how they string sentences together with different words and how they'll pick the first two letters, etc in every word and then you'll get another one and other little hidden, funny messages to each other in them. That's been very, very common over the years. Yeah.

Brandon: I actually find myself doing… just kind of reading into things a lot more. My mind is open now to see this kind of… I'm not really quite comfortable with it, even myself, because now my mind is kind of always probing everything. I know you said you have to figure out ways to kind of calm yourself, so you can't go too fast.

Alan: That's right. You can get excited and it is exciting when you catch on to a lot of the little games that are going on. It can be fun for a while but don't let it overtake you.

Brandon: I made a trip to Honduras a couple of years ago. It just struck me right away, I just liked being around people where I didn't understand. It hit me that the English language seems unnatural, the actual language.

Alan: It is unnatural. It is unnatural.

Brandon: It seems like there is… it doesn't flow smoothly. It seems robotic almost.

Alan: It is. Ultimately, when they put it together… Really, they got it out to the public by using Shakespeare - I always say the group called Shakespeare because it wasn't one guy. He introduced I think 180,000 words into the language…

at the same time as they put out the King James Bible. They literally were updating the language. But now, they've just minimalized it until it's just a basic worker bee language for basic working and no more. You're right.

Brandon: It just seems like an inherently evil language. I hate to say that.

Alan: You're right.

Brandon: I'm not off when I say that. That's actually true.

Alan: I know. I know. Thanks for calling.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

" 'Global Governance: Lessons from Europe' - Bocconi University, Milan, Italy" Speech by World Trade Organization Director General Pascal Lamy (wto.org).

"Report: 237 millionaires in Congress" by Erika Lovley (politico.com) - Nov. 6, 2009.

"ExxonMobil-led consortium nets 'supergiant' Iraq oil field" (dailystar.com.lb) - Nov. 6, 2009.

"War hero, 94, vows to hand back medals to Brown after being denied winter fuel allowance" (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 11, 2009.

"Citizen snoopers recruited to spy on Londoners" by Katharine Barney (thisislondon.co.uk) - 09.11.09.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 12, 2009 (#450)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 12, 2009:
The Wise Men's Dream, Kill 'em All, Save the Cream:
"We're Aboard World Bankers' Ship, the 'Socio-Economic Solution,'
After Bleeding Us Pale, We're About to Sail in Greening Revolution, Sailing Third-Class, Eating GMO Grass, We Each do Our Part,
Red Flag Unfurled, Turning Third-World, Atoning for Each Fart,
Our Leaders say We'll have to Pay because the World is Warming,
Hard to Believe, We Shiver and Freeze, More Snow than Ever is Falling,
Not too Harsh to Call it Farce, UN's Fancy-Foot Propaganda,
Their Marketing Strategy Changes Reality, Hey Abracadabra!
The Master's Craving's to have Us Slaving, Willingly in His Vision,
In the Planned Society, No-Choice-Variety, Dying Off in World Prison"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 12, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 12, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 12, 2009. Newcomers, look into .com web site. That’s the main site. Scroll down to the other sites I have up there, bookmark them for future use because once in a while the big servers go down and this way you can always get the latest downloads via the alternate sites. [Sites listed above.] These are the official sites. Anything else is bogus. There’s no MySpace out there with me on it. There’s no Twitter. There’s none of that stuff. It’s all there on that site. Beware out there, I had 3 different sites go up at the weekend that weren’t mine, with my name on them of course, and even a Twitter page as well. So, that’s what you have to watch these days. Make sure you know who you’re looking at and don’t be fooled by disinfo merchants.

You are the listeners who bring me to you. There’s nothing backing me here except YOU. When there’s even less backing than there is, I’ll just go and do other things. It’s up to you to keep me going. Don’t depend upon other people doing it. There are only the same people who donate over and over again… and thousands and thousands listen.

We live in an age where everyone thinks everything should be free. What they don’t realize is that everything that is free out there has a PRICE, a price down the road and the price generally is to steal your mind from you and get all your data from you as well, and do personality profiles on you. That’s what all the free stuff is for. That’s what the Facebook and all that stuff is for. That’s been ADMITTED to as well, by the way. The big group that runs the world has thousands and thousands of private corporations that front for them. The CIA set up dozens and dozens and dozens of real corporations back in the 60s, even as far back as the 50s in fact. The 60s and 70s, right up to the present time, REAL companies, funded them into existence, they make real products… and they are complete fronts. They have socio-political goals, like the VeriChip, that has just combined with another company. So you have to be very, very careful. The same thing is happening with your information. It's not for YOU. Mind you, they'll give you lots of things to drag you IN to tempt you but you pay a price. A lot of folk today don't mind because they have been brought up with no real brain in their head except the one that's been indoctrinated IN to them and they don't mind giving out all their information. In fact, they see no point in having any privacy. THEY ARE GOOD, HAPPY SLAVES.

It's up to you to keep me going. So you can look at my web site .com, see what's for sale there. I've only got a few things for sale because I don't have time to do anything else. That keeps me going. Or donate to me through [options listed above]. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them because they don't have computers and they listen to them on their CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above]. I'll look forward to hearing from you. I really need the help to keep going. Remember, all the ads on this show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN for the radio time and their equipment and their bills and for the staff. So it's up to you to keep ME going. Back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. The history of the big movement that we are going through is a history of revolutions. I've said many times in the past that most revolutions are bloodless, technically. Most are bloodless. They always have bloody ones going on across the world under the guise of policing; but, to be honest with you, most revolutions are bloodless. They're cultural changes, that's really what they're about… changing the culture.

If you go back into the histories of the big organizations that came out just prior to the French Revolution, they wrote about it. They published a lot of material. Then into the 1800s, you find more and more published works by some of the so-called revolutionaries themselves. Then towards the end of the 1800s, into the Marxist phase, into the 20th century, you find that the Fabians took over to deal with the West, the Fabian Society. Now, I've always mentioned that the big revolutionaries of the past were not working class people and they were not just intelligentsia, they USED intelligentsia to front for them. They were funded by bankers, the bankers of their day. That's who funded them.

The groups of bankers in those days had consortiums. They had cartels and monopolies. That's the only way you can grab a hold of money and keep a hold of it, by keeping everybody else out. The world they envisaged would be an ORDERLY society, as orderly as bookkeeping. That's what they did do; they were into bookkeeping: profit, loss, estimated profits, etc. All that kind of stuff is done by bookkeeping. Nice and tidy. For a future where you're going to loan out money to countries, that might not be able to pay you back, they had to get international laws drafted up so that whatever country that they lent money to - or ALL countries who were in conflict with each other regardless of who won or lost - they were guaranteed to be paid. So if you lost a war, you still have to pay off your debt. That was all tidied up and sewn up really by the end of the 1800s.

They had that through various leagues, they called them, the Concert of Europe and different big world meetings that they had. The leaders of all the big countries and the sovereigns would sign their name down to these kinds of ideas, these treaties. Then it went into the League of Nations for World War I. Then you have the United Nations for the present time. As I mentioned yesterday and I read an article from the World Trade Organization, Mr. Pascal Lamy talked about the structures of global governance. He refers to the fact that they were set up long ago, as far back – he's admitting to there – to at least World War II, the Bretton Woods Agreement and the signing of the UN Treaty at the end of World War II. He refers to them as 'structures' of global governance.

But what kind of governance? As I say, it goes back an awful long way. They used the socialist movement, many different types in fact, always to confuse the issue. They had different varieties on the go at the same time, all funded from the same sources, knowing they would bring them all together at the end, into a big party you might say. Throughout the 20th century, most of Europe went through – apart from the big wars that they had, which again was to change culture and that's what Professor Carroll Quigley said. That PHYSICAL war, the same as revolutions obviously, are meant to also change the culture of opposing parties. And it does because government EXPANDS, massively. They create bureaucracy after bureaucracy after bureaucracy and they get in to PRIVATE affairs like private ownership or farming. They took over all those industries. After wars, they never let those ministries – they call them ministries – they never let them go. They are now part of THE authorities. So you have changed society and the structure of society forever.

I've been lucky enough to have lived through some of the revolutions in the 20th century. Even as a toddler I went through the phases of so-called sexual liberation. It was called a revolution, the sexual revolution. It hit society like a ton of bricks all at once. EVERY major media - and being brought up in Britain, the major media was the BBC - it was all getting pushed from the top down. No one IN the BBC that worked there was allowed to come from any school, any place but Eton. Eton, that's the only place they hired them from to make sure there was a class that was running the lower classes. Here's the upper class pushing all this stuff and drugs at the same time and even the fashion, as Plato said. Everything works together… drama, fashion, movies, all at the same time pushing this kind of happy, crazy, 'there's no consequences' idea… because they brought out the birth control pill at the same time.

That's something that they lacked when they tried this before during the 20s, the ROARING 20s when they made Booze Cans very nice places to visit. That's because they were BAD, they were BAD for the youth, and prohibition. They brought in Jazz and the mini skirt too. They tried the mini skirt too. But they had all the fall out of venereal diseases and no penicillin's. They had massive deaths from the back street abortion industries. They didn't have the pill. So they would literally use the tax money of the public, from the government of course, funneled it on to science to bring out something that would stop the consequences.

They brought the whole thing back much the same. They changed it from Jazz into what they called Pop music, then Rock music. Everyone takes it. When you're growing up and you're young and something comes along, it's AIMED RIGHT AT YOU by experts, marketing experts. You just jump into it thinking it's for you. IN fact, you think it IS yours. They sang songs like My Generation and stuff like that… that was all written by guys who were NOT members of your generation at all. That's how it's run. That's how you run culture.

We've had a lot of revolutions, cultural revolutions, throughout the 20th century. They NEED revolutions to be ongoing; this is how they said they would fulfill their dream of an ordered, planned society. First they get you to literally think you are free, do as you want sort of thing… but of course the intention was to destroy something they HAD to destroy. Something that Karl Marx talked about and many others. That was the destruction of the family unit. It had to go. You can't have a family unit there and people standing up FOR one person within that family when the government's after them. It's much easier when the government comes and there's no one to stand up for anybody. That's what they've accomplished today. The family unit technically is gone. It's in its death throes.

Revolutions are very successful when they are planned, well financed and promoted from the TOP down, as everything must be. Anything that came out of the blue that was not planned from the top would be immediately crushed; because, as Plato discussed himself, any cultural changes from the BOTTOM would cause a kind of ripple effect through society that was out of the elite's control, therefore it's not allowed. The greatest technique is to make the public at the bottom think it's theirs, that this revolution is theirs. It works every time. And there is always a political end, a socio-political end that comes out of it. Planned, worked out, strategized, implemented, and it works perfectly.

Now we're going through this greatest con of all and it's called the Green Agenda, the Green Revolution. Whenever you hear 'revolution' coming out from mainstream until it becomes a catchphrase and ALL the media keeps using it, and all media gets their green correspondents, at the same time mind you, then you know you are going through a PLANNED revolution… PLANNED. Once again, it's from the TOP down. The green revolution is a fantastic way to divert the public from their OWN governments… as they go down the hill, paying for it all mind you. The governments will stand up and say 'well we can't do anything about it because we all agreed,' at the United Nations or at the Copenhagen Treaty, or whatever else is planned in the future. 'We all agreed, you see, to cut emissions by blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.' It's almost like they want you to feel sorry for THEM; they have no option once they've signed it all. That's how… psychologically it takes the heat off them and it tends to work with the public too.

There is nothing written in stone… although they want you to think that. Any treaty that's ever been made, any law that's ever been made CAN BE TORN UP just like that, regardless of all the rubbish they give us. 'Oh it would take years to undo, years to unravel.' Utter rot. All you do, is you get a good wood stove and you tear it all up and you throw it in the fire… and it's GONE. Then you put other laws into replace them. That's what you do. It's amazing how we go along with these rules and regulations. Then the leaders of different countries – I hate even calling them leaders because they are just front actors – they turn around and say ‘well, the US has demanded and the people of Britain have demanded…’ WE demand nothing at the bottom, nothing at all. It’s just a pantomime for the public. Back with more after this break.

I am Alan Watt and we’re Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about revolutions. We’ve had one revolution after another but really they were all preset long ago in sequence how they would work. Lenin talked about it, about ‘services’ becoming ‘authorities’ eventually. We’re at that stage now. Every service, even police services are now authorities; they are now called ‘enforcers,’ but really, they are supposed to be a service. They receive money from the tax payer. They are supposed to SERVE the tax payer… but we’ve forgotten that you see. We’ve been TRAINED to forget that in fact. So have the cops themselves been trained to forget that. They get into their local law enforcing and bringing in cash through tickets and so on FOR governments. That’s what they really do is bring in cash through handing out tickets all the time and there’s always more laws put on the books every day, something to hand tickets out about.

This green revolution we’re going through now is the final part. Out of the green revolution and all this farcical nonsense that it talks about and all its farcical excuses that it uses, will change society completely… right down to what you eat. There will be no meat eventually. That’s to be phased out completely because those who designed the system a long, long time ago said that they would cut out meat all together. It’s much easier having a population, making them… by studying different cultures and what really worked for a long time.

The Brahmans of India have lorded over the peasants for thousands of years by pushing vegetarianism. You make sure then that you RESTRICT what they are given access TO in that diet. You end up with people who can work but they can’t think too clearly or well. They certainly don’t think about rebelling and neither would they have the energy to do it successfully. So vegetarianism is part of the deal. All you will have eventually are the genetically modified vegetables by the big Monsanto, laced with all this pesticide. So it will fulfill different roles at the same time AND reduce the population by poisoning you basically and giving you all these cancers, which is already happening. It’s been happening for YEARS in fact. They know this at the top as well. That’s why they don’t eat the stuff they make us eat, those at the top.

They must also bring down society. Now, you can imagine, we’ve gone through supposedly since 9/11, attacks by terrorists. Now there are terrorists across the whole planet suddenly. We are now under police states basically; martial law police states… across the world. Every country signed the same bills at the same time, meaning they were written up and agreed to many years in advance because governments work very slowly. Then of course we had, I think it was the West Nile virus that was going to kill us all. That didn’t happen. Then it was the Bird flu that was going to kill us. That didn’t happen. Then it was this present flu… and of course the financial crash as well, that no one saw coming apparently, and we bailed out the bankers who’d looted all our bank accounts.

Here we are in a depression, financial depression at the end of a phase where the GATT Treaty through the World Trade Organization put all your factories abroad so you’re not productive societies anymore. You’re consumer societies so you don’t bring as much money as you used to do – anywhere near what you used to do – because you don’t manufacture. They gave it all to China. Therefore, we’re at the bottom of depression and we’ve been cleaned out by the banks. We’ve all been hit with a massive tab that will claim the first-borns of generations to come to pay it off. All okay by your government standards by the way. That’s all okay… while they are spending on the military like crazy and forcing us to fork out cash to save the environment as well. Think about that. Think about that. Would that make any sense to you? Well you see it’s an agenda; it’s nothing to do with reality… the whole climate nonsense. It’s an agenda. Here we are going through the cooling period and they are still pushing global warming. I said that would happen. I said I don’t care if you’re standing up to your neck in snow, they’ll keep pushing this global warming until they have it all signed, sealed and delivered… chiseled in stone.

This article here from the green watchdog for this newspaper… every newspaper’s got one. That’s part of the agenda.

Green home makeover will cost up to £15,000, says climate watchdog chief (Alan: You’ve got a climate watchdog chief, what a farcical title.

A weather watchdog chief.)
Larry Elliott, economics editor guardian.co.uk, Tuesday 10 November 2009

Lord Turner (A: Another Lord. They always end up on the right side don't they?) said 'more of a whole house approach' is required if carbon emission targets are to be met.

(A: Then they show you this ridiculous photograph of a house, at the front of a house, that's painted yellow, with the older windows that it's got. It shows you it's all painted green on the right after the makeover. And the windows at the bottom are at least 1/3rd less the size, smaller windows… to let in less light. They'll say it's to save heat of course, but that means you're going to have to burn more electricity to SEE inside because it's going to be absolutely dark inside. It's farcical.)

The head of Britain's climate change watchdog predicted today that households will need to spend up to £15,000 on a full energy efficiency makeover if the government is to meet its ambitious targets for cutting carbon emissions. (A: This is BEFORE they sign the final treaty. It's a done deal, by the way. All these world meetings are just formalities where they have a massive meal and slap each other on the back for conning the public. That's all it is. The bureaucrats draft all this stuff up way in advance. So they want you all to now spend masses of money that you don't have, in an economy that's gone, to supposedly save energy in your home… BY LAW… by law. And you won't be able to sell your house UNLESS you've done it all. Good-bye private property. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about revolutions and how we go through one after another - all directed from the top of course - to guide us into a new type of society that's constantly changing. They knew where they were going to go at the very beginning before all the different revolutions. We're just at this present one. This is the PHASE we're going through, this greening revolution. Everything goes green to save the world that's suddenly, apparently going to fall out of orbit. It's all utter rubbish, but that doesn't matter because anything will do to get it going. Propaganda overcomes reason with most people who won't look into any other facts that are out there. In fact, they don't really care too much about facts; they just want to get on board with the majority. That's the problem with the majority. Most folk belong to the majority. The majority is always managed by a tiny minority. They just don't know it at the bottom. people like to be the same as everybody else and then they get on board with it.

It says here

Warning that Britain needs to step up its efforts to reduce greenhouse gases after picking all the "low-hanging fruit", Adair Turner said radical steps would be needed for electricity generation, cars and homes. (A: Now, they're going to sign this agreement – it's a done deal as I say – at Copenhagen very, very shortly. If you want to see how much of a hell they can bring in, you just have to wait and see till they publish the whole thing for you. You're going to find out then. It's going to come right down to population control. That's the big one too… population control… by law, enforceable. That's coming, definitely. A vegetarian society. You won't be able to travel very far… because cars will be off the roads. Agenda 21 at the UN signed years ago will kick right in there… totally, completely. You'll be stuck in a certain area basically, without special permits to travel outside of them. They can not have people traveling all over the place in a totalitarian world. It doesn't work too well.)

The government has pledged to cut carbon emissions by 34% from their 1990 levels by 2020 but slipped off course during the economic boom earlier this decade. (A: I wonder when that was.) "When we get the figures for 2008-09 we may look to be on target, but only because we have had a thumping recession," Lord Turner said. (A: They don't want to call it a depression; they call it recessions.)

"There is a danger of the government saying "look, we are back on target". We will be back on target for the worst possible reason."

Turner said that the UK had made "pretty rapid progress" on cutting emissions during the "dash for gas" in the 1990s, but had not maintained the progress during this decade. Tough decisions were now needed…

It's just amazing. You put these characters in a role and they all love role-playing. They can move them around from area to area. They can be minister of the environment one year and minister of welfare the next year and minister for something else the next year… and they are sudden experts, you see. They read their lines very well. What am I today, boss? You're going to be the minister for environment. Okay. And they hand them this little pre-scripted stuff to read. This is how it works in every country. It's all a farce. We are living through a script. The whole planet is living through scripts all the time and they don't know it. They haven't a clue. Very, very few people EVER, ever live in reality. If you do, you'd better be a very good actor because the rest will turn on you… when you come out with odd statements, odd to them, that is. 'He's weird; he thinks… hmm.' And you'll be in an awful lot of trouble.

We always take the farces too. Like I mentioned the other day about soldiers and wars and how they love the propaganda. It's good enough for them. Young guys, really, they're too immature to think too deeply about things. They certainly don't think about death, for themselves that is. It's impossible when you're young; you're going to live forever; in fact, you're never going to get old. That's how young people think. That's why they hire young people to go into the military. Older folk generally have a bit more sense.

I can remember back in the Iraq pounding - the so-called policing effort - when they were at war with Iraq. People said at the time, 'oh they're going to go for the oil.' Then they said, 'no, it's really to get a bad man out of the way' and all that nonsense. Remember, they bombed all the refineries. It was in American newspapers at the time, from statements by the Air Force that said, they were told to bomb the refineries. The reason apparently was that they were old and antiquated, not very efficient. The idea was that after the war the American tax payer would fund the building of refineries. Well it's all being done now… thanks to the tax payer as always. Now they are handing it out – the spoils of war – to their pals. So…

ExxonMobil-led consortium nets 'supergiant' Iraq oil field
Group wins bid to develop west Qurna as baghdad signs up slew of big contracts
Reuters / Friday, November 06, 2009 / Ahmed Rasheed and Muhanad Mohammed

BAGHDAD: An ExxonMobil-led consortium has beaten rival Russian, French and Chinese groups to bag initial rights to develop Iraq's West Qurna field, the Oil Ministry said, adding momentum to Iraq's bid to unlock its oil riches. With reserves of 8.7 billion barrels, West Qurna is among the prized Iraqi fields eyed by Western oil majors as they face flat or lower output at home and stiff competition from Chinese and Indian oil companies in bidding for oilfields elsewhere.

"The consortium led by ExxonMobil, which includes Shell, won the contract to develop West Qurna Phase One oilfield," Oil Ministry spokesman Asim Jihad said.

The initial deal was signed in Baghdad on Thursday but needs Cabinet approval before it can be finalized.

The 20-year contract is part of a raft of deals (A: I love how they say it. It's floating, eh?) Iraq is close to formalizing in a bid to catapult itself to the world's third largest oil producer after decades of war and economic decline. (A: So they are going to continue to loot those countries. They're not going to get profit in Iraq… but what changes?)

There is no guarantee that Iraq's next government – to be elected in January – will honor the deals (A: It will be. It's the same puppet government as they put in before.), but it injects optimism into prospects for Iraq's battered oil sector and a second oil bid-round in December, after a lacklustre June auction.

ExxonMobil, partnering Royal Dutch Shell, beat Russia's LUKOIL – which had teamed up with US oil-major ConocoPhillips – and two other groups led by France's Total and China's CNPC. (A: So there you go. That's the spoils of war. It's geo-political and it's also economic.)

I remember the movie years ago with Robert Redford. It think it was Day of the Condor. The whole movie at that time – done back in the late 60s, maybe early 70s – was about these war games ongoing all the time with the CIA, on having to eventually go into the Middle East by force under different guises to grab oil for themselves for the future. Here we are living through it. Quite something. Quite something, but what changes? What changes?

I can remember Maggie Thatcher talking about in her New World Order lecture series that she spoke at Massey Hall in Toronto. That was about 10 years before they eventually went into Iraq, at the same time. She said the next war will be on religious fundamentalism. At that time no one understood it. They said 'What was she talking about? Is she going to after Mennonites or something; what is this?' We know today what it is because they definitely are stamping out the last vestiges of religions… especially those whose religion happens to be their culture, such as the Islamics. It's very SELECTIVE. It's a very selective war isn't it, on fundamentalism?

This article here is from the Israeli newspaper called the Haaretz. A rabbi has written a book.

West Bank rabbi:
Jews can kill Gentiles who threaten Israel
By Haaretz Service / 09/11/2009 / haaretz.com

(A: Listen to this fundamentalism here.)

Just weeks after the arrest of alleged Jewish terrorist, Yaakov Teitel, a West Bank rabbi on Monday released a book giving Jews permission to kill Gentiles who threaten Israel.

Rabbi Yitzhak Shapiro, who heads the Od Yosef Chai Yeshiva in the Yitzhar settlement, wrote in his book "The King's Torah" that even babies and children can be killed if they pose a threat to the nation. (A: You can understand when you're brought up with the Talmud and you believe in it, why they do things like Gaza… they're also getting rid of generations to grow up who aren't yet a threat but they're going to possibly be a threat.)

Shapiro based the majority of his teachings on passages quoted from the Bible, to which he adds his opinions and beliefs.

"It is permissable to kill the Righteous among Nations even if they are not responsible for the threatening situation," he wrote, adding: "If we kill a Gentile who has sinned or has violated one of the seven commandments (A: What they mean by that is the Noahide laws that the Gentiles are supposed to follow. The 7 Noahide Laws. If they break any of them you're supposed to be killed. Ronald Reagan signed that into law for the US, by the way. Look it up in Wikipedia.) - because we care about the commandments - there is nothing wrong with the murder."

Several prominent rabbis, including Rabbi Yithak Ginzburg and Rabbi Yaakov Yosef, have recommended the book to their students and followers. (A: Then it goes on to give related articles:

-Cases of Jewish terrorist Yaakov Teitel and Meir Amshalem bear striking resemblances
(A: These are terrorists within Israel itself that were killing Arabs by getting on buses and shooting them down… stuff like that.)

So I guess the war on fundamentalism is a very selective war when this can be printed here… and people can publish books on killing Gentiles and their children. And the world will be silent as everyone knows. The world will be SILENT on this, as always.

They had no problem looking at Saddam Hussein when we were told to look at 'oh he's a bad man, let's get rid of Saddam Hussein.' That's what George Bush said during the inquest on the war in Iraq. After it was all done he says, 'I didn't say he was responsible for 9/11,' which is a lie. They showed you clips on TV after that response to show him saying it over and over again. He said, 'I just said that Saddam Hussein was a bad man and the world was better off without him.' That's good enough for the public though. When the public are told to go off and fight another war somewhere else, they'll fall for the next spiel of propaganda, quite willingly too because it's always over there isn't it?

Do you notice that almost all the news you get is somewhere else? Somewhere so far out of your ken that it's almost like a battle's on a planet outside the universe somewhere that you probably will never visit, so it doesn't affect you. That's how MOST of the news now is today, isn't it, because it's all international news. Meanwhile, you'll never know what's going on in your own area. What's REALLY going on in your own area? That's a great trick too though isn't it? You know there are provinces in Canada that don't know what's happening in the next province… or across Canada in different provinces. It's the same in the States. Another trick. But we can hear what's happening to certain women in tribes in Africa can't we? Boy! What a world.

Part of the socialist program is to kill off the 'useless eaters.' According to the bankers and their books on efficiency where everything must add up properly generation after generation, so many live, so many die, and blah, blah, blah, so many produce, you know. They are killing off the elderly, under many guises. You got to stop listening to excuses for something when it continues and use your common sense. Those who give you your realities depend on the fact that you'll accept the excuses given… everything is a blunder, it's a mistake, blah, blah, blah. Meanwhile it will continue and continue in whatever area it happens to be in.

Here's something and it falls right in with the definition of the United Nations 'good world citizen' where it says that a good world citizen is a producer AND consumer. People who are then elderly are no longer producing, they are just consuming… that's a bad thing in today's world order. You're using up the resources of the system, you see… the PROFITS, in other words. This article is from the BBC.

Dementia drug use 'killing many'
By Nick Triggle / Health reporter, BBC News / Thursday, 12 November 2009

(A: Remember, when you end up in an elderly place, you're automatically going to get classified as dementia anyway, because you're old. Being old today has got a bad connotation. When they brought in this whole socialist agenda and definitely, really about 1960 or so, in the movies that they churned out since then, it's all about young people. Now it's so ridiculous that they have things like CSI on TV and stuff and then different things about hospitals, these dramas, and some of the people are about 20 years old in it… to make you think that these are the ones who are active and intelligent, making all the right decisions. It's a reversal of reality. Total reversal. It's so ridiculous now that people are terrified of aging. Prior to that, people who were elderly were looked up to and respected and you would go to them to get some wisdom to do with problems that you would have in your own life. You don't get that anymore. They knew too, when they would destroy the family unit, which they have successfully done, that eventually, if there's no family, then who's going to take care of the elderly? So they created these old folks homes… or TERMINAL places, as I call them, EXIT places. That's what they really are. Once again, it was started off as a SERVICE. Police services, now it's enforcers. You've got health care service, now it's an authority. And these elderly services that again, come into being an authority. 'We can't let them stay at home like that. Good God, they've got a sink full of dishes there that are all dirty and they just leave them.' Well, by God, I was doing the same thing when I was 20. Anyway, getting back to what I'm saying…)

About 180,000 patients a year are given the drugs in care homes (A: This is in the UK but it's happening everywhere; it was happening in the States before the UK.), hospitals and their own homes to manage aggression. (A: They're calling it.)

But the expert (A: Again, EXPERTS. They don't have to do names anymore, just experts.) review - commissioned by ministers (A: That's politicians.) - said the treatment was unnecessary in nearly 150,000 cases and was linked to 1,800 deaths.

The government in England has agreed to take steps to reduce use of the drugs.

These include:
•Improving access to other types of therapy, such as counselling
(A: You can't live your life to the end anymore without all these PROFESSIONAL MANAGERS coming in and telling you what to do. If you get agitated, they just drug you… to death. Back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I'll go the phones now and I'll talk to Maggie from Texas. Are you there Maggie?

Maggie: Hello. I did not catch what it was that you said that Ronald Reagan signed into law. It was in the context of a book that some Israeli rabbi has written.

Alan: This book was written just recently but they mentioned the 7 laws that Gentiles are to follow. Most Gentiles don't know it. When Ronald Reagan was in, he signed the 7 Noahide laws, Noah.

Maggie: He signed them?

Alan: Into law, for all US citizens.

Maggie: For all US citizens and not just Christians. Is that correct?

Alan: That's all US citizens.

Maggie: Where do we find them? How is it spelled?

Alan: It's Noah-hide. I think it's N-o-a-h-i-d-e. If you do a search on Wikipedia they'll give you the details and Ronald Reagan and all the links that you can check up for yourself. You can also check up, do a search for them in the newspaper columns and Google and you'll go back into them.

Maggie: It sounds like a completely illegal act.

Alan: It was actually approved by Congress.

Maggie: Really?!? And nobody heard about it?

Alan: Well, the important things aren't heard.

Maggie: Of course not… yeah. Okay. [Alan and Maggie laughing.] Okay thank you Alan.

Alan: Bye now. The important things are never mentioned really, by Congress. Now there's Ray from Wyoming there. Are you there Ray?

Ray: Hello. This lady is still baffled by this law that you were talking about with her. If the Americans, or US citizens, actually knew what laws they were subject to, they would be up in arms tomorrow.

Alan: It actually says in Noahide laws, if you break the law they can cut your head off. That was passed by the Congress. [Laughing.]

Ray: I wouldn't doubt it. I mean, there are so many things that we as a country have been subjected to that if the normal citizenry knew it, they would just revolt.

Alan: I know, and you know something? It's SO endless. It's scroll upon scroll. It's like toilet paper. Law after law after law, reels and reels of it, that you just don't hear until they are implemented.

Ray: Years ago when I first started reading some of the UN documents that we adhere to and that were proposed and which many of them now are laws that we are subjected to, it was SO unbelievable that you couldn't fathom it. But see, the law is passed but they haven't enforced it. But it exists and that's what people don't understand. We basically have legislated our country out of existence.

Alan: You're quite right. And when they signed the Treaty, in fact, in San Francisco in '46 I think it was, every country that signed on to it KNEW DARNED WELL it was for global government. They signed away their sovereignty right there and then. They agreed to sign every treaty the UN would put forth from then on. They agreed to all of that absolutely. I was to end national sovereignty.

Ray: I used to listen to Alan Stang and basically I was made aware of him through the Birch Society. You know some of the things that he brought up was like ‘enforce the peace.’ How do you enforce the peace? All these things have come to be and people do not believe it. We’re going to perish inch by inch. Was that TS Elliot who said that?

Alan: We are. We’re also the straw man. We’ll go out with a whimper, not with a bang. That’s true.

Ray: They continually assault us with these laws. There’s going to be the NGOs that are sitting back there that just coming up with one after another after another. I mean, you get one little victory and you think you’ve accomplished something but you haven’t accomplished anything because they’ve taken an end around it anyway.

Alan: They have. When you have one thing, they have 10 other similar things on the go with different names. You’re quite correct. The NGOs are just the fronts for the big foundations. You’re quite right. Thanks for calling. That’s the end of the show and the music is playing.

So for Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Green home makeover will cost up to £15,000, says climate watchdog chief" by Larry Elliott (guardian.co.uk) - Nov. 10, 2009.

"ExxonMobil-led consortium nets 'supergiant' Iraq oil field" (dailystar.com.lb) - Nov. 6, 2009.

"West Bank rabbi: Jews can kill Gentiles who threaten Israel" by Haaretz Service (haaretz.com) - 09/11/2009.

"Antipsychotic drug 'stroke risk' " (news.bbc.co.uk) - Aug. 28, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 13, 2009 (#451)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 13, 2009:
Terrify the Sheeple then Roll Out the Needle:
"T.V. Infantile Marketing can Surely Bring Tears
When Government Employs Marketing, it Creates Fears,
Stampeding the Herd into Non-Thinking Mode,
By Threats of Doomsday They Incessantly Goad,
The Now Sweating Breathless Herd in Guided Direction,
Where Sleeves are Rolled Up, Arms Bared for Injection,
With Every Stab, See Fat Pharma's Face Gloating,
As Taxpayers' Shekels Fill His Pot 'til it's Bloating,
Marketing Fear is a Strategy Always in Season,
It Makes People Compliant, Giving Up Reason,
Like Giving Up All Rights to Stop Planet Fryin',
From Al Gore et al, Coached Experts in Lyin' "
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 13, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 13, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 13, 2009. Newcomers go into .com. That’s the main web site. Scroll down, look at all the other sites I have up there, bookmark them for future use. These are the ONLY official sites I have; anything else is bogus. [Sites listed above.] alanwattsentientsentinel.eu is the European site. It has all the same audios as the rest for download, but it has the addition of transcripts for download and you can print them up and pass them around to your friends. They are written in the various languages of Europe. There are quite a lot of my talks that have been translated and more to come. Remember, anything else out there is utterly bogus. If anyone else is out there selling stuff with my name, let me know because it happens all the time.

On my site you’ll see the PayPal button up there and you can use this to order the things I have for sale, the books and CDs and DVDs on my site. Just send me a separate email to confirm your order. You can also buy the things I have for sale or donate to me. [Options listed above.] Remember, this show is brought to you the listeners, BY you the listeners. No one is backing me up. I’ve always said, when the cash falls below freezing level, I’ll just go off and do other things. So it’s up to you to keep me going because everyone depends on everyone else doing it. Really, it’s always the same few. Occasionally I’ll get a new donator coming in but it’s the same few people that keep it going. Everyone else is a cheapo… and that’s the life that we live in today. That’s also a symptom of why society will not stand together when the big crises come down, which they're already doing. People will expect someone else to do it all for them. That's why the big boys give us leaders. For those who get the disks burned and passed around to them, you can write to me at [address above]. The ads that you hear on this show are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN the radio station for the broadcast time and for their staff, equipment, and bills. We all have these bills… ongoing.

Tonight, again, I'll be going in to some of what is REAL and what is fake out there. We live in an age where mass marketing is used by government and government departments and the United Nations to terrify the public… terrify them into going along with agendas that are very, very misleading. The flu shot and all this hype about the flu isn't just about big money. That's a big part of it certainly but it's for something to come down the road. It's the same with the climate change thing. It's going to change our ENTIRE ways of living. A completely preplanned, structured society from birth to death on how you can live; that's what it's all about. That's why if you're standing up to your neck in snow, I don't care, they'll still be saying it's global warming like parrots… global warming, rah, rah, over and over and over regardless of the facts. Facts don't matter when it comes to marketing. Look at your ads on television. They never TELL you any truth, they just say 'you want this; it looks nice.' Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. Before I go into my talk tonight, I'll just mention that Waiting for the Miracle, my fourth book, is available now in Spanish and Portuguese for anyone who's interested. You'll see it in the alanwattsentientsentinel.eu site for sale.

Marketing is an incredible science, incredible science, very old too and even taught through the 1800s and LONG before I'm sure, by merchants to merchants on how to sell their wares. It developed into office towers eventually, like Madison Avenue. They deal with the MIND of the general public. Bernays was famous for understanding – and he was taught this stuff – understanding the populace, what makes them tick, what makes them purchase, what motivates them. He used it FOR the politicians as well as for the private companies that wanted to sell things. He was often in to see the President of the US - all through his life with different Presidents – to find ways of even promoting wars and stuff like that. Very good at it.

Yet they have utter contempt - according to his daughter - for the general population, for the masses. He had total contempt. I understand why because you can image if you want to get women wearing mini skirts and smoking cigarettes in the 1920s and you do your promotions by getting society, young females in society to dress that way and smoke in public and announce it with publicity and getting it through all the cinemas of the day, then you see that the population is copying it, just like that… eventually you become disdainful of the public… as if they have no ideas of their own and they DON'T have any ideas for themselves. They emulate what they see and what they think the wealthier people are doing and wearing and speaking about or reading or whatever. That's what they emulate. So it's an old science but it's been used all through Bernays' lifetime right up to the present time by governments to a great extent. They spent a lot of money on marketing strategies to convince the public of this or that or whatever.

Remember, in marketing FACTS DON'T COUNT. They spew out false facts. They spew them out and they'll stick to that regardless of the cost because they know the propaganda with mass marketing will overcome logic and rationale eventually. If you just keep at it long enough, it overcomes reason. We've seen this with the so-called Swine flu nonsense that's been pushed out there where they try to panic the whole planet. A lot of people HAVE been panicked, even though the CDC has done reports that after panicking the public and after billions being given to the drug companies - for many shots to come in subsequent years by the way - they admitted that 97-98% of all the swab tests that were sent in as suspected H1N1 Swine flu variety were actually not the flu at all. That's almost 100% that are neither the common yearly flu nor Swine flu. They put it down to probably some other virus or bacterium, or I would add to it hysteria because everyone with a snotty nose was running in to get a swab test done.

It's interesting too that halfway through the year, the FDA and the CDC and all the rest of them who were all involved in this said to stop actually taking swab test… just put everyone down with Swine flu. So you got to alter all the facts to FIT the marketing strategy. Personally, I believe through the information I've gone over throughout the years to do with vaccinations, that they have more sinister purposes. I don't believe it's just money and profit. I don't believe it really helps anyone at all. I can certainly say with confidence and all the stuff I've read, that it has tremendous effects on the human body, ill effects, and long term, generally chronic. You get, apart from the Guillain-Barre syndrome, there's a whole bunch of syndromes. They even admit that a lot of the early vaccinations for children WILL damage localized parts of the brain, throughout their different studies. I've got SO much information from the official sources themselves which they don't advertise at all.

I still believe that it's part of the fertility agenda, bringing down fertility. I really believe that. When you study the sudden drop in fertility, according to the United Nations since 1950 to the present, it's been plummeting AS mandated inoculations were rising. It's the same with autism. There's no doubt whatsoever. The graph starts soaring along with the mandated inoculations for children. So there's definitely a correlation there. Absolutely.

When you understand it as well, from a rulers' point of view, you see government does not work in the way that people THINK it does. It really doesn't. Most people in government are preselected. They are also vetted for certain qualities you might say, the ability to see the things that they're told to see and look away when they're supposed to look away from things. Most of them are corruptible and have been corrupted before they got in to politics. They don't mind the occasional money passing their way. THAT'S MY OPINION of politicians, the world over… by studying them and by watching how much money they had when they went in to politics and how much they had when they left politics and then the directorships they get put on, the boards of directors, maybe 12, 15, sometimes 20 of them, right after leaving politics. Why do you think they go on with all these free shares involved? It's a pay off.

Institutions run governments. Disraeli in the 1800s in Britain said the same thing. He says, the public have no idea who really runs the government. He says it's not the people that you see. No idea at all. You probably find even that the CIA has far more input on how the society goes than any politician or even all of them collectively. They look upon the people as a herd, in the CIA and the military-industrial complex. They go through all these future scenarios, 'what if' scenarios. What if we ran out of oil? They had this going in the 60s and practiced war games with taking over the Middle East. What if there are too many people? How would we bring them down? Well, there would be riots in the streets if they made it mandatory to sterilize the people so therefore you'd have to do it STEALTHILY, with stealth and cunning and always with deniability. How do you introduce it? Through inoculations and different means of introducing things into the body to do so.

The UN also had studies going and people like Arthur Koestler that worked for MI-5 at one point and churned out all these left wing, Trotskyite novels, also was a part of it. He wrote about that in his own book… ways to lobotomize that part of the brain that made you an individual. Because the big problem of governments has always been to keep the people placid and going along with everything that they want them to go along with. Then we saw Kissinger with his bill in the 70s coming out with 'the greatest threat to the state was overpopulation.' Massive amounts of money went to finding ways to stop them, the birth rate, from rising. To find ways, especially in the third world countries, to stop them from becoming healthy, from growing into productive societies because they did not want competition… AT ALL, from any of the third world countries. So keep them in POVERTY, keep wars going. When wars are on the go, no one is working in the fields. When they are not working the fields, people starve.

You had all through the Cold War this ping pong game of the US and Britain supplying the right-wingers and Russia supplying the left-wingers. They sat back and they watched them fight for years and years and years in different places in Africa. This is all geo-politics, you see. Whenever you see plans for a country outside your own, that's to be brought down in some way or another BY your country, don't ever think that you also are exempt from that, whatever tactic they're using, depopulation, fertility dropping and all that stuff. NO. You are included in it. Eventually, the big eating machine comes around TO YOU. NEVER FORGET THAT.

With this global warming rubbish that they now call climate change – which means changes in the weather, which used to be normal, growing up for me. That's why you had the weather man on TV that actually was a climatologist. Now they fired them all since they started this farce and just get these young guys in who just read the dummy board and they don't know why things are happening the way they are. The climate bill at Copenhagen WILL be signed. It's already a done deal. Whenever they meet at these things, it's just getting the signatures on it. It's all been done in advance at previous meetings by the bureaucracies involved.

You will NOT be able to sell your home unless it is thermal efficient, as they'll say. To get it thermal efficient will probably cost more than the house is worth. And you'll find - guarantee you, you will find this because they've done this before in similar areas - if you can't upgrade it and afford it, then you can't sell it, then you also can't live in it because they will fine you 1 to 2 to $5,000 a day until you comply, you see. This will drive lots and lots of people into the AUTHORIZED cities - already overcrowded of course, but that won't matter - where the landlords with thousands of apartments get benefits to upgrade from the government. That's where you're going to live. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just talking about the big, big agenda and really nothing is going to stop this apart from destroying every treaty ever made with the United Nations to be honest with you. There are so many it would take a while to go through them and burn them up. This is a big, big agenda planned intergenerationally for an awful long time by the big boys who basically run the world. But they'll stick to their guns to get any lie through and once it's through, then they'll go quiet again because once the law is on the books they can stretch any law to wherever they want to go and they know EXACTLY where they want to go with every law.

Even in the southern hemisphere it's colder than normal. It says here,

It's official: October was frigid
By Rebecca Fox/Created 04/11/2009 / Published on Otago Daily Times Online News (New Zealand)

Chilly weather kept temperatures down to record low levels across Otago last month, with Dunedin experiencing its coldest October since records began about 60 years ago.

Nationally, it was the coldest October in 64 years, with an average temperature of 10.6degC (1.4degC) below the long-term average) and record low temperatures recorded in many areas, including Otago, the National Institute of Water and Atmospheric Research (Niwa) climate summary says. (Alan: Then it goes on to tell you that they are down all over the place, in the lower hemisphere.)

Then, you go on to this article…

Church bells to ring out warning on climate change
Nov 12 / Breitbart.com

(Alan: The World Council of Churches - I don't know if they explain that here - was Rockefeller's method of getting all the big churches in his clutches basically. I think David started it up, was the first chairman of it. The idea was to bring ALL the Christian groups together and then gradually feed them data they would feed down to their congregations in the different churches and then give them booklets to read. So they're all on the same track, politically correct and all the rest of it. That's what you do. Bernays was the guy who suggested they use these techniques WITH existing organizations, especially Christian groups. The World Council of Churches is a Rockefeller owned and operated organization.)

The World Council of Churches on Thursday called on churches around the world to ring their bells 350 times during the Copenhagen climate change summit on December 13 as a call to action on global warming. (A: Now I just read that one about the southern hemisphere.)

The leading council of Christian and Orthodox churches also invited places of worship for other faiths to join a symbolic "chain of chimes and prayers" stretching around the world from the international date line in the South Pacific.

"On that Sunday, midway through the UN summit, the WCC invites churches around the world to use their bells, drums, gongs or whatever their tradition offers to call people to prayer and action in the face of climate change," the council said in a statement. (A: Can you believe this… dribble? Can you believe it?)

"By sounding their bells or other instruments 350 times, participating churches will symbolise the 350 parts per million that mark the safe upper limit for CO2 (carbon dioxide) in the atmosphere according to many scientists," it added. (A: What a joke. I love when they always say 'scientists are all agreed.' They're not. Only the paid-off ones that work for the United Nations are agreed on anything; they'll accept any lie that helps them.)

The chimes are meant to start at 3.00 pm local time in each location.

The WCC brings together 348 Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican churches representing about 560 million Christians in 110 countries. (A: They've also got the Catholic Church in it as well.)

The Council of European Bishops Conferences, which gathers Roman Catholic bishops and archbishops, is also supporting the campaign, according to a letter released by the WCC. (A: Everyone is getting in on it. I tell you, this GROUP that runs the propaganda stuff for the philanthropic Rockefeller Foundation is quite something. They know their stuff. They hire the best marketing strategists to come up with these ideas… and you know the schmucks go along with it, at the bottom. They do. They do don't they? You just can't stop them at the bottom. They will go all the way with their bells and their drums and all their little instruments and stuff and do their little thing all thinking they've done a good thing. They have no idea what it's even all about or what the long-term strategy is for. They don't even know that there is a long-term strategy. Oohh… you can't help those people at all. Can't do it.)

Then, on The Mail Online it says here…

The giant iceberg that went walkabout... towards the coast of Australia
By Mail Foreign Service / 13th November 2009

Australia is known for sunny beaches, surfers, and blistering Outback heat.

So scientists were a bit taken aback when they spotted this giant iceberg floating near an island Down Under.

Australian Antarctic Division researchers were working on Macquarie Island when they first saw the iceberg last Thursday about about five miles off the island. It is rare to see an iceberg floating so far north of Antarctica, researchers said. (A: Then he goes on to explain how icebergs form and how they sort of lop over at the very top and come off in massive, huge chunks; all quite normal. The reason it's going so far north and I'll tell you why this is happening. It's because from other reports, THE SEAS ARE COOLING. The seas are cooling. That's why it's going so far… otherwise they would have melted long before. But here they are with their little bells and their symbols, all these goody-two-shoes people with the waxed, shiny faces going to pray - I guess to their God Al Gore - to save the world. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix.   Someone's asked if Ron Paul and Peter Schiff are on OUR side and if they are, is there any hope they can at least slow down the implementation, I guess, of the agenda. I don't know whose side they are on but the fact is that TWO guys couldn't do it. TWO guys could not do it. They'd be DEAD before they got up the steps of the Congress hall BECAUSE so much is riding on this. This is ABOVE government.

There is a REAL parallel government that does not run by using democracy. In fact its members SAY it does not believe in democracy. They get the big jobs done by bypassing democracy. Margaret Thatcher said that when she left government and joined what she called the 'parallel government.' The same parallel government that Carroll Quigley talked about and he was the historian for the American branch, the Council on Foreign Relations. He's a guy who filled in all the blank spots in history and told you why they happened. They were behind it, this particular group that eventually became the Council on Foreign Relations and the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Thatcher said, we can get things done. She says that too many parties bickering in the democratic system, nothing can get done… and they have their big plans to do. All these ex-Prime Ministers and Presidents are PART of it. She says, 'We all know each other; we can get things done behind the scenes' because they've got the power to do it. That was confirmed again by Carroll Quigley. That's also confirmed by the Club of Rome that said the system that they were bringing in, and remember, the Club of Rome was just sponsored and paid for by the Royal Institute of International Affairs. The Club of Rome said that they favored collectivism to run the world. That's basically a new sovietized system. So this will not be changed by one or two men.

Every time an election comes up they always give you a middle man that says all the right things but can't get in. He can't get in. You're GIVEN middle men. I know about Ron Paul and I've read some of his speeches. He even said, don’t be afraid of world government or free trade, global free trade and so on and don’t be afraid of it. I know he trying to push gold and silver again. You have to look at one of his main sponsors to find out WHY that is. Personally, I don’t care if it’s porcupine quills or sea shells, whoever has the monopoly on them and says what they are worth, their purchasing power, is the guy that runs you. That’s how it’s always been.

The Rothschild’s are the guys and they have been for about the last 200-odd years, who get up in the morning in London, stick a finger out the window and feel the wind and tell you… they set the gold standard for the day. The Rothschild’s set up the London gold standard headquarters and the metals trading place as well in London, England. All metals go through the Rothschild’s… all metals. That’s everything… goes through the Rothschild’s in London. That’s the Metals Exchange. When someone else can decide how much it’s worth, what the value is, then what chance do you have? What chance do you have to make it ahead? They can devalue that just as much as they can devalue paper currency. Any commodity, any commodity, it’s no different than sugar or toilet paper or whatever – it’s the demand for it. At the end of the day, if you’re starving and I’ve got a loaf of bread and you’ve got a bag of gold there, you can present me with a gold coin and technically I can say to you, okay I want the whole bag for this loaf of bread; take it or leave it. It’s a deal between two people.

In fact, gold and its exchange for dollars or for any other currency can only work when someone declares its present value at the top in an economy that’s functioning and another currency is issued. That’s why people will buy it at the going rate. In a crisis situation, the going rate is out the window. It’s up to the purchaser and the seller to agree upon what this is worth for that which is being sold. Personally, if I could build a massive warehouse and if I really thought the end of the world was coming - at least the system as we know it - I’d stock up on toilet paper. That would be a fantastic thing to trade. Believe you me, if all hell broke loose and nothing was getting produced for a long time, in different hygiene products, they’d be in big demand. Commodities are commodities. What the US would have to do definitely is have its own mint and mint its own coinage. Don’t farm it out to anybody else. That should be illegal. If it wants to print its own paper, it should do that too. They shouldn’t be borrowing some strange thing, a check to print from some other international banker across any waters or even within your own country.

Governments too, will never let that happen because they depend on the system. They always spend MORE than they take in. They want to go cap-in-hand to these international boys. In fact the whole socialist SYSTEM depends on this very technique. I used to wonder, if socialism was for the people, how come they were always pushing for more debt? Just borrow, borrow, borrow and create debt. Well that’s for the bankers. Bankers live on debt and interest. They are the bosses. Governments should live within their means… which would mean, as you all well know, that every government in the so-called first world countries would have to slash its government by about 9/10ths. That would be a darn good thing, but that won’t happen. It won’t happen. Never happen.

We haven’t had so-called democratic governments, I don’t think EVER to be really honest with you. When you look at even right after the American Revolution and the very facts they put in their different draftings that those in government shouldn’t hire their own relatives. Well they were already doing it in the first generation. Even Franklin tried to get his Temple - one of his sons - a job in government but there was already quite a few that had done that for their own offspring. You have dynasties, you see. It’s inevitable. Dynasties arise within governments. If you look at the history of the US especially, it’s like Payton Place. It’s just a succession of family dynasties, well known family dynasties. Not just the Presidents but the ones behind them as well, the big players. There’s your reality there.

They way you stop something is you stop something from starting at the beginning. You can’t stop things once they are well on the way. You can’t do it. That’s why you can’t negotiate with tyranny of any kind. You cannot come to a compromise on anything that you’re not quite sure on; something smells with it. You just don’t compromise. You can’t go that way. They’ve bypassed all this with Executive Orders. Every country uses them. Proclamations are another way too to do it, proclamations - that’s legal, by law - and various other methods. Then creating agencies within government, like the Food and Drug Administration or the CDC, it bypasses anything going on in Congress; they just go ahead and do their own thing. There’s no comeback on them at all. They pass laws all the time.

I’ve got a caller there, Lorilee from Alberta. Are you there Lorilee?

Lorilee: I understand your toilet paper comment because I’ve actually bulked up. My boyfriend thinks it’s kind of funny.

Alan: It's a good idea. [Laughing]

Lorilee: I'm thinking so. I'm thinking so. The reason I'm calling is I noticed in the past and I hate to bring up H1N1 because it drives me crazy but it seems to be the primary topic on the news whether it's paper or television. I've noticed in the past that you've made quite a few comments about MS. Now, I have MS. I've gone through the internet and I've been trying to do research and finding out the connection that you're making with H1N1 and MS. I've spoken with physicians; everybody seems to be supportive of the vaccine. I just want to hear what you've come across because I can't seem to find anything.

Alan: Well, muscular sclerosis, also called disseminated sclerosis, first really was studied in the Hebrides in Scotland. What they noticed was that people who worked with the sheep often got muscular dystrophy or sclerosis and there was a similar thing that sheep had called swayback. They wondered if there was a viral connection. We know, for instance, the symptoms of it; they're unmistakable. With multiple sclerosis you have inflammation along the myelin sheath nerves of the nervous system. They eventually become massively inflamed and then after a while they become sclerosed, they become fibrous tissue, scar tissue. They end up with getting different kinds of partial paralysis, sometimes total, sometimes there's a remission for a little while. But it's hard to get it cleared up all together and they don't know how to do it to be honest with you. You get spontaneous remissions. When you look at the symptoms of the coming down with the shots, and they're already… there's woman in France now being reported that now has the Guillain-Barre syndrome as they're calling it. In the States too, a guy just came down with it and there's different people. These are the ones that have hit the news; other ones are being suppressed. For that to be is basically a reaction against something that was put into their body. It causes the exact same symptoms eventually of muscular sclerosis or disseminated sclerosis. The same thing; the inflation in myelin sheath, the paralysis, including speech at times as well, and with the vaccination type you seem to go almost into a latter phase of it immediately. In other words, something massively inflames the myelin sheath much, much faster than any other way of contracting multiple sclerosis.

Lorilee: Okay. Alright then. Well, that makes sense. I can see that, just because of who I am, my disease and I do have other friends that have it as well and none of us are getting it because we are all getting so many mixed stories.

Alan: What they put it down to too, the multiple sclerosis and so on, they'll often say it's some kind of auto-immune disease. Whenever they don't know what's causing it, at the bottom level of medicine… from that I mean the professors down; that's the bottom level of medicine. The higher levels of medicine are up in the warfare departments because these are they guys who make a lot of nasty concoctions to wipe out whole populations and so on and they really, really do. That's what they work at. They know darn well what the effects of inoculations are. It's well understood that there is something that they are putting into the body that causes an auto-immune problem in the first place. Now, all these vaccines are meant to do is what? It's to do with your immune system. It's like a detective story. If I was okay before this, what happened recently? Well, have you changed your diet? Have you gone off on holiday abroad and caught some strange exotic disease? Or did you get the injection? And the injections come up every single time.

They're altering your immune system and with this time, the squalene which is in it by the way… They got approval to put quite large quantities of squalene in all these shots, for the US for the first time in particular – we've already had it in Canada. Squalene, it's an artificial type squalene. Ordinary squalene is found in the body, but it's found in your joints primarily. This weaponized – and it is weaponized squalene they put into you – to supposedly make your immune system go to war with the traces of virus they put into you. What happens with most people, your body doesn't stop going to war once it's attacked all this lab-created squalene. It goes looking for your natural squalene in your body and you end up with rheumatoid arthritis, and other auto-immune problems as they call it. So this is all well understood at the top but facts won't matter. When they spend billions of dollars on marketing strategies to terrify a public worldwide, you know there is something BIG behind it.

What's happening… I've got some links I'll even put up tonight from vaccine sites, very, very good vaccine sites by the way. One is the NVIC. They go through the panic creation that was done with this. They go through the facts that came out. They even admitted, it says here, a veteran investigative journalist at a major new network published an interesting report about the fact that 83-97% of all specimens of suspected H1N1 cases that were sent to the CDC by state departments for lab confirmations from the spring to the summer came back negative. Not only for H1N1 Swine flu influenza but also negative for ANY kind of type A or B influenza. That's when they told them - when that study came back and that was published at the time; I did mention it on the air - that's when they told them to STOP taking specimens, just classify everybody with a snotty nose as having Swine flu.

Lorilee: Okay. Well, thank you very much for answering my question. Thank you for all your hard work and take another caller.

Alan: Thanks for calling.

Lorilee: Thank you. Bye bye.

I should also say about this NVIC, it's a good web site because it goes into some of how the FDA got involved and how even the CDC got really started up and how they used early cases from the early 1900s to establish their authority over the American people. It was the same in every other country by the way, all through the British Empire as well.

They also have a site here and I linked up to it and it's from the Food and Drug Administration to do with the implantable medical chips and I'll put that up tonight. Implantable medical chips, they call them electronic transponders. That's why they even use these names so's you do a search and you can't find anything unless you have the exact right name. How they are allowing anybody, any manufacturer of these chips to go ahead and start selling them without testing them as long as they fulfill certain criteria for the FDA. They could actually just go ahead and start selling them. They mention the different types of chips they have.

It ties in with this other site, the NVIC on inoculations and vaccinations and the history of it - very good site - including the one about the present, supposed flu which seems to be more bogus than anything. It's to get - down the road - into mandating everyone to get health chips, health chips for our safety, our collective safety. That's what it really, all this - apart from all the money that's getting thrown at the pharma - that's really going to be the end product of it all. You see there already IS - from Bill Clinton's time on - an electronic register, medical register of everybody in the US, everybody that visits a doctor and so on. It was set up then. This chip will just be an extension of that, and the ultimate purpose for it. It's going under 'electronic registry' for health, on a database. That's already up and running by the way.

Guidance for Industry and FDA Staff - Class II Special Controls Guidance Document: Implantable Radiofrequency Transponder System for Patient Identification and Health Information
Document issued on: December 10, 2004

Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. This site, the NVIC, is an excellent web site. It has so much of the facts in here. There is no speculation. They give you the data. I remember reading the article at the time. 83-97% of all specimens, nasal specimens and so on, suspected of H1N1 cases sent to the CDC by state department for lab confirmation from the spring to the summer came back negative NOT ONLY for H1N1 Swine flu but also negative for ANY kind of type A or type B influenza at all. That confirmed, it says what the CDC's influenza experts said at an FDA meeting in 2003. That 80% of all flu-like illnesses every year are not actually influenza but viral and bacterial infections that look like influenza. I'd add to that hysteria because that's what they've been drumming up is MASS HYSTERIA, mass hysteria. It's quite something isn't it?

There's another article here too. Sanofi, the big vaccine company that actually was a front for Rockefeller too. I don't know if people realize that these big companies, the majority shares in them ALL are Rockefellers, across the planet. The holding majority shares are Rockefeller and a lot of them are started up by his organization. Sanofi has decided, oh yeah, they're going to NEED 2 Swine flu shots now; they've decided. Now that they are on a roll, you see, and they're getting cash from government and they're going to get more cash.

Youngsters will need two swine flu shots, Sanofi research shows
By HOWARD FRANK / Pocono Record Writer / November 12, 2009

SWIFTWATER — New test results of Sanofi Pasteur's swine flu vaccine confirmed that children under 9 will require two doses to be protected from the H1N1 infection. (A: Remember, before they said that one was okay. But they're on a roll now, why not just grab as much as you can when the money is flowing.)

The company announced the results of a 42-day clinical trial Wednesday that tested the vaccine on 849 adults and 474 children. The results showed the vaccine produced an effective immune response in both children and adults, (A: Now listen to this…) according to a press release issued by Sanofi Pasteur. [Alan laughing.]

(A: I've also got a web site, the big pharma company has gotten together and put up to answer all REPORTER'S questions for the newspapers and television. So here's the pharma putting it up. I'll try to find it for you and put it up as well. It will show you where all these brown-nosing journalists get their data from. It's from the big pharma themselves. But there you go. They want you to have 2. It says…)

The results of the trial confirm earlier data reported by the National Institutes of Health.

The antibody responses, which measure the vaccine's effectiveness in encouraging the body to protect itself from the virus, doubled in children under 9 after the second dose was administered. (A: This is from Sanofi of course, the guys who make the stuff. Beautiful isn't it. Oh boy, I'll tell you, medicine is beautiful when it's all controlled from the top. As I say, the VeriChip too, VeriChip ties in with what's coming…

VeriChip Buys Steel Vault, Creating Micro-Implant Health Record/Credit Score Empire
By Jim Edwards | Nov 11, 2009

VeriChip (CHIP), the company that markets a microchip implant that links to your online health records, has acquired Steel Vault (SVUL), a credit monitoring and anti-identity theft company. The combined company will operate under a new name: PositiveID.

Positive ID. We'll all be getting one of them at the end of all these series of scares.

From Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"It's official: October was frigid" by Rebecca Fox (odt.co.nz) - Nov. 4, 2009.

"Church bells to ring out warning on climate change" (breitbart.com) - Nov. 12, 2009.

"The giant iceberg that went walkabout... towards the coast of Australia" (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 13, 2009.

"H1N1: Fact or Fiction?" by Barbara Loe Fisher (nvic.org) - Nov. 2009.

"Implantable Radiofrequency Transponder System for Patient Identification and Health Information" [FDA-Guidance to Manufacturers of Implantable Transponders] (fda.gov) - Dec. 10, 2004.

"Youngsters will need two swine flu shots, Sanofi research shows" by Howard Frank (poconorecord.com) - Nov. 12, 2009.

"MedImmune Social Media Press Room" [Where the Press gets their Vaccine Info, from Pharma Companies' Media Outlet] (pressroom.medimmune.com).

"VeriChip Buys Steel Vault, Creating Micro-Implant Health Record/Credit Score Empire" by Jim Edwards (industry.bnet.com) - Nov. 11, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 16, 2009 (#452)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 16, 2009:
Redistribution of Wealth, Ban Ki-Moon Bad for Health:
"Doling Out Bonuses by Gangster-Banksters,
Blithely Relayed by Press as though Childish Pranksters,
As First-World Countries Lose Homes, Lose Health,
U.N. Tells Governments to Give Up Their Wealth,
As People Wake Up they are Studying and Finding Their Rights have been Sold into Treaties All Binding
By Elected Officials Sworn to Defend the Nation,
Now the U.N. is Strutting Big-Head-Ego-Inflation,
Left-Right Political Parties Not Worth a Toss,
All Hail Ban Ki-Moon, World U.N. Soviet's New Boss"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 16, 2009
Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 16, 2009
(Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks, I’m Alan Watt and this is ‘Cutting Through the Matrix’ on the 16th November 2009.

I always start off the show by suggesting to new comers to look into ‘Cutting Through the Matrix.com’ website as my main site and scroll down and you’ll see all the other sites I have up there because sometimes the main sites go down and if you bookmarks these other sites you can always pull up the latest shows and download them. So remember that there’s ‘Cuttingthrough.jenkness.com’. There’s ‘.net’ ‘.us’ ‘.ca’. There’s ‘Alanwatt.ca’ and there’s ‘alanwattsentientsentinel.eu’.

The last one is the European site and has all the same audios as the rest but it has the addition of transcripts of a lot of the talks I’ve given which you can download for print up and they’re in the various languages of the world and Europe, mainly Europe.
And remember too that you bring me to you, you the listeners. I’m not backed by anybody, I’m not selling products. The advertisers on this show pay directly to RBN radio station for the airtime. They pay for the staff. They pay for the equipment at RBN and the bills and all the rest of it. So it’s up to you the listeners to keep me going and you can do so by buying the few things I have for sale on the website ‘.com’ and you can also donate as well. There’s Paypal buttons there. In the US and Canada personal cheque is good. The US can also use International Postal Money Order from the post office if you don’t have a bank account and as I say there’s Paypal. Outside the Americas, again Paypal or Western Union or Moneygram or cash. Some people just send straight cash to cut out the little podgy guy with the triple chins and the podgy fingers and the starched shirt and the pot belly, who always succeeds in every generation no matter how many depressions he causes.

So that's what you can do to keep me going by donating or buying that which I have for sale. It's important that you do because as I say I'm not backed by any group. I'm not promoting products and that way too I've got leeway to say what I want to say about various things, various areas without being hamstrung by giving allegiance to some sponsor.

We are really, as I say, going into a really bad time. It's a bad time for the people but it's a good time for those that plan the world and, as I say, the world is always planned in advance. Every stage of the world is planned and it has been for an awful long time, more so really since the big government began to form during the industrial revolution and layers of bureaucracy were added over many years especially through major wars.

They love major wars because government takes over everything, pretty well even agriculture, farming and the distribution of food and goods. Therefore they took over so much during World War 2, that was the big one, and since then we've been run by technocrats and bureaucratic specialists who supposedly guide all their elected people that we think we elect and tell them what to do for the best. That's really what's been happening and it's very similar if you would compare this to the Soviet model, very, very similar indeed. It's not by accident either because there were two main types (ways) of bringing in the Socialist system. One was direct action and overthrow of existing governments. That was revolution and the other way was through the Fabian technique and interestingly enough, the same bankers who funded the Soviet revolution or Bolshevik revolution in Russia are the same bankers who founded the Milner Group for the Royal Institute of International Affairs and who fund the Fabians.

Back for more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt, we're cutting through the matrix, talking about how the world's always planned in advance.

And it's very hard for people to believe because we're born into a system, you're hammered with daily news once you're old enough to understand the words and you think the daily news is giving you the latest update on things that are just transpiring at the moment.

And how politicians get together to hammer out solutions to immediate problems that just cropped up out of the blue and we're given that at a very early age, that whole idea. Even the way they give us history in schools helps augment that and solidify the idea that we're on the cutting edge and life is evolving willy nilly by itself; all happenstance, day by day.

Nothing could be further from the truth and you have to go into the older books to find out who started up the League of Nations and what was its purpose. You can go much further back than that of course but that was the culmination of a lot of planning in the previous century. Its ideals were really the ideals of total social control worldwide over every aspect of human nature right down to breeding; who could breed; who would not breed and that carried on into its phoenix-like rebirth at the United Nations.

It's no accident that we're on the path we're on and all through the 20th century agreements were signed, treaties they call them, which are legally binding. That doesn't mean anything really because if you really wanted rid of something that was going to put you into slavery, you just tear it up and throw it out and burn it or something. But no, they go through this nonsense that you cannot go back, you can't renege on a treaty. It's rather odd that even the founding fathers of the US put it into the constitution that treaties were legally binding. I think, and it's been debated that they were referring to the treaties between the different states of the United States. Now they put it down to all treaties, which is really crazy because if something's not working in the favour of the people then surely it can be torn up. It should be torn up.

They actually say that they make them so incredibly complex that to undo them, again legally, you'd have to take batteries of lawyers, years and years, to try and unravel them all. It's almost like trying to; it's like these movies where you see a bomb at the end and they go in there and they've got all these wires and they've got to clip them one by one until they get the last one clipped before it goes off. That's the impression they try and give you but it's all nonsense because really if something's against you, it's detrimental to the public, it should be just torn up and used to heat the house or something like that.

Treaties are amazing things and everyone's been bound together by treaties all through the 20th century. They brought in the European Union through treaties. Karl Marx suggested that's the way they would go in the eighteen hundreds and Karl Marx remember was hailed as the founder of the communistic idea and the communistic ideal who put it into what they call a scientific format, which they really believe in at the top, even though we've seen through the eras like Stalin; he could interpret it any way he wanted to because he was technically like God. He was the first cult of the personality although they tried it with Lenin and that's what they do.

They give you a cult of personality and the public go back to sleep thinking Big Brother's looking after them only to wake up in slavery. That's really how it happens. The same thing's happening in the US right now. It'll be a while before they wake up and realise they've nothing left. It's interesting to see how even the founding fathers knew that unless you were taking care of your own money, that means the government takes care of it, not private banks, they said the private banks would put all the children to come into slavery through debt and that's exactly what has happened across the whole supposedly free world. That's what happened.
They knew that because it was already happening in Britain. Britain was already in massive debt because as soon as the Rothschilds came in, even before that when they set up the Bank of England, they knew they could borrow then freely from the bankers and simply tax it back from the public, to pay the bankers. Massive accumulation of debt. It's been that way ever since.

We've all heard about Goldman Sachs and the incredible cons and scams they've been up to and all the bailouts and all the rest of it and how they led this current depression. It's not a recession, it's a depression, when they're still losing across the US and other countries as well, homes by the hundreds and hundreds per day; it's hardly mentioned in the media today. Once in a blue moon you'll see it if you look for it. These characters in Goldman Sachs always seem to lead the charge, the great depression too, they had a lot to do with it and the present one as well and of course they get all the massive bailouts for all the greedy speculations that they get into.

This article here is from November 8th 2009 and it's from Reuters and it says:

“The chief executive of Goldman Sachs, which has attracted widespread media attention over the size of its staff bonuses, believes banks serve a social purpose and are doing ‘God's work’."

(A: Now that's an odd odd statement to make isn't it? He's not being flippant or sarcastic here, any more than Armand Hammer was sarcastic when he put the sign over his bed in his bedroom that said ‘he who hath the gold maketh the rules’. It wasn't just in your face, there's something else behind all that stuff, especially in this day and age where most people at the top are utter, you know they're kind of atheistic, humanist in a sense, but he said they're doing ‘God's work’. It's no different either from the little statement old man Rockefeller made when he said that ‘competition is a sin’. They weren't being sarcastic. They were not being sarcastic. They were telling you something about the religion they believe in because they're not atheistic. So here you have another one here; the banks are doing ‘God's work’. I guess in that case God must like to hammer us and create massive poverty but that's ok with them, so who is this ‘God’ eh?)

“In an interview with London's Sunday Times newspaper, Lloyd Blankfein also said he believed big profits and bonuses at banks were a sign that the world economy was recovering.”

(A: Well it depends on how you define ‘economy’ doesn't it? Because we've been investing abroad since the GATT treaty was signed. Everything's in China now right? He says, here's his PR.)

"We help companies to grow by helping them to raise capital. Companies that grow create wealth. This, in turn, allows people to have jobs that create more growth and more wealth. We have a social purpose," he told the paper.”

(A: But he doesn't say in which country, you see. From his point of view, sure, if it makes more jobs in China then that's true. It says:)

“The dominant Wall Street bank posted third-quarter earnings”

(A: This is just after they have us all paying for the next few generations for this bailout you know. They posted third quarter earnings:)

“of $3 billion and plans to hand out more than $20 billion in year-end bonuses.”

(A: to its top staff. 20 billion dollars. Boy oh boy.)

“Blankfein told the Sunday Times that the bank's compensation practices correlated with long-term performance. Others made no money and still paid large bonuses. Some are not around anymore. I wonder why?” he said “He added that he understood, however, that people were angry with bankers' actions: I know I could slit my wrists and people would cheer" he said.

Well, I’d probably say that’s probably true. Again he’s going along with a different agenda here, a different belief system, obviously. What can you do? What can you do because everything is made by deals at the top by governments and banks, and governments as you well know, can never get enough taxes in because they’ve always got new plans to go so they always go and borrow from the bankers. Then they find new ways to get the taxes paid off along the way or they just add it to their tab. That’s why they have never ending tabs.

It’s funny to see that I think Britain, at least it was two to three years ago in the newspapers, Britain had just finished paying its debt off for World War I. They still got World War II and Korea and other ones to go since then, so subsequent generations are put down to pay off the debt.
Who has the right to put people into slavery? Is that what governments are for? I don’t think so. I don’t think so and it’s true what Jefferson said, Thomas Jefferson, he said that “A generation that’s born into paying off a previous generation’s existing debt are therefore defacto slaves.”

And he was all for every generation simply cancelling the previous generation’s debts. That would have worked, would have been a great idea. What’s wrong with it today? What’s wrong is we’ve never had democracy. That’s what’s wrong with it. There are cliques at the top who we know nothing about, nothing at all about. Even Benjamin Disraeli said the same thing,

“Those in power, those who control governments and power of a country are vastly different from the ones that the public imagine.”

It’s not the ones that the people see. That’s how it really is and any power structure will tend always to take care of itself, the existing power structure. Everyone’s heard of the ‘Continuity of Government’ through thick and thin regardless of what happens and how they prepare for every possible catastrophe or disaster that could happen to make sure that they can continue. It’s for the power elite to continue because they don’t intend to give up that power structure for anyone, especially not for the people.

I’ll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks, I’m Alan Watt and this is ‘Cutting Through the Matrix’.

We’re run by secretive societies. If you know the names of the groups then technically they can say that they’re not a secret society but they’re secretive. It’s like ‘Freemasonry’ where they say they’re not a secret society, they’re a society with secrets and that’s really how everything is today whether it’s governments or whatever. Everything is done really behind closed doors, not open for debate. But here we have from the EU Observer, that’s the Economic Union Observer for the whole of Europe. And I think this is from Friday, but I’ll put the links up on my site at the end of the show for all these topics I bring up. It says here;

“Top candidate debates EU tax at elite dinner”

It says;

“Belgian Prime Minister Herman Van Rompuy, a top candidate for the new European Union president job, laid out his views on future EU financing at a dinner of the secretive Bilderberg group last week.”

(A: Now it’s amazing too that it even gets into the press now. It shows you of how sort of callous they are, it’s ‘well, so what?’ but they don’t tell you all the rest of the stuff right. Now here’s mainstream putting their little things in.)

“The event took place at Val Duchesse, a former priory on the outskirts of Brussels, on Thursday (12 November), with guests including Belgian industrialist and Bilderberg chairman Etienne Davignon, former US secretary of state Henry Kissinger”

(A: He’s at everything this guy.)

“ and luminaries from the worlds of international politics and business, according to Belgian broadsheet De Tijd.”

(A: It says;)

“Mr Van Rompuy: The leak could harm his chances of a top EU appointment.”

(A: As he claims, which is nonsense because I think Tony Blair’s also in the running. Tony Blair is an utter Fabian Socialist, complete dyed in the wool but I’m sure they all are at the top.)

“The Belgian leader is reported to have said in a speech that: "New resources will be necessary for the”

(A: Listen, listen to this;)

“New resources will be necessary for the financing of the welfare state.”

(A: The welfare state. Is that the future of Europe or the future of the so-called first world countries?)

“New resources will be necessary for the financing of the welfare state.”

(A: Is it the world welfare state? It says)

“Green tax instruments are a possibility,”

(A: That’s a definite will be. It’s a must, must be. He says)

“but they are ambiguous: This type of tax will eventually be extinguished. But the possibilities of financial levies at European level must be seriously examined and for the first time the large countries in the union are open to that.

Mr Van Rompuy's official spokesman later told the Belga news agency that: "The Prime Minister ... indicated that it is necessary to carry on thinking about structural financing at the European level."

The leak to De Tijd, coming just days before the EU aims to choose its first permanent president, could damage Mr Van Rompuy's chances.

Proposals about imposing fees on environmentally-damaging behaviour or skimming small levies off financial transactions have been mooted before. But the suggestion that the new EU president might interfere in national taxation policy is anathema to anti-federalists in EU countries such as the UK or Denmark.

Mr Van Rompuy's participation at the Bilderberg dinner will also give ammunition to critics of the EU top job selection process, which takes place via confidential consultations between EU leaders and informal social events.

The Bilderberg group is an elite club of aristocrats, politicians and businessmen dating back to 1954, which likes to meet away from the public eye and which is widely disliked by pro-transparency campaigners.”

That’s really how we’re run. It’s just simply clubs run by the elite, it’s always really been that way. In fact London still has its big, posh clubs around the banking area, or in the banking area, and if you’re anybody at all you’d be a member of them, you see? And you're thoroughly vetted to become a member, especially your family lineage and all of that kind of stuff. That's where the top people from MI5 and 6 go and the top bankers go and everyone else goes. Things are really discussed in the clubs. That's how the world is run.

It's interesting too when we look back at how the French revolution was set up and how they set up what they called 'coffee houses' all over the place where they literally had Masonic groups meeting, quite openly at that time, and they were called 'clubs' you know. And club has a double meaning remember. You can have a club where you join and you have a club which is also a weapon and that's why it's called a club in fact. And if you look at the club in the card deck you have a trinity there really because that's part of their religion as well.
So, it's interesting that they meet in clubs, and clubs really run the show, where they can meet in secrecy knowing that anyone present has to be a member and no one else could possibly get in. That's how it really is run, the world, private deals and everything else is really a show for the general public, a complete show for the public.
We really have no democracy, we never had democracy and when you look at the techniques that are used, they are the Soviet techniques where thousands of foundations fund self-appointed, non-governmental organisations that are not really self-appointed at all. The leaders are picked by the foundations themselves and often they're told to start up the NGO that appears to be 'grass roots' and independent and they protest government for the very things the foundations want. The bankers own the foundations. That's how it's run. That's how the world is run.

Back with more after this break.

Hi folks, I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through the Matrix.

Up 'til recently, people in the media, the mainstream, would just scoff because that's their job, to try and tell you that if you think for yourself you've got a problem, if you're not believing them. They used to laugh at 'conspiracy theories' and all the rest of it. Now they give you these stories now in the open with a bit of sarcasm because they know darn well that whatever they tell you will make no difference now because it's technically too late you see? So you get these little 'tongue in cheek' stories.

This is the Washington Post and it was November 11th and it says;

"One World Government? Globe may not be big enough." By Dana Millbank. It says;

"The New World Order came into being at 4:25 Tuesday afternoon.
It arrived at the Capitol, until that moment the seat of American government, in the form of the stooped and bespectacled figure of Ban Ki-moon, who as U.N. secretary general is the de facto leader of what conspiracy theorists call the One World Government."
(A: There's a slap at 'conspiracy theorists'. At the same time the rest of the story unfolds so they might have been right, you know?)
"One floor beneath the Senate chamber, Ban, a South Korean national, took his place behind a lectern bearing the Senate seal and spelled out his demands."
(A: And that's what they were, they were demands. He says;)
"I would certainly expect the Senate to take the necessary action; that's what I have encouraged the senators," he told reporters as a trio of lawmakers stood at his side.
(A: It's true they're surrounded by lawyers)
He added an admonition for the chamber to deliver "as soon as possible."
(A: Doesn't sound like a friendly visit, does it?)
The One World Government has specific requirements, Ban added, namely a "legally binding"
(A: Here you go with your legally binding treaties) commitment to "25 to 40 percent greenhouse gas reduction . . . as recommended by the IPCC,
(A: That's the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change made up by garbage collectors and all the rest of the socialist commies that are in there. It says;)
Uh-oh. A U.N. official standing in the Capitol telling U.S. lawmakers what binding commitments intergovernmental authorities expect from them?
Glenn Beck was going to burst a blood vessel.

But the man who orchestrated this putsch by the New World Order, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman John Kerry (D-Switzerland), did not appear concerned by the imagery. He called the secretary general.

(A: This is kind of disgusting, isn't it? This is in the US senate and here you have John Kerry at the senate foreign relations committee calling him 'Your Excellency'. Your Excellency. It says;)

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana was equally deferential as he spoke of "the privilege of this distinguished visitor."

And Sen. Joe Lieberman hailed Ban

(A: This is very interesting)

for "the accelerated leadership role" that the United Nations has taken.

(A: 'Accelerated leadership role'. You see, the U.N. was designed to come up right now into its proper status as basically the kind of 'nucleus' for the World Government. It says;)

"Your vision,

(A: This is what Lieberman says;)

Your vision that in Copenhagen there can be a politically binding agreement

(A: And here's the very important part.)

that will lead to a legally binding agreement to follow

(A: To follow)

. . . is a very reasonable, sensible and hopeful course."

And that's how they're playing it out right now because they know that the public are very wary and sceptical and don't want any binding agreements at all to do with paying extra taxes, the redistribution of wealth, as in a plank of the communist manifesto, which this treaty has in it, the supposed 'third world'. It won't get to the third world anyway. That's got nothing to do with it, but they know this so what they're going to say is, they're fluffing it right now in the media, by saying that 'oh Obama's going to cautiously go along and maybe agree to something.' Well, once they get it on the table, you see, and it's legally signed then it comes up for the next, where they're going to agree to legally put through what's going to be put on the next one. That's what they're going to agree to, to put through what's on the next one, that's how they're getting round this to put people back to sleep. That's what it is, listen to his words again.

"Your vision that in Copenhagen there can be a politically binding agreement that will lead to a legally binding agreement to follow is a very reasonable, sensible and hopeful course."

(A: That's how they're playing this)

"Somewhere in Manhattan, Sean Hannity was tearing up his script for the night's broadcast.

Kerry invited Ban to lecture the Foreign Relations Committee, but it's not clear what the chairman hoped to gain from the photos of him standing with Ban in the Capitol's Brumidi Corridors. Indeed, it seemed quite possible that a U.N. endorsement of Kerry's climate efforts would embolden its foes, who like the world body even less than they like cap-and-trade. In the pantheon of conspiracy theories, the United Nations is right up there with the Illuminati, the Trilateral Commission, the Federal Reserve and the Council on Foreign Relations -- which, as it happens, Kerry addressed a couple of weeks ago."

So there's your little, again little, you know, tongue out, they give you the tongue out there in the face at the end of the story, because it's all true you see.

Here's somebody from the United Nations demanding, demanding, you see. Is that what your Government's for? To take demands from this strange corporate body that is the United Nations, this private organisation? And once this thing is put down, yep, the folk will go back to sleep, saying, "well there was nothing terribly binding in this" but what is binding is the promise they will sign the next one, whatever is in it. That's really what it's about. That's why, I think it was Lord Monckton said, in his speech about this particular treaty, at the end of his talk he gave in the US, he said "thanks for being the country leading the free world as you once did and for being the country you once were". That's basically it because it's over, all according to plan though.

It's interesting too this great New World Order that demands that everybody be standardised by coercion, threats or utter force, or pummelled into oblivion, or else basically, are doing it, and have been doing it for years, using all types of odd weapons and nasty stuff to dump on people.

Everywhere that NATO, that's the United Nations military arm basically, everywhere they've been they've left depleted uranium. In every country that they've pummelled and pummelled and pummelled including Bosnia and different places, we always get reports of sudden birth defects. We had the same thing with the first Gulf War and it's going into this one. And what the depleted uranium is supposedly; it's not extinguished uranium it's depleted. It gets sort of reactivated when they fire this stuff. It coats the shells of artillery and even some of the smaller weapons too, to help it pierce armour. And what happens when they hit tanks with it or buildings it tends to give incredible, incredible heat and will also go through anything. It leaves a cloud of this kind of powder residue behind it and you have depleted uranium which is really activated all over the place.

In Gulf War I at the end of it they talked to some American troops who were sent out on details to bring in tanks and personnel vehicles that were damaged and hit by these particular shells to clear the battlefields and one of them spoke about the fact that every one they'd gone to was covered in this very fine white powder. Their job was to clean it all up and they weren't told what it was and every one of those guys is probably dead now by cancer. They didn't have cancer at the time and again you had the governments trying to cover it all up because all the troops are expendable, they just don't know that, but they are expendable and it's happening again.

Here's the guardian.co.uk

Huge rise in birth defects in Falluja, Iraq.

Iraqi former battle zone sees abnormal clusters of infant tumours and deformities.

(A: It's an exact replica of the Bosnia thing. It says that)

Doctors in Iraq's war-ravaged enclave of Falluja are dealing with up to 15 times as many chronic deformities in infants, and a spike in early life cancers that may be linked to toxic materials left over from the fighting.

The extraordinary rise in birth defects has crystallised over recent months as specialists working in Falluja's over-stretched health system have started compiling detailed clinical records of all babies born.

Neurologists and obstetricians in the city interviewed by the Guardian say the rise in birth defects – which include a baby born with two heads, babies with multiple tumours, and others with nervous system problems - are unprecedented and at present unexplainable.

(A: This is nonsense, 'unexplainable'. They know what's caused it since they've exposed it before and when they've exposed the causes. This is what they find, they found when they bombed Nagasaki and Hiroshima in Japan afterwards, even right to the present time there are still babies born, because of the high radioactivity in the area, born with these problems.)

A group of Iraqi and British officials, including the former Iraqi minister for women's affairs, Dr Nawal Majeed a-Sammarai, and the British doctors David Halpin and Chris Burns-Cox, have petitioned the UN general assembly to ask that an independent committee

(A: Ha, the UN)

A: Good luck)

fully investigate the defects and help clean up toxic materials left over decades of war – including the six years since Saddam Hussein was ousted.

"We are seeing a very significant increase in central nervous system anomalies," said Falluja general hospital's director and senior specialist, Dr Ayman Qais. "Before 2003 [the start of the war] I was seeing sporadic numbers of deformities in babies. Now the frequency of deformities has increased dramatically."

The rise in frequency is stark – from two admissions a fortnight a year ago to two a day now.

(A: So two a day are coming in now and before it was two admissions for two weeks, now it's two a day)

"Most are in the head

(A: Tumours and so on) and spinal cord, but there are also many deficiencies in lower limbs," he said. "There is also a very marked increase in the number of cases of less than two years [old] with brain tumours. This is now a focus area of multiple tumours."

After several years of speculation and anecdotal evidence, a picture of a highly disturbing phenomenon in one of Iraq's most battered areas has now taken shape. Previously all miscarried babies, including those with birth defects or infants who were not given ongoing care, were not listed as abnormal cases.

So there you go and I don't think they mention in the whole article about the depleted uranium. They go into other things too, you know, that could be the causes which are so far out it's incredible. But they know what's causing it and that's the lengths they'll go to. That's the lengths this New World Order will go to, to get their way. Anything goes, anything goes. But that is what war's about, isn't it? It's about winning.

Now we have these ideas about old movies where there's some kind of fairness about things but there never was fairness in war. It's about slaughtering your enemy so that you win and by any means possible. That's what it's about. And it's a pity that the public are kept in such naive nonsense by the kind of movies that they see. And eventually here, it goes on too to what's happening to the world now.

We know those at the top talked about the destruction of the family unit and all the rest of it, how to pacify males. They've been into looking for reasons why males will actually fight for things like freedom or survival and finding ways to neutralise it under the guise of looking for criminality in youngsters. That's really a cover, the criminality stuff. They want to find out why men are more liable to fight for things because you see, the only problem they've had, down through the centuries taking over this world, was that men would often stand up and fight if they had families and loved ones and children and community. That's why all of those things had to be destroyed under the Fabian or Communist system. Both the same thing; different roads to the same thing, one was to be global and take time. That was the Fabian technique and that's the one they decided to eventually really use. The Communist system is for fast accumulation of territory and standardisation of a system.

So here you go, Mail Online, I'm so sick of reading these articles about the hormones that males are getting because every article's like it's a brand new thing they've just discovered.

This is November 16th .

"Chemicals used in plastics feminise the brains of little boys 'so that they could avoid rough and tumble games'

It says,

"Chemicals used in plastics are 'feminising' the brains of baby boys, a disturbing survey shows. Those exposed to high doses in the womb are less likely to play with 'male' toys such as cars. They are also less willing to join 'rough and tumble' games.

The research adds to growing evidence that hormone-disrupting chemicals in thousands of household-products are interfering with the development of children."

(A: It's also in the food with melamine, they even put it in baby food. You know who regulates the whole stuff to do with melamine for the EU parliament, where all the info comes and all the data comes from and the regulations come from? It comes from the melamine producer's association and then they dump it in the food. And even the FDA in the US allowed that, because, you know, when the dollar talks, morality walks and the lobbyists can convince them. I'm sure they used alot of handshaking and something passed in between it. But the FDA were convinced eventually that technically you could call melamine a protein if you just went along with their logic of thinking technically because it looked like one in a chain. And this oestrogenic hormone, synthetic hormone is put in baby food. That's not by accident folks, it's not by accident. It says here)

"Environmental campaigners called the study 'extremely worrying' and called for a crackdown. The study looked at phthalates, chemicals that can mimic the female sex hormone oestrogen.

Some experts believe they are partly to blame for the increase in genital defects in boys and lower sperm counts in men over recent decades."

(A: It's from the 1950's actually but it's also coupled with the inoculations too. I'm sure of it. It says)

"But the new research is the first to link hormone-mimicking chemicals to behaviour.

There are fears of further effects as the young children in the study grow up."

(A: Although the plastics industry insists phthalates are safe. It's just amazing when every study proves them wrong, but not really. They're obviously protected because it's part of an agenda. It says)

"the EU has banned many of them from cosmetics, teething rings and children's toys."

(A: Most cosmetics have it in them, and it says)

"But pregnant women are still exposed to phthalates, which are used to soften plastics in household items such as plastic furniture, shoes, PVC flooring and shower curtains."

It's also in all their cosmetics though and it goes through the skin into the bloodstream when she's pregnant.

Back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt. This is Cutting Through the Matrix, talking about the ongoing agenda to make sure that the men are feminised and it's been working awful well since the fifties onwards as you can probably see. It's talking about especially phthalates here but they also have the bispheynol A. There's all different kinds that work with this too that are artificial oestrogens, something they knew back in the late 1800's by the way and they knew too what the effects it would have on children back then but here they are finding it out all over again. They keep finding the same thing all over and do nothing about it because it's an agenda.

It says here,

"The study published in the International,"

(A: This is interesting too if you find the site.)

"The new study published in the International Journal of Andrology"

(A: Andrology: That's the study of basically male hormones and secondary sexual characteristics and so on)

"was led by Dr. Shanna Swan professor of obstetrics and gynaeacology at the University of Rochester in New York State.

Her team tested urine samples from mothers in the 28th week of pregnancy for traces of phthalates.

He women, who gave birth to 74 boys and 71 girls, were contacted again when their children were aged four to seven and asked about the toys the youngsters played with, the activities they liked and their personalities.

The researchers found that higher concentrations of two types of common phthalate - DEHP and DBP – were strongly linked with more feminine play in the boys but had no impact on the girls.”

(A: Well actually is does. Other studies have shown it has an impact on girls in the opposite direction. Too much oestrogen makes them go in a different direction)
“The higher-phthalate boys were less likely than other boys to play with cars, trains and guns or engage in ‘rough-and-tumble games such as playfighting.
They preferred 'gender-neutral' activities such as sports.”
(A: That last part doesn’t make sense)
“Professor Swan believes the chemicals reduce levels of the male sex hormone testosterone in unborn babies.”
(A: And it’s true)
“during a critical window of development between the 8th and 24th week of pregnancy.”
(A: So the mother’s ingesting the stuff and it’s also coming through her skin with all the various cosmetics. It’s in them all. It says)
“This alters the development of the brain as well as male genitals.
She said last night “If replicated, these findings would be of serious concern because they indicate that these common chemicals can significantly alter the development of the male brain.”
A previous study by Dr. Swan found that boys whose mothers had the highest phthalate levels were more likely to have undescended testicles and smaller genitals than other baby boys.
In animal studies, males with similar genital changes had lower sperm counts.”
(A: Well, it’s found the same with humans too.)
“Elizabeth Salter-Green, director of the chemicals campaign group CHEM Trust, said last night. ‘These results are extremely worrying.”
(A: They say that all the time with every study that comes out over the years. It’s always a worry)
“We now know that phthalates, to which we are all constantly exposed, are extremely worrying from a health perspective, leading to disruption of male reproduction health, and it appears, male behaviour too’.”
Oh what a surprise eh? What a surprise.
If you want to rule the world and you’re destroying the family unit, you’re destroying the male that’s your main enemy down through the last few hundred years, you have to attack your enemy ruthlessly, don’t you? Because you want to win, that’s what war is all about and these are the methods they use. These are the methods that you use and I’d say it’s been working awfully well to be honest with you because they’ve known about this, as I say, for a very long time. That’s how the world is really run. These are the covert wars that go on and anything goes to get their agenda through, anything at all, and I’ve got to admit it’s always very effective, very, very effective.
Well that’s it from Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada for tonight, so goodnight and may your God or your Gods go with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Goldman Sachs boss says banks do 'God's work' " (reuters.com) - Nov. 8, 2009.

"Top candidate debates EU tax at elite dinner" [Bilderberg Members Discuss Taxes for Welfare State] by Andrew Rettman (euobserver.com) - Nov. 16, 2009.

"One World Government? Globe may not be big enough." by Dana Milbank (washingtonpost.com) - Nov. 11, 2009.

"Huge rise in birth defects in Falluja - Iraqi former battle zone sees abnormal clusters of infant tumours and deformities" by Martin Chulov (guardian.co.uk) - Nov. 13, 2009.

"Chemicals used in plastics feminise the brains of little boys 'so that they avoid rough and tumble games' " by David Derbyshire (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 16, 2009.

Nov. 17, 2009 (#453)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 17, 2009:
Followers of the Sun, Plan Shape of Things to Come:
"You Must Struggle through Old Dusty Books, the Info is So Dreary, Biographies of Long Dead Men, The Journey Makes You Weary,
They Drone on about Utopia, Darwin and Great Enterprise,
Highly Advanced Hi-Tech City-States, Masses Reduced in Size,
Then Beyond Where Elite are God-like, the Fittest to Survive,
Lower Masses Perished Along the Way, Not Allowed Through Alive,
Yet Back to Present Times We Live 'fore All These Things to Come,
All Nations to be Under the U.N., and Masses Train as One,
Every Economy, Culture, System, Ruled Under Single Centralization,
International Game Conditions Us the Same into Collectivization,
Altering the Course Planned for Us Will Take Those Who Care,
To Hell with the Cost When All Seems Lost, Future's for Those Who Dare"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 17, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 17, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 17th 2009. Newcomers, I always suggest you look into .com. That's the main site and on that site scroll down and bookmark all the other sites I have because once in a while the main one goes down and if you have the bookmarks you can always download the latest shows from the other sites. Sometimes those who find that they are trying to download and it is sticking or constantly reloading, try these other sites anyway; it's good to scatter the bandwidth around. Everyone goes into the .com site at the same time and there are thousands of folk who do that, and that causes some of the problems. [Sites listed above.]

Remember, this is probably the only show out there where I'm not backed by anybody. I don't bring on guests to sell products. There is no foundation, no big group backing me at all. It's up to you, the listeners, to back me. You can do that by looking at the web site, see what I have for sale there. There are books and disks. That will maybe help me take over. You can also donate to me as well. There are different methods to donate or buy the books including PayPal. [Options listed above and below.] In the US, you can use and INTERNATIONAL postal money order. I think they are the only country left in the world where you can actually use an international postal money order. Every county used to have them but they've all canceled them now. But they are still good from the States to Canada, as long as you buy the INTERNATIONAL one. That's for people who don't use bank accounts. Other people just send cash and that's good too from the rest of Europe. For those who just get the disks burned and passed to them at different meetings, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above]. It's important that you don't just skip over this every day – this first 5 minutes – because thousands out there listen, only a few support, and one day I'll just go off and do other things. I can't live on fresh air.

This whole reality business that we are born into, we're conned with one con after another beginning with the parents conned. The parents give you what they think is reality. They generally don't know either that they have been conned all their lives long. By the time they are older, they will definitely gripe about politics and politicians. They get kind of jaded. Hopefully, hopefully they learn to be jaded after voting for different parties at different times in their life… but they still pass on this idea that everything is just developing day by day throughout their lives and they pass it on to YOU, to make YOU think YOU are on the cutting edge and there is nothing further from the truth. Everything that is happening today, the Copenhagen Treaty and the whole lot was planned 100-odd years ago. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning how reality is presented to us, as soon we can understand words and meaning. Our parents pass on their reality, what was real to them but remember too, they were also conditioned in turn, every generation is. Yet you can go back 100 years or more and find people were talking about global government, even long before that - all the revolutionaries were talking about it - with a kind of SOCIALISTIC/COLLECTIVIST society; everyone pulling for the WHOLE, losing yourself in the mass. In other words, the "all in it together" idea, all paying and sustaining the planet and each other basically. INTERDEPENDENCE, if you like to call it that.

Karl Marx, even before that, was talking about that in the 1800s. That's what all the socialist type movements were about in those days. We've got to remember too, these guys weren't just collecting money in tin cans to keep their massive organizations going. They were getting money from already existing foundations. They were generally owned by people like the Rockefellers in the late 1800s - they already had their foundations up – and other so-called philanthropists. Many of them were international bankers, the rest were the heads and the owners of big international corporations, very wealthy people, incredibly wealthy people. That was all part of it.

It's interesting to go into the study of Albert Pike's ideas and his associations of Freemasonry because Freemasonry in their own writings admits that they were involved in different revolutionary planning and organization in that particular period. We know that Albert Pike, who was the Pope of Freemasonry in the late 1800s, taught Mazzini. Mazzini went off into Europe to create the OTHER TYPES of revolutionaries for each society to first UNITE every country. Even ones like Italy – which was made up of different little provinces or kingdoms you might say – to unite them through revolution and centralize governments. That was the same system as Karl Marx was talking about, centralization of government. Then, through links and associations, they would make an INTERNATIONAL society. That's exactly what they did with the League of Nations and now the United Nations.

They are ALL working towards the same end, a society where we all 'pull together' to sustain the WHOLE. We LOSE our individuality in the process. That was Marxism. That's what that was ALL about, losing yourself, you're a cog in the machine. In China, during the Cultural Revolution, they put out lots of propaganda movies for the people. In one of them, the main character, this soldier – who was totally fictitious of course – epitomized what every youngster was supposed to be. He said he wanted to be the bolt in a gun. What a great ambition, a bolt in a gun; from a human to a bolt in a gun. THAT is the concept that we are going into now for sustainability.

This sustainability is a very old idea OF the so-called revolutionary type groups that have always been elitist at the top with the Darwinian belief of survival of the fittest, meaning themselves, those ones already in power. That is what that means. They truly believe that the masses help bring all this about and then the masses die off. See, that's the end. But the part that they never told the rest of the Marxists, the whole idea is they will die off when they bring in this perfect system. They work through sciences to make a perfect society and then they are no longer needed; they are obsolete. Anything, in the Darwinian Theory, that becomes obsolete has no function and MUST perish. If it's even KEPT alive, it brings down the elite themselves. That's what they truly believe.

All we are at the moment is cannon fodder and workers to bring IN the perfect system. As they are going it, we're already dying off in fact, with massive cancers everywhere. We have been for many, many years accelerating through the 70s, 80s and 90s to the present time, until they don't even bother finding new names for particular cancers because they find new ones all the time. There are TOO many that didn't exist before. Neither is there any tremendous investigation into what they are or what's causing them. Why is that? It's because the ones who fund them for investigations know darned well what's causing it all. It isn't just the inoculations and the fact they destroy your immune system and various other things, it's also the massive pesticides and herbicides they're using on all of the foodstuffs and have been for years. We're being poisoned from so many different areas it's just amazing.

Everything is working according to like a bio-warfare technique. There is nothing happenstance about any particular disease that comes along and starts killing people or the fact that people are becoming sterile. There is nothing happenstance about it. That's exactly how you conduct a particular warfare. You find what you want to achieve. You find the age groups that you want to target. You go for it… and you have all the funding in the world.

Last night I touched on the fact about the bisphenol-A and the different kinds of artificial estrogens that are in the foodstuffs, etc. Here's another article about it from Wise Up Journal.

Professor of Biology Facts On Containers Leaking Out Cell Altering Sex Hormones
Wise Up Journal / 12.11.2009 / By Gabriel O'Hara

It's worth finding out why the Canadian government has started banning the widely use chemical BPA in containers that hold products for human consumption. The scientific data highlighted in this report is one of the most significant pieces of evidence to explain what is causing the plummeting fertility and skyrocketing cancer rates worldwide along with other reproduction defects. Frederick Vom Saal, Professor of Biology at the University of Missouri Columbia, accommodated Fox News in performing tests on plastics, in particular food cans with plastic linings. (Alan: Now, they never used to put plastic in tin cans and so on. Now they do even in beer cans. People don't think… they don't even ask why. They just accept everything and adapt to it. Isn't that amazing?) The popular food products in cans tested were purchased at an average supermarket. The professor of biology tested for the chemical BPA (Bisphenol-A) to determine how much is leaked into foods or liquids from the unstable plastic lining on a microscopic level. Plastics manufactures add BPA to their products as it can create a glass like surface and are less prone to crack. (A: This is their excuse.) The implications are significant as in the news broadcast professor Vom Saal explains that the chemical BPA is known as a synthetic female sex hormone mimicker and in "1936(A: As far back as 1936) was considered for use as an oestrogen drug". (A: So they've always known EXACTLY what it does.) It is an unstable chemical that leeches out at very low but powerful levels.

"We started testing it at levels tens of thousands of times below what any body has ever tested before and found it profoundly damaged the male reproductive system. We know it causes brain damage and it causes breast cancer and prostate cancer," said Professor Vom Saal.

This test involved the purchase of different canned products right off supermarket shelves. The food was removed from the cans. The cans were rinsed with water until clean and left to dry. Then ultra pure filtered water was poured in to the cans. The test was to determine how stable can linings are with merely water being in contact with them for only 24 hours (A: Just water.). Professor Vom Saal explained, "every single product here put out an amount of Bisphenol-A that would be in the danger zone. This is a chemical that can alter the way your cells function at below a trillionth of a gram. One million times lower than this."

If one trillionth of a gram is dangerous and can alter your cells then it is easy to conclude that with a dose one million times higher we'd defiantly see high fertility drops and sperm DNA damage in exposed populations. One millionth of gram is expressed as a microgram. Cans of peas were scientifically tested at over 18 micrograms by the professor of biology. Cans of Tomato sauce were tested at over 30 micrograms. People who buy juice and tomato sauces are getting an even greater dose of the female sex hormone as citric acid causes larger leeching of Bisphenol-A.

This particular test was for 24 hours unlike the food products and drinks that sit on the shelves of grocery stores and stockrooms for months. Most people's daily diet has levels of the female sex hormone many times higher. Even the inside of paper juice cartons are lined with plastic.

So where are the human population fertility and DNA damage statistics to backup the findings of these tests?

The Centre for Disease Control, a U.S government agency, performed tests on the public and concluded that " 95% of Americans have detectable levels of Bisphenol-A in their urine" .

Of course an over supply of the female sex hormone oestrogen is not good for boys or the developing foetus. Last years Canada's semi-state run (A: That's actually completely state run.) broadcaster the CBC reported that since the 1950's there has been massive damage done to sperm in the general human population. (A: That's true. It's been plummeting from the 50s onwards, across the whole Western world. Also, that's when the mandatory inoculation of children was started in a lot of countries too at the same time. That goes together by the way.) The CBC stated: "Eighty-five per cent of the sperm produced by a healthy male is DNA-damaged. Damaged sperm have been linked to a 300% increase in testicular cancer (A: That's an awful lot. 300% increase.) - a form of cancer that affects young men in their 20s and 30s. The average sperm count of a North American college student today is less than half of what it was 50 years ago." (A: It's actually much less than that. Back with more after this break.)

HI folks. I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from the Wise Up Journal just to give more data on ONE of the ways we are all being poisoned, by design. There's no accident about this because they have always known at the top what these particular chemicals did to the human body. Remember, even going back to the League of Nations at the end of World War I, they discussed ways of bringing down the population because population control was even THEN a very important part of it. They had a division of the League of Nations dedicated to that problem. When they went into the United Nations, they set up their department of population, but it's actually population CONTROL. They don't sit and just dream and give up wish lists to Santa Claus. They actually, obviously, implement certain agendas.

We know they have done it in the past. The scandal that broke out when millions of African and Indian women had been given supposedly free tetanus shots quite a few years ago there. It turned out that they weren't really tetanus at all. What they were was a bio-warfare designed, particular inoculation that carried a damaging agent right to the ovaries of the women, caused fibrosis and sterilized them. That was a plan. That was ADMITTED to. So to think it's just the third world that's getting hammered under the old Kissinger plan – he drafted a bill up for dealing with this kind of problem of what he called overpopulation which was a danger to the State – remember, they mean the people back home too because in the new world order, they don't care for any particular peasant group whether it's American, Canadian, British or Chinese or anybody else. It's a WORLD order.

These guys at the top are the most evolved, you see. So the most evolved supposedly, from every nation have one big club at the top. They have all congratulated each other to ensure they are all IN. They get all their guarantees from each other of a future for THEM and their children and the rest of us have to simply work to bring it all into being and make it all happen and then we all die off in turn, at the right times. That really is how simple it is. That's really how simple it is.

The average person out there, who is so naïve and brainwashed that they truly believe that the mainstream media is there to tell them everything that they should know, hasn't a chance. They haven't a chance. Brzezinski himself, in his own book Between Two Ages, said that. He said, 'Shortly the general public will be UNABLE to think for themselves; they'll EXPECT the media to do their REASONING for them.' The media was viewed with suspicion by the general public until about the 1930s. People KNEW that the media was owned by media barons, big corporate barons who were up there with other barons of industry and politics and so they didn't trust them. They are PRIVATE organizations. It's amazing, in the age of television, how just through massive propaganda and the fact that they have created an ADDICTION to television, people truly believe when the news comes on that they are telling you the truth. That it somehow is an appendage to your brain… doing some altruistic humanitarian thing by telling you all the things you should know. That's why when you present evidence to the brain dead – and they are brain dead – to show them what's happening, you see the glazed eyes. They truly do glaze over and they become agitated and look left and right and they want to get AWAY because they haven't seen or heard about it from the mainstream media; it's not been on television. That technique has worked. It has worked. They are now brainwashed.

The beauty, if you look IN to the science of brainwashing – there is a lot of data out there – tells you the last person who will ever believe it is the person who IS brainwashed. That's why it works so well. People have gone through the psychology of people, and the sociology, to do with how they rationalize their own sanity. How they do it is by bouncing off the topics they've heard about and their views on those topics, which were given to them generally by people doing the dialectic on television playing left and right, and they bounce it off other people who have ALSO have seen the same kind of news and heard the same news from the media. If they all AGREE on what they were told, then they all think they are sane. Really, that's the whole dilemma. That's how people are if they live in Plato's cave. Everyone in the cave will agree with each other… 'Yeah, that's true, there's the wall, that's the back of the cave' and so on and so on. That's how it is. So perfect brainwashing truly does work.

I'll put the links up tonight that I mention, these stories, on my web site at the end of the show and you can look them up for yourselves. ID cards are back in, in Britain. Now, Britain tried to bring in the ID cards back in the late 1990s and there was a row from the public at that time, rather astonishing, but I guess they still had some testosterone left then. They couldn't understand why. Here the Cold War is over. They never had ID cards for Britain during the whole Cold War. When nothing is happening, they couldn't figure it out. 'What is all this about; why do you want ID cards now?' So it kind of went back underground and they let it cool for a while but kept on, in the background, working away towards it. They tried to introduce it a few time since and now they ARE introducing it starting with Manchester in England. I'll be back with the story after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the ID cards and how they've tried to bring them in a few times. It's interesting that Canada already had them. If you wanted to apply back in the late 90s you could actually go to special offices near the border and apply for them then. Wendy Mesley had a show about that back about 1998 I think it was. So they tried it on this voluntary type basis. Even her show was a kind of an ad for the thing in the first place; 'It will help you speed through border crossings' and all that stuff. They had iris scans and finger prints and all that done with it there too. That was the precursor of what they called Clear Pass that's now evolved into something else.

Britain has tried this a few times too and here they are introducing it again to see how it goes, to see if the public will fall for it. They don't want to PUSH it in a mandatory fashion. That will be a last resort. They might do it yet that way but they want it to become voluntary. Once enough people accept it, they'll make it mandatory because 'everyone else is using it, it becomes such a great ID for everything.' That's how they'll do it. Everything starts off voluntarily until enough people take it.

ID card scheme gets underway
manchestereveningnews.co.uk - November 16, 2009

RESIDENTS in Manchester will become the first people in Britain to be able to apply for ID cards.

They can now directly apply to attend appointments from November 30 to have their photograph and fingerprints taken for the £30 cards at Manchester's passport office. (A: They have to pay £30 for it. It makes them feel better… it's YOUR PERSONAL card you see, like the PERSONAL computer and all that.)

Junior Home Office Minister Meg (A: Hitler… oh sorry…) Hillier said the cards would be particularly useful for students and young people as they would 'save the cost and hassle' of getting into clubs and bars. (A: So they're targeting the youth hoping they are going to be really naïve.)

Anyone over 16 in the city with a UK passport can apply for a card. (A: So this is outside of your passport.)

Ms Hillier told BBC Radio 4's Today programme: "Really for a lot of people it's a day-to-day convenience thing. (A: So it's being sold as a convenience thing.)

"For a lot of young people (A: This is from the Home Office. This is the overseer of Britain's security services like the CIA.) ... they often take their passports to prove their identity in nightclubs and bars and the Passport Service sweeps these up every week. (A: Oh, my God.)

Convenient

"So for a lot of people it'll save the cost and hassle of taking your passport, risking losing it and instead you've got this very convenient little credit-sized card. (A: Which no doubt you'll hopefully tear up or lose as well.)

"I've got one and it's very useful." (A: That's absolute ROT because working in the Home Office, everyone has got the highest, incredibly highest security you could ever imagine. It's like the old series Get Smart, from palm prints to everything. They had that back in the 60s for goodness sake. So this person here is just promoting their stuff and talking to the folk as children and that's how they see us all.)

The ID cards were very hard to copy and were very secure, with biometric information stored on a database, she added. (A: Britain has had so many thefts with data from the government databases that folk have no trust whatsoever in anything that the government does or tells them in that particular line.)

"This is not a database that can be downloaded onto disks," she said. (A: Who's kidding who?)

"It's going to be held in different places so there'll be fingerprints and your picture on one database and your biographical information (on another), which is I must stress just the same as what's held by the Passport Service anyway ... and they will be linked together by another database." (A: Come on.)

The database would only be used for 'serious crime issues' or identity concerns at a border.

Former shadow home secretary David Davis said: "The lack of confidence the Government has in this scheme is evident by the fact that they have made no estimate of the take-up of this trial.

Follies

"This is hardly surprising when the minister believes it is only useful for getting into nightclubs and collecting parcels. (A: At the post office.) This is a far from robust defence of one of their most expensive follies."

ID cards will be launched nationwide from 2012 but they will not be compulsory. (A: That's to begin with.)

The Liberal Democrats pointed to "staggering" official figures which showed the Government was spending nearly £230,000 a day on developing ID cards and biometric passports.

Between April 2006 and September 2009, the Identity and Passport Service spent £216.1 million on future development projects for ID cards and biometric passports.

Spending so far for 2009-10 (between April and September 2009) is at a record high of £42 million - £229,508 every day.

In 2008-09, £81.5 million was spent, in 2007-08 £61.7 million and in 2006-07 £30.9 million.

Amazing. Do you wonder why the governments always claim they are broke? Do you ever wonder why? And do you wonder how much of that money ever goes to what they say it's going to? How much is just siphoned off into pockets along the way? We all know too that the card is just again, training the animals to keep grazing, don't be too scared, and get used to that and once you are used to that, what's the problem about taking a little chip with the same thing in it? Remember, I mentioned that VeriChip amalgamated with another company. They now call themselves PositiveID. That's for a CHIP… positiveID. So I guess in Britain they've got to just give them the step by step… card first, get them used to it, and then get the chip onto it. That's how you train an animal not to be scared of something. That's how we are treated, like animals and stupid ones at that. Most folk don't seem to mind these days though, about having no privacy, etc. They are already too far gone.

It’s interesting too that they have an Identity COMMISSAR. See, we are all sovietized in the world, the new, upgraded, Sovietized system. They have an Identity Commissar… a brand new position.

Identity Commissioner appointed to oversee ID cards
Watchdog to monitor National Identity Register and use of cards by business and public sector
Bryan Glick, Computing.co.uk - 14 Sep 2009

The government has taken another step towards the introduction of ID cards with the appointment today of the first Identity Commissioner. (A: It’s a COMMISSAR.)

Sir Joseph Pilling (A: I don’t know where they find people with these names.) is taking on the role of watchdog for the National Identity Register and monitoring the use of ID cards by public and private sector organisations. He starts in the new job on 1 October, ready for the first rollout of the controversial scheme, to people in Greater Manchester.

“The public has the right to expect the National Identity Service to be run to the highest standards. (A: Of WHAT? Of what?) The Identity Commissioner will champion their interests (A: It’s like the Privacy Commissar. Every British Commonwealth country has a Privacy Commissioner. They always come out once in a while and say, ‘oh, you’re losing all your freedoms and all your privacy.’ And the people will say ‘Do something about it.’ And this guy who works for the Feds says, ‘Well, I can’t; I have no actual power. All I can do is tell you.’ [Alan laughing.] So this guy will be much the same for this particular area and he will say, ‘There, there now’ when you complain; ‘there, there’ and maybe kiss your hand better because it’s been chopped off with somebody stealing your card.)

That’s the farces that we live through today. We are treated just like children and you get rather sick of it at times don’t you? At least you should get sick of it at times.   We never get the truth on anything, anything at all. That’s the reality.

Here’s one here to do with, we were talking about cancers and things.

Biotech crops cause big jump in pesticide use: report
Tue Nov 17, 2009 / By Carey Gillam / Reuters.com

KANSAS CITY (Reuters) - The rapid adoption by U.S. farmers of genetically engineered corn, soybeans and cotton has promoted increased use of pesticides, an epidemic of herbicide-resistant weeds and more chemical residues in foods, according to a report issued Tuesday by health and environmental protection groups. (A: Now, why do you think that is too? It’s just like the bisphenol-A and so on in the food, from the plastics. What’s the difference here? They’ve had these things for years. They know exactly what they are doing. They know it’s killing off so many people, sterilizing people and all that kind of stuff, so why do they promote more and more use of it? Companies like Monsanto can’t even be taken to court. There is not a judge on the planet that is going to touch them. That means they’ve been given the RIGHT to pass through. Kind of like picking Bill Gates and saying we’re going to make you a front man for an organization. It’s going to be very famous. Just read your lines, be a good boy and we‘ll put you to the top. That’s the same with Monsanto and so on. It’s like pathways CLEAR for you; everything is CLEARED for you to be successful. It’s the same thing with these companies because it’s a MUST BE to take over the entire food supply of the planet.)

The groups said research showed that herbicide use grew by 383 million pounds (A: In weight.) from 1996 to 2008, with 46 percent of the total increase occurring in 2007 and 2008.

The report was released by nonprofits The Organic Center (TOC), the Union for Concerned Scientists (UCS) and the Center for Food Safety (CFS).

The groups said that while herbicide use has climbed, insecticide use has dropped because of biotech crops. They said adoption of genetically engineered corn and cotton that carry traits resistant to insects has led to a reduction in insecticide use by 64 million pounds since 1996.

Still, that leaves a net overall increase on U.S. farm fields of 318 million pounds of pesticides, which includes insecticides and herbicides, over the first 13 years of commercial use.

The rise in herbicide use comes as U.S. farmers increasingly adopt corn, soy and cotton that have been engineered with traits that allow them to tolerate dousings (A: Heavier dousings.) of weed killer. The most popular of these are known as "Roundup Ready" for their ability to sustain treatments with Roundup herbicide (A: Which is also owned by Monsanto.) and are developed and marketed by world seed industry leader Monsanto Co.

Monsanto rolled out the first biotech crop, Roundup Ready soybeans, in 1996.

Monsanto officials declined to comment on the report. But the Biotechnology Industry Organization, of which Monsanto is a member, said the popularity of herbicide-resistant crops showed their value outweighs any associated detriments. (A: So all the deaths that are caused out there and massive cancers are simply outweighed by the fact that they are very popular crops by farmers. Farmers like them.)

"Herbicide resistance crops are incredibly popular with farmers. They help them manage their weed problems in ways traditional crops don't," said Mike Wach, BIO managing director of science and regulatory affairs. (A: Maybe, you have to remember, maybe the farmers will like them but when they are killing all of their customers off, they'll start losing some business.)

"If a farmer feels a crop is causing them more trouble than it is worth they will stop using it," Wach said. "Farmers are continuing to adopt these crops because they provide benefits, not liabilities and problems." (A: That's why they haven't had a lot of lawsuits yet, because there is nobody organized enough amongst the public to take on a mass case.)

BIO officials pointed to a report issued earlier this year by PG Economics Ltd that said the volume of herbicides used in biotech soybean crops globally decreased by 161 million pounds, or 4.6 percent, from 1996 to 2007.

The report by the environmental groups states that a key problem resulting from the increase in herbicide use is the emergence of "super weeds," which are difficult to kill because they have become resistant to the herbicides.

"With glyphosate-resistant weeds now infesting millions of acres, farmers face rising costs coupled with sometimes major yield losses (A: So why are farmers liking this stuff when it's actually cost them all these problems now?), and the environmental impact of weed management systems will surely rise," said Charles Benbrook, chief scientist of The Organic Center.

The groups additionally criticized the agricultural biotechnology industry for claiming that higher costs for genetically engineered seeds are justified by multiple benefits to farmers, including decreased spending on pesticides.

The group said biotech corn seed prices in 2010 could be almost three times the cost of conventional seed, while new enhanced biotech soybean seed for 2010 could be 42 percent more than the original biotech version. (A: So everything is actually going up and up and up - I don't care if the farmers like it or not - so is the death rate and all the other problems it's causing. Quite something eh?)

Big business but it's more than just big business, it's a mandate to take over the food supply. You'll find in that book that was written, I think it was EcoScience. I've mentioned it quite a few times and Holdren was involved. They talked about that, taking over of the entire food supply of the planet. They went right along with the United Nations agenda, the Ministry of Agriculture; this was in their agenda. Holdren and Paul Ehrlich said that this group that could take over the entire food supply could then distribute it to each country and never put the quota up, FORCING each country to bring down their populations… or you'd starve. These people are all in power right now, RIGHT NOW… as they are heading off for the Copenhagen agreement.

The agreement, don't believe all this rubbish about the Copenhagen agreement where they are telling you, 'well, you see, we don't have anything ready yet.' Well, what they have got ready is an agreement TO AGREE on everything that will be in the NEXT agreement. That's what it's about. A PROMISE TO AGREE with everything that they put down on the next agreement. That's what it's all about right now. Boy are we going to get hammered with incredible costs that no one saw coming on everything and punished for every joule of energy you use, on everything that you buy… a carbon tax on everything that you buy. PERSONAL CARBON TAXES also will be sent your way… and you'll have to pay up or else – they'll burn you into the ground and release that carbon into the air. That's the kind of world that's used.

All this rubbish about global warming and carbon taxes is just the old communist method upgraded to take over the entire planet. The communists are not the little guys with dungarees and working boots; they never were at the top. It's a high, very stinking rich intelligentsia that runs it all; the ones that already run the banks and own them as well. Back with more after this break.

I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I'll go to the caller now. Is Steve from Connecticut there?

Steve: I just started listening to your podcast recently so I don't know if you've already covered this. I see you have a big background in the music industry. I was just wondering if you ever did a show on the involvement of Aleister Crowley.

Alan: I've done quite a few, in the archives section. You might need to go back even a couple of years but I've gone through a lot of Crowley's history and his influence on the supposed music industry. Really, it's a form of Freemasonry that they had to bring into the youth culture especially those that were helping LEAD the culture. The culture is guided at all times by music and movies and so on. It goes in a deliberate direction, it's not happenstance. Crowley, his whole thing was to do with mysticism. That was to get the youth into the O.T.O. basically. It was so prevalent. I've also done a lot on how the U.S. music industry started, where it started and that Laurel Canyon in the States to show you that even some of the biggest guys there, the biggest people who were put up there as music stars were actually the children from high military families themselves, even though they were pushing all the radical, anti-government stuff. They were all… even Madonna for goodness sake. Her whole family was all into the higher echelons of military intelligence.

Steve: Weren't the Beatles sort of like involved in…

Alan: I've gone through the Beatles too because they were part of the phenomena. What they did was give 2 particular sides as they always do. The dialectic. They gave the Stones for one type of youngster that was still into the sort of yelling, angry kind of stuff, or the show-off stuff. They were kind of immature. Then they gave the Beatles for the other group, the ones that thought they were more intellectual. They actually had stuff in the newspapers at the time about the two kinds competing but they weren't competing at all. They were just put out to lead their own groups. They were the pied pipers. Theodore Adorno was the guy who owned all the rights of the Beatles songs up until his death and then Michael Jackson bought over the rights to them. Paul McCartney in fact tried to buy the rights when Adorno died but it was Jackson's bid that outbid him. Now that Jackson is dead, I guess Paul McCartney will be back in again and trying to get them when they go up for auction, which they will go up for auction again.

Steve: What's your opinion about as far as 2 battling factions within the Freemasons because of… I guess Andrew Jackson was a Freemason. He went after the banks. He had a contradiction there.

Alan: There's no real contradiction because you've got to understand that Masonry really goes into Cabalistic techniques where it's essential that you USE the opposites to create conflict. It's the dialect in motion in fact. Things would be static unless you have conflict and out of the conflict comes a synthesis. Then the synthesis becomes the new thesis and then you go on forever. That's what they call progress but it's directed progress. So they create the battles, they create the outcomes, then that gives you a NEW thesis to go on with. That's what communism was based on as well. Same thing. Thanks for calling. That's the end of the show.

For the other ones I couldn't get around to, please call back tomorrow. From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Professor of Biology Facts On Containers Leaking Out Cell Altering Sex Hormones" by Gabriel O'Hara (wiseupjournal.com) - Nov. 12, 2009.

"ID card scheme gets underway" (manchestereveningnews.co.uk) - Nov. 16, 2009.

"Identity Commissioner appointed to oversee ID cards" by Bryan Glick (computing.co.uk) - Sept. 14, 2009.

"Biotech crops cause big jump in pesticide use: report" by Carey Gillam (reuters.com) - Nov. 17, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 18, 2009 (#454)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 18, 2009:
You'll All Sorry Be in Allowing Big Brother Authority:
"Welcome to 21st Century Laboratory,
 Like Rats in Training to Obey all Authority,
 From Cradle to Grave, Government the New Saviour,
 Watching for Signs of Anti-Social Behaviour,
 You'd Never have Known of Their Interest in You
 As They Pore Your Life Over, Everything that You Do,
 Even Miss Goody-Two-Shoes, Environmentally Correct,
 Is Minutely Inspected for Thoughts Deemed Suspect,
 Nothing is Missed, Even Parents it Seems,
 Who May Pass Independence to Offspring's Genes,
 Nations' Family Homes Must be Open to Inspection,
 The Jackboot is Swinging, We Know its Direction"
 &copy; Alan Watt Nov. 18, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 18, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 18th 2009. For newcomers, as always, look into .com web site. Scroll down and you'll see all the other official sites I have up there. These are the ONLY official sites that I have. Bookmark them for future use in case the big ones go down again, which they probably will. [Sites listed above.] As always too, I remind people that they bring me as a host here to YOU the listeners. You bring me to you. No one backs me here and it's up to you to keep me going. Go into the web site, see what I have for sale and you can also donate to me as well. [Options listed above.] For those who get the disks burned and passed to them to play on their CD players at home and don't use computers, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above].

Remember, the .com site has a list of the only official sites I have. I do get fake ones going up. Whatever they contain of information is outside of my control so therefore they are not mine. That's why I don't ask anyone to put up sites on my behalf. Legally it all comes back to me and whatever I say or whatever people have thought I've said on someone else's site. There are a lot of bogus ones that go up all the time.

There is a war going on. This is truly a war and people don't realize that this IS a war. I can remember even before the internet became big, the major media were talking about information wars and how that had already been geared up

FOR before the public were given access to the internet. Those who already controlled the power structures made sure they were going to be in charge of this system as well. They had TRAINED staff to either start up the chat rooms or how to infiltrate chat rooms and get everyone else to do your dirty work for you when you'd finger somebody for attack. Lots of them who go into chat rooms get used for that very purpose. They don't know they are being used, generally by a very powerful figure that they initially admire. But they'd been set up to take the fall if things come back on them legally or otherwise. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the war that's always going on and the war to which most folk are oblivious. Most of the average persons are oblivious to what's really happening and there's always a struggle going on between those who HOLD power. Really, the struggle is only about them maintaining power. That's the only struggle, that is, between themselves to maintain and extend their power.

It's amazing what happens when you speak out and you're not really authorized to speak out. In other words, you weren't picked and put up there to speak out. For instance, I'll give you an example. Xplornet has got a monopoly on satellite feed for a good part of Canada and into the US. They are actually a subsidiary of Hughes Satellite, the Hughes Military-Industrial boys who deal with the military. They go through the same satellite. Xplornet – that's how they spell it themselves – are just amazing. They have been cutting me back and cutting me back from usage for the same amount of money. Now I can't even download this particular show as I'm doing it. I can't even get that feed anymore. That's how much they cut me back. Someone obviously put the word in and asked them to give me a hassle and they've been doing this for months and months and months and months. That's what you get when you're not approved to be on the air. They do find dirty little tactics to try and take you down or harass you. All it means is that I've got to tape this whole show and then put it onto disk at the end. It takes me an extra hour to do that. Then I'm up another extra hour at night after uploading. It's about 2 in the morning and sometimes beyond that. That's the sort of hassle they give you constantly.

Before that it was with the telephones. I used to get cut off in the middle of conversations or even when I was on the air. Harassment. There's no point in complaining to Bell Telephone because they'll give you the run-around as well. 'We don't know why; we'll check into this and that.' Meanwhile it continues and continues. With Xplornet, they are just a front for the big military industrial boys so I'm not surprised. For all those who think they are going to get onto high-speed internet, you're just going into a con game. Xplornet took 2 years before they'd even send me the first receipt for the money I'd paid. 2 years it took them to get around to that.

When they cut me back the last time – with the speed for uploads – they actually said, 'It's probably your satellite.' So hundreds of bucks later, after you've got the guy in, new this, new that and all the rest of it, you find out you're on a 'lock', they call it. I eventually got a woman to tell me, it just slipped out of her, they're not supposed to tell the customer this but 'you've been put on a lock, which means they put you on the unfair usage policy.' Now, if you try to find out how much bandwidth you can use in a month, well that's a big mystery. No one at Xplornet knows… no one, absolutely no one knows how much it is. I'm on the middle price and yet they've just told me that now I'm only really authorized to get EMAIL. So how's about $100 a month for email folks? This is the BS they feed you. Until Xplornet takes this lock off and puts it back to what it was - poor though it was; it was better than now – I'll keep bitching every night about them and put the customers off. It's good that the customer should know what they are getting into before the get into it. This is how you get treated.

It's a war. It's ongoing from many different directions. YOU wouldn't believe the hassles I have just getting through every darn day here… a lot of hassles. That's the war as I say, it's a war on everybody but mainly on those who know, WHO KNOW, WHO ARE AWAKE and understand and who CAN communicate to other people.

Speech, even free speech is something everyone takes for granted until you lose it. When you've lost it; that's it. That's it. All you are then is some guy in a dungeon squeaking off at the top of his voice with no one to hear him. We are going in to utter, complete tyranny. The farce of the Cold War also had to be played out by getting people in the Western world what they thought was a measure of freedom for the first time. Really too, it was for the first time. At that time, as you were being free and so-called democratic and thinking it was going to go on forever, the big boys had already decided that once Sovietization was dead – that part of the big plan was dead – and they were amalgamating with the West – which is exactly what's happening now – they'd take away all those little benefits that you had. They'd pull in all those credit cards that they would throw at you before in the 70s and 80s and the 90s; then they'd start jacking up all the prices and putting you back into the PEASANT mode. That's what's happening today.

In the 1800s and into the early 1900s right up into and beyond World War I, the societies in every country were really the societies that came out of the FEUDAL system. People technically, whether they were called serfs or not, behaved just like serfs. If they got any education at all it was of the lowest quality to make sure they could just read and write and sign GUILTY on the Queen's warrant or whatever. That was about it. However, to convince the world that this Western society, this democracy, was the way to go, they had to show to the world the pretense of freedom. They gave one generation, one generation the appearance that they were actually free. They could go wherever they wanted to go. Could mouth off whenever they wanted to mouth off about certain things. Now that's all been taken back.

Normal Dodd and Reece Commission that they had back in the 1950s, when they talked to the big tax-exempt foundations that were funding all the supposed left wingers and communist societies, admitted to Senator Dodd that their job was TO CHANGE THE CULTURE SO MUCH IN THE WEST THAT EVENTUALLY THEY'D MERGE IT SEAMLESSLY WITH THE SOVIET UNION, a sovietized system. You team that up with the Club of Rome, 'the PREMIERE think tank' (as it boasts to the world) for the United Nations, they said, of all the systems they viewed and studied, COLLECTIVISM or the COLLECTIVIZATION of the systems were the ones they thought were most promising, meaning a form of communism. It's now called GOVERNANCE… where you simply obey when the guy in the uniform tells you to obey or else. And they mean OR ELSE. They aren't pussyfooting around with you any more. That's why police across the Western hemisphere are allowed to just taser people that at one time would have just simply have been grabbed by some big tough cop. Now they just taser you because they like a bit of torture and they like to watch you squirm, urinate and defecate in front of them and maybe even die and turn blue. It's all very colorful for them as they kill you.

We're in a different time now, a completely different time and these boys all know they'll be given authority from the top to do exactly what they are doing. They've also bred a generation on video games and the only objective of the game is to come through after killing as many as possible. So they either go into the military or the police. They've given that particular generation the most debased, completely debased culture of any generation to date. It reminds me of Julian Huxley and Lord Bertrand Russell, who were big players in the PLANNING of this particular phase we are going through now and the kind of society that they said they'd bring in. They have done it. They have been very successful. They said that the public basically would be degenerate, ego-syntonic, ego-centric. Each person would be split from everyone else, split from everyone else: ego-centric in their behavior - in other words, not caring – and the state would give them their morals. That's happened.

Parents have accepted it too. They've accepted the fact and they've left it to the schools to give the new morals to their children, the State's morals; the one that suits the power elite for the society that they've designed. So for all those who think we're simply evolving by ourselves in some happenstance direction, there's nothing more silly than that, where everything that happens in society is planned. Just like from 2001 onwards, everything that happened across the world was planned and coordinated and came out with it at that same time, all the rules, regulations, and so on.

The dream of Karl Marx of a United Europe has already taken place. The unification of the Americas is completed NEXT YEAR. They've signed a treaty every year since 2005. They're doing the same thing with the Far Eastern bloc as well. Exactly as we find that Karl Marx said would happen. That's no coincidence someone who lived in the 1800s could say what was going to happen; that was a mandate.

Now again, we are back with Britain for instance, this home of democracy; the strangest democracy on the planet because everybody in the country has to go to the Queen and get her to sign any law that's passed. She can also sign the sort of orders in council that they have, something that doesn't even go through Parliament, she just signs it and it becomes law. Here's an article as an example from The Times Online.

Queen's Speech: ban on mobile phones in jail
From Times Online November 18, 2009

(Alan: This is before she's given this speech as far as I know.)

Britain’s Queen Elizabeth II prepares to make the Queen’s Speech at the House of Lords in London during the state opening of Parliament. (A: So they give you a preview of what’s to be said. It starts with prisoners.)

Prisoners who are found with mobile phones while inside jails are to face prosecution under plans outlined in the Queen’s Speech today. (A: Then it goes on and on about that but then it goes into the other changes that she’s putting through. Who elected the Queen to any position? No one I know. Do you? Back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the Queen’s Speech and how here’s a Queen who isn’t elected by anybody going to open up the Parliament again but she’s got all this stuff to read off. This is like the Middle Ages, this strange democracy that Britain’s always had, where every government employee swears allegiance to the Queen and NOT to the people. That’s not democracy as far as I know. She goes on about the prisoners and so on, that they can have no cells phones but then stuff down near the bottom, it says

The new measure is to be included in a Crime and Security Bill which will also introduce a new legal requirement on people to ensure airguns (A: That’s all they have in Britain are catapults, sling shots and airguns.) are stored out of the reach of children.

Other measures in the Bill will introduce a mandatory assessement of a child’s parenting needs whenever an anti social behaviour order is being considered for a 10 to 15 year old.

Parenting orders will also be imposed on mothers and fathers whenever a youngster breaks (A: Now they’re calling it an Asbo, anti-social behavior order.) an Asbo.

Powers to exclude violent men from the family home for fourteen days - so-called Go orders - are also in the Bill.

The Bill will include the controversial plans to retain the DNA samples of innocent people on the national database for six years. At present, people who are arrested but subsequently not charged or cleared at court remain on the DNA database forever.(A: They’re just the shining light to the world, eh? Britain…)

Police are also to be given the power to take DNA samples and fingerprints from prisoners currently serving sentences for serious crime. They are also to have the power to take samples from serious violent and sexual offenders returning to the UK after being convicted of offences overseas.

A compulsory licensing system for wheel clamping businesses (A: This is where they clamp your wheels on your car if you’re parked in the wrong place or the meter runs out.) is to be introduced, to tackle rogue firms who impose excessive penalties for releasing clamped cars, or tow cars unreasonably quickly after being clamped (A: I wonder if she’ll change the fact that cops can pull in the crusher on the road and they just crush your car when your insurance has run out? I somehow doubt that.), and fail to offer an appeals process for drivers.

Then we have this one here too. This is from The Sunday Times.

Health and safety snoops (A: Spies.) to enter family homes
Robert Watts / From The Sunday Times November 15, 2009

Health and safety inspectors are to be given unprecedented access to family homes to ensure that parents are protecting their children from household accidents. (A: They’re already going into homes to check your fridge and what you’re eating. Can you believe this is actually happening? This is BEYOND the old sci-fi movies of the future. We’re living through sci-fi on a roll basically.)

New guidance drawn up at the request of the Department of Health (A: I told you all these services... they used to be called the Health Service, now it’s called Department of Health and it’s an authority, right. Exactly as Lenin said it would be.) urges councils and other public sector bodies to “collect data” on properties where children are thought to be at “greatest risk of unintentional injury”.

Council staff will then be tasked with overseeing the installation of safety devices in homes, (A: This is cameras and everything.) including smoke alarms, stair gates, hot water temperature restrictors, oven guards and window and door locks.

The draft guidance by a committee at the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (Nice) (A: N-I-C-E, oh my God, psycholinguistics.) has been criticised as intrusive and further evidence of the "creeping nanny state". (A: What do you mean creeping nanny state? Creeping… it's on a roll here. It's running all over the people.)

Until now, councils have made only a limited number of home inspections to check on building work and in extreme cases where the state of a house is thought to pose a serious risk to public health.

Nice also recommends the creation of a new government database (A: Here we go again.) to allow GPs, midwives and other officials who visit homes to log health and safety concerns they spot. (A: In other words, spy and snoop for the government.)

This is incredible; but not really. It's what I expected all along because I always saw what these organizations were set up to be in the first place. I knew too, by reading all this stuff on the Cold War, that in would come Big Brother in a big, hard way when there was no more opposition, the sort of 'bad guys' across the sea. They didn't have to pretend that they were democratic anymore in other words. That was the whole key to it. Then you find this PR piece and it's definitely a PR piece by The Times Online on the ACTOR Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Arnold Schwarzenegger visits Iraq - and aims to transfer military tactics to California
Oliver August in Baghdad / From Times Online November 16, 2009

(A: That they use on the people in Iraq. You know, where they go out there and just round a bunch of folk up, bring them in and torture them whether they know anything or not. That's literally what they were doing. Then they give you this PR piece like it's he's a big, big, you know TV character, not a real person.)

The governor of California trots out his most famous one-liner wherever he goes but, at the Victory military base in Baghdad today, he apparently meant it.

"I'll be back," (A: I'm surprised he managed to say that.) Arnold Schwarzenegger growled after working out with a group of American soldiers on active duty in Iraq, all with necks and trunks as thick as his. (A: I doubt it because he was on masses of steroids. That's why his brain is so small. Back with more after this break.)

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I just let that guitar riff go on and howl a bit there because I feel like howling tonight when you read this kind of stuff that's put brazenly in the media. I'm reading an article here about Arnold Schwarzenegger. It's a public relations thing, of course. It says here

The muscleman who rose to Hollywood fame as The Terminator came to the site of America's bloodiest war in a generation to cheer up troops, but also because there are important lessons to be learnt here.

Mr Schwarzenegger said he wants to study counter-insurgency strategies developed by the US military when Iraq was on the brink of civil war, and bring them back to the mean streets of California, where criminal gangs rule entire neighbourhoods, especially in large cities.

Already, police officers in some parts of the state are attempting to copy the hard-won lessons that helped to calm down the western Iraqi city of Falluja (A: That's when they bombed it and strafed it from the air to pieces.) and the Triangle of Death south of Baghdad, where insurgents once reigned openly.

It's amazing, again, how people don't really perceive things as things really are. Anyone who is standing up for their country is called an insurgent. It doesn't sound like a patriot. It all depends on how it's given to the public and they always respond in the usual way thinking 'Well, I guess that's like a foreigner or something, an insurgent.' Even the Vietnamese were called insurgents in Viet Nam. In World War II, they actually set up teams to keep the terrorist attacks going against the Germans if the Germans actually invaded Britain successfully. What would they call them? British insurgents? I mean, it's all nonsense. People who are defending their country are generally called patriots. That's the fact.

The governor did not actually go to these places, now relatively peaceful, to see soldiers on patrol. Instead he heard about their work in the safe environs of one of the largest US bases in Iraq and shook hands with them afterwards. He also held meetings with senior commanders.

The transfer of counter-insurgency tactics from the military to the police is being pioneered in the central Californian town of Salinas. Combat veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan are already advising the local authorities on how to conduct their own "surge," as the US counter-insurgency campaign of President Bush is known. (A: I've always said, the big eating machine that's over there and you just chomp away at your french fries or your chips or whatever you chew on, it will come back home and that's exactly what's happening here. They always call them when they're abroad 'advisors,' these guys that train, these teams of hit men abroad. But now, here you have them back home again advising governors, State Governors, on how to conduct their business, on the ground level in their own countries.)

Rather than hunting down gang leaders and arresting them, the police are told to build trust in the community that supports the gangs. Only by patiently "draining the swamp" can the leaders be eliminated. (A: I like their terminology. It's right from the movies, 'draining the swamp,' 'eliminated,' blah, blah, blah.)

There are apparently striking similarities between Iraq and California. Many gang members and supporters see police officers as an "occupying force" similar to a foreign military presence. Like in Baghdad, there are also language problems. (A: That's your forced multi-culturalism.) Officers speak English and locals often Spanish, making cooperation in criminal investigations difficult, even when citizens are willing.

Then it goes on and on about the problems in California. So here they are bringing in military advisors. You've got to understand what the military is. The military is there to kill people. That's what the military are all about, not to police anybody, not to police them. Here's an article that's right along with what I'm saying. It's from CNN.com.

Army tapes reveal motive in Iraq prisoner killings
By Abbie Boudreau and Scott Zamost, CNN Special Investigations Unit

A CNN investigation reveals why the Army's rules for holding detainees may have led to the murders of four Iraqis by three decorated Army sergeants. Watch Tuesday through Friday on "AC360" at 10 p.m. ET. (A: This is the airing of it. ET is Eastern time.)

Vilseck, Germany (CNN) -- U.S. soldiers interrogated by the Army in the 2007 murders of four Iraqi detainees blamed a military policy they said made it too hard to detain suspected insurgents, a CNN investigation has found.

Soldiers questioned in the killings said the sergeant in command of their detachment ordered the suspected insurgents killed because Army rules made it too difficult to hold them. (A: This happens whenever you send the military in. This is happening on more levels than just that, or in this particular incident. That's what war is all about… killing folk. The soldier is only trained in killing people. They are not policemen.)

CNN obtained an extraordinary 23½ hours of Army interrogation videotapes that detail the March 2007 executions of the prisoners by three sergeants who were attached to Alpha Company, 1st Battalion, 18th Infantry Regiment.

The tapes, to be shown on CNN's "AC360," show one of the sergeants confessing to the crime, as well as agents from the Army's Criminal Investigations Division telling soldiers involved in the crime that the military's reputation was at stake.

On one tape, an Army interrogator compares the potential fallout from the slayings to the scandal over the treatment of inmates at Iraq's Abu Ghraib prison, telling a soldier, "This is gonna be ugly, 'cause it is."

"Just like them knuckleheads who were stacking naked prisoners in the pyramids at Abu Ghraib," the interrogator says. "We walk down the streets, and that's a shame we all carry. And I had nothing to do with that.

Then it goes on to talk about some of the people who actually did the killings and how they shot these guys in the heads so that they wouldn't be on the streets shooting back at them again. That's the excuse that they give. That's what Army soldiers are about… all you people who have swallowed this nonsense about it being a policing duty. They are 'peace keepers' now. NO. They are soldiers. Soldiers have rifles and automatic weapons and grenades and all kinds of amazing stuff to kill people and that's what they are trained to do. They kill people. Believe you me, the systems that we are seeing employed abroad are all coming back to be used at home.

I've already read the 90-page document from the top think tank for the British and NATO military and they say there's going to be riots starting off around 2010 that will gradually escalate over the years. There will be food riots and everything and yes, they will bring on food riots because they are going to ration everybody. That's already well underway, the rationing for food, because there are only 5 corporations that have taken over the food supply of the whole planet. Really, at the top, they all have the same shareholders; they are all really one company. That's part of a plan, a warfare plan. They always go for food and water, first things you go for of the enemy… if you want compliance. Kissinger said it too. If you want to control a people, you control the oil. If you want to control the world, he says, control the food.

This is the real world now and it's stepping up big time and everybody who's a control freak by nature is in the right position of authority across the planet. They've all been put in now, at the right time, for what they have to do and they are just chomping at the bit to get on with it and they are doing it.

This whole farce of global warming, it's so beautiful really because remember, the Club of Rome is the organization that was given the task of finding a way to unite the planet, get everybody working together along a common agenda, a new paradigm, a belief for the age you might say. They said the people only go along with something when it's a warfare scenario. You accept rationing. You accept authority from the top. You accept intrusion. You accept ration cards and ID cards and all the rest of it and travel passes, all that kind of stuff. They said they would bring in a war type scenario and the war would be about the people, the people were the ENEMY in other words, of the planet. That's what they came up with. They said, "The idea of global warming, famine and the like would fit the bill." That is chiseled in stone and I don't care if you're up to your eyes in snow, they're not going to change that plan. They'll stop talking about it once they pass all the laws and so on to get what they want; they won't need it any more.

Just like the war on Iraq or 9/11 happening. 9/11 HAD to happen to kick off this century with this big plan, the New American Century, but it's not going to be American at all. America is to get finished off financially, economically, and brought down to third world status AS it finishes off paying for policing the rest of the world and bringing them under the standardized global system. I've said that for years and that's what's happening right now. You wouldn't believe the amount of bankruptcies still going on with people losing their homes EVERY SINGLE DAY in the US. I had an article sent yesterday and it was state by state how many homes per day people are losing and yet the mainstream are keeping pretty quiet about it. It's just incredible, incredible.

You think that it couldn't get any worse and of course it's going to get worse. We have carbon taxes coming and this article is from CNBC.

Tamminen: Carbon Insurance For Your Car May Be Down The Road
Posted By: Terry Tamminen | Contributor / | 13 Nov 2009

Would you like carbon insurance with that latte?

You might not hear that exact question any time soon, but don't be surprised if companies start shifting carbon risk from their balance sheets to someone else's, using the time-honored marketplace tool of insurance. And when that happens, expect the price of products to reflect the new reality.

China, India, and other emerging economies argue that we became prosperous using up the atmosphere and must now bear a disproportionate share of the burden to fix the problem, at least in the first few years of any new global deal. (A: This whole thing is just the collectivized, communized, soviet system, WORLD sovietization, a more advanced type of sovietization. It's just a big con to get us under all of this. That's what it is.)

One proposal floating around before the global climate talks in Copenhagen next month is for developed entities, like the U.S. and E.U., to buy insurance for climate change-related impacts that are likely to occur to developing nations. Flood insurance for low-lying areas of Indonesia, for example. That might be a way, some argue, to deal with the rich/poor nation divide that threatens to undermine any new global deal.

Now, the money would never get to the people. That's doesn't matter. We know it's going to go through the big bankers' slippery hands in the first place because the Rothschild who came forward to propose all this in the first place, he was given the job. It just happens that all these carbon taxes will go through his particular bank in Switzerland. You know there are billions going through there by the day and by the night and just holding that for a day or two brings you an awful lot of money back in interest. That's how these slobs work. That's how they've always worked. If you call that work... to me it's a rather easy life. Anyway… it's well on its way.

Holland now is the first country to introduce a pay as you drive scheme by the kilometer. They've already got pretty well the kind of money you'll pay per kilometer. The rest of the Western countries will be miles. It's to go up to about 16¢, I think it is per kilometer, by 2016 or something like that. It also means mandatory GPS tracking, so every car is going to be equipped with tracking devices by law so they can watch where you go and what you're doing and how long you take and how many miles you went.

Netherlands to levy 'green' road tax by the kilometre
By Relax News / November 14, 2009

All these articles remember, I put up on my site at the end of the show. I sort of have to go to the lengths now… since Xplornet have cut me back and cut me back and cut me back. They'd love to just cut me off all together because I'm not supposed to be speaking about these things to the general public. There are big forces, I'm sure, and big people have contacted them. You know, the old school boys' ties sort of thing. You phone them up, 'Freddy, can you just give this person a hassle; he's been a bit of a nuisance.' And that's how things really work in the real world. So it will take me, just to put this up tonight but eventually, I'll have all these link up and the show an hour later than usual, or maybe just a little after an hour, an hour and a half I'd say.

You just can't get enough of this stuff. We are living in the age of the authorized control freak. We're going back to the Middle Ages in a sense, as we are taught to be poor again and we are taught our PLACE, our place… that's what they love to say at the top, 'mind your place'. They are going to teach us all our place, as little people at the bottom. This article is from WorldNews.com.au. It's from Australia but it's about New Zealand.

Pay problem parents not to breed - mayor
By staff writers and AAP / news.com.au / October 30, 2009

AN outspoken Kiwi (A: That's a New Zealander.) politician has proposed a new solution to the country's child abuse problem - pay the "appalling underclass" not to breed.

Michael Laws - who stirred up controversy by calling the late Tongan King a "bloated brown slug" - has again hit the headlines.

"That there is a group within our society who give their children no hope nor opportunity from the moment that they are born," (A: I guess that's the majority of the general public worldwide now since we're all under their authority.) the regional mayor wrote on the New Zealand radio website where he broadcasts as a talkback DJ.

"That these 'parents' are known to authorities ... and yet the authorities can only intervene after children have been harmed." (A: He wants to sterilize the WHOLE underclass here.)

Mr Laws goes on to write: "it would be far better for this appalling underclass to be offered financial inducements not to have children, given the toxic environment that they would provide for any child in their care."

The mayor believes "the consequent financial and social savings to our community would be considerable.

"There are too many people who should not have children." (A: I wonder if he belongs to the Optimum Population Trust as well; the ones that advise Prince Charles… with guys like Sir Crispin Tickell who's not a very funny guy after all.)

Mr Laws said a report in New Zealand's Dominion-Post newspaper yesterday had incorrectly attributed the view to him that all those who got welfare should be sterilised.

Mr Laws wrote on the website "that most welfare beneficiaries are good parents" (A: I guess he's got the right to say if they are good or bad.) but it was the problem ones who should be offered money not to breed.

Yesterday's Dominion-Post newspaper quotes him as saying: "If we gave $10,000 to certain people and said 'we'll voluntarily sterilise you' then all of society would be better off," he told the paper.

"There'd be less dead children and less social problems."

So there you go. These are the people who are coming to the fore now and they are getting the air play, they are getting… it's a psychological technique that's been used as we're getting bombarded from all types of authority figures with the same kinds of messages… to put us in our place, to remind you that you're one of the little people and if you just keep your head down, go along with the whole agenda and maybe, maybe they won't look your way. Well, that's not going to work because they are already going to come into your home and assess you regardless of how goody-two-shoes you think you are. That's the reality of the world we're living in. The music is coming in and when I come back I'll try and take a couple of phone calls. So I'll be back after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix and we'll go the phones and take Diana from California. Are you there Diana?

Diana: Yes. Hi Alan. Good to speak with you again. My question specifically is about Special Forces and persons who are or were in Special Forces. You've spoken in the past about how they are tested for entry into it and that the qualifications for that involve certain levels of psychopathy. Are the different levels of psychopathy different for different aspect of their job? For example, a Special Forces Ranger who fought against drugs coming in to the US during the Cold War, etc and those who brought them IN, or are they the same but compartmentalized?

Alan: They tend to be really the same but compartmentalized. In fact, I think the case you're referring to, the guy who had been in Special Forces ended up working for the Coast Guard to stop drugs coming in, then he met a friend who had been in the same outfit as he was, that was working for the other side and CIA sponsored. He thought it was rather incredulous that here they are, both from Special Forces, working for the US government on the opposite side of the fence. Once of them could bring drugs in and one to try and keep them out. When they go through for testing and qualifying into the Special Forces, they're given psychological examinations of course, but they also must have a tendency to try, always to try and win, to reach an objective where most folk would give up. That's the kind of stuff they are looking for as well, to be intelligent enough to get their way out certain situations. They definitely are more blood thirsty. I don't know if people realize that they're actually taught simply, really to kill without thinking. When the Special Forces were shown in Britain for the first time during a siege in London back in the early 80s - it was actually at the Iranian Embassy in fact I think it was – some of the hostage takers got out with the hostages and the SAS guys were pulling them back in to kill them. Their orders were to kill them, just kill them. It didn't matter if they were unarmed or giving up or whatever, you have to kill them. So killing is no problem. I also got it from an inside source that the guy who was shot in the London subway, by a supposed special police officer, wasn't him at all. It was an SAS guy that was sent to execute him. So they will do executions on command. They do certainly select them higher up from within their own sources for even higher compartmentalized units within their service itself for those particular jobs.

Diana: Yeah. I know that they are vetted at the lower levels to see if they can get into the higher levels and that, I can only assume at those higher levels, it get nastier.

Alan: Yes. You can tell by, I think it was Bo Gritz that had his own patriot radio station for a few years – the guy who turned IN the patriots afterwards and blamed them for bringing down the towers because he was a shill. He said himself, he kept talking about the people he'd assassinated. He thought it was all wonderful and he missed those days. I thought, there you go; he's a real psychopath there.

Diana: Thank you.

Alan: Thanks for calling. It's quite the world and these people DO exist and they are recruited obviously by those who can use these kinds of guys. Unfortunately they've got lots to draw on now from the youth culture they've created with video games; they're all desensitized to killing.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Queen's Speech: ban on mobile phones in jail" [Queen's Speech brings More State Powers] by Richard Ford, The Times - Nov. 18, 2009.
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

"Health and safety snoops to enter family homes" [Power to Enter all Family Homes] by Robert Watts, The Times - Nov. 15, 2009.

"Arnold Schwarzenegger visits Iraq - and aims to transfer military tactics to California" [PR article on Actor Schwarzenneger - Wants Military Tactics used at Home] by Oliver August, The Times - Nov. 16, 2009.
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

"Army tapes reveal motive in Iraq prisoner killings" [CNN - US Soldiers Execute Prisoners] by Abbie Boudreau and Scott Zamost (cnn.com) - Nov. 17, 2009.

"Carbon Insurance For Your Car May Be Down The Road" [Green Gas Taxes at Pumps] by Terry Tamminen (cnbc.com) - Nov. 13, 2009.

"Netherlands to levy 'green' road tax by the kilometre" [Holland Chosen to Spearhead Tax-as-you-Drive Scheme] (independent.co.uk) - Nov. 14, 2009.

"Pay problem parents not to breed - mayor" [Sterilize the Unfit says Mayor] (news.com.au) - Oct. 30, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting

Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 19, 2009 (#455)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 19, 2009:
Dedication to Legislation -- They are Legion for They are Many:
"Truth is All Around for Those Who Wish to Seek,
The 21st Century has Given Power to Every Control Freak,
Their Army, It is Structured to Boot All in One Direction,
Your Life's an Open Book, Authorized for Government Inspection,
Herd Management's What They Call It, Abolition of All that's Dear,
If You Like Making Own Decisions, Then You're a Rogue Steer,
This Control-Freak Planned Society is Coming Down the Pike, Disempower These Goons Before Too Soon, Force Them to Take a Hike"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 19, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 19, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 19th 2009. Newcomers, I suggest you look into .com web site and peruse all the audios you can go through at your leisure, for download. There are so many topics that are covered. There are hundreds of talks there. You can spend a long, long time listening to them because I try and patch together the holes into the big system we are given called History. The holes that you walk across at school that are just blanks there. We get battles and we get dates and times and winners and losers and famous people and all of that stuff but we're not given the reasons why and the geo-political reasons, the far-flung future scenarios that they plan way in advance and who benefits of course and again, who finances all this stuff, who profits from it all. I try and fill all the gaps in for you.

You can look into .com web site and when you are there bookmark all the other sites I have up because once in a while I get hassles from the big ones and if you bookmark these, you'll get all the latest downloads from the alternate sites. These are the ONLY sites I have. Anything else you see on the internet isn't mine. [Sites listed above.]

Remember too that you do bring me to you, you the listeners. No one's backing me here. If I was getting backed or authorized to be here, I wouldn't get the hassles I do get every darn day. It's up to you to keep me going. You can do so by buying that which I have for sale on the web site or you can donate to me as well. There are different methods of paying. [Options listed above.] You can order through PayPal as well if you just send me a separate email along with the PayPal order. It's up to you how you want to do it. Some people just send cash to cut out the little fat guy with the podgy fingers that gets fatter as we get poorer. For those who get the disks burned and passed around at meetings - they don’t use the computer - you can get in touch with me at [address listed above].

You probably find that I get a hard time getting the shows up recently. That’s because the satellite company that I have to deal with because I’m in the rural areas here, have leaned on me. Someone’s leaned on them - probably from the government no doubt - and told someone with the old school tie to give me a hassle. Lots of hassles I’ve had in the past with them but they’ve literally cut my speed to less than half. Once it goes below a certain speed, I can’t upload at all. That’s what happened last night. I can’t even record this live from the internet as I’m doing this show because that’s the poor speed they’ve given me. I’m going to talk more about that because people should not join Xplornet when they get ripped off like this. I’ll explain after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I mentioned before about the troubles with this particular company. It’s a subsidiary of Hughes military-industrial bunch and they own the satellites that run across Canada here. They sublet some of their waste, I would call it, to the population and we pay through the nose for it if we want to USE the satellite. It seems to be that they’ve arbitrarily demoted me from the higher speed that I’m paying for into the lower speed. They even emailed me to tell me I’m on the lowest package, even though I’m paying for a higher package. So I had to get in touch with them again and remind them that I’m on the higher package. Of course, I’m still waiting for any reply. They’ll keep this going for weeks probably. The last time it was about a month, two months. This is not by accident. They are not stupid. They’d like you to think its just bureaucratic, interdepartmental bungles and there is nothing further from the truth. This is how they give you harassment. This is standard harassment. Nothing you can take to court with, it’s just to give you harassment until you get off the air basically. That’s what they are trying to do.

In the mean time, they continue to charge me for the higher speed and they haven’t told their other department that’s what I’m on, supposedly, and they’ve got me under a lock. So it takes me hours and hours to upload every night after the show. Last night and today I was putting up the shows from last night and finishing it off today as well, and the speed dropped to 68 kilobits per second. 68. You’ve got to have over 90 or it’s failure speed. That happens continuously. It’s been like that for 3 or 4 weeks now. That’s the standard harassment you get. I know if I phone them up they’ll give me the next part, part two of the harassment and they’ll tell you, ‘It’s your satellite system.’ They told me that about 2 months ago and it cost quite and arm and a leg to replace parts that did not need it because afterwards I found out I was on a lock. That was the problem, but they conned and they lied and here they go again with the latest scam dropping me down to the lowest speed and claiming their other department has me down for that, even though the accounts department has me on the higher speed and they certainly take the cash for it. This is the company that took two years before they sent me a receipt for anything I paid for. Two years. Then I got them all at once, within the same week and a half, all at once. Sure enough, on those receipts it tells me what plan I’m on, which is the higher speed that they claim I’m not on. So this is what they do. They make you run from one department to the next and here they are all sitting next door to each other, probably in view of each other.

These are the con games that are played when you get harassment from the top. This is from the top because someone in Canada has given the word to someone with the old school tie and told them to just give him a hard, hard time. I promise you, any more of this stuff - and I’ve told them this too in an email - I’ll put a web site dedicated to putting them down and telling folk not to go on Xplornet. I’ll stop talking about them when they get me back up to the proper speed that I’m paying for. That’s my deal. That’s the only way you can deal with these people. They’re full of dirty tricks. That’s how they really come after people. They don’t just bump you off left, right and center unless they really have to, but they make it so hard for you to move or do anything in the hope that you’ll just throw up your arms and give up. That’s what they hope. Standard, standard harassment procedure from the top so I’ll keep on at this every night until they have the courtesy to reply to me on anything at all to do with this particular case.

I’m sure everyone out there in the audience knows that we truly are on a roll into a really totalitarian system. You can’t open a newspaper on any day without seeing more laws passed, more CALLS for totalitarian policies from people with uniforms on, policemen and officials at the top of policing, ALL demanding more rights to stick it to the public basically. That is all about the new world order. Everybody who’s a control freak now seems to be deliberately put IN to place, AT the right places, to make all of this come about. To most folk, they get lost in it. It’s a bewilderment of barrage of attacks from so many different directions they can’t really make sense of it, either that or they shut down all together, but the plan is very, very simple. You can look into the histories of ANY totalitarian regime in the past because they are all the same and they apply it to this one… and it's not difficult to do.

You always get a system, whether you are studying communism or Nazism, it's always the same system. You have the top clique at the very top who know the policies and the theory of their particular religion and you have all these fanatics down below them that are the enforcers of the religion. Then you have they pyramid all the way down to the bottom citizenry who have to obey the particular system but it's all RUN FROM THE TOP and everyone in it is WATCHED. That's the standard policy. They didn't have this ability to watch everyone so minutely as they do today back in the Soviet era or in the German Nazi era, but they certainly do have it today. It's no coincidence that the same big companies that worked on managing the totalitarian regimes, IBM and these kind of guys, are still at it today as well.

People think they are separate companies but that's not true at all. They are not separate companies. At the very beginning of the Cold War they said that THE COUNTRY THAT WOULD WIN WOULD BE THE COUNTRY WITH THE HIGHEST TECHNOLOGY AND SCIENCE. Therefore, obviously, they couldn't allow any particular company with a good idea to come out with technology and sell it to the public that hadn't been authorized by those at the top. IF people had sudden access to information that it's on, that would not do. So they made sure that THEY would set up - the CIA and MI-6 - set up legitimate corporations - international corporations, legitimate ones - that would lead the field so to speak. Now, you can't lead the field unless you are getting incredible funding from the tax payer. You can't do it. It's all war-based economies where science flourishes. Therefore, they've had these ongoing wars. Wars on terror; wars on poverty; wars on, wars on, wars on, all the way back, and wars on the Reds, now it's on those who are anti-Green. You get very confused with the colors but it's the same techniques that are being used today.

The ones at the top have access to ALL the data on every single individual almost across the whole planet. That's an incredible power that they've never had before. They have deemed it, with all their meetings over the last 40, 50 years at the top, that they would go through STAGES OR PHASES OF SOCIETY with the upcoming generations. They planned a long, long time ago to reduce the populations. They'd have to reduce the populations they said, to manage them. That means dominate them. When they say manage, it means dominate. The power elite must always remain the power elite. The first order of business is to protect the power elite, which most folk think of as the governmental structure but it's higher than government. Most of the guys who make and give the orders don't have to BE in government, they TELL governments what to do. In fact, everybody IN government is put there by them. That's the real meaning of democracy. Just like they wouldn't take a risk on allowing competition, say in the field of technology, they'd have to always be the advanced guard.

The same thing goes with politics. You could never let someone come in there that was really genuine and really can speak for the people and demand rights of the people, when you have a particular agenda that's not very kind to the people on your books waiting to go. So the politicians are vetted YEARS before we ever hear of the names of them and GROOMED for their positions. I'm sure they even know… they probably even knew when Obama came in that he would be coming in 10 years, from 10 years before sort of thing. I really mean that's how well organized it all is. And after so and so, it will be your turn; that's how it's done. Because they've got to be SURE of their man. They've got to be sure of them, 100% sure. No risk at all. They've got to be 100% sure of their man. That's how the Western democracies worked and still work today.

We have them coming out for the first time over the last few years of the big foundations OPENLY advocating the direction that the society is to take, the world society, with their MYRIAD of non-governmental organizations. Really, this is how the Soviet was run. This is the new Soviet system for the planet, an updated, upgraded Sovietized system. Sovietization was 'rule by councils.' The council leaders were all chosen by the Politburo and in our societies, the heads are all chosen by the foundations themselves. This is what's called 'the parallel government.' Now they're even openly taking in the heads of the NGOs into the big world meetings with them, pretending that they speak on behalf of the people… these special interest groups. Whereas in actual fact, they protect government and demand government pass certain laws to save the environment and cut down the population on behalf of their masters, like the Rockefellers. It's a beautiful cover isn't it?

They get the young always, always the enthusiastic young, brainwash them in a certain area, not really by giving them ALL information but SELECTED information and that's how you mislead people, by not giving them the rest of the story. So they use idealism and these youngsters are just like young, sovietized, brainwashed people. The same techniques are used even within their own particular groups; they use the communist system where from the top down… In communism, you had to study Lenin and Marx your whole life long, your whole life long if you were a member of the party. The idea being that through repetition and repetition you would LOSE THE SELF INTO THE PARTY. The party was the cause. You were a cog in the machine and you would be PROUD to be so. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just explaining how similar the techniques used for the Greenies out there are to the techniques used for the Sovietized system, the so-called Stalinist or Leninist concept, and how you had to go by the book once you joined these particular organizations and only read pro-Marxian stuff.

Now it's all, you must read the Lenin's of the Greening movement. That's all you read is that particular kind of stuff, anything else is taboo. That's to complete the indoctrination process by constant repetition. That's how you lead fanaticism. Of course, they're using fanaticism to bring in this so-called new world order with the promise – there's always a lie attached to the promise – that they're going to bring in this lovely utopia for all. It isn't until you look at the rest of the policies, especially the ones by Sir Crispin Tickell, the advisor on the Optimum Population Trust, he's advisor to Prince Charles and the British Parliament. They want to reduce the population. So you've got all these willing workers who are really bringing in their own extinction because you can guarantee, like Julian Huxley said, that many would believe that they would have the right to come through into this new world and they were going to be sadly disappointed. Well guess what? You're going to be, all those who are Greenies and don't want to hear anything else except peace, love and go green.

This is a method to literally bring in what was called The Communist Manifesto, the redistribution of wealth. Not from those that have the wealth, but from people who are working and paying taxes. That's where it all comes from. Everyone knows it. If you've noticed too, they're not going to make the big boys pay extra taxes; they never do. It was like when they jacked up all the taxes at one point, even the Queen for the first time went along with it kind of tongue-and-cheek, to pay taxes. Then a Man Alive program did a documentary. They tried to find out how much she's actually paid through this private accountancy firm that did all her bookkeeping for her and they couldn't even get past the guards at the gate. That's where the wealthy go. Of course, it ends up that she's paying nothing. In fact, they can actually claim more back then they put out apparently. Elton John said the same thing at the same time. He says, this doesn't effect the wealthy; they always leave a loophole for us.

So for all those fools who are always rah-rahing more taxes, they should understand that it's a communist idea. The redistribution of wealth is to flatten society, eliminate ANY middle classes right down till there is nothing left but a very poorly educated, by the way, working class - that's where they've brought us to almost now - and the ultra elite, well educated bunch of technocrats and bureaucrats that run the system in a communistic fashion for the fascists above them. That REALLY is it summed up.

People don't even realize that the amount of communist characters that still exist in society, still going along with the old ideals. I used to wonder why the socialists and communists in Europe and elsewhere always pushed for higher taxes. Coming from the working classes, the only people who were suffering from paying taxes were the working classes. They were the only ones hurting, believe you me, in Europe. These characters were always pushing for it. That's when I clicked into the idea that somehow there was a connection between these policies of excessive taxation and the big bankers. I was spot on. There's a big tie there because every group out there really is working for the big banker at the top.

Even in world wars, you don't have two opposing sides. You've got two opposing sides and you've got another one above them that kind of runs both sides - they could stop either side too - and that's THE BANKER lending out the cash, making his terms with compound interest rates and all the rest of it. The banking families are really a form of Royalty. They use the same tactics as Royalty. You can see it with the Rothschild's and all the other ones that came into, at least the limelight, in the 1700s and then the 1800s. They intermarry to each other, just like Royalty. They are the Royalty of finance. They have their own individual religion and their own individual belief system and you'd better believe it that they want to make sure that the world is going to be their great grandchildren's in the future - NOT OURS BUT THEIRS - as it always has been.

They use all the mealy-mouthed little prunes at the bottom, the little fanatics to go along with it all, still falling for the old Marxist ideal of just higher taxes and get the fairer society. This is from the Archbishop of CANTERBURY in England and it's from the Telegraph.

Archbishop of Canterbury claims higher taxes would be good for society (Alan: only a communist would say that.)
Higher levels of tax would be good for society, according to the Archbishop of Canterbury.
By Martin Beckford, Religious Affairs Correspondent / 16 Nov 2009

Dr Rowan Williams said that taxation should not be seen as a way of stifling business or redistributing wealth (A: How are you supposed to see it?) but helping to make the world a better place in which to live. (A: Well, what does that mean? It's going to stifle business and it's going to redistribute wealth from those who are working. How it is going to make it a better place to live in? See, this is the fantasy of Lenin. It's not meant to be understood; it was lie from the beginning. Here he is prattling this stuff off. And this guy IS a lefty. He's actually left of Karl Marx. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the communist type system that's been used by those with the most amount of money on the planet to bring in this new world order of so-called sustainability. Marx died basically; he just dropped dead and they couldn't bring it in the old-fashioned way, where they were getting less people joining up and so on. So they'd find a new way to achieve their aims and of course, global warming was the one that would "fit the bill" as the Club of Rome said. We'd all have to change our lives to save the planet. What a great idea. What a great con, isn't it? Here you have the communists again, all prattling on about it like Dr. Williams, the Archbishop of Canterbury…

Dr Williams, the most senior cleric in the Church of England and a self-confessed "hairy lefty", has made a series of critical statements since last year's banking crisis on the excesses of the financial sector and Labour's attempt to spend its way out of recession. (A: This is the guy that wants more taxes.)

In his latest comments, delivered to the TUC Economics Conference on Monday, he pointed out that the term "economics" derives from a Greek word meaning "housekeeping" and should be about "creating a habitat that we can actually live in". (A: Well, Mr. Hairy lefty, why don't you live in your own little hut and I'll live in mine. These characters have never lifted a broom in their life. He's got housekeepers and everything lifting everything up after him cleaning up. Its okay for these guys who've got guaranteed paychecks isn't it? I'd hardly call his job work. He's also a Druid, by the way. But that's the communist way, infiltrate everything, get to the top and that's it.)

However he said that over the past few decades, the market has been treated as an "independent authority", creating social disruption around the world and the "extraordinary phenomena" of debt trading. (A: He wants to increase taxation, that's more debt. That's more debt, you see. They governments will spend it as fast as they get it on some other project for the elite at the top. He's well aware of where the money goes. They always go cap-in-hand to the bankers that this guy really, really serves. The bankers live off debt and interest off the debt.)

Dr Williams claimed that the "fantasies of unlimited growth" had led to a "vicious cycle" in which consumers are encouraged to buy more goods, which also uses up limited energy and raw materials.

Instead, he said the economy should be geared towards creating a secure and sustainable environment for families. (A: Listen to their absolute hypocrite here.)

As part of this, the archbishop said: "We have to ask about 'green taxes' (A: Here we go, right on queue with the Rockefeller et al agenda.) (including 'green' tax breaks) that will check environmental irresponsibility and build up resources to address the ecological crises that menace us.

What ecological crisis? It's all a fantasy dreamed up by them, but it's actually better than communism isn't it? It's a better fantasy because they can scare the hell out of the people with imminent disaster. This is what they are doing. Even though the world is cooling, that's got nothing to do with it, nothing at all to do with it. They'll stick to that if you are up to your eyes in snow.

So he thinks that equal taxation will build a ‘habitat,’ a habitat… these guys think like armies. They love armies. They love people all marching along in armies. They love marching songs and marching tunes. They’ve got to think of society as all going along some road together, it makes them feel safer, rather than different people going out there doing their own thing. That kind of scares them, people doing their own thing… from these totalitarian freaks. If this guy truly was in a religion - which he obviously doesn’t even believe in and probably never ever did - but if he still was in the religion and he did believe in it, he’d be all marching along singing Christian songs. Now it’s ecological because his nature would never change whether he’s an atheist or he’s a religionist. It doesn’t change his nature. He loves this idea that we are ‘all in it together’ marching towards somewhere where the leaders have erected the Soviet system. Enough on that stupid left-of-Marx character.

This is the rubbish that we are getting fed from well-placed leaders at this particular time, all in the right positions at this particular time. I mentioned last night that Holland is the first country; they’ve been chosen. These characters don’t come out and just put on green road taxes. How can you get a green road tax when you’re on tarmac? Anyway…

Netherlands to levy 'green' road tax by the kilometre
The Independent - By Relax News / November 14, 2009

(A: They didn’t even wait for the Copenhagen Treaty to be signed. They want to show that they are really good guys; but they’ve really been chosen for the task. That’s because for about 20 or 30 years now all of the world can say, ‘well so-and-so’s doing it over in Japan so we should do it too.’ So they’re cutting heads off down there in the jungle of Latin America, so we should do that as well. That’s how they do that. They’ve been chosen in the Netherlands because obviously they think that the people there would have less chance of really bitching or doing something about it, or protesting it than elsewhere. That’s why they’ve chosen the Netherlands to kick it off.)

The Dutch government said Friday it wants to introduce a "green" road tax by the kilometre from 2012 aimed at cutting carbon dioxide emissions by 10 percent and halving congestion.

"Each vehicle will be equipped with a GPS device that tracks how many kilometres are driven and when and where. (A: They’re going to track your every movement.) This data will be then be sent to a collection agency that will send out the bill," the transport ministry said in a statement.

Ownership and sales taxes, about a quarter of the cost of a new car (A: A quarter of the cost.), will be scrapped and replaced by the "price per kilometre" system aimed at cutting the Netherlands' carbon dioxide emissions by 10 percent.

Dutch motorists driving a standard family saloon will be charged 3 euro cents per kilometre (seven US cents per mile) in 2012. (A: That’s just starting it off.) That would increase to 6.7 cents (16 US cents per mile) in 2018, according to the proposed law. (A: You know once they’ve got it on the books there, they’ll jack it up by about 20 cents and 25 cents and so on whenever they want to. That’s standard procedure.)

When they’re doing that, they already had the big OPEC meeting with the oils boys and told them to hold back their oil so that prices will go up before they sell it to the public. Here it is today. People think that oil companies and so on are somehow independent. Now, no country would allow itself to be held at ransom by a private business. That tells you that you’re already in the age of feudalism, CORPORATE FEUDALISM that’s merged with banking. Actually, it’s run by banking. Whoever gives out the loans is the boss, believe you me. Governments as well, they go cap-in-hand to borrow money from the bankers. They’d never allow someone to hold them at ransom; therefore it’s all decided amongst them at the top.

Sharks off the British coast: Oil tankers refuse to unload until prices rise... keeping YOUR fuel costs soaring
By Ray Massey / 19th November 2009

These tankers have been parked off our shores for months, refusing to unload their oil until prices have risen even higher. The delay makes millions for speculators... and keeps your petrol costs soaring. (A: That’s your gasoline.)

Laden with fuel, three oil tankers sit idly within sight of the British coastline, playing a waiting game that is driving up petrol prices for hard-pressed motorists.

They are part of a flotilla of ten vessels refusing to unload their cargo until market speculation has driven up its price to the level they want.

And as the value of that cargo is currently rising by over £1million a day, driven partly by profiteering traders and speculators, it is unlikely to see a petrol station any time soon.

As I've said before, these things all work together at the top. Believe you me, a government could quite easily just say 'hey, you're not going to import here again,' or slap a massive fine on them for playing the dirty. It doesn't happen because it's all agreed upon by those at the top, those who really run the whole system… it's all agreed upon. And with Holland spearheading this carbon tax on your driving - again, what a great scam, carbon tax - you can see where it's all going. People will get hit hardest in rural areas where they have to travel to work and their prices will all go up for all the incoming groceries, etc. That's standard. You pay a lot more in the country than you do in the city at the stores and gradually, gradually they will be forced out into the major cities that are already overcrowded but that's okay. We've all to live on top of each other until this generation dies off with all these cancers and so on that we're full of, apparently, since we got the first polio vaccines and we'll die off very quickly over a 30-year period but we'll riot now and then in the meantime. That's what they're getting all ready for and have been for the last 20 odd years. We're living through an agenda, an absolute agenda. They always give you a meme, or a thought, a way, a religion, a cause to believe in for each part of the agenda and that's what you're going through right now.

It's interesting too that Canada is going to get new uniforms for urban jungle warfare… IN Canada. Is that a little HINT perhaps of things to come?

Soldiers could get uniforms for urban jungle
Camo tailored for Toronto, Montreal, and Vancouver -- but not Ottawa
By David Pugliese, The Ottawa Citizen, November 18, 2009

OTTAWA — Future Canadian soldiers could be wearing new uniforms designed to provide camouflage on the streets of our largest cities. (A: Our largest cities… that's for the hard of thinking.)

The Defence Department will know by March what designs might work for what is being called a Canadian Urban Environment Pattern.

Those designs are to be based on the "unique requirements" of the urban settings of Vancouver, Montreal and Toronto, according to an outline of the project being co-ordinated by scientists at Defence Research and Development Canada in Suffield, Alberta.

Ottawa, the nerve centre of government and the military, was left off the list because it doesn't rate as a major metropolitan centre. (A: That's true. They do no work there.)

"We're not trying to slight any city in the country," explained Scott Duncan, head of the soldier and systems protection group at DRDC Suffield. "We chose the three largest urban centres to have baseline data in this early development project."

He said information gathered on what patterns might work best in those three cities could also have applications for other urban centres.

Duncan said the $25,000 study to come up with camouflage patterns did not necessarily mean a new uniform would be produced for the Canadian Forces anytime soon. Once the patterns are determined, the results will be presented to the Canadian military and it will be up to the leadership on how to proceed, he added. (A: Then he goes back to why they are doing it. This is beautiful.)

"If you were to refer back to the Canada First Defence Strategy, one of the principal mandates that has been given to our military is that they must provide protection to the citizens of Canada and help exercise Canadian sovereignty," Duncan said. (A: I heard there was an army of Laplanders going to come down here sometime in the near future. They are fed up of eating reindeer meat.)

"Given our large urban population, should any operations be required, there's a good probability that some of them will be taking place in urban environments."

Remember, the Department of Defence for NATO and Britain gave its 90-page document of the upcoming riots for 30s years. There's to be a 30-year riot period as they bring in food shortages and all man-made planned things. That was followed by the US military that came out with the SAME agenda. I have them up on my web site under the archives section. Canada also came out with its and lo and behold, they all agree with each other. There's going to be 30-odd years of riots and so on and unrest amongst the populations. So here they are, getting all ready. Just like the sci-fi movies they showed you where you have all these guys with their camo gear on fighting urban warfare against this bunch of peasants in rags and firing slingshots and all that kind of stuff. They're brazenly going ahead, getting ready for it all because that's their orders, right, from the top. That's why they're doing it, they've been told to. It's quite something.

Then we have more Canadians. Canada loves to portray itself as a country that's pristine, with all that lovely white snow that's covered with all the stuff from the chemtrails, but anyway… it tries to keep quiet and out of the major media over nasty incidents and corruption, even though there's plenty here. Just as it did when it kept it out of the world's news that Canada LED the world in military bacterial and viral warfare and did so from the start of World War II right up to the present. Once in a while something comes out and they get their faces all muddy. It says here…

Canadians handed over innocent Afghans to torture: diplomat
(A: A diplomat who was based there.)
Wed Nov 18 / By Murray Brewster, The Canadian Press

OTTAWA - A federal official has dropped a political bombshell on Parliament, alleging suspects handed over by Canada to Afghan authorities were tortured - and that the government was at best indifferent and at worst tried to cover it up.

Richard Colvin, an intelligence officer based in Washington who spent 18 months in Afghanistan in the No. 2 diplomatic post, delivered the stunning revelations to a packed committee room Wednesday.

His calm, precise recitation to the special House of Commons committee on Afghanistan directly contradicts nearly three years of assurances by the Conservative government that there was no credible evidence prisoners handed over to local authorities were abused, in violation of international law.

What they were doing there is the same thing as the US was doing in Iraq. This is how the army runs. It runs with the bureaucrats basically and orders come down from the top with certain quotas to fulfill and they have to go out and do it. They just round people up that are walking in streets. It doesn't matter as long as they're numbers, they're headcounts, and they're all put in for torture and abuse. As long as those quotas are fulfilled, everyone in bureaucracy is happy. Who suffers is none of their business. They don't care.

That's why they had the same kind of thing in the movie Brazil, a Terry Gilliam movie, an excellent movie about a very near future scenario where government is in total control of every aspect of life. He KNEW the scheme because he'd been brought up and educated in some of the best places on the planet. He obviously mixed with the people at the top who were discussing these things. How they'd have cameras up everywhere and how they'd have SWAT teams coming into folks' houses and kidnapping people, very efficiently, and killing the wrong people once in a while through bureaucratic blunders. Their whole job then, the whole movie in fact is how they cover their ass and try to blame other departments for this screw-up; the people who get killed really don't matter much at all to them. That's what we're going into now. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just reading an article about Canada and how the troops there are doing exactly the same as the US troops in handing over prisoners, to fulfill quotas basically – people who were in the wrong place at the wrong time – and how it's alienating the people from the troops that are supposedly out there to win the foreigners over. Well, they're not foreigners. They live there. They're not insurgents; they're resistance movements.

People don't like being invaded and eventually pipelines put across their land and all their goodies taken from them for foreign powers. That's what's happening, as it's happening in Iraq. I mentioned last week how they'd awarded all the top oil contracts to people like Exxon and all these characters. They got the first grabs at it all, presents if you like, of the oil fields there. The same thing will happen in Afghanistan and by the way, the poppies are still growing and the heroin is flowing because it's being protected BY the troops. The first thing that Bush did once they went into Afghanistan was to allow the re-growing of poppies. After all, Poppy Bush was not named Poppy Bush for nothing. He was head of the CIA at one time as well as being President and that's when they were swapping all the drugs for guns and all the rest of it to supposedly fight the lefties. Nothing changes.

I might manage to get Karen in from Oregon. Is Karen there?

Karen: Hi. Listen, thank you very much for what you do. I have a question for you. What do you think of Continental Congress 2009, aside from the fact that it's being totally boycotted by the regular, privately paid-for media?

Alan: I don't even know who's going to it or what really is going to be set up at it or whatever.

Karen: Alan, I really want to encourage you. Please go to it. You can go to taxfree15.com and you'll find a link to it. You can watch it live and actually its delegates who have been voted on by people in their states, from every state in the United States. Bob Schultz is spearheading it. Edward G Griffin has been involved. Gary Franchi is involved. These people are really taking the time to legally, legally document all the numerous grievances of our government gone wild and then to form a plan of action to peacefully and totally begin to withdraw support. It would be, in my opinion it's an awesome way for us to start to take back our power.

Alan: I'll tell you one thing. Something has to be done because if it goes much, much further there will be no chance of taking anything back. So I quite agree with you. Something really drastic has to be done because if you can't air your grievances, that's the last right you have, and have people have to address them and do something about them. They know darn well at the top themselves, there's nothing left except riots. It seems to me that they may very well ignore everything that's said by the people at the bottom trying to get their rights back and they may just go ahead with this whole scheme anyway. It looks to me as if the US was taken over quite some time ago, completely.

Karen: Well it was taken over but I believe that these are serious steps to take it back. I really want to encourage you, please go to taxfree15.com. Take that link and check out what they have to say and look at some of what is happening because it's an historic event and it's being completely ignored by the media.

Alan: I will check it out.

Karen: Thank you very, very much. And thank you for all you do and the happy news you give us each and every day.

Alan: That's right. Okay. [Alan laughing.] That's because it's always raining here. Thanks for calling.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Archbishop of Canterbury claims higher taxes would be good for society" [Archbishop of Canterbury Wants Higher Taxes] by Martin Beckford (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 16, 2009.

"Netherlands to levy 'green' road tax by the kilometre" [Holland Chosen to Spearhead Tax-as-you-Drive Scheme] (independent.co.uk) - Nov. 14, 2009.

"Sharks off the British coast: Oil tankers refuse to unload until prices rise... keeping YOUR fuel costs soaring" [Oil Tankers Sit off Coast Until Prices Rise] by Ray Massey (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 19, 2009.

"Soldiers could get uniforms for urban jungle" [Canadian Troops to Get Urban Uniforms to Patrol Canadian Major Cities] by David Pugliese (ottawacitizen.com) - Nov. 18, 2009.
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

"Canadians handed over innocent Afghans to torture: diplomat" [Canada and Torture] by Canadian Press (at citytv.com) - Nov. 18, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 20, 2009 (#456)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 20, 2009:
UN's Hey Presto! World Manifesto:
"We're Well into Training for New Paradigm,
The Fittest to Survive, though We All Started in Slime,
By Depopulation Techniques They Say it's Attainable,
So the Elite can Survive in a World More Sustainable,
Scientists, Anxious the Weather is Not Conforming
To Computer Readouts on the Belief, Global Warming,
From its Ivory Tower, UN Looks Down in Scorn,
'To Save the Planet, Less Children be Born,'
Repetitive Mantra, Never a Swerve,
Using the Air Only the Elite Deserve,
With People's Silence the Enemy Advances,
Must Protest Now, There'll be No More Chances"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 20, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 20, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 20th 2009. Newcomers, I always suggest you look into .com web site. Scroll down and check out all the other sites I have up there and bookmark them for future use. That way if the big ones go down again, or when they will, then you can always get the latest downloads hopefully from these other sites. Plus, if you find that you’re getting sticking on downloading, it’s because too many people go into the .com site at the same time. So if you occasionally use these other sites you might have less trouble. The ones to choose from, these are the only official sties I have. [Sites listed above.]

As always, you are the listeners, you bring me to you. No one backs me here. There is no company backing me. The ads on the show that you hear are paid by the advertisers straight to RBN so that I can be on the air. I’ve got nothing to do with that at all. It’s up to YOU to keep me going. You can do so by buying that which I have for sale [items listed below] on .com web site or by donating. You can also use PayPal for purchasing if you send an additional email with the PayPal email. It’s up to you. [Payment/donation options listed above.] You can send cash. That’s what people generally do. It saves them spending all that cash for a transaction for the bankers who seem pretty fat as far as I can see under my observations. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them at meetings and don’t like computers and they play them on their CD players, you can write to me at [address listed above].

You've probably been noticing over the last month or so that it takes sometimes 2 days to get the uploads for the show done. It starts out one night, like tonight, I'll be trying to upload, they cut me off at XplorNet and then I have to go into the next day as well. So it takes hours and hours to upload to my sites because XplorNet, that wonderful company that says you get high speed, has been basically persecuting me. That's the only way you can put it because they've given me so many lies in the past and told me it was all my fault, get my equipment checked and when I did and paid hundreds of bucks for new stuff I didn't need, they admitted then that they actually had me on a lock. So they were cutting me off when I went over what they claimed was my particular limit under the plan I'm paying. Then they claimed I was under the lower plan even though I was paying for the higher plan. I got back to them the other day and they've admitted yes, I am on the higher plan but I'm still over my limit. I'm using this thing literally 15 hours a week. That's what I use, 15 hours per week. I don't use it for surfing. I use it solely for uploading the shows. I don't use it on the weekends. I don't use it for email. I use dial-up for email. That's what happens to you when you're not AUTHORIZED to be out there. Someone pulls the strings and someone complies at the top. I hear the music coming and I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just lamenting my problems as unusual about XplorNet. This company that you pay through the nose for that apparently thinks that 15 hours a week is just too much. I don't think it's for everyone although I do know that there are a lot of complaints from other people on different sites about them. They have a lot of Canadians and US citizens at ransom. They should be called XploitNet, not XplorNet. For those that want to put the word in for me, you can always email them at this particular email address info@xplornet.com and tell them to get off my back and how ridiculous it is to make people pay that kind of money for 15 hours a week. Maybe then they'll start to get the message. They do like to keep their customers, that they often lie to, and blame it on your equipment that's at fault rather than tell them the truth.

They don't like telling you the truth and that you're on this particular lock. It's bad for advertising. It's bad for new customers because they don't tell you that when you sign on. This is a standard thing I've had with them over the years. I've gone through the trap of paying a few hundred extra dollars to get a guy in to inspect it and supposedly repair it. They replace things that don't need to be replaced, only to find out the next day you're back on the lock again. If it wasn't for a girl that was on one night that told me, 'They've got you on a lock,' I wouldn't know. So if I go over a certain limit it automatically cuts in. I can't even download this show. So for all those out there that are always telling me, look at this video, look at that video… I can't look at ANY videos on XplorNet. You can't do it. Therefore, if you want to send me videos, burn them and send them. That's fine and the address is [listed above]. I'd appreciate that because I'm in the dark here basically with this awful service.

That's all Canada is given. XplorNet is owned by Hughes industrial-military corporation basically. We get the spill over, the stuff they are not using and sell to the public. I guess that's how it works. It's exploitative prices for crappy service. So as I say, if you want to email them and put the word in for me I thank you. This is pathetic. There's no doubt someone's put the word in but if enough folk complain, they might start thinking it's better to have their new customers, as they're always advertising in all the major newspapers their lie about high-speed internet. They might just forgo their friendly, old school tie stuff and favors with the government and give me the speed I'm supposed to be getting. I'll keep on about them until they alter it too. Even if I can't use it anymore and they cut me off completely, I'll dedicate a web page to them and explain to the world what they do.

We're on the roll now to a new paradigm. A paradigm is something, it's a meme, or some even call it a meme virus. It's an IDEA that initially comes up in somebody's head and they put it to a think tank to find a new way of living to control the masses for 1000-odd years or so. Everyone's heard about the one they always hear about and that was Adolf Hitler. You never hear about the wonderful Lenin or Stalin and all the atrocities they do. Adolf Hitler talked about the Third Reich and 1000 years, it would last 1000 years. That wasn't something they were coming up with by themselves. That was to do with how we've always been run. WE'RE GIVEN AN IDEA AND A BELIEF SYSTEM FOR 1000 TO 2000 YEARS AT A TIME.

Old techniques, ancient techniques… in fact, if you go into the histories of India when the Aryans were going through it and conquering the peoples, the Dravidians they called the natives, they surveyed them. They surveyed each area because there were many different types of people in India and different cultures and they surveyed them. They actually give you instances where the Prince would appoint priests to study these people, like anthropologists would study people today. They'd find a new religion to introduce to them that would put them under control of the elites. It's worked well right up to the present time. They actually have records of this. I think it was Charles Forte that said, "In every age the proper peoples saw to it that the proper religion was created for the people. The proper people created the religion, they taught it properly to the people and the people believe properly." That's how it's always been.

Today, we're going from religion to global warming. That's to control all our lives more severely than any religions in the past did. There was always a kind of a leeway within religion. It couldn't break its own tenants of everyone is special and everyone is kind of sacred. They couldn't break that rule even though they would turn a blind eye often when the King wanted to behead someone or make examples of the peasants. With this scientific system we're in today with it's new paradigm where science it to rule us through technocrats and bureaucrats from birth to grave, then it's to be a horror show, literally a horror show as these bungling fools iron out their perfect religion for the next 1000 years.

It's no coincidence either that Arthur C Clark wrote his vision of the future – it was really the elites' vision of the future – in novel form with 2001, then 2010 because the century of change, even in his day when he wrote that book in the 1960s was to be the 21st century. He went to 2010, major changes then. They really ideally want a united America by then. They've got the united Europe and they hope to have the Pacific Rim region amalgamated too; the big 3 trading blocs. Then he jumps into 3001, so there's your 1000 years Reich, you see. That, under the Scientific Reich like Aldous Huxley said and Lord Bertrand Russell said, THIS PARTICULAR SYSTEM THAT THEY ARE BRINGING IN WOULD BE A TYRANNY, A SCIENTIFIC TYRANNY. Russell said if there is to be a tyranny of any kind, he'd rather have it to be a scientific type. That's exactly what we're going through, ruled from cradle to grave.

In fact, it's so beautifully planned because it's literally run on invisible gas basically. The whole thing is… it's a gas, man. That's what it is. Anyone can come up with any statistics that they want especially when they're using specially designed computers to give them the right kind of answers they want to hear. This is to rule our lives. In the past, you were terrified to go through a forest 300 years ago because it was gloomy and scary and you'd all been TAUGHT these things about ogres and stuff like that, or demons. Today, they just simply turned it into the catastrophe of global warming and gasses that you can see, feel or whatever else and WE are all to blame. Of course, the Club of Rome was the group designated to come up with this paradigm FOR THE BELIEF SYSTEM for the whole century and into 1000 years.

During the whole 1000 years, they plan to bring science up. It already is. Science has been brought up to the NEW God even though most of its theories are just that. They are guesses and sometimes not very good guesses at all. They are often very bad guesses. It depends on which ones the PICK to be the ones taught in universities as the good ones, until some other theory comes along and knocks it off its feet. Then they replace that quietly without ever admitting that they were wrong with the last theory. But we are to run our lives now by these theories and these technocrats and bureaucrats. That's the plan. That is the plan.

We are already a global society, have been since they signed the document in 1946 at the United Nations. We are well on our way to this totalitarian system. Every thing now is just a way of getting the herd to go along with it… with a kind of plausible excuse of global warming. You know, something that's hard to talk about because most folk come out of their homes and then into their vehicles or their cars or the bus or the train, to their office or where ever they work and then back by the same method and back into their home. They're in climate-controlled conditions all the time, so they never look up at the sky. They don't care if it's raining or not raining. That way they have no idea and no memory really of weather at all. It's quite fascinating. They're already in artificial environments and they don't even think about that. So it's easy for those who supposedly are experts in the weather to tell them as many lies as they want and they will believe it. They will believe it.

Those are 'the dead.' The people are 'the dead.' Those who never catch on to the system that rules them in all ages have been called 'the dead.' You'll find that in the New Testament, "Let the dead bury their dead." They have chosen, somehow or another, NOT to know. They're very easily led by the tiny minority that rules. The problem with those who are awake is those who rule them AND the majority because the majority and the elite who run them are like a symbiosis. That's how they work. That's why they chose the word 'democracy' because the masses will believe anything they are told by experts and they will always go along with what the elite want them to go along with, without grumbling, mumbling or anything else.

I've said and I'll continue saying it because this global warming is nothing but a farce. I've got a lot of exchanges between supposed experts in the field of climatology exchanging data with each other and professors from universities exchanging data and they're all totally confused and angry that the weather isn't cooperating with the theories. They're trying to find ways to explain why the weather isn't cooperating with their theories and projecting that in 20 years time we'll start warming again and all this stuff. They should really have stuck to the first idea they had back in the 60s and that was that we were going to go through a coming ice age. If they'd stuck to that they would have had more response than they have today, but they didn't because they chose the warming instead. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I was mentioning if the big boys had stuck to global cooling or the coming ice age back in the 60s they might have had more response and believability by the public, but they chose global warming instead.

I've said before, if we're up to our eyes in snow it won't matter, this agenda will keep going because it MUST go now. It can't stop. At the top they have this massive network of academia and thousands of men and women on salaries, huge salaries, for dreaming up these cons and working along with the cons and they make their bread and butter from the cons, professors of this, etc, etc and different kinds of supposed sciences. To be honest with you, are perfectly NEW sciences since people in the past centuries didn't study the atmosphere very much at all; in fact, NOT at all. This whole idea that we're suddenly going through a warming phase and we've heard all the rubbish about the melting poles and all the contradictions, as they say oh my God, the shelf is getting bigger instead of getting smaller, and there is more ice forming, and all that stuff, back and forth they go with it as though they're whipping up a hysteria. That's exactly what they're doing.

They even ADMIT they do hysteria campaigns at the United Nations when it's coming up to another agreement, another treaty for everybody to sign that puts us further into this totalitarian slavery. Here they are, going at it and at it. Meanwhile, the world isn't really complying but that doesn't matter. Facts don't matter when it comes to agendas. Here you have the newsobserver.com.

Early China snow brings death, havoc
(Alan: That's that global warming kicking in again.)
Sat, Nov 14, 2009

BEIJING -- Unusually early snowstorms in north-central China have claimed 40 lives, caused thousands of buildings to collapse (A: Because they're not used to snow.) and destroyed almost 500,000 acres of winter crops, the Civil Affairs Ministry said Friday. (A: That's really the Department of Information. Britain has one too. We've had one long before China.)

Nineteen of the deaths resulted from traffic accidents related to the storms that began Nov. 9, the ministry said in a statement on its Web site.

The snowfall is the heaviest in the northern and central provinces of Hebei, Shanxi, Shaanxi, Shandong and Henan since record keeping began after the establishment of the Communist state in 1949, the ministry said without giving detailed figures. It estimated economic losses from the storm at 4.5 billion yuan, or $659 million.

Chinese state media say some of the snow was induced through cloud seeding (A: Weather modification.), although the precise amount of snowfall in all areas was not reported, and it wasn't clear what the previous records were. (A: Then they go through and tell you how many inches of snow they had per day coming down. Some of the folks died in traffic accidents of course because they're not used to driving on the snow.)

So there you are. There's another story that tells you that it doesn't matter if your buildings are collapsing under snow, they're going to keep telling you that it's global warming right to the bitter end. Mind you, once they get everything they want signed into treaties and agreements it won't really matter much. You'll find that.

It's like the build-up to the invasion of Afghanistan and Iraq. They already planned to invade those countries BEFORE 9/11 happened in 2001 but it still took time before they went in, after the buildings went down by design. They just kept at it. Once it was done, they didn't bother explaining to the public why they were there. Once you're there, you're there. That's all they care about is getting there. It doesn't matter what leaks out to the public afterwards because once they're there, they say we can't pull out now because there will be chaos if we pull out… because they've destroyed all their policing capabilities and they've disrupted society so much. So that's what you get.

It's the same here with reproductive rights. I said years ago that if you have studied the books that these guys put out, the Russell's, the Huxley's, and all these boys, right back to John Stewart Mill and his son in fact, that worked for the British East India Company and the British Crown. THEY WENT THROUGH THE DEPOPULATION AGENDA EVEN BACK THEN IN THE 1800S. The Mills had it listed which peoples would be allowed to come IN to the new civilization - they called it - and the type that would have to die off according to Darwinian theory. Those that were obsolete could NOT come through into the new because they would bring the new down. That's what they based all the studies on, Darwin basically. That was their religion that everything had to fit into. They talked about the American Indians would have to go. Some of their theories went out and HG Wells said that even the Irish, maybe even the Scots would have to go as well; they've got a nasty habit of rebelling because they've got an allergy to tyranny and stuff like that.

Here we have it going on today under this greening stuff and the save the planet BS put out by the Club of Rome and the United Nations of course is at the top of the tree promoting it ALL with a unified front of SOLIDARITY. That's the whole thing. It doesn't matter how crazy all the scientists are amongst each other with their panicking that the weather isn't complying with their theories. It doesn't matter, as long as they present, MUST present a unified front to the public. The same as the communists did. In fact, they're using all the communist tactics.

This article here is from the Catholic Family and Human Rights Institute and I'll read this article when I come back, with another one on the same issue, how they're using it to bring down the population. Back with more after this break.

Hi. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix reading from an article that's from the Catholic Family and Human Rights Institute concerning the United Nations Population Fund, which is really a department of population CONTROL. It says here…

New UNFPA Report Goes Green to Promote "Reproductive Rights"
Volume 12, Number 49
By Piero A. Tozzi, J.D. / November 19, 2009 / c-fam.org

(NEW YORK – C-FAM) The United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) released its annual State of the World Population Report (A: They're high chutzpas, a state of the world population report, by what? By a PRIVATE CORPORATION called the United Nations.) yesterday, linking efforts to promote "sustainable development" and affect "climate change" to its "reproductive rights" agenda. (A: And that's what it's about, reproductive rights. This is all coming through this climate change and so on and sustainability.) Critics see the report as a thinly-veiled attempt to harness popular environmental concerns (A: Which they've made popular of course from the UN.) in service of population control.

The report, "Facing a Changing World: Women, Population and Climate," asserts that achieving "universal access to reproductive health" would both contribute to declines in fertility (A: They're talking about abortion and sterilization.) and "help reduce green-house gas emissions in the long run." It calls upon nations to "fully fund family planning services and contraceptive supplies." (A: It's amazing. The UN is involved in everything to do with bringing down the size of the world's population. I read an article about 2 months ago where their organizations in Peru had sterilized something like 40,000 women, under a lie, and never told them what it was really about. That's the beautiful United Nations for you.)

Sounding alarmist (A: Which they always do. That's the whole thing with the UN.), UNFPA claims that "The harsh realities of high per capita emissions among industrialized countries and swiftly rising ones among developing countries highlight the urgency of mobilizing all of humanity to stop collectively at the brink of this possible climate disaster zone." (A: Dun da-dun, dun, dun.) In a statement accompanying the report, UNFPA Executive Director Thoraya Obaid avers that "rapid population growth and industrialization have led to a rapid rise in greenhouse gas emissions. We have now reached a point where humanity is approaching the brink of disaster." (A: There they go.)

Peter C. Smith of the International Right to Life Federation observes that agencies such as the UNFPA always need a "looming disaster" to secure their funding." (A: And don't they ever.) Smith sees the "true looming disaster" as the "demographic implosion of the developed world" which is being exported to the developing world. The report touts declining birth rates in Japan and the European Union (EU) as positives and criticizes higher fertility in the United States (US).

In places, the report disavows overt population control arguments and acknowledges development specialists such as Bangladesh's Atiq Rahman, who attributes climate change to "consumption patterns" rather than "demographic considerations." Yet it also asserts that "Each birth results not only in the emissions attributable to that person in his or her lifetime, but also the emissions of all his or her descendents. Hence, the emissions savings from intended or planned births multiply with time." Further, the report states that "fear of appearing supportive of population control has until recently held back any mention of 'population' in the climate debate. (A: See, they're always dying to get to this point.) Nonetheless, some participants in the debate are tentatively suggesting the need at least consider the impacts of population growth."

Even though in the Western countries it's been dropping and even though they keep upping their immigration quotas. I read them off over the last few weeks, in Britain and elsewhere where they have to up the immigration to pay off the national debt. There are not enough people in Britain getting born apparently and it's the same with all the European countries. So there ain't no pleasing these guys because you're not supposed to just please them, you're supposed to die off quietly please. That's what they want. That's what they want… these control freaks… and let the better kind run the world and live in the world, not the riff-raff at the bottom. That's what they're talking about really. Scientific dictatorship eh?

From the Times, it's the same article again, in mainstream.

Birth control: the most effective way of reducing greenhouse gas emissions
From The Times November 19, 2009

I'll put these links up at the end of the show on my web site if I can get any speed up at all to upload anything whatsoever, which I think the chances of are probably very, very slim.

I've also mentioned in the past that this is going to effect EVERYTHING from whether you will be born, to what you'll DO in the new improved world Soviet system - what you'll do in your life - you know, the 'school to work' idea was the Soviet, Pavlovian idea. They're already doing it in most parts of the Western world but it's to go much further than that.

I've said too, you've got to follow the planks of the Communist Manifesto. Remember, the Club of Rome said that they favored the 'collectivist' idea. Now that's really a form of communism. It makes it EASIER for a centralized world body to rule the whole world - from the center - and that was always the KEY of Marxism: centralization of all authorities and all laws, all rules, all regulations, everything goes to the center. Can't have one state doing its own thing, another state doing another thing… the control freaks can't have that; they freak out with that kind of stuff. It's just too untidy. Free will is awfully, awfully untidy to them. They can't sleep at night when they think about it.

I've also said that one of the planks was the redistribution of wealth. That's exactly what they're putting through now, - they'll put through this Copenhagen treaty – the redistribution of wealth. The so-called wealthier countries are supposedly to give money to the third world countries to offset their carbon and all that rubbish. And it is rubbish. It's nothing more than the same Marxist agenda which the elite favor. I'm talking about the dirty, stinking, rich elite that favor it. It's much easier to control a Marxist system worldwide than any other kind of system.

Another part of it too, was the abolition of private property and with them putting up all the gasoline taxes, worldwide too, and that's to really skyrocket once they've signed this bill at Copenhagen. Some countries have already jumped the gun, like Holland, by introducing tax as you drive per kilometer and with a GPS tracking system, the government watches where you go and where you've been. Then people in the rural areas will start moving IN to the already overcrowded cities which are meant to crumble over the next 30-odd years and rioting as they bring in starvation policies… which they'll call RATIONING. But in the big cities, eventually, the only ones who can – and it's almost that way now – rent out accommodation are the big, big chain landlords with chains and chains of buildings to rent out. Private property is to be ELIMINATED.

PART of this whole deal with the Copenhagen treaty, they are already jumping the gun on this in different countries, is to start making it LAW that you have to have your house energy-rated before you can sell it. That's the big tool they're using, before you can sell it. They're already using this technique in Canada to do with water and the sewage or septic systems. You have to get a new sewage and septic system, up to the latest standard, and do it quickly before they up the standard again, before you're finished - and water - before you can sell your home. Well now it's to do with the entire energy. So it's no more a deal between the person and another person, the buyer and the seller, as-is, whatever. Oh no, now you've got to get the government in to it and get a LICENSE to own your property and to sell it.

This article here is from the EU Observer. That's the European Union Observer.

Construction sector across Europe given an eco-renovation
LEIGH PHILLIPS / 18.11.2009

EUOBSERVER / BRUSSELS - Making buildings energy-smart is sometimes seen by politicians as not as eye-catching a carbon reduction strategy as burying CO2 under the seabed or turning acres of cornfield into a fuel for cars. And yet the sector is responsible for a full 36 percent of the bloc's carbon emissions. (A: They're talking about the European Union. A bloc, they call it a bloc now… because only bloc-heads run it.)

While the parliament had voted for language in the legislation that would have required a carbon footprint of zero, the member states added the word 'nearly' to give them an out. (A: This is for the building permits.)

Homeowners selling their property and landlords renting it out will also have to state in sale or rental ads how energy efficient a building or flat is by 2012.

Greens in the chamber (A: Can you believe… you've got these vegetables in the chamber, greens in the chamber…) felt that the result was a clear victory, however "difficult" the year-long legislative process had been. (A: You have to go into who created the Green Party by the way, that pushed this world Soviet. Madeline Albright, I think it was her grandfather who was the best pal of Stalin and he was a guy who was given the task of creating the Green Party. You wouldn't believe the founders of it in Britain. Check in to it and you'll get a surprise.)

So here you have this big centralized government laying the law down, right down to can you drive without paying carbon taxes? NO. Are they going to punish you for driving over a certain limit? YES. Are they going to punish you for driving one mile? ABSOLUTELY. You're going to pay and pay and pay and now you can't sell your home. This is just the start of it because with every one of these laws they pass, they AMEND them and they AMEND them. The whole point of their attack is always to get it ON the books so they can amend them.

Isn't it amazing too, in the US you've got the same darn thing? …happening at the same time? What a coincidence! And you think we're not global? …enemies within? There's a bill there that's been put through. HR 2454, the Cap and Trade Bill as it's innocently called. No one knows what it means when they hear The Cap and Trade Bill. It says…

Congress > Legislation
H.R. 2454: American Clean Energy and Security Act of 2009
111th Congress

Beginning one year after the enactment of the Cap and Trade Act, you won't be able to sell your home (A: This is in the US.) unless you retrofit it to comply with the Energy and Water Efficiency Standards of the act. HR 2454, the Cap and Trade Bill, passed by the House of Representatives, if also passed by the Senate will the largest tax increase any of us has every experienced.

It will be more than that. You won't be able to sell your home and you'll have to get a license to sell it. Can you believe that? The exact same stuff as they just put through in Europe. International… INTERNATIONAL. There's no doubt about it, the only people who were truly organized in the Cold War were the communists. That's why they favored – the elite bankers and all the rest of them – they favored communism. You get DEDICATED workers all working and infiltrating all departments of every level of government, right down to the local level. They have solidarity. They will stand NO contrary opinions. It doesn't matter if one of their top chiefs gets found out to be a mass murderer or an utter pervert; they'll stand up for the party and protect them. That's the way they work. The same as the scientists right now who are all worried about global warming isn't getting the compliance from nature that it wanted. Even though they all agree they're not getting it, they must go ahead with their story… solidarity. That's why they're using it. Quite something.

As they phase out the old religions, they bring in the new. A belief system, remember, is something with ritual, something that's taught as FACT. It will stand NO rivalry. It has to be the top. This is what you have in the Times.

Evolution to be compulsory subject in primary schools
From The Times November 20, 2009 / Greg Hurst, Education Editor

Evolution is to become a compulsory subject for study in all state primary schools. The Government announced yesterday that Darwin's theory of how life evolved through natural selection would be a legal requirement in science teaching from September 2011, although it will be left to schools to decide how this is done.

The schools will already know. They get their orders, because they all belong to UNICEF. That's the United Nations Educational department where Julian Huxley was the first CEO. I've read from his own book what the function of it was to be… to CONDITION, INDOCTRINATE a whole generation into the new way of thinking that they want them to believe. That's what it's all about. So here they go with the new religion. That's all that Darwinism is. With me, you see, if I don't have enough facts on something, I just put it in a pigeonhole and put a question mark there; there are not enough facts to come to a decision on anything.

You need an awful lot of faith to believe in Darwinism. Why aren't there apes walking out the jungle every 100 years or so? …the occasional odd one here or there that's half man and half ape? It doesn't happen does it? No one has got any evidence that this has ever happened. They've got this whole incredible religion and that's what it is. When it's taught as fact, it's obviously a religion. Oh yeah, they say there are incredible jumps in evolution. See, evolution fits in with the elites' belief system. It's like Hinduism that also starts off with all this sort of matter and slime and it evolved from slime into something and then dies and comes back as a bigger something and better something than it was before. So technically, we all started as slime, but they believe at the top in their OWN religion that Darwin's theory SUITS them.

Darwin really was a front man FOR their religion. They really do believe at the top that they are more evolved AS A SPECIES than the rest of humanity. That's what gives them the right to rule us. That's what they believe. Not much different from the old King and Queen stuff. People used to touch the robes of the King or the Queen because they were HOLY. They literally were the nearest thing to God. If they wanted to be cured, that's what they would do; they would touch the robe. Amazing stuff. How incredibly arrogant and narcissistic and egocentric certain individuals are. Unfortunately, they're psychopathic and they always jump for power over others and they end up in politics and in international political associations. Then they dominate the rest of us. Then they give us hell. That's what their utopia is… when we're all in hell and you can't move. So here's evolution to be taught there

The move, which was welcomed by scientists (A: Because that is their belief system.), comes despite a drive to slim down the national curriculum for primary schools and leave teachers greater discretion over what to teach.

British history will also become, for the first time, an explicit part of the curriculum that primary schools must teach, although it makes no reference to which kings, battles, periods or events should be taught. (A: And who cares what bunch of psychopaths ended up leading what. That's all it is, isn't it? Who won this battle and who robbed the land of someone else. Who married the other Queen over the water and this country was given away as a dowry… with all the peasants on it. That's history. That's what history truly is, isn't it? Quite something. Quite something.)

In the US, it's just astonishing. CNNMoney.com.

$4.8 trillion - Interest on U.S. debt
Unless lawmakers make big changes, the interest Americans will have to pay to keep the country running over the next decade will reach unheard of levels.
By Jeanne Sahadi, CNNMoney.com senior writer / November 19, 2009

NEW YORK (CNNMoney.com) -- Here's a new way to think about the U.S. government's epic borrowing: More than half of the $9 trillion in debt that Uncle Sam is expected to build up over the next decade will be interest.

More than half. In fact, $4.8 trillion.

Boy oh boy, we're doing so good. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix and just one last article before I take a caller. Remember, these links I put up on my web site if I can possibly get anything uploaded at all with XplorNet's awful speed they're giving me and you can check them out once I've done the show or check them out tomorrow. It goes on about the new smart meters that they're putting in across Canada and certain parts of the States.

Your smart meter is watching
November 17, 2009 / Ann Cavoukian / thestar.com

Times have changed, and today the grid offers a virtual window (A: These smart meters.) into your home – providing granular levels of information such as when you cook or shower, and for how long.

Then it goes on about all the possible abuses. Well of course, it's for the government to snoop on you too. They can actually tell you what's running in your home, which appliance is running because everything has got a signature. If your toaster's on or whatever, they can tell what it is. Eventually, you'll have to pay in advance and you'll get punished if you go over a certain amount. They'll just cut you off. They can cut you off remotely now; they don't have to come to your home with these smart meters. So that's what they're doing right now.

Obama apparently is going ahead with it too. By the end of 2010, he's put in $3.4 dollars to build up the smart grid in the US as well.

Obama announces $3.4 billion in grants for smart grid
By Steve Holland 2009/10/27

ARCADIA, Florida, Oct. 27, 2009 (Reuters) — President Barack Obama on Tuesday announced $3.4 billion in grants to help build a "smart" electric grid meant to trim utility bills, reduce blackouts and carry power generated by solar and wind energy.

So I'll put this link up too for those in the US. That's what you get isn't it. There are a lot of kooks out there as well. No doubt they're all angry about me bringing down their global warming hoaxes and stuff like that. That's what you expect to get when you're bringing out the other side of the story.

See, I don't mind people bringing out the other side of a story. What you'll find with those who lie and cheat and control the world is they only give you PART of a story which will lead you to the proper conclusions, the ones that they want you to come to. If they don't give you the whole of the story, you can't come to a truthful, a more informed conclusion. That's how we are. We're treated like children at this level. We're given almost childish responses by government departments, corporations and all the rest of it. We're too lowly down the totem pole to understand the big things in life, like global warming.

I was reading from an article recently from Africa where some parts in South Africa have had frost and all the rest of it and really cold temperatures, the first for maybe 20, 30 years. The people in the streets - because of their conditioning they are getting on global warming - are being told that this is a part, the FREEZING is a part of global warming. Now there is double-think for you, where you'll actually rule out your own observations, your own daily observations, and monthly and yearly observations and believe the so-called experts and then you're in double-think, absolute double-think. Yes, it's freezing but it's due to global warming. How more double-think can you get? That's called brain damage. That's what that is, but that's the kind of world we live in. The internet has a lot of good people out there, there's some really bright people and as someone said recently, a lot of trolls as well.

From Hamish and myself up in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods go with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Early China snow brings death, havoc" [China Snowstorms] Associated Press (newsobserver.com) - Nov. 13, 2009.

"New UNFPA Report Goes Green to Promote 'Reproductive Rights' " [UN on Population Control with Usual "Panic" Hype] by Piero A. Tozzi, J.D. (c-fam.org) - November 19, 2009.

"Birth control: the most effective way of reducing greenhouse gas emissions" [UN Wants More Abortions and Sterilizations to cut Co2] by Ben Webster, The Times - Nov. 19, 2009.

"Construction sector across Europe given an eco-renovation" by Leigh Phillips (euobserver.com) - Nov. 18, 2009.

"H.R. 2454: American Clean Energy and Security Act of 2009" U.S. "Cap and Trade" Bill (govtrack.us).

"Evolution to be compulsory subject in primary schools" [Darwin's Religion to be Compulsory in Schools] by Greg Hurst, The Times - Nov. 20, 2009.
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

"$4.8 trillion - Interest on U.S. debt" [US Debt-5 Trillion is Interest Alone] by Jeanne Sahadi (cnn.com) - Nov. 19, 2009.

"Your smart meter is watching" (thestar.com) - Nov. 17, 2009.

"Obama announces $3.4 billion in grants for smart grid" by Steve Holland (at reuters.com) - Oct. 27, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 23, 2009 (#457)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 23, 2009:
Top Climate-Fudging Professors -- The Higher They Climb, The Harder They Fall:
"For the Greenies Who Think Warming is Our Fate,
Here Comes the Hot Scandal of Climategate,
Top Climate Professors, Opinion Not Budging,
Admit to Each Other Their Theories They're Fudging,
Hacked E-mail Exchanges will Make You Sick,
Such as Altering Data Using 'Nature Trick,'
Combining Real and Fake Data for Casual Perusal
So the IPCC Masters Tolerate No Refusal
To Reorganize All Life Existing on Planet,
Their Lies Now Exposed, We Demand They Can it!"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 23, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 23, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 23rd 2009. Newcomers should look into .com web site and scroll down and bookmark all the other sites I have up on that front page. [Sites listed above.] These are the ONLY official sites I have so if you bookmark these and the main servers go down – as they’ve done in the past and they have cut me off or whatever – then you can always get the latest shows by going into one of these sites.

I always start off the show by saying that the listeners bring me to themselves. No one backs me here. That way I’m not compromised by what I can or can not say. Unfortunately, if you are backed by a group or a foundation or even products and someone asks you a question, you can’t really tell them the honest answer especially if you don’t think it’s a good idea. That way it’s up to YOU to keep me going. The ads on this show are paid by the advertisers right to RBN for the air time, the staff, equipment and bills. So it’s up to you to keep me going and you can do so by buying that which I have for sale on any of my web sites – books, CDs, DVDs – and that might help me tick over. You can donate to me as well. [Options listed above.] It’s up to you how you do it. You have to really check around because a lot of these companies charge quite a fee for sending anything or wiring something. So find out what one is the cheapest for you and go that way. If you want to order [items listed at bottom]. I will get the order out to you as soon as I can. For those who get disks of the show burned and passed to them to play on their CD players – they don’t use computers – you can get in touch with me at [address listed above].

It's quite interesting, and I'm sure everyone has known about it too, since the weekend. It's all over the internet that one of the main university sites to do with global warming, the one that gives out the most disinformation, had its web site hacked last week. Information was put out there by the hacker on Friday I think it was and it's been all over the place. Now the mainstream media has picked up on it. It's in mainstream news articles and I'm going to go into this in a minute. It's quite interesting to see just how low these so-called professionals, the ones that everyone is supposed to take as the gospel truth makers. This is how low they have sunk to create the whole MYTH OF GLOBAL WARMING and how they collude with each other to deceive the public and governments too. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just talking about the incredible scandal that's broken out and they're calling it 'ClimateGate.' Where someone had hacked into the main site that all the big professors use across the world, the ones who are living off this whole climate scam and hope to get risen higher as they get more authority given them under the climate deals and all the rest of it. How they colluded and fudged all the data they've been handing out to everyone else. There are lots of emails there. I'll put all this stuff up on my web site at the end of the show, all the different links, and you can look them over yourself.

The main download itself that was put up is about 60-odd megabytes. It's a huge thing. It has thousands of emails that these guys have interchanged amongst themselves. They even admit that they fudged the figures there. You can see it in there where they use creative – like creative accounting – they do their own creative research where they add some true facts and figures in with the fake ones and they ADMIT to doing it. Not only that, there are emails there from certain professors telling the rest of them to scrub previous emails because it's against their agenda. If there's any doubt whatsoever, in other words, in where they're going with all this stuff or any contrary evidence, they're told to scrub it. This has all come out in the open. I've no doubt they'll respond to this with silence. When the CIA or MI-6 get caught in something, they get silent, just silence from them and they hope that you'll just go away and leave them alone. Generally that works unfortunately. I HOPE PEOPLE DON'T LEAVE THIS ONE ALONE BECAUSE IT'S TOO BIG.

Our whole lives are going to be changed according to this whole scam and Al Gore and the whole big globalist agenda. A planned society is to come out of this, total control from birth to grave. I think it was one of the ex-communists who is now President of one of the EU countries who said the same thing. He said isn't it amazing that these present dictators in a sense, these so-called global leaders, tell us what to eat and what to think and what to do. He says it's just like communism and he's not wrong at all. He's not wrong at all. It's exactly the same technique. If you look into the big players behind all of this, they've been funded by the CFR/Royal Institute of International Affairs, the ones that Carroll Quigley – who was the historian for those particular groups – said they are often mistaken for communists because they use the same goals and the same agenda BUT very rich people run it, some of the richest people in the world in fact. So they want to have a planned society but it's being blown off.

This article here is from The HeraldSun.com.au. As I say, it's been it the Wall Street Journal and everywhere and the Telegraph in Britain and I'll put these links up too. This is one from The Herald Sun.
Warmist conspiracy exposed?
Andrew Bolt / Friday, November 20, 2009

8.15 PM UPDATE: The Hadley University of East Anglia CRU director admits the emails seem to be genuine: (Alan: The ones that have been posted up.)

The director of Britain's leading Climate Research Unit, Phil Jones, has told Investigate magazine's TGIF Edition tonight ..."It was a hacker. We were aware of this about three or four days ago that someone had hacked into our system and taken and copied loads of data files and emails."… (A: So the guy has admitted that someone was in. This is from a particular university, East Anglia, and they are the sort of leaders for all the other universities across the world that are making their living on this climate scam.)

TGIF asked Jones about the controversial email discussing "hiding the decline", and Jones explained what he was trying to say….

So the 1079 emails and 72 documents seem indeed evidence of a scandal involving most of the most prominent scientists pushing the man-made warming theory - a scandal that is one of the greatest in modern science. I've been adding some of the most astonishing in updates below - emails suggesting conspiracy, collusion in exaggerating warming data, possibly illegal destruction of embarrassing information, organised resistance to disclosure, manipulation of data (A: That's fudging it all.), private admissions of flaws in their public claims and much more. If it is as it now seems, never again will "peer review" be used to shout down sceptics.

This is clearly not the work of some hacker, but of an insider who's now blown the whistle.

Not surprising, then, that Steve McIntyre reports:

Earlier today, CRU cancelled all existing passwords. Actions speaking loudly.

But back to the original post - and the most astonishing of the emails so far…

****

Hackers have broken into the data base of the University of East Anglia's Climatic Research Unit - one of the world's leading alarmist centres - and put the files they stole on the Internet, on the grounds that the science is too important to be kept under wraps. (A: It's absolutely true. This is the greatest con in history, the greatest con in history. It's a creation of a whole new way of living, a whole new modus operandi for everyone, for the whole planet. It's a new religion. It's everything all in one… economics, the whole lot.)

The ethics of this are dubious, to say the least. But the files suggest, on a very preliminary glance, some other very dubious practices, too, and a lot of collusion - sometimes called "peer review". Or even conspiracy.

A warning, of course. We can only say with a 90 per cent confidence interval that these emails are real. (A: Well, they all seem to be. Then he gives other links here too. He gives you some of the emails exchanged between the different scientists. This is the famous one here.)

From: Phil Jones
To: ray bradley ,mann@XXXX, mhughes@XXXX
Subject: Diagram for WMO Statement
Date: Tue, 16 Nov 1999 13:31:15 +0000
Cc: k.briffa@XXX.osborn@XXXX

Dear Ray, Mike and Malcolm, (A: This is from these professors.)

Once Tim's got a diagram here we'll send that either later today or first thing tomorrow.

I've just completed Mike's Nature trick (A: They call it the 'nature trick.') of adding in the real temps to each series for the last 20 years (ie from 1981 onwards) amd from 1961 for Keith's to hide the decline. (A: See, we are in a cooling phase and it doesn't go with the agenda so they're fudging the figures.) Mike's series got the annual land and marine values while the other two got April-Sept for NH land N of 20N. The latter two are real for 1999, while the estimate for 1999 for NH combined is +0.44C wrt 61-90. The Global estimate for 1999 with data through Oct is +0.35C cf. 0.57 for 1998. (A: They show you how they do it; how they add real data in with fudged data to try and prove we're actually warming when in fact we're actually cooling. So they do this 'nature trick,' they call it.

Thanks for the comments, Ray.

Cheers
Phil

Prof. Phil Jones
Climatic Research Unit Telephone XXXX

School of Environmental Sciences Fax XXXX
University of East Anglia
Norwich

(A: There is another one too talking about the BBC's u-turn on the climate. The BBC were all pro-climate and then they sort did a little u-turn when all the snow was falling across the planet.)

From: Kevin Trenberth
To: Michael Mann
Subject: Re: BBC U-turn on climate
Date: Mon, 12 Oct 2009 08:57:37 -0600
Cc: Stephen H Schneider , Myles Allen , peter stott , "Philip D. Jones" , Benjamin Santer , Tom Wigley , Thomas R Karl , Gavin Schmidt , James Hansen , Michael Oppenheimer

Hi all

Well I have my own article on where the heck is global warming ? We are asking that here in Boulder where we have broken records the past two days for the coldest days on record. We had 4 inches of snow. (A: These are the guys that are trying to tell us it's global warming, talking amongst themselves.) The high the last 2 days was below 30F and the normal is 69F, and it smashed the previous records for these days by 10F. The low was about 18F and also a record low, well below the previous record low.

So they know the planet is cooling but they are fudging all their data to get this POLITICAL agenda through. Now, you can not have science blended with politics. You can't do that any more than you can have medicine blended with politics because then you have agendas coming through and that's exactly what we have here. It's a political agenda, the biggest agenda that's been planned for the last couple of centuries really, to totally alter the world… totally alter it completely. It's quite fascinating to see what they're up to.

From the Environmental Leader. That's in energy and environmental news for business.

Climate Scientists Alleged to Have Manipulated Data
November 23, 2009 / Environmental Leader - Energy and Environmental News for Business

Thousands of sensitive documents and emails including some climate change docs dating back a decade ago that indicate scientists may be overstating the case for global warming by manipulating data were stolen from Britain's Hadley Climate Research Unit by Russian hackers, according to many news reports and blogs.

The release of 1,000 emails and 3,000 documents is fueling the debate between scientists who believe man is responsible for global warming and skeptics of climate-change findings, calling into question the validity of many climate-change reports.

However, the head of the Climatic Research Unit at the University of East Anglia in Britain, Phil Jones, told The Australian that he cannot confirm which of the emails are authentic and which are fakes. (A: That's the best they can do... after admitting they were hacked into and all these emails were stolen.)

Some old emails from scientists made references to different ways of evaluating the climate data, according to a Wall Street Journal blog.

Initial reviews of the leaked files show that world-renowned climate scientists may be manipulating computer climate modeling data and research reports to support the theory that man-made greenhouse gases are causing global warming, reports Examiner.com. (A: It goes through the different news articles.)

The leaked documents give credence to many skeptics of man-made global warming, who have argued that the scientific consensus was not as strong as the official Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) (A: That's the United Nations paid-off group.) summaries indicated and that climate researchers ostracized other scientists who presented different findings, reports The Australian. (A: That's what they were doing too. This clique, this politically high-paid clique that all have darn good connections I'm sure with Al Gore and the agenda, they were literally canceling out reports that contradicted their fudged ones and they weren't publishing them; a deliberate attempt to stifle all relevant findings. Amazing isn't it? It really is amazing. It's only amazing that someone managed to get it out. That's what's amazing in this day and age. I tell you, it will never happen again. It will never happen again. So WE CAN'T LET THIS GO. We've got to ride this to the bitter end because it's either that or total world socialism from birth to grave. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just going over one of the many articles out there on this incredible exposé of cover-ups and fudging documents to suit their agenda that the big scientists to do with the climate scandal have been up to, including deleting emails.

The emails that are here, that were hacked, where the guy Phil Jones from the University of England emails the other professors and tells them to start scrubbing all the information that had been passed between each other because they were going to get an audit, for the climate audit. So they were asking them to scrub all this stuff that negated global warming theories that they had passed amongst themselves. Here is one here.

This is from Phil Jones to Michael E Mann.

From: Phil Jones <p.jones@xxxxxxxxx.xxx>
To: "Michael E. Mann" <mann@xxxxxxxxx.xxx>
Subject: IPCC & FOI
Date: Thu May 29 11:04:11 2008

Mike,
Can you delete any emails you may have had with Keith re AR4?
Keith will do likewise. He's not in at the moment - minor family crisis.
Can you also email Gene and get him to do the same? I don't have his new email address.
We will be getting Caspar to do likewise.
I see that CA claim they discovered the 1945 problem in the Nature paper!!
Cheers
Phil

Prof. Phil Jones
Climatic Research Unit Telephone +44 (0) 1603 592090
School of Environmental Sciences Fax +44 (0) 1603 507784
University of East Anglia
Norwich Email p.jones@xxxxxxxxx.xxx
NR4 7TJ
UK

Destroying government data subject to an FOI request is a criminal offence. Is this data being deleted the stuff CA asked from Jones in repeated FOI requests? If true, Jones had better get himself a lawyer very fast, but I doubt very much he would have done anything remotely illegal.

It's just astonishing, just astonishing to see what they've been really up to, fudging reports and all the rest of it, not letting IN reports by scientists with contrary data so they can present a united front for the global warming agenda. Believe you me, they are living high on the sudden importance these guys have. They've never had it so good now that everyone is coming to them for advice and what to do and what do they predict and blah, blah, blah. They are living high on the hog and they see the ground coming up fast here.

So people can't let this go. They've got to really push it because it's more than just a bunch of scientists. This is part of a whole political agenda for the planet that's underway and WE'VE GOT TO STOP IT AND EXPOSE THIS STUFF AND GET IT ALL OVER THE PLACE AS FAST AS WE CAN AND NEVER LET GO OF IT, no matter how distracted because you have no idea how every government on the planet will sign on along with the IPCC at the United Nations and we will have no life at all. We'll be slaves to paying taxes for all kinds of things and energy units and energy consumptions and carbon taxes, etc, etc, AND depopulation by the way. I read the articles last week on that, how the UN has jumped on this whole thing saying they have to sterilize more people, then there are basically less offspring to cause CO2, etc, etc, etc. INCREDIBLE. Incredible… All because their cliques of utter liars out there are getting well paid and they are going for a political agenda, a world political agenda. Quite something else… quite something else.

Here is an article by the greenie columnist in the Guardian.co.uk. To show you the terminology these creeps use when someone who doesn't agree with the global warming theories comes out and says so, they really smear them. They use nasty tactics like calling them climate change 'deniers' and global warming 'deniers.' They use the techniques like Nazi, you're a Nazi. As soon as you hear the word you shut up, you see, or you're anti-Semitic and you shut up. It's the same technique that they're using here. They are connoting that climate change denial is like holocaust denial. That's the simple tricks that they use but it works very, very well. This is the guardian.co.uk on a member of the European Parliament, an MEP as they call them.

I read about maybe 2 weeks ago articles where the British government had asked the Anglican Church and all the other churches to 'go green' and start preaching 'green' in the pulpit to the public and they're doing it. They are doing it. They can't mention that when they put leaflets out to the general public, the churches can't mention God or Jesus or anything, but they can mention climate change. That's okay… and they're going along with it; these FOOLS are going along with it. Where are their guts, eh? Where are the guts? There are no guts anywhere any more. It says here…

Climate change denial MEP attacks church
(A: So there you are, 'denial'. That's him smeared as soon as you start off the story.)
Roger Helmer says Anglican hierarchy has dropped the gospel in favour of 'the new religion of climate alarmism'
Allegra Stratton, political correspondent guardian.co.uk, Friday 20 November 2009

A Tory MEP has accused the Church of England of having "abandoned religious faith entirely and taken up the new religion of climate alarmism instead".

Roger Helmer, who resigned from the Tory frontbench in Europe when the Westminster leadership dumped its promised referendum on the Lisbon treaty, used a magazine article to urge the Church to "get back to the gospel".

Referring approvingly to the work of another writer who said bishops were spending more time "preaching climate change than the gospel of salvation", Helmer wrote: "The recent multi-faith conference at Windsor suggests that other world religions are taking the same line on climate change. (A: Well they've all been bought off, you see.) This is particularly ironic at a time when the world is cooling and when more and more scientists around the world are breaking cover to challenge the theory of man-made global warming. (A: They have been up until this scandal broke. As I say, they've been hiding all the evidence that's contrary to their fudged reports. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article about a Member of the European Parliament who's really lambasted and called a 'DENIER', a denier and all that kind of stuff. That's what the greenies are supposed to do, immediately discredit you by a TERM, the use of terms… psycholinguistics in action. This article goes on to say…

Helmer is one of a growing band of European politicians threatening to cause trouble for the Tory frontbench in the first few months of any government it may form. He and his eurosceptic colleagues insist they will not drop their campaign for a referendum on Lisbon.

Analysis by the leftwing website Next Left (A: I guess that's further left than left, you know, beyond Marx.) has shown that the top 10 Tory bloggers are climate change sceptics. This week Helmer convened a conference of climate change deniers at the European parliament. Speakers included Ross McKitrick, a Canadian professor who has said data indicating global warming has been fiddled (A: Meaning totally fudged.); Tom Segalstad, a Norwegian geologist who says human-released CO2 would not have a large effect on the climate; Fred Goldberg, co-author of the polemic The Global Warming Scam; Hans Labohm, a Dutch professor who challenges the existence of global warming; and Professor Fred Singer, who wrote the documentary The Great Global Warming Swindle.

And a SWINDLE IT IS. It really is the far left's, which is really the far, EXTREME right, meaning the international boys that own the banks and do the money lending to the international countries and so on, the banks; it's really their agenda. That's exactly why Professor Carroll Quigley said, the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR and their tactics and the fronts that they use are often mistaken for communists. It's the same agenda for a controlled, collectivist society. That's why.

That came out at the Reece Commission in the US in the 1950s, the blending of the Soviet system with the West. It's happened folks. It's happened and you've been under it for quite sometime. In fact, you were under it BEFORE the Berlin Wall went down. They were simply moving on to the GLOBAL agenda. For every new era and for a new totalitarianist regime, you need a new religion, a new belief system, a new reason for existing, with new laws and rules and all the rest of it. That's exactly what all this Al Gore rubbish is all about. That's why all the big boys are in on it. They have been given their orders. That's why. Quite simple, given their orders. Ah, it's amazing.

It's quite amazing too that the IMF comes out and it's on the Times Online.

IMF warns second bailout would 'threaten democracy'
From Times Online November 23, 2009 / Angela Jameson and Elizabeth Judge

(A: I've got to laugh at democracy, what democracy do we have?)

The public will not bail out the financial services sector for a second time if another global crisis blows up in four or five years time, the managing-director of the International Monetary Fund warned this morning.

Dominique Strauss-Kahn (A: That sounds like a waltz.) told the CBI annual conference of business leaders that another huge call on public finances by the financial services sector would not be tolerated by the "man in the street" and could even threaten democracy. (A: What is democracy? It's when the bankers rape you and your government rewards them. Is that democracy? Hmm?)

"Most advanced economies will not accept any more [bailouts]...The political reaction will be very strong, putting some democracies at risk," he told delegates.

"I do believe that the financial sector needs to contribute both to the costs of the financial crisis and to reduce recourse to public funds in the future," he said. (A: Well, they weren't supposed to be using public funds THIS time either. It shouldn't have happened. It shouldn't have happened at all.)

It's quite interesting too that here they go… Before things are really all signed and settled and deals are made and all the rest of it and it's all in writing and it's become part of everyday life, they're always ramping ahead with the agenda regardless because it's a done deal before they sign anything, you know, to do with from the IPCC and the Copenhagen Treaty. As I say, even Holland has gone ahead, very goody-two-shoes, and going to put GPS tracking devises in everybody's cars and charge them carbon taxes per kilometer - that will happen worldwide - BEFORE they've signed the agreement.

This article is from The Telegraph.

EU history will be all the history taught in schools
(A: So they are given a new history, you see, for the students at school. The obliteration of the past and a new fake one - everything is fake now – put in its place. And who put it in? This guy, I can't believe his name because it's so… it asks so many questions.)

As Ed Balls (A: He's the guy in charge of Britain's education, Ed Balls.) proposes to abolish the remains of old-school history, the EU proposes to make the teaching of its own history compulsory, says Christopher Booker
By Christopher Booker / 21 Nov 2009

The latest initiative by our "Children's Secretary", Ed Balls, is to abolish what remains of fact-based teaching of history and geography in our schools. He plans to "roll them together into themed lessons on social issues such as global warming" (funny how that seems to seep into everything nowadays). (A: And that's going to be the mantra, it IS the mantra for the new religion already.)

The ruthless drive of educational progressives to eliminate history-teaching from schools has been under way since the 1960s. (A: That's when the commies really infiltrated. Actually, it was already set up to be destroyed long before that by the very guy who created the American educational system. If you go back far enough, he said eventually they will eliminate ALL histories where people have problems with neighbors, put it that way, countries that have problems with neighbors and they'd eliminate all the bad parts that cause strife, in the future. In other words, all invasions and slaughters would be eradicated and they'd give them a nice Walt Disney version.) The aim is to ensure that children know nothing about their country's past or how the world came to be as it is, leaving their minds blankly open to whatever vacuous progressive claptrap is fed to them.

In his desire to chuck history onto what Lenin called "the scrapheap of history", Mr Balls may have to make an exception, however. A campaign is now being mounted in the European Parliament to make it compulsory for children to be taught the history of the EU. According to Mário David, the Portuguese MEP leading the campaign and a former chief of staff to the Commission President Jose-Manuel Barroso, it is vital to counter all the "lying, cheating and mistrust" that surrounds the EU in the minds of the peoples of Europe. Our children must therefore be indoctrinated accordingly. (A: INDOCTRINATED ACCORDINGLY… folks.)

A year or two back, when Richard North and I were writing a comprehensive history of "the European project", The Great Deception, we were astonished to find just how horrendously misleading is the account of that history peddled by the EU itself on its Europa website. From laying claim to Churchill as father of the EU to consistently obscuring the nature of the key role played by Jean Monnet, they have come up with an official version of the origins of their "project" which bears virtually no relation to the facts. Doubtless this is just the sort of history which Mr Balls will be happy to allow in our schools – because "fact-based" it isn't. (A: Quite a good article there.)

As I say, we're steamrolling ahead, STEAMROLLING ahead into… You wouldn't believe the changes that are planned. You wouldn't believe the changes that are planned for you, really. They are already underway. They've been brainwashing the children into global warming BEFORE it broke out into the mainstream media. They were already going for the children, right from Kindergarten onwards, before 2000 in fact, and stepping it up in the year 2000 to make sure. Who cares about the old fuddy-duddies? They'll die off and you've got this new indoctrinated generation, perfectly indoctrinated. They will believe everything they are told. Boy…

Here is an article, very important article and it's about an author Francesco Stipo who is presenting his book called the World Federalist Manifesto. Now, who is this guy? He is Francesco Stipo, Ph.D. Director of the USA Club of Rome, the guys that dreamt up the idea of "global warming would fit the bill." They said, starvation, global warming, catastrophes and the like, that would fit the bill, back in the 1970s. They admitted that in the book, The First Global Revolution, that was written by the founders of the Club of Rome. They WROTE the book and ADMITTED they came up with the idea for a new sort of paradigm to control the world and shape it into the right direction. Of course the right one is the one they want. So here he is,

Author Francesco Stipo to Present Book "World Federalist Manifesto" at the National Press Club
Francesco Stipo, Ph.D. Director of the USA Club of Rome, will present his book "World Federalist Manifesto. Guide to Political Globalization" in a Luncheon at the National Press Club in Washington D.C.
Washington, D.C. (MMD Newswire) November 18, 2009

(A: You see how step by step until you are into POLITICAL GLOBALIZATION? That also means political correctness, folks, where you'll learn Stalin-style to parrot what you're told to parrot… or else.)

The "World Federalist Manifesto" deals with the United Nations reform and the development of an international organization that will represent world nations as a whole and will be able to deal with the global challenges of the new millennium. The "Club of Rome" is a think tank that in 1972 published the report "Limits to Growth", which sold over 12 million copies worldwide.

The author analyzes different projects of reform of the United Nations.

"The United Nations can't offer effective solutions because it doesn't reflect the political and economic balances of world nations. In the General Assembly, a nation like Nauru that contributes just 0.001% of the U.N. budget has the same voting power of a nation such as the United States that contributes 22% of the U.N. budget" Francesco Stipo says. "The General Assembly needs to be reformed to reflect the political and economic balances of world nations".

In case the U.N. cannot be reformed, the author calls for an alternative to the United Nations (A: That's exactly what the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR said too, that the UN might not be the final world body. They might have to put up a different one.), a new international organization formed by NATO members. "NATO countries have similar economies and are based on democratic political systems" Dr. Stipo says. "The abatement of economic tariffs for countries in the NATO area would create a large free trade area (A: It's amazing that 'free trade,' Britain came up with that a long, long time ago, back as far as John Dee in fact, in the 1500s.) supported by a common military structure. Other countries would be allowed to join once they meet certain economic criteria and they are founded on democratic principles. Such an organization would eventually substitute the role of the United Nations".

"The economic downturn could have been prevented by a coordinated action of central banks and international regulatory bodies such as the Bank for International Settlements, the World Bank, the IMF, the WTO and the U.N. Economic and Social Council" the author says. "However, such coordination does not exist and global solutions cannot be implemented." The "World Federalist Manifesto" calls for a centralization of the U.N. system and a better coordination of the work of the specialized agencies under the direction of the Secretary General. The book proposes that the different agencies (such as the FAO or WWF) assume the legal nature of Ministries, such as the International Department of Agriculture or the International Department of Environmental Protection).

The author adds that "a world government is the only solution to world problems, such as climate change (A: Here we go again. Climate change, first off…) and the global economic crisis. A world confederation that respects the sovereignty of world nations and that deals with the issues of international economy that cannot be dealt by one nation alone".

The book "World Federalist Manifesto. Guide to Political Globalization" is available in Barnes & Noble and in the website www.worldfederalistmanifesto.com. (A: I'll wait until it becomes secondhand. I hate to give this guy a profit.)

About the Author
Francesco Stipo is Director of the United States Club of Rome. He holds a Ph.D. in International Law and a Master Degree in Comparative Law from the University of Miami. He has been practicing international law since 1999 and worked as a foreign law advisor and of counsel for European and American law firms.

He is the author of "World Federalist Manifesto. Guide to Political Globalization" and "United Nations Reorganization. (A: That's exactly what they're doing. Under the threat of needing a separate organization, what they'll do is re-alter and completely revamp the United Nations because it said it wouldn't last forever at this stage. They wanted to give it more power. The founders of it said it would go through stages until it had ultimate power. Eventually, the UN, if you haven't read the Charter and you haven't gone into the founding of it and the treaties that were signed at the end of World War II, you'll find in there for instance, they said in there that eventually they will be the ONLY one with a military body and a police body, worldwide, with the ultimate right to use deadly force. No one else, no one in the world... They mean right down to the citizen, even to defend yourself, will not have the right to use deadly force. Quite something. Quite something indeed.)

And the public go on and on and before you know it, they will be prattling on about global warming, carbon taxes and how much they've got to pay and all of that stuff. Quite amazing isn't it? Quite amazing how we can be conned and fooled and bluffed but we can't let this exposé of what this hacker has done, WE CAN'T LET IT GO and just fade off into the sunset. You've got make hay when the sun shines. I know it's not very often when they're spraying the air but you've got to do the best that you can and keep it alive because it will take a long time to go through 60-odd megabytes but it's going to be well worth wading through it and finding all the cons and all the other emails they've got with their fudged reports that have been taken as gospel truth and rammed down children's throats at school and parroted by politicians who want the global system, who are salivating waiting for it to all come in, in full force. Quite something.

I've got a couple of callers there and we'll go to Karen in Oregon.

Karen: Hi Alan. At least we got some good news here with all these revelations about this scam in writing so hopefully people will not let that die and keep it going.

Alan: They have no option. If they don't hang on to this, they deserve to hang altogether.

Karen: I wondered if you had a chance yet to check out anything about Continental Congress 2009?

Alan: To be honest with you, I haven't. My computer is on the fritz and they give me a dial-up speed on the satellite because I'm getting punished for using it. Hold on and I'll be back after this break.

Hi. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix and I'm talking to Karen from Oregon. Are you there Karen?

Karen: I wanted to also tell you that I represent a group of people and we're trying to grow our numbers and gain support for an economic boycott that rolls over the 15th of every month. It's 'don't buy, don't comply, and ask why.' Number one is, don't buy anything on the 15th. I really believe that we've got to start playing this game right and we've got more reasons than ever now to start paying attention. So don't buy government lies. Don't buy anything from big corporations. Don't comply by rolling up your sleeves for a shot. Don't comply by being silent. Call up and demand to know why we don't have… this university should be raided right now; it should be closed down, under lockdown, to gain all the files and everything.

Alan: So should all the ones that were corresponding with them across the world.

Karen: And then it's, 'ask why.' People really need to pick up the phone or write a letter and call up and DEMAND of our representatives, why is this allowed to happen, why are you willing to tax me on a fraudulent basis. Look at the data, look at this conspiracy here. This is ridiculous. So I'm hoping that millions and millions and millions and millions of Americans will finally start to wake up. Imagine the power we could have if on the 15th none of us went shopping. And on the 15th too, they are expecting you to Christmas shop and all these AIG banker guys got bonuses and we get their bills.

Alan: What a bonus they got too. You saw the figures eh? Fantastic.

Karen: It's ridiculous.

Alan: Billions of dollars.

Karen: What do you think of an economic boycott especially if it builds and if it builds to the point where we can even stay home maybe for 2 or 3 days in a row?

Alan: To be honest with you, if the public could just understand where they're being taken and where the standard of living is going to be and IN LESS THAN 5 YEARS TIME, they'd have to do something like this and say THAT'S IT! ENOUGH! Buy no gas for a whole week, something like that. Bring everything to a standstill because I know where they're taking us. We know where they're taking us and it's utter destitution.

Karen: It is and that's why when you can I hope you'll go to taxfree15.com. It has links to the continental Congress and other things. I'm hoping that THAT will work. Bob Schultz has been, for I think 30 years, trying to hold the government accountable and addressing the fraudulent 1040 IRS tax. It's such a mafia style government now and it's a great opportunity I think. Well, I'm thankful this Thanksgiving to have something to really sink my teeth into and hopefully spread the word and thank you for allowing me a say on your show.

Alan: Thanks for calling.

It's quite amazing because there's just so much going on right now in the world but it's all going in the same direction. As long as people can spend the same bucks and get roughly what they expect to get for those bucks, most of them will dream along and the TV comes on and their favorite programs are on, they have no idea what's in store for them. To be honest with you too, WE'VE GOT TO OVERCOME THE APATHY because remember Bertrand Russell, who worked with all these big think tanks, said that 'we must create a condition of apathy amongst the public' and they've been very good at it. They've pretty well made us all believe that we're powerless and the special people deal with politics so we should just play at the bottom and not interfere. That's really what's happened. We've had years and years of very careful and well-directed propaganda and its taken hold and you see it within the general public.

That's the music coming in so from Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada - where they put in my smart meter so that they can start taxing me more dough - it's good night and may your God or your Gods BE with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

- Here are a bunch of articles on the Great Climategate Scam Exposed, following hacked e-mail exchanges coming to light, concerning global warming professors agreeing to fudge the data, etc.:
  - "Breaking News Story: CRU has apparently been hacked - hundreds of files released" (wattsupwiththat.com) - Nov. 19, 2009.

  - "Climategate: the final nail in the coffin of 'Anthropogenic Global Warming'?" by James Delingpole (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 20, 2009.

  - "Hacked E-Mail Is New Fodder for Climate Dispute" [Hacked E-mail Exchanges of Global Warming Con-Men] by Andrew C. Revkin (nytimes.com) - Nov. 21, 2009.

  - Link to E-mails in .zip file - "Climate audit whistleblower FOIA / FOI2009.zip / File size: 61.93 MB" (megaupload.com).

  - "Warmist conspiracy exposed?" [Warming Scientists' e-mails expose Tremendous Fraud] by Andrew Bolt (news.com.au) - Nov. 20, 2009.

  - "Climate Scientists Alleged to Have Manipulated Data" (environmentalleader.com) - Nov. 23, 2009.

"Climate change denial MEP attacks church" [Member of Euro-Parliament Blasts Church for Preaching Global Warming] by Allegra Stratton (guardian.co.uk) - Nov. 20, 2009.

"IMF warns second bailout would 'threaten democracy' " [Democracy Can't Tolerate Second Bailout] by Angela Jameson and Elizabeth Judge, The Times - Nov. 23, 2009.

"EU history will be all the history taught in schools" [EU History to Replace all Countries' Histories] by Christopher Booker (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 21, 2009.

"Author Francesco Stipo to Present Book 'World Federalist Manifesto' at the National Press Club" [Club of Rome Director presents World Federalist Manifesto] (mmdnewswire.com).

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 24, 2009 (#458)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 24, 2009:
Global Warming Science is Criminal Alliance:
"Top Scientists' E-mails Dredged Out of the Sludge, Showing Cooling Trends Subjected to Fudge,
Using 'Creative' Science to Fool Me and You
Into Believing the Ideology, Warming is True,
These 'Scientists Political' Keep Changing Pants
Because Their Science Body is Bloated on Grants,
Desperate to Push the Copenhagen Agreement,
Better Protest Now, There'll be No Appeasement
Once the Dirty Deed's Done and World Tyrants Rule
And We're Taxed into the Grave, Nice and Cool"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 24, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 24, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 24th 2009. For newcomers, look into .com and on the front page scroll down, bookmark all the other sites I have up there because once in a while the major ones go down and if you have them bookmarked you can always pull the latest shows down. There’s [sites listed above].

Remember that YOU bring me to YOU, the listeners. It’s always the same people who donate all the time and thousands and thousands listen, that’s for sure. I know that by the amount of traffic that goes through these sites I have up there. I depend upon the people who listen to once in a while drop a few shekels in this direction because it keeps me going. You can also buy that which I have for sale on the web site. [Purchase and donations options listed above.] You can send straight cash. That’s the best way because it cuts out the little guy with the triple chins and the podgy fingers and the very expensive taxpayer-funded suit.

That’s what we are up against today. We’re going through tremendous changes, fantastic changes and there is so much news out there and so much POLITICAL movements, really that have gathered to fight this final battle as they call it, to do with what’s coming up in December. In December they have this Copenhagen Treaty and the big boys have put ALL their eggs in one basket. I don’t care if you end up buried in snow, they’re going to scream ‘global warming’ until they have this all passed. Once they have it passed, it will start to sort of die off but then in come all the carbon taxes and everything that is going to control your ENTIRE way of living, right down – I'm not kidding – to who can breed. That's what it's going to come out of it as well, and who can NOT breed. They've already – and I've read them on the air – put articles out there about each child that is born is a potential carbon unit who it going to consume more, etc, etc, all this eugenical stuff is wrapped up in the climate debate… the farce actually, the farce that has been exposed.

So it's up to you to keep me going. Donate; help me out because it takes cash to keep all this stuff going here. Everything I am using is obsolete pretty well and I'll have to upgrade some things very, very shortly. Remember too, those who get the disks burned and passed to them can get to me at [address listed above]. Remember too, I also get problems once in a while uploading because XplorNet, that great, high-speed con man in the sky, the satellite guy, takes the cash but punishes you if you USE the so-called service that you are paying through the nose for. So once in a while I'm late. Actually, it's every day now I have to upload 2 days for every one night. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the gathering of the powers and how literally they've gone to such an incredible length throughout, since about the 1990s and onwards, about the global warming, something they PLANNED to bring in back in the 1970s according to the guys that dreamed up the idea at the Club of Rome. They printed that in their own book called The First Global Revolution. They came up with the idea in the 70s but in the 90s, that's when the grant money started to be given to them, FUNNELLED to them, to the big professors at universities to go along with this. You must get NAMES, well-known names, professionals in a field to CON the public.

That's not a new idea because you find that Edward Bernays that really created, took the credit for creating the consumer society in America. He came up with that idea of getting important people, professionals in their field, even setting up front colleges for them. They'd all come into this supposed college, sometimes they'd make a real little one, even a store front would do… the Association of blah, blah, blah and then they would then get articles published in magazines and newspapers. This little clique of so-called professionals who are all simply on the payroll and often didn't even attend any debates. They simply put their name to it and said go ahead and write what you want and use my name and they got well, well paid for doing so.

It's interesting to do with this Climate Gate scandal now that so many of their private emails between the different leaches that are living off these massive grants has been exposed to the public. It's interesting to see that a lot of the mainstream media is, as I said it would happen, is pretending that nothing happened at all. It's so close to their deadline now that they're counting on everyone turning up. In fact all the students that go to these particular universities - where the professors get the big grant moneys, had been advised IN THE EMAILS that were released to the public – they were advised to GO to this Copenhagen meeting to all put in their two cents worth and demand that something be done.

Now this is a POLITICAL movement, not a scientific movement and that's the key to it all. There's a political and an economic agenda here as well. Because everything from then on, once that thing is signed, is going to be ENTIRELY different, completely and entirely different new way of living. It's interesting too – I've got the link for this as well – to do with the grants that some of these professors mentioned in the emails got. Professor Jones, for instance, that seems to be one of the ring leaders, and no wonder they all obeyed him because his personal grants from 1990 onwards was 13.7 million pounds, about 27 million dollars. So you can see HE has definitely got a motive for pushing this rubbish because otherwise where would he be without all this created crisis? All the professors would be in the back of some university with hardly any students attending at all. Now its big business, you see, big, big business.

It's going to be run like the Communist Party. Believe you me, it has so much in common with how communists worked their big campaigns that it's NO coincidence. It's no coincidence that Professor Carroll Quigley said that the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR were often mistaken for communists because their policies seems to go in the same direction. Well, they went in the same direction because the big bankers that started off the Royal Institute of International Affairs - from the Milner Group - were all bankers at the top, in the beginning. They were all international bankers who FUNDED communism into existence. Same names, same names… and that's history, not conjecture.

Here's an article from – it's interesting – Pajamas Media. It's quite interesting. Everyone knows the name of Lord Monckton who did the video – I'll put the link up again – discussing in the US what was coming down the pike if this Copenhagen Treaty goes through. Pretty well it will go through because the big boys that presently run the world's finances have staked everything on this passing, everything. It's to be a whole new economy based on energy usage and carbon. A WHOLE NEW ECONOMY and it's to go through the Rothschild's bank in Switzerland too. Isn't that amazing? I read the articles from the mainstream FROM Rothschild himself, advising them to put it through this particular bank, all these carbon credits. What a clique at the top! What a clique, CREATING A BELIEF SYSTEM FOR A NEW AGE. That's what it's all about. Pajamas Media says this…

Viscount Monckton on Climategate: 'They Are Criminals'
The man who challenged Al Gore to a debate (Alan: and was refused by Gore, of course.) is furious about the content of the leaked CRU emails — and says why you should be, too.
pajamasmedia.com / Posted By Christopher Monckton On November 23, 2009

This is what they did — these climate "scientists" on whose unsupported word the world's classe politique proposes to set up an unelected global government this December in Copenhagen, with vast and unprecedented powers to control all formerly free markets, to tax wealthy nations and all of their financial transactions, to regulate the economic and environmental affairs of all nations, and to confiscate and extinguish all patent and intellectual property rights.

The tiny, close-knit clique of climate scientists who invented and now drive the "global warming" fraud — for fraud is what we now know it to be [1] — tampered with temperature data so assiduously that, on the recent admission of one of them, land temperatures since 1980 have risen twice as fast as ocean temperatures. One of the thousands of emails recently circulated by a whistleblower at the University of East Anglia, where one of the world's four global-temperature datasets is compiled, reveals that data were altered so as to prevent a recent decline in temperature from showing in the record. (A: They actually did that. Anything that went against this new ideology was simply obliterated and so were thousands and thousands of scientists who said it was all bogus science.) In fact, there has been no statistically significant "global warming" for 15 years — and there has been rapid and significant cooling for nine years.

Worse, these arrogant fraudsters — for fraudsters are what we now know them to be — have refused, for years and years and years, to reveal their data and their computer program listings. Now we know why: As a revealing 15,000-line document from the computer division at the Climate Research Unit shows, the programs and data are a hopeless, tangled mess. In effect, the global temperature trends have simply been made up. Unfortunately, the British researchers have been acting closely in league with their U.S. counterparts (A: In THEIR universities.) who compile the other terrestrial temperature dataset — the GISS/NCDC dataset. That dataset too contains numerous biases intended artificially to inflate the natural warming of the 20th century.

Finally, these huckstering snake-oil salesmen and "global warming" profiteers — for that is what they are — have written to each other encouraging the destruction of data that had been lawfully requested under the Freedom of Information Act in the UK by scientists who wanted to check whether their global temperature record had been properly compiled. (A: So these are other scientists, right.) And that procurement of data destruction, as they are about to find out to their cost, is a criminal offense. (A: They destroyed the data.) They are not merely bad scientists — they are crooks. And crooks who have perpetrated their crimes at the expense of British and U.S. taxpayers.

I am angry, and so should you be. (A: Then he goes on to a second page. He says it all. He says what we all know, those who have been following this.)

What have the mainstream news media said about the Climategate affair? Remarkably little [2]. The few who have brought themselves to comment, through gritted teeth (A: Because all the media have been pushing this rubbish of global warming.), have said that all of this is a storm in a teacup, and that their friends in the University of East Anglia and elsewhere in the climatological community are good people, really.

No, they're not. They're criminals. With Professor Fred Singer, who founded the U.S. Satellite Weather Service, I have reported them to the UK's Information Commissioner, with a request that he investigate their offenses and, if thought fit, prosecute. But I won't be holding my breath: In the police state that Britain has now sadly become, with supine news media largely owned and controlled by the government, the establishment tends to look after its own.

At our expense, and at the expense of the truth.

So well said. Well said indeed. Then we have another one here and this is from The Telegraph.

Lord Lawson (A: Here's another British Lord.) calls for public inquiry into UEA (A: That's the University of East Anglia that was one of the centers for all of this data collection and con men. That's where they gathered and kept all their data.)
global warming data 'manipulation'
Lord Lawson, the former chancellor (A: That's like in charge of the treasury basically.), has called for an independent inquiry into claims that leading climate change scientists manipulated data to strengthen the case for man-made global warming.
By Matthew Moore / 23 Nov 2009

Thousands of emails and documents stolen from the University of East Anglia (UEA) and posted online indicate that researchers massaged figures (A: 'Massaged' is putting it lightly but that's the politeness of some of the British.) to mask the fact that world temperatures have been declining in recent years.
This morning Lord Lawson, who has reinvented himself (A: They're not happy with this guy.) as a prominent climate change sceptic since leaving front line politics, demanded that the apparent deception be fully investigated.

He claimed that the credibility of the university's world-renowned Climatic Research Unit - and British science - were under threat.

"They should set up a public inquiry under someone who is totally respected and get to the truth," he told the BBC Radio Four Today programme.

"If there's an explanation for what's going on they can make that explanation."

I'll read some more of this after this break when I come back, so hold on.

I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from an article from The Telegraph that Lord Lawson has put in for an inquiry into this con game of global warming and all the fudged figures that the scientists present to the public and to the IPCC at the United Nations to get this whole agenda through, and make themselves even MORE important, these NEW HIGH PRIESTS. Everyone will go running to them, 'what will we do now, what do you predict, what do you…' Just like they used to do in the Middle Ages. Every Royal court had their professional astrologer and the Kings and Queens wouldn't make a move until these characters came forward to 'read the charts.' It's the same con game that's going on… very, very lucrative, incredibly lucrative. But to continue this article…

Some of the correspondence indicates that the manipulation of data was widespread among global warming researchers.

One of the emails under scrutiny, written by Phil Jones (A: That's the guy that raked in 13.7 million pounds or 27 million dollars since the 90s.), the centre's director, in 1999, reads: "I've just completed Mike's Nature [the science journal] trick of adding in the real temps to each series for the last 20 years (ie, from 1981 onwards) and from 1961 for Keith's to hide the decline." (A: To HIDE the decline, that means to HIDE the falling temperatures, not the rising temperatures. This is the guy who's one of the ring leaders in all of this; incredibly well funded from all the right people and foundations that will be in charge of your lives from now on once this Copenhagen Treaty goes through.)

Prof Jones has insisted that he used the word "trick" to mean a "clever thing to do" (A: I'd say it's clever.), rather than to indicate deception. He has denied manipulating data. (A: Even though it says to hide the decline.)

Another scientist whose name appears in the documents accused the hackers of attempting to undermine the drive for a global consensus at next month's Copenhagen summit. (A: That's again… what's in all these emails telling thousands of students to attend it and to all the people who are involved, to vote yes, to pass it. That's political. This is a political movement, not a scientific movement.)

Kevin Trenberth of the US National Center for Atmospheric Research accused climate change sceptics of cherry-picking the documents and taking them out of context. (A: Of course they would.)

Meanwhile, hopes that a legally binding treaty on cutting emissions will be agreed at Copenhagen have been boosted by the news that more than 60 world leaders plan to attend. (A: They were going to attend regardless because as I say, their bosses – if you think these are YOUR world leaders, think again. They have bosses. They got the same bosses as these scientists have got. And we don't elect these bosses.)

Last week Lord Lawson, who served as chancellor for six years under Margaret Thatcher, told The Daily Telegraph that he planned to establish a think tank to challenge the consensus that drastic action is needed to combat global warming.

I'll tell you, it will take more than a think tank to stop this. The big boys have put all their eggs in one basket. A whole new economy. A whole new way of life. Literally, going along, eventually, to the right to DECIDE who is going to have children and will NOT have children and how many children are enough for a whole nation.

What's I'm saying here is not conjecture. When the League of Nations - the precursor of the United Nations - was started up they had the same department for population control and they were far more blatant about the need for EUGENICAL control in ALL the nations of the world, by themselves of course. Because after all, they're the professionals; they're brighter than we are. You see, that's the standard pabulum of tyranny and tyrants. In the old days, I preferred the old type Roman tyrant who stood there and strutted around, kind of like Mussolini, and you knew what he was. These characters hide behind SCIENCE, bogus science, etc to get what they want. They still strut around though. Now they've got a big stage for the world, now that they are the high, white-coated priests of the greening and eugenics agenda.

There's also a good spoof article here written almost like a zoologist would go in and study animals. It's from Iowahawk Geographic.

Iowahawk Geographic: The Secret Life of Climate Researchers
by Iowahawk / (breitbart.com) - Nov. 24, 2009

(A: He talks as though you're going in there to find these characters where they live, in their environments, etc, and how they get their grants. They live off of something called grant money, big, big grant money. I'll put his link up and you'll get quite a chuckle when you go through it for yourself.)

It's quite fascinating. The Washington Times at least put something in about this too, this FARCE of these liars at the top that are conning a whole world into a political agenda, an OLD political agenda by the way.

Hiding evidence of global cooling
Junk science exposed among climate-change believers
By THE WASHINGTON TIMES / Tuesday, November 24, 2009

Scientific progress depends on accurate and complete data. It also relies on replication. The past couple of days have uncovered some shocking revelations about the baloney practices that pass as sound science about climate change.

It was announced Thursday afternoon that computer hackers had obtained 160 megabytes of e-mails from the Climate Research Unit (CRU) at the University of East Anglia (UEA) in England. (A: I'll read some more of this when I come back from this break. It's quite fascinating.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading one of the many articles about this revelation about global scamming, the warming nonsense that's been perpetrated by all these con men, these big scientists that are well funded by foundations and bankers to bring in a new world society according to their data. That's what it's all about, this Copenhagen Treaty. All the politicians at the top are on board with this agenda; that's why they were PICKED at this particular time in history, every single one of them. To continue with this article from The Washington Times…

It was announced Thursday afternoon that computer hackers had obtained 160 megabytes of e-mails from the Climate Research Unit (CRU) at the University of East Anglia (UEA) in England. Those e-mails involved communication among many scientific researchers and policy advocates with similar ideological positions all across the world. (A: That's well worded, ideological positions, not factual.) Those purported authorities were brazenly discussing the destruction and hiding of data that did not support global-warming claims.

Professor Phil Jones (A: This is the guy with 13.7 million pounds in grants.), the head of the Climate Research Unit, and professor Michael E. Mann at Pennsylvania State University, who has been an important scientist in the climate debate, have come under particular scrutiny. Among his e-mails, Mr. Jones talked to Mr. Mann about the "trick of adding in the real temps to each series ... to hide the decline [in temperature]."

Mr. Mann admitted that he was party to this conversation and lamely explained to the New York Times that "scientists often used the word 'trick' to refer to a good way to solve a problem' 'and not something secret.' (A: It certainly was a good way to solve their problem, since they're all getting paid to bring up the warming idea.) "Though the liberal New York newspaper apparently buys this explanation, we have seen no benign explanation that justifies efforts by researchers to skew data on so-called global-warming "to hide the decline." Given the controversies over the accuracy of Mr. Mann's past research, it is surprising his current explanations are accepted so readily. (A: Because they've all got quite a history, these characters. You know, they're not top rated after all, but they're certainly open to the top buyer. That's for sure.)

As I've said before, if you're up to your eyes in snow, it won't make any difference because they will keep going with this global warming mantra until they've got everything signed into what they call a BINDING agreement that are to rule us for the next 1000 years.

This article is from the BBC. Apparently the BBC – from what I've been told – they HAD this info given to them by the hacker for A MONTH and didn't do anything with it, which isn't surprising because the BBC is owned by the British government. It's an ARM of British governmental policy. It's a propaganda arm, in other words.

Global warming science alarming, say climate experts
News.bbc.co.uk / Tuesday, 24 November 2009

(A: So here they go again a few days after all the con men were discovered and exposed for what they are. It's as though it never happened. Remember too, what they said, the IPCC, that they'd tell all their members and all their pals, their fellow travelers as you call them, those in sympathy with them, to go along and hype everything up when it comes to major agreements being signed. So this is what they are doing.)

Three UK groups studying climate change have issued a strong statement about the dangers of failing to cut emissions of greenhouse gases… (A: And the whole rest of it is ya-da, ya-da, ya-da, ya-da, ya… rubbish.) across the world.

The Royal Society, this Freemasonic organization of scientists – that's how it was founded, as a Freemasonic, Scientific organization. Very elite. Well nothing has changed, by the way. Any famous scientist in history that was pushed to the top all came through The Royal Society. They're the ones who are pushing this baloney because it's part of the big, big agenda. You should go into the history of the Royal Society because literally, Francis Bacon talks about it, and other ones. If they were married, they had to put their wife out of their lives and actually give a lump sum to their family and LEAVE them. You had to live like a monk and be one of them to get in. It wasn't until the 20th century that they allowed their first female in. Even then it was under protest. It's literally a Masonic type organization with a charter to exist from the Crown of course, this British Crown. As I say, if you want to read some rubbish, you can read the kind of fear that they're turning out right now in preparation of the Copenhagen agreement coming up very, very shortly in December.

Believe you me, they have a lot more parroting articles out there at the same time saying 'We've got to go along to save the world and to save life' and blah, blah, blah. Hype it up. Hype it up. Once it's done and it's all signed, just like 9/11, it sort of fades away. Once they had attacked Afghanistan and Iraq, it kind of calmed down again. What they wanted was to get IN there and grab the oil and control the entire Middle East. Same thing with this once it's pushed through; we'll gradually see the policies introduced – maybe not so gradually in fact – and used. If you think you're poor now, if you think you're getting poor now and your standard of living is dropping and everything is becoming very expensive, YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET. YOU AIN'T SEEN NOTHING YET.

I can remember Malachi Martin talking about the new world order in the 1990s and this guy wasn't liked by anybody. He came out against what the Catholic Church had done and he had been a priest. He came out against everybody basically that was going along with this new system. He recognized what it was and knew what it was. He said in one of his talks regarding the Americans and the Canadians, 'Get ready for the new world order because you've seen the best of your young American lives.' Meaning it's over. He knew the whole agenda.

We're on a roll. On a roll into… if you think it's crazy now and that things make no sense to you, as to what you're hearing, you'll literally be living in banana-land once all these laws are passed. Under the guise – this is how it works – under the guise of emitting carbon, what they really mean is ENERGY CONSUMPTION, right down to how many Joules of energy it takes to create say that teething comforter that the baby has. You'll have to pay extra, on top of everything else and all the other taxes for that item, for it being MADE. They've got this strange, again, this fantastic trick of converting every energy unit consumed into carbon. An absolute TRICK of the imagination and by God, you need a lot of imagination to believe in this conology. DOUBLE-SPEAK IS HERE. DOUBLE-THINK IS HERE. You'll be into quadruple-think; you'll have FOUR opposing opinions in your head about the same topic at the same time… and you'll think they're all correct. That's what it will come down to.

It's the same too with this vaccine stuff. For the last month or so, the marketers – and they do have marketers working FOR the governments of the world – marketing companies are putting out their usual hype. It's like sales; they'll say 'buy now before we're out of stock.' It's the same thing now. 'Rush and get your flu shot because they're going to be hard to get.' It's the same TRICK they've used in selling things that they're using to get folks stampeding off to roll up their sleeves and get jabbed with this poison. This is from msn.ca. It says here…

Batch of H1N1 vaccine pulled
By The Canadian Press, cbc.ca, November 19, 2009

(A: They're really covering their behinds here.)

Health officials across Canada are being asked to hold back a batch of swine flu vaccine that appears to be causing higher rates of severe allergic reactions.

The vaccine's manufacturer, GlaxoSmithKline, is asking governments to stop using vaccine doses from one particular lot shipment issued in late October. (A: It's more than one lot, you can believe that.)

The company says it's a cautionary move, pending an investigation. (A: In other words, don't worry about it.)

Manitoba health officials say they have noticed severe allergic reactions from the batch in question at a rate of one in 20,000. (A: Again, that will be underestimating it vastly.)

That's much higher than the normal rate of one in 100,000. (A: It's a pity if you're the one in the 100,000 that has got the wrong genes that don't FIT IN to their mass inoculation program eh? Just tough luck! …when you're crippled, it's tough luck.)

The Alberta government is also holding back the same batch of vaccine, although it says it has not seen a jump in allergic reactions.

Manitoba's chief medical officer of health, Dr. Joel Kettner, says he wants to assure people that the risk of any adverse effects from the vaccine is very low. (A: What they're getting is anaphylactic shock. You know that's when you drop on the floor after getting it and you go into cardiac arrest and they have to use defibrillators to bring you back into the land of (if they call this) the living. That's where you end up back in, hopefully. So this is what they are calling 'severe allergic reactions.')

Isn't it amazing how these scientists and these characters will downplay everything or boost up the BS. They'll boost up BS and downplay the nasty reactions. Same thing as these global warming scammers. Remember what Bertrand Russell said, 'If there is to be a tyranny running the world' – a tyranny, not a democracy and that's what they all agreed on at the top; that it's POST democratic; that's what GOVERNANCE means - Russell said, 'then I'd rather be in a SCIENTIFIC tyranny.' He said it would be awful – AWFUL – but that's the one that he would approve of if there had to be one. That's what we're under ALREADY, where statistics will be thrown at you and fact or common sense are out the window. THE STATISTIC MATTER, it doesn't matter if they're bogus or not. And your whole way of life will have to be twisted aroundto fit into the statistics.

Con after con after con. It's quite something, but we're definitely on the roll to the big global new world order, the REAL one, the one that people have been talking about for years and years and years. Not the mini ones along the way but the really big one at the top. Remember, this is quite true what Lord Monckton said, out of this Copenhagen Treaty is TO COME, literally, the whole structure for world government. Everything will go through this amazing COMMUNISTIC body called the United Nations. There's no doubt about it, they are totally communistic in their approach to everything, the world, nations, peoples… completely communistic.

They have no real value on life. You should see these big camps they've had across the world supposedly for people who are coming out of war-torn areas or catastrophe areas. They're all KEPT in these particular areas. You can't move out of these particular areas year after year after year after year and the UN is supposedly feeding them these terrible rations. The death rate is incredible year after year after year. We're living through eugenics AT WORK. That's what we're living through. There's an awful lot more still to come. EUGENICS AT WORK, that's what the name of the game is.

The League of Nations and the United Nations weren't started up by ordinary people. They were started up by an ALREADY EXISTING, INCREDIBLY WEALTHY, ELITE. They guys who basically took the credit for founding it, the whole idea for the League of Nations that BECAME the United Nations, was the Milner Group that became the Royal Institute of International Affairs. They were the ones who brought it forward. President Wilson of the US was just the front man for Colonel Mandell House. Mandell House got his instructions from the Royal Institute of International Affairs member Lord Grey. That was the go-between. Everything that Mandell House told Wilson, Wilson did. The little front puppet is all he was.

The richest guys on the planet dreamt up this whole idea of world government and the KIND of world government. Not the sort of naturally evolving one that might have happened if it was left to its own devices but an ORDERED, DICTATORIAL WORLD GOVERNMENT where you'll simply do as you're told from the day you are born. They will decide at a very early age what you're going to do, what you're going to work at to SERVE the world system. Your purpose will be TO SERVE the world system. That will be your only reason for living in fact. Where did they get all this idea from? It's the same as international communism. It's EXACTLY the same. That's why Carroll Quigley said, they are often mistaken for communists because they have the SAME AGENDA. Well if they've got the same agenda, doesn't it mean that it IS the same agenda? That's what it is. It's the same agenda.

They funded communism into existence. Look at the guys who funded the Bolshevik Revolution. The big world bankers in New York, Baruch and all these guys, they funded communism. Why would they fund communism? The top capitalists funding communism, people just can't figure that one out. The top capitalists have always had a problem ensuring they get PAID from countries that lose in wars. One of the first things they wanted at the League of Nations and then at the United Nations was a court of international settlement to guarantee that any loans that they put out to GET the wars going would be paid back IN FULL by the winners AND the losers. Then they, through that International Monetary Fund, would be IN CHARGE of countries' treasuries during times when those countries failed or had a hard time paying them back for all their loans. That's what the IMF is for.

The US doesn't even know it yet. They've had the IMF in already running a lot of their policies for the last few years. Britain had it when Margaret Thatcher was in. They run your policies, your political policies, your taxation rates. They come up with new types of taxes and decide where the taxes are going… and it's not back into the people; it's out of the country. That's what it's about. What a fantastic front for a change.

They tried the old trick of ideology, serve the communist system. That didn't work too well with most people especially when the news of what communism was really like came out. So they came up with 'the people might believe SCIENCE.' SCIENCE IS THE NEW GOD, you see. It deals with facts and figures and we can teach people that scientists are infallible and when they come forward with these theories, they'll believe the scientist and that is what they've done. Thousands and thousands of paid-off, fat, gloating, political scientists. That's what it's all about. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. We've got Sam from Sydney, Australia on the line. Are you there Sam?

Sam: Mate, it's just amazing what's happening with these emails. What I'm most gob-smacked about is how the mainstream media has actually been handling it. The Sydney Morning Herald has taken point, the Sydney Morning Herald today… You'd think that this would be a bombshell. They've been fudging the scientific results. England, that's actually had a look at the emails, knows that it's not just one word, it's not just the use of the word 'trick.' These guys have been going out as a PACK, as a GANG, silencing other critics, shutting down debate. Things have been held in their advantage so that they can go out and use the word 'peer reviewed' but it's reviewed by themselves.

Alan: Exactly. It's a GANG, as you say. It's a gang and they use the old tactics as you say, of shutting down debates. They've tried to say that the debate is closed, there is no more dissention and thousands of scientists are locked out of this argument. It's a totalitarian regime.

Sam: Just as a citizen, for all these years we have been basically told to shut up, the debate is over and now we realize why.

Alan: We realize why. The public, unfortunately, the public have no idea, at the outcome, if they get their way at Copenhagen, they really have no idea of the hell that's going to come down.

Sam: That's right. The Sydney Morning Herald today, rather than even having an article about this put out THEIR article, "PLANET APPROACHING POINT OF NO RETURN, EXPERTS WARN.' And who do they cite? The IPCC! It's just crazy.

Alan: The guys, the GANG, that's just been exposed.

Sam: That's right. They've just been exposed. This is dodgy. Everything should be put on hold. They should just go, 'hang on, maybe we've got our data wrong; maybe all these calls to actually have a look at the data, maybe the debate isn't over or maybe we should actually have debate before we actually change the entire fabric of the planet.' NO. They're just going to go ahead. For some reason, I think it's a done deal.

Alan: Oh, it's a done deal. I'm telling you, literally it would take… I don't care if God himself came down and said it's all bogus, these guys are still going to go ahead with it because they've staked everything on it, A WHOLE NEW ECONOMY, A WHOLE NEW WAY OF LIVING. They've already been trading carbon credits at the top for the last 4 or 5 years.

Sam: What gets me is just, you know, when you speak to people about this. They say 'even if it is wrong, obviously, don't you support a better planet? Don't you support a cleaner environment? Don't you support the third world?' It just boggles the mind. It's kind of like 'Don't you support the troops?' Don't you think that maybe we should actually stop meddling in the third world? Maybe the reason they are in is because we meddled so much. Why don't we just try leaving them alone? Why don't we just try not supporting, supplying arms to them? Why don't we just try actually paying them the fair amount of money to grow their crops or whatever? Why don't we just stop exploiting them? Why do we always have to control, have a say and control what they do?

Alan: The real reason is that the United Nations, they WANT to have control over the entire world including these countries and they want those countries to be totally dependent in all that they import, chemicals for their agri-business and so on. In fact they want the agri-businesses that exist in the West to take over the ones in the third world countries. That’s why. Thanks for calling.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Phil Jones Collected 13.7 Million Pounds in Grants
("Hacked: Hadley CRU FOI2009 Files" [Scroll Down to Phil Jones to see his Grants] (motls.blogspot.com).)

Lord Monkton on Climategate Scandal
("Viscount Monckton on Climategate: 'They Are Criminals' " (pajamasmedia.com) - Nov. 23, 2009.)

"Lord Christopher Monckton: President Obama Poised to Cede US Sovereignty"
[4-minute Video with Link to Full Version] - October 16, 2009

"Is the Copenhagen treaty about creating a world government?"
[Lord Monckton Interview in Australia].

Calls for Inquiry into UEA Global Warming Manipulation
("Lord Lawson calls for public inquiry into UEA global warming data 'manipulation' " by Matthew Moore (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 23, 2009.)

Good Spoof on Secret Life of Climate Researchers
("Iowahawk Geographic: The Secret Life of Climate Researchers" (breitbart.com) - Nov. 24, 2009.)

"Hiding evidence of global cooling" (washingtontimes.com) - Nov. 24, 2009.

Crisis Choir Rev Up For Copenhagen
("Global warming science alarming, say climate experts" (news.bbc.co.uk) - Nov. 24, 2009.)

Possible Deadly Vaccine Batch Halted in Canada
("Batch of H1N1 vaccine pulled (news.ca.msn.com) - Nov. 19, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 25, 2009 (#459)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 25, 2009:
Evidence Defeats Global Warming Cheats:
"Within Academia's Labyrinths, Climatologists are Stormin'
As the Icy Breath of Scandal Rocks Cliques of Global Warmin',
Like Characters in Comedy, Swiping Data Off the Tables,
Their Vocation Should be in Literature, Reciting Aesop's Fables,
Or Perhaps Careers in Drama, Acting Old Greek Plays so Tragic,
Or with Skills Juggling Data, then Stage Careers in Magic,
Yet They may Stay within Their Labyrinths, Scurrying like Ants, Climatologists Confabulate when Rewards are Big Fat Grants"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 25, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 25, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 25th 2009. Newcomers look into .com and on that website scroll down and see all the other servers I have up there which I use. There’s [listed above]. Once in a while the big servers do fail me. Even though I’m on basically unlimited upload, they somehow limit me and they can’t figure out why their services are doing that. It’s a big mystery to them especially the big ones like Yahoo. So it’s a good idea to have these bookmarked for future use. That way you can get the latest shows for download on one of the alternate sites.

Remember, you are the listeners that bring me to YOU every night. It’s up to you to keep me going because this isn’t a job and it’s not a career, believe you me. It’s a ‘must be’ as far as I’m concerned. It’s something that is IMPERATIVE and that’s the only reason I’m on the air. It’s to share the information I’ve had in accumulation of investigation throughout my lifetime. Something I thought that everyone else did, until I reached the age of about 20 and realized that no, they didn’t. It kind of surprised me as I tried to find out what made the big world tick. I found out very quickly there were big, big movements, big political movements and behind-the-scenes political movements that were private in fact, that were running the lives of the peoples of the world. They had this beautiful new world order lined up for us, step by step, intergenerationally. So that’s why I’m on the air.

We are going through the most crucial phases of this right now under the con games of sustainability and global warming, climate change and carbon and all that stuff. It’s to change our lives forever, right down to how many people can breed and eventually down to the UN rationing all the food that your country will get. Not what it needs, but what

THEY decide that you need. This is intended to bring down the populations. It will be your problem that this is all the food there is and they have the means to do it since they own all the agri businesses at the top. All the agri-food businesses really are owned by the same top shareholders, so it's really one company. The food of the world, food and water, are SO essential. Then everything else is energy and all the rest of the stuff that you need to survive in this day and age. That's what they've gone after and they've been awfully successful. Mainly because no one had a clue what was really happening, down below, and the media's job was to keep you OUT of the loop.

So it's up to you to keep me going. You can do so by donating to me or buying the books I have for sale at .com. [Payment/donation options listed above.] Cash certainly is the easiest way to get money across because they charge a hell of a hefty fee with some of these companies just to wire it across the water. Those who get the disks burned and passed to them, you can always get in touch with me at [address listed above]. I'll be back after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I was just mentioning it's up to you if you want to keep me going and it's the same people who generally donate over and over again. The occasional newcomer comes in and then just forgets it again. So it's up to you to be persistent because believe you me, those people at the top who are running our lives are so well organized and THEY are persistent and they have no problem whatsoever with funding to put out their propaganda. The only way to counter it and to put out some facts for a change is to have the people on the air who can put out the right information to show up these characters, to show them for WHAT THEY ARE, to show what their agendas are all about as well, and how their scams work.

Really, you have to see the big, big picture of how the world is ALWAYS planned and this is the only way they can truly get the population of the planet into a global, a TRUE global governing system because governments have always existed, especially definitely expanded under the guise of protecting the people. For a global society, they have to have a WAR, an ongoing war ALL the time. That's what the Club of Rome said in their own book, The First Global Revolution. They came up with the idea of global warming and famine and 'the like', as they said, 'that would fit the bill,' back in the 1970s. So it's the only way they can expand their powers and get us to go along with it, to SAVE everybody. It's to SAVE everybody, so they came up with this bogus stuff.

It's so well funded you would not believe it. I mentioned the salary, at least the grants, that one professor got over the years, 13.7 million pounds, 27 million dollars. So these characters are incredibly well funded and you can see why they've got incentive to keep churning out absolute nonsense and to fool the populace BUT it's more than just that. IT'S AN IDEOLOGY that's at work. It's so similar to how the communists ran things it's really astonishing to see their techniques and how there are always the certain ones at the top who are somehow given credence as the TOP authors of data. Even the IPCC, this Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change that was set up at that United Nations DEPENDS on Mr. Jones and the University of East Anglia for all their data. So Mr. Jones is only too happy to give them lots of fudged stuff that can be screamed from the United Nations to all their different associations and world media, telling everybody to panic. That's how it is done, getting the RIGHT people who will stick to the party line and do anything for the party. It's the same thing.

This is not science we're talking about. It's a con job. I've read some of the emails sent between these different professors. Remember, it's not just one university; this is the MAIN one that ALL the world universities deal with to do with supposed climate change. These guys, remember, maybe 15, 20 years ago were lucky to get a class together. What are you going in for at the university? I'm going to study climate, you know, and weather. Oh, how interesting. And you'll walk away. That's how bad it was. Suddenly, they're the gurus, they're the new magicians, the court astrologers, and everybody is taught to panic and run to them for answers. Now they're in the limelight and they are flooded with grants from all over the place. So they're living it up and they've got to keep a good thing going obviously, especially when so much is at stake. Not just their big, high, fat salaries and their fancy new computers that they keep updating to give them the right results, but also to get this ideology across to the public.

Once the Copenhagen Treaty is signed, and don't BELIEVE what they come out with that 'nothing much will be ratified.' What they will all ratify is the agreement to DEFINITELY AGREE with all the other laws that come down from that same United Nations body. They will sign on to them all. This is just getting them to agree to that. That's what it's for and that's everything really. Then it would be a matter of rubber-stamping every law that is passed from the UN. That's how it's been for many, many years on every other aspect of your life that you did not know was even happening. So this is a ‘must be’ for the big boys, all their eggs in one basket.

The hacked emails… Apparently the BBC had them for a long time and sat on them because they were told to by their government. The government obviously wants all this to happen. All the big boys, all the big governments are IN on the big, giant con. At one time under communism, they would say it was for world peace. They’re using the same sort of idea here; it’s to save the whole planet and have happy Disneyland characters living all over the place, with a reduced population.

Here are some of the hacked emails that these EXPERTS blindly threw across at each other, across the world, showing you how they fudged the stuff.

From Tom Wigley (acknowledging the urban effect):
(A: Friday the 6th of November 2009.)

Land warming since 1980 has been twice the ocean warming (Alan: This has been explained before by other scientists that they literally have campaigns set against them to stop them from getting stuff published by these same characters that work for the IPCC. They put these darn thermometers in suburban areas, and in the middle of cities, where the concrete cooks everything. So of course they get false readings. That’s what he’s talking about here.) Land warming since 1980 (A: According to these thermometers across the world.) has been twice the ocean warming — and skeptics might claim that this proves that urban warming is real and important.

From Kevin Trenberth (failure of computer models):
(A: Before Wednesday the 14th of October 2009.)

The fact is that we can’t account for the lack of warming at the moment (A: Because we’ve been cooling for years. So they can’t account for the lack of warming at the moment…) and it is a travesty that we can’t. The CERES data published in the August BAMS 09 supplement on 2008 shows there should be even more warming: but the data are surely wrong. Our observing system is inadequate. (A: That’s when they always get new computers to give them what they want to hear.)

From Michael Mann (truth doesn't matter):
(A: The famous Michael Mann who’s been in trouble before where he’s Mr. Expertise throughout the years and this is from 27th of October 2009.)

Perhaps we'll do a simple update to the Yamal post, e.g. linking Keith/s new page--Gavin t? As to the issues of robustness, particularly w.r.t. inclusion of the Yamal series, we actually emphasized that (including the Osborn and Briffa '06 sensitivity test) in our original post! (A: Then he says this…) As we all know, this isn't about truth at all, its about plausibly deniable accusations.(A: As we all know,these great scientist that are giving us all this and feed it to the IPCC, this isn't about truth at all, its about plausibly deniable accusations.)

From Phil Jones:
(A: The great Phil Jones, the guy who is at the head of it shows them how to do this.)

In my 2 slides worth at Bethesda I will be showing London's UHI and the effect that it hasn't got any bigger since 1900. It's easy to do with 3 long time series. (A: He shows you how to fudge stuff and how it’s easy to do.)

It’s really something. It’s literally like schoolboys playing pranks with each other. Just playing pranks, like spoofs they would do to each other on what they’re taught and then spoofing it, that’s what it’s like. That’s what these guys have got because they’ve got nothing else. They don’t have any facts except the mandate. This is a MANDATE in action to prove something that isn’t happening, something that’s going to get passed through laws at the United Nations that literally will allow our governments to tax every individual according to your consumption of everything, food, energy, your purchasing of clothing and how much energy went into making that clothing, right down to how much CO2 you are breathing out and the CO2 that your car is giving out, or your moped or whatever else it is. It’s the biggest take over through a CONOLOGY that’s ever been devised… EVER, EVER BEEN DEVISED.

I read this one before. It says here

From Phil Jones (modification of data to hide unwanted results):
(A: September 2009.)

I've just completed Mike's Nature trick of adding in the real temps to each series for the last 20 years (ie from 1981 onwards) and from 1961 for Keith's to hide the decline. (A: To HIDE THE DECLINE, in warming.)

These are the TOP scientists that WE are supposed to hang our lives on, on the outcomes of what they say. There's no science here. It's a mandate. It's an absolute mandate. It's amazing, all the different links that are here and all the different emails that are here, on and on it goes… and all the different graphs they came up with on how to fudge the findings, in their favor. Quite something eh?

It's amazing again, how much the mainstream media has been silent on this. Some have had a few articles out but most of them are on board with the agenda because their bosses tell them to be on board with it and they all know where their paycheck comes from. Here's an article and this is from BEFORE the emails were exposed to the public.

The Dog Ate Global Warming
Interpreting climate data can be hard enough. What if some key data have been fiddled?
Taking a bite out of climate data
23-09-2009 / By Patrick J. Michaels, National Review Online

Imagine if there were no reliable records of global surface temperature. Raucous policy debates such as cap-and-trade would have no scientific basis, Al Gore would at this point be little more than a historical footnote, and President Obama would not be spending this U.N. session talking up a (likely unattainable) international climate deal in Copenhagen in December. (A: It will be attainable because they'll sign on to agree with every subsequent agreement.)

Steel yourself for the new reality, because the data needed to verify the gloom-and-doom warming forecasts have disappeared. (A: This is what happened before the emails came out; when the scientists asked for the data so that they could replicate the tests and they were denied it. Then they deleted all the stuff. They guys who work for the IPCC DELETED all the info. I'll be back with more after this break.)

HI folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from The National Review and it says that "The Dog Ate Global Warming - Interpreting climate data can be hard enough. What if some key data have been fiddled?" Then it says…

Steel yourself for the new reality, because the data needed to verify the gloom-and-doom warming forecasts have disappeared. Or so it seems. Apparently, they were either lost or purged from some discarded computer. Only a very few people know what really happened, and they aren't talking much. And what little they are saying makes no sense.

In the early 1980s, with funding from the U.S. Department of Energy (A: That's who funded this particular group and the whole panel that gives the data to the IPCC. Why would they give that to an English university?), scientists at the United Kingdom's University of East Anglia established the Climate Research Unit (CRU) to produce the world's first comprehensive history of surface temperature. It's known in the trade as the "Jones and Wigley" record for its authors, Phil Jones and Tom Wigley, and it served as the primary reference standard for the U.N. Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) until 2007. It was this record that prompted the IPCC to claim a "discernible human influence on global climate." (A: It's interesting too that that's about 7 years after they decided at the Club of Rome, when they dreamed up and they admit dreaming up the idea to bring the world together under a war scenario with man against the planet. That was the idea. They said 'global warming, famine and the like, that would fit the bill.' Here it is, 7 years later with funding from the US Department of Energy gets this whole thing kicked off and the IPCC at the United Nations is all set up to deal with it.)

Putting together such a record isn't at all easy. Weather stations weren't really designed to monitor global climate.

Long-standing ones were usually established at points of commerce, which tend to grow into cities that induce spurious warming trends in their records. Trees grow up around thermometers and lower the afternoon temperature. Further, as documented by the University of Colorado's Roger Pielke Sr., many of the stations themselves are placed in locations, such as in parking lots or near heat vents, where artificially high temperatures are bound to be recorded. (A: Then it makes you wonder if they put it there on purpose…after all this scandal's come out.)

So the weather data that go into the historical climate records that are required to verify models of global warming aren't the original records at all. Jones and Wigley, however, weren't specific about what was done to which station in order to produce their record, which, according to the IPCC, showed a warming of 0.6° +/– 0.2°C in the 20th century.

Now begins the fun. Warwick Hughes, an Australian scientist, wondered where that "+/–" came from, so he politely wrote Phil Jones (A: As all scientists are supposed to do. This is how you do it. You get the scientist's data and then you do experimentation and so on and you check it over.) in early 2005, asking for the original data. Jones's response to a fellow scientist attempting to replicate his work was, "We have 25 years or so invested in the work. Why should I make the data available to you, when your aim is to try and find something wrong with it?" (A: This is a scientist talking supposedly. That's what you're supposed to do with all your data, put it up there for examination, come what may from the results.)

Reread that statement, for it is breathtaking in its anti-scientific thrust. In fact, the entire purpose of replication is to "try and find something wrong." The ultimate objective of science is to do things so well that, indeed, nothing is wrong.

Then the story changed. In June 2009, Georgia Tech's Peter Webster told Canadian researcher Stephen McIntyre that he had requested raw data, and Jones freely gave it to him. So McIntyre promptly filed a Freedom of Information Act request for the same data. Despite having been invited by the National Academy of Sciences to present his analyses of millennial temperatures, McIntyre was told that he couldn't have the data because he wasn't an "academic." So his colleague Ross McKitrick, an economist at the University of Guelph, asked for the data. He was turned down, too. (A: So anybody who could possibly use science to critique the findings has been turned down.)

Faced with a growing number of such requests, Jones refused them all, saying that there were "confidentiality" agreements regarding the data between CRU and nations that supplied the data. McIntyre's blog readers then requested those agreements, country by country, but only a handful turned out to exist, mainly from Third World countries and written in very vague language. (A: [Alan laughing.] I bet it was.)

It's worth noting that McKitrick and I had published papers demonstrating that the quality of land-based records is so poor that the warming trend estimated since 1979 (the first year for which we could compare those records to independent data from satellites) may have been overestimated by 50 percent. Webster, who received the CRU data, published studies linking changes in hurricane patterns to warming (while others have found otherwise). (A: The opposite.)

Enter the dog that ate global warming. (A: And it goes on to page 2. It shows you all the con tricks that are being pulled and pulled because this is a well planned, from the top agenda to bring the world into global governance, as they call it, post-democratic by the way, where we're all in a war to save the world and sacrifice ourselves in the process. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt this is Cutting Through The Matrix. It's interesting too to see how some of the real greenies, and I mean died-in-the-wool greenies, the ones who have a new religion, a real CAUSE – everyone needs a cause in a religion – and how they're going crazy with this scandal that's rocked their world to do with their heroes; heroes that are treated by them like Gods, Gods of the new greening age. They listen to all the fearful news and then they try to find out a way to combat it by putting up solar panels and going green and riding bikes and all that kind of stuff, and to be an example to us all. They're cracking up and this particular one here, this is from Prison Planet. It's a good article on one of them, Ed Begley Jr, an actor. In Hollywood, everyone who's in acting has to have a cause. It's just one of these things; you have to have a cause and a charity or something. But this guy is a believer, Ed Begley Jr.

TV Environmentalist Goes Nuts Over ClimateGate

Celebrity environmentalist Ed Begley makes an absolute clown out of himself on Fox News, claiming "peer-reviewed" studies prove man-made global warming when hacked emails clearly illustrate how peer-reviewed process is completely bias and corrupt
Paul Joseph Watson / Prison Planet.com / Wednesday, November 25, 2009

If the juvenile and wildly erratic behavior of celebrity environmentalist Ed Begley, Jr. is anything to go by, the warmists are more upset about ClimateGate than they are letting on.

Begley appeared on Fox News yesterday to react to the explosive story of the hacked CRU emails which prove that climate scientists affiliated with the UN IPCC altered temperature data models in order to "hide the decline" in global warming since the 1960's, as well as engaging in academic witch hunts to ensure the work of skeptical scientists was blocked from appearing in peer-reviewed journals. (A: You wouldn't believe the power these guys were wielding from behind the scenes to STOP other people looking in to the data. Literally, smear campaigns, exactly the same way as the communists did it.)

When asked about the scandal, Begley immediately resorted to invoking the words, "peer reviewed studies," uttering the phrase no less than eight times in an attempt to dismiss the hundreds of skeptical scientists whose stance on global warming proves that the debate is not over. Unfortunately for this clown, his constant repetition of the term only discredited his argument with each mention.

The hacked emails show that warmists conspired (A: And they did, they conspired.) to conduct academic witch hunts in order to prevent studies which didn't jive with their agenda from appearing in peer-reviewed journals.

As the Telegraph's James Delingpole highlights, the exposé reveals, "A long series of communications discussing how best to squeeze dissenting scientists out of the peer review process. How, in other words, to create a scientific climate in which anyone who disagrees with AGW can be written off as a crank, whose views do not have a scrap of authority." (A: That's what they were telling them at these journals, don't publish them.)

Other emails illustrate how warmists embarked on a campaign to discredit peer-reviewed journals that dared publish studies which contradicted the man-made global warming hypothesis. (A: That's the key to it. They're trying to say it's MAN MADE. That's the other part that ties in with the Club of Rome's idea.) The emails illustrate that the peer-review process is completely corrupted.

Warmists can invoke "peer-reviewed studies" until they are blue in the face, as Begley does in this interview, but the fact is that the entire foundation of the argument has been debunked now it is proven that an inherent bias to censor unfavorable studies from appearing in such journals has been in place.

Ain't that a fact? Isn't a shame too that Joe Public - the vast majority of Joe Public out there that go through their lives day by day and come home fed up at work and have something to eat and sit in front of that TV set - they don't know what's been going on. They don't know what's being PLANNED for them. They don't know what's going to HIT them when all of these laws come down the pike from the United Nations, to save the world you understand, and how we're going to get taxed into… we'll be lucky to get a bicycle, even one with one wheel, a unicycle, at the end of all this lot. They'll want us all into the cities and by putting on carbon taxes for every mile you drive, and that's what will come, just like Holland. Holland has been the first one to go ahead with this. They'll drive everybody off the roads, especially those in the rural areas. But that is the agenda too, under Agenda 21, ALSO from the United Nations. See how it all ties together. It's beautiful isn't it? It's what you expect in a war type scenario. Believe you me, the United Nations is at war with the world. That's what it was set up to do.

Then we've also got from CNN.com.

Obama to attend climate change summit
(A: That was a forgone conclusion.)
November 25, 2009 / CNN.com

Washington (CNN) -- President Obama will go to Copenhagen, Denmark, next month for a climate change summit, the White House said Wednesday.

According to a news release, Obama is prepared to set a goal of reducing emissions to 17 percent below 2005 levels over the next decade. (A: Why not just write that off? Because most of the factories have gone from the US so their emissions are obviously all down already. But that won't matter will it? Facts don't matter with the agenda.)

The White House also reiterated Obama's goal of reducing U.S. emissions by 83 percent by 2050. (A: I guess there is not going to be too many people walking around inside the US by then.)

The targets come from a climate change bill passed by the House of Representatives. The Senate has yet to pass the bill, so the United States has not committed itself to any binding goals.

Obama had said he would be in Oslo, Norway, to accept his Nobel Peace Prize [Alan laughing.] on December 10, but had not confirmed he would go to the United Nations summit, known as the Conference of Parties 15, which runs December 7-18.

He will attend the U.N. Framework Convention on Climate Change the day before he goes to Oslo, the White House said.

So, it's pretty well a done deal. I don't care if God himself came down and says here are the facts Jack, they will still go ahead with it. This is a 'must be'. They've been planning this for so many years. They've even got a whole new economy arranged through carbon trading and personal taxation and banks that the money is to get funneled through, for carbon taxes and so on. The same old bankers I've mentioned over and over. So this is a 'must be'. They are not going to back off from this now; I don't care what happens. I don't care if literally you wake up tomorrow in a cube of ice, they'll tell you it's global warming. That's a definite.

However, WE CAN'T GIVE UP ON IT. We've got to keep exposing this stuff. Can you imagine how many children have been taught for years, especially stepping up in the year 2000 onwards, about global warming and how man is the enemy of the planet? It's been drummed into them. In a few years time, they will be in their 20s and they'll be up there wearing uniforms and coming into your homes to check this and check that, see how much you're eating, just like they're doing in Britain. They're going into your fridges… from the government. That's going to come down to rationing. They will come into your house too, to check how much rations you have; are you getting what you're supposed to get or if you've got extra, where did you get from? That's all going to come from this.

A WARFARE SCENARIO is what the Club of Rome said it would HAVE TO BE. What do you have in warfare? You have rationing of not just gasoline and oil and all kinds of energy, you have rationing of food, you have peoples on the move. Where are they moving to? Joining the next civilized place, getting driven off of where they are.

We've all to get crammed into the cities, the already overcrowded cities, until we sort of die off, the generation just dies off. Then in comes the brave new world, this very vague thing they are talking about around the year 2050 or so. Where according to the military's own think tanks, in their foresight for the next 30 years, there is going to be nothing but riots starting around 2010, 2012 onwards to do with food riots, poverty riots and how eventually, the UN will take over as the world government body. After that, they said there will be a decline – I guess once most of us are all dead - there will be a decline into a FEW, MAJOR City-States. A few major City-States scattered across the world, high tech, very, very high tech and just nothing outside them except the rabble who are the remnants that are dying off. Read the stuff yourself. Read it yourself. I've got the articles from the military think tanks up on my archives section, the British ones for the Department of Defence and NATO; I've got the US ones and I've got the Canadian ones. They all agree with the same scenario. These are government military bodies… with their projections.

Now the US is also going into this beautiful United Nations standardized world of socialized medicine, which is really the BAREST form of medicine you can imagine. Again, if you go into the United Nations treaty it says that every nation will have the MINIMAL health care offered to them as possible, and they mean MINIMUM. Many countries already have that. As far back as the 80s, I think it was, in the US and Canada at that same time – it's always at the same time because we've been together for a long time, joined at the hip through another part of the government which no one mentions – they were cutting down, actually closing down most of the rural hospitals and the country hospitals. They were all closing them down until there was nothing left but the big cities. That again was to discourage people living in the country. This has been an ongoing war and people don't even realize it, or how long it's been going on, even this PHASE of it, this PART of it. It was on the go long before you were born.

What they're going to bring in, in the US is the same kind of system that they have in Britain. I have an article here from the RAND Corporation. They were asked to look into the US medical system to see where it could be cut back to the bone. Everything they came up with could be checked with how it is in Britain, cutting out all unnecessary procedures and then they start slashing it even from there, on what's actually necessary. That's what the RAND Corporation did and that was a report FOR the government, for Obama's government.

This is what you are going to get in the US because in Britain you're just like cattle going in and out of factories and clinics. Day clinics where none of the doctors know you because you'll never see the same one twice, they just rotate them, whole streams of them through different clinics. You're A NUMBER coming through the door and they want rid of you as soon as possible. Not only that, when you go in there, if you manage to get in for an operation at the hospital, you'll get in if you want to be sterilized or your fallopian tubes cut or a vasectomy or sometimes, maybe a sex change BUT anything outside of that which is necessary, you aren't going to get. You'll be on the books for maybe years, until you're dead. That's what they hope for, you'll die first. But they go through the shams of taking x-rays. Here's an article about the shams of taking x-rays, which you get in socialized medicine.

100,000 X-rays 'went unchecked'
Wednesday, 18 November 2009 / BBC World Service

(A: This is just the tip of the iceberg here.)

A doctor has claimed he was sacked for being a whistle-blower after finding 100,000 unprocessed X-rays "hidden" in a hospital cupboard.

Dr Otto Chan lost his radiology job at the Royal London Hospital in 2006.

He told an employment tribunal the hidden X-rays would mean cancelled operations and missed appointments for people whose scans could not be found. (A: It also meant a lot of people died off because they weren't even read.)

Barts and the London NHS Trust claims Dr Chan, 52, was a "troublemaker" who had "undermined" management. (A: By complaining obviously… you're a troublemaker if you complain.)

Their lawyer, Angus Moon QC (A: Queen's Counsel.), told the hearing Dr Chan had clashed with several senior colleagues at the hospital in Whitechapel, east London, before his sacking.

But Dr Chan said: "I would accept I persisted and continued to persist in issues which are important and relate to patient care. (A: How dare he… when it's policy of the hospital to turn a blind eye.)

Dr Otto Chan
"The problem becomes that if you persist in problems that relate to patient care you are going to be labelled a troublemaker and there will then be occasions where you step out of line."

Dr Chan said the 100,000 X-rays should have been examined to search for signs of illness or infection. (A: Because after all, that's what they were taken for. But it's only the patients, you see, at the bottom of the heap, the general population.)

Dr Chan said: "The position was that Barts and the London had hidden these films in a cupboard and they were totally inaccessible to any clinician or any clerk."

The doctor also told the tribunal he had repeatedly raised issues about training and the use of junior staff in the department.

He said: "The junior staff in our department were doing too much unsupervised work. (A: This is called socialized cutbacks.)

"The department was going rapidly backwards. I had real concerns about patient care in relation to the training programme."

He explained that, rather than being shown a procedure, junior doctors (A: Who were just thrown in on the job.) were given notes before "being told to go and practise it on a patient." (A: [Alan laughing.] That's when you'd better read your fortune cookie eh?)

There's the farce you see. Isn't it amazing too how the Bernays tricks have been used of creating perceptions and that ties in with all marketing, ALL marketing in media. It's like Jacques Ellul said a long time ago in one of his books that ALL hospital, medical drama series and movies and all detective work for police and so on, they're ALL PROPAGANDA. That's the intention of them, to build them up into something they are not, IN YOUR MIND, until you BELIEVE IT. Most folk DO believe the propaganda. They believe that hospitals work just the same way as they are on General Hospital or some drama series on television. Everyone seems to know what they're doing and everything is going by the book and there's always someone in charge who knows more than the rest, the older one, and procedures are carried out and no matter what happens, they can always save the patient. That's the impression they GIVE you. And they're all about 20 years of age, by the way, on the TV dramas. They are getting younger all the time. It's kind of farcical. That's what they give you.

It's the same with the police. They give you the idea that police, they can't sleep at night. The detectives are up all night and every night worrying about that guy who killed that little boy or girl and they're going to spend all their time pulling their hair out until they find the bad guy. That's what we think they are all about. In reality, the police are there to watch all of YOU. That's what they are there for. The police are also there to make sure that enough tickets are given out every day to generate funds, money for local government, federal government and so on. That's what they do. But propaganda is quite amazing isn't it? PROPAGANDA WINS OVER FACT.

The Toronto Star a while ago - I read it at the time back in 2006 - did an article on a chip, a body chip for an ID and I'm going to read this again from the Wise Up Journal who's repeated the story, after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I'll just touch on this article. It's from Wise Up Journal. They have repeated a story that was in the Toronto Star.

Toronto Star: 'One generation is all they need'
The Toronto Star / 10.12.2006 / By Kevin Haggerty / Special to the Star

By the time my four-year-old son is swathed in the soft flesh of old age, he will likely find it unremarkable that he and almost everyone he knows will be permanently implanted with a microchip. Automatically tracking his location in real time, it will connect him with databases monitoring and recording his smallest behavioural traits. (A: That's a fact folks.)

I'll put this link up too for this article and you can see for yourself. At the first meeting that happened in the year 2000 I think it was, the International Science meeting held in Louisiana at a university there, kicked off by Newt Gingrich, it was about the implantable chip. They turned out 600 pages on it and they said that THEY'VE ALREADY GOT THE TECHNOLOGY READY TO GO, even centralized computers or regional computers - they called it 'regional' - that will basically transmit messages to every person and receive them from every person and that YOU WOULD NO LONGER BE AN INDIVIDUAL once this is done. They've had subsequent meetings every year since. That was at the Loyola University and they've had 2 or 3 of the meetings there as far as I know, maybe more, every year. This is what's coming up in the future. They said that the end of individuality would come out of this. They said think more like THE HIVE… where you'll hear whispers going to your head and to those around you and whispers going back from those people going back to the regional computers. This is all on the cards. Here they have meetings about, world meetings by all the top, once again, EXPERTS in the field of biotechnology.

There is Mark from Wisconsin; I might manage to get him in. Are you there Mark?

Mark: Yeah. This is Mark from the Land of the Dead. How are you doing Alan?

Alan: Not so bad but they're pretty dead up here too though.

Mark: Hey, we got this thing the legislators are trying to bring down. They want to give power to the water board to control 1000 feet back from every lake and pond, 300 feet back from every river, stream, creek, and dry creek bed. They want to be able to tell you what plants to grow, what color you can paint your house, if you can build a structure and you've got to do the improvements on your land that you want if you want to do anything like add a deck to your house.

Alan: It's amazing. That goes back to one of the UN meetings. The first one I read was in the late 1960s. They had the UN meeting in Israel at the time and they discussed the TAKEOVER OF THE WORLD'S WATER SUPPLY. Which also meant that there would be laws galore to deal with the average person and what you can and can not do with water.

Mark: The water board, after they get the control, they're allowed to interpret the vague draconian laws that they're putting on the books. Plus, they're allowed to change the rules so whatever they're telling the people that they're going to do with the rules now are not even true. It will be worse down the road.

Alan: You're absolutely right. What they do is put something on the books and then they put on amendments, nothing but more and more amendments every month or two months or three months until you're wrapped in it. Basically you're tied up in rope by the end of it.

Mark: This is to be an administrative council too, where no remedy is provided, which means you can't sue them statutorily. That's the Soviet Union, isn't it, rule by councils?

Alan: Rule by councils and that's what the United Nations is based upon, but the councils are non-governmental organizations that pretend to speak on behalf of the public. They're unelected and they're actually OWNED and paid for and funded by the foundations that are owned by the big bankers. You're quite right though. That's who funded the soviet system.

Mark: [Alan and Mark laughing.] Have a good night.

Alan: And you too.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

National Review - The Dog Ate Global Warming
("The Dog Ate Global Warming - Interpreting climate data can be hard enough. What if some key data have been fiddled?" by Patrick J. Michaels (nationalreview.com) - Sept. 23, 2009.)

Environ-Mental-ist Goes Nuts on TV
("TV Environmentalist Goes Nuts Over ClimateGate" by Paul Joseph Watson (prisonplanet.com) - Nov. 25, 2009.

Obama to Sign Copenhagen Agreement
("Obama to attend climate change summit" (cnn.com) - Nov. 25, 2009.)

" 100,000 X-rays 'went unchecked' " (news.bbc.co.uk) - Nov. 18, 2009.

Wiseup-Old Toronto Star Article on Chipping Humans
("Toronto Star: 'One generation is all they need' (wiseupjournal.com).)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 27, 2009 (#460)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 27, 2009:
Info? If Public Asks More, Just Close the Door:
"Ideological Scientists Froth with Hate
At the Merest Mention of Climategate,
Most Major Media is Naturally Silent
For Fear the People get Naturally Violent
At All the Lies said Media has Told
And Coming Catastrophes They have Sold,
Convincing the Public They Must Go Green
To Save the Planet, We've All to Go Lean,
At the Top, They're Just One Big Clan,
Sworn to Close Ranks, Defending THE PLAN"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 27, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 27, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 27th 2009. Newcomers, look into .com web site, scroll down, look at all the alternate sites I have up there [sites listed above], bookmark them for future use because quite often the big servers go down and if you bookmark these other sites you can always pull down the latest shows for free. It's a good idea too, to try and alternate your downloads because everyone goes into the .com web site at once and sometimes they experience sticking. Other ones will go in there while I'm uploading and then I get lots of emails asking what's going on.

The problem is XplorNet, the satellite company that I upload through. They have been cutting me back deliberately even though I'm uploading the same amount every night and have been for the last 2 years. They've suddenly decided that they're going to put in their 'unfair use' policy, which they can't explain to you and they can't tell you what your limit is. In other words, someone's put the word in to give me a hard time. For those who are contemplating using XplorNet, I certainly would not advise it because you get nothing but lies from them when you complain; right down to 'it's your equipment.' You'll spend hundreds of bucks only to find out there is nothing wrong with it and someone along the line will admit that they've got you on a 'lock' that keeps kicking in and you drop down to dial-up speed. Therefore it takes TWO days now to upload one night's show. That's what you get when they don't like what you're saying.

It's also important to remember that you the listeners bring me to you. No one backs me so it's up to yourselves to donate to me and you'll see how to do it on the web site, or buy those things I have for sale on the sites. There are different ways to do it. [Options listed above.] It seems that PayPal is the way that everyone is going these days and it's probably the cheapest if you want to wire something. For those who get the disks burned and passed around to them, you can get in touch with me at [address listed above]. I'll be back after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just bitching off about XplorNet, the company that promises you high speed, takes your cash and then when the word is put in, they drop you to almost dial-up speed. So as I say, if you have problems downloading a night's talk, then you have to go in the next afternoon because it will take ALL of tonight and tomorrow morning to upload the same amount of material and no more. It's the same amount as it's always been and they arbitrarily play a lot of games with you when they pick on you. So for those who want to complaint to them and tell them to get off my back, you can always email them at info@xplornet.com.

That's what happens when you're not really authorized to be out there and you're not playing the politics game and you're not really pushing one or another agenda. You're supposed to push either left or right, as though it made any darn difference; but to me, a totalitarian society is the same regardless of what color they're flying above their mast. It's all the same thing. With adding the addition of the greenie parties, then it's the same thing again. You've got red which has always been for labor or left wing and communism; you've got blue for conservatives; and then green. Green of course, was designed by the communist system because they had no intention of simply fading away. The next step was to fade IN to the rest of the world and merge.

That came out in the Congressional investigation by the Reece Commission. Senator Norman Dodd - who has a video out there explaining this - from the 1950s, he did this investigation. He was told the job of the big, incredibly wealthy foundations, running all their non-governmental organizations, was to eventually change the culture so much in the West that it would blend seamlessly with that of the East, meaning the Soviet system. Lo and behold, we've got it all here.

That's what the Club of Rome - I keep mentioning this too; it's so important - the big think tank that works with the United Nations. They were given the task to come up with a method of combining this whole system for a WORLD society under a global rulership, which they now call governance, a POST democratic system. They favored collectivism; meaning basically the Sovietized system where everything is centralized from one center, all the laws, all regulations, all authority, for a global society and they would run it all from there, right down to what you could eat and what you couldn't eat. That's all coming down the pike too, as we all know. Above them would be an intelligentsia class and a wealthy class. Therefore technocrats and bureaucrats would run the whole show on behalf of their lords and masters, those very old families with lots and lots of loot who've been trading and lending down through the millennia. That's what it's all about.

In other words, the whole system of left and right was always to benefit the third party, the one at the top that held the purse strings. They're going to get a lot fatter now with their planned, organized, world society where all you have is a memory of freedom. Not that anyone's truly had ALL of the freedom they should have had, but we had little glimpses of it once in a while. They gave MORE freedoms probably to any people just right after World War II up until about the 70s and then they started taking it gradually all away from them again. It's too untidy having freedoms and rights. It gets in the way of big, big, big business. It gets in the way of excessive taxation and the bankers love nothing better than to deal straight with nations than with individual borrowers. Nations can soak from the public, they can sponge all the taxes from the public to pay back debt. That's why it works this way.

It's the same across the planet, except for the last few countries that are getting pummeled into compliance in the Middle East and Asia. That's why they're getting pummeled into compliance, to standardize the whole world; the DREAM of megalomaniacs for a long, long time, a standardized planet and standardized HUMANITY.

They also want to bring down the population and the Club of Rome and many of the other big, top think tanks that work IN this ONE group… it's ONE GROUP THAT RUNS THE WORLD really, regardless of all their foundation names. Some foundations in fact actually fund hundreds of other foundations. So the main foundation is the one you look at. The rest of them are FRONTS which are active fronts. The actually work through NGOs and work their agenda into demands from governments, that are then passed into law. Exactly what the governments wants to hear because the same foundations put their own boys in politics too. They run societies, big societies, like the Council on Foreign Relations where it's supposed to be an HONOR to be asked to join. You can't ask to join IT; you have to BE asked to join. You are vetted, very well vetted before you're given that request to join it. That means that you're their man; they can count on you.

We're looking for truth in life and we don't find truth anywhere really. From advertising onwards, nothing is anything to do with truth. Politics is nothing to do with truth, any more than law has anything to do with truth. POLITICS IS A SHOW FOR THE PUBLIC. It always has been a show for the public. If you got 12 absolute strangers from across the planet together and gave them a particular task to run on behalf of the people of the world, within a few months there would be 2 or 3 cliques already within that 12 people, with their own little ideas and their dislikes of those who don't go along with them. That's how it works. It's human nature to form these cliques. Once a clique becomes powerful and is well known, then all the lesser people down below that are working IN the particular fields, they want to join the cliques and be goody-two-shoes. They brown-nose their way up there. They show they can be counted on TO TELL ANY LIE at all.

It's come out now, which is no surprise and it's no big news, that Tony Blair met President Bush in 2002 and agreed to invade Iraq then, before even the weapons inspections had gone in by the United Nations or anything else.

Blair may have 'signed in blood' to topple Saddam a year before war
From The Times November 27, 2009

David Brown Tony Blair and President Bush might have secretly "signed in blood" a deal to overthrow Saddam Hussein a year before ordering the Iraq war, according to a former senior diplomat.

All that stuff we saw on television was just formality as the UN kept sending inspectors in and saying 'there is nothing here, there are no weapons of mass destruction'. It didn't make any difference because now the guy who was in charge of the military operations came out and said that nothing could have stopped it once it was agreed upon to attack. Nothing could have stopped it.

We go through these charades and presentation to the public trying to win them over for the reasons for wars. In a substitute situation for war in a global society, and this was discussed many years ago from an Iron Mountain debate where experts got together and found out, what are the reasons for government? THEY DECIDED GOVERNMENT EXISTS TO PERPETUATE ITSELF UNDER THE GUISE OF KEEPING THE PEOPLE SAFE, SAFE FROM VARIOUS OTHER FACTIONS THAT WANT TO MAKE WAR WITH THEM. That's what they claimed. So there is an elite at the top. They see the country as THEIR country and they make sure that everyone below will go off and fight and die for that country so the elite can sustain itself.

In a global society you have a lack of conflict so they have to find terrorism everywhere. The technique that we found was used in soviet Russia after they'd cleaned up their act and got rid of the whites and all the other parties. There were even greens there too, a different type though. They had to find counter-insurgents within the country; counter-revolutionaries they called them. In this global society… it's terrorism for the global society. There's got to be terrorists. They've got to keep finding terrorists or creating them. You can create real ones if you keep sticking a stick in the wasp's nests all the time; eventually the wasps attack you. So you can create real terrorists too. In a society where you have lack of conflict, they have to create these problems.

The Club of Rome came up with the idea back in the 1970s that "global warming, famines, disasters, and the like would fit the bill." That's what they said in their own book. That's what they presented for the schedule for the future. Then it was up to the rest, the propaganda machine, to go into action and start preaching this stuff as though it was the truth and get all the magazines to print it, get all the documentaries on television on their side. They always have their pals within the media; they know who to contact who will give them good columns and good write-ups and good documentaries to say, oh global warming, and keep showing you panic things. Every year ice flows come off the North Pole and every year polar bears swim back and forth all over the place. They can swim for hundreds of miles but of course you don't tell the public that. You keep the public in ignorance in everything. You don't tell them that poor bear there isn't going to drown; he's just going somewhere else and he probably knows better than the guy who is steering the ship that's following him where he is going.

Truth is irrelevant. It's the same with advertising. In advertising you are sold HAPPINESS if you just buy this. That's why it doesn't matter if you're running on a treadmill and the sweat is pouring off you and your muscles are killing you, you have a big grin on you, on the ads on television. Or toothpaste, you've got a sudden orgasm with this new toothpaste, according to what you see on television. In other words, purchasing makes you happy, EXTREMELY happy, more happy than anything else on the planet. That's the game. Everything really is a lie.

Politics is no different. POLITICS IS A SHOW FOR THE PUBLIC. We never know the real motives for anything until maybe 50 years after the official secrets act unravels it and cuts the ribbon and shows it to a future generation who doesn't care what happened in the past. It's astonishing but that's the truth. Lies prevail, all through the entire system. They have been teaching children for 10 years about global warming regardless of the Copenhagen agreement. I wasn't even heard of, the Copenhagen Treaty coming up. They start in advance because it's a done deal. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. We live in an agenda. That's all we live, is one big agenda. Politicians are there to basically give us an impression that somehow they are supposed to speak on our behalf. That was the old farce that they put up a long time ago but they never do. They go for their party. Whatever the party says is what they go with. There's always a party head and they know darned well, everyone below them, if they want to get ahead and up with the party, they've got agree with everything he says. That's how it works. It's nothing to do with representation of the people of any particular area. These are the farces we're brought up on.

Really, the country is run by a parallel government. That's what Professor Carroll Quigley called it, the parallel government. The big foundations run them. The Council on Foreign Relations is their American branch, although they're using the same term in Canada now. The Royal Institute of International Affairs is the British MAIN one. That's the granddaddy you might say, that gives orders to the rest. They came up with the idea of a global government system. They came up with the idea that it would not be democratic because you see we're all too dumb at the bottom; we haven't evolved up to the smart class. If we had we'd be stinking rich with lots of loot because we would have clawed our way up there through all kind of devious means, held on to the money, had children, they'd hang on to it too for 2 or 3 generations and that PROVES that you have evolved higher than the rest that are all down below… doing an honest days work.

That literally is the prevalent theme amongst them at the top. Therefore, there's nothing we go through in our lifetimes, from wars to agendas with carbon and new crisis. These are all MAN-MADE CRISES that exist in fiction that are made into a form of reality by repetition and big bucks flowing, big, big bucks flowing. When you don't have wars on the go, and shortly, supposedly, we won't have these big wars on the go, then to replace that disposable income that's wasted in armaments and so on, you either put it up into space using NASA and there's what, $50 billion at a pop as they pop something into space and keep taxing you and borrowing, or you find a new way.

Carbon… carbon taxes. It's a gas, man. And this really is a gas. It's a small gas in the atmosphere percentage-wise and it's natural. The sea gives off more gas than anything in CO2 because of all the living creatures down there. But facts don't matter when there is an agenda at work, as we found with the whole scandal of ClimateGate, as it's being called. To see how all these top scientists, who are hand-picked of course by their masters, kept fudging all the facts into bendable figures and came out with new lovely graphs that even did away with the Medieval warming periods and stuff like that and previous cooling periods. It's all been fudged. All LIES in other words because it's an agenda; nothing to do with truth or facts. You've got to understand that.

We do live through incredible agendas that were hatched before most folk were even born, at least the plans were. Nothing is going to stop this. I don't care if your house gets buried under snow, they'll still claim it's global warming. Once the treaty is signed… what the treaty does, they agree when they sign it, to agree to every other treaty that comes along the pike. So the first one is just the 'we're in' sort of stuff; we're IN on it. We promise, we're in on it and we'll do anything we are told in the future. That's what the first signature will be in Copenhagen. THEN IT REALLY STARTS. Then you really start getting taxed. Then you have governments come into your home to see if you can even live there anymore; even if you own it or you think you own it. They'll say it's not really sustainable, you're giving off too much heat, it's poorly energized and it would cost more to refit this house than it would be to knock it down. Then they will fine you for not being able to afford to upgrade it, thousands of dollars per day.

Remember, one of the planks of this collectivist system is the ABOLITION NOT ONLY OF THE MIDDLE CLASSES AND THE FAMILY UNIT, IT'S ALSO THE ABOLITION OF PRIVATE PROPERTY. Of course there are exceptions because if you're an international corporation you have a different status all together. You'll find a lot of the big landlords are really international corporations that own property across the whole planet. Under Agenda 21 that's where we are all to get pushed; into these sustainable living places that are probably very squalid, but that won't matter because a different set of rules apply to these slum landlords. The whole idea is to get you off the land into the crowded cities while this generation dies off.

We already know we're getting more and more sterile every year according to the UN's own happy report. They never make a comment and say my God, this should be a crisis that the men's sperm count in the West is down 75-85%. There's no crisis about it at all. Meanwhile, they dream up a crisis about global warming which does not exist and the facts prove it, but facts are not relevant when it comes to an agenda.

Here is Lorrie Goldstein on the Ottawa Sun about this very topic. It won't matter.

Why 'climategate' won't stop greens
Comment Columnists / By LORRIE GOLDSTEIN / 26th November 2009

If you're wondering how the robot-like march of the world's politicians towards Copenhagen can possibly continue in the face of the scientific scandal dubbed "climategate," it's because Big Government, Big Business and Big Green don't give a s about "the science." They never have.

I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt. We're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from an article from the Ottawa Sun to do with ClimateGate and how it doesn't matter even though it's exposed because they're rampaging on as though they didn't even hear it, which is what they always do when they must make sure the agenda comes through at all costs. They can't go back on their plans, never do.

What "climategate" suggests is many of the world's leading climate scientists didn't either. Apparently they stifled their own doubts about recent global cooling not explained by their computer models, manipulated data, plotted ways to avoid releasing it under freedom of information laws and attacked fellow scientists and scientific journals for publishing even peer-reviewed literature of which they did not approve. (Alan: So they weren't allowing any other opposing points of view from other renowned scientists to get in to the books.)

Now they and their media shills -- who sneered that all who questioned their phony "consensus" (A: It truly is phony since there are thousands more who say it's all baloney than the ones who are all for it and on the payroll of the UN.) were despicable "deniers," the moral equivalent of those who deny the Holocaust -- are the ones in denial about the enormity of the scandal enveloping them.

So they desperately try to portray it as the routine "messy" business of science, lamely insisting, "nothing to see here folks, move along." (A: And that's what the media is saying, the major media. They're saying 'there's nothing to see here, just move along.')

Before the Internet -- which has given ordinary people a way to fight back against the received wisdom of so-called "wise elites" -- they might have gotten away with it.

But not now, as knowledgeable climate bloggers are advancing the story and forcing the co-opted mainstream media to cover a scandal most would rather ignore. (A: And by God they would rather ignore it because they've been the rah-rah team all along for this rubbish.)

The problem, however, is those who hijacked science to predict a looming Armageddon unless we do exactly as they say (A: And that's well worded. That's what the whole thing is. You're going to have Armageddon unless you do as WE say.), have already done their damage.

The moment they convinced politicians the way to avert the End of Days was to put a price on emitting carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, the unholy alliance of Big Government, Big Business and Big Green was forged.

Big Government wants more of your taxes. Big Business wants more of your income. Big Green wants you and your children to bow down to its agenda of enforced austerity. (A: Meaning POVERTY. Maurice Strong is one of the biggest players behind that green part of it there.)

What about saving the planet, you ask? This was never about saving the planet. This is about money and power. Your money. Their power.

If it was about saving the planet, "cap-and-trade" (a.k.a. cap-and-tax) -- how Big Government, Big Business and Big Green ludicrously pretend we will "fight" global warming and "save the planet" -- would have been consigned to the dust bin of history because it doesn't work. We know it doesn't work because Europe's five-year-old cap-and-trade market -- the Emissions Trading Scheme -- has done nothing to make the world cooler. (A: All it's done… what they did was they gave all the big international corporations billions of bucks worth of free carbon trading credits. They've been trading these things and making a fortune on them. It's cost them nothing but it cost us a lot.)

All it's done is make hedge fund managers, speculators and Big Energy giddy with windfall profits, while making everyone else poorer by driving up the cost of energy, and thus of most goods and services, which need energy to be lighted, heated, cooled, grown, constructed, manufactured, produced and transported. (A: This is going to control everything in life here, across the whole world. There's power for you.)

Readers often ask how they can fight back. First, forget about asking when the warmists will see reason. They won't. (A: They will not see reason because it's an agenda written in stone. YOU'VE GOT TO SMASH THE STONE.)

Instead, send a message to Prime Minister Stephen Harper by e-mail (pm@pm.gc.ca), fax (1-613-941-6900) or call toll-free (1-866-599-4999) and ask to be put through to the Office of the Prime Minister.

Do the same for Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff by e-mail, (ignatm@parl.gc.ca). fax, (1-613-947-0310), or call-toll free (1-866-599-4999) and ask to be put through to the Liberal Leader's Office.

Tell them you want no part of the madness in Copenhagen.

Blow their phones off the hook.

It won't matter though because they're all on board with it. These guys were picked before we knew their names to be Prime Ministers and leaders years ago for this agenda, including the wars in the Middle East and so on. That's a fact. We have no democratic system to fight this. You know Greenpeace has got ads on, ad nauseam, daily, telling people to vote and tell their leaders to vote FOR the Copenhagen agreement. Greenpeace is supposedly a charity but it's funded by – you know who the big foundations are. I don't need to mention them again do I? That's who funds them. So they're not skint for money, going around with tin cans to save Willy the Whale.

They want us all on our knees in rags. They HATE humanity actually. They truly do hate humanity, those who are PAID to put all this stuff through. They HATE humanity. They hate the class system. They hate the bottom class. They hate you. That's what all this is about. A new scientific society where the scientists will guide our lives; they'll even decide if you're even going to get born. Do they need you to serve the world state or not? That's what it boils down to.

If that's not bad enough, here's from the Guardian. Prime Minister Brown of Britain, another Fabianist…

Brown proposes global fund to Kick-start Copenhagen climate change process
PM says he expects £10bn plan to be backed by Commonwealth leaders,
Nicolas Sarkozy and US
Press Association / guardian.co.uk, Friday 27 November 2009

(A: So they know the US is going to do the same because Obama's going over there too. And his pal, the guy that was parachuted into France to be the President, Nicolas Sarkozy, is going to back him on this deal. This is all… you don't get it… this is all taxpayer's money. Government creates nothing except misery. Folk keep asking government to help them. Don't they get it? That government IS the problem and always has been. They can't create anything except misery and debt and guess who pays it? You do.)

Gordon Brown arrives at Port of Spain in Trinidad for the Commonwealth meeting on 26 November 2009.

Gordon Brown today proposed setting up a global fund to "kick-start" the Copenhagen climate change process and encourage poorer countries to start cutting greenhouse gas emissions immediately. (A: So the idea is all the wealthier countries… This all goes back to the GATT Treaty too and all the other treaties at the United Nations. That the so-called wealthy countries have to just kick money their way, supposedly to help the poor countries. How come the poor countries are getting poorer? How come? How come they're all bankrupt with all the IMF loans and so on that they've had? The World Bank loans and the IMF comes in and starts jackbooting them around to get it all paid back by basically taking land from them, land-for-debt swaps. That's what the UN is famous for. It's nothing to do with helping anybody at the bottom.)

Days ahead of the vital UN-sponsored climate change conference in the Danish capital, Brown proposed a £10bn rich-world fund, to which Britain would contribute £800m. (A: Since Tony Blair before him got in, to the present, Britain has borrowed more money than all of the combined governments in the British history have ever borrowed and here they are at it again. Everyone has been put into slavery here. If you have great, great, great grandchildren, if they're deemed worthy enough to get born, they're going to be in utter slavery here. They know this at the top.)

The initiative would give incentives to developing countries to halt deforestation (A: Oh God.), develop low-carbon energy sources and prepare for the effects of a warmer climate.

See, it's as though nothing happened. All their fudged figures, etc, it doesn't matter, doesn't matter. Lies after lies. The lies are all that matters. They will stick to the party line. Even if old Nick the Devil shows up and tells them they're wrong, or God himself shows up, they'll stick to the party line. They can't go back. They can't go back now, but we can't let this go. WE CAN'T LET THIS GO AND FADE OFF INTO THE OTHER LIES OF THE PAST AND LET THEM HAVE THEIR WAY. They mean it. Austerity is a nice way of saying you're going to be put into utter poverty. They want to flatten the whole world into the same impoverished standard of living, except for themselves of course.

This article is from the Telegraph.

Climategate: this is our Berlin Wall moment!
By James Delingpole Politics Last updated: November 26th, 2009

I've just had a great, very sympathetic interview about Climategate on LBC radio (London's main commercial news and talk station) with Petrie Hosken. She told me she has been simply inundated with callers, all of them utterly unconvinced that human influence has made any significant on so-called "Global Warming". She was desperate to get a few balancing calls from people who do believe in AGW but just couldn't find any.

Can you imagine this happening a year ago? Or even a month ago? Until Climategate, we "Sceptics" were considered freaks – almost as bad as Holocaust deniers (A: That's why they used the term Climate Change 'deniers'. It was done by marketing companies.) – beyond the pale of reasonable balanced discussion. Suddenly we're the norm. Climategate has finally given us the chance to express openly what many of us secretly felt all along:

AGW is about raising taxes; increasing state control; about a few canny hucksters who've leapt on the bandwagon fleecing us rotten with their taxpayer subsidised windfarms and their carbon-trading; about the sour, anti-capitalist impulses of sandal-wearing vegans and lapsed Communists who loathe the idea of freedom and a functioning market economy.

We know it's all a crock and we're not going to take it.

This is our Berlin Wall moment! They can't stop us now!

So it's coming out into the open but as I say, what's fact got to do with anything when it comes to this? What's fact got to do with anything? It does make you wonder though. It really does make you wonder what on earth is really going on half the time and you won't get it from major media generally.

Now apparently, what I've been told, is that New Zealand also has done this. New Zealand was fudging all the statistics as well. This is from wattsupwiththat.com, very good web site, he's been following it for years. It says here…

Uh, oh – raw data in New Zealand tells a different story than the "official" one.
25-11-2009 / Reposted from TBR.cc

New Zealand's NIWA accused of CRU-style temperature faking.

The New Zealand Government's chief climate advisory unit NIWA is under fire for allegedly massaging raw climate data to show a global warming trend that wasn't there.

The scandal breaks as fears grow worldwide that corruption of climate science is not confined to just Britain's CRU climate research centre. (A: They're all connected with each other, these characters.)

In New Zealand's case, the figures published on NIWA's [the National Institute of Water and Atmospheric research] website suggest a strong warming trend in New Zealand over the past century: (A: This is for their graph with the figures that they published.)

The caption to the photo on the NiWA site reads:

From NIWA's web site — Figure 7: Mean annual temperature over New Zealand, from 1853 to 2008 inclusive, based on between 2 (from 1853) and 7 (from 1908) long-term station records. The blue and red bars show annual differences from the 1971 – 2000 average, the solid black line is a smoothed time series, and the dotted [straight] line is the linear trend over 1909 to 2008 (0.92°C/100 years).

But analysis of the raw climate data from the same temperature stations (A: Using their own data.) has just turned up a very different result: (A: The opposite.)

Gone is the relentless rising temperature trend, and instead there appears to have been a much smaller growth in warming, consistent with the warming up of the planet after the end of the Little Ice Age in 1850.

The revelations are published today in a news alert from The Climate Science Coalition of NZ:

Straight away you can see there's no slope—either up or down (A: In the graph.). The temperatures are remarkably constant way back to the 1850s. Of course, the temperature still varies from year to year, but the trend stays level—statistically insignificant at 0.06°C per century since 1850.

Putting these two graphs side by side, you can see huge differences. What is going on?

Why does NIWA's graph show strong warming, but graphing their own raw data looks completely different? Their graph shows warming, but the actual temperature readings show none whatsoever! (A: What is was, is the guy at the NIWA sneezed when he was drawing the graph. That's what it was. Maybe he had the Swine flu because maybe that's what it's getting called now. Could be…)

Have the readings in the official NIWA graph been adjusted?

It is relatively easy to find out. We compared raw data for each station (from NIWA's web site) with the adjusted official data, which we obtained from one of Dr Salinger's colleagues.

Requests for this information from Dr Salinger himself over the years, by different scientists, have long gone unanswered, but now we might discover the truth.

Proof of man-made warming

What did we find? First, the station histories are unremarkable. There are no reasons for any large corrections. But we were astonished to find that strong adjustments have indeed been made.

About half the adjustments (A: I like this. He's very polite, 'adjustments'.) actually created a warming trend where none existed; the other half greatly exaggerated existing warming. All the adjustments increased or even created a warming trend, with only one (Dunedin) going the other way and slightly reducing the original trend.

The shocking truth is that the oldest readings have been cranked way down and later readings artificially lifted to give a false impression of warming, as documented below. There is nothing in the station histories to warrant these adjustments and to date Dr Salinger and NIWA have not revealed why they did this. (A: I guess we can all guess whey they did this, can't we? It's no great mystery. It's no really great mystery.)

It's interesting too, here's an article from The Australian.

CSIRO moves to put gag on scientists
NICOLA BERKOVIC From: The Australian November 09, 2009

THE CSIRO has sought to secretly close a loophole that allows scientists to publish research and comment in their private capacity about politically sensitive issues.

Earlier this year, senior scientists used the loophole to give evidence to a Senate inquiry criticising the Rudd government's emissions targets. (A: For their carbon trading.)

While the CSIRO has denied it has reviewed or changed its public comment policy, a confidential memo leaked to The Australian reveals the policy has been reviewed at the highest levels.

It is understood the memo was sent by three staff members on June 9, after they learned CSIRO chief executive Megan Clark and head of communications John Curran were reviewing the policy. (A: They've actually censored a guy for writing his science paper on this. See, this is how they do it. They don't let certain people in. They just censor you. I'll be back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix and by God the lies and deceit and the agendas you have to cut through are just astonishing. They truly are agendas and science now is supposed to rule us under this global governance system. We're too stupid to rule ourselves basically, that's what they say at the top. In a post-religious system, something replaces it - this was said by Julian Huxley - SCIENCE, a SCIENTIFIC DICTATORSHIP - according to Bertrand Russell as well who used the same term - is now really running the system on behalf of their masters, mind you, who make sure they live in luxury at the top as we all get turned into the third world.

This is from the Canadian Free Press.

Obama's Science Czar John Holdren involved in unwinding "Climategate" scandal
By Dr. Tim Ball and Judi McLeod Tuesday, November 24, 2009

Lift up a rock and another snake comes slithering out from the ongoing University of East Anglia Climate Research Unit (CRU) scandal, now riding as "Climategate".

Obama Science Czar John Holdren is directly involved in CRU's unfolding Climategate scandal. In fact, according to files released by a CEU hacker or whistleblower, Holdren is involved in what Canada Free Press (CFP) columnist Canadian climatologist Dr. Tim Ball terms "a truculent and nasty manner that provides a brief demonstration of his lack of understanding, commitment on faith and willingness to ridicule and bully people". (A: These are GANGSTERS they put in place and I'm talking about control freaks like Holdren.)

"The files contain so much material that it is going to take some time to put it all in context," says Ball. "However, enough is already known to underscore their explosive nature. It is already clear the entire claims and positions of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) (A: At the United Nations.) are based on falsified manipulated material and is therefore completely compromised.

"The fallout will be extensive as material continues to emerge. Reputations of the scientists involved are already destroyed, however fringe players will continue to be identified and their reputations destroyed or sullied."

While the mainstream media is bending into pretzels to keep the scandal under the rug, Climategate is already the biggest scientific scandal in history because of the global policy implications. (A: A complete change of life, absolutely.)

A throwback to the intro of the television series Dragnet, "Ladies and Gentlemen: "The story you are about to hear is true, only the names have been changed to protect the innocent", the innocent in Climategate have already been thrown to the ravening wolves.

"There is a multitude of small but frightening stories in the massive files," Ball writes. "For example I've known solar physicists Sallie Baliunas and Willie Soon for a long time. I've published articles with Willie and enjoyed extensive communication. I was on advisory committees with them when Sallie suddenly and politely withdrew from the fray. I don't know if the following events were contributing factors but it is likely.

"Baliunas and Soon were authors of excellent work confirming the existence of the Medieval Warm Period (MWP) from a multitude of sources. Their work challenged attempts to get rid of the MWP because it contradicted the claim by the proponents of anthropogenic global warming (AGW). (A: In other words, the ones that are pushing the humans are to blame idea literally wiped out a history of the medieval global warming period. They just simply wiped it out of history because it really challenged their scam that they're up to, this so-called plan of theirs. But that's what's going on.)

I'll put up all these link up on my site at the end of the show. You might have to wait until tomorrow to get it because it takes uploading on XplorNet about the same time as dial-up.

From Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Blair-Bush made Deal to Invade Iraq before Inspections for Weapons of Mass Destruction
("Blair may have 'signed in blood' to topple Saddam a year before war" (timesonline.co.uk) - Nov. 27, 2009.)

"Why 'climategate' won't stop greens"
by Lorrie Goldstein (ottawasun.com) - Nov. 26, 2009.

Prime Minister Brown Proposes a Copenhagen Fund To Tax Declining Nations into Further Poverty and Pay 3rd World not to Pollute
("Brown proposes global fund to kick-start Copenhagen climate change process" (guardian.co.uk) - Nov. 27, 2009.)

Climategate Keeps Rolling
("Climategate: this is our Berlin Wall moment!" by James Delingpole (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 26, 2009.)

New Zealand's Creative Warming Trend Exposed
("Climategate: the scandal spreads, the plot thickens, the shame deepens" by James Delingpole (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 26, 2009.)

New Zealand's Fudged Warming Trend Exposed
("Raw data in New Zealand tells a different story than the 'official' one" (wattsupwiththat.com) - Nov. 25, 2009.)

"CSIRO moves to put gag on scientists"
by Nicola Berkovic (theaustralian.com.au) - Nov. 9, 2009.

Holdren, Science Czar Involved in Climategate
("Obama's Science Czar John Holdren involved in unwinding 'Climategate' scandal" by Dr. Tim Ball and Judi McLeod (canadafreepress.com) - Nov. 24, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Nov. 30, 2009 (#461)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Nov. 30, 2009:
Copenhagen Should be Axed or Into Poverty We'll be Taxed:
"New World Order Designed to Figure Skate
Around Trivial Nuisance Such as Climategate,
Each Part of Big Plan itself is a Con,
Justified in their Doctrine, No Right or Wrong,
Only That the Plan itself Must Succeed,
End Justifies Means to these Sell-Outs to Greed,
In Collectivist System, You're Degraded, No Hope,
Easy to Manage Under Surveillance Microscope,
Russell said, Apathy Inducement Would Work Alright,
Ensuring Docility, No Will to Fight"
&copy; Alan Watt Nov. 30, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Nov. 30, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on November 30th 2009. Newcomers should look into .com - that's my main web site – scroll down and look at all the other sites I have up there, bookmark them for future use because sometimes the big ones put me on hold and freeze my account for some reason or another, even though I'm on unlimited bandwidth. If you've got these other sites, you can always get the latest shows if the big ones go down again. [Sites listed above.]

Remember, you are the listeners that bring me to you. No one is backing me here. I don't have an alternate agenda. I don't come out on behalf of the public or any side or other and then spin it off into the usual socialist side of things. That's how most things really go, into the socialist side, a very old technique. They've been using for a hundred years or more. No one is backing me so I can say what I want to say. The ads you hear on the show are paid directly by the advertisers to the station RBN to broadcast this show. It pays for their staff, their equipment and their time. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can do so by buying that which I have for sale on the main site. You can donate as well [Payment and donation options listed above.] and I look forward to hearing from you.

It's up to you to keep me going. I do depend on you. It is expensive here. The equipment I'm using is obsolete by today's standards, which changes all the time, mind you, but this is really obsolete stuff and I've got to upgrade shortly to keep this all going because I'm going backwards all the time. You also know too that I've got a lot of problems uploading with XplorNet because someone in the government has put the word in to a friend from the old school tie club to give me a hassle. I'm uploading no more that I have been for the last couple of years. It's the same every night, Monday to Friday, but they've cut me back by over HALF the speed, OVER half the speed and often below that. So when this show is over, I always upload and I'm generally finished in about 3 hours or so, 4 hours max. Now it takes 4 hours at night and another 2 or 3 the next day to get the show up because of the speed they've given me.

People do target you. That's how the real world really works. They can target you but it's nothing you can take into court. They can always pull out their 'unfair use' policy stuff, even through I'm not using any more bandwidth than I used before. That's how they do it. It's just through harassment and trying to get you off the air by trying to make things impossible for you. I've had the same thing when I was using dial-up even at times and even just talking on the phone; I had the telex type machine sounds going through phone calls and phone calls getting dropped in the early days when I was on the phone DOING the shows. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning that you support me so it's up to you to keep me going. No one is backing me and as I've said before, many times in the past, if it just ends up into more poverty than I am, then it's bye-bye and I'll do something else that'll make some cash as the world goes down the tubes. Because it IS going down the tubes, it's PLANNED to go down the tubes.

It's one incredible agenda. It's TOO big for most people to comprehend. Last night for instance, they had on The Fifth Estate on Canadian television, a sort of 9/11 truth investigation. In all these mainstream investigations, they always slip in the little bits that make up the viewers' minds for them because they're aiming it at the general population who've never looked into anything for themselves. They pretty well said that America has a history of conspiracy theories. Then they bring on a book writer who makes his living on the conspiracy theorists and why they like conspiracy theories, and then they continue with the show. That's really what it is; it's how they present things, what they omit, the questions that are not asked, and what the conclusions they leave listeners with. That's how all these exposés are done. It's not new, this technique; it's been going on for ever and ever and ever.

That's why I'm very weary of some of the big mainstream ones. I've been asked by some of the big ones who are doing reporting on global warming what my views were as a sort of pre-interview to see if they wanted me on their show. It was a whole group owned by Ted Turner. They asked me few questions and I recognized right away, by the questions they asked and how they responded to the answers, that they were not expecting someone who knew their stuff. I was quoting the Club of Rome and the United Nations and various pieces they had written, statements they've made and books they've written, all about the creation of global warming and how it would have to be done - the CREATION of it would have to be done - "that would fit the bill". They were astonished. They talked about half an hour, the two of them on the phone, and I knew they would never get back to me. They were looking for someone who doesn't really KNOW their stuff. They want people who go into wild imaginings and then they can laugh at you; but when they find someone who simply quotes facts to them by the big players themselves, they can't come against you so therefore you don't get on. And that was the last I heard of them. As I say, be very careful of these mainstream exposés. They're really meant to leave Joe Average, you know the couch potato type that watches the sports and believes the news, it's meant to leave them with an opinion that there are a lot of cranks out there. This has been going on for years, this kind of documentation and documentaries.

I get a lot of people who write to me, who are nice people, who are awfully naïve, incredibly naïve and enthusiastic about life, very enthusiastic as all young people technically should be. We all should and we should have the RIGHT to be enthusiastic about life. Of course, when you're young you don't know that most of what you have been taught in school is nonsense or filler, as I call it. It's like putting soya flour in all your candies; it's a filler. It pads the time at school but the rest of it is social indoctrination to make sure that you actually THINK in a CERTAIN linear fashion which is taught to you. That way you're easy to direct and program in the future by the media. That's why they also use young people for the military. They've grown up with movies and video games and they can not imagine ever being killed. You're too young to imagine being killed. When you're very young, elderly people seem like a different species to you. You can't imagine that you will ever, ever look like that. That's how it really is. We've all been there.

I get some people who occasionally call me up and say 'what about free energy? That would solve the world's problems.' That's your first clue this person really is incredibly naïve, but enthusiastic and happy. The whole point of the new world order is not allow ANYBODY any independence in any area whatsoever of sustainability, SELF-sustainability. That's what INTERdependence means. It means you are totally reliant on the system that controls you and that's the key, it CONTROLS you for everything that you need to survive. It's a shame people can't really get that.

Power is power; it must be USED if you want to retain power. You retain it by making people DEPENDENT on you. A welfare state does the same thing. It makes you dependent upon them for everything you need. It takes your life over. Social work departments will run your whole life for you. Employment specialists and all the rest of it, they will run your life for you. Some people who have been brought up in those situations in families and I mentioned an email a while back where a man's daughter actually talks about her social workers as though they're her friends because she's grown up with social workers advising the whole family. Everything in life that happens to her, they will advise her for personal things and all the rest of it. Government is her friend and advisor. That's TRUE socialism you see, and that's where we are; and we're going into it worse than ever today.

The global warming scam… I get sick talking about it because I was talking about it years ago. I mentioned over and over about the Club of Rome who came up with the idea. They were GIVEN the TASK of finding a way to make the United Nations the king boss, the big boss - as it was intended to be when they first set it up - to give it powers of taxation, to raise it to its proper status where it will RULE every country. It will rule them through blocs; the same blocs that Karl Marx talked about. He called them 'regions', 'trading regions' in Das Kapital in the 1800s. That's not a coincidence either. We've followed that agenda. Those regions, trading regions would be under a super government. Well that's the United Nations. Now it's rising to power.

The Club of Rome were given the job of finding a religion you might say. A religion, a BELIEF system – a religion is a BELIEF system based on faith – to bring the world together under authority, under authority to obey, a world where people would give up more rights than ever before. The only scenario they could come up with was a wartime scenario. We do what we're told to 'save us all', 'we're all in it together' – that's what the slogans say – 'we're all in it together'. We must ALL sacrifice together. So they came up with a war scenario. They had to have a warfare scenario. Along comes the war on terror; I call it a war OF terror because the radical socialists use a war OF terrors and reigns of terror.

That's what we're going through now. That's why 9/11 had to happen. It was a 'must be' scenario to get all this kicked off. It's no coincidence that every country signed the EXACT same bills at the same time, in unison, all together; where we are now all under global sharing of intelligence data. We will all have the ID cards coming along; some countries have got them already and you've got to carry them wherever you go. You have no rights of privacy whatsoever; it's out the window. It's a warfare scenario. During this time too, for the few years past, we've had little bits in newspapers from the World Health Organization, from the Agricultural Association at the United Nations, about the coming FOOD SHORTAGES. They also have a massive think tank working on this permanently and have had for 16 years, the coming food shortages, at the Royal Institute of International Affairs. (I've got all this stuff in my archives in the web site .com.) So they've been PLANNING the coming food shortage for a long time. In warfare scenarios, you not only have ID, you also have restriction in travel and DIFFICULT travel through roadblocks and checks and all that kind of stuff. And you get food RATIONING as well coming along. Everything starts to get rationed. ENERGY gets rationed. In World War II you had to get special permits to get gasoline or petrol, as they called it in Britain, and everyone suffered. The government ruled with absolute authority. It could get away with incredible powers during warfare scenarios and that is what the war on - what I call OF - terror is all about; the same thing.

It was dreamed up by the Club of Rome back in the 1970s. Now we're seeing it implemented. They put all their eggs in one basket, at the top. They said that at the Club of Rome, the two authors who wrote the book, The First Global Revolution and it was published it the 1990s. They said back in the 70s, they were given the task. They thought about it all; they wanted a warfare scenario. So it would be man at war with the planet. That would be the war scenario. They said the threat of global warming, famine and the like 'would fit the bill.' That's an exact quote from their own book, that 'would fit the bill'. If you think communism was dead… no, communism spread out and mated with its partner on the other side and merged together into this super new system, the supra communistic society of collectivism, as they are calling it. The Club of Rome also said that of all the systems they would have to use to work this into existence worldwide, it would have to be a COLLECTIVIST system. That's the one they favored the most. That's what we're under now. It's called governance. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just sort of quickly bringing people up to speed on how the world really is run. The richest people on the planet of course, are in on it. They've been in on it from the very beginning. They were in on it during the whole Cold War scenario.

We find that Professor Anthony Sutton wrote so many books about who funded Hitler; it was astonishing to find people like the Rothschilds and the Rockefellers and all the big boys funding the war machinery that set up Adolf Hitler under the big umbrella corporation called IG Farben. They also funded the communists all throughout the communist era as well. I've always said that. You've got to understand that the dialectic is played with two sides. Two sides are meant to get change on the go. Without the two sides, you won't get change on the go; you've got to have conflict. But you can guide conflicts when the ones at the top of either side are on board in the same direction. It's the outcome they want.

It's no coincidence that the Club of Rome came out with the idea of a collectivist society, meaning a communistic-style running of society, under law. Law is a very big thing in all this, under law. No one ever asks them what they mean. What laws, explain these laws. It's very much like the American Constitution, you know, 'one people under God'. They say 'under law'. Well, explain these laws. Explain these laws because you might think you know what the laws are, or what law is, but you'll be surprised to find how other people will differ with you. It's like sitting talking about God. You get 10 folk in the same room talking about God, they'd have tea and biscuits and a good chat and they'll like each other and go home and you'd never know that each one had a completely different idea of a God or a different kind of God even, if you're using the term just 'God'.

The Club of Rome is a big player. They call it the PREMIERE think tank for really creating the future, futurism for the United Nations. It comes up with all the ideas and sci-fi scams of how to rule the world and how to implement it. From there it's given to Round Table Societies that then come up with the ideas to actually MAKE it work through media, magazines, advertising, and education at school, especially the very young. The same as the communists did all through their era. Long ago they decided to centralize everything. Centralization is KEY to world collectivism, or communism, or socialism if you want; it depends on which name you want to call the same thing. Centralization of a national government that then makes treaties with other central governments in other nations and they become BINDING. Through that you get a network. You need a place for the network to meet so you get a United Nations. The United Nations becomes the kind of boss and arbiter. Then the United Nations comes up to power. This is how Karl Marx saw it all working… and here it all is.

It's not to be a totally communistic society. Under this odd Fabian Socialism they realized they could not go the same way as the Soviet system. They would use all of the Soviet tactics and have the 'Soviet', meaning rule by councils, NGOs, front groups funded by the foundations that would pretend to demand on behalf of the public more social programs or freedoms for this that or people with one leg or something like that, whatever it happened to be, whatever would suit the bill. They wanted an elitist, wealthy, intellectual elite at the top, which also fitted with communism; they wanted an intellectual, scientific elite running a country, a world in what they called a 'rational' fashion. That's why SCIENCE now is being risen up to what they call in science 'their proper place' on the boards of all governments.

We don't elect scientists to boards. NO, government itself was infiltrated long ago and the people within the infiltration then brought them on board. All you have to do is make anything legal, put a bill through and then it becomes legal and you can put an elephant on the board if you want to.   That's how easy it is to do. Once in a while you get a disclosure from one of the guys on the inside and how they've been influenced by the Club of Rome. This is from a Dutch newspaper.

Minister Cramer at the Club of Rome's Global Assembly
"Minister Cramer at the Club of Rome's Global Assembly" (vrom.nl)

My friends and colleagues, (Alan: He's speaking at the Club of Rome.)

As Minister of the Environment I am 'on the road to Copenhagen' almost every day. Therefore I see myself more as a Minister for Climate Change. And change is what we need! (A: Remember, 'change is good', 'century of change'. The stuff they were spouting off in academia in the 20th century. No one else knew about it. What did they mean by that?) Here in Amsterdam we will send a powerful message. We are here to work on the Amsterdam Declaration, which I will carry to the negotiations in Copenhagen, as your ambassador. And as a friend of the Club of Rome, to which I owe so much.

Like so many of you, I was inspired by the Club of Rome to pursue a green career. I read The Limits to Growth as a young biology student in 1972. (A: That's exactly how the communists work. They had ALL the professors put in all the right places, through universities all over the world teaching this socialist policy as far back as 1972. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just giving a little history leading up to different articles. The history of how this has come about and it comes about when all the little people – that's all of us at the bottom – are busy scratching away trying to earn a living and cope and get bills paid and all the rest of it to survive. That's when all the big meetings take place and these guys in ivory towers have no problems. They don't have the problems that you have at the bottom. They live off the public.

It's very much like Plato's Republic. Plato talked about the guardian class that would rule the world that would be heavily interbred for better genes you might say, intellect and so on. He said why bother buying a castle and then having to get soldiers to guard the castle and pay for that and pay for servants who will steal your property and your ornaments inside and everything else. Instead of that, this perfect republic, world republic, would be one where the PUBLIC paid for everything that the guardian class needed. Technically everything would be owned by the people, just like the Soviet system but the castles and that were only lived in by the high-level Politburo.

Today, it's the scientific elite, the political elite and all of these appointees. They don't have to pay for any of this. The public pay for it through their taxes. They pay for the maintenance of everything, the maintenance of their cars, buying them new cars, their chauffeurs. The public pay for their big world meetings. I read in an article recently that the prostitutes in Copenhagen are really looking forward to this big treaty to-do because whenever the UN comes in with all these different people their business skyrockets, it skyrockets. That's the kind of people that are ruling us, as they get up there on stage with their nice suits and ties and we're told they're very respectable and well gifted people in the area of intellect and so on and we should do as they say.

Getting back to this article from Minister Cramer at the Club of Rome at the Global Assembly.

Like so many of you, I was inspired by the Club of Rome to pursue a green career. I read The Limits to Growth as a young biology student in 1972. (A: That's how the agenda is taught. Here you are learning a science but you're really learning a political agenda, a social agenda… and it creates true believers.) After I had digested its importance, I couldn't wait to do my part to help save the planet. I have no regrets that I went for green - it has been a lifelong challenge and adventure. (A: And he doesn't say he's been awfully well paid as well.)

One of the fascinating concepts in The Limits to Growth is the equilibrium scenario. Not only did the Club of Rome forecast global overshoot and collapse between 2025 and 2050. (A: Interesting, that's the same dates basically; the 2050 that the military keep talking about in their 50-year projections of what they see in the future.) It also gave us a promising description of the sustainable economy: the equilibrium scenario. I asked the Netherlands Environment Assessment Agency to produce a report entitled 'Growing within limits' especially for the Global Assembly of the Club of Rome. I asked them to present model calculations of what is possible, feasible and desirable. In other words, how can we achieve a sustainable economy? (A: This is what's in the newspapers today is all this sustainable economy. We have to produce less because we give off carbon, we use up energy but somehow we have to get by on a lot less as we're forking out billions of dollars to Africa and third world countries at the same time. It means you're going to go down into utter poverty and that IS the intention, a FLATTENING of the world.)

This is an urgent question and the answers are promising. But there is a contradiction here: why do we ask ourselves whether it is in our economic interest to save the planet? I have some answers, but I'd like to stipulate two conditions first.

To begin with, we need to revise the policies that are currently driving the world to squander and deplete the earth's natural resources. Secondly, we must drastically increase energy and resource efficiency. Most experts consider this a particularly difficult task, because of the entrenched policies and practices that reinforce inefficiency. The array of potential and necessary measures can be reduced to two top priorities.

Our first priority should be to stop further losses of biodiversity by halting the expansion of agricultural land and the erosion and desertification of arable land. (A: Now that's one of the biggest lies out there because you can go across so many countries in the world now, and just go through the States, and you'll see nothing but abandoned farms EVERYWHERE. There's no expansion; it's a retraction of them, a constriction of them. The governments since World War II have been putting farmers out of business because of all their policies. In their place they've been putting up the big agri-food business, the Big 5, the Archer Daniel Midland boys - the ADM, Adam - Conagra and a whole bunch of them to take over the world's food supply. That's what's happening. You can not control the public unless you control the food. THAT is what Kissinger said in one of his talks: you control the oil industry and you control the nations, basically; they need transportation. He says you control the food and you control the whole world. So they lie here about everything, but nothing is new about lying from the United Nations because they have an incredibly communistic-style agenda, on behalf of their very elite, wealthy masters.) Secondly, we need to decarbonise the energy system. Both of these priorities can be achieved at a cost of 1 to 2 per cent of GDP by 2050, according to the Environment Assessment Agency report.

To put this into perspective, this would mean an increase in global GDP of 225 per cent instead of 240 per cent in the coming forty years. (A: So your standard of living is going to really start dropping big time.) Even without climate policy, our energy investments would be massive. But with a strong climate policy, they will be 30 per cent higher than in a business-as-usual scenario. But: if we fail to take action, we will pay an even higher price in the future. (A: Then he prattles on and prattles on and prattles on with their statistics. They're very good at making graphs and statistics and fudging them all to suit their agenda. That's what graphs and all this stuff is for. That's what it's all for.)

There's a good site here. I'll put this link up on my web site at the end of the show. It's called ihatethemedia.com. It's quite interesting. There's a lot of good comedy in there too and a lot of good facts. It says the Weather Channel founder, the guy who founded the Weather Channel - I couldn't understand why folk would want to watch 24 hours of the Weather Channel, but anyway he says…

Weather Channel founder: global warming 'the greatest scam in history'
January 31, 2009 (ihatethemedia.com)

John Coleman, founder of the Weather Channel says global warming is a "hoax" and "bad science" and that Al Gore refuses to admit his cause is based on bad research.

"I am totally convinced there is no scientific basis for any of it," Coleman said. "Global Warming. It is the hoax. It is bad science. It is a high-jacking of public policy. (A: That's exactly what it is, high-jacking of public policy. It's a coup.) It is no joke. It is the greatest scam in history."

It is. We've had the ClimateGate come out there and the big boys are going ahead as though nothing had happened; exactly as I said it would. They CAN'T go back now because they've spent 40 years planning this whole thing, this VERY scenario, this time in history, and how to control us. This article is from the Telegraph.

Climategate: sack 'no longer credible'
Michael Mann from IPCC urges climatologist
(A: So they should sack Michael Mann who's only one of the many involved in the scamming. Australian and New Zealand both have come out now and admitted their charts were all scammed as well.)
By James Delingpole November 27th, 2009 / (telegraph.co.uk)

Not everyone shares the BBC's rosy view of discredited Climategate scientist Michael Mann (inventor of the roundly discredited Hockey Stick graph (A: That's what the graph looks like. He fudged it all and made it look like a hockey stick when you turn it on its side and it points upwards… with their fudged figures.) and unlikely Youtube comedy musical star) (A: Doing comedy on television, that's where he should be.) (hat tip: Bishop Hill) (Still less will they do so after the gobsmacking revelations by Steve McIntyre that in his latest paper, he’s actually got his data UPSIDE DOWN!) (A: He did. This guy Mann got his data upside down; the graph is upside down and you can see that upside down graph on that last site I just mentioned there, ihatethemedia.com. You’ll see the article there about that. They show you the graphs [Alan laughing] and how they simply reversed it, they turned it upside down.)

One of his IPCC co-authors Eduardo Zorita (A: This is a scientist who worked for the IPCC, for the United Nations.) has demanded that Mann should be banned from contributing to future reports because his scientific assessments are “not credible any more.” Zorita also calls for the barring of CRU’s director Phil Jones and another IPCC lead author, Stefan Rahmstorf.

Zorita, who works in the paleoclimate department of the Institute of Coastal Research, has issued a statement on his website in which he complains that the “scientific debate has been in many instances hijacked to advance other agendas.”

“These words do not mean that I think anthropogenic climate change is a hoax. (A: He’s still a believer. He’s giving himself a back door for his employment.) On the contrary, it is a question which we have to be very well aware of. But I am also aware that in this thick atmosphere -and I am not speaking of greenhouse gases now- editors, reviewers and authors of alternative studies, analysis, interpretations, even based on the same data we have at our disposal, have been bullied and subtly blackmailed (A: …if they don’t’ go along with it, by these other scientists and the IPCC. So he’s admitting blackmail, threats, go on, you’ll never work again, all that kind of stuff.). In this atmosphere, Ph D students are often tempted to tweak their data so as to fit the ‘politically correct picture’. Some, or many issues, about climate change are still not well known. Policy makers should be aware of the attempts to hide these uncertainties under a unified picture. I had the ‘pleasure’ to experience all this in my area of research.”

Zorita was one of the contributing authors to the IPCC’s Fourth Assessment Report. He’s unlikely to be asked to contribute to the Fifth. Indeed, as he ruefully acknowledges, this brave admission could well be the death of his career:

By writing these lines I will just probably achieve that a few of my future studies will, again, not see the light of publication. (A: That’s what’s really going on. It’s like the Politburo. THIS is like the Politburo. That’s exactly how it works, EXACTLY HOW IT WORKS and I don’t think it’s all coincidence.)

November 30th, New York Post.

Climate-cult con is hard to 'bear'
By ANDREA PEYSER / November 30, 2009 / nypost.com

When did global warming turn into a forced religion?

My daughter came home from school recently with a spring in her step and a song on her lips. With no foreshadowing -- or time to call an exorcist -- out came this chilling refrain:

" . . . You can hear the warning -- GLOBAL WARMING . . . "

By the time her father and I removed our jaws from the floor, we had learned that:

A) All the kids had been coerced into singing this catchy ditty, which we called "The Warming Song," at a concert for parents.

B) Further song lyrics scolded selfish adults (that would be us) for polluting our planet and causing a warming scourge that would, in no short order, kill all the polar bears and threaten the birds and bees.

C) There was no deprogramming session on the menu. And no arguing allowed.

The international "Climategate" scandal is now moving into its third week. And reaction from folks on the scientific and political left -- or is that redundant? -- who treat global warming as a cult in which naysayers must be crushed has been depressing:

Total denial.

The scandal began when someone hacked into the server at the Climate Research Unit at the University of East Anglia, England, and uncovered a cache of messages between leading warming gurus. These e-mails revealed guys deeply frustrated by planetary temperatures that, stubbornly, had refused to rise in some time. Were they afraid of losing their scientific juice? Or their funding? (A: Well, I've gone into the funding of some of them. It's incredible, multi-millionaires some of them.)

So, as the e-mails prove, the scientists did something about it. They cooked the books to exaggerate global warming.

Of course! How can you scare the bejeezus out of little kids and small animals if you can't make the mercury move a millimeter? Simple. You lie.

But while one rival scientist predicted the shocking revelations would blast a "mushroom cloud" over theories of climate change, that has not come to pass.

The Obama administration's "climate adviser," Carol Browner, totally ignored the smoking e-mails, and attributed the scandal to "a very small group of people who continue to say this isn't a real problem, that we don't need to do anything."

"What am I going to do?" asked Browner. "Side with the couple of naysayers out there, or the 2,500 scientists?" (A: What about the 3,500 they won't let in to give their opinion on it? That's never mentioned.) -- who've drunk the Kool-Aid. "I'm sticking with the 2,500 scientists." (A: I think it was Theo Roosevelt that said, 'There are lies, there are damn lies and then there are statistics.' I would add to that, there are graphs. In other words, it's science see, it's science. Meaning that's a fact. That's how it's presented. See that graph there, that's a fact. Just like a statistic. That's how they start beating you in arguments now, they quote statistics.)

No less an authority than The New York Times sought to explain away the most damning e-mail, sent by scientist Phil Jones, who said he employed a "trick" to make temps appear higher than they were. (A: On and on it goes doesn't it? On and on it just goes.)

It will go on until we all forget it because we've got other crises coming along to take our minds off it and before you know it we'll all adapt. That's what people do at the bottom, they all adapt to whatever system we are in, feudalism, capitalism, communism and then maybe something new… they just adapt, adapt, adapt at the bottom. Once one generation passes, it's all normal. It's always been like that. That's how it is. It's always been that way.

From the Sunday Times…

Climate change data dumped
From The Sunday Times November 29, 2009 / Jonathan Leake, Environment Editor

SCIENTISTS at the University of East Anglia (UEA) have admitted throwing away much of the raw temperature data on which their predictions of global warming are based. (A: That's because scientists ask for it. This is standard policy. Scientists ask for the raw data to see how they arrive at their conclusions and they try and match it. It's the only thing you have to go on is the raw data. Anything else is simply conjecture if you don't have the raw data there.)

It means that other academics are not able to check basic calculations said to show a long-term rise in temperature over the past 150 years.

The UEA's Climatic Research Unit (CRU) was forced to reveal the loss following requests for the data under Freedom of Information legislation.

The data were gathered from weather stations around the world and then adjusted (A: Boy were they adjusted.) to take account of variables in the way they were collected. (A: I hear the music coming in so I'll be back with more on this article after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from the Times Online on what happened to the climate data, all the raw material that must be there for investigation by other scientist because that's what science is. You ask for the raw data and then you try to repeat the formulas to find out if they're correct. If it's all gone, all you're left with really is someone's idea. You have nothing to PROVE anything with.

The data were gathered from weather stations around the world and then adjusted to take account of variables in the way they were collected. The revised figures were kept, but the originals — stored on paper (A: This is what they are trying to tell us here, this multi-million dollar scheme, that they stored it on paper…) and magnetic tape — were dumped to save space (A: This is what we're told.) when the CRU moved to a new building.

The admission follows the leaking of a thousand private emails sent and received by Professor Phil Jones, the CRU's director. In them he discusses thwarting climate sceptics seeking access to such data. (A: He also tells them how to scrub stuff.)

In a statement on its website, the CRU said: "We do not hold the original raw data but only the value-added (quality controlled and homogenised) data." (A: Meaning all the fudged stuff, but not how they got to the fudged stuff.)

The CRU is the world's leading centre for reconstructing past climate and temperatures. Climate change sceptics have long been keen to examine exactly how its data were compiled. That is now impossible.

So we're going to change our ENTIRE ways of living because of something that can't be found, that's been scrubbed. We have to take their word for it… An entire change of living, massive taxation, MASSIVE TAXATION on every citizen of the so-called first-world countries, MASSIVE like we've never seen before, into carbon credits and personal carbon credits and personal punishments for using too much energy and so on and so on and so on. They're going to get billions, supposedly. It won't arrive in Africa. They're supposedly going to give it but it won't arrive to Africa or wherever. You know that. They've been in Africa for 500-odd years.

This stuff is just a way to bring us all down to the same global plantation where the scientists can rule us. Bertrand Russell said the same thing and so did Huxley, 'If there is going to be a tyranny, I'd prefer it to be a scientific tyranny.' That's what they envisaged, rule by scientists. You know, the intellectuals who run on rationality. That's what we're told. They will be RELENTLESS. If you think it's bad now, you ain't seen nothing yet. If you though that communism was bad, you ain't seen nothing yet. You're on communism with steroids. A collectivist society with a fascist elite at the top who believe they've got better genes, better intellect because of better breeding than YOU do at the bottom. They want to bring your populations down drastically AS you fork out all your cash to them. Not a bad plan eh?

We also know that the UN Chief was at that Commonwealth meeting recently telling them all to sign on. Why should HE be telling our supposed leaders to sign on to anything? What kind of democracy is this? Well, the UN is not meant to be democratic at all, never was.

UN chief urges deal at Copenhagen
(news.bbc.co.uk) - Nov. 28, 2009

The United Nations chief has urged world leaders to "seal a deal" on climate change when they meet in Copenhagen next month.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada – where I've got one inch of snow, they called it a snow storm on the weather program – it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

"Minister Cramer at the Club of Rome's Global Assembly" (at rijksoverheid.nl).

Mann's Hockey Stick Graph without Imaginative Science
("What does the global warming hockey stick look like when you don't 'hide the decline?' " (ihatethemedia.com) - Nov. 30, 2009.

IPCC Scientist says Scientists Should be Fired
("Climategate: sack 'no longer credible' Michael Mann from IPCC urges climatologist" by James Delingpole (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 27, 2009.)

Climate Cult Con--Children Taught Propaganda Songs
("Climate-cult con is hard to 'bear' " (nypost.com) - Nov. 30, 2009.)

Climate Data Dumped--Cannot Be Verified
("Climate change data dumped" by Jonathan Leake (timesonline.co.uk) - Nov. 29, 2009.)

UN Chief Urges Leaders to Sign Deal on Copenhagen Treaty
("UN chief urges leaders to 'seal deal' on climate change" (news.bbc.co.uk) - Nov. 28, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 1, 2009 (#462)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 1, 2009:
The Agenda -- Backed with Unlimited Funding, Massive Amount,
 No Wonder They Say the Proles Don't Count:
"Ghostly Truths Flit Tantalizingly, You Think You Got 'em,
 For Only Partial Truths Disclosed to Folks at Bottom,
 For Proles the War is Way Above their Heads,
 Where Rich Masters of War Call Proles "The Dead,"
 Vast Sums of Wealth Go to the Organization
 Of Academia and Politicos, Generous Compensation,
 Centralization of Sciences, Professors Promoted as Idols,
 Idols they are, Most of their Time Spent Idle,
 But for Public Statements, World Holds its Breath,
 Predictions by Prof-Idols Mean Calamity and Death,
 World Government's Here with this Deadly Alliance,
 Bringing Hell on Earth under Tyranny of Science"
 &copy; Alan Watt Dec. 1, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 1, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 1st 2009. Newcomers, look into .com, scroll down the web site and bookmark all the other sites I have up there for future use because when the big ones go down or put me on hold once again, you can always get the latest shows from these alternate sites. [Sites listed above.]

As always – I should really scatter this throughout the show for people because I'm sure they simply skip over the first five minutes – I need YOU the listeners to support me, to keep me going. I'm not a foundation. I'm not some big organization playing politics. I don't sell various items. I only sell on my website the books I've written and the disks I have made myself. So it's up to you to support me by buying those materials or donating to me through any means that you wish. [Options listed above.] Some people just send cash. That cuts out a big percentage on the transaction. Let's be honest, the bankers have been looting us forever and I don't see why they're going to stop because they're part of the new world order, just as they were part of the old world order, and all the previous world orders before that. It's an ongoing rip off deal; a win-win situation for the big ones. I'm talking about the international money lenders. They are too well established to toss out. Not only that, they certainly run the show. They really do run the show. All the things that are happening are run by them, at least okayed by them at the top. For those who simply get the disks burned and passed to them, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. That's that out of the way.

I'll mention again that XplorNet has cut me back by at least half of the usage I'm supposed to get for the particular deal I'm on and paying for. They'll run rings around the truth but never give you the truth. The fact is that someone has told them to give me a hard time. It will be some old school boy chum with an old school tie network from Ottawa who's put the word in to they guy that's managing XplorNet. That's how things are really, really done in the world. You wouldn't believe the amount of intimidation people can put on other people through this kind of thing. That's how most things are done. Nothing you could ever take them to court on. They just try and say 'well, you see, it was a screw-up between this department and that department' and all that kind of stuff. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've talked so many times about reality and giving some people different ways of viewing the same situations from different perspectives. It's all to do with perception.

At the top they call it perception management. With perception management they have a whole bunch of psychological techniques by which the mainstream media, academia – which is very important in this – brainwash people basically – bringing you to a conclusion. We work very much like computers and we have our own program. We have what we think is called logic and we're GIVEN a language, just like computers. They have a particular computer language and they have a program. Not too long ago only programmers could run computers. By sequencing words, for instance, along certain topics, in a certain formula, by KNOWING your reasoning or your logic, they know what conclusions YOU will come to and can be guided to conclusions.

The earliest way that this was done, or shown to be done, was in the dialogues of Plato and other philosophers where they'd have fictitious talks with other people and start off on a certain topic and say what do you think of this. The person would answer back into the usual perception on a particular area. Plato would then lead them off into this dialogue of logic and then bring the person, step by step, into his way of seeing things. Well it's gone much, much further of course. Even in those days they understood the importance of language, how it's presented. They had professional orators in ancient times who would speak on behalf of the Kings. Rome had them too. I've mentioned before that when it came to the great birth of what became Christianity in about 325 A.D., Constantine didn't say a thing at the big global meeting they had and it was global for that time and era. He had a professional orator who spoke for him; he just sat there. When the orator had finished, he'd sit down and out would come the King, the Caesar, and he'd get the applause.

Today, in fact, it's not much different. Politicians really do the same thing because they have scriptwriters who write all their scripts for them; all the big presenters do. Anything that's done on television is done by scriptwriters. The person reads the script and takes applause for it himself. All he has to do is read it. In ancient times people didn't have to read. Many Kings and so on thought it was beneath them to have an occupation, because only scribes had occupations in that department. So it's come a much further way through science and understanding human behavior and how we process information. Much of this was done and written about even in the 1700s when it came to the big movements for world revolution through the various societies that came to the fore in history. They discussed ways of gaining recruits, how to basically TURN someone from their way of thinking. Even in spying it's still called that today; you 'turn' a spy by using certain logic on them.

It's the same with all of the population really. If you are presented, especially in school, with certain topics, it's presented in a certain way, in a formula of words and you use YOUR average reasoning powers, average basically, you're using a language – which you are given – and these guys USE this technique on ALL cultures. They go into the languages of all cultures. They'll often word things differently or put the sequencing of words differently for different cultures because they must make it match the program, the logic and they will come to the desired conclusions. That's how everything is. Other simple tricks are simply to OMIT another side of a story when presenting a topic and you'll obviously come to the wrong conclusion. In other words, it's the right conclusion by those who are teaching you because that was the intent in the first place. So much is done by that technique.

People will get caught up in particular events, rightly so. Like it's always brought up about the shooting of Kennedy, a public display of tremendous power, an execution, and the whitewash that's gone on afterwards. Even certain investigations were put under wraps for 50 years that can be re-signed for another 50 years and not allowed for the public to even see or go over. That's very, very common. So a lot of stuff is simply KEPT from the public. If stuff is going to be kept from the public, how could you ever say that you know the truth? You can never know that and you can't come to the established, temporary truth, the P.C. truth, because you still know that this stuff has been hidden and is going to be hidden until you're dead. That's when the truth will come out. That's when the truth of the amalgamation of the European Union came out. It wasn't just an economic dance in a parley where folk would do a little bit of economic business and lower taxation for import duties. It was literally designed to united Europe under a parliament, a singular, centralized government.

There is a guy called Gouzenko who was a Soviet spy and he worked at the soviet embassy in Ottawa in Canada during World War II and afterwards. He defected to Canada. He was the first major spy to come across. This freaked out Mackenzie King who was the Prime Minister who was still trying to deal with 'Uncle Joe Stalin'. He was suddenly 'Uncle Joe' for World War II and then they went back to the big, bad bear again because we always need an enemy. Mackenzie said leave him out there, maybe the KGB will pick him up and kidnap him and take him back home. He didn't want a furor here. Luckily, eventually, he was taken in by someone. Gouzenko came out with a massive LIST of all the communist spies that were in the Canadian government AND the US government and the bureaucracies. This was verified. He had their names, sexual persuasions and everything was down there right down to their contacts and so on. The country was riddled with them, riddled. I think sometimes there were more communists in the Canadian government than there were of anything else. I'm not far wrong either. It was the same in most governments. A war had already been going on for a LONG time and infiltration was all part of it. But it wasn't just there, it was in academia too. Academia's job was to recruit students into communistic causes and that was done through professors who were all known by the establishment of who they were and what they were really up to… in all the Western countries.

Getting back to Gouzenko, when Pierre Trudeau came into power because a lot of this stuff was classified, all the names and all the different people that Gouzenko exposed was put under wraps for reasons of 'national security'. A lot of important people obviously were named and very rich people too, again these rich communists. When Pierre Trudeau came in, he of course came in as Prime Minister of Canada; no one mentioned in the mainstream media at all, in any country, that he was the head of the Comintern, the Communist International, for Canada… Pierre Trudeau. He led the delegations; he was the head of the delegation for Canada to the Moscow meeting in 1952. So here is a communist that came in, under the guise of liberalism, massive build-up in the press to make him more youthful, a different type of politician. So when he was in power, up came Gouzenko's stuff getting ready to get released to the public because the time limit was up. The very last thing that Pierre Trudeau did, on the very last day he was in power, was to reclassify Gouzenko's documentation for another 50 years. Folk think they're living in a free society. They really do.

We know nothing at the bottom, nothing at all. All you can know at the bottom, through a lot of study, is that we are in a PERPETUAL war. It was on the go long before WE were born. Nothing is at is seems. Nothing at all is as it seems. What often seems to be many different sides are all controlled by the ONE side at the top above them. Always. That is what does come across. When 9/11 happened, I knew this would start another thing like JFK. People are still yelling on about it yet. They want the truth… but you see the beautiful thing about a conspiracy is that those who are involved don't have to come out and tell you. The only thing that would make you happy is for them to say, 'yep, we did it' and they'll never come out and do that. Or if the stuff is declassified, it will be long, long, long after those people are all dead, long after and other things have happened and you're already in a global government and no one will care.

It's quite a world, as I say, but nothing is done on the up-and-up, in the open. Whatever we talk about in fact is given to us TO talk about through the media. I'll continue on this line of thinking when I come back from this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about the real world and how we're kept in the dark all the time. History is nothing but conspiracies. If you think about it, even the American Revolution was obviously planned in advance, kept secret. It took many years to build up. Even for munitions alone to start a revolution, it would take that. 20-odd years they were supplying and storing stuff and sneaking stuff in to the United States, or America as it was called at that time. So it was a conspiracy obviously. Rebellions, revolutions, they are always done by conspiracy otherwise you'd be wiped out before you got started by those in power.

The world is run by conspiracy. Academia itself, by its very nature, is very secretive. They live on grants from very powerful people and from the government. Governments always have political agendas. So do very rich people too, and foundations that fund them. When you look at how communism was run, I should say IS run because it never really went away; it simply MERGED with the West as it was designed to do for the next part of the new world order. It's the same arrangement, it's the same organization, organizational abilities, the creation of cliques if you like, and specialized cliques that do specialized things especially in academia. Academia was the first place that was penetrated and it was government and government agencies secondly. To get recruits you have to be teach something to young people who are idealistic and you give them the ideal to fight for, a cause. Very old technique, very, very old technique. Certain professors, always, always renowned professors in their field, were the ones who did the recruiting for the communist party.

After the Berlin wall went down and the next phase was implemented and people should read Eric Margolis's write up - I think it was in the Toronto Sun at the time - on the speech given by Gorbachev BEFORE communism said it didn't exist any more. He told the Politburo, "shortly you will hear that communism is dead; don't believe it." Then he goes on to explain they are moving into the transitional phase. Communism was set up to go through phases. Part of it was to bring in the Marxian structure of regions in the world through leagues or treaties, through a system, a united world system.

The New York residence of the United Nations – donated by Rockefeller and the foundation – and the place it was put on was insisted upon by the Russians, the Soviets. Why New York? Why not somewhere in Europe? The Soviets demanded it. The reason was they had so many spies and party members, card-carrying party members BASED in New York. That was one of the main reasons. A lot of the controllers came in to handle all their operatives and go around to universities and meet with university professors who were also on the payroll too. It cut out an awful lot of time when they were already based in the United Nations.

The reason I'm talking about this is because when you see how academia is always been involved on this plan of change – a plan of change – then you can understand why academia was used – and has been used for years – to promote and start off the whole greening concept, part of a religion that Gorbachev called it himself, A religion based on a FORM of earth worship. What they meant was an economical system with a kind of religious overtones. And obviously a new priesthood with the high priests as scientists that would come from academia. Therefore all of academia would be on board.

What do you do with a world when you're bringing a world together? You centralize portions of it, just like the East Anglia University was the MAIN university for all the other universities across the world to get their data from. You centralize information on each aspect of your world control. That's why the United Nations for instance, has specialized centers across the world; SPECIALIZED centers in different places. That way you can always be in charge of what's being taught in universities. Every university in America and Canada gets the same grants from the same foundations and along with those grants comes a list of things they would APPRECIATE would be taught. Which means you WILL teach them. They also have suggestions on what NOT to teach or what to discourage and lots of political correctness and so on and so on.

Every one is getting prepared for this wonderful – it's not going to be wonderful at all – this world governmental system. Now we are seeing the Sovietization, the REAL head behind it, the real mentality and plan behind it, rise to the top where it will take NO contradictory views on anything. It will not even tolerate them, especially when it comes down to opposing sciences on the same data. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about perception and reality and how big societies operate, those that run the world. They run together because everything depends in this system on money and economics. If you control economics and money, you control the entire system. It doesn't matter what parties think at the bottom that are fighting each other. They can think all they want and play the games all they want; they are all ruled by the same system at the top. Nothing is EVER as it seems.

You'll find that if you've studied the theories of Marxism and a lot of the low-level recruits - who really didn't count for very much - were from the ordinary working class but they might become members and help organize but they had no idea of the very rich people, some of the richest people, involved in the communist party who were directing it. None at all. Even some of their own bankers were high-level members of the party and other parties of other things across the world. A lot of this stuff now is declassified since the wall came down and it's okay to tell us now. Not that anyone really cares.

Even Victor Rothschild was a member of the communist party, which he joined at Cambridge University just before World War II. He then did a stint in banking with his family. He was also a leading member of the Zionist Association. Here's a world banker and a communist and a Zionist who admits himself in this book by Perry – it's called The Fifth Man, very well worth reading – that he had a bigger intelligence network at his fingertips than the British government had. That was true, but this guy worked his way up through the British military in World War II to be head of all security. He was passing on all the data on radar and even the early attempts at atomic warfare weaponry, he was passing it all on directly to the Kremlin and he was running 4 other spies beneath him that ALL eventually defected to Russia. These were made famous in the 60s.

After the war, Peter Wright tried to mention this in his own book called Spy Catcher. He mentioned that all these top spies LIVED with the Rothschild family; they'd all traveled with Rothschild during the war when he went to France after the end of the war. Rothschild was the main guy. Why would a world banker be also one of the top guys running communism? I know the story. I know the reasons. You should read the book and figure them out yourself because the author won't figure it out for you. As I say, nothing is as it seems.

Why am I talking about this? It's because it's the same thing that's going on right now with the centralization of information, like the East Anglia University. The one university that ALL the world supposedly is getting its data from to do with global warming, all the fudged stuff. Centralization once again. Just like 9/11, they'll never come out and tell you why it happened or who did it. It doesn't matter how much evidence that you have - it doesn't matter about your evidence - it's what they wanted to achieve from 9/11 that was important. I knew that at the time; that's why I didn't get stuck on it. It's an ongoing war.

We saw immediately the changes of losing all rights and freedoms. We saw the same draconian laws placed ACROSS THE WORLD at the same time, which is impossible without it being organized that way LONG IN ADVANCE amongst governments. So it's always: WHO benefits? What did they achieve? Well we see what was achieved. We're closer and closer to world government. In fact, in Canada, in one article, it was entitled in the newspapers, 'Fortress America'. They said that would be one of the reasons for integrating the US and Canada FASTER, faster than even the original NAFTA deal. It was for security and economic reasons. That's why they always say at the Council on Foreign Relations, we can use this disaster or this tragedy or whatever, we can use this to our own advantage. It's planned that way. They need these things to happen to make other things happen.

It's the same thing with the Climategate. They centralized the information from TRUSTED, pure party members, funded them to the hilt with millions of dollars, gave them the build-up through all the major science journals, so all the scientists know these are the guys that you look to for all your information; these are the leaders. The journalistic write-ups MAKE the guys the leaders. Everyone who follows in that line knows to follow them and they may get grants too, but DON'T contradict them whatever you do… or you're out. They do it ALL kinds of dirty tricks to get the message across to you. They give you little trivial warnings, little hassles and things until you're back IN LINE. That's how they do it, until you're back in line.

Here's an example from Australia on another aspect of the global warming farce. I said too, don't get stuck on the global warming thing. The Copenhagen deal is a done deal. We're already implementing the whole darn thing before they go through this formality of signing it publicly. So don't get hung up on it. This is an ongoing war, as 9/11 was too. It's not hard to see that its purpose is to now bring the United Nations up to its PROPER position, as they say, to global governance. Here's an article to show you how they treat people who are not quite on board or they don't quite get the message in all the journals that are printed and they come up with a different part in the theories. This is to do with the economic theory of carbon trading and emissions. This is an economist, the CSIRO economist.

Climate expert Clive Spash 'heavied' by CSIRO management
(Alan: They're dealing with all this trading of carbon and so on.)
Nicola Berkovic From: The Australian November 03, 2009

A CSIRO economist whose research criticising emissions trading schemes was banned from publication said last night he had been subjected to harassment by the senior agency management. (A: Same as the guys who were within the global warming scam who didn't quite go along with them. They couldn't get their stuff published in the peer-review journals. That's how they get you out; you just can't get anything published if you're not on board with them.)

Clive Spash also accused the agency of hindering public debate (A: Of course.) and trampling on his civil liberties by preventing the research being published in British journal New Political Economy.

Dr Spash defended the paper, The Brave New World of Carbon Trading, saying it was a dispassionate analysis of ETS policies and was not politically partisan.

He was told in February he could publish the work if it were peer reviewed. But in July, CSIRO management said it could not be published after it was cleared for publication. (A: They still refused to publish it even though it was peer reviewed.)

This month, he was informed he could not publish it even in his private capacity (A: This is how far they can go.), because it was "politically sensitive". Within 24 hours, he also received a letter outlining a list of trivial instances in which he was accused of breaching CSIRO policy, for example not completing a leave form properly. (A: Little trivial that. You know how they get you? You didn't finish this form or sign off properly.)

Dr Spash said he believed the letter was intended to, and did, intimidate him and denied him due process. None of the matters were raised with him prior to the letter being sent and each of the alleged misdemeanours could be explained.

"We are not members of the Defence Department, we are scientists who are supposed to be discussing research in an open forum. How do you advance knowledge if you stop people from publishing their work?

"I am totally happy to have my work criticised and debated but I'm not happy to have it suppressed."

Dr Spash said it was impossible to publish research in his field that did not have an impact on government policy. (A: That's why they didn't want it published. They don't want the public to know what's coming down the pike and what's going to hit them with this Copenhagen deal.) "The idea that you cannot discuss something like ETS policy when you're working on climate change as a political economist seems ridiculous," he said.

The gagging of Dr Spash's work is embarrassing for Science Minister Kim Carr (A: That's the politician in charge, of the country.), who defended academic freedoms in opposition and last year trumpeted a new CSIRO charter he said would give scientists the right to speak publicly about their findings. (A: Now because they've been brought up to the height of the political realm, CSIRO responded for the first time and says…)

"There is some important science in the paper and we will now work with Dr Spash to ensure the paper meets CSIRO internal review standards and the guidelines of the Public Research Agency Charter between the CSIRO and the federal government," she said. (A: So you think it's easy to get stuff published when you're working for any particular agency? …that's getting grants from the foundations and these foundations have big think tanks working with governments? No.)

We don't have a free society. We never, ever did have a free society, ever. It's not going to become free now.

It's interesting that George Orwell in his book 1984, 2 or 3 times I think he brought up the fact that the proletariat, the proles they called them, the masses, the people, and whenever he brought it up, the bureaucratic class that he worked for, the main character Winston worked for, he says, 'the proles, the proles don't count.' They're talking about the ordinary folk. The ordinary folk truly don't count. Once you get into academia and above, the ordinary folk don't count at all. The ordinary folk will believe whatever they are told to believe. They have no organization within them to fight for anything. I mean REAL organization; they don't have it.

In fact the proles, you might say, have something that we've seen in other times in history, in present times too. You have a MULTITUDE, a multitude of, for instance, say Christian splinter groups into so many denominations because they fall out on trivialities. They can not stay together. With all the little power struggles going on and so on, so you get splinter groups until you have hundreds of different associations. It's the same with anything to do with civic society and causes. They CAN'T work together to save themselves. Even it means saving themselves, they can't do it.

I can remember meeting a communist organizer. He was giving a talk in Canada and it's a weird situation I got into. I'd sung a gig at a place I was asked to sing, and somehow I ended up in a room full of these people who were all active in the 'ban the bombs' and so on. I just went back for the coffee and the usual chat with the other artists. Everybody was in on something except me. This guy came in from Moscow and he was an English guy who lived in California. He says this is the time when we must all network together. He says we've got to network with the lesbians, the homosexuals, the Sikh groups, the Marxist groups, the Trotskyite groups, all the different groups that had beefs, and all ethnic groups. Bring them all together and make them all turn up at the same rallies at the same time, even if it's not for their particular cause. That's what the communists had going for them, the fact that they could bring all these other groups that are off on their own, doing their own thing, bring them together and make a massive show of it. That's what everyone else lacks. That's what EVERYone else lacks.

Another thing too, in this REAL world if anyone was to come along and TRY to do that very thing and had the ability, the organizational ability, the oratory, who could stand between different groups competing, even opposing groups that would fight each other in the streets, bring them in a common cause, the present power elite would have them bumped off so quickly, so QUICKLY that you'd find it hard to remember their name. That's the real world. So here's one guy, one economist, working on carbon, who can't get his stuff published in peer-reviewed papers. Obviously, he's saying something that they don't want the public to know. Yet these peer-reviewed papers go in the peer-reviewed magazines which are sold on the shelves. So what we are told is only what's politically correct and not what the truth is, in any of these top science papers or magazines. It's the same with everything.

As I said before, Pierre Trudeau was the HEAD of the International Communism Party, Comintern they called it, in 1952. He LED the delegation FOR Canada TO the Soviet Union. Later, he became the Prime Minister and not one newspaper in the US or Canada mentioned that fact. They all knew it. They all KNEW it, left wing, right wing, and so on. They all knew it but nobody printed that because the proles don't count. The people at the bottom don't count. They don't even have a look in to reality. That's how it is. That's how it really, really is.

It's no different with the harassments I've had… I've had the harassments. Even when I started off, I couldn't figure out for the life of me what I'd said on the radio to warrant being watched outside by these SUVs or these 4-wheel drive trucks, black ones with the black windows. They would be outside my house every day. Or they'd come down the road in the middle of the night when I was walking the dog, switching off their lights and just parking 20 feet from me, no one getting out, and 10 minutes later they'd reverse the whole way back. The whole way, half a mile, onto the main road and then turn their lights back on again… night after night. Intimidation, trying to scare you off; and even worse has happened. That's the real world we live in. Now it's XplorNet cutting me off as well so I can't get this stuff out to YOU. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. People think that we're in a labyrinth at times. It's more than a labyrinth; you're in a maze. The only way you can see where you're going is if you're above the maze to find your way out of it. Each time you turn left or right or north or south, you think you're on the right path. Then you hit another dead end. That's how the whole thing is set up at the top. That's how it's set up because the dialectic runs everything. There's no doubt about it.

Even systems and supposed sciences are created, like the science, they call it the 'science' or I call lit the belief system, of Marxism or Communism or even the Trotskyite version of the same thing because these guys worked heavily with the guys who ran the world banks. Why would top world bankers be funding a system which technically, by theory, was supposed to eradicate them, especially them? …the so-called Capitalists? It tells you the whole thing was bogus but a good belief system was created to get followers to work towards it, with ideology being presented to them from university on. Once again, it was a university class and often the Ivy League classes, mainly so in fact.

There’s a movie in Britain, Deep Cover. I think in the American version they call it Blade on the Feather. It’s well worth seeing. It’s got so much truth in that movie, put out by a guy called Potter who’s dead now. He had lots of connections to MI-5 and 6. That’s where he got his information. So much truth is in there because towards the end there’s a professor who was recruiting at Cambridge, he said, ‘Do you want to know why these guy joined communism AT the university, AS students?’ They joined what they called ‘the apostles’. That was their Masonic fraternity. I think it was ‘the circle’ they called the one at Oxford. He says you know all the top spies, the top ones and he mentions all the ones the Rothschild worked with but he doesn’t mention Rothschild himself. Actually, Rothschild RAN them. He said they all came from MY class, meaning the upper class. That is true with Philby, MacLean, Burgess, Blake. They all came from the upper class. See, the proles don’t count. The proles don’t count.

We get little spy stories and movies and James Bond. That’s what we get at the bottom. I used to think it was so odd that something that was going to take over the world was hardly taught, in the Western countries, to show us the dangers of it. Most schools never mentioned it at all during the whole Cold War. Why? Why?

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Article:

"Climate expert Clive Spash 'heavied' by CSIRO management" by Nicola Berkovic (theaustralian.com.au) - Nov. 3, 2009.

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 2, 2009 (#463)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 2, 2009:
Climategate -- Snakes All Slither as Fudged Climate Graphs Wither:
"Climate Policy Scientists with Mental Gyrations
Made Square Pegs Fit Round Holes to Match Computations,
This Agenda-Driven Scheme with Deception and Lies
Creates a New System, Owned and Run by "The Wise," Vast Numbers to Die Off, as with Taxes they Bleed,
'Each According to His Value, and to His Need,' Plan Hatched Long Ago, Rich Fat Men, All Swanks,
Financial Cartel which Owned Central Banks,
Now Going for the Kill, We're All God-Forsaken
When they Ratify the Treaty at Copenhagen"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 2, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 2, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 2nd 2009. As always, I suggest to people to look into .com web site, scroll down and have a look at all the other sites I have up there on the front page and bookmark them for future use because I do get problems with the main servers once in a while and if you bookmark these other sites you can always get the latest downloads when you want them. [Sites listed above.]

As always, you bring me to you, the listeners. No on is backing me up here. No one is supporting me. It’s up to you to keep me going. You can buy the books and disks I have for sale at .com or donate to keep me going. I scrape by here. This is not a job and it’s more than a vocation. It’s an absolute necessity to get this information out at this time because of what’s happening in the world. The biggest events are planned, the biggest changes in hundreds and hundreds of years. Rockefeller himself said that. These changes that have been planned to come in around now are going to be worse, more devastating to many people than the beginning of the Industrial Revolution where millions of people were moved off the land and into the new manufacturing cities and CRAMMED into their accommodations, their little cubicles where they would sleep, if they slept at all, and work 16 hours a day. That’s the kind of changes we’re looking at because they plan to take down the whole structure and system we’ve been used to and mind you too, we didn’t own the old system. I always say you can’t save that which did not belong to you. The bankers have run the systems for hundreds of years. I don’t care if people think the left wing or right wing or even communist, the bankers have always been in control of economy. They plan to STAY in control, and their offspring, for centuries to come.

So it’s up to you to keep me going and you can do so by donations. [Purchase and donations options listed above.] Some people just send cash… that cuts out the little fat guy with the triple chins, the $5,000 suit and the pudgy fingers. It’s up to you how you want to do it. It is imperative you keep me going. This is 7 days a week here. I do get trouble all the time. XplorNet, the wonderful XplorNet that advertises high speed, has been TOLD to cut me back in my speed so it takes about 5-6-7 hours to upload one night of the show. So I’m uploading tonight after this show and then part of tomorrow as well and then the show starts again at night and back to the same routine. It’s been like that now for weeks. So that is what happens in the real world when you don’t have big players backing you up to get their party point across. They come after you in different ways and give you a lot of annoyance, harassments, delays and they hope to simply put you under by either knocking you out financially – and they’ve tried that too – or they can simply stop you from eventually getting the word out all together.

I think people in the States should really understand that they are the ONLY country where you still have the right to some kind of free speech. We don’t have it in Canada or anywhere else in the world, so we are grateful to the US for shows like this. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. As I was saying before, it’s up to you to keep me going and you can do so by [options listed above]. It’s imperative because I’m looking for alternative way of uploading obviously since I’ve been cut back by XplorNet, even though I’m not uploading any more than I have been for the last couple of years through their system. They’re trying to say it’s fair use policy, which obviously would have kicked in long before now, PLUS I don’t use the darn thing for anything except the uploads at night. I don’t surf the weekends, at night or during the day with it. The emails I do all with dial-up. So it’s an obvious sign of harassment and that’s how things really work in the real world.

This Climategate, as it’s called, is going on and on. It’s a pity it happened so shortly before the big meeting at Copenhagen because it would have given people time to expose it more and it takes time for the word to get out into the general population who WAIT for the mainstream media to catch up. Generally they’ll catch up ONLY if they’re forced to catch up because it’s all over the internet and they can’t ignore it anymore. But a lot of the big media IS ignoring it. For instance, Australia and New Zealand have already come out and admitted that their departments fudged their figures too. The mainstream media over there is trying to simply go along as though nothing had happened. The big boys at the top are still going ahead with their meeting at Copenhagen.

It’s amazing since all of the information started really with one paper, ONE paper by onesupposed scientist. Then it started from there, all relying on that one paper. All that stuff had disappeared, supposedly. In science, you can’t verify anything unless you have the raw, original data; however, it’s all been supposedly eliminated and you’re left with the hockey-stick upgrades on the original data, if there ever was original data. Our whole lives are to be changed. The WHOLE WORLD is to be changed into a new economy, a brand new economy which really is a eugenics program of Depopulation.

Forced famines are going to come out of this because they are going to cut back DRASTICALLY on the remaining agriculture. They’ll eliminate all private agriculture except for the big agri-food business because that IS the agenda, that only big, international corporations have the right to rule the major things that the public need across the planet. That’s what you saw in one of the first movies that exposed the future. It was called Rollerball. The idea being there were corporate wars eventually, once they’d eliminated nations. These corporate overlords acted in a feudal system EXACTLY and that’s where the idea in the movie came from. It was from Professor Carroll Quigley and his book Tragedy and Hope AND The Anglo-American Establishment where he said that the new overlords WILL be running the world and they’ll be the CEOs of international corporations running it in a feudalistic type of fashion. That’s exactly what was planned.

It’s amazing too, how people think that’s a completely, utterly kind of Fascist type of system. Karl Marx also talks about these ‘regional blocs’ that would be run through trading systems and treaties that would become ever binding until they’re locked together. He called them regions instead of blocs. He said the European region, which would include Britain and all the different countries, gradually they would get bound together under a common Parliament. That has happened, but he never said anything about eliminating private banking. He talked about ‘central banking’ being run or overseen by governments. If you notice through the Soviet system, they still had private banks. People don't realize they had private banks. The only condition there was in the Soviet system was that the private banks could not make profit off of people's labor. Now, you understand that lawyers can run rings around that and of course they did.

Last night I mentioned that a very, very good book, one of the many books that are now out since some of the main players have died; the big players, the very famous people to do with spying for Russia and at the same time spying for and setting up Israel. That was Victor Rothschild. He literally, this guy who inherited a banking fortune, we're supposed to believe – reading the book by Perry, The Fifth Man - we're supposed to believe that he just decided to go communist. What rubbish! When he went to Cambridge… the guy was trained from birth for his role. During it all he was setting up and finishing off his grandfather and father's idea of a homeland for Israel and Palestine. He was selling Britain out at every turn. So much so – it's a well documented book as far as a lot of facts go – that the Kremlin was receiving more information about what was happening with the allies and what they were up to. They were getting it before Winston Churchill was even getting it in Britain during World War II, because of guys like Rothschild and a few other cronies all running the British intelligence service and all working for the Soviets and in some instances also for what is called in the book and in Rothschild's own words, Zionism. He gave quite a few speeches about it.

Here are the top bankers running what you think of as the opposition. It's the exact opposition. Here you have the dialectic in perfect display, perfect display. You couldn't ask for a better example. That's why I say, if you follow people and you follow parties, you're getting used. The proles don't count at the bottom, like Orwell said. You're never allowed into the ultimate, higher truths of the ambitions of the people at the top of different parties and the policies that they have.

Some people are talking about Climategate and that we should form an international association, like a party, for freedoms for people. But you know there's one thing about battles, YOU must choose the battle field if you want to win the battle. You can't step onto their chessboard and play their game. When you're playing their game, guess what? You've now agreed to go along in the very system which they want, which is a global system with a global party. You're playing the game they want. Even if they were real, it would be invaded and infiltrated and taken over so quickly that by the time you blinked your eyes it would be right on goal with the agenda. That's why in communism they looked for massive organizations. They used all the existing organizations. Why not use them, they're there. All you have to do it go for the leaders. They did that with a lot of Christian churches for instance. The followers didn't notice the SUBTLE changes in the directions they were getting into and they were getting run by the Kremlin. Fascinating.

We never really know what's going on. Victor Rothschild… even though they knew eventually what he was up to and I'm sure quite a few of them knew in the House of Lords. They had to know; he was in the House of Lords at the same time. He was never brought up on any charges. How do you charge your top Capitalist who can sink countries with a stroke of a pen? How do you do that? What do you do? Your whole system has basically been created by his grandfather, with credit and debt and taxation and the Bank of England and all the rest of it. They didn't start the Bank of England but they took it over in a hurry. It's amazing. That's the real world for you.

Then you look into the connections between the House of Lords. Today there is Stern and different ones still pushing on. Suddenly he's an expert in global warning. He was in completely different areas before. They're all intermarried, the House of Lords. All these Lords up there, they're intermarried with the opposition and they have wives from the opposition or their daughter marries people from the opposition. They give us leaders and we've got to be very, very careful. Never step on to THEIR chessboard. That's THEIR battlefield when they've made the board; they want you on there. They want you on it. You've got to choose your own battlefield and choose your own battle.

When people start thinking in global terms, that's exactly what the UN wants. Oh yeah, let them go ahead and get a global party. What happens to all parties? As we know, they start to compromise. Guess what? When you compromise you're walking backwards. Something is either right and you hang on to it forever or it was never right in the first place if you start backtracking and compromising on it. At least some people are getting some sense and if nothing else, some countries are making a bit of a stink about it.

Australia's Parliament, for instance, defeated the global warming bill. That's in Yahoo news for

Australia's Parliament defeats global warming bill
By ROHAN SULLIVAN, Associated Press Writer / Wed Dec 2

SYDNEY – Australia's plans for an emissions trading system to combat global warming were scuttled Wednesday in Parliament, handing a defeat to a government that had hoped to set an example at international climate change talks next week.

The Senate, where Prime Minister Kevin Rudd's government does not hold a majority, rejected his administration's proposal for Australia to become one of the first countries to install a so-called cap-and-trade system (Alan: That's the carbon taxes and so on.) to slash the amount of heat-trapping pollution that industries pump into the air. (A: Why didn't they come out with all this stuff when we were industrial nations? Before GATT cleaned out Canada and the US of its factories? The air has never been cleaner except for the spraying from all these jets that have been up there doing this spraying stuff since 1998, at least in Ontario, and before that in some parts of the States, which they don't want to talk about. How come? But the air is definitely cleaner. We don't have the big smoke stacks all over the place. It's not a truth. It's a reason to get you all into a new system to serve the planet. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. So Australia at least has made a step forward. Let's see if they can hold it because it's so imperative to the big boys to pass a law that's to affect everybody. Everybody… and children to come in the future. Right down to deciding eventually how many people they WANT on the planet. This is the reason they brought it in.

The same old eugenics agenda and the reduction of population, forced starvation, there's no doubt rationing of food will come now that they've put most small farmers out of business by design. The food supply of the planet is in the hands of supposedly 5 international corporations that really are all one. They were set up to take over the world's food supply. They introduced all the GMO seeds and all the rest of it, heavily dosed what's left of the food with their pesticides that are terribly, terribly poisonous, worse than the old stuff. They know what's going to come. They want us all crowded into these overcrowded cities, Super-Cities they call them, while the population declines up to about the period of 2050. They say there's to be a drastic drop then. I guess that's when most of us simply just keel over with cancers and all the rest of it.

Then they'll bring in their NEW City-States. They already have them; they're building them. Dubai is only one of quite a few where the ultra wealthy can live. Nobody else could afford to live in those places that they've set up. When you go into the think tanks' reports for the next 50 years from the Department of Defence for Britain – I have all this stuff on the archives section on my web site; look into it – you'll see that the projections for the future fall into exactly that. That folk will get crowded into cities. The population WILL decline through disease; there will be food shortages and so on. Then it says that the UN will kind of rule for quite a while, until that period, and then gradually wanes. Then these SuperCities will basically contain the elite of the planet. They will be high tech, highly weaponized and there will be just sort of barbarians outside dying off; kind of like the Brave New World scenario. Things never change. They make their plans and they stick to them.

This article is from CBS.

Fallout Over "ClimateGate" Data Leak Grows
December 2, 2009 / Posted by Declan McCullagh / CBSnews.com

(A: Some of the mainstream are starting to HAVE to say something.)

Ripples created by the disclosure of global warming files now being called "ClimateGate" continue to spread, with congressional attention growing and the head of a prominent climate change group stepping aside. (A: That's the MAIN climate change group; that's where they're all getting their orders and their data from.)

Phil Jones, the head of the Climactic Research Unit at the University of East Anglia, said on Tuesday that he will relinquish his post while the U.K. school conducts an investigation into allegations of scientific and professional misconduct.

Jones' announcement comes as he and his allies, who published some of the foundational data used to support the claim that global warming exists (A: So it's very, very vital data isn't it, the foundational data.), have been pummeled by waves of criticism. As CBSNews.com reported last week, the leaked files show that prominent scientists were so wedded to theories of man-made global warming that they ridiculed dissenters who asked for copies of their data, plotted how to keep researchers who reached different conclusions from publishing, and concealed apparently buggy computer code from being disclosed under the Freedom of Information law.

The reverberations have extended beyond the campus of the University of East Anglia and the CRU. E-mail messages from Michael Mann, a professor in the meteorology department at Penn State University who has argued that mankind is threatening "entire ecosystems with extinction in the decades ahead if we continue to burn fossil fuels at current rates," appeared in the leaked files. Now Penn State has opened an investigation into Mann's work (A: That's the guy who invented the graph that goes up like a rocket; where he turned it upside down because we're actually declining in temperature. So he reversed it.), and the U.K.'s weather agency has been forced on the defensive as well. (A: You see how everybody's in on this? All the governments are in on it as well. It is THE agenda. Every big foundation is in on it too; they promoted it, like a mantra, for years and years and years from their NGOs and they're getting write-ups in journals and articles in newspapers and magazines and talk shows and all the rest of it. They're even getting it taught in school as a fact.)

Some mainstream academics working in the area have distanced themselves from Mann, Jones, and other researchers whose correspondence has drawn allegations of impropriety. Aynsley Kellow, a professor at the University of Tasmania who was an expert reviewer for a U.N. global warming report, told ABC Radio there was evidence of a "willingness to manipulate raw data to suit predetermined results,(A: That's totally faking it.) you've got a resistance to any notion of transparency (A: They wouldn't let anybody look at their books.), an active resistance to freedom of information requests or quite reasonable requests from scientists to have a look at data so that it can be verified." (A: That's standard with all sciences.)

Hans von Storch, director of the Director of Institute for Coastal Research who was assailed by Mann in one e-mail message, calls the CRU axis a "cartel"(A: That's exactly what they are; a POLITICAL, ideological cartel, and a well-paid bunch at that, getting millions of dollars thrown at them, but for an ideal and it's not their idea. It's the big boys like Rockefeller, the Fabians and so on. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article about Climategate from the CBS News.

Hans von Storch, director of the Director of Institute for Coastal Research who was assailed by Mann in one e-mail message, calls the CRU axis a "cartel" and suggests that Jones and others avoid reviewing papers. A colleague, Eduardo Zorita, went further and said Mann and his allies "should be barred" from future United Nations proceedings and warned that "the scientific debate has been in many instances hijacked to advance other agendas."

You'd better believe it's other agendas. Everything that this so-called new world order has hinged on has been to do with THIS passing. This is the first phase of it. They'll do one or two per year from now on once this next one goes through. They will promise at this one to sign EVERY agreement that comes up before them. That's what they're going to do. Believe you me, you'll get personal carbon taxes for everything that you buy. For all your energy use; you're already paying through the nose for electricity, for gas and other things. You ain't seen nothing yet once these guys get started. And the food, you'll get taxed extra on everything that you need to live. They will tell you, see it took so much energy to make this thing.

You'll be taxed, taxed, taxed into the ground under this guise and the taxes will go through Rothschild's bank in Switzerland as they've arranged to do and then to the United Nations. He'll handle it on behalf of the United Nations who will then make sure that the third world gets its fair share and they'll be brought up to scratch as we all plummet to the bottom. They have no intentions of helping the third world countries, none at all. These guys at the top are utter deceivers. They've always been deceivers and utter liars… utter, utter, complete liars. So expecting them to change their minds and become altruistic, well it's pie in the sky. It says here…

With the Copenhagen summit just days away, the leaked files have extruded themselves into the political fray in Washington, D.C. White House spokesman Robert Gibbs said on Monday that he believes "climate change is happening" and is not "in dispute anymore," (A: These guys are going to stick to their guns regardless.) while Republican Senator James Inhofe called for "Climategate" hearings.

To be sure, many -- perhaps even most -- climate scientists still seem to agree that the evidence for global warming is substantial. (A: Well, if it's all based on the fudged papers that were foundations, how can you agree on it?) Nicholas Stern, chair of the Grantham Research Institute on Climate Change and the Environment at the London School of Economics (A: He's one of the sudden new champions for it and he was never even involved in climatology at all until recently. It's not his field.), calls it "overwhelming." (A: So here's a guy for Britain that's been put forward to push for them to sign it all. Good pal of Rothschild too.) Thomas Crowley, professor of geosciences at the University of Edinburgh, told the Washington Post that the CRU-leaked-files episode "reflects badly on the people who are so desperate to discredit global warming."

They're trying to turn it into… Well let's be honest about it; it's a belief system isn't it? 'Do you believe in it or don't you believe in it?' That's what it is. That was even ruled in a court hearing in London to do with a guy who claimed he was kicked out of his job because he was there on behalf of supposedly sustainability. That was supposedly his job; helping cut back on energy and so on but he was an absolute pain in the neck and they got rid of him. So he got fired and he sued the company and the judge ruled that that was his belief system; global warming was his belief system. That's what it was. And that's what it IS. It's a new religion based around a form of earth worship, but the new priests are scientists and experts who will live just like every other priesthood in the past but better. All priesthoods in the past depended on your donations. These guys are going to get absolute defined incomes via the government from your tax money. That's what it's all about. That's what it's ALL about. It's ongoing.

Scotland Yard, according to another paper here, the lowestoftjournal.co.uk.

Scotland Yard join UEA climate probe inquiry
SHAUN LOWTHORPE / 01 December 2009

(A: They're after the guy who leaked this stuff or hacked it. It's either one or the other. They want to make an example, NOT to get into something that really is a political agenda.)

Police investigating the leaking of thousands of emails and data from climate change experts at the University of East Anglia are working with a team from Scotland Yard amid speculation that hackers also tried to break into a second climate institution in Canada.

Extracts from emails sent by academics at the UEA's climatic research unit (CRU) were posted on a Russian website more than a week ago including some which talked about deleting messages as part of a move to avoid releasing data under freedom of information (FOI) rules. (A: They didn't want anyone else to get their supposed foundation data. All these computers that give them the results they want to hear are based on the foundation data that was fudged in the first place.)

The leaks sparked uproar and calls for CRU director Prof Phil Jones to quit, though the university is standing by the academic, who has also received personal threats since the storm broke. (A: Then on and on it goes.)

It just shows you how they're going to try and catch someone and make an example for future people. 'Don't ever be a whistle-blower because this is a big agenda that's outside your realm; you just don't understand these things,' as they'll say.

We don't understand these things until you read the books written by the big boys that PLAN the future. They did publish their books themselves. They love writing about themselves once they get older and telling you where they're going to bring the world and how they're doing it, but nobody reads these books. The media isn't going to do an exposé on these particular books by Rockefellers. In fact Rockefeller THANKED the media after one of his meetings. He says 'we could have never got this far without your COMPLIANCE and your SECRECY and your willingness not to deliver any information to the public.' That's when he said, at the same time, 'that it's far better that a group of intellectuals and bankers rule the planet than leaving it to individual states and their own planning.'

Canada is quickly integrating with the US. It has been for quite a few years, since the Free Trade Association started off and they went into NAFTA. Exactly the same technique as Britain and all the European countries were conned into uniting. Every year the leaders of all these countries - regardless of left wing, right wing - signed FURTHER integration and they called it 'closer ties'. That's all they would tell the public. The Prime Minister's been over with the other Prime Ministers to create 'closer ties' with the Economic Union and the International Trade Union. That's how it was presented to the public. The US and Canada and Mexico and a few other ones were doing the same and have been OPENLY since 2005. Every year they sign an agreement. They said that they had 5 more to sign and we're approaching the date 2010 or maybe 2011, but 2010 for sure. Once that happens, we're really totally integrated. What a beautiful time. Just like when they said this War on Terror and Fortress America and the need to exchange ALL our security information for safety's reasons, that that would further hasten up the integration of the Americas. That was in the newspapers here.

Well they're doing the same thing with the financial meltdown by the same bankers the run both side, every side of everything. This is from Yahoo News and it's also in the Canadian Press. The loonie is the Canadian dollar.

Loonie above 95 cents US, highest level since late October, as greenback falls
Tue Dec 1 / The Canadian Press / Yahoo.com

TORONTO - The Canadian dollar is up again to its highest level since late October as the U.S. dollar continues to sink against major currencies.

The loonie rose 0.81 cents US on Tuesday to close at 95.54 cents US. It hit an intraday peak of 95.93 cents.

Rising commodity prices and a report that Canadian economy has officially dragged itself out of a recession (A: I wonder when that happened?) also put extra lift beneath the loonie. Some analysts have predicted the loonie will hit parity by the end of the year.

The greenback slid against most major currencies due to signs that the U.S. economy is recovering (A: I wonder when and where that is? I think it's all these welfare facilities that are opening up.), which is a negative factor for the U.S. dollar. (A: It's beautiful isn't it? Even if you were recovering, they'll say it's bad for the economy because it makes your prices for export more expensive. You can't win here can you? You're not meant to.)

Investors tend to sell the greenback in favour of riskier, higher-yielding currencies and stocks when strong economic reports or other developments imply the economy is improving.

We're getting into a parallel cost value for the dollars, which is beautiful for integration as well. That's very obvious to those who have been following this for a few years. Its perfect isn't it? Not only do you have complete integration of the FBI, CSIS and all the rest of the alphabet-soup agencies, you also have – it's in the papers here too – that federal government employees, bureaucrats at the federal government in Canada can apply for equivalent positions in the US and vice versa. We've had that for 2 or 3 years now. We're already integrated. We already are. It's just they haven't told most of the Americans yet.

Another part of the UN policy - it's in their charter - was to guarantee under the World Health Organization, a department of the United Nations, which is mainly involved in bringing DOWN the population through abortion and other methods that they call prevention, etc. They guarantee that everybody in the world – once they run the world – everybody is to get the BASIC, MINIMAL health care. That's what you'll get offered to you. Those people who live in socialist countries - regardless if you're run by right wing or left wing, it's still socialist – and you have a national health service which is run by the government, there is always cost cutting. Guess where they cut the costs at the National Health Service? This is what's happening in Britain, for those in the US who don't know what's coming in to the US. This is all part of the world's schedule you understand. This is from The Telegraph.

Hundreds of patients died needlessly at NHS hospital due to appalling care
Hundreds of patients may have died needlessly at an NHS hospital due to appalling standards of care, a damning report has found. (A: This is only one of many.)
By Rebecca Smith, Medical Editor / 26 Nov 2009

Basildon University Hospital has been severely criticized over the above-average number of deaths of patients under its care.

Poor nursing care, filthy wards (A: Because they cut back on cleaning staff to save pennies for the government that wants to send more troops off for wars.) and lack of leadership at Basildon and Thurrock University NHS Hospitals Foundation Trust led to the deaths of up to 400 patients a year. (A: This is ONE hospital.)

Figures compiled by a health watchdog showed death rates at the Essex trust were a third higher than they should have been.

You see, in National Health Services they put a VALUE on your life as soon as you come in. It's run on the Fabian system, communistic system. According to your value to society will depend upon the expense of care they will give you. If 2 people come in with heart attacks at the same time and get stabilized, one is a laborer and one is a politician in the House of Lords for instance - not that he would end up there; he goes to a much higher hospital in the military; it's the same with Canada - the person who's more important to society is to be resuscitated if they have an arrest during their time there. If both patients have an arrest at the same time, they have to take the more important person first. They actually mark you on your little chart at the bottom of your bed with an A, B, C or so according to your status. That's what you get under the health systems, the communistic, government-run health systems. That's what Obama has been TOLD. That's why they put him in, to bring all this same Fabian system in to the US. That's what he's bringing in to the US. That deal was all made and the arrangement was made long before we even heard his name, long before that. They spend years working on this stuff.

People are now being told that once this comes in, some of the medications they are already on will no longer be available to them. The insurance companies are telling them this. I've got articles here from Britain and other European countries where certain pharmaceutical agents that would keep them alive for much longer, even years, because of their expense they can't get it. They are not being allowed it in Britain. It's too expensive they say. It's obviously available to very high people but not for YOU in the National Health Service. That's going to be the same in the United States as well. They don't know what's going to hit them.

I agree too, I'm well aware that it's a DISGUSTING profession, the whole medical for-profit system. It's disgusting when someone is booked into a hospital or ends up there in an emergency and at the end of a week they've got something between $8,000-$20,000 to pay, or more. It's disgusting. It's an incredible GREED system. Incredible greed based on health care, disgustingly so. But the problem is when you hand it to the governments and they're not there because of altruistic reasons, and neither is the left wing. The left wing is just as much the eugenicists as the right wing. They're all the same at the top. They all have the same agenda of bringing down the populations and sustainability, meaning for themselves and those who are Darwinian APPROVED worthy to go on into the future. That's the world we live in.

That's the world we live in where the public at the bottom fall into parties and never catch on to it. They never catch on. It's no wonder because the mainstream media's job it NOT to let you know what's really, really going on… on anything. From The Times…

Blair may have 'signed in blood' to topple Saddam a year before war
From The Times November 27, 2009 / David Brown

(A: This is the sort of thing the media does, they tell you now, after they've had it all and they've got what they wanted. Why didn't they tell you that at the time? They knew all this at the time.)

Tony Blair and President Bush might have secretly "signed in blood" a deal to overthrow Saddam Hussein a year before ordering the Iraq war, according to a former senior diplomat.

Sir Christopher Meyer, Britain's Ambassador to Washington in the run-up to the war, said an agreement to aim for "regime change" may have been reached during a private meeting at the President's Crawford ranch in April 2002.

He also said that, in his view, Baroness Thatcher would have had a clearer grip on Britain's policy towards Iraq. (A: Well I don't know. She liked wars. She admired Winston Churchill. She said the one thing she wanted was a war while she was in office and they gave her the Falklands. Parties eh? Parties… Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. This article here is an example of how the media will tell you some bit of a truth years after the event and after they've gotten all they wanted. They had the Iraq War. It's no surprise to many of us out there, I'm sure, that it was all decided long ago. We know it was decided long ago because it was part of the New American Century policy to have a list of countries – Iraq was one of them – they wanted to invade. They had that printed in the 90s. We're just following agendas.

All that stuff with the inquiries by the United Nations watchdog and the Atomic Energy board, etc going in looking for weapons of mass destruction and not finding ANY of them. It didn't make any difference because a year or two before that they already decided they were going to have the war and even made the dates for them. This is all just DRAMA for the public consumption, all that stuff. They are doing the same with Iran right now as well.

Here is an article as well, another article. It's from The Mail Online.

Why I believe Blair should stand trial - and even face charges for war crimes, by General Sir Michael Rose
By General Sir Michael Rose / 29th November 2009 / dailymail.co.uk

The inquiry into the Iraq War is not a court and no one is on trial. So said Sir John Chilcot, chairman of the inquiry, in his opening statement. He added that he was not there to determine the guilt or innocence of those responsible for the invasion of Iraq.

The object of the inquiry is simply to identify the lessons that should be learned from Iraq in order to help future UK governments who may face similar situations. (A: I guess when they go into Iran.)

No doubt, Sir John's inquiry will be both frank and impartial. No doubt, where appropriate, some criticism will be made of politicians and officials alike.

But although these are worthy objectives, they fall scandalously short of the crucial issue which millions of people in this country - myself included - believe this inquiry should be about.

With respect to Sir John, there is really no point in holding a further inquiry unless it does apportion blame, unless it does hold to account those who led us into this unnecessary, unwinnable and costly war in Iraq.

The inquiry should be the first step in a judicial process that brings those responsible for the disasters of the Iraq war before the courts - and could, as I shall explain, ultimately result in Tony Blair being indicted for war crimes. (A: That's when pigs might fly because that will never happen. Tony Blair is well protected.)

Already, the inquiry has provided us with devastating details of events in the run-up to Iraq.

Sir William Ehrman, former Director of Defence and Intelligence at the Foreign Office, told it this week that British spies reported ten days before the invasion that Iraq had 'disassembled' what chemical weapons it had. Yet Tony Blair nevertheless pressed ahead with the war.

Then came former Washington ambassador Sir Christopher Meyer's claim that Tony Blair and George W. Bush had signed a secret deal 'in blood' to topple Saddam Hussein almost a year before Iraq was invaded, and that officials found themselves scrabbling to find 'a smoking gun' to justify going to war.

But, despite these compelling accounts of what happened, the truth is that we already know the main lessons of Iraq: Britain was taken unprepared into war on false grounds(A: What's new?), and the inevitable result was the destruction of Iraq, enormous loss of life and continuing political turmoil in the Middle East. (A: I'll add to that – also as I read last week – now the big, brand new taxpayer funded – mainly from the US – oil refineries are up and running and they've given the big contracts to Exxon Mobile, Dutch Shell and all the rest of the big boys. THAT is what it was all about too. That's what it was as well. There is always another reason.)

I'll be back with more tomorrow night, so from Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Australia-Parliament Rejects Carbon Trading System
("Australia's Parliament defeats global warming bill" by Rohan Sullivan (at physorg.com) - Dec. 2, 2009.)

CBS- Fallout Over Climategate
("Fallout Over 'ClimateGate' Data Leak Grows" by Declan McCullagh (cbsnews.com) - Dec. 2, 2009.)

Scotland Yard in Hunt for Climate Hacker
("Scotland Yard join UEA climate probe inquiry" by Shaun Lowthorpe - Dec. 1, 2009.)

Canadian Dollar at 95¢ US. Get Ready for Amalgamation
("Loonie above 95 cents US, highest level since late October, as greenback falls" The Canadian Press (yahoo.com) - Dec. 1, 2009.)

Multiple Unnecessary Deaths in UK Socialist Health System
("Hundreds of patients died needlessly at NHS hospital due to appalling care" by Rebecca Smith (telegraph.co.uk) - Nov. 26, 2009.)

Blair-Bush made Deal to Invade Iraq before Inspections for Weapons of Mass Destruction
("Blair may have 'signed in blood' to topple Saddam a year before war" (timesonline.co.uk) - Nov. 27, 2009.)

Blair Should be Charged With War Crimes-General Sir Michael Rose
"Why I believe Blair should stand trial - and even face charges for war crimes, by General Sir Michael Rose" (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 29, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS   "Cutting Through"   Volumes 1, 2, 3   &   "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000)   &   Blurbs and 'Cutting

Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 3, 2009 (#464)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 3, 2009:
CO2 -- On the Trail of the New Holy Grail:
"World Business Summit Met Back in the Summer
To Turn Profits from Crisis, said 'Warming's no Bummer,
We'll Rake in Trillions from this Mother of Scams,' Politicos saw Billions from Tax-Paying Hams,
Academia, Grant-Bloated, Drooling, Greenback Flavour,
Became Priesthood of Omens, Unopposed New Saviour,
Alice in Wonderland takes Backseat in World Surrealistic,
As Scientists became Famous with each Fudged Statistic,
Some Predicted it would be Invasion from Venus or Mars,
Turns Out t'was a Demon who Dreamt up CO2 Farce"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 3, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 3, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 3rd 2009. For all the newcomers out there, I advise you look into .com web site and scroll down and you'll see all the other sites I have up there. Bookmark them for future use because when the big sites go down you can always pull up the latest shows from one of them. These are the only sites I have up. Anything outside of these are not mine. [Sites listed above.]

Always, I tell the people that you bring me to you, the listeners. No one supports me here. I'm not backed by any particular political organization or foundation. I'm not selling big products for any particular reason. The only things I have for sale are on the books I've written and the CDs and DVDs I've made. So it's up to you to purchase them or keep me going by donating to me, very important. I have to keep reminding people, because it's always the same people who donate over and over again and some of them drop off too because they come on hard times like so many people are going through hard times right now losing jobs across the US and Canada and elsewhere. It's up to the newcomers to do their bit as well. Believe you me, nothing really is free. Anything that's really free has an alternate agenda. It's like television; all the ads on TV are the main reason that the shows are on that you're enjoying. It's meant to sell stuff, sell products. The ads on this show go directly from the advertisers TO RBN station to broadcast this talk. It pays for their staff, their equipment, the air time and their engineers and so on. That's how things work, but it also means that you have to support me as well and keep me going. You can do so by buying that which I have for sale or donating. [Options listed above.] For those who get the disks burned and passed to them and lots of people do at meetings. They don't use computers; they play them on their CD players. You can get in touch with me at [address above].

Now that that's out of the way, the only complaint I have as always is with XplorNet. For those who are thinking of getting high-speed and fall for the advertising, believe you me, once you've signed up and you're locked in with them, they start cutting back your speed like crazy. They'll never admit to it and they'll have you getting your satellite stuff inspected at big bucks over and over before they'll admit that you're on a 'lock'. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I wonder how many people have noticed that with all the hype about global warming and all the supposed solutions that are being bombarded on the people – of course the people will always pay – that the whole flu thing has died down.

We're supposed to all be getting cordoned off for quarantine and pandemics breaking out all over the place and people dying and mass burials. It's amazing that after all the deals were struck with governments across the world, at the behest of the World Health Organization at the United Nations, once all the deals were signed and 5 and 6-year orders came in from the big pharma companies - and they were signed and sealed and delivered basically - it's all kind of faded away. Isn't that amazing? Isn't that absolutely amazing?

Yet the same technique is being used by the special interest groups to do with global warming. Hype. Hype. Terrify the public. It's a matter of life and death… or complete extinction of the species if we don't sign this treaty, or that's it; it's all over if we don't. I can remember about 6 months ago Prince Charles came out and said if we don't do something within 3 months it's all over. Then someone followed it up a few months back, same sort of stuff, and we're getting the same hype now. It's all these groups that have worked for years, and got paid to work for years, on the global warming scam. We also have big business on board with it too, very big business. Apparently this trading in carbon is going to bring in more on the stock market trading all this carbon nonsense, this abstract nothingness is going to be twice as much in fact as the oil industry. This is what they speculate, at least this is what the propaganda they're giving out right now.

Big business is on board with the greening agenda, all the greenies and the scientists who have been well paid to fudge all their statistics to CREATE the global warming graphs and so on. So it's pretty well going to be a done deal. Governments will not backtrack on it now. In fact, they're going to ignore the exposés of this scandal that's broken out and everyone else knows about because so much money, big business and a whole world agenda is riding on the outcome of this.

It's like World War I. In World War I, they found that the German Kaiser had ordered massive railway expansions for an upcoming war, should one happen. When the Archduke Ferdinand was killed by a terrorist, it was decided to go to war but it wasn't fully committed to it except for the fact that all the train schedules were already rescheduled to carry troops. So they couldn't go back on it. That's the excuse we're given in history. They couldn't go back and say 'no we won't have the war' because they had all this stuff ready to go to war and they couldn't go back since it was all ready to go.

It's the same with the global warming thing. For YEARS they've been planning this whole new economy, a planned society is to come out of it, a whole new way of living, not just stuck at the one place, they always incrementally change it. They know exactly HOW to take you where they want you to go by increments. Once they get this deal signed, it will go all the way to rationing and then to, eventually, who can breed, who will not breed and then world service. You will be BORN TO SERVE THE WORLD STATE. That's no speculation because I've read the books by the big boys from over 100 years ago… some of them were talking about this very thing.

HG Wells wrote about the birth of the League of Nations with became the United Nations and he said 'at last, we've got what we wanted, now we can bypass governments and use bureaucracies OF governments to communicate with each other,' on the same agendas and the politicians wouldn't even be involved. That was about 1919-1920. They've always had it as their goal to bring in this utopia and Wells wrote the book A Modern Utopia on behalf of his mentors and his masters because he was a propagandist for the group that PLANNED, literally, the whole of the 20th century into the 21st century.

This group started off with bankers, WORLD lenders – not just bankers but world lenders - who also were taking over the resources of the planet with Cecil Rhodes and Lord Rothschild. Then they merged with Lord Milner who also was an international banker and all the top ones that came on board were international bankers and their sons. That became the Royal Institute of International Affairs which is a PRIVATE organization but again they were given a Royal charter by the Crown, this strange democratic crown idea that Britain has, and they formed the Council on Foreign Relations for America. Here they go. They've got almost what they want.

Under this new deal – and it is a new deal of a new way of living – with us of course being the victims. We are also the cause apparently of all the pollution. Everyone they say is responsible for it. We're ALL in it together. You're all responsible for it. It's amazing these big corporations are going to profit to such a fantastic, unbelievable, never-dreamed-of-before extent, as they will, off this. Governments are throwing BILLIONS at them to start up all their different companies, their greening companies and the whole carbon trading business. They've already got the bank set that will deal with the transfer and holding of all these carbon credits. Of course that's a Rothschild bank in Switzerland, their private one. Nothing really changes. The plan goes on.

There are many different interest groups. Then there are all the fearful people at the bottom that go hysterical because they believe every panic that's given to them. They aid it on. They aid it on; they demand from government, they scream to government, help us, help us, save us. They become radical and dangerous as well. Of course, that's what they big boys want. That's what they want. They always depend on the fringe group that becomes petrified because the panic creation is working and then they start doing crazy things… which get in the newspaper. That also aids their plan as well.

Here's how it's presented in the Mail Online. It's quite interesting to do with Professor Jones who is only ONE of them at the peak of this. Remember, the whole global warming scam started off with one paper, ONE PAPER. Then eventually another one followed it; so TWO papers all together. Everything was built on these two papers, the WHOLE theory. It's like building a religion – which it is – on two papers that became like the laws of Moses for all the other scientists in the field and they all jumped on board when it became popular amongst governments. By the way, that was spread by Margaret Thatcher.

Margaret Thatcher was the first politician to USE… and they always get something to use. It's like a pop star, what's your gimmick? …what's your shtick? …as they say. They give you some sort of gimmick so they'll recognize it's always YOU. With politicians they do the same thing. Thatcher had nothing of note in her past when she came to power, or was put in. She had a Bachelor of Science in chemistry. She had a business related with chemistry. She came out with the first diet ice creams. What they did was they aerosolized the ice cream, they whipped it up and injected it with all these air bubbles. So for the same price, you got half as much ice cream but blown up to look the same size as the old stuff and it was full of air bubbles. She was given a great award for that by the business community, this idea. That's not bad eh? So you're getting twice the profit for basically half as much ice cream. But because of this scientific background she had in chemistry, they said, 'well let's find something to do with science.' In science, you can convince people of anything by using science. She was given the task. It was another Lord that came up with the idea, why not global warming? That was already dreamed up by the Club of Rome but she jumped on that and was the first one to push it. In every meeting she went to, she always brought that into it and got it made popular amongst politicians across the world. She was the first one to put funding into research to do with it.

The Mail Online.

Professor in climate change scandal helps police with enquiries while researchers call for him to be banned
By Fiona Macrae / 2nd December 2009 / dailymail.co.uk

The scientist at the heart of the climate change email scandal was today interviewed by police about the scandal.

Two plain clothes officers arrived in an unmarked car in the afternoon and took Professor Phil Jones to Norfolk Police's headquarters in nearby Wymondham to give a statement.

Sources said the interview concerned the theft of emails from the university and alleged death threats since the contents of the emails were released, adding he was being treated as a 'victim of crime' (Alan: A VICTIM, this con artist is a victim of crime…) rather than a suspect in any criminal investigation. (A: This is the guy who took over £30.7 million in grants and wants to change the whole world so that scientists can rule it and we'll all obey. So he's a VICTIM, this con man. He and many more like him by the way. So there ya go. These guys are victims in crime. Quite amazing. Quite amazing.)

There's another article from The Mail Online and it says…

Don't hold your breath expecting climate change data to be revealed
By Mike Thornhill / 2nd December 2009 / dailymail.co.uk

I've been following the 'hacked emails' story - the climate change 'storm' - since it first broke.

Those of us who follow websites like Climate Audit (A: That's a good web site.) and other science oriented sites were not surprised. People who do, although they had no proof until now, knew something of the sort had had to be going on.

They knew their freedom of information requests were being blocked at every turn. (A: When you get that, you've got a mandate and you've got a con going on. Scientists are SUPPOSED to release their information so it can be verified by other scientists. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from The Mail Online to do with the supposed upcoming presentation of the original data, supposedly, that the global warming stuff was based on. This journalist says don't hold your breath. He's talking about the other groups that tried to get this data before and were blocked, like Climate Audit and other science-orientated sites. He says…

Those of us who follow websites like Climate Audit and other science oriented sites were not surprised. People who do, although they had no proof until now, knew something of the sort had had to be going on. (A: Meaning scamming.)

They knew their freedom of information requests were being blocked at every turn. They knew they found it exceedingly difficult to get anything published in academic journals. (A: Amazing, amazing power came from on high in some position to tell academic journals, don't publish anything that's contrary to the warming agenda.) And they had already proved over and over that there were errors with data selection and methods in publications by University of East Anglia (UEA) scientists and their colleagues. (A: That's the main one that all the other scientists across the world were basing their data on, from them.)

Steve McIntyre, who edits Climate Audit, together with his colleague Ross McKitrick, was responsible for almost single-handedly demolishing the 'science' behind the so called hockey stick temperature graph, which became such an icon for the global warming catastrophe movement. He has been requesting information from UEA for years without success. (A: For years.)

In what sounds like a turn for the good and seems to be a victory for increased transparency, the University has now agreed to publish its raw temperature data. (A: They already said that they'd lost it or when they changed from some accommodations or something, they'd lost it all or wiped it out to get more computer space, ya-da, ya-da, ya. But now they say that they will present it so I guess they found it again.)

This sounds great. But take notice of the qualification to this statement, namely that this will only be after they have received agreement from their associates in other countries who have provided data under restrictive agreements.

Unfortunately this has been the major argument used by the UEA to deny McIntyre and others freedom of information and other requests in the past. (A: So they're using the same stunt again. It's the same stunt as they're saying 'we can't tell you the truth for reasons of national security' that the military does all the time and the politicians too.)

(So the guy says don't hold your breath waiting for the data to come forth.) The university's Pro-Vice-Chancellor Professor Trevor Davies released a statement saying: 'Some countries may refuse permission due to the economic value of the data.' (A: That's what they're getting told.)

So, when the hubbub dies down, will they fall back on this excuse again? I don't think McIntyre will be holding his breath waiting for the data.

The mentality amongst these scientists which has led to this circling of the wagons is so self-defeating. They complain that all these information requests are very time-consuming and that sceptics just want to find fault with their work. If they published their data and methods in the first place, people would have no need to make these requests.

Sceptics do want to find fault, that much is true. But that is how science is supposed to work. Each new theory or development only stands up as long as it withstands rigorous testing. So, blocking access to data only achieves a slowing down of much-needed progress in climate science. (A: And it goes on and on and on but yeah… don't hold your breath.)

Don't hold your breath because there is too much at stake here. It's not just the scientists. They were obviously taking orders from someone in a higher authority. As I say too, you have all these multi-national, MASSIVE, big businesses all looking forward to all the – and they've already gotten lots of grants from governments already – but looking forward to the BILLIONS that will get doled out to them to go ahead and twaddle it down the sink basically as they pretend to look for alternatives to fossil fuel.

Another good article too is from Global Research.

Global Warming: "Fixing the Climate Data around the Policy"
by Michel Chossudovsky / Global Research, November 30, 2009

More than 15,000 people will be gathering in Copenhagen for COP 15: the 15th Conference of the Parties to the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). (A: I love all these abbreviations. The UNFCCC. This one article alone has a whole bunch of these alphabet-soup agencies but that's also to confuse the public and you give up generally halfway through something.)

Official delegations from 192 nations will mingle with the representatives of major multinational corporations, including Royal Dutch Shell, British Petroleum, The representatives of environmental and civil society organizations will also be in attendance. (A: There's links here too, even more on who's attending, all the big corporations.) Parties & Observers

Heads of state and heads of government are slated to be in appearance in the later part of the Summit event. (See The essentials in Copenhagen - COP15 United Nations Climate Change Conference Copenhagen 2009)

It is worth noting that key decisions and orientations on COP15 had already been wrapped up at the World Business Summit on Climate Change (WBSCC) (A: See, they're having world business summits, the big international boys.) held in May in Copenhagen, six months ahead of COP15. (A: Already done.)

The WBSCC brought together some of the World's most prominent business executives and World leaders including Al Gore (A: Who has already made a fortune off the carbon trading.) and UN Secretary General Ban Ki Moon. (The World Business Summit on Climate Change, includes webcast) (A: The link for that's on here too.)

The results of these high level consultations were forwarded to the Danish government as well as to the governments of participating member states. A so-called summary report for policymakers was drafted by PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, on behalf the corporate executives participating in the event. (A: Back with more on the bigwigs who are making millions off something that's still to go through, after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article to do with global warming called “Fixing the Climate Data Around the Policy”. It’s by Michael Chossudovsky. It’s interesting to see the big power players that are attending this Copenhagen meeting - all the big business boys - and how they’ve had meetings before, world business summits on climate change and really, basically, come down to the brass knuckles as they say, as to who is going to divvy it up and what part of the money is going to get thrown at them by governments. Of course, I’m sure it’s how much kickbacks they’ll give to governments as well. That happens. That’s the REAL world we live in. That’s how it really works.

This report has very little to do with environmental protection. It largely consists in a profit driven agenda, which uses the global warming consensus as a justification. (For details see Climate Council: The World Business Summit on Climate Change)

"The underlying ambition of the Summit was to address the twin challenges of climate change and the economic crisis. Participants at the Summit considered how these risks can be turned into opportunity(A: Boy, they’re all using that aren’t they? They turn every crisis into opportunity.) if business and governments work together, (A: Isn’t FASCISM wonderful?) and what policies, incentives, and investments will most effectively stimulate low-carbon growth." (Copenhagen Climate Council) (A: All the links and detail are on this particular site.)

The agenda of the Copenhagen Climate Summit (7-18 December 2009), is upheld both by the governments, the business executives and the NGO community(A: You know, all those Soviet boys that work for the foundations that are owned by the international bankers.) as "one of the most significant gatherings in history. It is being called the most complex and vital agreement the world has ever seen." (A: I’m not kidding, it’s true.)

CO2 emissions are heralded as the single and most important threat to the future of humanity. (A: It’s amazing, they came up with global warming, then they started to call it climate change and CO2.)

The focus of the Summit is on strictly environmental issues. No mention of the word "war" --i.e. the US-NATO led war and its devastating environmental consequences.

No mention of the pre-emptive use of nuclear weapons as an instrument of "peacemaking".

No mention, as part of an environmental debate, of the radioactive fallout resulting from the Pentagon's humanitarian nuclear bombs. Tactical nuclear weapons, according to scientific opinion commissioned by the Pentagon are "safe for the surrounding civilian population". (A: I guess that’s why the think tank for NATO – that’s in the archives section of my web site – when they came out with that 90-page report on the future. They said they would be using tactical, field nuclear weapons, neutron bombs, on big flash mobs in the upcoming riots and food riots they expect to happen from about 2010 onwards.)

No mention of "weather warfare" or "environmental modification techniques" (ENMOD) and climatic warfare.

No mention in the debate on climate change of the US Air Force 2025 project entitled "Owning the Weather" for military use. (See FAS, AF2025 v3c15-1 | Weather as a Force Multiplier: Owning... | (Ch 1) see also SPACE.com -- U.S. Military Wants to Own the Weather) (A: It’s got the links here from the Air Force. They’re already doing it, have been for years. I’ve seen the spraying going on. This is ABOVE all the cons that these other scientist were doing at the bottom level convincing us of global warming. They’ve actually been altering the atmosphere for quite some time and altering the weather.)

Despite a vast body of scientific knowledge, the issue of deliberate climatic manipulations for military use is no longer part of the UN agenda on climate change. (A: They’ve suddenly forgot about that even though all the governments in, I think it was 1978, signed a treaty at the United Nations not to use weather warfare on each other. They admitted in it what they could to THEN. They could cause tidal waves and tsunamis; they could create earthquakes and tornadoes, hurricanes and floods or droughts. That was in 1978. You don’t sign these treaties unless you could already do it with the HAARP technology and the spraying in the skies. They had already tested it out.) It was, however, part of the agenda of the 1992 Rio Earth Summit. (See Michel Chossudovsky, Environmental Warfare and Climate Change, Global Research, 27 November 2005, See also Michel Chossudovsky, Weather Warfare: Beware the US military’s experiments with climatic warfare, The Ecologist, December 2007)

CO2 is the logo, which describes the Worldwide crisis. No other variable is contemplated.

Moreover, no meaningful anti-pollution clean air policy directed against CO2 emissions can be formulated as an objective in its own right, because the reduction of CO2 emissions is subordinate to the Global Warming consensus.

The words "poverty", "unemployment" and "disease" resulting from a global economic depression are not a matter of emphasis because authoritative financial sources state unequivocally: "the economic recession is over". (A: That's what they're telling us… as folk are going under and still losing their homes. They're telling us the economic recession is over.)

And the war in the Middle East and Central Asia is not a war but "a humanitarian operation directed against terrorists and rogue states."

The Real Crisis

The Copenhagen Summit not only serves powerful corporate interests, which have a stake in the global multibillion dollar carbon trading scheme, it also serves to divert public attention from the devastation resulting from the "real crisis" underlying the process of economic globalization and a profit driven war without borders, which the Pentagon calls "the long war". (A: Remember, I read the article FROM the military, from their own magazine; it's called 'perpetual war.')

We are at the crossroads of the most serious crisis in modern history. War and economic depression constitute the real crisis, yet both the governments and the media have focused their attention on the environmental devastation resulting from CO2 emissions, which is upheld as the greatest threat to humanity.

The Multibillion Dollar Carbon Trading System

The carbon trading system is a multibillion money-making bonanza for the financial establishment. The stakes are extremely high and the various lobby groups on behalf of Wall Street have already positioned themselves.

According to a recent report, "the carbon market could become double the size of the vast oil market, (A: At least in the oil market they had real oil that was getting traded. This is just nothing, nothing.) according to the new breed of City players who trade greenhouse gas emissions through the EU's emissions trading scheme... (A: What a con, eh? It's like saying how do you make a fishing net? Well, you pick up holes and you tie them together. That is as crazy as this.) The speed of that growth will depend on whether the Copenhagen summit gives a go-ahead for a low-carbon economy, but Ager says whatever happens schemes such as the ETS will expand around the globe." (Terry Macalister, Carbon trading could be worth twice that of oil in next decade, The Guardian, 28 November 2009)

I've got Terry from Calgary hanging on the phone so I'll take Terry. Are you there Terry?

Terry: It's nice to talk to you again. Alan, I don't like to call too much because I like to try to think for myself to come up with the answer but I'm a little stymied on this one. I was listening to Lord Monckton. He reminded me of Sir James Goldsmith. He came out and spoke against the GATT Treaty in '94, I think it was. The question that keeps going through my mind is this. You've got SIR James Goldsmith and LORD Monckton. Sir James Goldsmith was a billionaire and Lord Monckton I'm sure is very wealthy as well. They are both part of the elite. Why have they turned a leaf, in your opinion, and decided against their conscience and decided that they should come out and say something?

Alan: We'll never understand the level of machinations that these guys live in. It's way above us, way above us. Theses guys were brought up not just with silver spoons but with gold spoons in their mouths. They all attended the best boarding schools that the English upper class could offer. They were all guaranteed positions. They went through the best universities too, but guaranteed positions in business. Sir James Goldsmith was known as a corporate raider. He was one of the corporate raiders who literally were going in during the Junk Bond scandals and they were buying companies up, buying the shares of a company, firing the previous owner who had less shares and so on, taking them over, stripping them to the bone and then selling them off again and saying they were efficient. Of course they all collapsed like a deck of cards behind them. But this went on and Sir James Goldsmith was one of them. He also was one of the guys who were highly competitive on behalf of Britain and his friends in the oil industry. These guys, as we know, were involved with the setting up of wars and all the rest of it, for oil. So we'll never know really why Goldsmith came out. However, they have got great oratory skills; they're given this at the schools they attend. They're given a big vocabulary which the ordinary people never even use; never even get a chance to use, never mind learn. They're also taught debating and the art of speaking, so they can present their facts very, very well. Monckton as well, with Thatcher, as I mentioned before, Thatcher was given her shtick. They thought, well she's got sort of a degree in science, let's use that because another Lord says well… other politicians, if they have no understanding of science, you can confuse them with any issue by using scientific terminology, they just go along with you and accept what you're saying. So she became the champion at that time for global warming which had not even been heard of by other people. In every meeting she went to for the EU and the UN or whatever, she'd always bring up that topic even though it wasn't the topic under discussion. So it's odd that Monckton, who again, was a science advisor during Thatcher's era, seemed to have gone along with it then but now he's come out as the opposition. We'll never understand really, at that level, what goes on. It's out of our league, you understand.

Terry: My thoughts are, I think that Carroll Quigley said, we will always provide you with the opposition.

Alan: They do. They always do. It's some odd legality. It's like the presentation of a Perry Mason show. The accused and the defendant and the prosecutor, it's a game in law. Law is a game the same way. Things are presented TO the public in a legalistic fashion and future historians can then say well, the public were told about this but they went along with it so they must have accepted it and really wanted it. So it's a benefit for historians and children of the future. Children can look back and say well, I guess it was a good thing because everybody went along, nobody complained.

Terry: Exactly. Well Alan, I'm a little late on my donation. I like to give you a monthly donation. It will be coming in the mail. I'll let you continue on.

Alan: Well thanks very much. I appreciate that very, very much. Thank you.

We live at a lower level of reality. We never know what's going on. We're kept in naïveté really, at the bottom level. That's the media's job too, is to keep us down and dumb or else to motivate us to go along with some crisis and get shots for inoculations or whatever. That's what the media is for. The media is the MIDDLE man. They peddle the agenda to the public at the bottom. We'll never know how it goes on at the top. People who really think that governments are there to SERVE them are the most naïve of all peoples.

Governments are full of businessmen and psychopaths who get attracted into the big honey pot. All big projects today require grants from governments to get on the go, whether it's the creation of roads or whatever; it's all government money. Therefore, these guys always get kickbacks for every grant they that hand out. That's standard procedure. They have shares in all the companies that get the contracts as well. They say 'we're not involved when we're in politics with it, with our shares; we don't know what's happening with them; it's in the hands of our lawyers.' That's what they generally say. They know darn well what's going on. It's a corrupt as can be, but it's always been that way, always. I can't see why it would change.

Another article I was reading today was to do with the US contractors. There are actually two contractors working in Afghanistan and Iraq – two of employees of contractors – for every soldier that's there. Everything to do with running the US military is contracted out. It's a money pit where no one is taking account of the billions that are getting pumped into it. No one is keeping the books. They actually said they lost 20-odd billion bucks or something and the Pentagon refuses to even have an inquiry into where it went. The scandals are horrific, HORRIFIC. As long as people are profiting at THIS kind of level, with billions of dollars of it, they will keep wars going as long as they can. It's quite simple, quite simple.

Here's another aspect of it too and it falls right in line with Sir Crispin Tickell, a guy who's not very funny at all. He's one of the heads of The Optimum Population Trust, again another upper class guy who admits that they're all upper class whites, he said, in his group. They're eugenicists. They believe the right of the fittest to survive and of course they think they are because they have the most of the goodies of the shares of the planet. Here's an article to do with how eugenics ties in with global warming.

Fund family planning 'to cut CO2'
(news.bbc.co.uk) - Dec. 3, 2009

Meeting the demand for family planning in poor nations (A: Now, when they say family planning they also mean abortions and sterilizations. That's really generally what they mean.) is a cheap and effective way to cut CO2 emissions, a new website initiative claims.

The UK-based Optimum Population Trust (A: That's another Sir who will shortly be made a Lord and he's an advisor on the board of the British government.) says fast-rising population levels lead to growing emissions. (A: See, so we all are, you know, taking away their air, you see, for the wealthy. All us 'useless eaters' are just swallowing up their air… that they should be using.)

(A: Listen to this one.) The website is urging wealthy people to offset their own CO2 emissions by funding contraception programmes.

It says taking such action is better value than spending money on wind turbines, solar power or hybrid cars.

Critics would argue the analysis is too simplistic, a BBC correspondent says.

The BBC's environment analyst Roger Harrabin says they could contend that reducing the number of people born in the US would make a big difference in achieving reductions in CO2 levels.

Our correspondent added that carbon emissions from people in much of sub-Saharan Africa are so low that they can barely be counted. (A: You can't count the emissions, even that is misleading. What they're counting is energy usage and then they convert it supposedly into emissions. Even that's a con.)

According to the OPT, every £4 (A: About $8.) spent on family planning saves one tonne of CO2. (A: HOW could they… oh, the conology is at work eh, CONOLOGY to the maximum for an agenda. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. This other article is called…

Climategate: it's all unravelling now
By James Delingpole December 2nd, 2009 / telegraph.co.uk

1. Australia's Senate rejects Emissions Trading Scheme for a second time. Or: so turkeys don't vote Christmas. Expect to see a lot more of this: politicians starting to become aware their party's position on AGW (A: Anthropomorphic - man-made - Global Warming.) is completely out of kilter with the public mood and economic reality. Kevin Rudd's Emissions Trading Scheme (A: For Australia.) – what Andrew Bolt calls "a $114 billion green tax (A: That's what it costs Australia if they'd gone through with it.) on everything" – would have wreaked havoc on the coal-dependent Australian economy. That's why several opposition Liberal frontbenchers resigned rather than vote with the Government on ETS; why Liberal leader Malcolm Turnbull lost his job; and why the Senate voted down the ETS.

2. Danes (A: Denmark.) caught fiddling their carbon credits. (Hat tip: Philip Stott) Carbon trading is the Emperor's New Clothes of international finance. (A: Apparently they were caught at it.) It was invented by none other than Ken Lay, whose Enron (A: This is the guy who came up with the idea for the carbon credits. We know what honest guys those guys were, right.) would currently be one of the prime beneficiaries in the global alternative energy market, if it hadn't been shown to be (nearly) as fraudulent as the current AGW scam. It is a licence to fleece, cheat and rob. Still, jolly embarrassing for the Danes to get caught red handed, what with their hosting a conference shortly in which the world's leaders will try, straight-faced, to persuade us that carbon emissions trading is the only viable way of defeating ManBearPig.

3. Hats off to The Daily Express – the first British newspaper to make the AGW scam its front page story. (A: Yep, and it’s all quite true.)

You know, what will all come out of this too will either be… they might play it down now and say we’re not going to tax you all directly YET – at Copenhagen. They might say ‘well, yeah, because of this scandal, we’re going to lessen it and just put a flat tax of energy use on everything that’s produced from carrots to whatever.’ As long as the UN gets it, they’ve achieved their goal regardless. Then with the next one next year or next summer at Copenhagen, they’ll amend it to go further. That’s what they always do. There’s too much money riding on all this for the big boys, too much money. They want also to have control over the whole world and everybody in it. It’s a beautiful way to regulate society. We’re to regulate you with an iron fist and you’re all to become poor in the process by giving us more and more taxes to save the planet, to save you all. That’s really what they’re saying here. It’s amazing how the boys at the top – the ones that are already billionaires – will become trillionaires after a few years as they reap the harvest of the con, the carbon con.

Already of course, they’ve gone ahead with things. The Mail Online is making a big deal about Smart Meters going in because the government has passed a law there. The Smart Meters for your electricity was already discussed by Maurice Strong back in the ’80s when they put him in at the head of Ontario Hydro. He was brought in from the United Nations. He said, ‘we’re going to cut all the power down in the future for the ordinary people.’ He says, ‘people will pay for all energy in taxes’ and so on. It was all planned at the Rio Summit and long before in 1992, long, long before that.

£500 'smart' powers meters for all which could let energy firms cap use in homes
By Sean Poulter / 30th November 2009 / dailymail.co.uk

From Hamish and myself from Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Creative Climate Prof-Victim of Crime
("Professor in climate change scandal helps police with enquiries while researchers call for him to be banned" by Fiona Macrae (dailymail.co.uk) - Dec. 2, 2009.)

Telegraph-Don't Hold Breath on Climate Scam Revelation
("Don't hold your breath expecting climate change data to be revealed" by Mike Thornhill (dailymail.co.uk) - Dec. 2, 2009.)

Global Research-Fixing Climate Data Around Policy
("Global Warming: Fixing the Climate Data around the Policy" by Michel Chossudovsky (globalresearch.ca) - Nov. 30, 2009.)

Eugenics and Co2
("Website appeal to fund family planning 'to cut CO2' " (news.bbc.co.uk) - Dec. 3, 2009.)

Climategate-All Unravelling
("Climategate: it's all unravelling now" by James Delingpole (telegraph.co.uk) - Dec. 2, 2009.)

Smart Meters
("£500 'smart' powers meters for all which could let energy firms cap use in homes" by Sean Poulter (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 30, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 4, 2009 (#465)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 4, 2009:
For the Elite -- Self-Congratulatory Praises, When the 'Useless Eaters' are Pushing Up Daisies:
"A New World Order Coming into View,
Ambiguous Statement Understood by the Few,
Not Only the Stand-Down Between East and West,
But a New Way of Living, from Those Who Know Best,
Planned Long Before the Cold War Season
By Men of Societies, 'A Rule by Reason,'
Soviet-Capitalist Merger, a Synthesis Alliance
Where Governments are Guided by Men of Science
Who with their Reason, World's Problems be Solved,
Eliminating 'The Useless' Populations Resolved,
Fittest to Survive to Breed on Maintainable,
With Excess Gone, their Future's Sustainable"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 4, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 4, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 4th 2009. For the newcomers, look into .com web site. You'll see all the other sites I have available for audio downloads [listed above]. Remember too, that YOU keep me going. You'll see on the sites how to buy that which I have for sale or you can donate to me. [Options listed above.] I won't go into this in detail because to be honest with you, I'm going down. No one is donating at all. I don't think it's just Christmas because generally at Christmas time that's when orders come in. So this may be a sign to me that it's time to wane out, as they say. For those who get the disks burned and passed around to them, you can always get in touch with me at [address listed above].

It's interesting to go into the topics that become popular because all topics eventually, that we're given, are meant to become popular. That's when you realize that you're in the thick of a battle. They only become popular when the big plays are going on at the top levels. At the moment, there's global warming. It's interesting that it comes to a head and so much is exposed just a couple of weeks before the WORLD is to basically be signed under a new priesthood of the global warming scientists and the cartels that are backing them up. We've got to be very, very careful of what's really supposed to come out of this. It isn't just to do with money for scientists who are certainly benefiting like never before, from a theory. It's also a RELIGION and a CAUSE, a SOCIAL CAUSE. It's a substitute to bring the world under a world of socialism where scientists of all kinds will be the front men that will give us theories on behalf of those that are their masters on how to guide the world. They couldn't do it through communism. They've had a hard time through socialism, as it presently stands, so they're bringing it out under a new guise. That's really what the warming is about.

When you go into the writing of people like Maurice Strong and these guys, from way, way back, you see how Maurice Strong was picked up in fact by Rockefeller when he was a youngster and GROOMED for his position and really became a technocrat. That's what Carroll Quigley called these people like the Brzezinski's and the Kissinger's and the Maurice Strong's. They are TECHNOCRATS. They work behind the scenes. Quigley said they have more power than any politician, Prime Minister or President. They know it. They don't get the public applause, but they do the REAL work. What they do is go around talking at world meetings. Organizations are started all over the world and they become the prime speakers to promote causes. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just talking about how big things are presented to the public, at the last moment, as always. Many powers come into play, different sides to different things but very often too, it's different sides of the same thing or in the same boat you might say. It's like when they put up the gasoline prices by some 20 cents a liter in Canada for instance. That's not unknown to happen here quite often. Sometimes it has been 30-40 cents at a time. Then they drop it down by 10 or 15 cents and people breathe a sign of relief, thinking oh thank God, but they're still paying way too much more then they did before the price increase. That's how human psychology works and they know this at the top and in marketing too.

It's the same thing when big ploys come into play, the top political ploys, especially on a global agenda, as we see. Everything now is global. We've been going through the birth pangs for years and years and years of this global agenda, to bring the world under ONE system. It was decided at the time, decided by a combination of people in the Royal Institute of International Affairs and CFR. Many of them were communist. I didn't matter, as Quigley said, if you were communist, socialist, whatever, they'd accept you. Even dictators got in to it as members. They didn't care as long as they got everybody on board with the same agenda. They all agreed they wanted a controlled society. A society where reason would come to the fore instead of religion, although they would create a religion to guide the people through into the beginnings of it, a sort of earth-based religion as we well know now. That came out at later international discussions. Gorbachev himself said 'we have to create an earth-type religion to bring the people into this plan and to get them to accept it.'

The same thing will probably come out of Copenhagen, where they're pushing for incredible reductions on all energy output. That's how they're figuring this strange equation of energy output. Energy would be used and turned into 'carbon' and all this kind of stuff. This is as good an excuse as any to get what they want to happen. The cost to the general public is to be incredible but it's also to bring us into a deeper crisis where they'll say, with the preplanned bank collapses and everything else and the bailouts, it will all tie into together as we get poorer and poorer, they'll tell us 'there's got to be another way.' Of course, the other way was already tabled on the books a long time ago.

Out it will come, after getting dusted off, and they'll give us this new combination of socialism and capitalism, where massive bureaucracies and governmental departments will run every facet of the individuals lives, PLUS – and I'm kidding you not – one of their main goals is to bring down DRASTICALLY the amount of human beings on the planet, especially the types that they think are now obsolete, which is anything beneath themselves at the top. The 'useless eaters' as Lord Bertrand Russell called them. They knew that in a post-industrial society where China was planned to be set up as the manufacturer FOR the planet, they'd have all these people still consuming and eating and all the rest of it, taking away the resources of what should rightfully be the elites', the ones who are more evolved than all the rest, so that they and their children can go off into some brave new world scenario or off into the stars and all this kind of stuff.

We've got to be careful when we see the big fights going on. It's excellent that so much stuff has been exposed but don't hold your breath. These guys are not going to stop now and say, 'yeah we did it; we conned you all, please forgive us.' That's not going to happen. The agenda is too big. So much of it has already been implemented through governmental bills and laws and regulations. They have climate counselors on pretty well every government department now that are appointed there as advisors. They're not going to just give up an old, old plan because a few of their people were caught scamming and fudging all the figures. It's too important for that and so much money is involved, plus they've got a whole new system of taxes and a whole new stock market on carbon trading to benefit from too; they’re not going to just let this pass away. Don’t believe that suddenly you’re going to get them on their knees and admitting they were wrong and asking for forgiveness. That will not happen. It will not happen.

What they might do at this Copenhagen meeting is exactly like the con-trick with the gasoline charges. They’ll say we’re going to do this and tax you 40% on everything that you purchase but we’ve decided actually to do it starting off at 5 or 10%... on every item. It will be something like that they’ll come out with. Then we’ll all say thank God. Then they can go on and up it the next time they meet, with amendments. That’s how it works in the real world.

Even before the Club of Rome came up with the idea, when they were given the job of finding a way to unite the whole planet under a threat scenario, like a war-type scenario, with a common enemy, even before that, going back into the late 1800s, they were talking about catastrophes, man-made catastrophes and what happens if the ordinary folk breed out of hand, as they said. We find people who were propagandists for the big institutes - the Royal institutes in World War I - at the end of World War I saying, ‘we haven’t killed enough off.’ Meaning all the MILLIONS that got killed off in World War I, slaughtering each other, they said that ‘not enough have died and the folk haven’t given up their sovereignty so we’ve got to have another war.’ So they did have another war. At the end of that, they said we’ll need another one. Folk still weren’t giving up their sovereignty.

This is an agenda, an old, old agenda. How do you get folk to stop breeding and how do you get volunteers coming forward to be sterilized? You can do it starting off with mainly industrialized nations or deindustrialized but first-world nations, as they like to call us now. By teaching a religion in school and having youngsters offer themselves to be sterilized to ‘save the planet.’ We’ve already read articles on this show where youngsters have actually come forward and said just that because they’ve been teaching this religion, and it is a religion that they had to create, that’s what Gorbachev said, ‘we must tie it in with a religion based on a form of earth worship,’ but of course the scientists are the new priests that come out and try and convince us of its factuality as well. That’s what they’ve been doing basically.

They’ve already started years ago brainwashing the children. The money sector is already highly involved, have been for years. I noticed the Department of Energy for Britain or the UK is now called the Department of Energy AND Climate Change. So that tells you it’s a rather permanent thing. I think most other countries are pretty well the same. All this was done covertly, quietly when we were distracted with other crisis that they gave us to look at.   That’s how, again, they come forward. They always create so many crises and distract us into other things while they really move ahead behind the scenes and sometime openly but never mentioned by the media. The only reason the media is making a big deal out of it now is because it’s good news and they know themselves that the Copenhagen Treaty is pretty well signed. They signed the precursors to the treaty already, 6 months ago. I read about that last night. So it’s a done deal.

This article confirms some of the things that I put out years ago on the First Global Revolution; the book put out by the founders of the Club of Rome. It was printed in 1991 but in the book they mention that it was in the early 70s, I think 1972, that they came up with the idea, because they were given the TASK to find a reason to unite the world. They came up with the need to find a reason the public would believe to come together and sacrifice themselves, as in a time of war. This is what they said here, from the book:

The First Global Revolution, A Report by the Council of the Club of Rome (King, Schneider 1991):

"The need for enemies seems to be a common historical factor. (Alan: They’re talking about governments.) Some states have striven to overcome domestic failure and internal contradictions by blaming external enemies. The ploy of finding a scapegoat is as old as mankind itself - when things become too difficult at home, divert attention to adventure abroad. Bring the divided nation together to face an outside enemy, either a real one, or else one invented for the purpose." (p.71) (A: One INVENTED for the purpose. Remember, their task was to find a way TO unite humanity by looking at all these factors that brought humanity together generally under warfare scenarios and they said this…)

The common enemy of humanity is Man

"In searching for a common enemy against whom we can unite, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like, would fit the bill.(A: These are THEIR WORDS.) In their totality and their interactions these phenomena do constitute a common threat which must be confronted by everyone together. (A: Because they already had this as an idea behind the scenes.) But in designating these dangers as the enemy, we fall into the trap, which we have already warned readers about, namely mistaking symptoms for causes. All these dangers are caused by human intervention in natural processes, and it is only through changed attitudes and behaviour that they can be overcome. The real enemy then is humanity itself." (p.75)

That's only ONE part of ONE book of one MAJOR think tank that works for the United Nations that has the IPCC, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. These are the guys who came up with the idea for them. I'll be back with more after these messages.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I like that wailing guitar because that's how I sometimes feel, like wailing.

As I say, this whole build up has been massive. Incredible money went into creating, over the last 60 years, the idea that science should eventually take over where general politicians and parties and so on would leave off. They knew darned well that eventually they were blending the sovietized system, socialism, with capitalism. It's no surprise to many of us who have studied history to see the sovietization process was completely funded by the Western capitalists because they had to get an antithesis that brings out the synthesis which is a combination of the two of them. If you go into the speeches by Gorbachev at world meetings and I have some here I won't read tonight BUT he actually goes into that. He says, 'I won't debate whether capitalism merits more than socialism, we are beyond that; we're global citizens now.'

That was also what came out at the Reece Commission back in the 1950s; a Congressional inquiry into the big foundations and why they were funding what appeared to be communists and all the left wing movements. These foundations were owned by the biggest bankers and industrialists in the world and the capitalist world. They were told by the CEOs of some of the foundations, like Ford, that their job was to change the culture so much in the West, especially in America, that they could eventually blend seamlessly with that of the Soviet Union. Well, that's a fait accompli. It's been DONE.

The society in the West has been so degraded by Hollywood and all their own major medias, internal medias – the BBC did a darn good job in Britain – of destroying the culture, destroying the morality, destroying everything that BOUND a culture together. That's part of a war process; you must destroy all that was that kept folk together and made them stand up as one, which is a SURVIVAL instinct. It's a collective survival instinct. You bring in hedonism, exactly as Bertrand Russell said; they would create a form of hedonism and narcissist behavior. Narcissist behavior, then people are interested in themselves ALONE and they won't bind together. The different things that make communities stick together such as helping the elderly in their areas and feeding them too – before the created need for SOCIAL services to take over for that – kept folk together. Everyone knew everyone else and helped each other out.

I can remember in Britain too, it was hard enough at one point many years ago to get even the rent money together. That was a common thing. They didn't have credit systems for people who didn't own any property. You couldn't get a bank loan. Everything you bought - young married people bought - was secondhand and you paid that up on what they called 'tick.' Tick was, you paid so much per week by a guy who came to the door. There were no credit cards. Often neighbors would help other neighbors; it was very, very common in order to pay the rent that week. That was Britain before the credit cards were made available to everybody. They also looked after themselves. They didn't need all the governmental agencies to take care of their areas and their community. Everyone knew each other. It was a necessity.

The whole idea of attacking the culture meant that government agencies would come in and take over all those different functions that families and communities did for themselves. Then those services became AUTHORITIES. Then the federal agency would back it up by LAWS on everyone, giving them ULTIMATE AUTHORITY… which takes all authority and the right to do for yourself away from YOU and yours and your family and your neighborhood and all the rest of it. That's a cultural WAR. It's an attack on your culture. Well planned and written about back in the early 1900s. You even find that Stalin talked about it and before him Lenin as well. That's what they would do by the creation of services that would become authorities.

The Washington Times says…

EDITORIAL: Global-warming theology
THE WASHINGTON TIMES // Friday, December 4, 2009

(A: THEOLOGY… something I said a long time ago. It's amazing what comes out there eventually. When you think that everyone is ignoring what you're saying, they're not at all; they're taking notes for the future.)

Belief in global warming had long had a tinge of theology about it, a form of cultism that adherents and defenders elevated to a holy crusade.

Any who questioned the orthodoxy were branded as heretics. Robert F. Kennedy Jr. said that climate-change skepticism is "treason" and exhorted that "we need to start treating [skeptics] as traitors." (A: That's a fact. That's what he said.) In 2007, the Weather Channel's Heidi Cullen said that meteorologists who were skeptical of man-made global warming should be decertified. (A: See how tolerant these people are? …these liberals.) The e-mails from the University of East Anglia's Climate Research Unit reveal systematic attempts by high priests of this religion to silence scientists who disputed their rigged findings.

The purveyors of the global-warming theology certainly benefited. They enjoyed professional success, received millions of dollars in grants, had influence in policy circles, were invited to international conferences and found personal validation and fame. Never before had it been sexy to have "climate scientist" on your resume. (A: That's true, who would want to talk to a weather guy before? Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from the Washington Times about global warming theology. It says here…

Proper science unlocks secrets; it does not create them. The scientific method is a social enterprise and requires openness to function properly. Data must be freely available and methodologies subject to strict scrutiny in order to assess whether results can be verified, reproduced and subjected to reliability tests. There is no reason to trust any results based on hidden data and some very good reasons to distrust them. This is the gist of a prospective lawsuit against NASA (A: See all the biggies are involved in this big con.) by Christopher C. Horner of the Competitive Enterprise Institute, which calls on the space agency to produce the climate data it has been keeping under wraps. These data are not classified information and should be part of the public record. NASA's stonewalling is suspicious and could augur that another scandal is brewing.

Global warming was an academic Ponzi scheme. Its leading proponents were mini-Madoffs, peddling a vision of global catastrophe to gullible activists, bureaucrats and policymakers. The vision was so vast, the fear it inspired so pervasive, that it seized popular imagination, aided ably by hucksters like former Vice President Al Gore and his science-fiction feature film "An Inconvenient Truth." But like any Ponzi scheme, global warming only worked if everyone kept investing and no one looked at the books. Once the truth came out - of manipulated findings, phony data, rigged peer-review processes and intimidation of skeptics - the scheme began to collapse.

Yet even as the edifice comes down, the adherents of the orthodoxy say that there is nothing to see, that this is all a distraction from the business at hand, that there is still no time to lose…

It's true. Even Al Gore today came out and says, oh panic, panic, panic, we've got to get this Copenhagen Treaty signed and all the rest of it. But if you think that NASA is not involved… there is far more on NASA out there too, FAR MORE on NASA. NASA for instance, has this guy James Hansen at the top of it.

NASA's James Hansen, 28 Activists Arrested Protesting Mountaintop Mining by Stacy Morford - Jun 23rd, 2009 / in Environmentalists

(A: You think he's just a sort of innocent bystander who's just doing his job for NASA? No. This guy is a true believer in all this stuff and his job is to help promote the cause, the belief system. I'll put these links up on my site at the end of the show.)

NASA's chief climate scientist James Hansen put it all on the line today to call attention to the devastation of mountaintop mining, getting arrested along with actress Daryl Hannah, Rainforest Action Network Director Mike Brune and 26 other activists in a protest at West Virginia's Coal River Valley.

The group had led a rally at the Marsh Fork Elementary School, in the shadow of a coal silo, then marched 300 yards to a mountaintop mining site run by coal giant Massey Energy.

“I am not a politician; I am a scientist and a citizen,” Hansen said from the rally. “Politicians may have to advocate for halfway measures if they choose. But it is our responsibility to make sure our representatives feel the full force of citizens who speak for what is right, not what is politically expedient. Mountaintop removal, providing only a small fraction of our energy, should be abolished.” (A: Then he goes on and on and on.)

No wonder they’re fudging stuff and hiding stuff at NASA too. They’re all in on it, the big boys at the top. You’d be surprised. It’s not just about saving energy and saving the forest and saving… these guys want most of us OFF OF THE FACE OF THE PLANET. They’ve come out with data in figures of how much they want the world to be reduced by. Of course, they themselves won’t be reduced because they are the elite, they are the scientists, they’re better than you, they’ve got better breeding, better genes and the proof is in their academic qualifications, you see. But you should all go, at the bottom. All you guys, you poor saps out there that fund all this through your taxes, you are the ones that should go. Quite something.

Here’s another article here also from the Washington Times.

Researcher: NASA hiding climate data
Stephen Dinan / Thursday, December 3, 2009 / washingtontimes.com

The fight over global warming science is about to cross the Atlantic with a U.S. researcher poised to sue NASA (A: It’s about the same one I read before.), demanding release of the same kind of climate data that has landed a leading British center in hot water over charges it skewed its data.

Chris Horner, a senior fellow at the Competitive Enterprise Institute, said NASA has refused for two years to provide information under the Freedom of Information Act that would show how the agency has shaped its climate data and would explain why the agency has repeatedly had to correct its data going as far back as the 1930s.

"I assume that what is there is highly damaging," Mr. Horner said. "These guys are quite clearly bound and determined not to reveal their internal discussions about this." (A: See, all the data has been fudged. They had to change all facts to fit the theory. Really, to fit the belief system because there is much more riding on it than saving energy and sustainability.)

It’s about getting rid of people eventually down the line through more and more and more laws. That will also supposedly come out of the Copenhagen Treaty in one form or anther. Remember, that all the big boys, all the big boys that now OWN the entire world’s food supply are IN on all this kind of stuff. They’re all IN on it together. So you’d better think about that. When 5 giant international corporations pretty well own the entire world’s food supply and they’ve said over and over at the United Nations that food has always been used as a weapon in the past… and they could use it again. We saw them using food as a weapon on Iraq. They call it EMBARGOES. They don’t like calling it staving people to death, they call it embargoes. They’re doing the same thing with Iran now. You think they won’t do it on you to get their way? …to teach you the big lesson? Boy, those who don’t know or read their history tend to repeat it. Ain’t that for sure.

Let’s not forget that another part of this whole big puzzle and that’s the war on terror. I call it the war OF terror. Our lives have been changed completely since 2001. One of the big boys said that when it happened, right after it happened and the towers were hit. He said, ‘Life is never going to be the same again.’ What did he know that we didn’t know? For all the incredible bills and laws that were passed - across the planet at the same time with anti-terrorism bills and so on and the complete surveillance of everyone on the planet - this is much more than an overreaction. This never happened at Pearl Harbor. Supposedly, it's a small group of people hiding out in caves in Afghanistan. All this rubbish was trotted out to the general public because after all it doesn't matter what you swallow at the time, just as long as you allow them to get what they want to start rolling and getting on the go and that's what it was.

It was bringing in a whole new world system for this Century of Change. You must never, ever forget that. A PLANNED SOCIETY. The global warming is just a part of it, to bring in the planned society. The war on terror is another one. Why did every media across the planet - television media - go to the man and woman in the street IMMEDIATELY after the towers came down and say 'would you give up all your freedoms for security?' Every country went into the same act at the same time, on their media. Why was that? That was to get an idea through OUR heads, something that most of us have never even thought of before; most folk hadn't even thought about it. Why should you even think about that? Why would you give up all your freedoms for security when – you see – your freedoms ARE your security. It's your freedoms that protect you from your governments. They've pretty well taken all our rights away from us.

Everyone is being spied on. They gave us the computer long ago and Brzezinski said it before we were GIVEN the computer, when he said 'a new FORM of communication will be shortly given to the general public to bring in a common culture across the world and also enable security data to be collected on everyone.' That was in one of his books back in the early 70s. What's happened since then? Here we are, all using the darn thing and folk are putting everything up and sending emails about personal things to everyone else and it's all being collected. They know that now and guess what, they don't care.

This article is from Wired.com.

Yahoo, Verizon: Our Spy Capabilities Would 'Shock', 'Confuse' Consumers
By Kim Zetter December 1, 2009 | wired.com

Want to know how much phone companies and internet service providers charge to funnel your private communications or records to U.S. law enforcement and spy agencies? (A: This goes for every other country as well. We were all told recently too, oh they are so reluctant to have to turn over all your data to the agencies when asked. Well, they never mentioned that they were getting PAID big bucks for it, but this article here talks about that.)

That's the question muckraker and Indiana University graduate student Christopher Soghoian asked all agencies within the Department of Justice, under a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request filed a few months ago. But before the agencies could provide the data, Verizon and Yahoo intervened and filed an objection on grounds that, among other things, they would be ridiculed and publicly shamed were their surveillance price sheets made public.

Yahoo writes in its 12-page objection letter (A: A link to that letter is actually here too.) (.pdf), that if its pricing information were disclosed to Soghoian, he would use it "to 'shame' Yahoo! and other companies — and to 'shock' their customers."

"Therefore, release of Yahoo!'s information is reasonably likely to lead to impairment of its reputation for protection of user privacy and security, which is a competitive disadvantage for technology companies," the company writes.

Verizon took a different stance. It objected to the release (A: Another link here that gives you Verizon's objection.) (.pdf) of its Law Enforcement Legal Compliance Guide because it might "confuse" customers and lead them to think that records and surveillance capabilities available only to law enforcement would be available to them as well — resulting in a flood of customer calls to the company asking for trap and trace orders.

"Customers may see a listing of records, information or assistance that is available only to law enforcement," Verizon writes in its letter, "but call in to Verizon and seek those same services. Such calls would stretch limited resources, especially those that are reserved only for law enforcement emergencies."

Other customers, upon seeing the types of surveillance law enforcement can do, might "become unnecessarily afraid that their lines have been tapped or call Verizon to ask if their lines are tapped (a question we cannot answer)." (A:

Meaning them, the callers.)

Verizon does disclose a little tidbit in its letter, saying that the company receives “tens of thousands” of requests annually for customer records and information from law enforcement agencies. (A: And they’re getting paid for every darned one of them.)

Soghoian filed his records request to discover how much law enforcement agencies — and thus U.S. taxpayers — are paying for spy documents and surveillance services with the aim of trying to deduce from this how often such requests are being made. Soghoian explained his theory on his blog, Slight Paranoia:

In the summer of 2009, I decided to try and follow the money trail in order to determine how often Internet firms were disclosing their customers’ private information to the government. I theorized that if I could obtain the price lists of each ISP, detailing the price for each kind of service, and invoices paid by the various parts of the Federal government, then I might be able to reverse engineer some approximate statistics. In order to obtain these documents, I filed Freedom of Information Act requests with every part of the Department of Justice that I could think of.

The first DoJ agency to respond to his request was the U.S. Marshals Service (USMS), which indicated that it had price lists available for Cox Communications, Comcast, Yahoo and Verizon. But because the companies voluntarily provided the price lists to the government, the FOIA allows the companies an opportunity to object to the disclosure of their data under various exemptions. Comcast and Cox were fine with the disclosure, Soghoian reported.

He found that Cox Communications charges $2,500 to fulfill a pen register/trap-and-trace order for 60 days, and $2,000 for each additional 60-day-interval. It charges $3,500 for the first 30 days of a wiretap (A: This is for ONE wiretap, right.), and $2,500 for each additional 30 days. Thirty days worth of a customer’s call detail records costs $40.

Comcast’s pricing list, which was already leaked to the internet in 2007, indicated that it charges at least $1,000 for the first month of a wiretap, and $750 per month thereafter.

But Verizon and Yahoo took offense at the request.

Yahoo objected on grounds that its pricing constituted “confidential commercial information” and cited Exemption 4 of the Freedom of Information Act and the Trade Secrets Act.

Exemption 4 of the FOIA refers to the disclosure of commercial or financial information that could result in a competitive disadvantage to the company if it were publicly disclosed.

That’s what they are using, if other companies know what we are charging, it’s a competitive disadvantage. This is the excuse they are giving rather then tell the public. Not only are they taking all your info and selling it to all these agencies, they’re wiretapping you when required by these agencies as well… and getting paid big bucks for doing do. This is the real world we live in. This is the new freedom? … the NEW freedom that Mr. Bush talked about. And no one asked him in the media, please DEFINE the new freedom, because he was giving you a LEGALITY. The new freedom, it was like the New Deal. The New Deal was a whole new way, away from the Constitution of the United States. It goes in our ears and out the other.

This article is from the Los Angeles Times, how things are racing ahead too. It’s about microchip wristbands.

Microchip wristband becomes a theme park essential
At Precision Dynamics, what started out as simple hospital ID product has become a high-tech admission pass, a cashless debit card, a hotel room key and a way to reunite lost children with parents.
May 02, 2009 | Hugo Martin / Los Angeles Times

In a nondescript manufacturing plant on a quiet San Fernando cul-de-sac, a khaki-green machine the size of a buffet table sucks in bright pink ribbon and spits out one of the hottest features in theme parks.

Here, Precision Dynamics Corp., a company that began making plastic hospital wristbands out of a Burbank garage more than 50 years ago, has become the nation's top producer of a new microchip-enhanced wristband for amusement parks, concerts, resorts and gyms. (A: I'll read where it goes on from there because you know where it's going don't you, after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article about wireless wristbands and how they're getting used at all these amusement theme parks.

Company leaders envision a future when they can expand the technology for use in border security and hospital identification, among other purposes. (A: I should really add to this too that I read an article a while back there where they used one of these type of wristbands with the microchip built in, on patients who had the flu shot. About 2 years ago in one of the US states there was a trial to see how it would go in a pandemic scenario, but this could be used for anything couldn't it? One day you'll have to have one of these chips either IN you or ON you before you can get into a grocery store. Alarms will go off and guards will come up and grab you, 'you haven't had all your shots, have you?' and they'll lock you up.)

Yesterday I mentioned about the Smart Meters. They're putting them in across Canada already. I got one put in about a week or so ago… not by choice, they just come and do it; we have a lot of choices in democratic countries like Canada. This is from The Mail Online to do with the Smart Meters in Britain. They go further in telling you what they're really for. I got the propaganda piece in Canada saying 'it will help YOU watch how much energy you're using.' Here's the real reason here.

£500 'smart' powers meters for all which could let energy firms cap use in homes
By Sean Poulter / 30th November 2009 / The Mail Online

'Smart meters' for gas and electricity are set to be approved for installation across the country in a huge project that could cost homes and businesses more than £500 each. (A: That will be on top of the £40,000 each family is to pay now for bailing out the banks that was just reported in the papers today.)

The meters are being presented as the key to doing away with estimated bills and encouraging families to cut down on their energy use by showing them how much they are using.

The huge scheme is to be unveiled by Climate Change Secretary, Ed Miliband, (A: Can you believe that you have actually got a Climate Change Secretary? A belief system! You've got a PRIEST on the government eh?) as part of a package of measures to cut the nation's carbon footprint (A: HA!) ahead of the climate change summit in Copenhagen. (A: See, they don't bother waiting.)

However, the cost of installation has been estimated by the Government at £9billion, while some analysts suggest the figure will be as high as £13.4billion.

Consumer groups fear that the major part of this bill will be passed on to housholders and could add up to £515 per family over a ten-year period.

The smart meters, to be installed by 2020 (A: That's how long it's going to take them over there.), will allow power giants to read meters remotely, most likely via a link to the mobile phone network. (A: Well it's two methods according to the pamphlet that they left me. One is broadband across your electric wires and one is FM.)

It will also allow companies to charge more during peak times. The meters could also be used to ration supplies across the network or cap electricity use in a particular household to a certain threshold.(A: They can turn you OFF.)

What's going to come in is you're going to prepay according to your means, as Lenin would say. Everyone gets paid according to their means; meaning what level of society, how essential to society are you. That's really what it means. That's what the 'means test' means. Eventually, you'll pay in advance and if you go over that they'll simply cut you off remotely. As people get poorer and poorer, you can't use more and more electricity; at least you'll know how much you're using. That's awfully good of them, awfully nice of them isn't it? They've already put them across most of Canada and now they are doing it in Britain and elsewhere across the planet.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Connecting the Dots on Global Warming
("The First Global Revolution" by the Council of the Club of Rome / Time magazine cover, April 1977 "How to Survive the Coming Ice Age" (sott.net).

Global Warming Theology-Washington Times
("EDITORIAL: Global-warming theology" (washingtontimes.com) - Dec. 4, 2009.)

Hansen of NASA Arrested along with Other "Warming" Hysterics
("NASA's James Hansen, 28 Activists Arrested Protesting Mountaintop Mining" by Stacy Morford - June 23, 2009.)

NASA also Hiding Data on "Climate Change"
("Researcher: NASA hiding climate data" by Stephen Dinan (washingtontimes.com) - Dec. 3, 2009.)

Wired-Communication Service Providers and Cost of Surveillance
("Yahoo, Verizon: Our Spy Capabilities Would 'Shock', 'Confuse' Consumers" by Kim Zetter (wired.com) - Dec. 1, 2009.)

"8 Million Reasons for Real Surveillance Oversight" by Christopher Soghoian (paranoia.dubfire.net) - Dec. 1, 2009.

Wristband Electronic ID
("Microchip wristband becomes a theme park essential" by Hugo Martin (latimes.com) - May 2, 2009.)

Smart Meters
("£500 'smart' powers meters for all which could let energy firms cap use in homes" by Sean Poulter (dailymail.co.uk) - Nov. 30, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS   "Cutting Through"   Volumes 1, 2, 3   &   "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000)   &   Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs   "Reality Check Part 1"   &   "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 7, 2009 (#466)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 7, 2009:
Copenhagen Meeting -- Lust for Power Never Goes Sour:
"Rich Fat Eco-Cats, Arrive in Copenhagen,
Courtesy of Taxpayer, Funding All Forsaken,
Between Partying and Feasting, They'll Sign a Resolution
To Tax Us into the Grave, Fighting 'CO2 Pollution,'
Champions of Sustainability Came by Way of Private Jet,
Stepping into Stretched Limos, Eco-Green Agenda Set,
They'll Snooze Through the Speeches, Party Every Night,
Snort and Blow with Prostitutes, in Denmark that's All Right,
With Grave Faces on TV, They'll Hype Up Alarm,
Like the Pigs and Human Master, at End of Animal Farm,
Big Business and Socialists, the Commie-Capi Team,
Call it Public-Private Partnership, Collectivist's Wet Dream"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 7, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 7, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 7th 2009. Newcomers, look into .com web site, scroll down the front page and bookmark all the other sites I have up for future use because sometimes the big sites go down and if you bookmark these other sites you can always download the latest shows. I've had fake sites out there before in my name, put out by other people of course, but the only official sites I have anything to do with are [listed above]. For people who don't use the computer and get the disks just burned and passed to them, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. I always remind the audience that you bring me to you. I'm not part of a big foundation. I have no NGOs backing me up or anything like that. I'm neither right nor left or anything else and I'm not pushing other people's products. The ads that you hear on the show pay RBN radio station for their air time, staff, equipment, buildings and so on. There are expensive bills too for this kind of work. So it's up to you to keep me going. You can either buy the few things I have had time to put up on the web site in my name – the books, CDs and DVDs – or you can donate to me. [Options listed above.] Sending cash cuts out the fees that they charge the people on the other end (and this end) to make the wire order.

Times are really bad as everyone knows. It's getting worse. If nothing else, all I can say is over the years I've changed the face of Patriot radio from being a naval gazing - looking at just the US and Canada - and show you this world system: the big players, how it was all coming together, the spider's web, naming the foundations, the people involved, the players, and how really, this plan for a global government has been going on for an awful long time. It's games within games… games within games; games on top of games, always, by other players. We are witnessing and living through the culmination of over 100 years of planning and work that the big boys have put into bringing about global governance. Back with more after this break.

HI folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just prefacing tonight's talk with reminding people how OLD this agenda is and how it's used different faces over the last 100-odd years.

We went through the phase with the socialist or communist versus capitalist stuff that went on for years and years. We've had wars over it and all the rest of it. Many countries were put into civil war across the world over. When you go into the prelude to it all to see how the big players were already setting up, at least the formula, for a global governance system, with the intent of bringing it in through generated conflict. This was written about before the League of Nations was actually set up. It was written about by some of the players who set it up. It was very rich people who did set it up. In fact, it was mainly international bankers belonging to the Milner Group in London, England that merged with the Rhodes Foundation and the Rothschild Foundation and became the Royal Institute for International Affairs. Global governance was already the idea to set up the League of Nations, which eventually got more power as it went along and became the United Nations, always with the same intent that nothing could be done FAST to bring a global system under their wings, it would have to be done INCREMENTALLY, piece by piece. If you look at even how the communist movement was set up, it took them many years, a generation really, to gradually indoctrinate until eventually they could get certain things taught in school to generate the mentality of a group that would grow up, for a particular generation, and then become communistic or socialistic themselves. These guys have all the time in the world. They know that's how you do it, through GENERATIONAL training and incrementalism.

They also knew that to bring in world government and they always had the idea of vastly reducing the population of the world when they set up the League of Nations. Some of the founders talked about that necessity and they talked about the means to do it, warfare, plagues would be very handy; at that time they were into bacteriology and bacterial warfare at the beginning of the 20th century, big time. They looked at all the different ways to bring down the population. Various eugenics programs went out across the world.

We always hear about what Nazi Germany brought in with its racial hygiene policy and the sterilization and then euthanasia of the so-called 'idiot class'; the ones who were mentally subnormal, as they were called. That was already being done in the United States via the Rockefeller Foundation and their big movement towards a form of eugenical purity. Survival of the fittest should belong to those families who had the higher IQs, who had acquired more wealth and power and held on to it; meaning their offspring didn't go astray. They were so well interbred and chosen – their partners were chosen for them for intellect and power, all coming from families of power and influence – that they had the right to basically rule the world in a sense. They went through a eugenics policy that only ended really in the 1970s in the United States in some of the US states, mandatory sterilization of the unfit.

Well all that's coming back now because these guys never go away. They will calm something down when it gets bad press but they never go away. It's just like this Copenhagen Treaty. I said myself, if God himself came down and spoke to all the people and said here's the proof this is all a con and here's the real agenda, they'd have to go ahead anyway because that IS the agenda. Nothing will stop them from this agenda, nothing at all. It's been in the works for so long. It was decided to amalgamate the world after this Cold War, that was pretty well phony on many, many levels, real on others but mainly phony. There was another big player OVER the two sides that seemed to be in conflict. The big player was INCREDIBLY RICH, incredibly rich.

The world now has amalgamated since the Cold War. Remember too, it came out in the Reece Commission, it can't be over looked that commission in the United States. The congress set up the Reece Commission to look into the great foundations, these incredibly wealthy foundations, tax exempt too, that were owned by big magnates of the business world and the banking world. They wondered why these capitalist were financing all the far-left movements, including what seemed to be communistic movements. Senator Norman Dodd spoke to the CEOs of these foundations and they told him quite frankly that their job was to gradually – again that word gradually, throughout generations – SO much alter the culture in the United States and the Western world that it would blend seamlessly with that of the Soviet system. Hence the wall comes down. We find that all the Western countries are already socialized. We've been completely socialized.

THAT is what they are referring to when they talk about democracy; it's a socialist system, a completely socialist system. Socialism sounds wonderful to very naïve people who still think in utopic terms. Socialism really, and it's just like most of these big charters that they put out there, can sound like wonderful ideas IF any of it was true and IF they intended to follow through on it, but of course it's all done by deception. They don't mean what they say. They say it to get you all sucked into it.

We have different classes on this planet. The class that always emerges at the top of all nations is the most RUTHLESS class of all. The degenerative types that have inbred get to the top because they're VICIOUS and they're PSYCHOPATHIC. They wouldn't care if it was global warming or global cooling. They would learn their lines and look convincing at all the world summits and deny everybody else on the opposite side of the fence as flat-earthers and so on, and call them bad names; just like Mr. Brown is doing now from Britain. It's nothing to do with what they believe. They don't BELIEVE in these things themselves, at the VERY top. They just USE it to get a system in which is going to benefit them personally and their families. In other words, you have an INTERNATIONAL class. You've always had an international class. Always.

If you look at the Royalties of all countries, what are they? They're international. Very few of them, in fact most of them have never bred in to the people that they lord over. They always marry a King and a Queen from another country. They used to give away countries in dowries along with it too. We're almost at that stage again. The trick is that the people who get to the top are never pleasant people. They're vicious, vicious people. They're so highly motivated because they're abnormal. Normal folk don't want power over other people. These people LIVE to acquire power. You'll find them at the top of the NGOs, the fanatical NGO groups. You have to be a nut case to claw your way up there because everyone else in that line is fanatical too. You have to be vicious. So they get to the top, they're given their lines and this is the new… it's like the Communist Manifesto; it's the Greening Manifesto; it's the world manifesto. They learn them and they're almost at the stage of putting to death anybody who denies it.

In other words, these people, regardless of a system IN time… if it was back to the communist era it would be those at the top of the communist list. If it was the time of the Nobility running Europe, they'd be at the top of the Nobility list, running feudalism. These are the type that get up there. They have more energy than normal people have because they're almost possessed, you might say, with the idea of more and more power, something we can't imagine.

When you look at some of the big players, some of the biggest players that brought in this whole global, environmental, eugenical, depopulation agenda like Maurice Strong, and you look at the HOURS they still put in today, at their age, and the meetings they attend, the average person can not do that. There is an ABNORMAL drive there. You'll find that with great dictators and stuff like that, same kind of thing, abnormal… but psychopathic none the less, utterly ruthless. ANY means of deception to get what they want is used. They have no qualms being psychopathic, no qualms whatsoever about lying to get what they want done. Even if that means taking over whole nations, taking a world over and lying to them, THEY WILL LIE.

George Orwell warned us about this group in his book 1984. He talked about the higher bureaucratic class who would parrot everything that they were told to parrot PERFECTLY and be absolutely convincing to each other as they parroted the party line. Even when they had in-house lectures talking about the wonderful life it would be when they could breed out the ability TO SPEAK, that's an example that Orwell used in an exaggerated form. One of them turns around and says 'I see brother, when we can't communicate there will be no thought crime.' That's how they were, 'I see brother, right on.' That's the kind that you'll find at these meetings, these PARTY members. They ARE a world party and they areparty members, FANATICS too, WELL paid, mind you.

I used to look at all the different Russian defectors that came across from the KGB to Europe or the US. I don't think one of them ever left because of financial hardship. They lived a lifestyle – this was in the British newspapers at the time in the late 70s – the lifestyle had all of the luxuries and the amenities given to their equivalent characters in the so-called capitalist countries. It was just the peasants who didn't have access to all this stuff. Just like this global bunch, it's the very, very same. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just showing people that things don't really change in a sense. It's just that the same TYPE of people are born in every generation. If they are born into positions of power or families of power, they will climb the ladder quicker. Those at the bottom, the bottom psychopaths, have to gradually wheedle their way in, charm everybody – they have the ability to CHARM, although they mean nothing – and claw their way up from the very, very bottom or jump on the latest cause and be a good yes-man or yes-woman. It doesn't matter what system it is, they will join it immediately. They smell which way the wind is going. They smell where the money is getting put and they smell the agenda. They're like wolves; in they go, join the pack.

This Copenhagen Treaty is much more serious than people think. It is to do with global governance and they have a clause IN the treaty that actually has the word government in it, GLOBAL GOVERNMENT IN IT. That was broken by Lord Monckton. I've got the article here and the actual notes it came from. Even that was meant to be snuck through without people noticing because they didn't call it the Copenhagen Agreement; it was NOTES by the top character at the United Nations. NOTES, his notes, it was called; 180 pages of 'notes' all to do with this one meeting. It was basically explaining the draft.

As I'm sure everybody knows, the mainstream media have carried on as though the scandal concerning all the fudged figures by the main characters involved to do with all this phony data is completely ignored by the media. That's what they are doing. I said this would happen. They have to do it because they've been at this and building up for this thing since Maurice Strong set up the first council to do with the environment at the United Nations in 1972. Out of that came the United Nations department for environmental things. Then he led up the 1992 Earth Charter that gave supposedly rights to everything except humans across the planet but also gave obligations to governments to fulfill certain UN mandates. He also was involved with the last Copenhagen Agreement and this one too of course. He's at every major meeting; big, big player. This guy was picked up – I don't even think he went to college – he was picked up when he was a teenager by Rockefeller and groomed for his position because he had all the right psychopathic qualities and energy that goes with it.

Here is a typical example of how the mainstream is just ignoring the scandal that hasn't even died down yet.

Climate Talks Open With Calls for Urgent Action
December 8, 2009 / By TOM ZELLER Jr. / NYTimes.com

(Alan: Then they go through the propaganda. It's just propaganda.)
COPENHAGEN — A much-anticipated global meeting of nearly 200 nations — all seeking what has so far been elusive common ground on the issue of climate change (A: I love how they changed the terms. It came from global warming to climate change and now it's to do with CO2.) — began here on Monday with an impassioned airing of what leaders here called the political and moral imperatives at hand. (A: So once again, if they don't save us all, we're doomed. That's how they are starting the whole thing off. This is actually called in official circles 'the cult of climate salvationism.' They're using a religious cause really, the high gurus and these guys at the top are the ones who are going to save us from these catastrophes which only THEY can see coming and no one else can see. So they're a new priesthood and they promise us salvation from catastrophes to do with climate and bad old man at the bottom of it all.)

"The clock has ticked down to zero," (A: They used to use the clock too during the atomic warfare possibility scam and that's what it was, the Cold War, a scam. No one was going to nuke anybody but they didn't tell the public that. It makes the public easier to control by their own governments and it allows government to expand its powers and authorities and increase more funding to black-ops for other purposes, like putting satellites up there that will control the public in 20 years time… stuff like that. They used the clock then, 'oh, 2 minutes to zero, we're almost there and it's going to be nuke time.' It's the same thing here.) said the United Nations' climate chief, Yvo de Boer. "After two years of negotiation, the time has come to deliver."

It's amazing. I used to get pictures in my mind; I often get pictures in my mind about everything. People talk in words, I get pictures. Whenever they want something done it's just astonishing it's always money that's going to fix it. I had pictures of big aircraft flying across the sky dumping your dollars into the atmosphere, as that was going to be the cure apparently, to cure all these awful ills, a kind of sacrifice, a new priesthood that uses dollar bills rather than just bodies, but they'll use bodies when required. So just put them across and it's all going to be cleared… just like that. It's amazing; I've watched so many crises through my life that that's always the answer to it, money. We need more money for this.

These fat cats at the top in big business, of course they're all part of it, have already set themselves up to take all this money. They get free carbon credits in international corporations. They've been TRADING them in Europe for the last 4 years and making PROFITS off them. Profits off carbon credits, millions of dollars worth, or YOUR dollars worth, that were given to them by the European Union… for FREE. They're making millions off it already. Guess who's going to paying the carbon credits with your dollars and getting nothing back? Yeah, all of YOU out there. It's always the same story isn't it? Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just giving you a little bit of background on this. There is nothing spontaneous about these meetings. The first one to do with USING the climate as a reason to bring the world together and dominate it by a particular ruling elite was back in 1972. I think it was about the same year that the Club of Rome came out with their idea of using global warming as the REASON that they would use to bring the world under control through treaties, negotiations and grant money and all the rest of it. This eventually led, step by step, through different world meetings, all run by Maurice Strong up to the present one in Copenhagen.

This particular article is more on the nose with what happens there and it's from The Telegraph. "Copenhagen climate summit: 1,200 limos, 140 private planes and caviar wedges." I think the last meeting they had there… I read the menu that they had; I think it had 14 courses there. 14 courses… can you imagine the methane they belched out at the end of that? Copenhagen too, they talked recently and I read an article about a week or so ago from a newspaper. In Copenhagen, the prostitutes are just dying for this because they said at the last meeting they had where all these bigwigs and very respectable people, who always go under the guise of 'respectability,' had been the biggest boon they'd ever had. The biggest boon they'd had for about 150 years, so they're looking forward to this one.

What I should mention too is, I think when they had the big G20 meeting quite some years back in British Columbia in Canada, that was the first one where the RCMP was let loose on students who were about half a mile away from the road where the dignitaries were to pass. It turned out, about 2 or 3 weeks after the event that the Canadian government had paid, PAID for male prostitutes for a lot of the foreign dignitaries. They said this was protocol. You see, we have no idea of the deviant class that rules us. We have no idea at all, but then if you read history it shouldn't shock you. Look at the history of every country in the world and who ends up dominating and ruling. You've got a degenerate class, the psychopathic types. We pay; WE PAY FOR THEIR WHORES, be it male or female. I often wonder, with the diplomatic immunity and all the rest of it, do they also hire CHILDREN? Do they get them in from orphanages or something? I wouldn't put it past them… if it's protocol… for visiting foreign dignitaries.

Copenhagen is looking forward to it there. I guess that country will be paying for a lot of it out of their tax funding for a change. I'm not kidding you; we have no idea of these characters. People have no idea of the characters that rule them. It isn't just a deviancy in one way or another. It's their WHOLE life. They are utter psychopaths at the top. Psychopaths live for thrills and POWER over others. They are sadomasochistic by nature. They admire those with more power than themselves and despise those with lesser. Average folk will never catch on because we can't imagine that. It's like trying to get into the mind of a mass murderer or a serial rapist, you can't get in there. It's too alien to you. That's why in every age the same type gets to the top. If anyone should be psychoanalyzed and checked for personality traits, it should be all the characters that end up with power over us. I really mean that. Or there is no chance at all.

This article…
Copenhagen climate summit:
1,200 limos, 140 private planes and caviar wedges
Copenhagen is preparing for the climate change summit that will produce as much carbon dioxide as a town the size of Middlesbrough. (A: In England.)
By Andrew Gilligan / 5 Dec 2009

On a normal day, Majken Friss Jorgensen, managing director of Copenhagen's biggest limousine company, says her firm has twelve vehicles on the road. During the "summit to save the world" (A: That's how they're touting it, by the way.), which opens here tomorrow, she will have 200.

"We thought they were not going to have many cars, due to it being a climate convention," she says. "But it seems that somebody last week looked at the weather report."

Ms Jorgensen reckons that between her and her rivals the total number of limos in Copenhagen next week has already broken the 1,200 barrier. The French alone rang up on Thursday and ordered another 42. (A: Well, the French would because there's going to be a lot, a lot of parroting going on over there, at the taxpayers' expense.) "We haven't got enough limos in the country to fulfill the demand," she says. "We're having to drive them in hundreds of miles from Germany and Sweden."

And the total number of electric cars or hybrids among that number? "Five,"(A: Out of 1200!) says Ms Jorgensen. "The government has some alternative fuel cars but the rest will be petrol or diesel. We don't have any hybrids in Denmark, unfortunately, due to the extreme taxes on those cars. It makes no sense at all, but it's very Danish."

The airport says it is expecting up to 140 extra private jets during the peak period alone (A: Private jets, that's not just all the other ones laid on.), so far over its capacity that the planes will have to fly off to regional airports – or to Sweden – to park, returning to Copenhagen to pick up their VIP passengers.

As well 15,000 delegates and officials (A: 15,000… do you understand all the big NGO boys, they call it the 'green army,' by the way. This 'green army' was first mentioned by Bill Cooper when he read an article to do with the producer for Star Trek, Roddenberry, he had a seat on the board of NASA at the time. He got his ideas, political ideas to put into the various series on television of Star Trek FROM NASA because it's a POLITICAL movement too. You've got to understand, everything is politics with the movements and directions. He said back in the early 90s, Mr. Roddenberry, that we'll unleash what they called the first earth army. They meant the COMBINED power of all their purposely funded and created non-governmental organizations; the TRUE, HARD CORE of the greening, communist agenda. 'The useful idiots', as the ones at the top would call them. You've got to have TRUE BELIEVERS you see and these guys are true believers, the NGO followers. Not the heads of the NGOs, they get well paid for what they're doing by the foundations.), 5,000 journalists and 98 world leaders, the Danish capital will be blessed by the presence of Leonardo DiCaprio, Daryl Hannah (A: All the Hollywood people.), Helena Christensen, Archbishop Desmond Tutu and Prince Charles. A Republican US senator, Jim Inhofe, is jetting in at the head of an anti-climate-change "Truth Squad." The top hotels – all fully booked at £650 a night – are readying their Climate Convention menus of (no doubt sustainable) scallops, foie gras and sculpted caviar wedges.

At the takeaway pizza end of the spectrum, Copenhagen's clean pavements are starting to fill with slightly less well-scrubbed protesters from all over Europe. In the city's famous anarchist commune of Christiania this morning, among the hash dealers and heavily-graffitied walls, they started their two-week "Climate Bottom Meeting," complete with a "storytelling yurt" and a "funeral of the day" for various corrupt, "heatist" concepts such as "economic growth".

The Danish government is cunningly spending a million kroner (£120,000) to give the protesters KlimaForum, a "parallel conference" in the magnificent DGI-byen sports centre. The hope, officials admit, is that they will work off their youthful energies on the climbing wall, state-of-the-art swimming pools and bowling alley, (A: It's just amazing though isn't it, how they even cater for the protesters and even how they label it there too, 'their youthful energy'. So anybody that's protesting, 'ah, that's just youthful energy; they've got to protest something.' Isn't it?) Just in case, however, Denmark has taken delivery of its first-ever water-cannon – one of the newspapers is running a competition to suggest names for it – plus sweeping new police powers. The authorities have been proudly showing us their new temporary prison, 360 cages in a disused brewery, housing 4,000 detainees. (A: They had the same ones at the different meetings, the G20 and so on; these fold-up, temporary cages to put the people in. See, we ARE global… we are global.)

And this being Scandinavia, even the prostitutes are doing their bit for the planet. Outraged by a council postcard urging delegates to "be sustainable, don't buy sex," (A: Well fat chance of that with these guys.) the local sex workers' union – they have unions here – has announced that all its 1,400 members will give free intercourse to anyone with a climate conference delegate's pass. (A: They'll be getting funding from the convention. The prostitutes get funding from the convention VIA the government. That's what Canada did too. Amazing isn't it?) The term "carbon dating" just took on an entirely new meaning.

At least the sex will be C02-neutral. According to the organisers, the eleven-day conference, including the participants' travel, will create a total of 41,000 tonnes of "carbon dioxide equivalent", equal to the amount produced over the same period by a city the size of Middlesbrough. [Population: 396,244.]

This is the real world. It's just a farce of course but it will go down in history as something of very much importance and it definitely will be important to what happens to us at the bottom because you see, it doesn't matter what they tell us, after this event, every leader of the world is already going to pledge at this thing, in writing, and sign us down as collateral to pay off the carbon debt problem and they want us to get PERSONAL carbon taxes to boot. So along with your regular income tax, you'll get carbon taxes. When we go cashless in only a few years now – I've got articles here from the newspapers – the banks, the big banks now are talking about the YEAR for putting in the cashless society. They will know everything you're buying and they'll send you a BILL for every tin of beans or whatever you've bought for the carbon that it took to make those beans, and grow those beans, and tin those beans, and transport those beans… to little ole you at the bottom. So these fat cats that go to these international meetings can go out with their prostitutes and wine and dine all on your expense and have a great old time as they always do, always do.

It's amazing even in Canada; whenever a new house gets in they have a big sort of party bash. It's a standard thing that they have. They always have it in the newspapers how they WRECK the Parliament; they wreck everything and there's vomit all over the place and booze balls and ya-da, ya-da… probably needles now too, I'd imagine… and it's accepted as just a way of life. You understand that THE PSYCHOPATHS GET UP THERE. This is how they ARE. This is how they REALLY are. They love to have these big bashes. It's no different than when the Kings and Queens and all the upper Royalty and the cousins and family, hundreds of them, would get together in the castles for the big parties. No different at all. They'd have sex in front of everybody else. They'd piddle in the corners or down the little chutes they built in the castle walls. That's why they MOVE 4 times a year for the seasons; the stink gets so high. I'm not kidding; this is IN the history books. Debauchery was just the NORM with them. It's the people below that give a different culture to, and tell you all the rules to follow, to give a manageable culture. If we were all like them there would be chaos. That's what leaders have always known for thousands of years. It works though. It works.

These are the faces at Copenhagen that you will see in all the 'respectable' magazines. You'll see them on all the 'respectable' news channels, talking with 'authority', authority. As I say, the same characters, if it was to change to the ice age tomorrow, they'd be prattling on with the same confidence about the coming ice age, believe you me, because you know a lot of them who are there did that back in the 1970s; that's what they were preaching then… with GREAT AUTHORITY and CONVICTION. Yep. Climate Salvationism, that's what they're all about. The high priests, all they need is not a tithe from you, you see, a voluntary tithe. No. They get it all passed through governmental laws, to pillage you and loot you so as they can live the high life and get more authority given to them.

There's nothing greater to a psychopath than to acquire more and more OFFICIAL AUTHORITY through laws and regulations. It makes them feel more secure… MORE SECURE. Psychopaths can not stand insecurity. They can not stand frustration. That's one of their big weaknesses. That's why they repeat the same things over and over again, the same behaviors over and over and over again. Psychopaths must have it NOW and when they let go and let off steam, there is no inhibition of any kind whatsoever because they have no guilt. Again, we can't get into that headspace; it's too FOREIGN to us, but that's why they get away with it. Of course the next week they're back on television or in the magazines with their $5,000 suits looking very clean and respectable and THAT'S what we're taught to see. God help us all… God help us all.

There's an article here. It was from 1998 in the Financial Post, Canada.

Global Warming: The Real Agenda
Editorial by Terrence Corcoran / Financial Post (Canada) / December 26, 1998

What is the most important problem facing Canada? When the annual Maclean's/CBC year-end poll asked that question, there was at least one clear answer: Not the environment; in fact, anything but the environment. Ranked by percentage of people who identified one subject or another, the top worry among Canadians is unemployment (15%), followed by government spending, (A: This was before 9/11 and all the security farces and all that stuff.) the economy, health care, national unity, taxes, poverty, education and crime. At the bottom of the list, garnering only 2% support, is the environment. (A: You see what they've done in a few years? …by REPETITION, mantras and repetition.)

The possibility that 98% of Canadians are not in a state of high anxiety over global warming, freaky weather, ozone depletion, pollution and scores of other Green scares must be a teeth-gritting irritation to environmentalists. They have, after all, spent decades(A: Now, this was in 1998. They had already spent decades.) fertilizing the idea that we are on the brink of environmental disaster. (A: …at any time, you see. It's still going on… 'any time'.) Ottawa and the provinces have spent billions on the campaign, which includes turning the weather into a propaganda tool and the school system into an indoctrination camp that begins in kindergarten.

The poll is a testament to the good sense of Canadians. Despite relentless scare-mongering by bureaucrats and activists, Canadians remain unwaveringly fixed on a national economic agenda of growth and prosperity rather than on fantastic claims of apocalypse. When David Suzuki (A: Who is a geneticist, by the way. He wants to reduce the population. He calls us all maggots.) says global warming 'is the most urgent slow-motion catastrophe facing humankind,' nobody is paying much attention. (A: Oh… tiddles… Mr. Suzuki. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, reading an article from a Canadian paper from 1998. It goes on about a politician who was appointed as Minister of the Environment. What they do is they can put them in as Minister of the Environment one week and then move them into the Minister of Health or Education the next week. They're always EXPERTS, but really, they're run by the high-level bureaucrats that are always there regardless of the party that get in. They're the only guys that know what's going on and what the long-term agendas are. But Miss Stewart was a good socialist and she says…

Ms. Stewart said that, 'as minister of the environment, I am very worried about global warming,' which for a politician isn't saying much. Politicians are habitually 'very worried' about one thing or another. The trouble starts when they use their power to fix problems they're worried about, even if the problems don't exist. Ms. Stewart said (A: This is in 1998 and it's worse now.) she's prepared to do exactly that. 'No matter if the science is all phony,' (A: And we've found that's true.) she said, 'there are collateral environmental benefits.'

Environment Canada, therefore, is prepared to act on global warming even if there's no such thing as global warming. (A: So you see, we are living an agenda. I keep telling the people this. We are living an AGENDA. You've got to understand this IS the agenda that will NOT turn around. They've taken so long to get it underway and put into motion, they will not turn around. I don't care if God himself come down and shows the evidence and waves the finger; it isn't going to change. They can't go back.

I should mention too that when Pierre Trudeau was in, remember he lead in 1952 the Comintern for Canada to Moscow, the Young Communist International; he was the head of the delegation in 1952. The media said nothing about it at the time when he went for election for Prime Minster. NO MEDIA, no right wing or left wing mentioned the fact that he was the head of the Comintern. They all KNEW IT. When he was in office, they signed with the United Nations an agreement that if the right time came along for global governance then Canada was all ready to surrender its sovereignty COMPLETELY to a WORLD GOVERNING BODY. How about that, eh? And who knows it? Well the media know it; I know it; they boys in intelligence all know it. The only people who don't know it are the Canadian public.

What else did Miss Stewart say back in 1998? It says here…)

In another statement quoted by the Herald, Ms. Stewart gave another reason for adopting the religion of global warming. 'Climate change [provides] the greatest chance to bring about justice and equality in the world.' (A: So we'll have justice and equality, the good commie that she is.) Here she gets closer to the core motivation of some of the leading global warming activists. Where socialism's attempt at a global redistribution of wealth ended in economic catastrophe, global warming is being wheeled in as the next new economic crusade.

It's the same agenda. The SAME agenda, redistribution of wealth and the richer countries – yep, that's you out there that are struggling to pay your taxes and keep a roof over your head, you are the richer countries – to pay and pay and pay as these boys at the top pocket about ¾ of the money and pass on the dribbles to the third world countries in supposedly an attempt to help them out. That's what it's all about.

UTTER, UTTER CORRUPTION by the DEVIANT CLASS that's always at the top, the PSYCHOPATHS, the TRUE psychopaths. The ones who are not born into poverty-stricken parents and end up as winos in the streets or smashing windows when they want to grab some jewelry - again, no tolerance of frustration; got to have it now. If they are born into positions of power and families of power and wealth and go to the good schools, they get to the top. And where do they go? To these world meetings. That's where they end up, in charge of YOU, behaving like the deviants of previous aristocracies behaved. Only now there are THOUSANDS AND THOUSANDS OF THEM, not just a King and Queen and a few dozen families to support with their deviancies.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

NY Times-Climate Agreement Talks Open with Scary Scenarios
("Climate Talks Open With Calls for Urgent Action" by Tom Zeller Jr. (nytimes.com) - Dec. 7, 2009.)

Pollution to be Created at Copenhagen Summit
("Copenhagen climate summit: 1,200 limos, 140 private planes and caviar wedges" by Andrew Gilligan (telegraph.co.uk) - Dec. 5, 2009.)

Global Warming: The Real Agenda

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 8, 2009 (#467)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 8, 2009:
Copenhagen Summit, Our Rights -- They Burn it:
"Con-Men and Fanatics Meet at Copenhagen
Where All Our Rights will be Forsaken,
Totalitarian World for Me and You,
To Save Us All from CO2,
Global Warming and Greenhouse Gases,
Under New Guise, World Soviet Passes,
The Commie-Fasci-Capi Pact
Has Trained for Years for this New Act,
Using Same Slogans 'For Greater Good'
They'll Take Your Income, Ration Food,
While Academia and Science Dance a Jig,
Promised the Good Life, Each Greedy Pig
Ensures Each Child Brainwashed to Serve,
There's Plenty of Goebbels, Plenty of Nerve"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 8, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 8, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 8th 2009. Newcomers, as always, I suggest you go into .com web site and scroll down, bookmark all the other sites I have up there for future use because I do get problems once in a while with the big servers. If you find sticking too when you’re downloading from the .com site, go to one of these alternate sites because you might get through quicker. Everyone goes into the .com site at the same time and that causes some problems. These are the only official sites I have up so I’m responsible for them. [Sites listed above.]

You are the listeners who bring me to you. I always tell the public out there that no one backs me except the listeners themselves. I’m not promoting any particular agenda. I’m not promoting any politics. I’m not being backed by a foundation or having a foundation or its NGOs covertly back me either. That happens with a lot of them too. So you keep me going by purchasing the things I have for sale on the web sites, the books, CDs and DVDs. I don’t sell anything else apart from that. It’s up to you to keep me going by donating to me or purchasing these particular items. [Options listed above.] It’s up to yourselves how you want to do it. For those who just get the disks burned and passed to them, lots of them don't use computers out there but they get disks passed at meetings and talks, you can write to me at [address above] and that will get through to me.

You have to bear with me too. These last few weeks I've been getting my speed on the internet cut back deliberately by XplorNet. I'm paying for a higher speed and yet they've cut me back to probably less than the lower speed. It takes me sometimes 2 days to upload one night's show. That's how slow it is now. It keeps breaking as you're uploading so you have to start from scratch again, with the satellite-type uploads. Therefore, it's really, really time consuming but this is the sort of hassle you get when you're not authorized to be out there and you don't have any big boys backing you at all. The real world works by this kind of harassment. It's nothing that you can take to court and prove. They simply come out with their documentation and 'oh, it could have been the equipment, it could have been different departments within XplorNet that's not communicating to each other,' etc, etc and all that rubbish and they play that for years, so you can't take this kind of stuff to court. You know from the frequency of the hassles you get either through telephone, and I've had all that in the past, or through the servers and through Yahoo as well, that this is deliberate policy. THAT'S how they really get to you, but we'll carry on regardless. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Over the years I think every country in the Western world has seen its rights gradually chipped away. Its basic constitution shredded to pieces, for those countries that had constitutions. What they generally used at the time was high courts; the high courts and different courts would make verdicts and that became law. They circumvented the common laws and the constitutions and rights of the people by doing so. Step by step by step because we live in an incremental agenda where people at the top, who are never mentioned in the media, control it all. We see the same thing happening with the government INSTITUTIONS, as they call them now. Institution, a very interesting term because it's a quasi-legality to it. We don't VOTE in institutions. They are kind of appointed by governments and we appoint agencies and so on. Government has been outsourcing so much from World War II basically, that it's really run in a sense by these outside agencies, sometimes tied at the hip, sometimes apparent within Parliament or Congress but very often just simply remote. They just give out little decrees, like Royalty, and bypass any debate in a Parliamentary-type setting.

I've said before, I don't care if God himself came down and exposed the global warming scam for the fraud that it is, and it's a fraud with a good purpose because the purpose is to dominate the world and bring in a socialized world system. It's very akin to an upgraded communist system basically, where a tiny minority of an elite run riot OVER the public, live OFF the public, like Royalty - at the standards of Royalty - while the people below them are kept and going to suffer and sacrifice 'for the good of all'. That's how it always is presented to the worker bees at the bottom. We know this whole con game with global warming is simply that; it's a substitute. It's also a new economy where you really pass nothing around except blips on computer screens to do with carbon outputs and trading. What a great thing.

In the old days when they used gold to finance currency and even to back up paper money, fiat money, they used to have to ship it across seas and often they'd lose it in a storm and that kind of stuff, or it would be robbed by pirates who often retuned it to the banker that sent it in the first place. They had all these deals going with them. This is even better than that. They went on to paper currency with nothing to back it. Then they went on to electronic money basically, which is just blips on a computer screen. Now we're going in to this CO2 trading. Now they don't can up the CO2 and ship it across to so-and-so when you buy carbon credits. That's not happening. It's a GREAT SCAM, a fantastic scam. It's better than fiat money. It's better because you're not actually moving anything anywhere. It's a big con game. 'It's a gas, man,' as they used to say back in the hippy days. It will work. Out of it too will come the derivative market and the same problems we have with bubbles. This time it will be a gas bubble… that no one can actually prick.

Getting back to my original point and how they use agencies and institutions to circumvent, often with the collusion of those IN government at the same time. The article from The Washington Post today, for instance, is on the EPA, the Environmental Protection Agency. It says…

EPA is preparing to regulate emissions in Congress's stead
By Steven Mufson and David A. Fahrenthold / Washington Post Staff Writer / Tuesday, December 8, 2009

The Obama administration moved closer Monday to issuing regulations on greenhouse gases, a step that would enable it to limit emissions across the economy even if Congress does not pass climate legislation. (Alan: In other words, it's a done deal. We'll get it in this way or we'll get it in that way.)

The move, which coincided with the first day of the international climate summit in Copenhagen, seemed timed to reassure delegates there that the United States is committed to reducing its emissions even if domestic legislation remains bogged down. But it provoked condemnation from key Republicans and from U.S. business groups, which vowed to tie up any regulations in litigation.

In Monday's much-anticipated announcement, the Environmental Protection Agency said that six gases, including carbon dioxide and methane, pose a danger to the environment and the health of Americans (A: These are the guys that say it's okay to drink radioactive water! and stuff with arsenic in it too. So it shouldn't surprise us as everything is a farce isn't it.) and that the agency would start drawing up regulations to reduce those emissions. (A: Of, you know, the gasses. 6 gases. So they're not just stopping with one, they've got 6 now.)

"These are reasonable, common-sense steps," EPA Administrator Lisa P. Jackson said, adding that they would protect the environment "without placing an undue burden on the businesses that make up the better part of our economy." At the same time, however, EPA regulation is no one's preferred outcome -- not even the EPA's. Jackson said her agency and other administration officials would still prefer if Congress acted before they did. (A: That's kind of like the gun to your head idea isn't it? Since when did agencies start threatening the government… and getting away with it? Hmm?)

Sen. John F. Kerry (D-Mass.), a leading proponent of a Senate climate bill, issued a statement after the EPA's announcement saying, "The message to Congress is crystal clear: Get moving." (A: He gave a speech too at Yale University and by God, you think he's a fanatic, I tell you, you ain't seen nothing yet. Really, the only word for them is the old lefty communists basically, which I don't think disappeared at all. I think they moved into their next phase for global socialism as they said they would in fact. Nothing surprising in this day and age is there? Nothing surprising.)

On the Times Online…

'Climategate' at centre stage as Copenhagen opens
From Times Online December 7, 2009

(A: Remember too, that these are all the big foundations that have got their front NGOs there at the moment before all the big politicians and politicos come in. They set up the round table societies under the Royal Institute of International Affairs and CFR. They hammer out ways to get all these things presented to the politicians when they come in the door, even though, remember, they already signed the major bill 6 months ago at the World Business Meeting under the United Nations. But they have to find ways to implement that. All these thousands of NGOs are all financed by the big foundations to go over there and they also get grants from the government too, by the way. Governments like to hear the crowd demanding exactly what they want them to demand. So much for democracy, eh? It's just a joke. It says here…)

The "Climategate" row took centre stage on the opening day of the Copenhagen climate summit today as the world's leading oil exporter intervened to question the scientific consensus on man-made global warming.

As 15,000 delegates from 192 nations began what was billed as the "last, best chance" to avert a catastrophic rise in sea and air temperatures (A: After the flu outbreak.), Saudi Arabia's chief climate negotiator, Mohammed al-Sabban, spoke from the floor to say that e-mails hacked from a UK research centre had shaken trust in the work of scientists. (A: It's amazing, you know, it should be shaking the trust all over the place. It shows you how everything is controlled across the Western world.)

He was not the first to mention the Climategate scandal. In his opening address to the conference, Rajendra Pachauri, chairman of the Nobel prize-winning Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), said the hackers had been trying to undermine the work of his organisation. (A: Well, generally scientific data is open to all the scientific community for critical analysis. It's not undermining it; it's called CRITICAL ANALYSIS to ensure that all the founding facts as they are presented are accurate… since you're going to build this monster on top of it. If it's fake, bogus statistics or facts to start with, then there are no facts at all and the whole tower should really crumble down. So that's what they are saying, it's really attempts to undermine the work of HIS organization.)

But he said that the science as presented in the IPCC's last assessment report two years ago was clear and incontrovertible and covered water shortages and rising sea levels. (A: They've been harping on about these rising sea levels since I was a child… and it hasn't happened yet. In fact, they've been building holiday resorts on lots of Pacific islands and different places, right on the shores now, because it hasn't happened. I read an article about that not so long ago on the air. It's amazing isn't it? But they keep harping on and harping on. Here's a quote, I keep quoting this from Bertrand Russell, a big player in all of this. He knew you could convince the public of anything. He worked for the big foundations in his time. He was a top socialist too. He wanted a complete totalitarian type system across the world. He says, "There's no nonsense so arrant that it can not be made the creed," the belief, "of the vast majority by adequate government action." That's what he said. All they use is repetition, repetition, repetition of lies, lies, lies, repeated lies, until they just hammer you down into the earth with it. It doesn't matter what the facts are, lies are good enough for them and repetition. Back to the article; he claims that the science can not be disputed and according to him the rising sea levels are still going on. He obviously hasn't visited those islands.)

"Given the wide-ranging nature of change that is likely to be taken in hand, some naturally find it inconvenient to accept its inevitability," Dr Pachauri said.

"The recent incident of stealing the e-mails of scientists at the University of East Anglia shows that some would go to the extent of carrying out illegal acts, perhaps in an attempt to discredit the IPCC. (A: Who discredited every other scientist who reputed the CRAP that they were coming out with. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Some years ago people like George Orwell talked about the coming system. Of course, we know that Aldous Huxley did too long before, even in the 30s when he was putting out Brave New World, a vision of the future basically. He belonged to a very elite group in Britain who wanted world socialism. You've got to understand, as Orwell said, "Some are more equal than others in such utopias." People like the Huxley's who were related to the Darwin's, interbred of course, as the Darwin's were themselves to the Wedgwood's and whose descendants are still running Parliament in Britain, under the Benn's. Regardless, they said that they themselves of course would lead the world and they wouldn't change themselves, to steer the world. They would have to keep their faculties and still be wild in a sense. The wild man has his ability for SELF-PRESERVATION and makes decisions that would mean life or death in very quick instances, very fast instances.

Huxley talked about his Brave New World and how they could, through genetic manipulations, create different kinds of workers, a different strata of workers for different functions, all that kind of stuff. He got it all from the big think tanks he was involved in that were comprised of scientists from Cambridge and Oxford and other places. That's where it was coming from. It wasn't some idea that he came up with himself. Back in the 30s they KNEW this was feasible to bring in this kind of world system.

In Orwell's book 1984, he understood the Huxley's. He knew the Huxley's; he knew all these people. He knew where they were coming from. He'd been recruited into the same group from Cambridge to help all these types of people. He understood the agenda and he turned against it. All the socialists, at all the socialist meetings he used to attend and speak at, turned around; they turned their backs on him immediately. That's how they are. They shun you immediately when you're not parroting the proper slogans. He told the public what they were REALLY all about. What he said in 1984, when the main character Winston was talking about the proles, being the ordinary people in democracies, let's call it democracies, the ordinary people, they would overcome all this. The managerial class, the bureaucratic class, the EXPERT class always dismissed it throughout the book. They says, 'Oh no, the proles don't count." It didn't really matter what the proles thought, "the proles don't count."

Remember, getting back to Bertrand Russell, Lord Bertrand Russell who wanted world communistic socialism with his own class running it all at the top, said that they could bring that system in, a form of world socialism, and bypass public opinion by having an EXPERT class for everything. Experts then would replace the public's attitudes or demands. The experts would TELL the public what they wanted or needed. That has happened. We live in the age now of experts on everything. They con us left, right and center. It's the same as the flu shots. All these experts, all the mainstream media, 'we're all gonna die, we're all gonna die. Pharma, save us. Here, take these billions of dollars.' As soon as they got the money, it fffftttt… dies off just like that. Con, time after time and they'll do the same the next time… and the next time.

It gets us back to public opinion and the proles don't count. I've said this over and over. This is from the Council on Foreign Relations. Now, the Council on Foreign Relations is the American BRANCH of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, a PRIVATE organization ABOVE democracy, by the way. It doesn't really BELIEVE in democracy, never did, set up by the founders, Cecil Rhodes and Rothschilds, the bankers, with the other bankers Lord Milner and others. They became the Royal Institute of International Affairs and the CFR, on the other side of the Atlantic. This article on their web site at the CFR it says…

Does Public Opinion Matter?
(A: That's how brazen it all is now. It doesn't matter what you think.)
World Attitudes on Global Governance
Speakers: Stewart M. Patrick, Senior Fellow And Director, International Institutions On Global Governance Program, Council On Foreign Relations
Steven G. Kull, Director, Program On International Policy Attitudes, Worldpublicopinion.org
December 4, 2009, Washington D.C. / Council on Foreign Relations

(A: The Council on Foreign Relations, this private foundational body that pretends that it doesn't interfere in politics but runs it all, is part of this whole thing. They know the general public don't count and they've already got a massive organization set up within it of their own experts and propagandists to bring in global governance. They've had it up there for years. They go through this speech and so on and they talk about all the polls that they constantly take with the US and different countries. It boils down to the fact that they're absolutely confident now from the polls they're getting in that most people in the world are ready for global governance. They don't really care… as long as it brings in world peace. You know, that communist term 'world peace' was LACK OF ALL OPPOSITION, especially people who think. They give you all the quotes in this particular site, their web site itself. They don't do these projects for nothing. It's to BOLSTER THEIR OWN WORK to see that we're on track, everything is working on time, on queue. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, reading from a web site in fact, from the Council on Foreign Relations about their polling of different peoples and they claim that people are pretty well ready to accept global governance, as they call it. It's the same term they used for the European Union, governance. The European Union of course has turned into this dictatorial body where people at the top meet in secret and lay down the laws and you can't contradict them. In fact, one of the leaders said it was heresy, HERESY for anybody to contradict or complain about the European Parliament. What do you expect in totalitarian systems? They always come out and say 'it's for the good of all. We all have to sacrifice together for the common good.' Then you end up getting dominated by a tiny minority that lives intergenerationally on the backs of the rest of you for as long as they have the system underway, until they've raped and pillaged the whole darn nation.

Getting back to the Council on Foreign Relations, remember, that was set up by the big banking system, the international money lenders. Guys who Professor Carroll Quigley actually said not only financed the wars, the planned the major wars, every single one, since the late 1800s and he was the historian FOR THEM. He got this from their own records. He was all for it and their idea because he was an elitist himself, believing academia would be exempt from all the poverty that the rest of the people would be subjected to, under such utopias. So this article here, as they're going on about global governance and their poll-taking on the countries that they tested it out on, it says here…

We found some -- if I can give you a sense of some of the headline findings, one of the striking things that we found is just how similar many publics around the worlds are in terms of the sort of world order (A: Now listen to this…) that they want.(A: Have any of you ever, ever, ever been asked to even be involved and give your opinion on a world order and what YOU think about it or what you want? Have you? No, of course not.) They're extremely multilaterally inclined; they believe in a world order based on international law (A: That's what the UN is all about; they always say 'under law.' No one ever says, explain this law to us.); they believe countries should obey international law even if it goes against their national interests. (A: Have YOU been asked about that? Have you? Of course not. This is someone speaking to their choir. Everybody in there has to BE ASKED in after they've vetted you and watched you for years.

They make sure you've got the right background, you'll be involved in the right causes, generally hereditary ones as well, and you have to belong to the right families too; it's a very important thing. These guys are snobs at the top, under the guise of collectivism. Then they go on to suggest that…)

They are strongly inclined to make the United States a major -- excuse me, the United Nations the major bedrock of international order.

That's the kind of rubbish they teach to their followers, the rah-rah team, but the public are never, ever considered. We never get a referendum on anything; what do you think? Don't you think you should have a plebian vote, where something so major as anything at all to do with you or your livelihood, you should get a vote on it? Of course they don't want that. They wouldn't even give that to most of the European countries to do with that agreement they signed, supposedly, and had rammed down them, especially the last one, Ireland, to go along with the European Union and its new charter.

Now here's what's happened to Britain for instance, that literally was lied along to for years and years, lied along with this trading consortium of Europe that turned into the European Parliament, as it was intended to do from the very beginning. Everybody at the top knew it except ordinary people. What people in Europe would say is that 'you have to sort of give up your sovereignty, you'll have to get this multi-cultural idea too and stop being who you are.' Just toss it out the window, thousands of years, toss it out the window and CONFORM to the new system that we're giving you… OR ELSE. Here's what happened to Britain.

It's a return to the Star Chamber as Europe finally tramples Magna Carta into the dust
(A: The Star Chamber is when the King sat before advisors and tried all things in secret. The GATT Treaty is done the same way. The General Agreement of Trade and Tariffs has set up a court and what ever they decide within that SEALED court - it never gets leaked out to the public, and it's God's law to them, God's law - it can not be questioned. There are no appeals, nothing; that's it. They decide who gets to trade with whom across the planet. Of course it keeps all the little guys out. Nothing changes in history really. Nothing really… the chameleon can always change its color, under a new cause.)

If you have a spare evening, read the Magna Carta. It is a restraining document. What leaps out from the pages of Langton's text is the intent to protect subjects from overweening authority (in this case, Norman-French despotism), by restoring ancient freedoms.
By Ambrose Evans-Pritchard / 6 Dec 2009 / The Telegraph

I have a copy dated MDCCLXVI (1766) left to me by my father, and to him by his father. The customary law is Saxon, Celtic, even Visigoth.

"All men in our Kingdom have and hold the aforesaid liberties and rights, well and in peace, freely and quietly, fully and wholly, for ever." (A: You know, new world orders don't like that term 'forever'… they really don't like that at all. That would kind of hold back the agenda.)

"No free man shall be taken or imprisoned, or outlawed, or exiled, or in any way destroyed, unless by lawful judgment of his peers." (A: HIS peers, right, his peers.)

"No constable or bailiff shall take another man's corn or chattels without immediate payment, nor take any horses or any man's timber for castles." (A: Because that's what they used to do. Now they just grab it all for back taxes, for land taxes, property taxes, or other kinds of taxes, or because your septic tank isn't up to snuff with the new laws that come from the United Nations. Just grab it all… same thing, the same thing happens.)

"Any one may leave the Kingdom and return at will, unless in time of war, when he may be restrained for some short space for the common good".

Here is a nice one, as the Square Mile falls under the control EU authorities with "binding powers".

"The City of London shall have all its ancient liberties and free customs." Merchants should be free from "evil tolls". (A: …and tariffs and stuff.)

The founding texts of the English Constitution – charter, petition, bill of rights – have one theme in common: they create nothing. They assert old freedoms; they restore lost harmony. In this they guided America's Revolution, itself a codification of early colonial liberties.

Europe's Constitution – the Lisbon Treaty, as we know it – began as a sort of Magna Carta. (A: It BEGAN as one.) EU leaders agreed at Laeken in 2001 that the Project needed restraining after Danes and Swedes rejected EMU, the Irish rejected Nice, and youth torched Gothenburg in anti-EU riots.

People do not want Europe inveigling its way into "every nook and cranny of life", they said. Needless to say, insiders hijacked the process. A Hegelian monstrosity emerged. The text says much about the heightened powers of EU bodies, but scarcely a word to restrain EU bailiffs and constables.

The Charter of Fundamental Rights – legally binding in the UK as of Tuesday, when Lisbon came into force – asserts that the EU has the authority to circumscribe all rights and freedoms.(A: Go around all freedoms and rights, this new, beautiful tyranny they have there.)

The text was modified after I threw a tantrum in the Daily Telegraph during the drafting process, comparing it to the "general interest" clause used by Fascist regimes to crush dissent in the 1930s.

Article 52 now reads: "Subject to the principle of proportionality, limitations may be made only if they are necessary and genuinely meet objectives of general interest recognised by the Union."

Don't be misled by this inverted wording. What it states is that the EU may indeed limit rights in the "general interest". In other words, our Magna Carta has been superceeded.

It is the European Court (ECJ) that decides what is "proportional" or "necessary", and it cannot be trusted. The ECJ behaves like the Star Chamber of Charles I, as I learned following three cases where it rubber-stamped the abuse of state power against whistleblowers Bernard Connolly and Marta Andreasen, and German journalist Hans-Martin Tillack.

Mr Tillack was arrested by Belgian police and held incommunicado for ten hours. Incommunicado on the basis of a fabricated allegation by two EU officials. (A: I call them Gestapo or Stasi, it doesn't matter.) Police went through his notes and computers, identifying his network of informants inside the EU apparatus. (A: So anyone who is investigating the EU, this is what they do to you.)

Mr Tillack took the case to the ECJ. It ruled in favour of the system. It always does. (A: Always does.)

That's what America is to be under too with the unification of the Americas. First Europe, then the Americas; they are already working with the Pacific Rim Groups. They've been working there since the 1930s according to the Royal Institute of International Affairs' own web site. Amalgamation, amalgamation, amalgamation… these are the regions that Karl Marx talked about in the 1800s. The trading regions that had all been previously knows as different countries, then they would regionalize them, give them a single parliament for each region and then the single parliaments would really be provincial parliaments under a world government system, which is of course at least the United Nations as it stands right now. It might morph into some new thing, with an all-seeing-eye no doubt above it.

Here's an article. It's from Reuters.

Climate talk collapse better for planet: NASA's Hansen
LONDON / Thu Dec 3, 2009

LONDON (Reuters) - The planet would be better off if the forthcoming Copenhagen climate change talks ended in collapse, according to a leading U.S. scientist who helped alert the world to dangers of global warming.

(A: Now who is talking about this? Mr. Hansen of NASA. If you want a fervent nutter who's utterly dedicated to the agenda, where scientists should rule over the planet, this is the guy here. Remember, I talked about him a few days ago when he was arrested at different demonstrations trying to close down mines and all the other means of alternate energy. He literally says that he doesn't want something to be the same as the previous Copenhagen agreement because they'll drag their feet on it. He wants IMMEDIATE ACTION, totalitarian action, to save the world.)

Any agreement likely to emerge from the negotiations would be so deeply flawed, said James Hansen, that it would be better for future generations if we were to start again from scratch.

"I would rather it not happen if people accept that as being the right track because it's a disaster track," Hansen, who heads the NASA Goddard Institute for Space Studies in New York, told the Guardian newspaper.

Don't you see how this fanatical politicization of agencies is not a very safe or comfortable thing to have? You see that? Do you understand NASA is supposed to be non-political? But the head of every organization that does anything at all OVER us - over us, I repeat; literally, in the case of NASA – should not be politicized, with its belief systems, in a world socialist state, with the priesthood of science handing out the law. Believe you me, if you want totalitarianism in the most horrific way, as Bertrand Russell says, "I believe there will be a scientific dictatorship" he says, "It will be absolutely murderous" and completely intolerant but Russell says "I'd rather have that than any other kind of dictatorship." Well, this is the kind of character I'm talking about here; this guy is a nut case.

You thought it was bad in Nazi Germany or the Soviet Union, where millions were slaughtered? All totalitarian regimes are the same, ALL THE SAME. The scientific priesthood with all their fudged facts and figures will simply give them more power to slaughter, through 'historical necessity,' as the communists called it. Slaughter millions of people to save the world, mind you. That's the mess we are in.

It's so bad they've already got the children brainwashed in schools BEFORE the Copenhagen meeting, YEARS before the Copenhagen meeting. PEOPLE BETTER WAKE UP VERY, VERY FAST… BEFORE THE HORROR REALLY STARTS COMING DOWN. It will. It will come down in earnest, especially when they start rationing food and all the other things they've got planned for you.

Socialism is so wonderful, so wonderful because again, it's the greater, 'the greater good for the greatest amount of people,' as they push it; if you're not amongst the greatest number amount of people, tough luck. It's like the shots that they give you now. Well, you might be one in a thousand that drops dead with it. 'We feel sorry for you but we can't dwell on these unfortunate incidents.' That's how they go on. It's the same thing as Stalin said, 'well, you know those Ukrainians are so self-sufficient, they even WEAVE their own cloth for God sake; they don't want factories; we've got to teach them a lesson.' But they were the main producer for their crops and food since they killed all the farmers in Russia, 'so we've got to get all of our grain from them. So what we'll do, we'll take all their grain from them as we starve them to death.' They starved over 7,000,000, 7 MILLION people to death by policy. I was called 'the need for historical necessity.' For history to continue on, then it's historical necessity. That's how it goes down in the books. When they killed the thousands, about 8,000-10,000 Polish officers, the Soviets put it down to the same thing. 'Well, it's historical necessity; if we let them live, my God, they'll go back in and contaminate people with all their old memories of how it used to be.' Boomf. That mindset is still way up there. Right now you'll meet a lot of them at Copenhagen.

Here's what you get when you have socialism. I've read enough articles of what's happened in Britain because now MEDICINE is under POLITICAL POLICY. Don't forget that. Politics, when it gets involved in anything, has a policy, a policy for that particular agency. This is Canada again…

N.S. (A: Nova Scotia) man angry hospital wouldn't help father having heart attack in parking lot
Fri Dec 4 / By Alison Auld, The Canadian Press / Yahoo News

HALIFAX, N.S. - An elderly woman with a cane and a heart condition was told to bring her husband into a Nova Scotia hospital on her own or call 911 (A: In the car park.) after he suffered a heart attack 10 metres (A: 30 feet.) from the facility's front door, the couple's son said Friday. (A: Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just showing Americans what they can look forward to once the socialized medicine comes in. By the way, I also have the RAND report on that because the US government asked RAND to do a massive survey on bringing in this health care and where they can CUT back all different kinds of care. I might read that one night; it's fascinating. It's just like Britain; I think they copied Britain completely.

Presently, this article I'm reading now is from Yahoo news, about a Nova Scotia man having a heart attack less than 30 feet from the hospital door and they wouldn't come out and get him in. They told the elderly wife, who had a pacemaker herself, either to bring him in herself or call the paramedics. The paramedics were all based across the street, all the vans there. Why? Because… it's POLICY. In a socialized country, they have meetings for everything. They talk just the same way they did in Britain about the policies. They'd have all these meetings and everybody put their word in and that would all be documented in the minutes and so on. By the time it's finished, it's like some legalistic maze that you can't make head nor tail of. That's what you get with socialism. They can't say anything straightforwardly on anything. It's always 'pertaining to subsection 2, paragraph blah, blah, blah, except in cases where blah, blah, blah' and it goes on like that. So you stand outside a hospital and you DIE. Luckily this guy survived, but no thanks to the hospital.

Mind you, they're lucky to have doctors there; where I live here you can't get one. You have walk-in clinics. You're faceless, you see. You're a number; you're actually given a number when you walk in the door… like a COW, you can always wear it around your neck, it's big enough, like something at an auction block. They don't care who you are. They don't want to know who you are, if you're lucky to see a doctor that is and you wait 6 or 7 hours. Sometimes they're called back to the hospital and they tell you to come back tomorrow or the next day or the next day. That's socialized medicine. Canada spends about as much on advertising how wonderful our medical system is as they do actually getting money in to it. I read an article about that not so long ago. That's socialism. It's all PRETENSE and propaganda.

Yeah, I do tend to go on and an hour isn't very long enough at all to get so much out or get so much off your mind, you might say. That's what this is, is getting stuff off your mind hoping someone will remember it long after I'm dead. That's what you have to do is PASS INFORMATION ON TO THE YOUTH who are really… you've got to understand the incredible brainwashing they are under. Parents have to get in touch with them and realize the indoctrination they get is almost perfect, PERFECT INDOCTRINATION. The same way as we saw little Disney shows with Bambi and what did Bambi say? The mum and dad of Bambi were going through the woods because they were scared. Why? Because MAN was hunting them. MAN WAS BAD. Well they're getting taught the same stuff about how BAD MAN IS with the environment. BAD MAN ruined the environment for the up-and-coming youth and it's their world, you see. They use psychological techniques through all the little videos that they show them, giving them PART of every story but never ALL of ANY story… to brainwash them into TRUE up-and-coming Green-shirt fanatics. God help us all.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

EPA to Regulate Emissions Regardless of Congress
("EPA is preparing to regulate emissions in Congress's stead" by Steven Mufson and David A. Fahrenthold (washingtonpost.com) - Dec. 8, 2009.)

"US declares greenhouse gases are threat to public health" by Tom Leonard (telegraph.co.uk) - April 20, 2009.

Saudi Negotiator Blows Cold Air over Copenhagen's Climate Fanatics
("Climategate at centre stage as Copenhagen opens" (timesonline.co.uk) - Dec. 7, 2009.)

Does Public Opinion Matter?-World Attitudes on Global Governance CFR
(Council on Foreign Relations (cfr.org) - Dec. 4, 2009.)

Magna Carta Scrapped by Euro-Parliament
("It's a return to the Star Chamber as Europe finally tramples Magna Carta into the dust" by Ambrose Evans-Pritchard (telegraph.co.uk) - Dec. 6, 2009.)

NASA Wants Energy Taxes to Combat "Global Warming"
("Climate talk collapse better for planet: NASA's Hansen" (reuters.com) - Dec. 3, 2009.)

Nova Scotia-Hospital Refused to Treat Man with Heart Attack-At Hospital's Front Door
("N.S. man angry hospital wouldn't help father having heart attack in parking lot" by Alison Auld (at ngnews.ca) - Dec. 4, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 9, 2009 (#468)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 9, 2009:
Copenhagen Treat-y, a Treat for the Greedy:
"Copenhagen Treaty Sweet for Those in Deal,
Salivating Over the Cash They'll Steal,
Capitalists and Socialists come Together
Where Profits and Power Merge and Tether,
We're about to be Plundered Again, Alas,
To Ward Off Effects of a Minute Gas,
By High-Priests Preaching Climate Salvation
With Fudged Data, Mainly Confabulation,
From Anointed Computers, Way Above Macs,
Which Spew Out Everything, Excluding Hard Facts,
Oh Save Us, Sterility, Death and Abortion,
Cry of Social Utopians, Their World-View Distortion,
One Thing for Sure, There's No Reliance
When Politics and Finance are Driving This 'Science' "
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 9, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 9, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 9th 2009. For newcomers, look into .com web site, scroll down on that first page and you’ll see all the other sites I have up there, bookmark them for future use because the big sites go down once in a while and that way you can get the latest audios for download. The sites are [listed above]. As always, I start off the show by saying that – especially for newcomers too because only the same people buy or donate over and over – you are the listeners, you are the audience that keeps me going. No one is backing me here. There is no big corporation, foundation, NGO or anything else backing me or any particular product maker or whatever. What you see on the web site for sale are my books, CDs and DVDs. So I’m obliged if you buy them. That keeps me just trickling over. You can donate as well. [Options listed above.] It’s up to you. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them at meetings and don’t like computers – they play them on their CD players – you can get in touch with me at [address above].

This brave new world we are going into, it’s been on the go for a long, long time really. It’s the next PHASE of the new world order. There are always NEW world orders; every time someone dominates the planet it’s a world order. When they have a stalemate supposedly between a Cold War, East and West, that was a world order. Now that supposedly – which is a con game – there is no opposition anymore – really they've amalgamated and that was always the plan – they have to find enemies all over the place, so it's ENEMIES WITHIN. That's why you're getting cameras EVERYWHERE to spy on YOU.

It's also true that we can't be trusted anymore, no one can be trusted, because when you realize what they've got planned for you, in this PLANNED society – population planning, food rationing, all that stuff to come down the pike, a new way of getting payment, working to serve the world state, money eventually replaced step-by-step by credits issued by the state, that's ALL on the books – then you technically would become a terrorist, you see, if you start to stand up and hold on to that which you've managed to accumulate in your lifetime however large or small it may be. A brand new world and of course, a brand new priesthood to go along with it. In world orders and utopias you always have an upper class who believe in the intellectuals and that they have the right, naturally, to live a lot, lot better standard than you do. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. the big world of deception actually is what the matrix is. It's where everything COMES from and comes in TO. You have all these rooms and layers and levels of reality. We're KEPT going into this labyrinth; we never get out of it really. There are degrees of getting out of it but you're always still within it. You're bombarded from being a baby with the indoctrination of your parents and then followed up by kindergarten, then school and after school it's the media, constantly propagandized all throughout our lives. Most folks don't even know there are sides in anything. They really don't know that. Most people don't want POWER over people so they can't imagine that there are people that exist and are born in every generation, lots of them, with psychopathic traits that claw their way to the top. They don't experience the same kind of emotion that you do. They have NO REGRET; that's something that a psychopath always shows. They tend to repeat their behavior. Those that are born into better circumstances financially, families with money, wealth, power and the right schools, can be amazing creatures because they still crave this power and now they have the means to attain it.

Down throughout history you have battles. If you follow history, you have battles between TOP PSYCHOPATHS or Kings or Emperors – that type of stuff – between each other. There is hardly a name mentioned outside of their families in histories because the ordinary folk didn't matter. The ordinary folk still don't matter. It's always been a battle between an elite who clawed their way and slaughtered their way to the top, to the present time, through diplomacy and training of course, and GIVEN means of getting higher and higher in the world of which we now call politics. They can get to the top but they still have this lust for power. They have visions of being King of the World; that kind of stuff. Therefore, the new world order is comprised of a CLUB of these elitists around the world that have climbed to the top of their own countries and dominated the people and live much, much higher than the people of the countries do, a much higher standard of living. They're competing to an extent for the wealth. The wealth is only created and Marx was quite correct on this, wealth only comes from LABOR, so all the folk at the bottom, the masses of people at the bottom, are the ones who PRODUCE.

Right now, we have a different kind of battle going on, a different guise I should say, but it's the same battle, where at Copenhagen you have all these different countries and the third world countries with their own psychopaths who have clawed their way to the top, who are expecting to pocket a lot of money from the divvying up of all these taxes that are going to come down the pike from the so-called richer countries. That's really what's going on there. At the same time you have the big capitalist corporations in there demanding their fair share as well. They are the guys that are already making MILLIONS of dollars in profit from swapping carbon credits that they were given free by their own countries. YOU won't be getting FREE ones at the bottom and remember that.

Regardless of class, politics, whatever, they really have the psychopaths at the top. That seems to be standard in history. Right now they're fighting over divvying up the wealth of the planet. That's how they see it. You always know yourselves that those who are representing countries are going to pocket a lot of money for themselves on the way. The trickle down theory is awful nice… except it doesn't work very well at the bottom, where you're waiting for the occasional drop to come out of a faucet. That's how it really, really is.

GREED runs their lives. POWER runs their lives at the top… and any con will do. Now you take capitalism itself for instance. We had in the 1800s and 1700s, laissez-faire capitalism, where people were treated like DIRT, you were utterly disposable as a worker, there was no pension, there was no sick funds or anything. In the mines in Britain, for instance, and in factories in Europe, if your husband got sick or was ill or was injured at work, the wives and children had to go down the mines and replace them. That carried on right up into just before the First World War. Then you have its opposite happening. Remember, in the Hegelian dialectic, to get towards a goal you must create a thesis. You had capitalism as a thesis. Getting rich was the name of the game, by any mean possible, by using whatever tools - people or nations - possible and ruling over everything. That gave you a sense of security for YOU and YOURS, your children, etc and for your generations to come, OF YOUR OWN. That's how people lived their lives, through their offspring. Their names meant EVERYTHING to them. The antithesis to that came along in the form of Karl Marx. Remember, the two work together to bring out a synthesis, which becomes the new thesis and then you go on from there. This is what they call 'the never-ending story'. Each time you come to a conclusion, when both sides become so much like each other during conflict, they eventually MERGE and you bring a part of each one's system into the new system, the synthesis, that becomes the new thesis and then they go on from there.

Regardless of what they want to hide behind, what shield they want to hide behind, when you look at the capitalists and the communists, the upper classes of those countries, and yes, they did have upper classes in communism. They lived VERY well, incredibly well, partied all the time too, big balls, caviar, all the rest of it, chauffeur-driven cars, limos and servants. These are psychopaths… on all sides. Right now a good lot of them are over there right now at Copenhagen hammering out their deals as to divvy up the greatest CON they've dreamed up so far, which is CO2 and global warming. They put YEARS into the creation of this fallacy, which has become a religion. Not only can you get the characters who came up with the idea admitting it in their own book, The First Global Revolution, put out by the Club of Rome in the 1990s. They said that in 1972 they came up with the idea of global warming. "That would fit the bill" with famine and so on. "That would fit the bill," they said, to bring the world together under a type of control. They've pretty well got their way.

Then Al Gore was sent out there. Al Gore, his mentor was Armand Hammer. A guy whose father was basically a back-street abortionist, a pure communist, who sold snake oil to people. He didn't have qualifications as a chemist or pharmacist but it didn't matter to him. His son was given the name of Armand Hammer, which is the British Freemasonry symbol as opposed to just the compass and square of the US and it was also the symbol of the Soviet Union. Armand Hammer had an apartment next to Lenin and the Stalin. At the same time he's a millionaire on the other side. You know, 'poor guy gets rich by hard work' rubbish, you understand, the common theme.

We have these psychopaths who've merged into the synthesis. They very thing that the Reece Commission came out with in the 1950s to do with the big foundations, these multi millionaire, billionaire capitalists, funding what seemed to be the far-left communists until Carroll Quigley came along and says, 'we're often mistaken for the communists because our agendas are really the same,' for the Royal Institute of International Affairs/CFR. Their job was to merge the two systems together. Lenin himself said that the dictatorship would only last for maybe 70 years or so and then it would sort of melt away into a system not quite capitalist, not quite communist. Well what is it? It's called SOCIALISM.

Socialism is another guise to control, dominate the public with masses of bureaucrats above you, levels and layers of bureaucrats, so many that eventually it's like George Orwell's 1984. There is a MINISTRY for everything. That's what they call it in Britain, Ministries of this and Ministries of that. Lenin also predicted a time when there would be so many agencies in the West that they'd be stepping on each other's toes and going into each other's territory, they will be fighting with each other. We've seen that over the last few years, especially since 2001, where the FBI and FEMA and all these different alphabet-soup agencies are fighting over the same territory, rights and power. We've seen the police go crazy with all the cash that has been given to them for their high technology, surveillance and all the rest of it. We've watched all of that. We're living through it.

Getting back to Copenhagen, the Copenhagen Treaty is a done deal. Nothing is going to stop it. Nothing at all because after all, they've been planning it for at least since they hit on that idea in the early 70s, and even before. They thought that global FREEZING would to. They thought we were going to go into a cooling phase and that would 'fit the bill'. The same authors who wrote about the coming ice age suddenly turned around and wrote about the coming warming age. It's astonishing that the public are kept out of the loop BUT it's not really.

When you understand, getting back to my original point, from the minute you are born, you are indoctrinated with your parents' indoctrination. What they believed was real, which really is their own indoctrination. Kindergarten takes it over, very effectively today. Just like Bertrand Russell said with his experimental schools in the 1920s. He said, 'If we can get the children at kindergarten for maybe 3-4 hours per day, we can give them SCIENTIFIC indoctrination, so much so, that any CONTAMINATED ideals from their parents at home will not take on the children;' it will be dismissed by the children, not even thought about by them. Scientific indoctrination. That's all happened. The media takes over from there, so much so, that Brzezinski himself said in the 70s that 'The public will shortly EXPECT the media to do their thinking for them' and that has certainly happened. It's certainly happened. You know our main newspapers are actually putting full-page ads - all chains of newspapers including The Guardian - to tell the political leaders to vote for the treaty? Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just talking about the psychopathic cliques at the top and how they're merging, gradually merging as they do business with each other and divvy up all the loot they're going to plunder from the present generation – and all those to come – for a bunch of hot air supposedly. They divvy it up in REAL CASH as opposed to cans of gas; it's a great con game. This runs along the line of eugenics of course.

Eugenics comes into everything to do with elitists at the top. The elitists at the top of every country are psychopathic by nature. An instance of that is Tony Blair who gave an interview recently. I read it, in the newspaper, where he was asked about things like the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan and so on, he says, 'Oh that' like it was just a bit of a nuisance in his career. He was asked if he had any regrets over anything he'd ever done, any policy whatsoever; he says, 'No, no, I don't believe in regrets; a leader just has to lead that's all.' Well that's a psychopath talking you see. This is a guy who sleeps well at night, dreaming about his own intellectual abilities and his power over others. A psychopath is true ego. Eugenics comes into everything especially with global warming because all the big boys in the Eugenics Societies, like the Optimum Population Trust and others, are on board with this. Yes, they have members now on governmental panels, along with the climate changers as well. They're all APPOINTED of course. We don't elect them… because we're out of the picture; 'the proles don't count.' WE don't count at the bottom. Just like the peasants of ancient times didn't count in the history books, just the rich and their families and their squabbles and all that kind of stuff.

They're bringing eugenics into the global warming thing. Sterilization will come down the road as well. I have different articles to read to you tonight to do with that. This first one just has to do with an ALTERNATIVE summit going on in Copenhagen where people with some common sense and know the whole thing stinks are giving out the other side of the story. This is in the Telegraph.

Copenhagen climate summit: global warming 'caused by sun's radiation'
Global warming is caused by radiation from the sun, according to a leading scientist speaking out at an alternative "sceptics' conference" in Copenhagen.
By Louise Gray / 8 Dec 2009

As the world gathered in the Danish capital for the UN Climate Change Conference, more than 50 scientists, businessmen and lobby groups met to discuss the arguments against man made global warming.

Although the meeting was considerably smaller than the official gathering of 15,000 people meeting down the road, the organisers claimed it could change the course of negotiations.

Professor Henrik Svensmark, a physicist at the Danish National Space Center in Copenhagen, said the recent warming period was caused by solar activity.

He said the last time the world experienced such high temperatures, during the medieval warming period, the Sun and the Earth were in a similar cycle.

Professor Nils-Axel Morner, a geologist from Stockholm University, said sea level rise has also been exaggerated (Alan: I'd say, by quite a few meters.) by the "climate alarmists" using computer models. (A: That's how they're telling you that everything is rising in the sea. They're using computers. The facts don't count and the measuring sticks don't count, just like the thermometers don't matter any more. It's the COMPUTER MODELS they go by. That gives them the information they WANT to hear.)

He said observational data from lake sediments, coast lines and trees show sea levels have remained stable. (A: That's right, no islands have sunk.)

Professor Cliff Ollier, another geologist from the University of Western Australia, also said the environmental lobby have got it wrong on ice caps. He said the melting of ice sheets is caused by geothermal activity rather than global surface temperatures.

Professor Ian Plimer, from the University of Adelaide, claimed carbon dioxide from volcanoes rather than humans is driving warming as part of a natural process. (A: It warms and it cools and it warms and it cools. That's how it's been for an awful, awful long time.)

The meeting was organised by Danish group Climate Sense and the lobby group Committee for a Constructive Tomorrow (CFACT).

So, at least not everyone is fooled. Believe you me, there's no consensus on this rubbish of global warming… far, far from it. There are thousands of scientists that can't even get a paper published. We've gone through the stuff, the leaked emails, to show HOW they were BLACKLISTED from getting stuff published in major publications. In the world of science AND medicine, you'll find this is how things are. If you get your name published with a theory in one of these major journals, it's then acted upon as some sort of gospel truth; at least it's up for examination. If you're blacklisted and they won't put your theory in there or your findings in there, then no one has ever heard of you and all they're left with is the PRO-warming nonsense. You think politics doesn't come into areas of life, like science? It's ALL political. Science is all political. Everything they get at the scientific level is from massive grants, GRANTS. They live on grants all the time from government and private organizations. When you look into – and you should look into – the various groups who are given grants by the big foundations for instance, like Rockefeller, you would be surprised at some of them and what they're looking in to.

So much is going on. It's a done deal because the big business summit was held 6 months ago, pretty well, where they decided… Big business is going for it because they will PROFIT from it. YOU will pay at the bottom; they will profit at the top. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I'll also put a link up tonight after the show if I can get anything up at all, since XplorNet keeps cutting me back with my speed to sort of annoy me or get rid of me; that's probably the real reason. This link will take you to Breitbart.tv where you will hear Al Gore in the early days with a totally different view of CO2 where he said that CO2 FOLLOWED global warming whereas now he is saying that CO2 is CAUSING global warming.

Uncovered Testimony: Gore Admits Temperatures Cause CO2 to Increase Not Other Way Around (breitbart.tv)

But the facts don't matter to good ole Al. It doesn't matter to him; he's a TRUE psychopath. He has that energy too that the creative psychopath has, abundant energy. Facts don't really matter. Being caught in the lie doesn't matter either. They don't blush. Psychopaths can't blush. If you caught them red-handed doing something, they would tell you to your face that they weren't doing it at all, you must be deceiving yourself. They never blush. That's why they go into politics. When you see the mud that's thrown at these people when they're running for politics – which is a dirty business – they never blush. They never get embarrassed or walk away, or hide their heads, or say 'my God, the public know.' No. That never happens. A true psychopath feels no guilt. Because they're all ego, they REALLY believe they can bluff their way through anything. They have such a great confidence in their own skills and righteousness, no matter what they've done.

This article is from Spiked Magazine. It's to do with a big ad that was put out through the newspapers by The Optimum Population Trust, another backer of the global warming stuff since they want to reduce the population with all the laws they're going to bring out. Remember, The Optimum Population Trust advises Prince Charles AND the British Parliament AND other countries' Parliaments because – through this foundation – they've got branches ACROSS THE WORLD with the same mantras and the same psychopaths at the top all working their way up. If they were told there was some other mantras to chant – just like Orwell's sheep – they'd do it… without a blush, again, when they're going to keep their high salaries. They will say anything they are told to say. This is the new BELIEF for the day; they'll rant it away to you, even if it's opposite yesterday's rant. That's how they are.

From Spike Magazine it says…

Treating human beings as little more than carbon
As the Copenhagen summit starts, the rise of eco-Malthusianism shows the anti-human, future-fearing essence of climate-change alarmism.
Frank Furedi / Monday 7 December 2009 / Spiked.com

Below a picture of 12 black babies, the caption warns: 'Babies in Dakar, Senegal.' Then, with a literary sigh of relief, the subtitle to the caption points out that a 'cost analysis commissioned by [the Optimum Population Trust] claims that family planning is the cheapest way to reduce carbon emissions' (1). In other words, the destructiveness of such babies, these carbon emitters, can be counteracted if we prevent them from being born in the first place.

I hope people really, really, REALLY get the HORROR of what's coming down the pike here… under this con of global warming. People look back in history and they wonder why such horrible things and mass slaughters are ever allowed to get to that point where they can do it. You know something… it's because PEOPLE CAN'T BELIEVE IT WOULD EVER COME DOWN THE PIKE AND REALLY HAPPEN. That's why they continue to happen. They don't have to take you into camps to kill you or send you off to Siberia; they can sterilize you without you even KNOWING about it.

The big boys TALKED about it in think tanks at the United Nations. Arthur Koestler worked on such projects. He says 'we can sterilize them; should we put it in the food, the water or inject them with it?' Then other big players too, like Julian Huxley, who worked for the United Nations and UNESCO, who said that UNESCO's goal was to 'indoctrinate a generation of the WORLD into a common culture,' amongst other things, mind you. He said that maybe just the wealthy elite, those who DESERVE to come through into a new society, will be allowed to have children, or else they will be given the ANTIDOTE to the sterilization. You see, we have ALL the warnings leading up to something awful but no one really BELIEVES it. No one believes it… even when it's actually happening. As I say, they don't have to bring you into camps to sterilize you. Just look at the statistics in the West.

This article continues. It says…

The odious Optimum Population Trust (OPT) is a zombie-like Malthusian organisation devoted to the cause of human depletion. Looking at the article by John Vidal in the Guardian, (A: By the way, The Guardian is one of a whole GROUP of newspapers across the world that all got together, their owners got together, and decided to put out massive ads across Copenhagen right around where the meeting is taking place to tell the politicians to SIGN THE TREATY. And you think that the media is non-political? …they are sort of in the middle of everything, they just stand there and they are neutral? NO. They never have been.) which contained that photo of 12 black babies and reported on the OPT's new initiative inviting people in the West to offset their CO2 emissions by sponsoring 'family planning' in the developing world, I am not sure what I found most shocking: the message conveyed through the photograph, or the absence of any anger over the OPT and its supporters' casual devaluation of human life.

There was a time when people who measured the value of human life through sombre calculations based on cost-benefit analyses were regarded with suspicion and contempt. Throughout most of history human life has been valued in and of itself; it has been seen as possessing a special quality that could not be reduced to quantities to be measured by misanthropic accountants.(A: That's a good term, misanthropic accountants.) Yes, the human body also has a physical dimension, and it can be reduced to its chemical constituents. But isn't there also something very special about life?

(A: Well, you see, up until not too long ago, there WAS. Remember again, going back to Julian Huxley at UNESCO at the United Nations, he said 'we must start to train the public in the DEVALUATION of the specialness of human life.'

Well, you've lived through it, most of you; you're still living through it. You're seeing… there's more abortion clinics across the planet than Hitler ever had taking smoke coming away from his ovens… and it's normal. It's normal in society. There are baby parts getting sold across the planet… for big bucks. They're putting fetal tissue in your vaccines... big bucks again. Everything has got a cost, doesn't it, to these characters at the top. They've all got profits off everything; nothing is wasted is it? Even when they destroy you, they waste nothing; they profit from it.)

Sadly we live in a world where, for many climate crusaders, a photo of 12 beaming babies is somehow a bad thing, a symbol of the problems we face. Why? Because the OPT has discovered that 'every £4 (A: About $8.) spent on contraception' saves 'one tonne of CO2 (A: What a joke.) being added to global warming'. It claims that the most effective way to fight climate change is to get rich Western people to offset their own carbon emissions by paying for birth control programmes (A: They're talking mainly about abortions by the way.) in poor nations. (A: Look at the funding to all the abortion clinics. It's all through the foundations AND your own governments. Again, aimed mainly at all these different countries but including your own too. That's the reality of life. …all hiding behind climate change. You know, when the sea is warmed, it gives off CO2; warm water gives off CO2 as opposed to cool water. It's warmed by solar radiation, not by some warm front that comes in over the sea. It's warmed by direct SOLAR radiation.)

This one here actually says this. There's another article here. This is by The Telegraph. I've read that one already so I'll just say the first part of it again because it's important.

Copenhagen climate summit: global warming 'caused by sun's radiation'
Global warming is caused by radiation from the sun, according to a leading scientist speaking out at an alternative "sceptics' conference" in Copenhagen.
By Louise Gray / 8 Dec 2009

I hope everybody goes into this particular site and gives him some support. Read in to how CO2 is formed FROM THE SEA for yourselves and do searches for it. That was standard tuition until they came up with a POLITICAL cause under the guise of global warming.

Again, I'll go into the big psychopathic con games. Isn't it amazing - I find it's amazing - how the media can immediately distract you from one major crisis? The same media that's gotten together and now is telling politicians through their own advertising to pass this treaty at Copenhagen. The same media had everybody petrified supposedly for the last 6 months about the death and pandemics… body bags, mass graves were going to get built for the flu outbreak and all the horrible ways we would die and how society would come to a complete standstill unless we got the flu shot. Amazing eh? It's the same media that suddenly forgot about the PREVIOUS crisis that happened JUST before that. It's one crisis after another because we live in a time of crisis creation. It was the bank collapse supposedly and the massive bailout that every country on the planet had to bail out all the banks that had just plundered them. Then it went on to the flu crisis.

People were stocking up on Tamiflu and all this kind of stuff. Some people were getting 3 or 4 injections thinking that if one is good then 4 are better. They were coming down with all kinds of illnesses and believe you me, most of these illnesses will come down the pike a few years from now from these inoculations. This article is from Health Day to show you the kind of scams. Just like the scam where every country put out BILLIONS of bucks to guarantee - and they SIGNED that – they would buy 5 years of continuing flu shots from the big corporations. 5 years… and suddenly, there's no more flu. It's just gone. Once they signed, it was gone. Right?

Tamiflu's Effectiveness
Finds no proof the drug prevents flu complications such as pneumonia
TUESDAY, Dec. 8 (HealthDay News)

No evidence exists that the widely used influenza drug Tamiflu prevents pneumonia or other complications in otherwise healthy patients who come down with the flu, a new review contends.

Claims about the effectiveness of the antiviral drug against flu-related complications have influenced governments worldwide to stockpile Tamiflu (oseltamivir) as part of their preparations for a global pandemic, the review authors said.

"Governments around the world have spent billions of [dollars] on a drug that the scientific community now finds itself unable to judge," said Dr. Fiona Godlee, editor-in-chief of the British Medical Journal, which published the article online Wednesday. The review was done by BMJ and Channel 4 News in Great Britain.

The authors of the new review, which updates a review published in 2006, analyzed 20 published clinical trials of Tamiflu that examined prevention, treatment and adverse reactions. However, the analysis was hampered by the "paucity of good data" available from the trial authors and Roche, the maker of Tamiflu, the study authors said.

This meant the review authors couldn't verify the results of eight important trials that were never fully published. These eight trials, which were included in the previous review, were omitted from the new review.

Based on the data available to them, the authors of the new review concluded they have "no confidence in claims that Tamiflu reduces the risk of complications of influenza in otherwise healthy adults," and said the drug should not be used in routine control of seasonal flu.(A: And what were they doing with a lot of people? The governments and the socialized health care societies were FORCING folk to take it that they thought could have a sniffle or be allergic to something… FORCING THEM to take the stuff.)

Because previous evidence about Tamiflu's effects on flu complications may be unreliable, governments should establish studies to monitor the safety of Tamiflu and other neuraminidase inhibitors, said review leader Chris Del Marr, a professor at Bond University in Australia, and colleagues.

The review findings call into question "not only the effectiveness of oseltamivir but the whole system by which drugs are evaluated, regulated and promoted,"(A: You're darned right they should be.) Godlee and a BMJ colleague wrote in an accompanying editorial.

"Once a trial is completed, there needs to be ready access to the raw data behind any analyses used to license and market a drug," they said.

The same as it should be behind getting ahold of the raw data that dreamed up the con game of global warming… from 2 papers; initially 1 paper, written by the major suspect. We've all to change our lives because of that too and we can't get the raw data. I'll also put up a link, if I can find it because I've lost a few links tonight on the computer. There's a video up there with Al Gore where you actually hear him reversing his opinion on what's causing global warming, the cart before the horse.

The Herald Sun has got a good article here on Al Gore. I told you they are going to ignore all the scandals that have come out with the released emails and so on.

Climategate: Gore falsifies the record
(A: Well, what's new with Al Gore?)
Andrew Bolt Blog / Andrew Bolt / Thursday, December 10, 2009

Al Gore has studied the Climategate emails with his typically rigorous eye and dismissed them as mere piffle:

Q: How damaging to your argument was the disclosure of e-mails from the Climate Research Unit at East Anglia University? (A: This is the main one they're taking all their data from and copying it.)

A: To paraphrase Shakespeare, it's sound and fury signifying nothing. I haven't read all the e-mails, but the most recent one is more than 10 years old. (A: First lie. That's the first lie he comes out with. But that's so quick, from a psychopath too. They say that without a problem.) These private exchanges between these scientists do not in any way cause any question about the scientific consensus. (A: There is no consensus except all the paid-off ones who are on board and get their paychecks from these characters at the IPCC.)

And in case you think that was a mere slip of the tongue:

Q: There is a sense in these e-mails, though, that data was hidden and hoarded, which is the opposite of the case you make [in your book] about having an open and fair debate.

(A: Al waffles through that one as well and repeats it again that 'oh these emails were 10 years old,' etc, etc. He denies it 3 times. It's all piffle and it's years-old stuff.)

A: I think it's been taken wildly out of context. The discussion you're referring to was about two papers that two of these scientists felt shouldn't be accepted as part of the IPCC report. Both of them, in fact, were included, referenced, and discussed. So an e-mail exchange more than 10 years ago including somebody's opinion that a particular study isn't any good is one thing, but the fact that the study ended up being included and discussed anyway is a more powerful comment on what the result of the scientific process really is.

In fact, thrice denied:

These people are examining what they can or should do to deal with the P.R. dimensions of this, but where the scientific consensus is concerned, it's completely unchanged. What we're seeing is a set of changes worldwide that just make this discussion over 10-year-old e-mails kind of silly.

In fact, as Watts Up With That shows, (A: That's one of the other web sites.) one Climategate email was from just two months ago. The most recent was sent on November 12 - just a month ago. (A: Gore knows this though.) The emails which have Tom Wigley seeming (to me) to choke on the deceit are all from this year. Phil Jones' infamous email urging other Climategate scientists to delete emails is from last year. (A: Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There's a caller on the line. It's Sati from Illinois. Are you there?

Sati: Thank you very much for having me on your show. I really appreciate it. I wanted to mention, I am with a group We Are Change Chicago and on last Tuesday, the day after Obama gave his speech about the escalation in Afghanistan, we were part of a huge rally where we marched all through the downtown area with about 30 different groups. Afterwards, we received an email from someone WITHIN the organization saying that they don't want us there anymore because We Are Change… they called us an extreme, right-wing organization that doesn't believe in the global warming theory and they also called us racists. I'm wondering if you can give any information about these elitists' foundations coming in and taking over the anti-war movement? Bill Ayers was there as well.

Alan: There's nothing new in this at all. As long as they can smear you with something that's meant to disable you emotionally right away, like Fascist or whatever, or racist, to shut you down, they're don't really want people REALLY inquiring into the REAL causes of things… the REAL causes of things. They just announced there that the puppet government that they've got in Afghanistan, the leader has said that the US troops will be needed there up until 2028! Before they even went in, Britain said to them they'll be there for 40 years. So there's nothing… they don't really want people in who are asking questions about THAT and other related topics. They don't want that at all.

Sati: I see. Thank you very much.

Alan: Thanks for calling.

You've got to understand that a lot of these groups out there have their own agendas. I've seen one group that was a 9/11 Truth Movement that quickly taken over by someone who came to the lead of it. That was typical of the communists, how they used their tactics. By the way, they're still training them by the same people who were communists and probably still are. They took over this particular group and they're all for the global warming agenda and they think they should be fighting the global warming and going along with it all. Everything gets infiltrated by professionals. Believe you me, the ones who trained the communists and they had over 400 known ones in Britain right up till the Berlin wall came down. They didn't go away. A lot of them lived there. It's the same in the US. They had thousands in the US. So they're still working with the same agenda. Totalitarianism, it doesn't matter if it comes through Fascism or Communism, it's the same darn thing. Everything really is Fascist in the end when this clique at the top rule all the resources of the planet and live the high life while you live at the bottom producing and paying for them to live the high life that they're on. They will slaughter as many as they can to keep those positions for them and their families once they're in power. As I say, it doesn't matter what it's called. Other philosophers have said the same thing in the past, that it doesn't matter what this totalitarian system actually is, it's technically Fascist in nature.

You look at the big corporations that are on board PUSHING for the treaty to be signed because they're literally going to get incredible land grabs out of it too under these carbon-trading schemes. Canada just gave a massive multi-million dollar contract, to I think it's Shell Oil, across Canada to put pipelines to sink carbon dioxide into the ground. Amazing eh? …to sink carbon dioxide into the ground. The big boys will rake millions off this.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Global Warming Caused by Sun-Telegraph
("Copenhagen climate summit: global warming 'caused by sun's radiation' " by Louise Gray (telegraph.co.uk) - Dec. 5, 2009.)

Gore Reverses "cause" of Global Warming When it Suits Him
(Video: "Uncovered Testimony: Gore Admits Temperatures Cause CO2 to Increase Not Other Way Around".)

Humans are Just Carbon Problems
("Treating human beings as little more than carbon" by Frank Furedi (spiked-online.com) - Dec. 7, 2009.)

New Data on Ineffectiveness of Tamiflu
("Review Questions Tamiflu's Effectiveness" (healthday.com) - Dec. 9, 2009.)

Al Gore Lies Again concerning Leaked E-mails
("Climategate: Gore falsifies the record" by Andrew Bolt, Herald Sun (news.com.au) - Dec. 9, 2009.)

- Alternate Link for Above
(prisonplanet.com)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 10, 2009 (#469)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 10, 2009:
Greening -- A Tyranny By Any Other Name, Is Tyranny, No Less in Deception Game:
"Green Agenda to be Enforced
With Lower Ranks Paying the Cost, Of Course,
Forced Abortion and Sterilization,
The Green Way to Solve Equation,
Every Exhaled Breath You Make
Is Killing Tadpoles in Some Far-Off Lake,
The Targeted Enemy therefore is Man
According to Think-Tank which Designed Plan,
In 'The First Global Revolution' by Club of Rome,
U.N. to be in Charge of Nation and Home,
Deciding Who's to Breed and Who's Rejected,
A Hell on Earth, Only Officials Protected"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 10, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 10, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 10th 2009. Newcomers, you should look into .com. That's the official web site and on there you'll see all the other official sites I have up there. Anything you see on the net outside of these are not mine. Bookmark the alternate sites for future use in case the big servers go down; they've done that in the past a few times. That way you can get the latest shows, the audios, for download right away. [Sites listed above.]

Remember, that you are the audience and that you bring me to you five nights a week. This is a full time… It's more than an occupation; it's not a job either. It's more that that. We are going through the most tremendous changes in history. We're going through the culmination of really of a couple hundred years of strategy and planning and it's all happening right now as the world is being transformed into a new structure and authority… for the next THOUSAND years, literally, which will affect everything. It's up to you to keep me going and you can find out how to purchase the items I have for sale at .com and you can donate to me as well. [Options listed above.] It's up to yourselves how you want to do it; it ends up in the same place anyway. Some of these instant wiring systems are more costly than others so check them out for yourselves or you can just send cash. For those who get disks burned and passed to them of the talks I've given and this happens all the time at little meetings all over the planet - that I hear about afterward generally - you can get in touch with me at [address above] and that should get to me without any problems whatsoever. One thing about the mail, they’re very good, even when they open it sometimes, they still make sure that everything comes through. I know when they open it because they put a bundle in the box - all at the same time, that they’ve held up for a week - with a rubber band around it. I’m the only person in the area that gets it that way, but that’s the world we live in.

It’s a totalitarian new system where we’ve been told we have a NEW FREEDOM. George Bush Jr said that; he’s introducing the NEW FREEDOMS. It was never asked by any reporter anywhere what he meant by this legal declaration - and it was a LEGAL DECLARATION - what the new freedoms were. It’s odd that the reporters never ask the obvious isn’t it? It’s like when his dad came out with the ‘new world order’ on September the 11th 1990, no one says, ‘well what do you mean by new world order; what does it mean?’ No one asked him that question; they just winked in that old Masonic way. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt. This is Cutting Through The Matrix. It’s interesting when you look at recent history really, since about World War II onwards. You can go before that too and I have gone into that before, into the past, ancient past, middle and up to the present. It’s good to see how things really don’t seem to transpire by themselves. It’s good to see how BIG organizations WORK on cultures and population and geo-politics to get them all ready for the next phase, the next wave they’re going to bring the populations through into this global agenda.

For the last 100 years, and before that, great plans and great powers were at work to destroy the cultures that really were called ‘first world countries’ at that time. They knew, even before they set up the League of Nations that became the United Nations, that to bring in their idealized, totally controlled society, world wide, that they’d have to destroy any part of a culture and any culture which was not all-inclusive in its particular way of viewing others. That went for religions too. Any religion which was not all-inclusive of everyone else’s religion HAD TO BE destroyed and they’d replace it, they said, eventually with a form of pantheism. It’s called New Age today. They started that on a big roll since the 1930s BUT before that too even in the 1800s with Madame Blavatsky. She was on the go. She was set out to try and introduce the blending of the cultures especially of India with that of the West. They had a plan THEN that eventually they would open up the floodgates from India, under a British Commonwealth system, for interchange of population. So anyone who has a sort of exclusive culture or has an exclusive believe that they believe is the only real belief there is to have, has to be literally put down by any means possible, eventually just blacklisted and banned if need be, outlawed in fact.

A lot of these changes were done by what people thought were grassroots movements and political movements, generally called the left. Now many of the left wing followers became true believers in this great utopic idea they had. It seemed to make sense to them that everyone should be the same, etc, etc, etc without even thinking first if everyone is the same, that means even their own culture has to be pretty well destroyed in the process, without telling them what kind of culture would replace it. Who wants to work towards a world state where you have a fixed, a rigidly fixed, intergenerational dominant group ruling over all the rest? The dominant group ruling in luxury and all the rest of you kept deprived of the material things of living. That’s part of totalitarianism, when an elite hold the keys to the distribution of manufactured goods and so on. Population CONTROL has always been part of it as well.

They started with countries in Europe, on the population control rant a long time ago. At that time, it was seen to be the RIGHT wing, the far right that wanted it. They were terrified that the lesser breeds, the commoners, would outbreed the elite type… even though the elite always had far more children than the commoners did. That’s absolute nonsense to think it was the other way around… although that is promoted as the myth. I have books going back to the early 1900s when the big families, the Lords and peer families, the hereditary peer groups, were churning out books calling for restrictions of birth for the commoners. There were a lot of books written as well to counter that by different ministers on behalf of the public using the statistics of births and saying ‘why don’t the elite give us an example?’ They would point out how many this family and that family had, at the top of the food chain.

You can never take things at face value. You must always look at all sides of everything and see who’s really PLAYING the sides. I’ve always said there is another side pulling the strings of both sides. That’s a fact; there is. They always need TRUE, grassroots believers, the mob, the sheep in Animal Farm that George Orwell talked about that simply are there to CHANT the slogans and don’t even notice when the slogan has altered. They chant it just the same; they are the masses of followers.

China, years ago and I've read the old reports over the years from China that led up to be what is now being proclaimed as the world's example; it's the MODEL STATE for the world to follow. The United Nations has said that many times. With their one child per family policy, which is by the way a LIE. I read a report a few months ago that said that China had been actually easing their one child per family policy for those families who could AFFORD IT, to pay a fine. This is eugenics, you see. Meaning, those who can afford to have more children, obviously have made it up the food chain in the psychopathic struggle of psychopaths as they get up into the politburos that every town over there has. The politburos decide even what businesses they are going to have now, you understand. It's really a fascist system in disguise. In fact, it's a more perfected fascist system under the guise of communism. YOU all down there must suffer because we're all really struggling but WE at the top have to live a higher lifestyle because we're dignitaries and important people you see. That's the hypocrisy of communism, but they're held up to be the model state for the world.

It's purely eugenics and it will be worse and worse as time goes on because it will mean these families, which are already intergenerational – these politburo types – are psychopathic. They will marry other types of psychopaths that came up the same way. Only psychopaths struggle up to the top. They've got a LUST for power ordinary folk can not imagine. They interbreed and the produce worse psychopaths so HELL IS COMING DOWN THE ROAD. The best laid plans of mice and men, gang aft agley, as they say.

At the Copenhagen meeting, apart from looting the world and making us all poor in the process, which is part of the agenda, absolute poverty – I'm not kidding about that – and governmental regulation under so many guises but technically it's the communistic techniques they're using on the masses, as I said they would, while the fascist elite remain in place with their big multinational, international trading deals selling carbon offsets and all the rest of it. So here they are at Copenhagen prattling on about China being the model state, again, for the world to follow. Obviously China is also using it as a bastion against paying too many carbon taxes, even through they're the world's main polluter now because they have all the factories that the West GAVE them through the GATT Treaty. The Westerners snoozed through this as their factories were sent abroad and the tax payers of the West PAID FOR IT ALL, by the way, the whole transplanting process.

This article here is about Copenhagen and about what's being discussed there. It's from the China Daily.

Population control called key to deal
(Alan: So there you go, right into it… money and population control. PROFIT really, and population control. You know darn well that it's got nothing to do with what they're CLAIMING. It's a beautiful CON, saving the climate, saving the world and all that stuff. It's a great con to get everybody poor while they take it all from the ones at the bottom and bring in really a communistic society across the globe.)
By Li Xing (China Daily) / 2009-12-10

COPENHAGEN: Population and climate change are intertwined but the population issue has remained a blind spot when countries discuss ways to mitigate climate change and slow down global warming, according to Zhao Baige, vice-minister of National Population and Family Planning Commission of China (NPFPC). (A: We're going to have these same commissioners or Commissariats in all the Western countries shortly too.)

"Dealing with climate change is not simply an issue of CO2 emission reduction but a comprehensive challenge involving political, economic, social, cultural and ecological issues, and the population concern fits right into the picture," said Zhao, who is a member of the Chinese government delegation. (A: And I will add, communist. It's still communist as far as they proclaim.)

Many studies link population growth with emissions and the effect of climate change. (A: Well, it's interesting. What the Chinese are quoting here are statistics, all fudged. Statistics are great. I think it was Theo Roosevelt that first said this. He said, "You have lies; you have damn lies; and then you have statistics." It's another FORM of putting across a LIE. But if you think 'well, it's a scientific thing, then it must be a fact;' that's why they use statistics, and they fudge them all the time. They use the London School of Economics and the UN's own statistics to bolster up their argument here. That's very interesting indeed. They have all these fake statistic of how much CO2 they'll cut back if they reduce the population by X-amount and so on and all rest of it.)

She admitted that China's population program is not without consequences, as the country is entering the aging society fast and facing the problem of gender imbalance. (A: Ha. Ha. You see, infanticide is always going on well and good in China. They prefer the males and now they have an imbalance of way too many males over females. They have an aging population and they aren't producing enough children. The UN has said itself it sees population of China declining DRASTICALLY around 2050, in fact beyond the state of recovery. It's amazing how that's their goal at the United Nations. It's to put whole places under to such an extent they can't recover. There's actually an extent where you start to die off, the breed type dies off. That's also slated for the West and that's actually working, has been working for years. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, filling in the blanks that most media leaves out. I'm showing you what's behind the articles they produce, what are the REASONS for producing them, what you are intended to believe. They play on your ignorance. They always present things with a great slant by omission generally, by omitting any other factors, except favorable. Favorable factors, kind of like pharma does when they get special doctors who are well paid to do it, to fudge reports on drugs. It's the same idea; just OMIT all the bad stuff, you know, like deaths and paralysis and stuff like that.

Everything is meant to be propaganda. Everything is propaganda. Most people unfortunately don't know that. The average person out there, in this audience, WILL know that but people outside who don't listen to shows like this will read the regular news, hear the regular media and they think no further than they're getting told everything there is to know about something and that's all there is. Their opinions are FORMED for them by deliberation by those who set them up, the process that sets them up.

Margaret Sanger was a great eugenicist who really spearheaded the abortion and the sterilization industries. She lived in the US and she formed the group called Family Planning. She HATED various races; she thought they were utterly inferior. She was a great admirer of Nazi Germany and Communist Russia; she loved Stalin as well. She called children WEEDS by the way, WEEDS, and thought having children really, for a female, was abhorrent in a sense, like popping out a pumpkin; I think she actually used that term. You should CRINGE when you realize who the people are behind the big movements that are ongoing today. You should CRINGE when you realize the HATRED for humanity that they actually have.

It's carried on by big elitist groups. The United Nations is famous for talking about getting women freedom of choices and all this stuff and it's not that at all. You have to go into the Kissinger report where they said that the third world countries really pose a threat to the state, meaning the US and the Western world, by their overpopulation and a big plan went into work to try and encourage women to go in for sterilizations and abortions across the third world countries. We're funding so many outfits out there that you can't count them all now, through government funding and foundational funding under the umbrella of the United Nations which pretends it keeps its hands clean. They will say they don't actually do abortions themselves. They just have this umbrella group of NGOs and foundations and government grants beneath to them that do it all for them. They're all hypocrites and liars.

The Optimum Population Trust is part of this. It's run by the TOP fascists. They admit themselves – I read the article from their own web site some time ago – where they said that most people view them as very rich, elitist, aristocratic types, WHITE, he says, "which we are." The chairman says, "Which we ARE." They're all aristocrats, the type of Charles Galton Darwin's stock. I think one of their heads right now is Sir Crispin Tickell, a man who's not too funny at all regardless of his name. He really puts Malthus up on a pedestal for his policies and said they should be followed through. I think he's also related to the Darwin's. Now they've come out with these carbon offsets for the wealthier countries. All of you struggling out there, you are the wealthy people apparently, according to them. Not the big boys within the Optimum Population Trust; THEY won't pay for this, YOU will. They've got a web site up now – it just came out, it popped out – called Pop Offsets, POP Offsets. I suppose it means population offsets. Or it could be offset the pop, you know, the papa. It could be that too. Maybe it's to 'pop off' the child rather than 'pop out' the child. It's up to you to take your pick. This is from their own web site. I'll put the links up on the site at the end of the show if XplorNet gives me the speed to put up a few bits, which they seldom do now. They do attack you, believe you me, if you're not 'on board' with the agenda. It says here…

PopOffsets
OPT for lower population, lower emissions.

Welcome to PopOffsets.

PopOffsets is unique - the first project in the world that, simply and transparently, enables individuals and organizations to offset their carbon footprint by funding the unmet need for family planning (A: That's the Sanger abortion and sterilization agenda which they call family planning.) and the removal of the many barriers to women who want smaller families. (A: They always pretend they are so caring and they CARE… They don't care a darn about women at home or abroad, by the way.)

Our project recognizes the intrinsic links between increasing CO2 emissions, climate change and the world's ever-growing population. (A: So they give you a site here where you can actually donate to it, to offset your own carbon credits. This will take off because we're all going to get PERSONAL billings from the governments on what they estimate we've used for carbon, what we've cost them in carbon for you. We're going to get that. People will be using sites like this to offset their carbon, all the big players. They show you all the different things but it says,

What is PopOffsets?
PopOffsets is an initiative of the Optimum Population Trust - a leading UK-based environmental charity (A: You know, one of these foundations.) which has many prominent patrons. (A: PROMINENT patrons, you know.)

What we do and how it works
PopOffsets is the world's first project that offers to offset carbon dioxide emissions through the most cost-effective and environmentally beneficial means - family planning. (A: Which, as I say, is abortion and sterilization, for the third world mainly, on this particular site here. This is sold to you like a wonderful ad; they want to help people. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've gone on over the years about giving you sort of previews of the world to come, showing you instances that were happening at the time and projecting what will happen in the future and talking about the PROCESS, the deliberate science and process behind DEGRADING society. I've gone through the Huxley material. I did it again last night, a little bit of it with Julian Huxley who said they must convince the public and teach them and condition them to stop holding life up to such a high pedestal, as something special. Human life he was talking about and how they would have to see themselves as another kind of animal.

It was from his particular statement that various books were churned out like Soylent Green. It was actually a covert way to try and make the planet FEARFUL about overpopulation, although it kind of had the other effect in the movie version, where the people end up eating the remains of others, like little cake bars, green bars that came out of crematoriums. I went on about the process too, that abortion was the FIRST pillar to help us get into the acceptance of killing people really, KILLING people, which is killing OURSELVES. We all come from the same start basically and it's killing ourselves off. So it dehumanizes us in the process until it's normal and you say 'so what…' and then it becomes a business. Abortion industry is a big business. Then they say 'what can we do with this fetal tissue?' 'Well, we can experiment with it and find PROFITS in different ways.' They sell parts to different laboratories and pharma companies; they put them in vaccines even, fetal tissue. I remember in Russia, it was interesting; it was quite a few years back. They showed you how the elite of Russia were quite literally, under a particular scientist's theory, they were basically putting babies into blenders and having the stuff injected into them thinking it would give them youthfulness and so on. That was a big, I think it was a BBC or a Panoramic production.

Nothing DISGUSTS me at all anymore because I saw this years ago. I knew the agenda. I knew all the different PARTS of the agenda. I was conscious of it all as I was living through it. When it happened, all these different things, knowing where it was going too, and the fact that it was organizational - abilities and brains - that were obviously all connected together that were bringing us along this particular path. Again, about 6 months ago, maybe a year ago, I mentioned about the new method of disposing of bodies where Sweden was using them in these big heating facilities. Something like New York's got. New York has got a system where the garbage can get burned to produce heat for certain accommodations and homes and houses. Well, in Sweden they also have that – I don't know how many places in Sweden but one city in particular – and they dispose of their corpses in there too, to add a few thermal points to their system. Now they've come out with a cremation fluid. I've mentioned this before too. It's called GREEN… anything that's got the word GREEN to it must mean it's okay. They should really call abortion green too, green abortion, green sterilization, and it will take off better if they use that slogan. This is from Mother Nature News, which is a greenie magazine of course. This is called…

Green (gross?) cremation method produces liquid fertilizer
(A: No doubt, it will be for Monsanto and the big boys who are in the process of taking over the last of the independent food supplies on the planet.)
New climate-friendly(A: I love the terminology, it's so Soviet.) cremation method uses water and lye to transform human remains into 200 gallons of liquid fertilizer.
(A: See, there's a profit in everything, everything. In China - the model state for the world that kills prisoners who they know have a certain DNA type and blood type to match existing people who want donor organs - they just execute them and take them. What a business eh? Anything goes in this disgusting world of today, but you've got to understand who's running it.)
By Stephanie Rogers Mon, Dec 07 2009 / mnn.com

There are an awful lot of people on the planet, and modern methods for disposing of human remains aren't exactly earth-friendly. (A: Earth friendly, oh my goodness, earth friendly and green friendly.) A new alternative to cremation and burial could change that — and even increase food production for those still living — if we can get past the 'ick factor' of liquefying our dead relatives. (A: Well that will be easy won't it? That will be pretty easy, now that you have all these dysfunctional families or people don't even know who their parents are, so who will be there to care?)

"Resomation" is the process of disposing of human corpses through alkaline hydrolysis, which occurs when the body is sealed inside a vault-like tube filled with water and lye and steam-heated to 300 degrees. (A: Well hey, that's going to give off carbon and pollute the atmosphere.) Three hours later, some powdery bone fragments and 200 gallons of fluid are all that remains.

Essentially, Resomation — which was developed by Scottish company Resomation Ltd. (A: They'd been right into the whiskey there I think.) — is just like the natural process of decomposition, but on fast-forward. The fluid can be safely dumped into sewer systems or even used as fertilizer on farms and gardens — a proposal that some say comes a little too close to 'Soylent Green' for comfort.

But unlike cremation and traditional burial, alkaline hydrolysis doesn't lead to toxic chemicals like dioxin and formaldehyde being released into the atmosphere or water supply. It also uses 80 percent less energy than standard cremation. (A: It's good too for the chemical companies that make all the chemicals to do it all, but they won't mention that.)

Despite its apparent eco-friendliness (A: Eco-friendliness, it's all green and everything else.), it's improbable that Resomation will become a common way to deal with human remains any time soon. It seems unlikely at best that Americans will accept pouring what's left of a loved one down a drain or consuming food that has been sprayed with corpse juice.

But as world leaders struggle to deal with the immense specter of global warming, solutions like Resomation may become more palatable — and it's already accepted by many religious faiths, including Catholicism. (A: Oh really?)

"We're not opposed to it. Environmentally, it seems like the right thing to do," says Catholic Cemeteries manager of marketing Amy Profenna. (A: I think she's very profane there.)

So there you go! There you go. You can buy off anybody to say anything can't you. Of course, no one would actually take the bribe would they? Not in this world, it's so honest and transparent. Quite something. Quite something.

There's another article here on the carbon trading. This was predicted AGES ago with this carbon trading scheme, how it was really meant for the rich at the top of course and all the poor folk down below are going to be raped and pillaged to get the taxes out of them and eventually leading to the abolition of private property - which is on the list, by the way, of the United Nations. So they've got a few different planks to go, not far mind you; they're on the road. It says here from clickgreen.org.uk. Everything is green now isn't it? Remember, green was the sacred color, meaning the successful conclusion of communism. The red star was the star of the revolutionary part of it. You've got red lodges, black lodges, green lodges, blue lodges, and so on, the 'rainbow' coalition. It says here…

UK's richest man could make more than £1bn from carbon trading scheme
Could Mittal be laughing all the way to the bank with his carbon credits?
by ClickGreen staff / Published Mon 07 Dec 2009

New analysis released by climate change NGO Sandbag has revealed that the UK's richest resident, Lakshmi Mittal, CEO and major shareholder of the steel giant ArcelorMittal, could make over £1 billion between now and 2012 from his company's participation in the EU's Emissions Trading Scheme. (A: They were given all these things initially BY the EU Parliament, these corporations, given them FREE and they've already been making MILLIONS off them by trading them to each other. YOU won't get that option at the bottom. You might get the option of getting a little reduction if you go into the Optimum Population Trust to sterilize people abroad. That might be for you, but you won't be able to get into the big group at the top that can do what these guys do.)

ArcelorMittal has over 14 million emissions permits that it does not need (A: It's bought them in advance, or it was given to them or they've already traded them from other companies.) in 2008, a figure which Sandbag estimates will rise to 80 million by 2012 making it by far the biggest beneficiary of the scheme across the EU. (A: It's beautiful isn't it, because you don't move anything. You don't move anything. It's better than selling debt, where nothing is moved either except blips on a computer and promissory notes.)

Sandbag has written to CEO Laksmi Mittal urging him to commit to cancelling his company's unneeded emissions permits in what would be the largest act of climate philanthropy on record. (A: Ha!) If cancelled the 80 million surplus permits would prevent 80 million tonnes worth of pollution going into the world's atmosphere (A: How? How?), equivalent to the annual emissions of Denmark (A: It's beautiful how they come up with these great statistics out of CO2 air. Utter rubbish, BUT they will make a massive killing on utter rubbish.).

Interesting too. Everyone who's worked for a corporation or a company or any government institution knows the score from the first day they arrive that there is a policy and through the scuttlebutt that's allowed to continue, or make its rounds through the companies, you know immediately if it's privately owned or if it's a director in charge, you know immediately what his policies are, what he PREFERS. It's the same in hospitals or where ever it happens to be; there is always a preferred way of doing things, that so-and-so likes. If you're a journalist and you work for a newspaper, you immediately catch on to what the OWNER likes and what the editors like, so you know what stories NOT to cover; or, if you have to cover them, you know how to SLANT it. That's standard. If you want to keep your job, that's what you do. But government institutions tend to do it a little differently. They put down through surveys, to find out who is either pro or against something, but they always make it known in advance what they prefer at the top. If you want to keep your job, you go with the guys at the top, obviously. We find that, from the Times Online, the Met office in London…

Top scientists rally to the defence of the Met Office
From The Times December 10, 2009 / Julia Slingo

The Met Office (A: That's a government office.) has embarked

(A: They're making a fortune on this con of global warming. Suddenly these scientists… you understand that during the 50s and 60s and 70s up into the 80s people were encouraged to go in, to make money, lots of money. Either they went into medicine, pharmacology, at the top that is, like selling the stuff or marketing, or go into law or to go into especially the law attached to government, or go into sciences but mainly the sort of nuclear sciences to do with missile defenses. Every so often you had this supposed race going on where both sides would claim that the other side had a faster missile or whatever and you had to come out with this new one. So you could spend your whole lifetime and retire, and lots of them did, piling in the money that came from government grants to design new missiles. After the Cold War, we suddenly emerged into the ONE system, the synthesis of capitalist/communism. The thing now is global warming. It's the new enemy you see, and that's what the Club of Rome said. They had to come up with a new enemy and man would be the problem and global warming, famine and the like would 'fit the bill'. That's their very words from their own book. Now they're going in to this. They're all getting massive grants and suddenly they're all very important scientists. Before if you worked for the weather men, you happened to meet them in conversation and you say what do you do? Well, I'm in the weather department and you sort of ah, ha, yes, very interesting and you'd walk on. But now they're suddenly famous and they're strutting around just like the people did when Kung-Fu first came out. In every Chinese restaurant you went in, in Europe, these little waiters were strutting around for the first time because everyone thought they knew Kung-Fu. The same idea, you're suddenly important. So this article says here…

The Met Office has embarked on an urgent exercise to bolster the reputation of climate-change science after the fervor over stolen e-mails.

More than 1,700 scientists have agreed to sign a statement defending the "professional integrity" of global warming research. They were responding to a round-robin request from the Met Office, which has spent four days collecting signatures. The initiative is a sign of how worried it is that e-mails stolen from the University of East Anglia are fuelling scepticism about man-made global warming at a critical moment in talks on carbon emissions.

One scientist said that he felt under pressure to sign the circular or risk losing work (A: His job.). The Met Office admitted that many of the signatories did not work on climate change. (A: So it didn't matter if you didn't work in the climate change department; that would be good enough. See, they're liars and cheats and all the rest of it aren't they? They're PROVING it by doing that survey. What department are you? Oh, I'm not in the weather. It doesn't matter, THEY won't know, just sign your name here. [Alan laughing.] So it says…)

John Hirst, the Met Office chief executive (A: So here you are, the CEO), and Julia Slingo, its chief scientist, wrote to 70 colleagues on Sunday asking them to sign "to defend our profession against this unprecedented attack to discredit us and the science of climate change". (A: Now why didn't they say 'we're very impartial about this science, what do you really think about it?' No, they said, 'it's to defend our profession against this unprecedented attack to discredit us and the science of climate change'. So there is their mindset right away. So anybody who signs that says, 'I want to keep my job; I'd better sign it.' [Alan laughing.]) They asked them to forward the petition to colleagues to generate support "for a simple statement that we . . . have the utmost confidence in the science base that underpins the evidence for global warming". (A: There are your con games right in action right there; 'do you want to keep your job?' ' Well, yeah.' Wonderful eh?)

Now, remember I've gone into the United Nations and its precursor - it's a kind of phoenix type system that's supposed to alter every so many years into its next phase because its predecessor, the League of Nations, was started up with the INTENTION of bringing in global government. It has all the departments that you have within the United Nations that your Federal government has. For everything that it's involved in, within, so does the United Nations on a much bigger scale. You don't realize that pretty much all your laws that come down the pike to do with land, with water rights, well drilling, septic systems, maintenance, conservation, all that comes from the UN. Even building a house and the structure of it for the engineers, all comes from dictates by the United Nations. Building codes of all kinds, electrical codes, plumbing codes, and on and on it goes. Well the UN now is pushing its next, they always push for the next thing. They're literally going to take over the SEA. No travel, no freedom of travel on the sea without their permission. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. The UN was designed to take over all the functions and the authority over, that really national governments had in the past, because it's to be the END of NATIONALISM. When it was set up in the first place, it said its main enemy was nationalism, followed by INDIVIDUALISM. The destruction of INDIVIDUALISM was necessary, they said, to bring in a collectivist type society… a long time ago. The only ones who will actually be individuals are those at the top who can afford it. This is from the Times, as they're after the sea. They already own the sea basically because they've already signed agreements bit by bit, then they put them into force years later.

UN may curtail 400-year-old 'freedom of the seas'
From The Times December 10, 2009 / Frank Pope, Ocean Correspondent

The 400-year-old freedom of the high seas would be lost under United Nations plans to limit environmental damage. (A: See how they will use it for EVERYTHING.)

Military forces of several nations are in discussions with conservationists over pooling surveillance resources to enforce the changes.

The "freedom of the seas" has given mariners legal rights to roam the high seas — a boundary that usually occurs 200 nautical miles from shore — at will. Specialists gathered at a London conference are saying that fishermen have been pushing the concept too far.

The United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea came into force in 1983 (A: I remember at the time talking about that and no one would listen.) and enshrined the 17th-century concept of the freedom of the seas. But while being on the high seas puts ships outside the jurisdiction of any one country, the small print of the law dictates that nations ensure that no undue damage is caused. (A: In other words, massive loopholes; they can literally go after everything, right.)

"The freedom of the high seas has always been accompanied by attendant responsibilities in the Law of the Sea Convention," said Jeff Ardron, director of the high seas programme for the Marine Conservation Biology Institute.

"They were not unfettered freedoms — they have just been treated that way. The time has come when we are finally going to implement the Law of the Sea Convention as it was intended," he told the Natural England conference, entitled Sea Change: securing a future for Europe's seas.

The UN General Assembly voted last week to impose strict regulations on high seas bottom-trawling vessels. (A: It's amazing; they let that happen to certain countries like Canada for about 30 years and now they're just stopping it. Canadians weren't allowed to fish there; it was everybody else. In fact, they put the whole fishing business pretty well under in Canada thanks to the United Nations by allowing all the Spanish ones and all the ones across over in Europe to fish everything and bottom troll it as well, across the Canadian shore lines. That was a policy to put all the Canadian fishermen out of business.) Next February a UN working group will meet to discuss establishing Marine Protected Areas on the high seas to create boundaries within which fishing activities are restricted.

Fishing vessels are not required to carry the same automatic identification system that tracks the identity of merchant ships. Closing this loophole will be crucial to keeping their activities in check, said Kristina Gjerde, the high seas policy adviser for the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.

You know eventually you're going to get no protein. You ever wonder why the mad cow thing broke out? Did it ever dawn on you that it might not have existed at all? They kept showing the same poor cow going across a barnyard, in every country, and then they slaughtered pretty well ALL of the cattle of Britain especially and a good part of Europe. Lots of folk went vegetarian, terrified. Then they told you 'don't eat fish, there's mercury in it; don't eat that.' Then H1N1 come from chickens. Go veggie, go veggie… You don't catch on to it do you, what's really going on in? The WAR is going on and you've been living through it without even KNOWING it.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Copenhagen-China and UN Praise Example of China's One Child per Family Policy
("Population control called key to deal" by Li Xing (chinadaily.com.cn) - Dec. 10, 2009.)

Optimum Population Trust-Carbon Offsets for Family "Planning"
(PopOffsets (popoffsets.com).)

- Alternate Link for Above (google.com)

Cremation Seen to be Heading "Soylent Green"
("Green (gross?) cremation method produces liquid fertilizer" by Stephanie Rogers (mnn.com) - Dec. 7, 2009.)

The Rich Strike Gold with Carbon Credit Boon
("UK's richest man could make more than £1bn from carbon trading scheme" (clickgreen.org.uk) - Dec. 7, 2009.)

Weather Scientist Pressured to Sign On to Man-Made Global Warming
("Top scientists rally to the defence of the Met Office" The Times - Dec. 10, 2009.)

UN uses its Law of the Seas to Scrap Freedom of the Seas
("UN may curtail 400-year-old 'freedom of the seas' " by Frank Pope, The Times - Dec. 10, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 11, 2009 (#470)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 11, 2009:
U.N. -- Achieving Their Goal by Conquering Soul:

"Geopolitics Culminates in World Socialist Society,
Run by Bureaucratic Levels of Every Variety,
Rule by Terror and Fear, to go on Forever,
Propaganda and Statistics used as Lever,
War's Not to be Won, as Orwell said,
But for Elite to Retain Power, Long After We're Dead,
They'll Alter Your Genes, Capture Your Soul,
Complete Dictatorial Power is their True Goal,
The Dead will Adapt, as they have Down through History,
Consumed with Pleasure and Trivia, Life's a Big Mystery,
Never Knowing Huge Dramas are Part of the Plan
To Conquer Free Spirit, the Right of Each Man"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 11, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 11, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 11th 2009. I always suggest that newcomers to the show should look into .com. That's my major web site. Scroll down, bookmark the other sites I have up there because once in a while the big ones freeze me up or cut me back and they can't find the problems and put me off for weeks on end sometimes, so this way, with the other sites up there and bookmarked, you can pull down the latest shows without a problem… I hope. I'll be going in to more of that tonight, as to the whys these things are actually happening. These are the ONLY authorized sites and you'll see [sites listed above].

As always, I keep reminding the audience at the start of the show - so as not to bore you throughout the show and I know everyone skips over this point - that you are the listeners; you are the audience that brings me to you. I'm not backed by any big foundation or NGO. I'm not selling lots and lots of products. I sell the books I've written and the disks I've made on my web site. I take donations as well. So it's up to you to keep me going. That way I'm pretty well independent. You can either buy the items that I have for sale by going in to the web site or you can donate. [Options listed above.] For those who want to send cash, it does get through. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, of the shows, who don't like to use computers, they play them on their CD players, you can get write to me at [address above].

We really are brought up in a conditioned world. Everyone is conditioned. Your conditioning depends upon your geo-political status. An example of that is the British Commonwealth, as it's called. Canada, New Zealand, Australia and other countries are involved, even India, all come under that big umbrella. They all had the same agenda, the same path. It was decided in fact, when they formed the Royal Institute of International Affairs and even before that with the Milner Group – all the bankers in fact formed the Milner Group, international bankers – that they would use the British Empire as a nucleus of world government and on that foundation they brought in the League of Nations that became the United Nations. Therefore, they had the same goals, same strategies; sometime they would be ahead in one country than in another, it depends on how fast they can roll it forward but it always come down to the same laws, regulations and same direction of the global agenda in all the countries. That's so important because some of the topics I'm going to pick tonight have to do with this and how it works, the big picture. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I mentioned before the break how the whole idea of bringing the world together under a global system, in a FABIAN fashion – that means step by step, INCREMENTALISM THROUGHOUT GENERATIONS of people – until they reach their final goal. That was really the tract they chose to work on but they used geo-politics.

Lord Halford, a big player in all of that, is the man who really is given the credit for coming up with the whole science of geo-politics, how to work it into action, how to work it into actual fact and bring things about by PRE-PLANNING ON A GLOBAL SCALE. Of course, we find big players today like Brzezinski, Kissinger – who've been around forever, they seem immortal – are still playing the field and churning out their books on behalf of the agenda, the same agenda; it's never, ever changed direction. But in the British Commonwealth countries where that was to be the nucleus of a form of world order, the very high elite – very high indeed – created other branches that could not connect it obviously with the names of 'Royal' in them, especially in the US, so they called it the Council on Foreign Relations and IT'S THE SAME GROUP.

We find if we look at certain countries in the world today, Australia is leading the charge in so many of the socialist doctrines that Britain, strangely enough, hasn't quite caught up with. They've gone further in other areas in Britain, while Australia has gone further ahead with the same social doctrine, in particular areas, where they knew they would get away with it quicker. CENSORING THE INTERNET was one of them. Australia, and the whole world is to go this way, by the way, and it IS going this way. Australia, being part of the British Commonwealth, introduced a form of power that they could pull any web site and anyone who looked in to those web sites would also be charged, if you LOOKED at the particular web sites that were blacklisted. They can pull them and fine people thousands and thousands of dollars for being basically politically incorrect.

China, and we've had the reports from Yahoo how they've not just cooperated with China. They want to keep the people there insular and still give most of the propaganda FROM the government TO the Chinese people; they don't want them going outside and elsewhere. Some of them still have access to external sites. What they do in those countries is what they do in Australia and in the British Commonwealth countries that are ALREADY DOING THIS. I know because it's done to me. They do exactly the same as they did in China. They give you hassles with your site, as I've had many times with Yahoo even though I'm on unlimited upload. They bring me to a stage and it's supposed to go up automatically and it doesn't. So they just stop it where it is until I contact them and say I can't upload anything. They still take the money, mind you, but they spend about 2 to 3 weeks to try to find out what the problem is. That's what you are told. These are called hassles. It's meant to make you throw your hands up in despair eventually as you go around in circles phoning them up and going around in more circles after you do phone them up, until you just give up. That's the idea.

They also do what they do in China and Australia. They actually TELL the internet service providers to technically, either just disable you or give you very slow speed. That's the reason that I'm getting very slow speed now from XplorNet. They've cut me down so many times from the higher speed I'm paying for until I get less than the lower speed that I'm not paying for, much, much less and double my upload time until, again, you're supposed to throw your hands up in despair and say well, I've had enough. That's what they hope. Same technique is in China, Australia and Canada… if you're on the blacklist. In other words, you are not AUTHORIZED to be out there guiding the people. They get you in a thousand ways. That's the real world.

This article falls right in line with this and it's from Francis Davey, who is a lawyer who offers legal advice to technology and media firms in computer and internet law.

Government wants new powers to block wikileaks and squeeze web tv
Thursday, 10 December 2009 / Francis Davey

Just over a week ago I wrote a fairly dry legal analysis of the Digital Economy Bill. (Alan: This is what they're calling it in Britain. They use different names in the Commonwealth depending on the country. It's all the same thing.) I spotted an extremely serious provision — clause 11 — in the version being discussed in the House of Lords. Having looked at the amendments (which you can find on the Bill's document page) (A: He gives you all the links to all these on this page. I'll put up this particular site on my show at the end of the night for you to look at.) I am worried that no-one in Parliament appears to be taking the problem serious.

What is the problem with clause 11 that I am getting so alarmed about it? It amends the Communications Act 2003 to insert a new section 124H which would, if passed (A: Which it will.), give sweeping powers to the Secretary of State. It begins:

(1) The Secretary of State may at any time by order impose a technical obligation on internet service providers if the Secretary of State considers it appropriate in view of— (A: Then it just trails off into other things there.)

Pausing there. Note that this says nothing at all about copyright infringement. For example the power could be used to: (A: And it will be.)

- order ISP's to block any web page found on the Internet Watch Foundation's list (A: That's the same as Australia.)
- block specific undesireable sites (such as wikileaks) (A: And yours truly.)
- block specific kinds of traffic or protocols, such as any form of peer-to-peer
- throttle the bandwidth for particular kinds of service or to or from particular websites.

(A: In other words, here you are paying for high speed; I can't even download my own audio, as I'm talking here right now, on what they've cut me back to. So you see, they are ACTUALLY DOING IT, in Canada. So XplorNet is cooperating with them obviously to do this and XplorNet gives you an incredible run around when you ask them what's going on. So anybody who's thinking of trying to get a higher speed, forget XplorNet. I'll keep at XplorNet until they put my speed up to what I'm paying for. They have no problems taking the money.)

In short, pretty much anything.

I do not exagerrate. The definition of a "technical obligation" and "technical measure" are inserted by clause 10:

A "technical obligation", in relation to an internet service provider, is an obligation for the provider to take a technical measure against particular subscribers to its service.

A "technical measure" is a measure that— (a) limits the speed or other capacity of the service provided to a subscriber; (b) prevents a subscriber from using the service to gain access to particular material, or limits such use; (c) suspends the service provided to a subscriber; or (d) limits the service provided to a subscriber in another way.

As you can see blocking wikileaks is simply a matter of applying a technical measure against all subscribers of any ISP.

Surely something must limit this power you ask? It seems not. The Secretary of State may make an order if "he considers it appropriate" in view of:

(a)an assessment carried out or steps taken by OFCOM under section 124G; or (b) any other consideration.(A: That's wide open, eh?)

Where "any other consideration" could be anything. To their credit the Tories (A: That's the conservatives.) do seem to have realised that this particular alternative is overly permissive. Lord Howard of Rising and Lord de Mauley have proposed (in the first tranche of amendments proposed that the "or" be replaced by an "and".

What astonishes me is that there is no obligation for the Secretary of State to even publish such an order, let alone subject it to the scrutiny of Parliament, yet he could fundamentally change the way the internet operates using it. Other orders made under other parts of the Bill will have to be made by statutory instrument and most will require Parliamentary approval. Not this one.

…the one to use TECHNICAL METHODS of slowing your speed and so on is allowed to go ahead. The old boys' network, the old school tie, the Upper Canada College: 'Oh Berty, this guy is giving us a problem; give him a hassle will you and cut his speed.' 'What will we do if he calls up and complains?' 'Oh tell him it's probably his end and to get his satellite checked' like they did the last time. You get fed up of running out of money. That's what they do. That's what they really do folks, in the real world. That's how it's done. Freedom eh? Freedom of the internet. Here are the same techniques that they use in China to be used in Britain and it is being used already. It's being used in Canada already too. I know because I'm actually the object of one of their little circuses. Quite something. Quite something indeed.

Andrew Breitbart has a good site up there. This particular article is what's happened at the Climategate fiasco in Copenhagen. They're turning the armed guards on anybody who asks questions there about Climategate. I'm not kidding you.

UN Security Stops Journalist's Questions about Climategate
- http://biggovernment.com - Posted By Mike Flynn On December 11, 2009

A Stanford Professor has used United Nation security officers to silence a journalist asking him "inconvenient questions" during a press briefing at the climate change conference in Copenhagen.

Professor Stephen Schneider's assistant requested armed UN security officers who held film maker Phelim McAleer, ordered him to stop filming and prevented further questioning after the press conference where the Stanford academic was launching a book. (A: This is where all these big boys for the IPCC go and they're all given massive grants and then they get the ghost-written books. They get their lovely face on it and it's put out there for the public, for all the people that want to gobble that stuff up, the true believers.)

McAleer, a veteran journalist and film maker, has recently made a documentary "Not Evil Just Wrong' which takes a sceptical look at the science and politics behind Global Warming concerns. (A: Oh, what an evil guy to do that. Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about an incident that happened – probably one of many, no doubt – at the United Nations when a journalist that was actually put under armed guard basically for asking questions about Climategate to one of the head guys at the IPCC. That's the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate confabulation.

McAleer, a veteran journalist and film maker, has recently made a documentary "Not Evil Just Wrong' which takes a sceptical look at the science and politics behind Global Warming concerns.

He asked Professor Schneider about his opinions on Climategate – where leaked emails have revealed that a senior British professor deleted data and encouraged colleagues to do likewise if it contradicted their belief in Global Warming. (A: Very well phrased, belief, because it's a belief system.)

Professor Phil Jones, the head of Britain's Climate Research Unit, has temporarily stood down pending an investigation into the scandal. (A: The independent inquiry, by the way, is led by a guy from the Royal Society who's an absolute… he's ardently supportive of the theory of global warming. So much for independent inquiries.)

Professor Schneider, who is a senior member of the UN's Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) (A: On all this hullaballoo of Climate Change.), said he would not comment on emails that may have been incomplete or edited.

During some testy exchanges with McAleer, UN officials and Professor Schneider's assistants twice tried to cut short McAleer's question.

However as the press conference drew to a close Professor Schneider's assistant called armed UN security guards to the room. They held McAleer and aggressively ordered cameraman Ian Foster to stop filming. The guard threatened to take away the camera and expel the film crew from the conference if they did not obey his instructions to stop filming Professor Schneider.

The guard demanded to look at the film crews press credentials and refused to allow them to film until Professor Schneider left the room.

McAleer said he was disappointed by Professor Schneider's behaviour. (A: Disappointed… I'd say more than that.)

"It was a press conference. Climategate is a major story – it goes to the heart of the Global Warming debate by calling into question the scientific data and the integrity of many scientists involved."

"These questions should be answered. The attempts by UN officials and Professor Schneider's assistant to remove my microphone were hamfisted but events took a more sinister turn when they called an armed UN security officer to silence a journalist."

Well you see, if folk don't get it through their heads – I think it's way past the point of it actually, at the point of no return – that YOU ARE UNDER A FORM OF SOCIAL TYRANNY. It has many names to it, Communism, Socialism, whatever, it's all the SAME. It's ALL the same. Each branch of the whole communistic/socialistic agenda, the Fabian agenda, were all specialized branches to bring them all to the SAME ENDING and you are seeing it. The UN was set up NOT to be a democratic institution but a GOVERNING BODY, a world governing body. Here they are, turning armed guards on journalists who ask inconvenient questions. It was really built up to be a rah-rah, cheerleading party for all the IN crowd and all the NGOs that are getting paid to go there. They don't want someone dampening their fire, so to speak.

There are so many stories to pick from to reaffirm the fact you are already under tyranny. You're in a PLANNED society. I was going to talk about the NEW laws that are coming in to do with changing the way that we deal with the elderly and hospital care, under eugenics. They call it BIOETHICS. They used to be called The Eugenics Societies, now they call them Bioethics Committees. It sounds better because they used to get associated with Adolf Hitler and the eugenical policies and racial purity laws of the 1930s and 40s. They changed their name but they're still running the show. You think that they're fascist right-wingers but they're not really. They belong to another group all together.

Professor Carroll Quigley knew darned well who they were because he worked for them. He said they are often mistaken for the far-left communist crew but he says it's the Royal Institute of International Affairs, a worldwide organization. India's got a big branch of them; EVERY country has got a big branch of them. In countries that don't like the word Royalty, they call themselves the Councils on Foreign Relations. They're really at the end of this major part of the 100 years war, as they planned it to be, from the early 1900s right up to the present time and then into the 21st century. The 21st century was to be marked for change when the old form of communism - which was the fast way to socialism - was going to merge with the West. During that period, they would be already socializing the West through EDUCATION and SCIENTIFIC INDOCTRINATION AT SCHOOL and through the CULTURE INDUSTRY and all of the MEDIA. That has been done successfully.

So you are seeing the rise of the WORLD SOCIETY but it's to go under the auspices of the United Nations, as I say, an UNdemocratic body. This is what they mean by GOVERNANCE, governance as opposed to government. Governance is a sort of vague term to some. It's no national country. In fact, the enemy of this whole world society is nationalism and independent sovereignty AND the INDIVIDUAL, by the way. They say that the individual is a danger to world peace. You must be PART OF THE COLLECTIVE. That's why we're going through the BEGINNINGS of Orwell's 1984 and have been since 2001 and we'll merge eventually, in the next 30 years, into Brave New World of Huxley. That's how it's designed to go. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've said many times before that whenever you see the same kind of topics popping up all over the place, in different countries, at the same time, you know you're watching a concerted effort to get a message across. Nothing happens by chance in this world, especially when you take thousands and thousands and thousands of newspapers and different means of media, when they all converge on different topics suddenly at that same time, you know it's a coordinated effort.

Yesterday I mentioned the fact that a whole conglomeration of newspaper chains - including the Guardian in Britain, I think the Irish Times as well - and a whole bunch of them had got together and funded the advertising around Copenhagen to TELL all the people who were attending to pass the treaty, to sign it and pass it. Now that tells you number one, newspapers all have POLITICAL agendas. SO WHENEVER YOU'RE READING ANY ARTICLE AT ALL, REMEMBER THAT. They are not there to tell you the truth. In fact, I read a report not so long ago, it came from a trial I think, in the UK, maybe it was the US, to do with Fox, I think it was where journalists had taken their company to task because they were FORBIDDEN to write about a certain topic. It turned out that their own company had lied about the same topic in the past. It came out and the judge said newspapers are NOT OBLIGATED TO TELL THE PUBLIC ANY TRUTH. You see how we take it for granted that they're an appendage to our brain; they're telling us what we should know. No. They are PROGRAMMING you with particular political agendas and slants. You don't have to just slant a story, you can simply OMIT another part of it, a big chunk of it, to give you the impression and the conclusion THEY want you to arrive at.

Here's an article and I read yesterday about HOW they were touting up China as the model state for the world with its one child per family policy and how we should all emulate them. Now John Holdren remember, in that book that he co-authored in 1970s where he advocated sterilizing lots of people, millions of them, and finding ways for mandatory abortions and all the rest of it, where the government would decree that you were not allowed to have that child so they would abort it; this great guy that's now the science advisor for Obama. We should all be terrified because these RIGHT PEOPLE, the right people now, have been put in at the RIGHT TIME for their agenda, across the world… because they do go by planks and time tables, 5-year plans for this, 10 for that, and 50 years for that, 100 years to get to that stage. They know exactly what they're doing.

This is from Diane Francis who's been around forever in Canada. In Canada you don't have many main writers – same as actors and even TV stations – to make sure that they can always CONTROL all media and whatever the public are being told. It's all under the same control; it's much easier to control it that way. Kind of like the BBC did in Britain for years and years. This is from the FinancialPost.com. Here she is, rah-rahing. I've no doubt she's been told, 'now it's time for you to say your piece and repeat what we say'; that's how it's done.

The real inconvenient truth
The whole world needs to adopt China's one-child policy
Tuesday, December 8, 2009 / Presented by Diane Francis, Financial Post

(A: There is a picture there of the Chinese all on bicycles in China, and a child's face behind them on a poster. I love how they use all these little psychological imprints on you.)

The "inconvenient truth" overhanging the UN's Copenhagen conference is not that the climate is warming or cooling, but that humans are overpopulating the world. (A: Here's your impartial person who brings you the news, right?)

A planetary law, (A: That's exactly what John Holdren said.) such as China's one-child policy, is the only way to reverse the disastrous global birthrate currently, which is one million births every four days. (A: So they say.)

The world's other species, vegetation, resources, oceans, arable land, water supplies and atmosphere are being destroyed and pushed out of existence as a result of humanity's soaring reproduction rate.

Ironically, China, despite its dirty coal plants, is the world's leader in terms of fashioning policy to combat environmental degradation, thanks to its one-child-only edict.

…which is an utter lie because I’ve read from the China news before. Only about a month ago, two months ago or so – it’s in the archives of my web site – where if you’re wealthy you can have more than one child, you just have to pay a little fee and you pay a fee for each one. Which means that, eugenically speaking, the ones who should get up there by Darwin’s standards, the ones who are more ‘economically viable’ are breeding the right children, having more of the right children, rather than have all the workers at the bottom out-breeding the ones at the top, exactly what Charles Galton Darwin said in his book in the 1950s called The Next Million Years. So here she is, rah-rahing China and how we should all copy China. Remember, it’s the model that we’ve all to copy, or the state we’ve all to copy. They call it the MODEL state for the world, at the United Nations. Well, no thank you. No thank you. I don’t want to copy anybody. How about you out there? Shouldn’t it be up to the person what they want to do?

Government is a TYRANNY now. That’s what it is. It’s a complete, utter tyranny. It IS the combination of a long laid out plan and war that is comprised of different elements for different places, geo-politically used and different strategies. For the Soviet system it was a fast revolution to bring them up to speed. They’d been left as a socialized country regardless with the same system of education throughout; the fastest way to do it. In the West they use Fabian techniques, mainly through the British Empire to start with and the United States which was much, much slower because the US actually believed they had rights and freedoms on an individual basis. To be honest with you, it’s getting harder to find people in the US who are willing to do anything about standing up for those values. The US was HEAVILY targeted, HEAVILY TARGETED by propaganda and infiltration quite a long time ago in fact, who have gotten up to the top very, very quickly because of the cash, financing and the right contacts to put them in the right positions, like Mr Holdren for instance.

So here she is. Here is Diane Francis advocating… again, pulling figures out of the air, as they love to do, just like the Climategate stuff. They would just pull figures and stats out of the air or feed the right kind of data into a computer that you knew darn well was going to give you what you want to hear. But it must be true, because it’s science… that’s the argument. It must be true, that computer can’t lie. Ha! A computer can only churn out what’s fed into it… it depends on WHO is doing the feeding.

This article here, there’s some good in it and some truth in it too. They obviously don’t know the whole picture but it’s from the Vancouver Sun.

If you've done nothing wrong, you have everything to worry about
By Pete McMartin, Vancouver Sun November 21, 2009

Whenever someone frets about the erosion of personal freedoms in our modern society, such as in the steady proliferation of surveillance cameras in public places, the stock answer, which is one I read all too often in my e-mail, is:

"If you haven't done anything wrong, you have nothing to worry about."

People who say this are fools, not to be too blunt about it. Not only are they willing to trade away my rights, since they haven't a basic appreciation of theirs, but their understanding of the relationship between government and the governed is one of subservience based on fear, and the idea that their fear is not only natural, but justifiably permanent given the state of the world. (A: That’s what we’ve all been taught since 2001.)

Thus, we should all be fearful, all of the time. We should empower government to do whatever it feels necessary to protect us. (A: This is sarcasm obviously.) The unquestioning nature of this logic not only institutionalizes fear, it makes it a patriotic duty. And the good citizen, the one who has done nothing wrong, will have nothing to worry about.

Oh, yeah?

Out of Britain comes the case recently of 40-year-old Jenny Paton, mother of three and, in the eyes of the state, a security hazard. Her crime? She was suspected of falsifying her address to enroll her daughter in a neighbouring school.

(A: That's been on TV in Britain. You wouldn't believe the lengths the government went to, to try and catch this woman. They tapped her phones. They had spies photographing her every move, following her everywhere… and nothing went through any particular government policy, agency or anything else.)

A covert surveillance operation was begun on her in 2008, when -- and I am not making this up -- an officer from the local education department followed her for three weeks. He noted her movements in a log. The department obtained her telephone records.

Paton had done nothing wrong. And the local council where Paton lives maintained it had nothing wrong, either. Under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act of 2000, local governments have the power to use surveillance to investigate such picayune matters as reports of people not cleaning up after their dogs, or whose dogs bark too loudly, of people who don't recycle (A: If you don't recycle your trash, they'll put agents on you to watch you, monitor you, and tap your phone and everything else.) or who put out their trash early, of people who operate unlicensed taxicabs. Some 474 local governments and 318 agencies have availed themselves of these powers (including, hilariously, the Charity Commission), and they can, and do, use hidden cameras, examine phone records, track website visits and hire people to go undercover. (A …to watch and follow you. It's astonishing. This woman, by the way, was just trying to get her child into a particular school. The whole thing was about what area she came under, under this socialized system that people think is just communist.)

That's what we're under now is hundreds and hundreds of AGENCIES. THAT'S the beautiful brave new world they're bringing in. Agency after agency after agency, and there's no debating with them and when they come to your home too and say 'you can't burn a wood stove anymore, it's giving off carbon, we'll have to fine you $10,000 a day until you stop doing it.' You'll say 'well, so what are you telling me, I've got to freeze to death?' They'll say 'oh no, we're not saying that sir, you can use electricity or some other method.' You say, 'I can't afford electricity or some other method.' 'Well, that's not our fault sir.' So you go back to the circle again, the circular argument, and you're condemned to death by freezing, 'Oh, no sir, you can use electricity'… round and round and round. That is it kids; that's how it really works.

This is the frustration that folk had in communist countries. The taxi cabs in Moscow at one point had to literally jack up the backs of their cars and turn back the odometers - for the mileage - in order to get their monthly ration of gasoline… or Moscow would have come to a standstill. That's how crazy it gets when you are under a completely SOCIALIZED system run by layer upon layer upon layer of bureaucrats. Welcome, because that's what global governance is all about and you're just on the verge of seeing it all implemented.

There's an article here from the Council on Foreign Relations from their magazine Foreign Affairs. As you know, they always tell you what the future is going to be because they are the guys who WORK IT INTO BEING on behalf of the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Everybody knows – everybody that listens to this show and other shows on alternate news radio – will know that Brzezinski has basically said that Obama is his boy and Obama said that Brzezinski was his mentor. This is an article by Brzezinski. I'll put these links up on my website - if I can possibly get any speed up at all to upload it through XplorNet that's cut me back by their new policies, on behalf of the Canadian government - at the end of the show.

From Hope to Audacity
Appraising Obama's Foreign Policy
Published on Foreign Affairs (http://www.foreignaffairs.com)

Summary -- Barack Obama's foreign policy has generated more expectations than strategic breakthroughs. Three urgent issues -- the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, Iran's nuclear ambitions, and the Afghan-Pakistani challenge -- will test his ability to significantly change U.S. policy.

ZBIGNIEW BRZEZINSKI was U.S. National Security Adviser from 1977 to 1981. His most recent book is Second Chance: Three Presidents and the Crisis of American Superpower.

(A: I've already given the link out before where you hear Brzezinski in the 70s getting the jihad STARTED in Afghanistan when they were fighting the Soviets. He says on the video, tells the Afghanistanis that theirs would be a HOLY WAR. The US created them, financed them through the CIA and once they'd been fighting at the Soviets – and the Soviets now are blended with the West under the new socialist world system – they have to get rid of them now. So the same guy is still making national policy. He also boasted, by the way, the he had a lot to do with the different 'soft power' revolutions like the Orange one in Czechoslovakia. They FUND the NGOs to go in. Same thing in Iran, when they were protesting in the street, he sort of smirked when he said that he also had a hand in that. They never stop, these guys. So he says here…)

The foreign policy of U.S. President Barack Obama can be assessed most usefully in two parts: first, his goals and decision-making system (A: Which is simply what he's been told to do.) and, second, his policies and their implementation. Although one can speak with some confidence about the former, the latter is still an unfolding process.

To his credit, Obama has undertaken a truly ambitious effort to redefine the United States' view of the world and to reconnect the United States with the emerging historical context of the twenty-first century. He has done this remarkably well. In less than a year, he has comprehensively reconceptualized U.S. foreign policy with respect to several centrally important geopolitical issues:

- Islam is not an enemy, and the "global war on terror" does not define the United States' current role in the world; (A: Which is a lie because they have to eradicate Islam, the actual religion itself.)
- the United States will be a fair-minded and assertive mediator when it comes to attaining lasting peace between Israel and Palestine; (A: That's another joke.)
- the United States ought to pursue serious negotiations with Iran over its nuclear program, as well as other issues; (A: Like getting their oil from them.)
- the counterinsurgency campaign in the Taliban-controlled parts of Afghanistan should be part of a larger political undertaking, rather than a predominantly military one;
- the United States should respect Latin America's cultural and historical sensitivities and expand its contacts with Cuba;

It's amazing; these guys at one point can have the CIA in there training at the School of America and how to slaughter them all down in South America when it suited them, until they got all that in the bag and the RIGHT people in place. Then of course, they come back and say we must go to a different track now with Latin America, now that we've done all that we were successful in doing. See, there's no conscience with these psychopaths. Do you understand that? To them, everything is just like a maze they have to work through, a chess board, and they do it instinctively. THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS SHAME OR REGRET ON ANYTHING. And they enjoy what they're doing; they get a real kick on the power… of watching wars break out or revolutions break out where they've really agitated. They sit back and watch TV. They must have orgasms when they see the people being conned and fooled into carrying out policies they don't even understand because they don't know who's pulling the strings. Back after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, and jumping from the CFR and Brzezinski and all his pabulum to this other site here. It's from parentdish.co.uk and education news. It says…

Police ask nursery staff to monitor children for signs of Islamic radicalisation by Jennifer Laville Dec 11th 2009 / parentdish.co.uk

Counter terrorism police have turned their attention to pre-school tots (A: No kidding. This is not a cartoon I'm reading from.) in their attempts to stamp out fundamentalism. (A: So they've asked nursery staff to monitor children for signs of Islamic radicalization. Why just Islamic? Why shouldn't it be across the board in that great democracy, for every single group? Hmm? 'Some are more equal than others in such utopias.' eh? That's what Orwell said.)

A leaked e-mail sent by a terrorism officer from the West Midlands to community groups suggests that the police see very young children as posing a real potential threat.

The unnamed officer writes, "I do hope that you will tell me about persons, of whatever age, you think may have been radicalised or be vulnerable to radicalisation ... Evidence suggests that radicalisation can take place from the age of 4."

(A: So I guess they've done their little psychological studies.)

The policy was derided last night by opposition parties with Chris Huhne, the Liberal Democrat home affairs spokesman, branding it an "absurd waste of police time".

Police spokesmen also seem to be trying to distance themselves from the leaked memo, with Sir Norman Bettison from the Association of Chief Police Officers describing it as a "clumsy" attempt to explain policy. (A: Interesting too. See, you have an international police chiefs association that belongs to the United Nations, across the world, in Britain, the US and everywhere else. They even have their own TV station.)

He added, "There is absolutely no example, nationally, of the police engaging with nursery-age kids specifically on this issue. That is the age for learning about 'Stranger Danger' and 'The Tufty Club'."

Arun Kundnani, of the Institute of Race Relations spoke to the officer who wrote the email. "He did seem to think it was standard. He said it wasn't just him or his unit that was doing it." (A: That's requesting then to give the children they've taught the third degree.)

"He said the indicators were they [children] might draw pictures of bombs (A: Ha, ha. They're playing with video games all the time eh?) and say things like 'all Christians are bad' (A: Why would they say Christians?) or that they believe in an Islamic state." (A: does he mean the world state or just state? What is he talking about here?)

The idea of monitoring very young children for warning signs of fundamentalism will seem Orwellian, intrusive or even pointless to many parents who are well aware of the bizarre things a four-year-old is capable of coming out with.

However, these concerns arise from genuine incidences, such as the convicted terrorist who was caught on camera indoctrinating his five-year-old son. He asked him "Who do you love?", until the boy replied "I love Sheikh Osama bin Laden," (A: Well, what if you say I love Obama? Hmm? Or Jehovah? Or whatever?)

Whilst most would agree that they want the country to be safe from the threat of terrorism, whether we are happy to let police officers (A: Or the Pope for that matter, there's another one. Hmm?) into nurseries to monitor our children in the name of national security is another question.

Then it goes into all the hoopla that the people in Parliament spoke about in their ever-ongoing pabulum… in this farce of a world, of a tyranny, this tyrannical world state that's emerged and people don't even know it outside of places like this show.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada where we've got lots of snow, thanks to the global warming, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

U.K. Government- Bill to Order Internet Providers to Block or Slow Speed of Blacklisted Sites
("Government wants new powers to block wikileaks and squeeze web tv" (francisdavey.co.uk) - Dec. 10, 2009.)

Armed Guards Set on Journalist Who Asked About Climategate-Copenhagen
("UN Security Stops Journalist's Questions About ClimateGate" by Mike Flynn (biggovernment.com) - Dec. 11, 2009.)

Financial Post, Canada-Calls for Global China-Style One Child per Family Law
(Diane Francis: "The whole world needs to adopt China's one-child policy" (financialpost.com) - Dec. 8, 2009.)

Britain-More Orwellian than Orwell Foresaw
("If you've done nothing wrong, you have everything to worry about" by Pete McMartin - Nov. 21, 2009.)
(Article at original link was removed. Link is to excerpt in transcript text.)

Brzezinski Praises his man Obama
("From Hope to Audacity: Appraising Obama's Foreign Policy" by Zbigniew Brzezinski (foreignaffairs.com) - Dec. 11, 2009.)

Video: "Zbigniew Brzezinski to Jihadists: Your cause is right!" (youtube.com).

Nurseries Monitor for Signs of "Radical" Islamist Indoctrination
("Police ask nursery staff to monitor children for signs of Islamic radicalisation" by Jennifer Laville (parentdish.co.uk) - Dec. 11, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 14, 2009 (#471)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 14, 2009:
Controllers Use and Select, Psychopathic Social Reject:
"Planned Destruction of Societies Well Under Way,
Promoters of Radical Change, Only Ones with a Say,
T.V. Addicts Suck the Teat of Degradation,
Unconscious of Methods of Mass-Persuasion,
Zoologists and Anthropologists Create Human Zoo,
Advising Think-Tanks What/How to Do,
With Behaviourists, Academia Tries Each Quiet Experiment
To Manipulate Behaviour, All to Our Detriment,
Most Think We Arrived Here by Folly or Fate,
Yet Techniques Implemented by Planners Who Hate"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 14, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 14, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 14th 2009. For newcomers, look into .com. That's the main web site. Scroll down and bookmark the other sites I have up there for use. These are all the authorized sites; anything else is not mine. Bookmark them for future use because sometimes the big servers go down and if you have these bookmarked you can always get the latest show for download. There are: [sites listed above.] Remember, you are the audience that bring me to you, no one else does. There's no big organization behind me. There is no one funding me. The ads on the show go straight from the advertisers to RBN the radio station to broadcast this show. It pays for their time, equipment, staff, bills and all the rest of it. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can do so by buying the things I have for sale – the books, CDs, DVDs – on my web sites or you can donate. It's up to you. [Options listed above.] Cash will get to me just the same. Those who get the disks burned and passed to them at meetings, who don't use computers and play them on their CD players, you can get in touch with me at [address above].

It's very, very important that you do support me. I'm not promoting products. I'm out of that side of it all together. That gives me a wider range. I can't be pushed around by people. I can say what I want to say about certain things without feeling obliged to sort of omit it. That happens some times; I've heard other hosts talk about it. The other hosts are paid by either bringing on the guests themselves to sell products or even mentioning it once or twice during their show. That's how they get paid. So it's up to you to keep ME going, crawling along here. There is a big cost of upkeep and I'm already under scrutiny by the authorities who have cut my internet satellite upload by over half, well over half in fact. So that's what happens when you are not authorized to come out and say anything.

People in the US, unfortunately, are the last ones who realize, IT'S THE ONLY COUNTRY WHERE YOU CAN GET SOME SPEECH AT ALL, OUTSIDE THE MAIN STREAM, OUT THERE ON THE AIR WAVES. It's the only one in the world. We should really appreciate it from Canada here, for RBN putting this out. As I say, it's so hard. You could NOT start up a show in Canada and say the things that I've said over the years. It's impossible. I'll be back with tonight's talk after these messages.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. I think it was Angleton [James Jesus Angleton], who was one of the first directors of the CIA, said that "Deception is a state of the mind and the mind of the state." At the bottom level, we never really, really know the real reasons as to why things are going on, why they happen. That's the media's job. It's to keep this BABY answer, the childish answer out there, even arguing about it from one side or another to make sure that we never catch on to any big picture that's really happening. You'll never understand agendas and we live in a constant agenda. We were BORN into the agenda – it was already on the go – so were your parents. We're the last to know what it was all about unless you really stick you nose into very old, dry, dusty books written by people INVOLVED in security agencies, intelligences. Boring old people from bureaucracies who write their memoirs, they'll often slip in there maybe a few paragraphs in a whole big, old, thick book… in between their golfing episodes and all that stuff. These are the snippets you get of what was really going on and it's up to you to piece it together.

People don't even know. The beauty of brainwashing - as it's been said by many of those involved in the brainwashing systems, foreign intelligence services - is that the last people who know are the ones who are being brainwashed. Once it's happened, you can not convince them. You would have to literally… I think it was COMA. COMA is the organization that kidnapped youngsters who have fallen for some of the cults - the religious cults generally from the Far East or somewhere in the Middle East or from India - and they have to kidnap them and take them off to some remote place and deprogram them – lock them up and deprogram them over a period of about 2 weeks – BEFORE they can start even getting through to them. BRAINWASHING DOES WORK. It works most effectively when it starts when you're young.

I've talked about some of the history of the setting up and the reasons for setting up and who set up the League of Nations that became the United Nations. You have to look into the writings of even propagandists like HG Wells. He was a propagandist for this Fabian socialist world state. It's got many names. Don't get tied into a particular name. These are really METHODS. These are specialized areas of the same agenda. Some people call them communist. Some say Fabian. Fabian is a slow technique, INTERGENERATIONAL, to change society step by step, by FORMS, forms of persuasion and corruption. Most folk will think, 'I'm not corruptible.' But everybody is corruptible. The ones who set up the system had studied humankind PERFECTLY over THOUSANDS of years in fact. That's why they use the old philosophers and they'd judge many of their sayings to themselves, 'How are we today?"

We go through the same things. If you look at a child, in the health industry they mark out their future in milestones. From baby onwards, they are milestones. When they first say dada, mama or whatever else they say these days, that's a milestone. They go on from there. They walk and toddle and all the rest of it, these are all different milestones. When your hormones kick in, you become interested in sexual activity; that's a milestone as well. They also use instincts, which are often coupled with the drive. We have drives and instincts for eating and for procreation for the species to keep the species going. These are SURVIVAL mechanisms, very basic stuff. If you can exaggerate them and there are many ways to exaggerate something, a need for something. It's very similar to a fetish. If someone is approaching say a pubertal age and something comes along to excite them in a strange way in that particular phase, they end up with a fetish for the item or the object, all throughout their lives. This is all also known. An exaggerated one becomes an obsession, something to comfort them. Some people will eat like crazy to comfort themselves. They feel they are in charge; they are getting something immediately, immediate gratification. In other words, drives and things which are normal can be exaggerated to such an extent they become obsessive.

Those who designed the system took the works of Plato and the neo-Platonic groups that lived in Alexandria which really were philosophers, movers and shakers, those who wanted to change society and literally work the world into an ORDERED society, under THEIR order obviously, since they believed they were truly illumined, back in Alexandria. They also brought different religions into it. One or two MAIN ones in fact are still on the go today. They also believe they have a divine destiny TO RULE; there's no doubt about that. In fact every religion does think it's special, more so than any other religion. That's why you join them. They promise you, 'this is EXCLUSIVE', it's exclusive. Eventually we end up with all the revolutions in the 1700s, 1800s and people don't even understand the agitation that goes in and the intelligence networking that goes in to the creation of ANY kind of revolution.

The so-called Bolshevik Revolution in Russia was an overnight coup by 100 people; 100 hardened trained mercenaries that were brought in from outside Russia and they took over the country. From there they spread out and it's the same thing in other countries. They try to get revolutions going very, very quickly - in a time - because they look for times of economic depressions; you've got to join the bankers on the other side who deal with the financial situations. Don't think that bankers have some sort of dreamy goal of always sitting there changing money and taking profits and lending cash forever, into eternity. They have much bigger plans, obviously. More so because they deal with economics, they deal with the history of countries and the world. They deal with past wars and debt and future wars and coming debt. They deal with population numbers; 'are there people there to pay off so much of a debt if we lend out this for a war?' They do. So there are two sides that actually work together, the agitators for an ordered society and the economists for the banks. AN ORDERED SOCIETY. Money in itself is literally an institution. It's an IDEA that someone introduced into society. It's an exchange for labor, which is energy.

We know what the scams are that are pulled. It's so easy to crash economies by creating bubbles and putting in the derivative markets. Now you're going to get the same thing in carbon trading too; more bubbles of nothing actually, nothing. But what is money really but nothing. It's so odd that when money disappears or is withdrawn by banks, nothing works. The factories are there, the fields are there, everything is there; the workers are there but this strange thing that we don't really need, is not there and therefore, we just stand around like dummies and starve. It's crazy, absolutely crazy.

This has all been discussed by other people in universities and so on. They want to bring in a system eventually where the state will just give you credits, which is just a form of money really. The difference being, under a world, socialized state you will get X-amount of credits, across the board. It will be a tiered class system, absolutely. Communism was run on a tiered system with a tiny minority riding the backs of the majority. They lead with terror, absolute terror, running the countries and mass slaughter, incredible slaughter. The always bring in famine after they've taken over completely and it's no coincidence that they're getting ready – from the Royal Institute of International Affairs and other organizations – to deal with the coming famine. It's all over the place. They've been working on it for 15 years, if you go into their own web site at Chatham House; they've got whole think tanks working on this for years and years and years, the coming famine.

Famine doesn't just kill a bunch of people off, which is one goal to achieve, but it also makes everyone buckle under and do what they're told. It's used as a weapon; food is a weapon, absolutely. We have seen how embargoes work when the UN boys target a country. Nothing comes IN to the country and they stop anything going out of that country. So all trade stops. Medicine going in stops. Food going in stops. They starve thousands and thousands and thousands to death. Personally, I don't see any difference between doing that and doing it the way the communists did traditionally after the revolutions of simply getting whole regions of say Russia, starving to death. It got rid of all the peasants who still clung on to the dirt, the land, the love of the land, and they were independent completely, right down to weaving their own cloth. Then they did the same thing with the Ukraine as well. Wherever they go, there is a mass slaughter.

You've got to stop thinking in terms. You've got to understand that it's how you PERCEIVE things that will mislay you into the wrong path. The same things can be done, again, under different guises and they will be done under different guises again. These guys have a technique and a formula and they certainly always do follow it.

Part of the communist, Fabian society was the abolition of the family unit and the STATE giving the values, the NEW values to the children. One of the biggest experiments in this was in Israel; when Israel, before it began, they flooded Israel with a particular atheistic Jews who were totally communistic into Israel. It was well written about. There's a great book, it's called Children of the Dream, bringing in Plato's idea of communal rearing of children. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just showing the listeners how different techniques are used down through time by those who are TAUGHT the techniques of bringing in order and disorder at different stages in time, often bringing in complete disorder to bring out a new FORM on a bigger, bigger scale across the planet.

And mentioning about communism, also called Bolshevism and how they used Israel initially as an example. It was all over the newspapers at the time, how Israel was a NEW FORM of it. Some even said it was a better form or a more advanced form of Marxism, more so than the Soviet Union because they wanted to bring in the Kibbutz system, having communal rearing of children, that way they were trying to instill a communal effect of brotherhood, sisterhood amongst the children who would not bond with their parents so well, a NEW generation. In communism, each generation must be further indoctrinated into the IDEALS of Marxism then the last. So much so, that it's quite legitimate eventually to KILL OFF, if need be, the older ones under a cultural revolution. That's what they did in China. The children who became teenagers started killing off their parents.

Techniques are understood. If it works in a country, it will work anywhere. Plato said the same thing: what has happened in a formula system in one country, if you introduce the same formula, in the same sequence, it will happen again. People can be made to do anything that has happened before. It's not necessary to explain to them WHY you are doing it or even WHAT you are doing, they will go along with something especially if you work, again, on their DRIVES, their primeval drives and their survival mechanisms. Everybody loves pleasure.

The Israel experiment kind of fell away because eventually the women wanted to rear their own children. That was why the Kibbutz fell apart over time. They wanted their family and they wanted the child to know who their mother was and they wanted to rear their own child and that's the way it is today. Nonetheless, this idea of a sort of utopia - a utopia according to HG Wells and many utopians - this communal rearing of children has never gone away. The big boys at the top still envisage they can bring this in through gradualism. Things can be done today they could never DARED have done back in say the 1940s or 30s in the Western world.

Each generation, especially since the advent of TV – mainly so from television onwards – began to be gradually indoctrinated into new ways of thinking mainly because programming – it's called PROGRAMMING for a purpose, from television – was scientifically designed. You don't just get storytellers to come up and write stuff to keep you entertained… far, far from it. There is nothing you are going to watch out there that's not full of messages. When you are being entertained, YOU don't CENSOR them as you would do at a meeting where you are listening to people and saying I agree with this, I disagree with that or I know where he's taking us and so on. When you are being entertained, your censor part is down, you're being brainwashed and you're laughing along with it too. Anything can be introduced especially if it's coupled with an emotive event, a visual event during the display of the movie. Therefore, every generation has been corrupted more and more and more until on television today, they have reached their goal pretty well where anything goes; nothing is taboo. As Plato said, pretty well in a later version he says, 'monkey see, monkey do'. And it's so true. Especially if you're doing something that promotes something to a specific age group like the youth when their hormones are just jumping around.

The destruction of the family unit… I've gone through how Bertrand Russell and others talked about kindergarten and how kindergarten, if you get them in early enough, with scientific indoctrination and he'd proven this in his own - AUTHORIZED by Royal Charter – schools where he got away with things that anyone else would have been HUNG for at the time. He said they found if those children had 4 hours of scientific indoctrination per day, they would go back to their parents, then it didn't matter what CONTAMINATION… these are the words the communists used too by the way, 'contamination'. Now this was a British LORD, to show you that both sides work together. He says 'there will be no contamination of old moral values that will stick in the child's head.' In other words, whatever the parents say will be of no effect whatsoever. Their school indoctrination would stick. And he'd PROVEN it.

We're at the stage now where nothing shocks us. If your great-granny could be alive today or maybe your grandmother, and watch some of the modern daily fare on television, you would blush for their sake. You might not blush because you're already corrupted, generation by generation, but you would blush for their sake having to watch this… entertainment. Everybody is a voyeur today… being sold dreams, dreams, FANTASTIC dreams, which are MYTH and FANTASY that they'll try and act out in their own life and by doing so, they have massive disruption in society. Of course you have all these different agencies that the government set up to DEAL with the fallout as the families all break apart and everybody is at each other's throats. Life becomes cheap and so do crimes. Crimes that used to be crimes become lesser crimes, so much so that the police often ignore child abuse in a sexual manner. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about big systems that work together to bring out a world order. They've been working for an awful long time to make it happen. What they used to do is cause economic crashes. War, economic crashes, the aftermath of war, these were often good enough to get IN and agitate for various kinds of rights but mainly for organized labor basically. That was a front. They had lots of followers because everyone pretty well was a laborer at the time, but they didn't realize who was guiding them and for what reasons, what purposes. That was communism.

Going back even further, you have to go in to the writings of the professional revolutionaries in the 1800s to understand HOW they brought it all about and how the techniques work. You have to go into the writings of the man that Albert Pike trained to go into Europe, especially Italy, and agitate for overthrow of the governments they had there, which eventually happened. When you look into the writings you realize that, like Mazzini - that was the man who was sent there - he says 'in order to dominate a people, first we must corrupt them'. Completely corrupt their whole society. Now, you'd think that couldn't be done but again, they are using SCIENCE. They are using drives and so on and bursting the natural boundaries that kept that culture alive, vibrant and successful; survival mechanisms are what do that, you see. When they attack your drives and say anything goes, just have fun, and a little bit of money is pumped into it, especially the Capitals, then debauchery breaks out because those at the top GUIDE the debauchery, the ENTERTAINMENT BUSINESS.

There's a 2 DVD set that people HAVE to see. It's a keeper to show you what was happening in the 1920s and 30s. They give you at least 3 cities here and they were called Sin Cities. The 2 DVDs are called Legendary Sin Cities by the CBC. The Canadian tax payer I guess funded this whole thing. It's one of the few things that they fund by our tax money that the public actually watches, the rest are so boring and communistic. Anyway, they're actually celebrating these cities and saying 'oh what a shame, you know, they were the pinnacle of culture.' Literally, they had after World War I - again, the great time for demoralizing everybody, corrupting everybody, especially during economic depression - they could hire thousands of women for peanuts, people who were hungry, starving, even pregnant women. They had them in the big clubs, the big, big clubs, all over Berlin, Paris, and Shanghai. Remember, each one of these places was overrun by the next war which this helped to corrupt towards. In fact, Hitler would not have gotten in if it hadn't been for what was happening in the major cities, in Berlin. The popular reaction actually was to end the massive corruption that was happening in the culture. You wouldn't believe what they were actually doing until you get these 2 DVDs: Legendary Sin Cities.

Everyone has seen the old Hollywood movies where you had the Hoofers - as the guys who ran them called them - dressed in very little, doing the fan-shaped dances and all these different dances on the stage. That came straight from the Sin Cities because all these guys fled like rats before World War II started and they went right to Hollywood. They just simply gave them a little bit of cloth to wear and they did the same kind of stuff there. Corruption and their techniques and their PURPOSE could not stop them. They have a purpose. That was part of the degradation of society, the breakdown of the family.

When people become obsessed with anything, whether its food, sex or anything else, it overwhelms common sense, it becomes an obsession and they must ACT IT OUT. They must try and satisfy something which is already a neurotic exaggeration and you can't satisfy it. That's why they have so many clinics all over the place dealing with people like that with problems. These are the techniques that are used. Remember, Paris, Berlin and Shanghai were easily, you know, dealt with during World War II. The height of corruption always ends with wars. Guaranteed, always has done in history. Overthrow… and those who know how to use the sciences are already there TO overthrow at the right time.

When this becomes so perverted as a society, certain crimes that used to be high on the list for punishment start to become lower on the list as the people themselves, including the authorities, are just as perverted as everybody else in society by the gradual indoctrination IN to perversion as they become voyeurs and all the rest of it. Again, mainly through fiction, regular daily fare on television. The rise in the CULT of the actors and the Hollywood sect and what they're doing and what they're snorting and all the rest of it, it's daily fare everywhere… and people lap it up. Why?

Because they're addicted to this kind of stuff. They don't know what effect it's having on them. They are the last to know, even when they start fighting with their marriage partners; they don't know. Or they start having affairs, they don't know. Why do you think SOAPS were introduced? Just to titillate someone? …all the women in the country? It was meant to show you, 'yeah, you can have these affairs and get away with it; you can do that.' Then they bring out certain talk show hosts for television and they make them superstars. You become nothing in the entertainment unless you are PUT THERE and MADE to be a superstar. They promote all this stuff as all being natural. All the schmucks that follow them start to try and work it out in their own life and generally end up with disaster… which is the intent of it: the abolition of the family unit and the state rearing of the children.

This article here ties in with what I'm talking about, how we sort of deregulate certain problems or put them down the list of priority. It's from The Times. It's about an institution to do with orphans and it's called Barnardo's Homes in Britain.

Barnardo's warns of Britain's secret trade in child sex
From The Times November 18, 2009 / Nico Hines

(Alan: These are COMMON articles now. We just sort of dismiss them thinking it's got nothing really to do with us.)

A secret network of organised child sex traffickers is operating within Britain (A: They could change it and say the US, Canada, everywhere else. It's happening too in Canada and I have articles on that, especially out of the west coast that's the capital of Canada for it. I will get into that but not tonight.), according to the charity Barnardo's.

Approximately one in six of the sexually exploited children currently being helped by the organisation say they have been moved between cities and passed around between paedophiles. (A: These are ORGANIZED sex rings now that are all over the place.)

Martin Narey, chief executive of Barnardo's, warned of a "hidden" problem in which vulnerable youngsters, many of whom have run away from home, are shunted around the country to increase their isolation.

"Through our work with children abused through prostitution, it became apparent that some young people were being moved around the UK, or from town to town, by abusing adults who would use the children for the purpose of sexual exploitation," he said.

(A: He talks about how they were approached.)
"An apparently kind man will buy them food, will buy them drink (A: The age of 12 and so on.) and give then a mobile phone, and then a few months later they will be isolated and alone, sometimes in a different town and sleeping with that man and his friends." (A: These are male and female too.)

No national records are kept on the number of children exploited in this way. (A: That's dropped off their list of priorities you see, because we've all become degraded now.) Barnardo's is calling for police and authorities across the UK to develop a greater awareness of the problem. (A: Well, good luck because I don't know if you've seen the LISTS of children who go missing and they're all just forgotten. THOUSANDS and THOUSANDS in every country every year… just gone. Then they give you the example of one of the children here and she tells you how it worked with her and how she got into it, driven to parties. She was told to have sex with his friends and so on.)

This is common fare, as I say, common, common fare. It is part of the degenerating techniques after YEARS of exploitation to a public that take this kind of stuff for granted because they're corrupted themselves, step by step. EVERY generation is corrupted; every generation, further into it, further into it until anything goes, until you end up with a brave new world scenario that Huxley predicted. He was right on, on where it's all supposed to go. The main thing with promiscuity is to BREAK THE BONDING PROCESS BETWEEN PEOPLE SO THEY DO NOT MARRY OR HAVE OFFSPRING. Julian Huxley, the bother of Aldous, the first CEO of UNESCO at the United Nations organization that is one of the most perverted of all and to make sure, it's really in charge of ALL EDUCATIONS in the world. They are associated with the National Teacher's Associations of all countries. They have come up with some amazing stuff on how group masturbation in school would be a good thing. I read the articles not so long ago from their own sites. I'm not shocked with anything. I know what it's all about. I know where it's going too.

Then you couple that with where else it's going. From the Times Online again, you've got an amazing amount of money being spent on something that you just can't figure out why. When scientists go hell-for-leather to find something… Remember, all science is DIRECTED because they're all funded by those who direct them. They don't say 'here's a massive cash grant, go out and find whatever you can on whatever is of interest.' No. They're TOLD what to look for because there's always a social, political REASON for it… by those who rule. When they tried the roaring 20s stuff in the Western world, that's what you had in the US, again, a preparation for total degradation with cocaine… They made booze illegal - made sure there was plenty there mind you, in the booze cans - but it was naughty and that's where all the youngsters would go. If it's bad and forbidden, they are going to go. They had more alcoholics, more folk drinking AFTER prohibition then they did before it. Those guys who designed this knew that too.

Then they came out with something in the second go-around. The first go-around had too much pregnancy. They didn't have the contraceptives. They didn't have the open abortions that you have today. There were orphanages that were getting stuffed to the seams with unwanted children. Venereal disease was up like crazy because they didn't have the antibiotics to treat them. So they went back to the drawing board and they worked hard with massive grants and massive funding, DEMANDED by the so-called left, but happily supplied by the so-called right. They came out with the pill in the 60s. They introduced the pill and the BOMB of popular music came out at the same time, and the mini skirt and 'do whatever you want'. That's what the songs were about, 'do whatever you want;' not initially but that's how they eventually became very quickly. They used to bring on these stars on TV that would fall off chairs in interviews; they could hardly get a sentence out they were so stoned, or they were tripping on LSD. Guys in the BBC, of all places - the government broadcasting station basically, which it is - they were all recruited from Eton at that time to make sure that the class structure in control KEPT all information and KEPT directing culture, they would just titter on screen when the guest would fall off his chair… time after time. I saw so many of them; I was small watching this stuff.

But that's not enough to bring in, again, all things that destroy that main target: then END OF THE FAMILY UNIT. It had to be done away with. Here they go, The Times Online.

Scientists find single 'on-off' gene that can change gender traits
From The Times December 11, 2009 / Hannah Devlin

(A: Now WHY have they been going on hell-for-leather? Number one, in genetics, you'd better wonder about that to begin with. You won't get it until you look into eugenics and the history of eugenics and the utopians' dreams.)

Scientists have identified the gene that keeps females female. An international team found that the action of a single gene is all that stops females from developing male physical traits, including testes and facial hair.

When this gene was artificially "switched off" in adult female mice their ovaries began to turn into testes and they started to produce a level of testosterone found in healthy male mice.

The discovery could eventually revolutionise gender reassignment therapy and improve treatments for babies who are born with a mixed gender. (A: They always bring out the stuff that's to 'help, help the few' that they care about, you know, really care… and all that rubbish. It's the same with the chip for implant in the brain. It was DARPA of all… look what DARPA is. Check it up for yourself. It came out with a chip and put it in a quadriplegic to say 'the guy can send emails now with thinking, just by thought.' Well look what the business of DARPA is. It's not there to help anybody. But they always use this same con when they're going ahead into an area to throw everybody off and generally for most folk it's good enough. Read Brave New World again because Huxley goes into that in Brave New World where literally the children are ASSIGNED their genders. They alter it all in the womb, an artificial womb mind you; that's still to come to the public. I'm sure it's already developed in some very secretive laboratories.)

The research, published today in the journal Cell, challenges a common perception that gender is determined purely by the X-chromosomes and Y-chromosomes. The gene that was switched off, known as FOXL2, lies on a non-sex chromosome that is shared by males and females.

"We take it for granted that we maintain the sex we are born with (A: They should actually say 'gender;' sex is used for everything now if you notice and that's not by mistake. Everything is a trigger word; you've got to understand how things work in psycholinguistics. So I'll replace it all with 'gender'.), including whether we have testes or ovaries. But this work shows that the activity of a single gene, FOXL2, is all that prevents adult ovary cells turning into cells found in testes," said Robin Lovell-Badge, from the National Institute for Medical Research, a co-author of the paper.

The gene appears to have a "see-saw" relationship with another gene, SOX9, which is normally active only in males. When one is on, the other is automatically off. In the first few days of male development SOX9 is turned on, and this stops FOXL2 from becoming active for the rest of the man's life. The reverse occurs in females, with FOXL2 being switched on first.

The discovery that gender depends, at least in part, on the competing action of genes that are shared by both (A: genders) sexes suggests that gender can be more easily manipulated than previously thought. (A: Sure, like this is new stuff to them. No. We get antique information. Back after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just going on a little roll about SOME, just one little way, one AREA of how to degrade society that was TAUGHT to professional revolutionaries who were in different tiers and different classes themselves and the higher ones worked within governments obviously, to make social policies for change. How they go for your natural drives and how they distort them until they become obsessive drives, especially when you give them an entertainment system and a media system that makes you a voyeur. That's what folk are really waiting for, the erotic, the highly erotic sex stuff that happens between the hero and the heroin or all things in between these days.

When Clinton was in I remember the Surgeon General was highly controversial because she was talking about exactly the same article I read recently, coming from the United Nations about class masturbation in schools. So she kind of got some backlash from the public and they had to remove her, but they didn't stop. The UN is still pushing it. Here's who they're putting in NOW. I told you, all the right people are in Obama's administration and every other country's administration at the same time across the Western world.

This is from Gateway Pundit.

December 9, 2009 / Jim Hoft / gatewaypundit.firstthings.com

(Warning on Content)
In March 2000 the Gay, Lesbian, and Straight Education Network (GLSEN) organization of Massachusetts held its 10 Year Anniversary GLSEN/Boston conference at Tufts University. (A: So this wasn't a little street thing or a back street thing. This is in Tufts University. That's where it's all done, in academia.) This conference was fully supported by the Massachusetts Department of Education, the Safe Schools Program, the Governor's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth, and some of the presenters even received federal money. During the 2000 conference, workshop leaders led a "youth only, ages 14-21" session that offered lessons in "fisting" (A: That's anal fisting.) a dangerous sexual practice. … (A: During the workshop, that's what they were taught. That's your academia pushing that. After all, the ordinary folk, the proles, don't change society; it's ACADEMIA and those who end up being managerial in looking OVER society and managing it. Scrolling down here it says Barack Obama appointed Kevin Jennings, who is the head of this organization…)

Barack Obama's "Safe Schools Czar" Kevin Jennings is the founder of GLSEN. He was paid $273,573.96 as its executive director in 2007. (A: That's not a bad paycheck. That tells you how important it is to ram this stuff, forgive my language, to ram this stuff through.) Jennings was the keynote speaker at the 2000 GLSEN conference.

Barack Obama's "Safe Schools Czar" was the keynote speaker at the GLSEN/Boston Conference at Tufts University in 2000…. (A: And he's still one of the main activists for it.)

Unfortunately for GLSEN, undercover journalists with Mass Resistance recorded these outrageous sessions at Tufts

University. The audio was later leaked to a local radio station. This created such an uproar that GLSEN leaders were forced to apologize for their disgusting behavior. (A: What were they talking about on it? Should you swallow or not swallow and how to have safe fisting with your friends and stuff like that, and how to do safe rimming, whatever that is, I have no idea. Maybe it's something to do with routing; I know that's used in woodwork. Anyway, you'll hear the audios if you want to look into this particular site. I'll put these links up on my site at the end of the show.)

It ties in with the degradation, the purposeful degradation of society, which is then EASILY CONTROLLED. As Mazzini said, "First you degenerate society, then you order them." That's what we're going through.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Child Sex Trafficking in UK

Gene Gender Switch Claimed to be Found

Kevin Jennings appointed Obama's Safe School Czar-See What He Advocates
((gatewaypundit.firstthings.com) - Dec. 9, 2009.)

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 15, 2009 (#472)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 15, 2009:
Religious Freedom Train has Lobotomized Brain:
"The World Religions are All Compromised,
Replacing Beliefs with Communist Lies,
Strident at First, Now Lazy and Fat,
Politicized Shepherds Know Where it's At,
In Order to Keep their Tax-Exempt Funding,
The Cutting-Edge Sword has Severe Blunting,
Hybrid Sheep All Mixed with the Others,
A World of Bleaters under Various Covers,
Chewing Violence and Sex from Daily TV,
To the God of Mammon, They Bend the Knee,
When Dead Bury the Dead, They'll be in Shock
As They're Pawning Clothes, their Priest has No Frock"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 15, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 15, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 15th 2009. For the newcomers, look into .com. On this web site you'll see all the other sites I have if you scroll down. Bookmark them for future use because I do get hassles from the big servers once in a while and if you bookmark them, at least you can download the latest shows - they're in audio format - and you can listen to them while the big ones give me a hassle and I try to figure it out. These are the official sites I have and anything else is not mine. [Sites listed above.] As always, I try to get my little plug for myself in at the very top of the show, which is probably wrong. I should scatter it throughout the show because people jump over it. Everyone expects everyone else to pay. That's generally what happens. Everybody is expecting and no one is paying. You can buy the books, CDs and DVDs that I have for sale on the web site. Some of the CDs have 50 shows on them. You can also donate. The method to purchase my items or donate is on the web site. [Options listed above.] For folks who just get the disks burned and given to them, they don't use computers, and lots of them get passed around at talks and demonstrations and so on, you can get in touch with me at [address above].

I generally mention too once in a while, that if you're not authorized to be out there and you're not living in the US, you have to use US sources to get information out. It's the only country left with the ability to say things and even that's going down quickly. There are massive attacks inside the US to curtail freedom of speech. Freedom of speech means that you have to listen to a lot of the stuff you don't like as well. That's what freedom of speech is all about, the pros and cons, the groups that go after each other. You can not be offended because that's what free speech is about. When free speech is curtailed, it means that somebody has won somewhere and they're eliminating all the rest from talking about them. That's really what free speech and censorship is about. In Canada, I have XplorNet literally cutting me back; that's my uploader. I upload through their satellite company and they're censoring me, by design, by cutting me by over half the speed – taking the same money of course – and giving me the runaround. ONLY IN THE U.S. DO YOU HAVE THE LAST VOICE LEFT… USE IT! Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. As I say, it's amazing outside the US and it's amazing inside the US because people take things for granted within their country. They think and every generation thinks that everything is going to be the same forever. Then they grow older and they ADAPT to the changes until literally, you adapt your way OUT of all FREEDOMS and you have no freedoms left. They don't understand that OUTSIDE THE US, basically you don't have these rights and freedoms to say what you want to say. People who DO say what they want to say from whatever party, side or whatever agency, they come under fire often from the biggest agencies out there; the ones who are backed by the biggest money and the biggest organization.

Outside the US we know we are in a completely SOCIALIZED world. A socialized world, done on the FABIAN principle that was meant to integrate the Soviet system, after 70-80 years, into the commercial capitalist system, with those that have the right by Darwin's principles, those at the TOP of the capitalistic system, to run the world together. Socialism for the public, serving the world state, and for the people, they get all their cash or credits or whatever they want to call it from the big, top, capitalists that would work hand-in-glove with government. That's why it's so hard to define it to most people. They get stuck in terms. They think of only communism as communism. They think of socialism as something completely different. They think of fascism, again, as something completely different. You've got to understand this is a BLENDING of all those systems that came out of the principles of Charles Darwin.

In fact you'll find if you go in to the writings of Karl Marx, he adopted Darwin's theories because he said it validated his whole theory, his doctrine of materialism. Under those principles, those who have PROVEN they were the fittest to survive by getting to the top had the right to rule over the rest and that science eventually would be used as the big hammer on the public. Experts, a world of experts and scientists – snake oil salesmen really – that could wrangle any formula to suit their political agendas. That's what we live through. It's through medicine; it's through everything. A lot of nonsense theories that keep changing all the time, contradicting the last theories very often, without a mention – very Orwellian – without a mention of how wrong they must have been with yesterday's theory that was taught as the gospel truth.

There are very few stations left in the United States that can still say what they want, very few. I've no doubt at all they will be banned eventually. We are really IN the grip now of the last stage of the onslaught of what is loosely termed 'world socialism,' something planned for well over 100 years, actually hundreds of years in the making. One of the stations here is RBN. I don't get paid from RBN. I don't get paid by the advertisers. The money of the advertisers that are on the show pay directly to RBN; I have nothing to do with that at all. That pays for this air time and it pays for their staff, equipment and their bills. I'm sure RBN gets a lot of hammering as well for the different guests that they have on, the different ideas and all the rest of it. Again, that's what freedom of speech is all about, whether you like it or not. Lots of people out there would have you have NO freedom of speech whatsoever; they will turn you into an Orwellian world.

People have to see George Orwell's 1984, the black and white version. Most folk don't read the book anymore; they can't read any book, they've got to have it all visual. So, if they see the black and white version that was put out in 1984, as a memorial basically to George Orwell, a tribute, with Richard Burton in it. It's a very good version. They cram a lot of the real book in there. THAT'S what we are going through now. When you see double think at play, where the bureaucratic class, when they're given a new order as to who they're fighting, MUST FORGET who they were fighting yesterday and pretend it was always this NEW enemy and that's who they've always been fighting, just like that… just like that. That's the politically correct world we live in today. We believe what we're told to believe immediately, and you'd better believe it OR ELSE. That's what it's all about under world socialism.

I used to listen to Patriot radio stations when it was all on short wave radio; that's the AM band. There were quite a few different stations out there at that time with different points of view. It was good to listen to all of the different points of view of what was happening in the world and how different groups saw things from their perspective. One by one, I watched them all go down, almost ALL have gone. You get attacks by many different ways, just like I get attacked by a satellite company that really is working for Hughes Satellite Corporation, which is the big military-industrial bunch. The military share the same satellite that XplorNet subcontracts for. So they're in bed with them totally. If they can't just ban you from speaking, the simply pull the plug on you or give you hassles like halving your speed so you can't even watch a video.

I get probably hundreds of people every week saying watch this video but I can't watch ANY. I can't even download - even though I'm paying for high speed - I can't even download my own show as it's playing right now, as YOU can do; you can download it because RBN is broadcasting it. I can't do that. That's how they get to you outside the US. This kind of stuff can be done too, more covertly within the US. You have more right to comeback and complain than we do outside. We have no rights here. Here, they'll play with you forever, just play with you. I've gone through all the rigmarole of probably it's your equipment. Then you pay hundreds of bucks to get a guy in and then of course, you replace this and that, and nothing is wrong with the stuff and it isn't until you go through all this rigmarole that eventually one person at XplorNet, one night, maybe a new girl, I don't know, said they've got you on a lock. I said oh really? 'Yeah, they've got you on a lock for your usage.' Of course they had great clauses saying 'unfair use of policy', unfair use… even though I DON'T overdo anything that wasn't in the advertising in the contract. They can vary it to suit you and say 'oh well, see for you, especially you, you've gone over the limit.' You say, what IS the limit? I've been through this with them. 'We can't tell you.' They can't tell me what the limit is! So you catch on immediately, they've been TOLD to give me a hassle. So anybody who really wants high speed, whatever you do, DON'T get XplorNet. I'll keep talking about that until they up the speed to what it's supposed to be, what I'm paying for. They have no problem taking the cash for that. Then I might just be a little more pleasant to them. This has been going on for months now, months.

Most folk, as I say, are ignorant of the history of what's been happening and they get confused with terms like communism, socialism, all the isms, even Zionism; there are two kinds of Zionism. There is the one that Einstein talked about and there's the one that people think is to do with a homeland for Jewish people. But they really all COMBINE together. These came out of WORLD MOVEMENTS to UNITE the whole planet under the groups that were formed to bring in the Darwinistic theories, combined with the theories of Nietzsche and so on. In fact, Darwin was responsible to giving credence to the theory of Marxism and Communism. They showed in their own propaganda in the Soviet Union the faces of Lenin and Darwin and they had portraits of Marx and all the rest of it. They put them all together. You'll find that in the early Nazi posters as well. They did the same thing. In fact, in the earliest ones, Hitler was next to Lenin; they had them on the same poster because they were BOTH socialist movements.

We find these big, big movements towards that were also funded, in history you can tell, they were funded - by proof and evidence and articles written in prestigious magazines and newspapers at the time - that they were funded by the top BANKERS of the Western world: Germany, Britain, and the US. They brought in those moments, all of them. No one was ever tried. No banker was ever tried and no corporation was ever tried, international corporations, for the damage they caused to the rest of us… because the agenda is still ongoing and they're all still being used. When they started up the revolutionary movements, they had to create ones for most of the males but they also created ones for the females to get them in, to get everybody involved in change - change was to be good, you see - back in the 1800s.

They brought out Madame Blavatsky, an actress basically, a ham actress. They gave her a form of female Freemasonry with mysticism and channeling and all this stuff to bring them in. That's what Weishaupt said too, how do you get recruits in, you give them a big MYSTERY; you never give them the answer, but give them great mystery and you can keep them going. It was also for revolutionary change and Blavatsky talked about that, revolutionary, radical change. She said eventually we shall win by using the CHURCHES. Back with more on this after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. Back in the 1800s there were so many groups formed and they were formed to be multitude of groups because those that planned the future knew there were different kinds of personalities, different classes and so on, different kinds of people with different beefs. So they gave leaders to ALL. They also knew that people were very religious in some countries and they made sure they got their religious leaders presented them as well, through infiltration. That's what Blavatsky talked about in her own books. She said that eventually they'd bring in a WORLD RELIGION and they'd use the churches to do it. They've actually done it.

We also know that Mr. Rockefeller funded the World Council of Churches that began all the interfaith. They didn't actually begin it; they copied it because his ancestors were already busy with a Parliament of World Religions. I think the first one was, they had one I think in England with the World Fair in the 1800s. Then there was another one too in Chicago in about 1893, a Parliament of World Religions. I have their books here. Their idea was to bring a world socialist system together and they used all the religious leaders to bring it about. They never stopped. They never stopped. That's why it's never safe to join anything without looking into who controls your particular branch of a church, what kind of sect are you in, how far does it go up, does it go up to the World Council of Churches? If it does, then you're in a socialist, global system. Once your job is done and you bring all this to be, you'll have nothing left in common with the initial guidelines and beliefs of that particular church. However, that won't matter because generations will have passed and you'll be like everyone else in the world by then. Most folk have already done that.

There's really no difference at all between the average cultural Christian - as they're called, intergenerational cultural Christian - to the general population, same divorce rate, same amounts of affairs and all the rest of it. They've done so many studies on all of this stuff. They all watch the same TV programs. So it's a CULTURAL Christian, as opposed to someone that follows a Christian WAY, generally because they haven't been taught to. There's also a Council for a PARLIAMENT of the world's religions. I think they just held their world meeting recently. I'll put the link up on my site at the end of the show. All these articles I'm going to read you'll find on my site at the end of the show, once I can spend twice the time uploading it because of XplorNet. Go through this web site at your leisure.

There's a lot in there to show you how they're all working to bring the world together, through ALL the religions. The Dalai Lama, all the different Christian leaders have been infiltrated into regular religions and how they're doing all these interfaith things to bring in the greening and everything else. They're all behind the carbon footprint agenda and all that stuff because anybody who's anybody today, who wants a lot of funding from the big boys – and yes they all do get funding from the same sources – must be on board with the whole agenda of a world socialist society where experts will run the world. They'll have their scientific priesthood and for those who want a religion, they'll ensure they have your 'on board' religionists to keep you nice happy sheep.

It's interesting how Blavatsky was quite correct. Freemasonry was the intended way that Blavatsky talked about infiltrating all the churches. Believe you me, the US was infiltrated from its very foundation… its VERY FOUNDATION. Once the revolutionary war was over, groups of different sects came over from Europe and they set up their own institutions within the US, very, very interesting groups. Right down to what they called Christian communist groups. They tried to live in communes run by, again, an expert at the top, someone they really revered and they had breeding programs on the go, like they did at Oneida in New York. It's very interesting to look at that. You'll find that Sir Thomas Huxley, the best friend of Darwin, was SO interested in that particular group. He had all access to all their records of who mated with whom, the kind of children they brought up and they were raised communally by the way. HG Wells and others made trips over to visit the communes because not everyone could breed with everyone else. They promoted daily sex, amongst all of the people, even CHILD sex. Under all these different guidelines, but you were not allowed to CONCEIVE unless you were ORDERED to conceive; you were mated like stallions and mares by those in charge. Fantastic story but the public are ignorant of these groups that infiltrated the US - by design - and where they came from and who ran them.

Just like today. Everything is done by deception. This is from The Times. It just reminds me of what I think it was Malachi Martin said in one of his talks about the Vatican, when he was discussing Windswept House, one of his books. He said it was all finished in the Vatican; it was completely taken over, COMPLETELY TAKEN OVER by different kinds of perverts. He was talking about Freemasons as well. It was taken over politically too because it all goes together, by the way.

Vatican thumbs up for Karl Marx after Galileo, Darwin and Oscar Wilde
From The Times October 22, 2009

They have added them pretty well to their SAINTS. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about not only the takeover of churches but how the public didn't even know it was happening. They adapt, they adapt to changes all the time, until what they're following, maybe 3 generations down the road, is a completely different version of the religion that their grandparents or great-grandparents followed. They don't even know that. They adapt. Most of the unthinking people in the world - they call them 'the dead' in all ages – adapt; they adapt to whatever system they live under. Something that those who rule and fund revolutions for their change, along a particular design, understand PERFECTLY. That the great masses of people, the proles as Orwell called them, or the proletariat as Marx and Lenin called them, they don't know what's going on. They don't really CARE what's going on. They don't care what flag is waving above them or who runs them, or OWNS them basically; they never wisen up to the fact they're actually owned in fact.

I'm talking about the Vatican here and from The Times.

Vatican thumbs up for Karl Marx after Galileo, Darwin and Oscar Wilde
From The Times October 22, 2009

Karl Marx, who famously described religion as "the opium of the people", has joined Galileo, Charles Darwin and Oscar Wilde on a growing list of historical figures to have undergone an unlikely reappraisal by the Roman Catholic Church.

L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, said yesterday that Marx's early critiques of capitalism had highlighted the "social alienation" felt by the "large part of humanity" that remained excluded, even now, from economic and political decision-making. (Alan: Everything's changed now, we've all got a say in what happens at the top at all these global meetings like the one in Copenhagen, don't we?)

Georg Sans, a German-born professor of the history of contemporary philosophy at the pontifical Gregorian University, wrote in an article that Marx's work remained especially relevant today as mankind was seeking "a new harmony" between its needs and the natural environment. He also said that Marx's theories may help to explain the enduring issue of income inequality within capitalist societies. (A: That income inequality is going to get an awful lot wider as we all pay and pay and pay for the carbon taxes that's supposedly to help the third world countries. Mind you, through Mr. Rothschild's bank; that's who is going to deal with the carbon taxes.)

"We have to ask ourselves, with Marx, whether the forms of alienation of which he spoke have their origin in the capitalist system," Professor Sans wrote. "If money as such does not multiply on its own, how are we to explain the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few?" (A: Well, Charles Darwin explained that, you fool. Charles Darwin said that those who are fittest to survive GOT TO THE TOP in society by thrift and hard work and all that kind of stuff, just like Mr. Rothschild himself, the guy that BACKED Mr. Marx and put him up in England and helped fund him. God, they don't even know their history, these characters, do they? Quite amazing.)

That's followed up with this article here from Reuters. It says here…

Rich nations must assume environmental duties: pope
(A: This is from the POPE!)
Tue Dec 15, 2009 / By Philip Pullella / Reuters

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) - Industrialized nations must recognize their responsibility for the environmental crisis, shed their consumerism and embrace more sober lifestyles (A: That means poorer, by the way.), Pope Benedict said on Tuesday.

The pope's call for more environmental commitments came in his message for the Roman Catholic Church's annual World Day of Peace (A: World Day of Peace… ha, ha.), to be marked on Jan 1 and whose theme is "If You Want to Cultivate Peace, Protect Creation." (A: ha, ha… do you know how much carbon is going up in the abortion factories every day? …Mr. Pope?)

The message is traditionally sent to heads of state, government and international organizations and its importance this year is more significant because its release coincided with the U.N. climate conference in Copenhagen. (A: And that's just a coincidence of course… They all work together folks. Why don't you get it through your heads? THEY ALL WORK TOGETHER. I said years ago and I've said it over and over on the radio, don't join any group, you're being used. You're being used. If you sit down with your best pal and form a group and get 4 other members in, you're already infiltrated, I guarantee you. It happens all the time, ALL the time, all the time… and the folk don't know it.)

We're always conned, always conned. You know, Canada ordered I think it was 50 million doses of the injectable flu shot. It's way above the population of Canada. So I guess now the taxpayer that paid for all this stuff, minus all the cutbacks and the kickbacks that the politicians got for passing it all and ordering it, we'll also be paying now for the transportation of it to third world countries because they want them to die off like they want us to die off as well with all this junk they're injecting into us. Here's an article and it's from My Way News and it's from the Associated Press.

800,000 doses of kids' swine flu vaccine recalled
Dec 15 By MIKE STOBBE

ATLANTA (AP) - Health officials are recalling hundreds of thousands of doses of swine flu vaccine (A: Listen to this…) after tests indicated they may not be potent enough to protect against the virus. (A: In other words, USELESS!)

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention notified doctors about the recall Tuesday. The recall involves about 800,000 doses made by Sanofi Pasteur. (A: By the way, that was set up by the Rockefellers.) The doses are pre-filled syringes intended for young children, ages 6 months to almost three years.

Health officials (A: They don't even have to give us NAMES anymore, just 'experts' and 'health officials'.) recommend children those ages get two doses, spaced about a month apart.

Health officials say it's not clear how many doses have already been given, (A: They don't know. Who is kidding who?) but they don't think children need to be re-vaccinated. The lots passed potency tests when they were first shipped (A: Because a lot of money changed hands.), but tests indicate the potency waned after. (A: It just went dud afterwards. After it was passed, it went dud. Maybe it was useless to start with, that's what it means. [Alan laughing.] Oh boy… it's such a joke isn't it? Such a joke.)

I've talked about this article before and here's another one about the same thing, the truth about Tamiflu. It's from the Atlantic.

Has the U.S. wasted $1.5 billion on an ineffective drug?
by Shannon Brownlee and Jeanne Lenzer / Dispatch December 10, 2009 / The Atlantic

The Truth About Tamiflu

Two months ago, we pointed out in our story on flu in The Atlantic that the antiviral drug Tamiflu might not be as effective or safe as many patients, doctors, and governments think. The drug has been widely prescribed since the first cases of H1N1 flu surfaced last spring, and the U.S. government has spent more than $1.5 billion (A: Of taxpayers' money…) stockpiling it since 2005 as part of the nation's pandemic preparedness plan. (A: Every country has done this.)

Now it looks as if our concerns were correct, and the nation may have put more than a billion dollars into the medical equivalent of a mirage. This week, the British medical journal BMJ published a multi-part investigation that confirms that the scientific evidence just isn't there to show that Tamiflu prevents serious complications, hospitalization, or death in people that have the flu. The BMJ goes further to suggest that Roche, the Swiss company that manufactures and markets Tamiflu, may have misled(A: MISLED… that's very light.) governments and physicians. In its defense, Roche stated that the company "has never concealed (or had the intention to conceal) any pertinent data." [Alan laughing.]

The BMJ's investigation began innocently enough, with an update of a review by the Cochrane Collaboration, a widely-respected international consortium of researchers who periodically examine the medical literature to assess the safety and effectiveness of various treatments. Roche has claimed that its drug reduces hospital admissions by 61% in patients who were otherwise healthy before they got the flu. It has also said that Tamiflu reduces such complications as bronchitis, pneumonia, and sinusitis by 67%, and lower respiratory tract infections requiring antibiotics by 55%. A 2006 Cochrane review of Tamiflu came to similar conclusions—based largely on a paper(A: ONE paper.) that looked at ten studies, all of them funded by the company.

The dog ate my homework

But when the Cochrane team, led by Chris Del Mar, from Bond University in Australia, re-examined the studies they had previously used in 2006, they found some discrepancies. It turned out that only two of the ten studies had ever been published in medical journals, (A: So out of the 10 studies that they claimed worked there, only 2 of them had ever been published.) and those two showed the drug had very little effect on complications compared to a dummy pill, or placebo. So the Cochrane reviewers decided to look at the data for themselves.

First they went to the lead authors of the published studies—the researchers who were supposed to have access to all of the data. One author said he had lost track of the data when he moved offices and the files appeared to have been discarded. The other said he'd never actually seen the data himself, and directed the Cochrane team to go directly to the company. (A: These are the 2 papers they're talking about that ALL this data came from.)

Four months and multiple requests later, the Cochrane researchers had a hodgepodge of data from the company, including two studies that showed the drug was ineffective, but which the company had never published.

I could go on and on but I won't bother. I won't bother. I'm not surprised at all. I've been saying this from the beginning. It doesn't matter though. They could bring it out again and panic the public once more, who have heard all this stuff, and common sense and memory goes out the window when they're panicked, you see. That's why they can keep doing this stuff over and over and over again. OVER AND OVER AGAIN. Quite something isn't it?

There is also the Climate Conference going on. As we all know this is the FINAL STEP of one of the planks of the COMMUNIST MANIFESTO, for those who care to look it up for themselves. It's called 'the redistribution of wealth'. A lot of fools and followers REALLY BELIEVE in this, that that's what they really MEAN; they want to redistribute the wealth. Look at the history of the Soviet Union where a TINY MINORITY took over that country, in the middle of the night. There was a PREVIOUS kind of revolution into a parliamentary system and they took it over in the middle of the night and ran that country from then on with absolute HORROR and TERROR. They always have a reign of terror when they take over and to stay in charge, they terrify everybody.

They said too in the Communist Manifesto, apart from abolishing the family and all the rest of it, they would redistribute the wealth; they would ABOLISH PRIVATE PROPERTY, etc, etc. So we will think they're just going to pass a law and say 'that's it, we're going to abolish private property.' No, they get you in other ways. They use the United Nations. They use HUNDREDS of departments within the United Nations, inspectors for the ecosystems and is your house destroying the ecosystem and is your gutter pipe – I kid you not; if your gutter pipe is dented they will give you thousands of dollars in fines per day. Eventually, you're off your land. There are many ways to achieve the same goal. People can't connect it. They can't connect it. They're always waiting for somebody at the top to say, 'Yes, I'm a communist, I run the world and we are abolishing private property; we're going to redistribute the wealth from the richer countries across the planet.' Believe you me, that's not their goal. The money NEVER GETS to where it's supposed to go, as you well know. In fact, the ones at the top, since they BELIEVE in Darwinism, also have a list of the people they want to bump off… eradicate. So this stuff isn't going to end up helping Africa out, believe you me. You'd better do your homework before you fall into all this propaganda you are hearing. 'Oh, that's nice. We'll all have a car and…' No you won't. You aren't going to have your car either. You won't even have a house to live in… by the time you go through this period, this Century of Change. There are a lot of changes to make this century, a lot of changes. Most out there will just adapt and adapt and adapt.

Eventually they will adapt into a form of Brave New World that follows the Orwellian period. Brave New World, they're already there pretty well. I think it was NBC, or it was one of the big companies [BBC], made a Brave New World movie back in 1980. I'm sure you can all do a search and find it for yourself. Look at it, read it and watch it. It follows the communist ideal where no one bonds with anyone else, everyone has sex all the time, but they don't give birth, they don't get pregnant. Exactly what Julian Huxley said too, who was a top player in this global system, the head of UNESCO, the United Nations department for education.

I'll put this link up from UPI.com.
Climate conference
Published: Dec. 15, 2009 / By United Press International

This is to show you how they're going to start to redistribute the wealth and all the rest of it. Do you realize the amount of MONEY… do you realize the millions and millions and millions of dollars of funding it took to get all these hundreds and hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of NON-GOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATIONS over to Copenhagen… who are stopping people talking OUT AGAINST the con, using Nazi techniques of just coming in to the meetings and screaming and yelling? They're a rah-rah team for the whole thing to go through. All led at the top by CHOSEN agents - and they are chosen and trained - with lots of idiotic followers who still probably believe in a new type of Santa Claus. The idealists, they use the idealism of the YOUTH who are too young and they have no wisdom collected. They haven't watched the cons. They haven't personally suffered from the cons yet. They're too selfish to look at people who have suffered the cons, the older people. In fact they're told not to even think about older people; they're in the way. The older people caused all these problems, my goodness; and they're going to take it all back and fix it all.

Then there is also the other side of it, the Texas Eagle Forum that attended it to see what was going on. It goes on about a report there, what is really happening and how they're talking now about hard cash from the richer countries. For all you out there that are having trouble getting a job or holding on to a house or whatever else, maybe not getting enough food on the table, you are called the rich, by the way, by - I'll loosely call them communists - by these commie forces that are financed by the big bankers and foundations to go over there. They lay it on the line what's coming down the pike for the US. I'll put up this link and you can read it for yourself as well.

Copenhagen GOAL is One-World Government
Wednesday, 28 October 2009 / Texas Eagle Forum

They used to say in Scotland when they had all these battles, when London was trying to take over and create this empire, this group that ruled London. After battles, they would say 'it's all over bar the shouting.' Meaning the battle was over, it was just the yelling that was left. That's all that was going on. Well, to honest with you, that is where we are today; that's how far gone it is. That's how far gone it is, folks. I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. There's also an article, before I take a caller, from the Mail Online that Lord Monckton, that's come out and told the world where it's actually going and been heavily criticized by all kinds of people for doing so. He was attacked basically, at least verbally, by a Jewish activist at a Copenhagen meeting, an ALTERNATE meeting, where they're talking about what's really happening. He brandished this Jewish guy a Hitler Youth, which is the right response because these guys are like brownshirts coming in to disrupt the meeting. That's what they were about and doing. He did the right response. That's the only way you can handle that kind of thing when that happens to you. He's no fool, Lord Monckton. I'll put this link up too. That's from The Daily Mail.

Former Tory peer Lord Monckton labels Jewish activist 'Hitler Youth' at climate change event
By Daily Mail Reporter / 12th December 2009

They come in and then start screaming and yelling until no one can speak and that's their intention. Just like the brownshirts did.

I think Mike from Ohio is still holding. This satellite is going in and out so I don't know.

Mike: Alan, I have a question for you. Are you allowed to own handguns and rifles and shotguns in Canada and if so, what kind and what do you have to do to be able to own them?

Alan: Well, I don’t know what they are now because they keep changing the laws. They changed so many laws over the last few years, I think they even made them, one ones who had hunting rifles, register them as well, across the country. That’s right across the country. Very few folk can have handguns unless the join a club, I believe. They’re not allowed to have it in their car, even if it’s locked up, unless they’re going to and from the club; that kind of stuff. It’s way out. Even hunting is on its way out because of all the hoops and licensing and courses that they have to take. I think a lot of them have given up.

Mike: I’m wondering because I was just surfing the other day and I found a gun shop in Canada and I thought wow. I noticed they mentioned permits and this administration of all kinds of permits if you had a show.

Alan: It isn’t just permits. You have to actually take a government-sponsored course for number one, before you can purchase one, then you have to register it, like a hunting rifle, you can’t buy ammo without it and you must take a safety course before you can get it. Then it’s another few weeks, if you take a hunting course. Then of course, you must be open to inspection by the police that come in to inspect how you are storing it and all that stuff. So a lot of folk just threw up their hands and said that it’s pointless.

Mike: I was looking at the people who do the cowboy shooting up there, with black-powder handguns and rifles and stuff.

Alan: They even have crossbows licensed up here as firearms.

Mike: Crossbows?

Alan: Even crossbows come under firearms and you must take the same courses for a crossbow.

Mike: What do you do way out in the Thule where you live? What do you do if a bear comes or something?

Alan: Well, up here, you just have to use your common sense and a lot of people too, there are a lot of Indians out this way, still do trapping. They are awfully good at showing people how to trap and so on. What happens if a bear comes? It’s like someone breaking you home, you’re allowed to stand there and be lawfully eaten.

Mike: Oh, no.

Alan: Yep.

Mike: Oh, lord. You mean you can’t do anything. If you shot the bear you would probably go to jail if you didn’t have a permit for a gun.

Alan: You could certainly be… they would take the firearm off you. They would charge you for unlawful use of a firearm and probably endangering wildlife.

Mike: Oh, boy.

Alan: Thanks for calling, Mike.

Mike: Thank you, Alan.

From myself and Hamish in Ontario, Canada – Hamish is the dog – it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Council of Parliament for World Religions

New Vatican-New Saints

Pope says Rich Countries to Pay

Useless Vaccines Recalled-800,000 Doses

Truth about Tamiflu

From Copenhagen Formality Conference

Texas Eagle Forum at Copenhagen-Report

Lord Monckton calls Eco-Agitators Nazis for using Nazi Tactics

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 16, 2009 (#473)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 16, 2009:
Give Up Freedom for Security? -- Strains Credulity:
"Faith, Hope and Charity for One Who Prays,
While Nietzschean Rulers Use Men Like Bernays,
Self-Directed Free-Will Could Bring Disaster,
For Such a Public Would Bear No Master,
They'd Know Cultural Value of Social Rules,
Not Turn into Jelly, Nor Taken as Fools
When Told to Give Up Freedom for Security,
Knowing their Rights are the Only Surety
Against the Clever Clique Whose Machinations
By Way of Deceit, Bring Consternation,
Fear and Destruction to All Free People,
'Fore Erecting their Symbol, the Eye-Topped Steeple"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 16, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 16, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 16, 2009. For newcomers, look into .com web site. Bookmark the other sites you'll see there that I have up, for future use, because sometimes the big ones go down. If you have them bookmarked you can always pull down the latest audio shows. These are the official sites: [listed above]. It's terrible that you even have to go to such lengths to put so many sites up but believe you me, if you live in a Commonwealth country, the British Empire you might say, you don't have the sort of 'fair play' as they call it, above board and going through of legalities for the authorities to come down on you. They simply play games on you. That's traditional in the British Commonwealth system. They did put a word in to the servers, which is standard in the Commonwealth countries, to give you a hard time. You know you've been picked when the servers can't tell you themselves why you just can't upload; it's just a big mystery that it takes them 2 to 3 weeks to figure out. So I've had to put all these different sites up there to alternate them and hope that you can eventually get one that will work for you. It's a good idea too, to try different ones on different nights because everyone goes into the .com site at the same time and they sometimes find sticky downloads. If you try the other ones there you might get through quicker. So remember these are the only official sites I have.

I should also mention too that you the listeners bring me to you. I'm not backed by foundation, an organization, a non-governmental organization. I don't have any political beef to pull because I don't go left or right or anything else; I'm too wise for that old game. It's up to you to keep me going so you can buy the few things I have for sale – the books, CDs and DVDs – or you can donate. The CDs that are there, you can get 50 shows to listen to of the talks I've given in the past. You can also get the DVDs and the books. Remember too, if you go into alanwattsentientsentinel.eu you can download transcripts AND the audios. The transcripts are of a lot of the talks I've given and they are in the various languages of Europe for print up. You can also order one of the books I've got out there in a Spanish or Portuguese version as well. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them at meetings, you can get in touch with me at [address above]. A lot of people don't like to use computers and they play them on their CD players. I don't blame them because as far as I'm concerned the computer really is a short-lived thing as far a freedom goes. It was meant to get us all sucked in to use it, so it was absolutely vital to have to exist in today's society, especially more so when they go completely cashless BY LAW, which is coming up. The big bankers have already published they hope to be cashless within another 5-7 years across the planet. So it's up to you to keep me going and you can do so by doing that OR you can donate to me. [Options listed above.] I'll be back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. I've said for a long time that facts don't matter when it comes to agendas. Propaganda matters… more so than ever when you realize that nothing happens on a world scale, like the Copenhagen meeting with thousands of NGOs turning up. It doesn't happen by chance. It doesn't happen because some people decide, well I want to go green and I think I'll go around with a tin can and get some cash from the people on the street and support the trees or whatever. You're talking about DOCTRINE, doctrine that has been TAUGHT but it had to start somewhere. Where does it start? It started in the schools. Academia is where they train the generations for the NEXT step of the world AS IT WILL BE that they're going to grow up in to. It's going to be different from the one that was planned – and I say planned – for their parents. Every age is planned.

That's the whole crux of the matter in planned societies. The 1800s talked about it; lots of books came out, apart from Karl Marx's books, on PLANNED SOCIETIES and ORDER. It was all to do with order. Remember, control freaks like order. They don't like people doing their own little thing and being outside the box doing their own thing. They like everyone to be under order. They love massive bureaucracies. They love to keep tabs on everybody. They don't like people traveling, with access to travel. They like to know who is going where. They prefer actually to issue PERMITS for you , just like the Soviet Union or any totalitarian regime, permits as to where you could go. Into the next town, well you need a permit for that. Who do you want to visit? Who do you want to see? And so on. PLANNED societies. Right down to planning the population sizes. They knew in the 1800s, the big boys that planned the whole DIRECTION of world conquest, including the Industrial Revolution ERA, they planned a future in a POST-industrial society IN the 1800s. They knew they would get past that phase. They knew too that during that time they had to use empire building to take over a lot of the world. They certainly used Britain as the main means at that time to push it and promote it. The US really took up the cudgel, once it was completely taken over, and carried on the same agenda.

That is what Professor Carroll Quigley was talking about in Tragedy and Hope AND The Anglo-American Establishment. He said that the British Empire was to be a NUCLEUS of a system that the League of Nations was founded upon. Then it became the United Nations. Today we call it GLOBALIZATION. Centralization was the key to the strategy. Karl Marx did not work alone in a little room in poverty by any means at all. This was an agenda written by and planned by much bigger heads than he had and his was big enough.

They do plan AGES… like any big business plan. What surprised me even with corporations when you get talking to some of the big fellas, they will tell you that their business plans include whom they hope to take over, their rivals, in the next 20, 30, 40, 50 years. Long-term goals, long term plans. But they knew they would get to a stage where they wanted a MANAGEABLE population. Too many people you see, KEPT in a state of poverty tend to become agitated and sometimes they will have rebellions that are out of their control. They best way to deal with that is to have a totally controlled, observed, watched, monitored society, with a vastly reduced population. They also coupled it so well with science and progress. Science.

They also tacked on Darwinism. Marx in fact wanted to dedicate his 2nd or 3rd edition of his Communist Manifesto – it wasn't his, he was just the guy who penned it for his masters – he wanted to dedicate it to Charles Darwin because he said that it VALIDATED the whole theory of Marxism, of this ideal of material progress and science together, coupling superior types that always lead the world. It was the same kind of thing that Nietzsche went on about with Superman. I always say that Nazism did not start in Germany; it was all borrowed by Germany. It started off in London, England.

I used to wonder too why the elite of London had so much in common with the elite, the Brahman class of India. Until you look into the history of India and you see it's a CASTE system, a rigid caste, which is a CLASS system, RIGID and completely inflexible. If you are born in the lower caste, you can't kind of work you way up to the top one; it's just not done. It's the same in Britain. Britain, like ALL elitists at the top, actually become effeminate in some ways; they alter, become AFFECTED is the term. They even change their accent to differentiate themselves from everyone else down below them. What's comical is that the court of Britain for instance, talked in FRENCH for centuries because they were controlled by the Normans. It was the IN thing to learn French if you wanted to work at the court. Everyone emulates the guy in charge, or the woman, in dress, fashion, and all the rest of it. Sometimes when the woman is like a man, you get this odd stuff with lace coming out, and tights for MEN; that's how crazy it becomes. IT'S ALL EMULATION OF THE TOP DOG.

When King George came in from Prussia, and the present Kings and Queens of Europe – who are all related – came from that area, their name was Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. These are the names of the areas that their families controlled in Germany, Prussia and the different areas that BECAME Germany… Saxe, Coburg, Gotha. They changed it to Windsor in World War I because when they were fighting the Germans, it was kind of odd to have you swear allegiance to the King who technically was German or Prussian. When King George came in, and we're talking about the same King George of the revolutionary fame of the US, he couldn't speak English. He had to be taught it. Because of his accent and because of the courtiers around him copied the accent, because he was the top dog you see, you ended up with the new kind of English, like that [Alan mimicking the accent]. People say, "I'm geoing heome." It's an affected speech that EVERYONE emulated. If you want to be at the top, you've got to emulate the guy at the top in your dress, your mannerisms and even your speech. This is how crazy society is. Other countries do the same kind of thing but probably not so much as Britain. They went to extraordinary lengths to do it, to differentiate themselves from the masses they ruled over.

As I say, facts don't matter in this world anymore of bombardment of data. Because of that, simple propaganda with repetition has such an incredible, permanent affect on us. We don't stop and quiz things. The average person out there truly questions nothing that comes across general mainstream media. The media is the 'middle man;' that's what media means, middle. Its job is to peddle disinformation or make information more palatable but never telling ALL of the truth behind it to the people below them. It's authorized. They are LICENSED corporations. You don't get a license - if you question as to if you want to start up a broadcasting station or a newspaper - you don't get a license if you say I'm going to tell the people the truth about things. If you say that and even IF you got a license and had changed your mind and said I'm going to tell them the truth, and you got a license, you wouldn't get in to Parliament and listen to the guys debating, you wouldn't get into their little clubs when they're doing their chit-chat. You wouldn't even get into a courtroom. Every reporter knows that. Every editor knows that. Every newspaper owner knows that.

Why do you think the big magnates – they call them magnates, media magnates or moguls – why do you think they're all knighted? Regardless of the country that they come from, they go over and get knighted by the Queen. It's because the media is the most essential arm of control after education. They take over once you've had your indoctrination they call education. The media takes over and lets you all know all that you NEED to know, according to the masters above them. Once in a while they will give you INCREDIBLE truth, generally 50, 60 years after an official secrets act is up and a new generation has grown up and nobody cares what happened back yonder… it's like ancient history to a young generation. Facts don't matter anymore.

We're given propaganda and perceptions are always distorted by design, by professionals who understand the techniques of controlling the mind of the masses. I've mentioned Bernays so many times. People should read his books. I've got the links too, to the videos where you can listen to his daughter and others talk about him. The man HATED the masses. Why did he hate them? Remember, he also was the nephew of Freud. These guys were SENT OUT to alter the perceptions of the planet, all of these guys that were related to Freud. Bernays literally altered the culture in America into a commercialized process by understanding the techniques of mind control, you might say, by titillating the senses, you could also say, suppressed desires. Even his daughter says, the man hated the masses because they were SO EASILY MANIPULATED. He came to despise them because it was so easy to watch MILLIONS of people buy the things and do the things and behave the way that you told them to. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just touching on how masses of people in countries and across the world are influenced by a small coterie of people, very wealthy, who understand the techniques of selling - initially selling you things, commerce - by playing on unconscious desires. They can also turn you into nations, and a world, of pretty well infantile imbeciles. That's part of the agenda.

It's much easier to control people who are made ego-syntonic; the world revolves around THEM and their own little happy world where they can play and borrow money through credit cards, that kind of stuff. That's what was presented to them, for a while, to keep them happy and to teach them to be ETERNAL CHILDREN. Don't get involved in what's happening in the world or politics, it's above you; it's left to SPECIAL people who come out of special wombs and they're up there somewhere. You'll never see them except on TV, some of them. You'll never meet them either. They're specialized in taking care of big problems like daddy would. THAT'S what they've created across the world. EXACTLY what the big boys wrote about, like Lord Bertrand Russell. He says, we must create an ego-syntonic culture and make them ego-centric. They did it long ago, long ago.

Starting with the creation of a YOUTH culture for the first time and telling them, 'you're different from your parents; this is your time.' They did that as far back as the 1920s, the so-called Roaring 20s. It came back in the 60s with the pill at the same time and drugs and pop music that turned into rock music and they were on a true roll from then on. Now people are terrified of getting a wrinkle once they're past 30s. You'll see elderly women, and some guys, with a face like stretched mummies from Egypt with all the face-lifts because they're terrified of getting old. In this culture you see, you're not supposed to get old. If you're old, you don't count. Everybody on TV now, everybody - in all these silly dramas and the movies they have - it's all youngsters. It doesn't matter if they're showing you hospital scenes or detective scenes, the guy in charge is about 20; that's how they appear. That's not by mistake. It's to get everyone used to the idea, if you're over a certain age, you're over the hill; you don't count. Just play, do some woodworking in your shed and go to sleep. That's what you're told.

Meanwhile, look at who really rules the world. Look at how OLD they are. Look at the Maurice Strong's. Look at Rockefeller, 94, trotting across the planet to make sure we're all globalized under his direction… bringing down the populations and all that. OLD PEOPLE RUN THIS WORLD while they create a youth culture for the rest. Be a perpetual Peter Pan, never grow up, don't get involved and PLAY until you die. At one time you could go to elderly people and ask for wisdom. That was SO essential. Of course the communist societies KNEW, they were taught this, to DESTROY the bonding between the generations. You can't have wise people passing on information that is relevant to their survival to the younger generations. Separate them all. Let the state take care of them once they're a certain age. Put your granny in the hospital, or your mom or your dad, put them in an old folks' home. I call them the EXIT homes, not retirement homes… EXIT homes. That's what they do. Nothing is by chance.

Here's an article from The Mail Online to show you one of the premier liars that were chosen for this particular task. I wouldn't say he's exceptionally bright at all, but he is definitely well connected and groomed by Armand Hammer. Look into his history if you care; I won't go into it tonight.

Inconvenient truth for Al Gore as he's caught exaggerating the threat of global warming... again
By David Derbyshire / 16th December 2009 / The Mail Online

(Alan: Very polite language they use for certain people.)
Green crusader Al Gore was at the centre of a new spin row last night after he was caught out for a second time exaggerating the threat of global warming.

In a keynote speech at the Copenhagen talks, the former U.S. vice-president (A: They always say this, the former US vice-president. He's got plenty of vice involved certainly…) claimed the North Pole could be completely free of ice by the middle of the next decade.

He claimed a study showed (A: A study that he was using and quoting from…) a '75 per cent chance' that the Arctic could be ice-free in the summer months within five to seven years. (A: I love their wording, they're all lawyers eh?)

However, Dr Wieslaw Maslowski, the study's author, said his research revealed 'nothing of the sort'.

Dr Maslowski, of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School in California, said: 'I would never estimate likelihood at anything as exact as this. It's unclear how this was arrived at.' (A: Well WE know how it was arrived at. The God Gore here just decided to make it so.)

His comments are likely to embarrass Mr Gore, (A: I don't think Mr. Gore could be embarrassed about anything. He's psychopathic; they don't get embarrassed.) who has been accused of scaremongering. (A: Oh heaven forbid, he'd never do that. He'd do anything to get this agenda through. That's his task. He was given his quest. THAT'S what the big boys told him to do. This is his whole task.)

Two years ago, a High Court judge ruled his Oscar winning documentary (A: Oscar winning eh? Boy, a lot of payoffs made that, the Oscars.) An Inconvenient Truth was 'alarmist' and contained nine scientific errors. (A: Well that's how you SWAY reality. You put the editors in there don't you? It never ends does it? It never ends. I'll be back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, talking about some of the big psychopaths like Mr. Al Gore. I call him Mr. Allegory; that's more appropriate really. How he lies constantly but it doesn't matter because there is a BIG agenda you see, to cover his tracks and make sure that he keeps going. Big, big agenda, BIG money. It also says in this little writing here from The Mail…

It's the latest embarrassment for Gore, an outspoken environmental campaigner (A: He would be anything he was told to be.) who has earned millions of pounds from green investments (A: He's also earned millions by putting the carbon credits through his own business and writing off his own carbon output.) and faced repeated criticism for scaremongering. (A: That's his job.)

The court said copies of the film (A: That was that Inconvenient LIES.) sent to secondary schools should be accompanied with notes to balance Gore's views. (A: Why didn't they throw it out all together? Well, academia is all on board with this. They get their orders from the top, just like Mr. Gore did. That's why.)

Another article too, I won't go through it, but Time Magazine made Mr. Bernanke the man of the year. Mr. Bernanke that robs the bankie, they made him man of the year. So he's up there with all the other criminals. Time also had Adolf Hitler as man of the year twice in the 30s. Mussolini I think was there and Stalin even at one point. So you know what you're looking at when you see these folk getting these awards and all the rest of it and they're pinned up as man of the year or the decade. They're joining the list of criminals that run the world. They're given the top honors. They are glad to be there getting these criminal awards.

Time Magazine: Person of the Year 2009
The story of the year was a weak economy that could have been much, much weaker. How the mild-mannered man who runs the Federal Reserve prevented an economic catastrophe
Ben Bernanke
By Michael Grunwald / Wednesday, Dec. 16, 2009

Look at the history of the Nobel Peace Prize. Look at Nobel himself that started it up. He made millions and millions and millions because he came up with the idea of high explosives, just in time for World War I. He made a killing off it, literally a killing, massive killing. Then he puts up a foundation for peace. Remember what they mean by 'peace' at the top. What was the communist definition of peace? Every front group they had was for peace; this for peace, that for peace, Christians for peace, blah, blah, blah, front groups galore. 'Peace' was THE ABSENCE OF ALL OPPOSITION. You've got to understand their TERMINOLOGY if you don't want to get tripped up.

I've said too that in the US, just like Britain, you've had a succession of parties that are meant to fool the people for as long as they NEED you to BELIEVE in parties, by right wing and left wing. Bush's job was to go in and bring in the whole totalitarian system that Clinton tried to put in when he was in there prior to that too. Clinton tried to get an omnibus crime bill passed when he was in; meaning MARTIAL LAW, with all the stuff on the books. It was passed, by the way, in Canada, at the same time. The real one; they actually passed it. ONE man rammed it through; Allan Rock who was a minister in charge of the justice system at the time. Once he had it rammed through, he ran off to work at the United Nations. Mr. Rock was founded on the right rock all right and his future was guaranteed. In the States, Clinton tried to pass it through and I think the Congress voted it down and bang, that weekend, Oklahoma City went up and bang it was passed on the Monday. That's what they do. That's what they do when they want something through, but they didn't get it ALL through so 9/11 had to come along.

Remember, this change – as they told us – was to start with the 21st century. That is the TRUE beginning of the millennium. 2001 came along and bang, they got their job done. The Jachin and Boaz, the two towers came down… twin towers. They came down. Immediately every country in the world signed the SAME anti-terrorism bills that literally restrict everybody's freedom, ALL you freedoms, immediately. Meaning, it was all planned and discussed beforehand. Bureaucrats across the world don't get together and decide things on the spot; it takes them YEARS to implement stuff and get it all ready. Every country went into action at the same time with the same thing. So he set up the system of internal security in the United States.

Then they put in Obama who is to promote CHANGE. Remember all the sheep, "change is good; change is good," baaah, baaah, baaah, like Orwell's sheep in Animal Farm? Never asking what the changes were going to be because sheep don't think to ask. Slogans win out in the end, as Lenin said. Obama's job was to utilize the military police state that Bush had set up and continue the same foreign policy. People will remember that The New American Century that was set up by not just Bush and Cheney and Wolfowitz and Richard Pearle and Rumsfeld and all these guys; The Project for a New American Century, it was literally worked out long before that during Reagan's day by someone who wasn't even in the Republican Party; not that Reagan was either. That was Jeane Kirkpatrick who went to YPSL, I think it was called. You know, the young peoples… it was literally a communist schooling she was given for the left-wingers, supposedly. She came up with the idea that the US would have such a job, taking over from Britain with its world empire system, that they'd have to… rather than go over there and have a war with this country and come back again – it would cost so much – why not set up permanent bases to each one they conquer? That's why Reagan brought her on board with this policy. That was taken up again as they transformed into the policy for The New American Century. It carried through the Bush era and Obama is carrying it through this one. So it's a continuation of policies. There is no difference at all in these parties and I've said that for years.

There is only ONE agenda… and the game is played at the top for the public to keep voting. Otherwise you might riot, thinking my God, there is only one party in control! What happens when you've got a one-system party? You've got communism, sovietization. That's what you got. That's the only one they allow, when it's sovietized. So they keep the con game going. At the time, said in The New American Century, they'd have to take out Afghanistan, followed by Iraq, then Iran, and then Syria; in that order. We know darn well what they've done with Afghanistan, but they also took out Iraq because Bush said to the world – and that was good enough for the world – "I took him out because he was a bad man." Not because he had anything to do with 9/11; he was a bad man, they said at the hearing, the inquiry, and that was good enough for the public. So billions of bucks went into taking out a bad man… and their oil as well, of course. PLUS the US taxpayers BUILT all the brand-new refineries that the Air Force were TOLD to destroy because the refineries were all obsolete. Recently I read an article where the big boys – Exxon and so on – all got these new refineries given to them from the US taxpayer, courtesy of the US taxpayer.

They've got Iran to go for now as well. When they had to go into Iraq, they created the circumstances for it. They went through the usual protocols and the UN kept saying that there are NO weapons of mass destruction and all this kind of stuff, but that didn't matter because facts don't matter just like Al Gore. It doesn't matter when there is an agenda. So they went in. Now they're doing the same thing with Iran. They've known for years and remember, that Iran just didn't say, we are building a nuclear reactor to get electrical power – like so many other countries. They applied at the United Nations and the Atomic Energy Commission for their license and so on and they got it and they've been inspected ever since. But that's not good enough; facts don't matter when you want to go in and have a war. After all, you've had this big business plan worked out - while taking down one country after another - for YEARS just sitting there. So you must go in to Iran next. That's how the world is run.

This is an article that was out by Google but by the Associated Press.

House votes to expand sanctions on Iran
By JIM ABRAMS (AP) – Dec. 15, 2009

WASHINGTON — The House voted Tuesday to impose new economic sanctions on Iran as lawmakers cast doubt on Iran's willingness to respond to diplomatic efforts to curtail its purported nuclear arms program. (A: So they are not making nuclear energy for electricity. No, it's nuclear arms… same spiel that we got with Iraq.)

The legislation, approved 412-12, would end access to U.S. markets for foreign companies selling refined petroleum products to Iran or helping that country develop its petroleum capacity. While Iran is a major crude oil producer, its lack of ability to produce enough gasoline and other refined petroleum products is a major economic vulnerability.

Remember, economic warfare is the first step they use in sanctions. They STARVE the people to death. They say that, I think 500,000 to 1,000,000 people were starved to DEATH when they put the sanctions on Iraq over the years before they did their final invasion. Madeline Albright, who is now appointed to NATO, by the way, she said on television when she was asked if that was an appropriate technique to use on people, starving men, women and children; they couldn't even get medical aid to them, antibiotics, never mind food. She says, "Yes, it's quite acceptable" without blinking an eye because she's another one of these intergenerational psychopaths, who's grandpa was the best pal of Stalin for one of the communist countries, by the way. So here they go. They want to do the same technique in Iran. Starve them. You're going to see a country…. This is not a bunch of people walking around there with long robes and sitting in black tents. It's a first-world country. Tehran is not a bunch of shacks put together like some parts of South Africa. The people are WELL educated there. They send doctors and scientists all over the world from there and they're going to bring it down to a third-world country… by the same technique of demonizing the enemy.

I can remember Ronald Reagan that demonized two people in his time as 'the great Satan'. Saddam Hussein was one of them. Then he changed his gun sights on to Russia and it was the Russians that were the great Satan. Remember what George Orwell said; "Who are we fighting today, Eastasia or Westasia?" You'd better learn quickly or you'll get tortured. It's supposed to be ALWAYS the one they TELL you. As Ronal Reagan did, it was always the Soviets or it was always the on other one too; which one am I going to choose? Bush is the same. The same techniques are going to be used so THOUSANDS of people, maybe half a million, maybe MORE, are going to be starved.

What they hope, they say here, is it will cause so much hardship amongst the people in Iran, they hope that their SOFT techniques that Brzezinski called them, meaning all the non-governmental organizations that have been set up through the universities through infiltration and through the sending in of agents – I've read the articles FROM the White House AND the Pentagon that are actually into this kind of stuff, AND the CIA, declassified; I've read this on the air before – they've already sent these guys in with lots of cash to set up people to protest and try to OVERTHROW those in charge. That's the STANDARD technique that they use. In the meantime, they want to starve as many people to death as possible. It's either starve them to death or overthrow the guy that you don't want there. That's the attitude of those who rule, RULE the US, as opposed to govern.

I'll put these links up on my show at the end of the night IF I can get enough speed up from XplorNet. Anyone who wants high speed, don't get XplorNet. It begins with an X; they can't even spell it right. It's x-p-l-o-r-n-e-t, XplorNet. Don't get it because it's a con game. I'm on high speed. They've cut me back twice now, three times, until I crawl. I'm just twice that of dial-up. That's all I get. They take the same cash but then again, I'm on the air and I shouldn't be, saying what I'm saying, in a British Commonwealth country and someone from the old boys club obviously talked to someone in XplorNet, who rents space from Hughes Satellite Corporation that runs the military satellites. It's the same satellites actually that XplorNet is going through. So you see how it really, really works in the real world. Don't get XplorNet whatever you do. I'll keep saying that until they take this lock off me. I can't even download my own show; that's the speed I get. Uploading takes twice as long. They're hoping it will just drive me under basically. Rather then take 3 or 4 hours to upload to all the sites; you are going to take 8 hours. That's the techniques they use in REAL life. They don't go through companies and legalities, they just do the dirty on you.

I've always said that Britain is a country people should really watch. It's almost like watching fiction. Even for me to get the reports coming in from Britain - some people send me disks. I can't even watch a video here; I haven't been able for months. They'll burn disks and pass them to me and I see what's happening in Britain with the police state they have - and I mean POLICE STATE - where GANGS, gangs, scores and scores of police cars set up these hit-runs on whole areas like counties; they lock everything down. They persecute the motorists like crazy for the slightest thing. They all talk about quotas. They actually do have quotas to fulfill and they will get you on something. They can get you on ANYTHING if they want to. There is always something they can get you on. Your license plate is squint, something like that. There's a bit of dirt on one number; did you deliberately obscure that? I'm not joking. If you question these guys, who by the way SWEAR at the public, because they really feel they're on a power trip now. They're in a police state; they can do what they want. They swear at the public. I've got videos with them doing this - videos that were apparently shown on national television on their version of 'Cops' - and no one objects. You get fined if your garbage bin, the lid isn't on properly or if you put the wrong recycling stuff in one bin or another. The CHILDREN are PAID by the counties - by the thousands - PAID to snitch on people.

Here's where justice comes down. Very important article, because it shows you that you are being trained to FEEL DEFENSELESS, to FEEL defenseless. Someone asked last night about the control of firearms in Canada and what I know, as far as I know, it's really, really difficult now to have control of anything in fact and you have to jump through many hoops apparently to get a license and keep it and control it and all the rest of it. When a bear comes for you, you're supposed to be lawfully eaten; just stand and be lawfully eaten. If someone breaks in to your home and he wants to murder you, don't hurt him because the only right you have is to be lawfully murdered. Their job is to come in AFTER the event and take if from there. I'm not kidding you. The United Nations also has in their charter that ultimately THEY will be the only ones - and their world police force - with the RIGHT TO USE FORCE. That means anyone coming to kill you, you can't fend them off and this article I'm going to read is about that. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning about how right is wrong, up is down, left is right, and all the rest of it. It's a technique to make you feel defenseless in society. Ultimately, the world police and the military will be the only ones, according to the United Nations, allowed to use force, including DEADLY force. YOU must NOT, NOT defend yourself. They're showing you all the time to be scared; teaching you to be scared. They're also teaching crooks to be brave because they can get away with things. This article is from The Mail Online. I'll put this link up; I won't read right through it.

Millionaire who fought off a knife-wielding burglar is jailed
(while the intruder is let off)
By Colin Fernandez and Ryan Kisiel / 15th December 2009 / The Mail Online

An intruder burst into the guy's home, threatened to kill him, his wife and the children. The guy who owned the house managed to go after the main character with a cricket bat. He's now jailed and the guys who broke in are free. That's what they're TEACHING you, to be scared; don't defend yourself, just stand there like a goon. When the right to defend yourself is taken from you, you're just an object, you see, an object.

I'll go to the callers. My satellite has got a problem, as I say. I can hardly even download and watch the page to see who's calling. Is Megan from Pennsylvania there?

Megan: Hello Alan. I just wanted to give you a plug for your CDs. I have your books which are jam packed with info. Other writers are long-winded and could have compacted their books into like ¼ of the length, for the same amount of information that you give us. The same is true for your CDs. If anyone is interested in true history, get Alan's CD blurbs, especially because it's easier than reading. I got your 51 Blurbs Disc 2 and it is so worth the money. I did want to tell you that things aren't much different in the United States, or in Pennsylvania. All the cops know how to do is hand out citations for speeding, for illegal parking, for not wearing a seat belt. It's ridiculous. If your home is burglarized, nothing is done.

Alan: Yes. I know. They're training us, again, to be afraid and that the only ones that can do anything about anything to do with violence now are the authorities. You mustn't use it yourself. That's what they're training us to do. You see, we're all peons at the bottom; we squabble and argue. We're a lower class. We're not so evolved as those at the top. We are the masses at the bottom. Thanks for calling, Megan. You're quite right.

That’s how it’s done, folks. We’re getting TRAINED CONSTANTLY for the roles in the new world order and unfortunately it’s working very well.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods Go with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Al Gore Caught Lying Again-Mailonline

Bernanke-Time Magazine Man of the Year

House Approves Sanctions on Iran

Judge-Don't Defend Yourself

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Español) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Português)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Shows per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 17, 2009 (#474)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 17, 2009:
Our Directed Change is Good, Taught by Fisher-King Brotherhood:
"Old Wise Men Teaching Mystical Things,
Allegorical Technique of the Fisher-Kings,
The Cover of Light to Cloak Perdition,
Training Adepts to Stir Sedition,
Reason and Gnosticism Come Together,
Guided by Philemon with Rainbow Feather,
Selecting Pupils, Apples of His Eye,
Swearing on Oath, Disclosure's to Die,
Whether Sent to Palace, or Dark Alley to Lurk,
Situation Regardless, They'd Work the Great Work,
Smiling Upon Those They Hate,
They'd Intergenerationally Infiltrate,
Eventually Ruling Over World of Fools
Adapting to Changes, Seeing Not Who Rules"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 17, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 17, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up:
alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

Information for purchasing Alan's books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 17th 2009. Newcomers, I suggest you look into .com. Scroll down on that page and you'll see all the other sites I have up. Bookmark them for future use. That way, when the big sites go down - or hold me back again as they've done in the past quite a few times - you can always download the latest shows from these alternate sites. These are the OFFICIAL sites that I have up there; anything else you see out there is not mine. I have to say that because legally I'm responsible for what I say. Some people sometimes put up a site and mirror some shows that I do and they don't keep it up. Therefore, people email ME thinking it's mine and ask me what's wrong. I spend time going through all my talks and the web site saying well, what's that? Then I find that I'm okay and it's someone else they're talking about; someone else's site. So these are the official sites: [listed above].

As always, I say that you are the audience that brings me to you. I don't get paid by the advertisers. I don't push advertising on the show. The ads you hear on this show are paid directly by the advertisers to RBN, which pays for the show. I have nothing to do with that. That pays for the RBN's station time, air time, their engineers, their board workers and their bills. So it's up to you to help keep me going. Look into .com web site; see the books that I've written and the disks I've made for sale. You'll find how to order them on the site. [Order and donation options listed above.] Some people just send cash. If you send cash, you're cutting out the middle man; the guy who always flattens us all every so often, at least twice every century. He's got little pudgy fingers, a $5,000 suit on and a triple chin. You'll recognize him quite easily because every 50 years you'll see their photographs there when the banks collapse. So if you send cash – it's up to you – that bypasses that problem. For those who get the disks burned and passed to them, you can write to me at [address above].

The new world order… the new world order, we've hear it so many times, beginning really to take off with George Bush Sr. who mentioned it on their wonderful date of September 11th 1990 and then again on September 11th 1991. We'll go into a little bit of that after we come back from this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning how Bush Sr. talked about "a new world order coming into view," as he put it. He also mentioned "a thousand points of light," that we're already working towards it; this was never explained to the public, what it meant. Of course no journalist there would ask the obvious questions such as "What do you mean by NEW world order? Do you mean that it's now a POST Cold War? What do you mean?" Nobody asked him that because they KNOW what to ask. The media is PART of government, big media. It has been DEFINITELY since before World War I in the United States.

You'll find if you look into the speeches of Theo Roosevelt, he mentioned 'points of light'. He talked about himself hoping to go down as a 'point of light'. He likened history to a dark, dark tunnel down through time, which was lit here and there by famous people, who were generally conquerors, people who like mass slaughter, the tyrants even. It didn't matter who they were, in their view, because in the Cabalistic way of looking at things there is no right or wrong, only OUTCOMES and someone always benefits from outcomes regardless of how many people die or get slaughtered in a campaign, such as Alexander the Great. So he talked about that's what it is, their 'points of light'; these characters down through history. He hoped to go down as one. He wasn't the first to mention it in the US because Benjamin Franklin in his own memoirs, in his diaries and his letters, he wrote about himself hoping to go down as a 'point of light'.

This is a Masonic doctrine. I use that loosely because Freemasons have never really understood who rules them, except very, very high members perhaps. They talked about the 'points of light', guiding lights, etc. It also refers to main characters alive today and the terminology they are applying it to currently. They are also the big movers and shakers towards this new world order, this globalized system, THE DREAM OF THE AGES as they often call it. It used to be called Utopianism at one point. It certainly was sold to the public in previous generations, in previous centuries, as a form of utopia. It's beautiful when you help to CREATE a state of misery and poverty in nations, get it ripe for revolution, put out the propaganda and bring forth men who speak on behalf of YOU, who always vocalize what you'd like to vocalize if you could find the words. That's why they always get an intelligentsia well versed in speechmaking to guide the people, who always end up generally worse off than they were before. That's the TECHNIQUE that's used upon peoples.

There is an ORGANIZED GROUP running the world who know where they are going. It combined with Darwinism which helped to bolster its theories of not just selective mating basically, but special mating. Many of these characters, like Charles Darwin himself and many others of his era and his ilk, of the Royal Society… a Freemasonic organization that was created for scientific endeavors and still guides the world today. You still have to be a high Freemason to join it and to be ASKED to join it. Darwin was promoted by the Royal Society that was given a Royal charter to exist; meaning it spoke on behalf of the aristocracy and the rulers, 'the establishment' as they say, of Britain at that time. Even to join that group back then, you had to put your wife away and become like a monk, dedicated, with no distractions to the cause. 'The cause,' many terms for the same thing. Sometimes they will say 'the work,' 'the great work,' or 'the cause.' It's directing and guiding, those guys being 'illuminaries' and 'illuminated' points of light guiding the world towards a destiny, which they believe they will be in control of.

Charles Darwin remember, was interbred. We can trace him back 3 or 4 generations. Every member of his family – his father, grandfather, great grandfather – only married into ONE other family and that was the Wedgwood's. They were PRACTICING specialized breeding, for hybrids, using an idea that even Plato talked about where you could select mates, such as a good mathematician mated up with a good mathematician and there was a good chance there would be of producing another good mathematician, perhaps even better. Then by inbreeding them even more and more, they could weed out, or breed out, undesirable qualities, like compassion for instance. You don't want leaders with too much compassion. You can breed in certain other traits for rulership, so psychopathic traits were inbred into them. The Darwin's were only intermarried with one family, the Wedgwood's, for generations. It got so bad at one point – because of the lack of fresh genes coming in – I think all of Charles Darwin's children died, the last 2 in an insane asylums. His wife died - a Wedgwood again, like his father and grandfather - so he married his mother's sister, another Wedgwood, for his second wife.

Not only HE was doing this sort of thing, all of those in the big Royal Society game had already been practicing it because they BELIEVED already – BEFORE we were told that genes were discovered – that it was all in the breeding, as Plato said thousands of years before; they could breed certain types to excellence. Marx coupled the doctrine of Darwinism to Marxism and dedicated his 2nd or 3rd publication to Charles Darwin because it bolstered the whole Marxist doctrine of dialectical materialism. Nothing existed except intelligence and of course they were the intelligent ones that led the world and materialism is what it's all about. Today, you could say economics, broadly speaking.

Even back then, in the days of Darwin, they talked about population control, looking towards a post-industrial era where they claimed they would no longer need the people. Now, under the doctrine of Darwinism, which led to incredible horrors like Marxism to Leninism, Bolshevism and MASS SLAUGHTER, mass slaughter always follows, and also to Hitler's ideology which was National Socialism. They're all socialistic in their take on history and their progression of history; they call it socialism. Where an intelligentsia should rule over the masses, always on behalf of you; that's how they put it, 'on your behalf'. You'll all be equal in this utopia. Of course, as Plato said, that 'we the rich have to worry about our castles, because your servants will steal from you. You have to replace the things that are stolen.' You have to maintain the upkeep of your castle. You have to pay for the cleaning staff, servants and so on. He said, 'isn't it far better to bring a world society' – in his book called The Republic – 'where the masses that you rule over,' on their behalf, 'will pay through taxation for all the upkeep?' So then technically, you won't own it, but you have the right to live in it and be served; objects that are broken, worn out or stolen will be replaced. The public will pay for all the staff as well. THAT'S what you have today.

That's technically what Communism is based on. It's the putting up to the top of an elite who belong to an association higher above the propaganda they give out to the general masses. It's interesting too, where Lenin said himself that there were 3 levels of propaganda. There is one given out to the general masses, which is the utopian image of the equality and all working together towards a common cause of betterment. There is another one told to the middle echelons of managerial classes; another version of their agenda. He says, only for those in the upper circle will they be told the TRUE agenda. That's how OPEN the Soviet system was; it's all based on lies and fraud.

It really is just a neo-Platonic idea. Neo-Platonism that was born in Alexandria, that was revived I'd say, in Alexandria in about 300-odd A.D. They believed that the Fisher Kings - the Fisher Kings as they called them - these were PROFESSORS, what we would call professors today, philosophers in those days, with their own particular schools, would pick selected students and bring them into the 'mysteries'. The mysteries were simply the control of people, masses of people; how to control their minds, how to motivate them to do your bidding, as willing creatures, willing servants to your cause. That's where the whole idea of the fisher king came from.

Many of these societies, even long before Alexandria, if you look at Pythagoras and others, used a technique of what was later used in some Catholic monasteries. In fact, some of the Catholic monasteries that came out in the Middle Ages you could say were continuations of them, preaching a different gospel than the one they taught to the people… because you always infiltrate your enemy to take them down. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just giving you a quick rundown of a movement that started long ago. Really, it was loosely called Gnosticism. Not the kind that is put out there by the new agers today that's meant to entice them into so-called other mysteries, or the lesser mysteries which keep them happy and amused for an awful long time, sometimes years, but the real thing.

It was to do with a WORLD society. If you look at Egypt, whatever it really taught, since it was the main teacher for an awful long time, even to the Greek aristocracy; they all went over there to learn. Then when they'd gone on to the high intiateship in Egypt, they went off to another place in what they called the Levant; another place to learn more mysteries. Then they even took a trip to India. Then they'd complete the circle and come back to their country of origin, where they came from. Plato did this and others did this too. But what they exported really was revolution… by different technique. Not by sending armies out, but by sending high initiates and wise men, philosophers. They'd go back to their own countries and start up their schools. The schools, even 'school' is a word coming from the Greek language meaning basically 'leisure'. It comes from the word 'leisure' because only a leisure class could attend. You weren't forced to go. Youngsters would come in and hear some mysteries, which would entice them in. If they liked the teacher, they'd come back and come back and come back. Different from the compulsory education of today, or indoctrination; it depends on how you look at it. That's really what they exported for an awful long time.

That is what was behind Pythagoras too. He started up his school when he went back to Crotona and eventually his school was burned down when the people there understood what he was really all about. The youngsters that he was recruiting had to take vows of silence for a few years before they got into the higher mysteries, much like the Essenes that came after them in the Middle East, about 2000 years ago. Those who could keep silent, 'watch, look and listen' as part of the motto – even of today's Freemasonry – then they would pass and get selected to go higher and given tasks within communities or countries. They also brought in, with Pythagoras, women, very much like the French Grand Orient Lodge. These women were given a good education and taught etiquette, deportment, they were made highly desirable by people outside the communities in the hope they would marry nobility and rulers and that way they could influence policy on behalf of Pythagoras himself. That's why, when people caught on to what was really happening, they went after his school and burned it down. He wasn't the only one. Socrates, you'll find, is often portrayed as a great man, a great thinker and he certainly had a sense of humor here and there if you look at some of his writings, because his wife was a very unhappy person, very dour, and his students asked him why he still kept her around and he said she is there to remind me to be humble. So he had a sense of humor. He'd certainly put a lot of truth out there too but you've got to remember what he was eventually accused OF. It's the same kind of thing of sedition by influencing the youth to rebellion.

The techniques that are used today are the same. We've heard it all through the communist era because really it's a continuation of the same techniques, where they go after the youth and indoctrinate a generation to bypass the parents with contaminated ideas. So the fresh youth will come up and bring in their system, which of course is a system that's not theirs at all. It's a system devised by very old men who belong to very high clubs and fraternities. That's why Obama and his million-man army, the youth army and all the rest of it, the Young Communist League of the Soviets, Hitler's Youth, all had these things in common. You bypass the parents with the old-fashioned ideas and the parents, you obviously hope they have more wisdom than young. When WE'RE young and foolish, we're very easily conned. That's the last thing a young person wants to hear when they're trying to establish their identity and their place in the world and how they fit in.

I understand how it was very, very appealing. I talked to some people who were in the Hitler Youth. One of them was a Polish fellow and he said we were all from the bottom of the heap, the working class, and the first set of good clothing he was given, and brand new clothing, was from the Hitler Youth. I understand that, perfectly well. That's how you're taken in. Then they take you off to runs in the county, like the Boy Scouts, and give you some confidence in yourself, make you feel that you BELONG and that your generation is SPECIAL. Not dreamed up by Hitler either. You'll find the same thing with the man who started up the Boy Scouts who wanted a world army to help bring in a world culture. You've got to understand, in the 1800s into the 1900s, this idea was already firmly established of conquering the world and bringing in a world society. It was pushed on the one hand by communism and on the other by those within the BANKING industries and the aristocracies of countries like Britain.

Something that's always confused people is why would the main enemy of communism – it could be an intelligentsia, could be an old-fashioned society – why they would eliminate people and capitalism? I mentioned last night, no, they transformed Capitalism into the Marxian theory, which it was intended to do. Back after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning how the techniques work down through the ages and that nothing really is by chance on any big, large scale because through CONFLICT comes resolution. It's the same technique as we now call Hegelianism; very old, old technique, long before Hegel came along.

Where you want something to change in your favor… Things don't change much when there is no opposition to anything. So you create an opposition and you argue, you might even have wars, or riots. It's a lot of trouble to bring commerce especially to a standstill. Then you have meetings and a resolution comes out of it. That's the thesis, antithesis and synthesis idea. However, when you GUIDE all of that, it's the synthesis that you're after; it's the OUTCOME you were after all along.

They used to refer to this, even at Alexandria an awful long time ago, and they mentioned that nature - they couch it under the terms to see which pupils would catch on - that NATURE is always in conflict. Even the seasons are in conflict. You'll have a spring; you'll have an autumn. You'll have a winter and a summer. Each one competes with the other and then out comes the next one, the next one takes over; the SYNTHESIS takes over for a while. The synthesis itself breaks down into a new thesis. That's the idea, ONGOING REVOLUTION, they called it. They also wrote it into the stars and gave you wonderful stories in Greek mythology – remembering that Greek mythology was HEAVILY coupled to their teachings from Egypt – and they used the stars and the simpletons would think the stars were really fighting each other as they gave you these wonderful stories of constellations and Orion, etc. Of course Orion was also the same character in the night sky as Osiris, or his son Horus, it depends on the era that you look at. So the ordinary folk would think that they really were up there fighting. Much of the fairly tales we had in fact coming down through the 1800s were based supposedly on these conflicts in the sky. You'll find the same thing in India with the stories of the Gods fighting each other. These were actually the simple movement of constellations going through the heavens - the 'houses' as it's called in some places - with the different figures and animals and creatures and dragons fighting each other. That's where it all comes from.

The higher initiate with the brains was supposed to figure it out for himself and say 'what they are really teaching us here is that everything is in conflict and that ALL conflict leads to betterment.' It's called 'PROGRESS'. Those at the top want PLANNED progress. I used to ask as a child, what is progress? Are they happier now than they were yesterday or years before? Generally they're not. But someone always thinks it's called progress; someone DECIDES it's called progress. Progressing TO WHAT? I think it's so odd that we're all progressing towards a world state that has all the tenants of what the mystery religions called 'a utopia' of sorts, with a vastly reduced population, using the Darwinian techniques. Darwin only came out with a very old idea, amongst these same groups preexisting him where, again, using allegories to show you how things work.

This is from Darwin's writings and I'm paraphrasing from memory. He said, 'Germs, bacteria will come in to an area and alter the soil. Worms move in it and bring air and oxygen to the soil. Other seeds will grow and they die off, leaving other minerals in that soil. It's all preparing for the TREE to grow there. So it's suitable, it can actually live there now. That also meant that all those waves of creatures, insects, that went before and died, all had a purpose for the strong to go on. You've got to understand that very basic concept because really, that's eugenics they're talking about, and PEOPLE they're talking about. The people who worked at the lower ranks in the factories and so on for the industrial era, all had their uses to drive on because someone must always survive in humanity through every age.

It's almost identical to Brahmanism; not by coincidence either. In Brahmanism, they talk about the same kind of thing, that towards the end, they call it the 'waves' in Brahman, the waves of time, the waves of the ages. Theosophy that is coupled with Brahmanism, they call it the 'waves of theosophy'. These are waves of TIME, vast amounts of time, where everything works the same way as Darwin, to prepare something for an ELITE and those who are the ELITE humans MUST GO ON into a NEW AGE every so often at predetermined times. However, none of the old types, the ones that Darwin would say made the soil, prepared the soil and worked the soil in preparation for the elite, none of those must come through into a new age because they would literally destroy that elite whose time now had come to go on. This is basic eugenics… a very, very OLD concept.

Under the guise of globalism and saving the world with this sudden idea that came out of the Club of Rome, this sudden concept… 'Oh my God, there are just too many people on the planet and they're all polluting and it's going to kill us all, therefore, we've got to bring down the population DRASTICALLY.' That's the main intent, the MAIN intent behind the meeting at Copenhagen. The Club of Rome remember, the PREMIER Club of Rome for the UN, the premier think tank, admits in their own book, The First Global Revolution, that they came up with the idea. They were told to find a way to unite the world together in a wartime scenario where people wouldn't mind giving up rights and freedoms to save ourselves, as we do in all wars. So they decided that man would be making a war on the planet, so MAN was the enemy. Under this treaty… and don't believe anything they tell you right now. The main thing is POPULATION REDUCTION. These guys are LIARS, you understand. They've lied down through the centuries for their goals, always lying. They'll say 'yes, CO2 and it's this and that…' No, it's population reduction they are after, MASSIVE population reduction.

Look up on the internet the Georgia Guidestones. Look it up. They have this written in all different languages. Big money put it up, using a Rosicrucian name of the character that supposedly put up the money. It's still kept quiet by the Masons because they all know who it is obviously, since they applied for the permission to have it built. You know who runs all your towns and your villages and they do keep secrets don't they? But they say they want to bring the population down to a tiny fraction of what it is now. Not just the population down because believe you me, these guys at the top don't believe in equality at all. I've just told you what they believe in. It's superiority. They don't believe that you can get through. In fact, you must NOT come through to the new golden age that they're going to bring in. You'll build it for them; again, getting the soil ready for the big tree to grow. You'll build it all. Your predecessors built it for them too. You've had their world wars to bring it in as well. But not YOU and your offspring; you will not be allowed to come through because you see, you are now OBSOLETE, obsolete.

You have to read books like HG Wells, one of the TOP propagandists for this organization, who didn't sit and scribble by himself in candlelight. He had a whole office building, actually a house with many floors on it, full of staff churning out that stuff. They all do this kind of stuff. They always give a front man, you see. He was given ideas by professors both from Oxford and Cambridge for his stories. He had to write certain things within his stories or even build stories around the main items he was told to project because predictive programming, through novels especially and fiction, now it's movies, works very well. It's more effective than sitting down and giving people history lessons… or MIND CONTROL LESSONS in school. Your guard is down when you're watching fiction or reading it and you identify with the characters and heroes. It never occurs to you – it never occurs to you – that the characters at the bottom, the monsters, the ones who eat flesh, etc, are YOU. It never occurs to you. That's the beautiful way they write, always for 2 points of view; for the elite in the know and for YOU at the bottom who go along with it and get entertained.

These guys mean business. They are fulfilling their goal. The greatest thing about an internal coup - when someone takes over - there are two ways to do it. One, is openly like the Bolshevik takeover in the middle of the night with 100 men who took over the beginnings of a supposedly democratic system in Russia, where most of the different competing groups had the basic form of a parliament already established, based on the same ideas supposedly as the monarchical democracy of England. But the Bolsheviks had a different agenda. The bankers who funded them had a different agenda too. It was to bring in a world society through revolution and conflict, through nature again, understanding nature. Only through conflict can you get change and you DIRECT the change because YOU direct the conflict and youcreate the conflict.

Don't be fooled by the carbon dioxide nonsense. Don't be fooled because they churn out bought and paid for EXPERTS or SCIENTISTS who work for the IPCC. People who were nobodies a few years ago, people who couldn't even drag students into their classes are now the heroes because they are the experts on this great catastrophe that's in the making. They're well paid, WELL paid; they'll all be millionaires before they retire, each one of them, if they go along with the con game and they are, most of them. The emails that were exposing their lies to each other went through this pretty precisely. How they were told to scrub stuff off so that if they did investigate, authorized government investigations, into the data, it would simply be not there, GONE. They admitted how to fudge figures to lie to the public. Why? Because all these guys were selected, that's why, by higher organizations that use the con men and the sciences to con the public.

They always make sure they have dedicated, DEDICATED servants leading the world. These guys are SWORN to the agenda, sworn on OATHS to the agenda, all hoping that they'll have the better genes to come through into the new age as they're killing everybody else off. Actually they do get certain things given to them. For instance, they get little passes so they can get access to the organic foods and stuff; the stuff that's not modified and isn't laced with pesticides that is killing everybody off with cancers and sterilizing people. They get all these little bonuses thrown in. They get specialized medical care in non-governmental hospitals. Actually, it's kind of governmental; we pay for it all but it's very top military hospitals. The whole of the British Commonwealth is on that system, for top politicians and all top bureaucrats as well. That was in the newspapers in Canada back in the 80s that that was signed into law. So they are bought and paid for.

The whole carbon thing is nonsense. Four or five years ago they started giving out carbon credits before Copenhagen came along, before anybody said 'oh, there is a consensus now on an agreement, we're all on board, all scientists agree.' NO! all scientists do NOT agree. Only the ones on the pay of the IPCC, that are paid to churn out the rubbish, agree. That's where their cash is; that's where their grants are. But they were already giving out carbon credits to the big international corporations and some of them have made multi-millions on trading these carbon credits to each other. Isn't amazing how the ones at the top - all the little low level greenies at the bottom were screaming about, the big corporations - are making millions off it and yet they haven't spent anything yet, just making money off it.

I've read some of the articles here, of the richest guy in Britain, who's going to get $14-15 million because he's got all these surplus credits – they were given these credits. Al Gore is raking in the cash in because he set up the corporation, one of the biggest in the world, which the carbon credits go through. He pays his carbon credits into his own company and gets them all back again with interest. It's to bring YOU down. So why even bother with Copenhagen? It's a formality. Do you think they are really arguing out there? Do you think they are really, really arguing? All the crooks, the petty crooks who are arguing there about anything is just who gets what share of what. That's what they're arguing about, the spoils of war. War on who? War on the world's population; all of YOU… and your children to come, IF they allow you to get born. Believe you me, compulsory sterilization – apart from the chemical sterilization we've already been subjected to – is definitely coming in big time.
I've gone through John Holdren's history and the people can't figure out why these characters are all on board in governments, are appointed right now, at this time in history, and the same types that are in, belonging to the same organizations are in, are on board with EVERY GOVERNMENT of the world; they are put on their counseling boards. It's all for a REASON. It's not by happenstance. Why are they all on board in every country at the same time, these appointees? ...hard-lined fanatics? Holdren, in the book called EcoScience, said he wanted to bring in compulsory sterilization, compulsory abortion… 30-odd years ago. Do you think he's changed his tune? Do you think he's wisened up and got some compassion? NO. NO. NO. This is the same hard fanatic as he always was; THAT'S WHY HE WAS PICKED FOR THIS POSITION RIGHT NOW.
To show you the farces that they go through, why are they waiting for Copenhagen? As I say, they're handing out billions of dollars worth of FREE, FREE taxpayer-funded carbon credits to the big corporations. Here's an article from the CBC Canada, that's the Communist Broadcasting Corporation as it's lovingly called in Canada and it truly is communist. Even defectors from the Soviet Union were sent to work there and said there were more communists working inside there than there was in the Soviet Union. Alberta is going to spend $495 million on carbon capture pipeline. That's over a month ago, before Copenhagen. Back with more after this break with more.
Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix just mentioning - before I take a caller - that Alberta for instance, this is one instance of many.

Alberta to spend $495M on carbon capture pipeline
By CBC News / November 24, 2009

They're going to sink supposedly, the CO2 from the oil fields into the ground and capture it, capture it... Why not put it in tin cans? Then they could trade tin cans of CO2 across the planet; at least you would have something to look at rather than nothing. The big corporations, by the way, are getting moneys from the taxpayer to pay for all this.

Alan: What I'm going to do now is go to Joey from South Korea. Are you there Joey?

Joey: Hey, Alan, your show is great. I just love listening to it and going back through all your old shows, the blurbs. Every day I learn something new, so thanks a lot. I guess I just wanted to comment on something. I can't believe the mentality of these people, these protesters in Copenhagen, lining up to protest against something that they are being given and… It really, really bothers me. Every aspect of their lives is being pushed, this green agenda. The TV, every favorite show that they have is pushing this green agenda and they still are demanding it. They can't see that… I mean NBC had a green week. These extravagant protests by Greenpeace and they are being put on the CBC all the time and they still think they are special every time they mention their carbon footprint and anything like that. I guess that's my comment.

Alan: Thanks for calling, Joey. You're quite right though. They've also had indoctrination in school because you always preach the new doctrine in school first. That's why they set up the National Education authorities across the world for, coupled to UNESCO at the United Nations, to create a common culture where they could indoctrinate them. If you don't believe me, look up the writings of Julian Huxley. I've read some of them on the air. He was the first CEO of UNESCO. Lenin said the same thing, 'we've got to have a universal education to get to the children.' If you can do that, you can literally take over the minds of all the children and teach them, as Lord Bertrand Russell said, that the sky is actually black and not blue and they will believe it. As long as they all are taught the same thing in unison, they will believe whatever you tell them. Especially when you tell them, like Al Gore says – the video is up there, I might put the link up again – where he is talking to these young children, “You know things that your parents don’t know; you’re special.”

Al Gore
Kids don’t listen to your parents because they don’t understand but you do.
YouTube.com

Well, that’s the beginning of what we’ve called before the Obama Youth; you might say the Brownshirts, the Redshirts, and the Young Communist League. That’s the same techniques that they used by the older ones that you’re taught to respect. Here is a VICE PRESIDENT telling children that your parents don’t know these things, meaning your parents are stupid. Bypass the parents; that’s what they’ve always said. Bypass them, forget the older generation, they’ll come down with all the sicknesses we’ve made for them, they’ll die off early and then the children will be uncontaminated; they will have the RIGHT indoctrinations. To what? To serve a system that’s being sold as a utopia, like a Disney cartoon. That’s what it is, folks. Guess what? The technique always works, it always works. The greenshirts are here… and they’re disrupting all the meetings of people who are giving alternate views… as yobbos always do.

From Hamish and myself in Ontario, Canada, it’s good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.

Topics of show covered in following links:

Taxpayers Fund Oil Companies to Store and Transport Co2

Al Gore-You Know More Than Your Parents

Transcribed by Diana

Alan's Materials Available for Purchase and Ordering Information:

BOOKS "Cutting Through" Volumes 1, 2, 3 & "Waiting for the Miracle....." Also available in Spanish or Portuguese translation: "Esperando el Milagro....." (Espa&ntilde;ol) & "Esperando um Milagre....." (Portugu&ecirc;s)

CDs Ancient Religions and History MP3 CDs: Part 1 (1998) and Part 2 (1998-2000) & Blurbs and 'Cutting Through the Matrix' Shows on MP3 CDs (Up to 50 Hours per Disc)

DVDs "Reality Check Part 1" & "Reality Check Part 2 - Wisdom, Esoterica and ...TIME"

Dec. 18, 2009 (#475)
Alan Watt "Cutting Through The Matrix" LIVE on RBN:
Poem Copyright Alan Watt Dec. 18, 2009:
Copenhagen's the Means to Raise Babel, It Seems:
"Copenhagen Agreement to Change Way of Living,
Population Reduction While Rest Keep on Giving,
Poorer Countries to Receive, Be 'On The Take'
From Wealthier Nations the Banks Just Raped,
Raped Again on Bailouts, Thanks to Those Governing,
While Advancing Socialism to Cause More Suffering,
Copenhagen 'Framework,' Oh, What a Sweetie,
Come Next Meeting, We're All Bound by Treaty
To a Centralized System, Aaargh! More Sufferance,
The Raising of Babel, U.N. Global Governance"
&copy; Alan Watt Dec. 18, 2009

Poem & Dialogue Copyrighted Alan Watt - Dec. 18, 2009 (Exempting Music, Literary Quotes, and Callers' Comments)

.com alternate sites: .net , .us , .ca alanwatt.ca mirror site: cuttingthrough.jenkness.com

European site includes all audios & downloadable TRANSCRIPTS in European languages for print up: alanwattsentientsentinel.eu

---

Information for purchasing Alan’s books, CDs, DVDs and DONATIONS: Canada and America: PayPal, Cash, personal checks & for the US, INTERNATIONAL postal money orders / for Canada, INTERNAL postal money orders (America: Postal Money orders - Stress the INTERNATIONAL pink one, not the green internal one.) Outside the Americas: PayPal, Cash, Western Union and Money Gram (Money Gram is cheaper; even cheaper is a Money Gram check – in Canadian dollars: mail via the postal services worldwide.) PayPal Orders:USE THE DONATE BUTTON ON THE WEBSITE – AND – Send a separate email along with the donation (list your order, name and address) Click the link below for your location (ordering info): USACanadaEurope/ScandinavianAll Other Countries

---

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on December 18th 2009. For newcomers, look into .com. That is my main web site and on that front page you’ll see all the other sites I have up. These are the only official sites I have. You should bookmark them for future use. That way, if the big ones go down and give me a hassle as they always do once in a while, then you can download the latest shows. It’s a good idea to alternate your use of these sites if you get sticking sometimes on downloads because everyone is going into the .com site at the same time. [Sites listed above.]

Remember, you bring me to you, the audience. I’m not backed by any big foundation or any advertising company to push their products. The ads on this show are paid directly by the advertisers to RBN to pay for this show. It pays for the air time, their staff, their bills, equipment and technicians. So you have to keep me going and you can do so by buying the books, CDs and DVDs that I have for sale on the web sites. Some of the disks have 50 shows on them and that’s a pretty good deal. You bring me to you and it’s up to you to keep me going. Support me by buying these things or donate to me. [Purchase and donation options listed above.] For the US, you can use an INTERNATIONAL POSTAL money order from the post office. The internal US one is a green one and that can not be cashed outside of the US. The one you want is a sort of red/pinky one – for internationalism – that’s the one they have for international postal money orders; that’s the one you want. Some people just send cash to cut out the guy with the triple chins and the podgy fingers that keeps getting fatter all the time and who lives off your tax money and runs private corporations at the same time; quite a deal eh? Those who get the disks burned and passed to them, you can get in touch with me by writing to [address above].

I never decide where I'll take the show on any particular night; I just open my mouth and see what comes out. My mind is always tumbling with different pieces of news, discarding a lot of it as trivia or deceptive and I try to go into a talk to show you how things are really working in this divine comedy. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. As I say, I generally don't plan anything and I see where I just go with my thoughts for a night and then I start uploading the show through the satellite, if I can do it actually, because of XplorNet that's deliberately been told to cut me back in speed to put me off and that's how things work in the real world. Then I write the poem and then I get on with the uploading again. I try to omit a lot of articles because people don't realize that a lot of what they read has a spin on it one way or another, sometimes in different directions at once. After all, information is POWER; knowledge is POWER.

We've been ruled for an awful long time by very powerful people who are not stupid; far from being stupid. They are NOT in it just for the money. They will maintain that they stay in charge of mainstream media for generations to come, for their offspring's sake. They also have other reasons too. There is always a big game going on, on the chessboard all the time… all the time. People who don't know their history… if they don't know their history, they will never figure things out. They will fall for every con that's presented to them, under the guise of science with scientific terminology or medicine with medical terminology. Pharma is very good at that, selling flu stuff and so on. They don't think. Brzezinski knew this was coming because they were using professional people, not just reporters in media and managers; they were using people who were trained in how the mind works. People who had been trained by Bernays for instance, in how to not only sell things to the public but also how to so alter the public in such a way that more radical ideas could be introduced through non-radical people. It would be presented in such a way that they wouldn't even consciously notice that they've been radicalized. There are techniques to do it: through gradualism, like the alteration of your actual download that you want into their minds by changing wording, calling it something else for instance.

It's astonishing today how just a few years after, supposedly, the Berlin wall just fell down – remember, when a wall comes down, people come out – but it takes a few years and they don't know what communism is. I remember talking to a young girl in a coffee store. She served in a coffee store in the summer and she says, this is the last time I'll be here. I asked her where she was going. She was going off to help some country somewhere under some youth program. She said they lived communistically. I said, do you mean normal communal living or the actual idea of Marxist communism? She said, true communism. I asked her, what do you know of communism? Now, she was just out of school in Canada and she said, it's a good thing; it brought people together and made them work for a common purpose. Now, a 'common purpose' is the term… you've got to understand the buzzwords that are used in communism; common purpose is a term you'd use through all the think tanks that move the world and shape the way it's going. Remember the parallel government that Margaret Thatcher referred to and that Professor Carroll Quigley referred to and worked for, the foundations with their INCREDIBLE amounts of money that create policies that create the non-governmental organizations that DO the organizing because they have unlimited financing to do so. They have thousands of thinks tanks working on various problems and how to introduce these very thoughts into your head over a period of time, even with time tables written down for each particular idea to take hold. That's what she had been taught in school: it's a good thing; they were all striving towards a common cause; everybody sort of chipped in together. She really believed this. She was completely IGNORANT of what the sovietization system was all about politically and how it really was run by a small elite at the top, who lived like kings. They could get everything they wanted to.

Just like Orwell said in his book 1984, "There is nothing those bar-stewards can't get at the top." Everyone else was rationed; they couldn't even get razor blades at one point. That was part of the definition that's been given by Orwell and others, of tyranny. It's when those in charge of the means of production can regulate the distribution, REGULATE the distribution to those beneath them and choose whether to give them to you or not, to deprive you of them. That is not taught in school. All that was taught in school was the ideal version, the utopia of we're all in it together. Children, youngsters love a common purpose. That term 'common purpose' is stressed over and over again in Marxism and the foundations. In fact, they even have one of the largest groups in Britain called Common Purpose, well funded by the big boys in the Council on Foreign Relations/Royal Institute of International Affairs to bring in globalism. BUT they also choose youngsters at school, special ones; they select them to be future leaders. They're totally immersed in ONE ideology. That's how your leaders are presented; they are trained from youth for their roles.

I've mentioned many times about the Club of Rome being one think tank, one of MANY big think tanks, funded by the big foundations to come into existence to start the war cry. Their job was to find a WAR scenario to bring people together across the whole planet so that we would give up our freedoms and rights and work towards, again, a COMMON PURPOSE for survival. They thought about all different things that could happen, what they could USE to con the public. At first, they already tried global freezing and the coming ice age. They had that printed in Time Magazine and other major magazines in the early 70s, but nature wasn't cooperating with them. We go up and down like a yo-yo, from being cool for 10 years and then warm for 10 years; we go back and forth and it's been like that for an awful long time, millennia. So they changed it to global warming. This I've read so many times so I'll read it again, from THEIR OWN BOOK [The First Global Revolution], the FOUNDERS of the Club of Rome, King and Schneider. They published it in 1991 but they actually wrote IN the book that it was back in the early 70s that they came up with this idea. They printed this in Time Magazine too back in April, I think it was 1977. It says,

"The need for enemies seems to be a common historical factor. Some states have striven to overcome domestic failure and internal contradictions by blaming external enemies. The ploy of finding a scapegoat is as old as man himself. When things become too difficult at home, divert attention to adventure abroad, bring the divided nation together to face an outside enemy, either a real one or else one invented for the purpose." Page 71.

Then, on page 75 of The First Global Revolution, by these guys at the Club of Rome... Remember, it was their job to find it and all the other think tanks and implementers would follow. It says,

"In searching for a common enemy against who we can unite," (Alan: They're talking about how this is the technique that they've used in the past.) "we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill."

They made this the gospel. They gave us and their followers no other alternative. This was to be the big business plan and come hell or high water, or high snow, they were not going to change it… as we can see today. They need this to bring the world under their control. This is not some sort of democratic control; we're POST-democratic with these boys. We've BEEN post-democratic for a long time. When you run through an agenda between changes in the House or Parliament or Congress, as Jefferson said, 'When the same agenda is seen to be moving forward through changes in the House, you know you are under tyranny.'

This article goes on, on page 75, where they come down to the end,

"All these dangers therefore are caused by human intervention and natural processes; it's only through changed attitudes and behaviors that they can be overcome. The real enemy then is humanity itself."

The whole point was DEPOPULATION. That's what is going on in Copenhagen. Never mind all this money transfer - that's a big part of it - but it's not going to get to the people at the bottom. Those countries at the bottom are already on the LIST and have been since the 70s – on the LIST, and probably long before actually, but certainly reprinted by Kissinger and his teams – of peoples that would have to be brought down drastically in their populations. So a lot of this cash, the cash that gets through the psychopaths' pockets of the 'givers' at the top to the 'takers' at the bottom – there are always psychopaths that rise to the top in every culture – of that, that trickles down will go for abortions, bringing down populations, inoculations that will cripple them and sterilize them and all the stuff that we've seen in the West. That's how the world is really run.

They stuck to a plan. Whenever they stick to a plan, the think tanks actually have OTHER foundations they can go to that specialize - remember they all work together, these foundations, this parallel government - they have other ones that SPECIALIZE in creating CONSENSUS across the world. That's all they do, send bag men out to create consensus across the world. Back with more after this break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and we're Cutting Through The Matrix. It's interesting there at Copenhagen because they’ve had a blizzard there and a few inches of snow already. Across Europe they’ve had flights cancelled; Britain came to a standstill too with blizzards and snow. This is beautiful for future historians to write how they change the entire planet’s way of living talking about global warming in the middle of a blizzard where nothing could move. It’s so farcical. I said before a long time ago and over and over, I don’t care if you’re up to your ears in snow, they will still say it’s global warming.

That’s the only agenda that they have put everything on; all the money is on that you see. They’ve worked a whole new economy out, years in advance, and already implemented it in many countries. The whole of Europe implemented it 4 or 5 years ago and carbon trading. Now the next step is through treaties. Don’t be misled by the ‘oh, we’re getting nowhere at Copenhagen’ nonsense. No, they’re putting out the FRAMEWORK for a LEGAL BINDING system to be brought in with the NEXT meeting. That’s what it’s all about. When they bring out words like ‘framework’ for this, they’re talking about a GLOBAL GOVERNMENT framework. That’s what that means.

They send in Obama, the man of the moment, to spout off his rehearsed lines because he is run too, like a puppet; that’s all these guys are. He’s the sort of champion and oh, he bypassed all the backroom deals and went straight to the place and started spouting off and saying you’ve got to reach an agreement… they say. This is from CNN today. It’s interesting; on the side there are story highlights. I’m talking about BUZZ WORDS and TERMS used from communism. You’ve got to understand how it works. In this story highlight it says here:

STORY HIGHLIGHTS
Obama: no time to waste; time for COMMON PURPOSE. (A: People in the know understand where he’s coming from; the general public haven’t a clue what they are hearing. These are SLOGANS that are used within a particular organization, and a think tank, and a system, and a people in fact.)

Obama announces climate change deal with China, other nations
December 18, 2009 / CNN.com
[Article altered as of Dec 22, 2009]

Copenhagen, Denmark (CNN) -- Delegates at the U.N. Climate Change Conference are "running short on time" to reach agreement on a deal, U.S. President Barack Obama told them Friday.

“Now I believe that it’s time for nations (A: That’s another term they use too, ‘now is the time’. When they’re doing a revolution be it bloody or quiet, ‘now is the time’.) and people of the world to come together behind common purpose. We are ready to get this done today but there has to be movement on all sides.”

Obama sounded impatient with the progress of the two-week conference so far (A: Well, those are his lines; they’re all actors.), saying the scope of climate change discussions over the years have produced little more than talk.

"These international discussions have essentially taken place now for almost two decades, (A: Interesting too because none of it ever went through a popular vote in any country did it? It’s all above us all isn’t it? …for governance, isn’t it?) and we have very little to show for it other than an increased acceleration of the climate change phenomenon," (A: Well, what did you expect to come out of a liar? The same lies as his pals. All these guys are promoted to do this stuff, ‘you’ve got to do something now, it’s accelerating.’ this climate change phenomenon.) Obama said. "The time for talk is over."

The president said that the "pieces" of an accord have become clearer in the past fortnight in Copenhagen, but that countries must now decide to sign on, even if they feel the framework is imperfect.

"No country will get everything that it wants," he said. (A: Really, I bet there is one.)

Without mentioning China specifically, the president challenged that country's reluctance to allow transparency in international review.

(A: Then it goes on there on how he DID meet, after saying he just rushed in and bypassed all the leaders. He said he had actually already met the representative from China.) He abruptly canceled a ceremonial one-on-one meeting with the Danish prime minister in order to jump into an emergency meeting with almost 20 key leaders -- including representatives from China, Australia, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, and India. (A: Backroom deals.)

China's involvement is critical because it has been holding up a climate deal over whether the United States and other wealthy nations (A: China is holding all the US debt! Why is the US being called a wealthy nation when China has all the manufacturing and all the goods? The means of production were all shipped to them under this global plan, by the big boys, and they're still calling the US rich? They've gone through a bank collapse, folk are loosing their homes all over the place, there's unemployment and worse to come… and the people still think Obama is real… and the media is real… to give you such rubbish as this.) should pay to help developing countries deal with the cost of global warming. (A: Argh.)

Obama met with Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao for 55 minutes Friday, a White House official said.

(A: Listen to this…) The meeting was a "constructive discussion that touched upon all of the key issues," (A: What are the key issues?) the official said, including the three major points Obama touched on in his speech: mitigation, transparency, and financing.

Obama and Wen directed their negotiators to work on a bilateral basis (A: Bilateral basis, the US and China.) and with negotiators from other countries to see whether an agreement could be reached in Copenhagen, the official said. It means the U.S. negotiators have now split in two, divided between the Chinese negotiations and the ongoing multilateral negotiations, the official said.

The meeting between Obama and Wen was a "step forward," (A: Right out of Mao Tse-Tung's little Red Book, if you understand what that really means.) the official said, without providing details. (A: Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I'm Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, just mentioning what's really happening at Copenhagen is just setting up the idea for the 'framework' which means a government, a world government system.

It's dealing with ALL ECONOMY OF EVERY COUNTRY. All laws in any nation revolve around its economy; all laws. That's why Rothschild said when he was asked if he also wanted to rule the country of Britain when he took over the Bank of England, he says, "No. Just give me the money and I care not who rules" because obviously he would be ruling because ALL LAWS revolve around finances, the economy of the system, the nation. Every government goes to the bank, their so-called centralized bank – another plank of the manifesto was to centralize everything – and they go cap-in-hand and ask for the cash. Then they guarantee that the tax payers will pay it back. We are all put down as the guarantors, and so are your children and grandchildren and great grandchildren; although I don't think we're going to have any, the way it's going and the way it's planned, at Copenhagen.

The real goal too, is to not only get charge of all the economies of every country and to centralize it all in the United Nations – a world government – but to depopulate like crazy by withholding food eventually. That's in the UN agreements that they will eventually be responsible for designating the rationing of FOOD to every state, as they like to call it, or region, a group of states. That's in their Charter. Look into it. When they set up their agricultural department at the UN, you'll find all that stuff there. They said that they would allocate the rationing of food according to the population of each country. It will be up to each country then to decide how to bring down its population; it's YOUR problem because they won't put the rations up. I guarantee you, they will start at something where everyone can eat and just like everything else they do at the UN, they will start bringing it down; the ration quota will go down and down and down. Food and water and energy are used as weapons… always, down through history. Nothing to do with the climate. Nothing AT ALL to do with the climate.

As that is happening there, they are socializing the medical systems in the last few countries that don't have socialized medicine. Where countries spend – like Canada – $48-odd or so million dollars a year on propaganda and advertising to tell the public who live in Canada how wonderful their medical system is. No kidding; I've read the articles on the air. Incredible isn't it? Propaganda wins over reality as people queue up with the big number tags, the kind they used to hang on cattle's ears before the slaughter. You'd see them in the fields – for those folk who could tear themselves away from a city – you'd see them with these big tags. That's what you get when you walk through the door and you take your place. You have no idea who you are going to see because you will never see the same face twice. You might sit 4 or 5 hours or longer. Then they might just close up whenever they want to and tell you to come back tomorrow or the next day or whenever. That's how you are treated in socialized medicine. They don't pull out your records. They don't care about your history. They just ask what you want and stand there with a prescription pad. That's socialized medicine. AND they don't put all the tests through for you either because that's all cutbacks, you see. When things are socialized, the government runs it; remembering the agenda is to DEpopulate, NOT to keep you healthy, depending again on your status. There are special hospitals for the better people like top bureaucrats and their families and politicians; they all get into that. That's socialized medicine. Just like the Soviet Union had.

Also, they said they would use, and Lenin said they would use SERVICES. They would begin services for the public and then they would become AUTHORITIES. They talked about the MERGER of the end of the dictatorship of the proletariat - which is really over the proletariat, it should have been called - where communism would blend with the West and become not quite Capitalist, not quite Communist. More what they called the ideal SOCIALIST, where big business would still be allowed to flourish, work hand-in-glove with government, and technically, technically, if you want to call it some other name, it's FASCIST. Masses of bureaucrats would rule the lives of ALL the masses beneath them… which we have. He said, around the year 2000 and beyond, it will be so bad in the West and the rest of the world that there will be so many agencies and government agencies competing with each other they will be stepping on each other's toes, in territories, combining territories. That's happening too. There are so many alphabet soup agencies out there THEY can't keep track of them themselves. Again, using these services which would then become authorities, like police services were services paid for by the tax payer and then the tax payers of even towns and villages in Canada could fire them at will and that's why they brought in 'provincial' or 'state' police and they're going for 'federal' police. Centralization, again, a Marxist idea.

They are going to the next step NOW because health care is also used as a weapon… in more ways than you think. Health care is used as a weapon because they can either depopulate through it by withdrawing stuff from availability to the public, like antibiotics for instance - very simple - or putting out and promoting shots to shorten their life, as was suggested by quite a few of the big players like Lord Bertrand Russell when he said, 'We shall use the needle.' I've read that on the air from his own book. Julian Huxley said the same thing. They're using pharmacists too and this is a new thing. Remember, we started to hear pharmacists can now give the flu shot. Well, pharmacists are not trained or authorized to give shots… but the public don't know that. They don't know that. Does a pharmacist have a defibrillator there? …when you go into anaphylactic shock? …and your heart just packs in? No. It doesn't matter now, you're in socialized medicine. MASSES, you treat the masses like the masses. You're not a person anymore, you're just a statistic. If you die, you're a statistic; that's all. You had bad genes; this stuff is made for the average genes.

This article is from an inside site for health care, insiders, the big boys. It's called Fierce Health It. I'll put these links up on my site if I can get any speed from XplorNet at all, at the end of the night. It says it's the leading source of health care; news with a special focus on… and it tells you the different things.

Medco to pay pharmacists for closing medication loop
By nversel / Dec 14 2009 / FierceHealthIT (http://www.fiercehealthit.com)

